SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

SEPTEMBER 25, 1958

This Town— That World

This is National Dog Week in Kentucky, and next week it will be National Newspaper Week—in that order, putting to rest the rumor that the newspapers are going to the dogs.

NEWSPAPER WEEK

I have no consuming passion for these special Weeks, and because we have nothing to be especially proud of we are not going to endanger the public with buttons popping off our vest, if we had a vest.

Let's just say, we're thankful still to be operating rather than proud about how we've operated. Every edition of this newspaper is to us an object lesson in the difficult matter of humility. We miss so much that we should not, we fail so often when we should succeed, and those imperfections jump right up off the page and hit us so squarely in the eye that whatever wind that has accumulated in our sails is suddenly let out to sea.

Occasionally, we are remembered during Newspaper Week, and, of course, we appreciate such courtesies. Who wouldn't? But make mine a day-to-day, week-by-week appreciation of our readers by us and vice versa.

They say that if you would be a great newspaper editor you must arise, charging from bed each morning, seething with anger about something or other. That's our trouble, I suppose—we ain't mad at nobody.

And now to National Dog Week.

BODY OF MAN NOT CLAIMED

Search for Relatives Of Heart Victim Fails; County Burial Planned

The unclaimed body of a 55-year-old man remains at the Carter & Callahan Funeral Home here after telephone calls over a wide section of the country have failed to locate relatives.

The victim has been identified through employment records and Floyd acquaintances as Paul Carroll, of New London, O., and a native of Boston, Massachusetts.

But nobody has been found to claim his body, and burial may ultimately be made here at county expense.

The man came to this county last week with a Floyd man who had been working in New London. At a Mud Creek home last Saturday noon he suffered a heart attack. He died at 2 p. m., enroute to the Prestonsburg General hospital.

Carroll had resided at New London the last 10 years, and had been employed there in a manufacturing plant. Work records disclosed that he was registered as Paul X. Carrollo.

State police help in locating the man's relatives has been asked. Phone calls to Boston, Chicago and numerous other points were made by the funeral home over the week-end.

FLOOD CONTROL JOB RESUMED WEDNESDAY

FLOOD STOP IS PREDICTED BY JANUARY 1

If Contractor's Work Unimpeded by Strikes; Layoff Lasted 14 Days

The S. T. Kenyon Company, contractor on the flood control project here, resumed work Wednesday morning, two weeks after it had become strikebound.

The return to work was made on direction of the international union representative to whom the case had been referred. The work-stoppage came after Roddy Stone, union steward, had been fired following an altercation with another employe. Thirty-two workers were idled by the strike.

Harry West, Kenyon's superintendent, said Wednesday morning that, barring further strikes, the diversion sewer work along Lake Drive can be completed in three to four weeks and that the work at the Second street fill can advance to the point where Prestonsburg can have flood protection by January 1.

The gateway between the river and the fill is well under construction. Being laid is a 96-inch line through the gateway and on to the river. When these two phases of the project are completed, West said, the levee can be thrown up in a hurry. Although pump-house construction and installation of pumping machinery cannot be made by Jan. 1, he explained temporary pumps could in an emergency be used behind the levee to pump out water accumulating from surface drainage and sewers.

LONE DEPUTY STAGES RAID

Lewis in Solo Forays Captures Three Stills; Moonshining Picking Up

Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis has discarded the theory that in numbers there is strength, and, playing a lone hand — his own — has within a week confiscated three moonshine stills.

On "Oklahoma Branch" of Beaver Creek, a short distance above Allen, he caught Marion Yates at a still last Friday. Yates, who had two previous offenses against his record, was taken before the U. S. Commissioner at Pikeville and will face federal court trial. His three-barrel outfit was destroyed. It included 80 gallons of mash and three and a half gallons of whiskey.

The same day, Lewis arrested Herbert Salisbury, of the Left Beaver Creek section, with a half-gallon of moonshine. Lewis thinks the liquor was a product of the Yates operation. Salisbury, who was under probation, was jailed here.

Later, still working alone, Lewis cut a two-barrel still on Little Mud Creek and confiscated a small outfit, including two copper worms, on the Stratton Branch, near Dewey Lake. The operators were not captured.

Moonshining, said Sheriff Hershell Warrens this week, has increased in recent months. Why, he doesn't know, unless the concentration of officers on the "red likker" traffic and economic conditions have made moonshine more attractive to both producers and buyers.

Two other men have been arrested within the week on liquor charges. Fred Newsome was jailed last Thursday by State Detective Chester D. Potter and Deputy Sheriff Lonnie Herald on a beer possession charge. He also was listed as a fugitive from Ohio authorities. The other arrested was Morton Tackett, who was booked by R. Hall and H. Johnson on a charge of possessing moonshine. Tamery Elliott was jailed by Deputy Sheriff Hershell Lester on a reckless driving count.

ROUND-UP SUNDAY TO BE OBSERVED

The Committee on Support of Churches from the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club announced this week that Sunday, September 28, is to be observed as Round-Up Sunday by the churches of Prestonsburg.

The idea behind the day, according to the committee, is to re-enlist all church and Sunday School members who have been out during the summer months and to invite and enlist those in the city of Prestonsburg who are not attending church services at the present time.

This same committee sponsored a Go-to-Church Sunday in the spring and reported an increase in attendance at the churches that actively participated in the program. "It is hoped that the members of all the churches in the community will back this project by being present in their respective churches this Sunday," the committee chairman said.

FRENCH GIRL ON TOUR LIKES EAST KENTUCKY

By QUENTIN ALLEN

"I think I have never seen France thees way," said Suzanne LeDuc, a French girl making a stop-over here last week during a two-month tour of the United States.

Suzanne, a worker for the United States Information Service Library at Tours, France, is touring the country under the auspices of the State Department, as part of an experiment in international living. Her Kentucky host is the State Library Extension Division.

After a visit to The Floyd County Times, Suzanne remarked that she had never seen a French weekly paper. She added that she had inspected a daily newspaper while touring Richmond, Va.

Suzanne is an attractive brunette, taller than the average French-woman, and she has a sparkling intelligence.

"There is not so much difference in the United States and France," she said. "I would say there are only exterior appearances which differ."

She added that exterior appearances were the comforts, the luxuries of American living.

"Our families are basically the same. Only we do not have so much television. Or big cars. We do not travel as much as you do. We must plan our trips. Why, people seem to go . . . just like that, here," she said, snapping her fingers.

LEWIS SEEKS HIGHER WAGES

Added Royalty Payments, $.120 Per Day Increase Asked By UWMA, Report

Floyd county's ailing coal industry is showing signs of recovery, with most mines working, but they may soon be operating under a new wage scale and paying an even higher welfare fund royalty, it was indicated this week.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, was reported to have negotiated a tentative agreement calling for a $.120 daily wage increase for about 180,000 U.M.W. miners, plus a 10-cent-a-ton increase in the welfare-fund royalty, and other improvements. The welfare-fund royalty is now 40 cents a ton.

Lewis' headquarters had no comment on the reported agreement, but the executive committee of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association was reported to meet in Pittsburgh Tuesday to decide on the deal.

The veteran U.M.W. president has let the soft-coal contract extend a year beyond the time it could have been terminated in a bid for improvement.

264 SELECTED FOR ELECTION

2 Democratic Members Of Board Pick Officers As Republican Absent

Election officers to preside at the polls at the November voting were named Sept. 20 by two of the three election commissioners, Woodrow Fitzpatrick and Sheriff Hershell Warrens.

Appointment of election officers was made on the last day prescribed for their selection, and the Republican member of the commission, Mrs. George E. Evans, of Estill, could not be reached for the meeting, it was said. Mrs. Evans was in Cincinnati.

Names of the 264 election officers follow, the clerk, two judges and sheriff appearing in order in each instance:

Prestonsburg No. 1—W. G. Biggers, Ernest Hopkins, Brad Boyd, George Roberts.

Prestonsburg No. 2 — Joe W. Jarrell, Homer Salisbury, Virginia Stephens, M. J. Leete.

Depot—Woodrow Fitzpatrick, Roe Greene, Will Elliott, Charlie Wright.

JAPANESE STUDENT VISITOR IN COUNTY

Miss Yoshie Muto, of Japan, an International Farm Youth Exchange, (IFYE) is the third visitor from a foreign country to be guest in Floyd county this summer and fall. She is presently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Gayheart at Eastern where she will remain until October 2, said Jack M. Friar, assistant county agent.

SALE ORDERED OF CAR, TRUCK

Vehicles Confiscated In Search For Whiskey; Messer Cases Dismissed

Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill this week entered orders directing that two motor vehicles confiscated by Floyd officers in liquor raids be sold by the Sheriff, and at the same time first moves were being made toward the sale of a third.

Immediately after Sherman Cook was jailed for 30 days and fined $20 by a court jury sitting in his trial on a charge of possessing liquor for sale, the order to sell his truck was entered. The car of Muncy Prater, who previously was convicted, and sold was ordered advertised and sold. An attempt will be made to sell the car of Lloyd Kestner who is under indictment. Cook also was required to execute $1,000 peace bond.

Two charges against Former Deputy Sheriff Cluett Messer were dismissed by Special Judge Eldred E. Adams, of Louisa, on motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Hollie Conley. Messer was accused of obtaining money under false pretense and of accepting a bribe as an officer. The court orders gave as the reasons for dismissal of the two cases, "insufficient evidence" and "lack of evidence."

Few cases out of the ordinary arose in court during the week. The case that attracted considerable attention Tuesday was a civil hearing in which Dewey Sammons won a $20,000 judgment for rights-of-way for the new Prestonsburg-Auxier highway over his property here and for damages to other parts of his property. Commissioners appointed by County Judge Stumbo for condemnation proceedings had valued the right-of-way and damages at $7,700.

Sol Bradley was fined $50 last week when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of having unstamped whiskey in his possession.

Judge Ardery ruled that the liability rests solely on Hall, his Hall Trucking Company—his predecessor company, C & C Trucking Company, and his bondsmen.

In so ruling, the court dismissed four state officials from joint liability with Hall. They are Dr. James W. Martin, commissioner of Finance at the time, but now distinguished professor of economics at the University of Kentucky; Ward J. Oates, assistant to Dr. Martin at the time, but now commissioner of highways; J. B. Wells, Jr., commissioner of rural highways, and O. J. West, Pikeville, district highway engineer.

Attorney General Jo M. Ferguson, who brought the recovery suit, issued a statement which in part, reads:

"I am deeply gratified that the judgment of Franklin circuit court in the Knott county road case sustains the legal opinions of this office that the contracts entered into with the Hall companies by state officials openly flaunted and disregarded the laws of this state designed to protect the public from waste and extravagance.

" . . . I feel that my actions in

EXPECT BIDS ON COTTAGES

Park Structures, Roads Discussed at Frankfort; Survey of Road Ordered

Bids on construction of four "deluxe" cottages at Arrowhead Point on Dewey Lake are expected to be asked within the next few days. State Senator Jerry F. Howell was told last week by Conservation Commissioner Laban T. Jackson.

Plans for the cottages, which will not be "rustic" buildings as originally proposed but will include indoor toilet facilities and other appointments similar to those in use at other state parks, have been completed and were expected to be in the hands of prospective bidders by week's end, it was said.

The road which ends in the Goble Branch vicinity will be opened by bulldozer on to Arrowhead Point, to make possible the delivery of building materials at the site if this can be done during dry weather, Senator Howell was told.

The Floyd man also said Highway Commissioner Ward J. Oates ordered while he was in Oates office last week an immediate survey of the Salt Lick road which connects with Ky. 80 at Bosco and Ky. 114 at the mouth of Raccoon, two and a half miles west of Bosco. This road is heavily used by traffic to and from Magoffin county and is a short route to the Blue Grass for the upper Right Beaver Creek area. The dry-weather pall of dust was abated on the route last week when the road was oiled by state highway workmen. A blacktop surface of the "missing link" in the road is sought.

Senator Howell said he was told a work order has already been issued to Elam & Wingo, West Liberty contractors, on the road from Brandy Keg boat dock to the Stratton Branch recreation area. The contractors had not moved machinery onto the job this week, however.

JURY PROBES BUS TRAGEDY

Report Says Evidence Not Conclusive; Asks New Courthouse Built

The last legal action toward fixing the blame for the February school bus tragedy, near here, may have been taken last Thursday when the grand jury of the circuit court reported to Circuit Judge Edw. P. Hill that it was "unable to find sufficient evidence that would warrant the making of an indictment at this time."

The jury based its finding upon a lengthy perusal of the voluminous record amassed during the court of inquiry held by County Judge Henry Stumbo in an effort to fix the blame, if any, for the tragedy which claimed the lives of 25 pupils and the

SIXTH POST-WAR FAIR TO OPEN HERE, OCT. 1

Epidemic of Rabies Results in Quarantine In Emma-Cow Cr. Area

An epidemic of rabies in the Emma-Mouth of Cow Creek section caused County Judge Henry Stumbo last Friday to issue an order establishing a 45-day quarantine of all dogs within a radius of one mile from the two points.

The order requires all dog-owners to keep their dogs securely tied or confined where they do not have access to condemned animals and where they cannot come in contact with any human being. Failure to comply with directions of the quarantine order will result in any violator being fined, Judge Stumbo's order said. The quarantine was established at the direction of the Floyd County Health Department.

FISCAL COURT PAYS ON DEBT

Funeral Directors' Threat To Refuse Pauper Burials Brings Action By Justices

The Floyd fiscal court was back in the good graces, or nearly so, of the county's funeral directors after it had last Thursday paid off more than $4,000 of its old debt to five of the six funeral homes in the county. It lacked less than $1,000 of paying off the old accounts.

All this action was taken by a transfer of funds with the approval of the State Finance Officer the funeral directors were considering refusing to handle the funerals of the county's indigent dead in the future. They told the court they not only had not been paid for past funerals but that, even when they were paid, they sacrificed about $100 per funeral.

The meeting with the directors consumed most of the day's session.

In other business the court accepted rights-of-way deeds from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hale and authorized County Judge Henry Stumbo to execute to the state deeds to Katy Friend-Bull Creek road and the Branham's Creek road for state maintenance.

The court directed County Attorney Robert S. Wellman to make answer to a suit filed here recently on another old debt. The plaintiffs are the Pittsburgh Steel & Tool Company and the Armo Drainage and Metal Products Company. Members of the fiscal court, Judge Stumbo and County Attorney Wellman were named defendants.

MOORE SAYS AUDITOR WOULD DISCREDIT HIM

County Court Clerk DuRan Moore this week accused State Auditor Mary Louise Foust of playing politics in an effort to discredit him through a state audit of his office.

County Clerk Moore, whose records for the years 1954, 1955, 1956 and 1957 were said by Miss Foust to have been under routine audit, said the State Auditor "is making public an audit which is false and malicious and could only be harmful to me."

He added that her "acts are purely political and are made for the purpose of damaging my reputation as a public official because I am opposed to the present Chandler administration which, in our county, is one of political graft and favoritism."

The public first became aware of the development through a statement made by Moore to the Associated Press which, in turn, released the story to the daily newspapers Tuesday morning.

Miss Foust took immediate issue with Moore's statement.

"It surprises me that Mr. DuRan Moore has made a statement to the press concerning the audit in Floyd county, report of which

4-DAY EVENT WILL FEATURE WIDE EXHIBITS

Fairgrounds Are Moved To P'Burg High School; Rides To Open, Monday

The sixth annual post-war Floyd County Fair, to be held this year for the first time on the grounds of Prestonsburg high school on North Lake Drive, will get under way Monday evening when the Gooding Amusement Company opens its ride to the general public.

Exhibits of the agricultural, educational and industrial products will be offered the public Oct. 1 through Saturday, Oct. 4, according to Jesse Elliott, chairman.

"The improvement of exhibits and activities over past years is the result of the constructive and friendly spirit of the exhibitors," the chairman noted.

Exhibits will run the whole gamut of agricultural products of the county, according to the fair catalog released this week. In addition to farm and school offerings a great amount of incidental exhibits will be seen in arts and crafts, woodcraft, textile paintings, basketry, hobbies, antiques and metal work.

As usual the school displays and youth clubs exhibits will feature the fair. In these categories will be found the 4-H pig chain, F. F. A., and F.H.A. offerings. The school exhibits from all grades are expected to be better than last year. Pupils were busy this week preparing innumerable works of art, posters, manuscripts and other presentations.

Saturday, last day of the fair, is scheduled as Kid's Day, when the price of rides will be reduced till 5 p.m. Two bicycles, one each for a boy and girl, will be given away through tickets distributed by the schools. Winners of the bicycle.

KNOTT WOMAN WRECK VICTIM

Mrs. Mollie Mae Owens, Mother Of Seven, Killed; Four Others Hospitalized

Mrs. Mollie Mae Owens, 52, of Mousie, was instantly killed and four other persons were hospitalized following the collision of two autos near Larklane, Saturday.

Mrs. Owens, who was a passenger in the family car with her husband, Joel Owens, and a grandson, age 9, were driving toward Hindman when they collided with an automobile driven, it was said, by Hiram Johnson. Miss Lorraine Sparkman was a passenger in the Johnson car.

Owens was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, suffering from a fractured leg and internal injuries; Miss Sparkman was hospitalized at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville, but the extent of her injuries was not learned; and Johnson was removed to the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, but his condition was said not to be serious. The Owens' grandson was treated at the Beaver Valley hospital but released.

Mrs. Owens' injuries consisted of a compound fracture of the leg, chest and head injuries, multiple bruises and lacerations.

Surviving besides the husband, are three sons and four daughters: Wayne Owens and Mrs. Beretta Hays, both of Mousie, Arthur Owens, Columbus, O., James Darrell Owens, and Miss Geneva Owens, both at home, Mrs. Juanita Boleyn, Auburn, Ind., and Mrs. Joy Faye Childers, Sunman, Ind. Sisters surviving are Mrs. Raney Conley, of Garrett, Mrs. Lonnie Layne, of Wayland, Mrs. Bert Terry, of Garner, Mrs. Ora Hicks, of David, and Mrs. Susie Conley, Jackson, O.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Ball Branch Church and burial was made in the family cemetery at Mousie under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

Pancake Day Chairman Urges Floyd Fairgoers To Eat With Kiwanians

B. F. Reed, of Drift, chairman of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club's Pancake Day, extended an invitation this week to all Floyd county fair-goers to forego breakfast at home, Saturday, October 4, and eat with the Kiwanians and others at the high school cafeteria.

All proceeds from the breakfast go to help underprivileged children, and to a milk fund, Reed says. Many business firms have already contributed various necessary items to the Pancake Day promotion, it was said.

Firms contributing to make Pancake Day a success are Howard Wholesale Company, of Allen, Webber's Sausage, Cynthia, Spurlock Food Service, Prestonsburg, Mallory Store, of David, and Brown Produce Company, Prestonsburg.

Tickets are procurable at the door or are on sale by civic-minded persons several days preceding the fair opening.

Dr. J.H. Allen and Bill Arnold Spradlin

When the time comes for the election of Members to the Floyd County Board of Education it is only fair that you who have children, the dearest possession on earth, have a right to know the facts.

We, with whom you have trusted the responsibility of giving your child his greatest birthright — an education, feel that it is our duty to inform you on how well that trust has been kept.

We have listed below some of the improvements made during this present administration:

- 1. Leadership. Democratic leadership has been shown by teachers leading groups in county-wide meetings, in faculty meetings, by having teacher committees for selection of free textbooks, preparation of materials lists and in making many other major educational decisions.
- 2. Lunch Program. Our lunch program has been expanded until it is possible for two-thirds or more of our children to have a wholesome noon meal.
- 3. Materials. Appropriations for Libraries, Science, Biology, Chemistry, Agriculture, Home Economics, Music, Art, and Classroom Materials have been tripled during the last five years.
- 4. Libraries. Our central professional library to help all teachers, has been made second to none in the state and other library services are the best in history—thanks to the assistance of the Bookmobiles and our Regional Library.
- 5. Attendance. Fewer school-age children are out of school today than ever before in the history of our county. Our teachers are to be highly commended for their cooperation and effort in making this possible.
- 6. Salaries. Our teachers are being better paid and have the lowest pupil load in Floyd county history.
- 7. Transportation. More pupils are being transported than ever before.
- 8. Course of Study. Our Course of Study has been expanded to meet more adequately the needs of high school pupils.
- 9. Teacher Preparation. Teacher preparation is at present at its highest level and each teacher is teaching subjects in her field of special training.
- 10. Buildings and Improvements. New buildings have been constructed at Prestonsburg High School, Prater Creek, Martin, Allen, Drift, Harold, Bosco, Ligon, Betsy Layne, McDowell, Little Paint, Branham's Creek, Left Toler, Right Toler, Home Branch, and Goble Branch. Major repairs have been made at Cliff, Cow Creek, Banner, Dwale, Clear Creek, Teaberry, Garrett, Maytown, Wheelwright, Melvin and Wayland. Repairs have been made to other buildings where needed.

CONTINUE A GOOD EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM by supporting
Dr. J. H. Allen and Bill Arnold Spradlin.

Our View of Justice, Sans Benefit of Law Books

Circuit Judge William B. Ardery, of the Franklin circuit court, is, for all we know, technically correct in his opinion holding that the Hall Trucking Company is due the state the money paid it in that questionable Knott county road-building arrangement and that the state officials who approved the deal at the outset are not financially responsible.

That may be the law. But we cannot reconcile it with plain justice, stripped of all legal frills and technicalities.

The Hall firm, looking for work—profitable work as an Administration adherent—went to Frankfort and received from Highway Department officials the word to go ahead and do the work. The rate of pay was agreed on by these officials, who presumably know the law and who have the benefit of legal advice. Without seeking to exculpate the Hall company, we think it is reasonable to assume that it trusted the legal judgment of the state officials.

Then—and this is the point we cannot overlook—the contractor actually did the work and collected as agreed with Highway Commissioner Martin, Rural Highway Commissioner J. B. Wells, et al.

Let's admit the state of Kentucky was taken for a ride, that an Administration henchman was given work without a contract at a time when contracts were required by law, and that he was overpaid. But he rented trucks from a Morehead firm, he paid that firm, he did the work assigned him by those in authority.

Now must the contractor lose the money he paid as rental of that machinery and receive nothing for his work while those at the top—those who know, or should know, their rights, the rights of others and what is basically right in handling the taxpayers' money—suffer no penalty whatsoever?

If indeed these officials are not liable for the money that was wasted with their full consent and knowledge, would not prosecution on misfeasance or malfeasance charges more evenly tip the scales of justice?

"STATE OF ANARCHY"

(An editorial in the Dickensonian, Clintwood, Va.)

Over in Letcher county, Kentucky, at Whitesburg in the night about one hundred irate citizens forgathered in a protest meeting against the treatment that the mountain counties were receiving from their state government. It was suggested, perhaps jokingly, that the eastern counties secede from the Bluegrass western area, but the idea caught, and is now being seriously considered in several other counties.

The bone of contention seemed to be that the eastern counties near the Virginia border were paying out funds to build roads and construct schools, et cetera, in the western section, and that for the past 125 years the mountain counties had been getting the short end of the deal, not only in regard to roads but in other public facilities.

Included in the potential state that the Kentuckians would set up are some thirty-six counties, or nearly half of the one hundred in the state. To indicate the seriousness of the proposal, a committee was appointed to study the matter and see what could be done toward establishing the new state. It has been suggested that these mountain counties ask the grand old Commonwealth of Virginia to take them back again since they were once a part of Virginia.

And therein our Kentucky brothers have erred, and deeply. They would only be jumping from the frying-pan into the fire, because if they did hook up with the Byrd-controlled government in Richmond, which organization firmly believes that Virginia's western border is at Roanoke, they would be left holding the sack through the ages yet to unfold.

We would suggest rather that Virginia's embattled Ninth District give a thought to seceding from its state and joining up with the counties in Eastern Kentucky in a state of perpetual anarchy, with Harlan as the Capital. In fact we once introduced in Virginia's General Assembly a measure containing this "Secession" idea as it pertained to Dickenson county anyway, but needless to say the bill died in committee.

Down in Louisville Governor Happy Chandler appeared to be more than a little concerned over this more or less 'open revolt'. Apparently "Happy" was learning to his chargin that he is not as popular with the voters as he is with himself. But he appeared also to console himself with the fact that the state legislature would have to approve such a rebellion, and he has a firm control over that body.

Be that as it may, we Virginians (sic) certainly give our brothers across the line our deep and sincere sympathy. We know what they mean when they say that they are classed as second-rate citizens while the bluebloods of the Bluegrass take the cream from the kitty. The same thing has been happening to us citizens here in the Mountain Empire for many a weary year.

We received a slight encouragement a few weeks ago when the Virginia Chamber of Commerce released a map of the state with the western border at Christiansburg. We gained fifty miles, but we are still two hundred miles out of focus from Richmond. And, before we forget it, we want to add that the only consideration we get from our state government is the bare minimum required by law.

Since the Mountain Empire of Virginia, and the mountain counties of Kentucky have everything in common, even to kinfolks, some of us would like to be included in your "sesesh" plans and studies and to warn you against your idea of joining Virginia. What with coal mining, moonshining, and skinning tourists our finances would be secure, and at least we would be certain of them staying at home.

The blue-blooded sophisticates of the Tidewater and Bluegrass sections of our respective states are obsessed with the idea that we cut our teeth on six-shooters and that we observe communion with sugar-top moonshine, and the time is past due when we should take action to retrieve our lost reputations, regain our self-respect, and no longer be forced to beg on bended knee for that which is rightfully ours. Come on, Kentuckians! We are right behind you.

LETTERS

TO THE EDITOR

THE MARTIN SCHOOL FOR RETARDED CHILDREN Editor, Floyd County Times:

(The following was written to the Times after hearing a nurse speak at a county seat town about her deceased sister who was handicapped.)

The speaker discussed handicapped children, and added that the community, like most others, needed a special school for the unfortunate little ones. Later, I remarked to her that our home county was lucky enough to have a school for special or exceptional children. She asked HOW, in capitals.

Suddenly her question brought forth the pictures of those early days when Brother Robert Martin and his wife started asking for such a school. One thought of the grand cooperation given by the county superintendent, V. O. Turner, of the space and encouragement from the Floyd County Times, of the marvelous free work by Dr. Holbert Lee, of Lexington, and free services of good doctors in Floyd county, who donated the assistance of other personnel.

Then came the memory of the loyal efforts of the first president, Mr. Ambrose Mandt, and also of the hours his devoted wife gave to the service, asking nothing in return. Few can ever know the obstacles they had to overcome. Later, when the Mandt family moved, Bert Combs, Floyd county's own gubernatorial candidate assumed the presidency willingly, to continue the splendid work begun.

In the meantime the director, Mrs. J. T. Begley, head teacher, had done a superb job in getting the school started, with the wonderful help of Esther Sammons, assistant teacher. All the while much volunteer teaching and work were being done by various members of the Prestonsburg and Martin Women's Clubs. Few can conceive of the services rendered by Dr. Frances Sherman, of Martin, member of the Board of directors, and a mainstay at all times, though the busy wife of a surgeon, and herself a practicing physician and specialist. Among the ever-faithful and active ones were Mrs. Ray Allen, of Martin, and Miss Blanche Dingus, county nutritionist, whose interest has been noted.

No one can forget the time given by the Bob Mays ever since he accepted the position of treasurer. Mrs. Bert T. Combs shared the work and concern of her husband while he was free to continue as president. More recently word comes that Mr. Minor Pace, a well known civic worker, of Wheelwright, is piloting the organization wisely and carefully at present.

And thoughts wander to the little lady who suggested and sponsored the radio auction in behalf of the school last fall, none other than Dora Stephens of WERT, whose time had so graciously been donated frequently to the cause, as is that of the new station WDOG today. More than once Red Ison, of Martin provided free cab service to bring kiddies to the school. Often good women left home at early hours to drive others there. How WAS it done? It was done through the love and cooperation of big-hearted men and women, who place the welfare of helpless youngsters before pleasure and personal interests. It is an honor to the county to be among the first to provide such service. More than once Floyd county has pioneered but never to better advantage than in this instance.

These are but a few of the names that might be placed on the roster of workers but those omitted are not known to the writer. The nicest part about such enterprises is the people who conduct them. In the words of one leader, when she was struggling hardest to carry on: "Forget us; do not mention us. It is so little. Just tell about the work, please. That's enough."

He reportedly has held secret negotiations with Edward G. Fox, president of the Bituminous Coal Association, arguing that a threat of world war and improving business prospects warrant a miner's pay increase. Coal production has been running nearly 25 per cent below 1957 levels, but Lewis was reported to have argued the coal industry had to recognize that other industries are granting labor gains.

A $1.20 increase in the miners' daily wage would lift the basic pay figure from a present $22.25 to $23.45. There were also rumors of a possible additional 80 cent daily wage rise next April.

The welfare-fund royalty is reported set to rise to 50 cents a ton April 1 under the tentative agreement. A similar royalty is paid under the separate anthracite industry labor contract.

The employer-paid soft-coal royalty has been yielding approximately $14,000,000 a year for pension and hospital benefits, but this year's reduced coal production has decreased the figure.

It was also rumored miners will get six paid holidays, a quarter-hour cut in their work day, a $25-a-day pay minimum for some miners, and assurances against unionized mine owners handling nonunion produced coal.

OUR FACE IS LIFTED

As you see the heading of this column is new. After 165 columns with over 140,000 words in the last six years the old heading for Floyd County Historical Notes began to show evidence of wear and tear under the beating of the press nearly a million times.

The original drawing of the old as well as the new column was by Mrs. Frankie Best, Floyd county teacher and artist. At my direction she left out the words, "Floyd County," as items carried strayed far afield, many times, from this area. It is planned in the future to regularly expand the contents of the column to Eastern Kentucky, Southern West Virginia and Southwest Virginia topics. This tri-state area is in a sense, one people with a common historical pattern.

Through the column under the old heading marched mighty men and women of our past. There were pioneers, settlers, soldiers, frontiersmen, rivermen, Indians, privates and generals, yeomen and gentry, pirates, ministers, and many, many more, all from the ranks of that vast sea of humanity marching through the wilderness into the Land of Western Waters. They built a good land. They were your people and my people and we are justly proud of our heritage.

BACH FAMILY

The Bach family, long prominent in Breathitt county, held its 24th reunion, August 31, at the Quicksand Experiment Station, near Jackson. Officers of the clan were elected, J. Elliott Craft, Bluefield, W. Va., being named president of the reunion group.

The Bach family intermarried in the Hoffman family of Culpeper county, Va., and are of the Germanna Colony of Virginia which organized the Memorial Foundation of the Germanna Colonies in Virginia, Inc. They have bought 275 acres of the original Germanna tract, on which they plan to hold annual meetings. The first colony was established in 1714.

At Germanna, in 1716, Governor Spotswood's company was outfitted for the expedition over the Blue Ridge, commemorated in the gem-studded golden horseshoes that he presented to his associates. From 1721 to 1731 Germanna was the county seat of the new county of Spotsylvania.

The first families who settled there in 1714 were Melcher Brumback, John Camper (Kemper), John Cuntz (Coons), Harmon Fishback, John Fishback, Peter Hitt (Heide), and John Hoffman, whose daughter, Elizabeth Hoffman, married Henry Bach. She is the ancestor of the Bachs from Eastern Kentucky. She was born in 1746 in Culpeper county, Va., and is buried near Cumberland.

Other original settlers of Germanna were Jacob Holtzclaw, John Joseph Martin, John Jacob Rector, John Spillman and Tillman Weaver. Many descendants are today found in all parts of Kentucky and other states.

Miss Muto lives with her parents and brothers and sisters on a four-acre farm where rice is the principal crop. There are also some livestock and poultry.

Although the Japanese visitor knew little English when she came to Kentucky in early August, she has made diligent use of her dictionary and now does very well. She has spent some weeks in Franklin and Monroe counties.

A special point of interest is that Miss Muto's parents in Japan have been the hosts this summer of Miss Blanche Bushong, of Monroe county, whose parents (Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bushong, of Tompkinsville) were Miss Muto's hosts before she came to Floyd county. Miss Bushong is one of Kentucky's three IFYE's now in foreign countries.

SCOTT FAMILY

A letter from Mrs. Dave Ward, Cinderella, W. Va., is an interesting brief history of the Scott family, which originally settled on Johns Creek, Pike county.

"My great-great-grandfather, William (Billie) Scott, was born 1786, in Virginia. He married Elizabeth McCoy, born 1787, in Virginia. Does anyone know where William and Elizabeth were born, place of marriage or names of parents? Elizabeth had brothers Randall, Ezekiel and Benjamin. I don't know when Billie and Elizabeth settled on Johns Creek, but they lived at the mouth of Sycamore Creek (Gulnare) when their son, John, was born in 1813. The names of their children were: Nancy, married Aug. 16, 1823, Thomas McCoy; Andrew, m. May 13, 1830, Margaret Pinson; Daniel, m. July 10, 1836, Nancy Stafford; Axton, m. Oct. 27, 1836, Ruth A. Blevins; Evan, (my ancestor) m. July 16, 1842, Martha Ratliff; Thomas, m. Aug. 31, 1843, Levinah Stafford; John, b. 1813, m. Mary (Polly) Helvey; (where?); Rebecca m. Nov. 15, 1843, William Blackburn; Barnabas, m. Matilda Helvey (where?). These marriages were in Pike county, Kentucky.

There is a marriage record at Pikeville of Mary Scott and Elijah Prater, Feb. 16, 1825. Was she daughter of William and Elizabeth?"

"Evan Scott and Martha Ratliff (my great-great-grandparents) lived on Joes Creek of Johns Creek. Martha's parents, Silas and Anne Ratliff, lived at Coal Run, Ky. There is a marriage record at Prestonsburg of a Silas Ratliff who married May 17, 1827, Anne Spradling. Oral consent was given by both parties, Henry Ratliff and James Spradling. Are Silas Ratliff and Anne Spradling parents of Martha? Is this the James Spradling who married Rachel Connelly and were early settlers on Jennies Creek, Johnson county? Rachel was daughter of Captain Henry Cennelly and Ann MacGregor Connelly.

"Evan and Martha (Ratliff) Scott had son, Silas (my great-grandfather). He married Martha Ann Dixon, of Johnson county, about 1865. She was daughter of William and Mahala (Evans) Dixon. William was son of Henry and Joyce (Farmer) Dixon who were married Sept. 17, 1800, Grayson county, Virginia, and settled at Paintsville in 1814. I want names of parents of Henry Dixon, Joyce Farmer and Mahala Evans."

over her audit with the Allen and Hager accounting firm, who represent Floyd county," Moore said.

Miss Foust said her office advised Moore that the audit of his office disclosed and "at the one conference in this office we made an appointment with the county auditor for September 15.

"Mr. Ray Allen, the county auditor, called and stated that he could not make it on that day and we set the time for September 23.

"Mr. Moore's statement on September 22 (Monday) is a little premature," she added. The auditor said from two to four state auditors were in this county for six weeks in June and July. She added the audit was a routine one.

Moore said he met with Miss Foust, and she "refused to discuss her audit at Prestonsburg, where the records of the office of the Floyd county clerk are kept."

He said "any statement made public by Miss Foust would not be based on the true records in my office because she has refused to co-operate with me and the Floyd county auditors."

Moore said he supports Bert T. Combs of Prestonsburg, who is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Combs' principal opponent is Lieutenant Governor Harry Lee Waterfield, who has the backing of the state administration.

DOG WEEK AND A DOG NAMED JAKE

Now here's a subject I can go to town on—dogs. While we're in the middle of National Dog Week I think backward to a long line of dogs that have owned me, almost literally. . . . Collies, shepherds, bulldogs, hounds—yes, hounds, bless 'em!—cockers, one spitz, and now a dalmatian.

But the dog I think most often of, of those that are gone, is Old Jake, a purebred mutt owned by our late "Printer" Goble. Jake was afflicted, as they say. He suffered from the jerks, possibly as the results of distemper or an overdose of Jamaica ginger, or something; hence, his name.

On press-nights, in the days when we ran the papers through a folder which was separate from the press, a huge pile of thin strips of paper sheared off the end of the pages would accumulate. Everything would be going along smoothly when, suddenly, the pile of paper would begin a violent quaking. This usually aroused whoever was nearby from whatever reverie he might be enjoying. Then Old Jake would emerge from the bottom where he had lain peacefully till his particular brand of the tremors hit him.

But what brings this particular dog to mind so often is the fact that he died just outside the window I face when sitting at this typewriter. Somebody had fed the poor, dumb thing food containing poison. He made it back toward our office as far as the hedge outside this window, and there died.

Even now it seems strange to me that the poor dog, dying at the hands of man, kept in his numbing brain one thought—to get back to the sanctuary maintained by man, whom he trustingly considered his friend.

PARENTAL REACTIONS

A minister visiting at a Floyd county school recently talked the wonderful doctrine of love to the pupils and concluded by calling for a show of hands as to how many would go home and tell their mother and their father, too, that they loved them.

Several hands were raised, and the preacher told the group he would return a week later to check on the reactions of their parents to their declaration of affection.

And this he did. The first little girl to declare she had gone home and separately told her mother, then her father, that she loved them was asked what her mother said.

"She said, 'I love you, too, dear,'" the little girl said. "And what did your father say when you told him you loved him?"

"The little girl: 'He reached in his pocket and said, 'How much do you want?'"

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

Have you taken your dog to the veterinarian for his immunization? Most of Kentucky's canine population received the three-year chick embryo in 1954 when the compulsory rabies immunization law went into effect. These dogs are required by law to be vaccinated again this year. Pups six months old are ready for their first vaccination and dogs which received one-year vaccine last year also need to be immunized.

In addition to fulfilling the law you may be saving your child undue sadness over the loss of his dog from rabies. By preventing the possibility of your dog developing rabies and attacking your child or your neighbor, you may even save a life.

Despite the fact that rabies vaccination is required by law, Kentucky still has a high rate, according to R. L. Hectorne, D.V.M., Director of the Division of Veterinary Public Health, Kentucky State Department of Health. This is due in part to rabies in wild and stray animals which, of course, cannot be immunized and must be controlled by extermination.

The saliva of an infected animal carries the virus which causes rabies in humans. When the rabid animal attacks, the virus may get into wounds or scratches.

If you suspect rabies in an animal, lock it in a pen or see your local veterinarian. Positive symptoms will indicate rabies within ten days. If laboratory analysis is necessary, do not destroy the head in killing the animal. Your veterinarian or the Floyd County Health Department will instruct you on how to prepare and ship the head of the suspected rabid animal for tests at the Kentucky State Department of Health Laboratories in Louisville or Lexington.

A pamphlet available from the Floyd County Health Department notes that an individual who is exposed to rabies should see his family physician immediately to determine if antirabies treatment is necessary.

But rabies can be prevented, and Kentucky can loose its high rate of rabies. It's up to you.

Transportation costs take about eight cents of the family's food dollar.

Your Pride and My Privilege

By JAMES V. BOLEN Principal, Prestonsburg High School

Three men were traveling along their way one hot, dry, fall day similar to the ones we've been having. They became tired and foot-weary. At the suggestion of one, they found a nice shade and proceeded to take an evening's nap.

While they were sleeping, there chanced to pass the same road an employer who was looking for a young man to fill a job which offered a golden opportunity for success. The young man who would have been a natural for the job was sleeping soundly. In a short time a young woman of high esteem saw the second young man and stopped to admire him. She had uppermost in her mind, love and marriage. She hesitated to wake him because she would seem out of place doing so. It was getting nearer dark now. There was a third traveler who saw the last young man sleeping. The intentions of this traveler was to murder this person and take his belongings. About this time the other two sleepers awoke and called to their companion.

While they were sleeping there had passed fortune, love and death. They were not disappointed or disturbed; they didn't know.

Prestonsburg high school is composed of the following statistical parts and then some:

The main building is composed of 36 rooms which does not include the cafeteria and kitchen. Twenty-three of these rooms are class rooms and are in use. The gym is one of the largest and finest in Eastern Kentucky. It has a seating capacity of 5,000. There are four large concessions stands, two offices for the coach, two storage rooms which extend the width of the gym, two dressing rooms, two restrooms, and one classroom which would seat 200 students. There are two broadcasting and press booths.

The teaching staff is composed of 26 subject teachers, three shop teachers, one principal and one secretary. Three of this staff have their Master's degree; one has an A. B. and B. S., and well over half of them have done graduate work beyond the A. B. degree.

We have one of the finest libraries in the Eastern part of the state. There were 3,252 books on the shelves last year, with a subscription to 36 magazines. This does not include the numerous reference books.

The 29 teachers we have offer a variety of 35 different subjects. In the vocational field we offer agriculture, industrial training in shop, home economics, shorthand, and typing. The 35 subjects are divided into 135 classes.

We have seven school busses which transport students to school, making a record enrollment this year of 710. There was transported last year a total of 74,506 children.

We have three cooks and a lunchroom with a seating capacity of about 300 to feed the students a nutritious noon meal for 25 cents. On the average last year we fed about 30 children a day without pay. This would be a total of 5,100 meals for the year which strengthened the health of our children.

What does all this mean? That every child has an opportunity to find for himself a place in his school. This place will permit him to gain for himself the basic education that goes with high school graduation. A more thorough knowledge of the facilities available will help you to better guide and plan for the future of your child.

Is planning necessary? A few years ago the colleges were eager to get our high school graduates, one and all. This is no longer true. True, they still want students but the colleges and trade schools are becoming selective. This means that the boy or girl is sought who has planned his four years of high school work and followed with study and determination.

How much can we do as school people? We offer the courses that would fit them for future careers beyond high school. We encourage students to take these courses. Some of these courses are considered to be hard by the student, so he doesn't enroll. If left to themselves, the large majority of the students seek the easy courses. They may tell you any number of reasons why they don't want the hard courses.

This is one of the main reasons why you need to familiarize yourself with the requirements and preparations necessary for a student to successfully go forward. The horrible disappointment may not come later if we work together to persuade the students to do the things that are good for him. No one ever took disagreeable medicine because he loved it. It was the results he was looking for.

The front door of your school is always open to you for a visit. Come in and we will talk over your problems. No promise that all problems will or can be solved, but there is the promise that we will discuss the problem on the basis of its own merits with the facts we have to use. The better informed you are, the less likely fortune, love or death will pass your pride, your children, unnoticed or that they will be unable to cope with the situation. It is my privilege to work with these same children and you.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

Some of Our Deficiencies

An eminent folklorist recently called my attention to some of the ways in which western Kentucky is poor in some phases of folklore. I had long been aware of some of these deficiencies but had not thought of others. About the same time I was asked to set down all I knew of animal lore as it appeared at Fidelity; I discovered that there was not much animal lore there, not much, that is, as compared with the mountain areas in Kentucky, the neighboring Appalachian states, and the Ozarks. It is true that we had some lore, most of which was taken rather comically, not actually believed by the most ignorant, so far as I can recall. But Vance Randolph could have found in one day in the Ozarks more animal lore than I ever knew until I left Fidelity and began to read folklore collections.

Naturally, you may want to know why there was no more of this type of folklore. My theory is that a very large percentage of the people at Fidelity had come in a body from long-settled areas of North Carolina and had forgotten most of the animal lore that they may have known. Even the ex-slaves seemed to have only a small group of beliefs, though in other spheres they were as folksy as the best. It is strange, however, that these Scotch-Irish did not bring more animal lore with them, especially since they were quite primitive in other beliefs.

The same folklorist that I mentioned at the beginning of this article also asked me whether I knew any lore connected with tobacco. Again I had to confess complete ignorance. She and I discussed the cycle of tobacco raising and the various methods of curing it, but there seemed to be no actual folkloric notes about all this. Maybe I have forgotten some of the customs and superstitions that were connected with tobacco and its growth and marketing; maybe there just were not any really folk beliefs at all.

A still further conversation between us revealed the neither of us knew any distinctly folkish beliefs that were connected with the river and steamboat days. Part of my ignorance is due to my not having any intimate connection with steamboats until I was grown and far away from home. Maybe I never learned to know river men enough to absorb some of their customs and superstitions. Before the steamboats are entirely a thing of the past, some one should collect all the quaint beliefs and customs that once prevailed.

Our area was, of course, a farming section. Consequently there were plenty of beliefs about signs and crop planting or harvesting, as well as quaint customs galore connected with every part of farm life. Probably two-thirds of our beliefs about agriculture were genuine folklore, the other third being actual learning. Most of my neighbors, however, planted their crops without reference to the phases of the moon; I never knew anyone who consulted the calendar before butchering his hogs in the late fall or early winter. I did not even know that such practices were in existence until I left Fidelity. I was told that one of our neighbors always planted his corn in the light of the moon, but I could see no difference between it and our corn on similar ground. The neighbors laughed among themselves about this neighbor and probably exaggerated his actual practices. It seems to me now, after many, many years away from Fidelity, that most of our quaint practices were not considered very seriously, even when we followed them rather faithfully. I think most of us felt that these ways of doing things were just for fun and were like trying one's fortune by looking down a well at midnight when the moon was full or sleeping with a piece of wedding cake under one's pillow. Of course, I could have been too dumb to know whether people actually believed these things:

CRISP RETIRES

Frank Crisp, of Martin, has retired from service with the production department's southern division of United Fuel Gas Company. Mr. Crisp, who is retiring with 28 years of service, first began with United Fuel as a well-tender in 1930. He became a roustabout in 1956.

Mr. Crisp was in the U. S. infantry from 1918 to 1919. Before coming with United Fuel, he worked for McGuire Elkhorn Coal Company and for Wright and Sons, building contractors.

Spelling Consultant Scheduled At Martin

Miss Eliza Clark, text book consultant with Lyons & Garna-han, publishers, will discuss the spelling program now in progress in the Floyd county schools, at Martin high school, Tuesday of next week, it is announced by County Superintendent V. O. Turner. The meet will get under way at 6:30.

A reading consultant, Mrs. Worthington of Ginn & Company, discussed the reading program in the schools, Sept. 8, and since the response was so well received by the teachers it was decided to hold another with emphasis on the spelling program. "Other consultants will be invited from time to time," Clem Martin, supervisor, says. "We think that the hour or hour and one-half spent at these meetings are well worth the time. Please try to attend," he added.

Thacker Is Serving On Aircraft Carrier In Mediterranean

Mediterranean Sea — Noah D. Thacker, Jr., chief electronics technician, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noah D. Thacker, of Banner, Ky., and husband of the former Miss Jennie L. Morris, of Clarksville, Tenn., is serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Randolph, operating as a unit of the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea.

The carrier left Norfolk, Va., Sept. 2, the same day she received the Atlantic Fleet Carrier Class Battle Efficiency Award for fiscal year 1958. The award was the second successive win for the Randolph.

Each year ships of the Atlantic Fleet are required to complete a given list of competitive exercises for the top class awards. In addition, the judging is based on departmental winners among the many carriers and seaplane tenders for excellence in engineering, operations, gunnery, and air department.

The Randolph made a clean sweep of all awards even though the first eight months of the year were spent in the Mediterranean area with the U. S. Sixth Fleet.

Start Forest Fires

Starting forest fires "out of spite and general cussedness," local arsonists cause 80 per cent of the South's average annual loss of six million acres of timber, reports the October Reader's Digest. In many communities near the Gulf Coast, "burning the big man" has become more or less a pastime.

CORRECTED PUBLICATION OF ORDINANCE

The publication of the ordinance of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, adopted on September 1, 1958, calling an election as to incurring $99,500 indebtedness to be represented by swimming pool bonds is hereby corrected, and the first sentence in the "Notice of Election" as set out in such ordinance is hereby published as follows:

"Notice is hereby given that an election will be held in and for the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, on the general election day on November 4, 1958, to determine whether or not the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, shall incur an indebtedness of not exceeding $99,500, and in no event to exceed, including all existing indebtedness of said City, a greater sum than allowed by the Constitution and laws of Kentucky."

Local Florists Plan To Attend Convention At Miami, Oct. 5-9

Mrs. Claudia F. Leete and Miss Judy Leete, of Leete Flower Shop, will go to Miami in October to attend the 45th Annual Convention of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, October 5-9.

They will attend florist design schools and clinics, where commentators will present up-to-date methods in designing and arrangements.

Through FTD, with 11,000 member florists, flowers can be wired to any part of North America. An international affiliate, Interflora, permits FTD members to wire flowers to any part of the civilized world.

FTD is unique in that it is a non-profit, public service organization. Its members actually own and control its operation. They elect their own officers and serve on various committees to carry out the rules, regulations and policies of the association. Leete Flower Shop, has been a member of FTD for three years.

Kentucky Congressmen To Ask Budget Makers For Public Works Fund

The Kentucky Congressional delegation will go before the Bureau of the Budget, next Monday, to submit its recommendations for civil work expenditures in Kentucky for 1959-60.

The annual presentation was arranged and coordinated by Kentucky Senators Thurston B. Morton and John Sherman Cooper and U. S. Representative William H. Natcher, Bowling Green. Natcher, a member of the House Appropriation Committee, is the only Kentuckian in Congress serving on an appropriations committee.

The delegation will detail its program for expenditures on flood control, multi-purpose and other crops of Engineers projects within Kentucky, and recommend outlays on at least two Virginia flood control reservoirs which affect the Eastern Kentucky region.

Kentucky ranks second only to California in appropriations for waterways projects in 1958-59. The Commonwealth was allocated approximately $52 million for construction or engineering work on some dozen projects.

During the recent Congress, the Kentucky delegation succeeded in obtaining money for one new construction start and one new engineering and design start—two of the few approved in the entire United States.

Jones.

Major finance contributions to make the fair possible were made by Floyd county and area businessmen who bought advertising space in the 80-page fair catalog.

A GEORGIA PEACH

The Elberta peach, now one of the most important commercial varieties, was produced from the seed of the Chinese Cling planted in Marshallville, Ga., in 1870; many good varieties have been developed.

Aged Hueysville Woman Succumbs At Son's Home Following Long Illness

Mrs. Martha Prater Hughes, 89, of Hueysville, died at 10 p.m. Sunday at the home of a son, Jimmy Hughes. She had been ill 15 years, seriously so three weeks.

Mrs. Hughes was a daughter of Jimmy and America Hale Prater and the widow of Daniel Hughes who preceded her in death several years ago.

Surviving, besides her son Jimmy Hughes, are the following other sons and daughters; Jake Hughes, Kalamazoo, Mich., Billy Hughes, Miles Hughes, Mrs. Sarah Collins, Mrs. Susie Adkins, and Mrs. Rhoda Fitch, all of Hueysville, and Mrs. Mary Hannah Troy, O. Two surviving brothers and a sister are Frank Prater, Alger, O., Ark Prater, of Goodloe, and Mrs. Izna Patrick, of Pyramid.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Wednesday from the home of the son, Jimmy, the Revs. M. C. Wright and Banner Manns officiating. Burial was made in the Jim Allen cemetery at Hueysville under the direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home.

For The Children

Dear Parents:

Please spend a few minutes in serious thought while reading the platform of JOHN G. HALL and RAY HOWARD which appears in this issue of The Floyd County Times. We are pledged and are fully agreed to carry out this platform if elected.

We are sick of our schools being affiliated with politics. We are sick of the idea of our teachers being forced to donate to campaign funds and vote for the chosen candidate of the Board of Education. We are sick of the way our teachers are being fired and transferred at the will of the school board. We do oppose bitterly these methods because our children are the ones being hurt and deprived of an education.

We both have children in school. The Board candidate of the first District is not even married. The Board candidate in the second District does not have children in school, and furthermore, he is physically unable to check on the needs of the schools. We are sorry that he is not in good health, but the welfare of the children comes before anyone individual. WHY ARE THEY RUNNING? Neither man has children in school. DO YOU BELIEVE THESE MEN WILL HAVE THE INTEREST OF YOUR CHILDREN AT HEART? Check among your neighbors and friends and we believe you can figure out what is motivating these men to run for Board membership.

We think the voters of District 1 and District 2 will agree with us — IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE. Do you realize that if we are not elected the people are stuck with the present Superintendent of Schools and the same type of wasteful, inefficient, non-child-centered administration of our schools for seven more years.

Help us to help you see that the schools are run for the benefit of the children. Help us to help you free our schools of politics. Help us to help our children have the schools they deserve. Their education is the greatest thing we can leave them, and no one can take this away from them.

THINK AND VOTE.

BLUEGRASS BOWL GAME IN PLANS OF JAYCEES

Work on a major college bowl game to be held in Louisville, begun over two years ago by Bill Henry of the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center and members of the Kentucky Junior Chamber of Commerce, has assured such a Kentucky sports attraction at last.

Application was filed with the NCAA for such a game. After the Extra Special Events committee of the NCAA was convinced that the facilities of the Fairgrounds were more than adequate and the plans of the sponsors were sound, approval for the game was finally granted early this year. The date of December 13 was selected in order to avoid conflicts with established bowls and to insure the probability of good weather. Prospects of a nation-wide telecast are also enhanced by this earlier date.

To insure that two major college teams will be secured, a substantial guarantee will be offered. The Bluegrass Bowl committee will make the selection of the teams in compliance with NCAA regulations as soon as it is possible to determine suitable opponents.

The sponsors feel that a major college football bowl game annually will bring great honor and prestige to the entire Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Wheeler Blackburn, 81, Of Thomas, Dies Friday; Funeral Is Held Sunday

Wheeler Blackburn, 81, of Thomas, died at home Friday. He had been ill several months. He was a retired farmer.

Mr. Blackburn was a son of Moses and Susannah Fraley Blackburn. He was married three times. His first and second wives, Mrs. Martha Frederick Blackburn, preceding him in death. His last wife, Lora Setser Clark Blackburn, survives.

"In Connecticut, I stay with a family. They have a girl. She goes out every night," she says in amazement, "with a different boy."

"In France we do not go out so often. Not at all," she shook her head. "In Spain, I know a girl of 25 who must ask her mother if she can go out. If she say 'no', she cannot go out."

"When I am at home, I do not ask, I tell my mother where I am going, and I go." Suzanne then told of her plans, already realized, of learning Spanish by visiting Spain. She traveled alone, she said.

"It is wrong to travel alone in Spain. One can be mistaken for the wrong kind of girl in Spain. They do not let their women out of the house."

She said that she had attended many bullfights... that she enjoyed watching the Spanish people during the bullfight, rather than the bullfight itself. Explaining her trip to America, she said it began very suddenly.

One night she knew that she wanted to come to America and see this country and talk to the people herself. The next day she sold her car and made the arrangements.

"I would like to spend two, three years in this country, but not for always, for I would return to France. You understand, for after all, I am a French woman and France will always be my home."

Miss LaDuc was accompanied to Eastern Kentucky by Dean Cadle, extension librarian, and they toured this county with Robert Wallace, librarian at the Eastern Kentucky Regional Library, Prestonsburg.

On Left Beaver Creek Suzanne said she stopped at a two-room school where the teacher asked her to speak in French. "I think they never heard anyone speak French before, they were so quiet."

Suzanne said she began her travels years ago when she decided to live and work in England. She worked in England for two years, touring the British isles all the while, through Scotland, Wales, Ireland, and England itself. Then she wanted to visit Spain. And now America. Next she says she will visit Germany.

She wants to learn the German language. "I know I should not feel the way I do about the Germans. They did not kill anyone in our town. Yet I feel a hardness for them. When I go to Germany and talk to their people, I think I will feel different."

"You know where I work in England. At a hospital for sick people," she said, whirling a finger about her head. "I take care of all kind of people. Some quiet, some trouble. I was glad to get out of it."

"I think this part of the United States different from the other parts I have seen. I do not understand the nice car before the bad-looking home. I would think one would buy a cheaper car and have better inside for home. I do not understand. Maybe I will, though."

"I think this is a beautiful country," she said, indicating the fields and hills. "I would like to be here in the fall when the trees change colour. But I will be in New England. I am looking forward to seeing New England in autumn. It will be so beautiful. And the people have treated me so nicely here. They are so kind, so friendly, so understanding. I will never forget my visit here."

Suzanne has other Americana to see. She will go next week to Chicago, then to Lincoln, Neb., Washington, D. C., and New England, before sailing for home October 15 from Montreal. Already she has visited in Westport, Conn., and at the University of Virginia.

Suzanne's hometown, Tours, France, is a small village 15 miles south of Paris. World War II veterans may remember the town—small, quiet, even quaint to American eyes, with the biggest thing about it its spacious public square.

Tours is the birthplace of Honore le Balzac, the greatest writer of French literature, if not of world literature.

Mlle. LeDuc summed up her impressions in true cosmopolitan spirit: "I think we are the same. People are the same. We have a different kind of country to live and grow in. We are a little different. But down deep we are the same. We understand and get along."

Suzanne said she began her travels years ago when she decided to live and work in England. She worked in England for two years, touring the British isles all the while, through Scotland, Wales, Ireland, and England itself. Then she wanted to visit Spain. And now America. Next she says she will visit Germany.

At What Point Does Law Say Driver Is Drunk?

By J. COLLIS RINGO, Executive Director Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism

What constitutes a drunken driver? How can one be positive a driver is "under the influence?" Many states, including Kentucky, have laws and methods of accurately assessing the degree of intoxication of a suspect.

Under Kentucky law, up to 5/100 of one per cent of alcohol by volume in the blood is presumptive evidence that an individual is sober. From 5/100 of one per cent up to 14/100 of one per cent of alcohol content is neither evidence that an individual is, or is not, intoxicated and 15/100 of one per cent of alcohol by volume in the blood is presumptive evidence that a person is intoxicated, or drunk, if that is a more meaningful word. At 4/10 of one per cent of alcohol by volume concentration, the drinker passes out, is completely anesthetized.

The Kentucky Department of Public Safety maintains at Frankfort a laboratory where the alcohol by volume content of the blood can be accurately analyzed. Highway troopers will but only with the consent of the person involved transport the suspected driver to the nearest hospital or physician. A trained technician obtains a small sample of blood, forwards it to the Frankfort laboratory where an analysis is made. A transcript of this analysis is permissible evidence of innocence or guilt in court trials.

While 15/100 of one per cent of alcohol by volume in the blood is the established legal dividing point between sobriety and intoxication, many authorities in the field of safety believe this fallacious. In Sweden's Karolinska Institute, Dr. Leonard Goldberg conducted tests with experienced drivers who were moderate drinkers. He found that after three bottles of beer or three or four ounces of spirits, there was "an impairment of driving of 25 to 30 per cent."

In a lecture at the Yale School of Alcohol Studies, Dr. Leon A. Greenberg, a distinguished physiologist who has made exhaustive studies in this field, (Dr. Greenberg is one of the inventors of the "Breathalyzer") noted the following effects of three drinks on motor car drivers. "Your judgment starts slipping" . . . "Your restraints relax" . . . "Your reflexes begin to slow" . . . "Your vision, is impaired" . . .

school bus driver. The record of the court of inquiry included 527 pages of transcribed testimony by 89 witnesses and also a report of lie detector tests given three persons at Frankfort.

In its final report to Judge Hill the grand jury recommended that "those in power use every effort to build a new courthouse." Its report, signed by Dock Hall, foreman, said the building is fairly clean but in a rundown condition and that repairs should be made. It was after recommending repairs that the jury called on authorities to do all they can to see that a new courthouse is built.

Two previous grand juries had recommended the same action. The jury's inspection of the county jail, said the report, found the jail "in good condition, considering the facilities." It added that cold water should be connected to the shower stalls in the jail.

The report recommended that the Sheriff arrange to store confiscated liquor where the public will not come in contact with it during visits to the courthouse. The Sheriff's office has been used for several years now as a place of storing alcoholic beverages, mainly beer, that had been taken on liquor raids.

A public address system for the circuit courtroom also was asked by the grand jury. The jury reported it had questioned approximately 100 witnesses and had during its nine days of work voted 80 indictments.

During the last three days of the jury session last week 27 persons were named in liquor indictments. Two defendants were named on second-offense charges and one man was listed twice on a third offense bill. Most of the indictments were made on evidence supplied by deputy sheriffs.

Names in these indictments were: Possessing moonshine whiskey—Thomas West, Johnny Goble and Garland Keathley, Mr. and Mrs. Erman Poe, Viola Tackett, Ella Colley.

Possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale—Simon Moore, Ezra Marsillett, James Lucas (second offense).

Unlawful traffic in alcoholic beverages—Will Shepherd, Jim Marsillett, James Newsome (second offense), Fred Newsome, Sr., Bennie Blackburn (third offense on two counts), Curt Bentley, Lloyd Kestner, (two cases), Mr. and Mrs. Erman Poe, Mrs. Violet Tackett, Ella Colley, Harold Yates, James George, Zella Mae Salsbury, Ezra S. Collins, Dewey Hall, Bill Hagans, Lonnie Neeley, Jake Smallwood, Edward Gayheart.

Other major offenses alleged in grand jury indictments are: Freddie Castle, drunk driving; Freddie Castle and Harlis (Peanut) Stone, shooting into a dwelling; Cassie Howell, reckless use of a deadly weapon; Edward Allen, breaking and entering the Maytown school lunchroom; John Wilburn Gibson, breaking and entering premises of Everett Akers; Leonard Marsillett, perjury, accused of stating in an affidavit that his Ford car was stolen and of later as a witness testifying it was not stolen; Charles Ed Sexton, destroying private property; Herman Roberts, C. F. Roberts, Ben A. McKenney, Jerry Mitchell, each on cold check charges; I. N. Hall, Jr., forgery, two counts; Luther Keens, Bobbie Faye, Richard Cobb, Arnold Hamilton, George Bell, James Ray Frasure, Joe May, Willie Watson, each for child desertion.

Estill Pete Collins and John Riley Cole, breaking and entering; Emory Hall, grand larceny; Buddy Huffman, carrying concealed deadly weapon; Basil Hamilton, obstructing a public road; James Hayes, drunk driving; T. L. Nicholson, removing mortgaged property; John L. Hall knowingly selling mortgaged property; Butler Hall, obtaining money under false pretense, accused of obtaining two tires worth $812 from N. M. White; Auda Boyd, forgery; Richard Wyatt, forgery of $40 check; Otto Horn, forgery, $10 check; James forgering the name of Lee B. Hall to a $200 bank note; Robert Whit ten and James R. George, cold check.

James Poston attempted rape, accused in an incident involving his 11-year-old daughter at Drift last June 29; Lewis Patton, voluntary manslaughter, reindicted after the first indictment in the auto death of Kenneth Childers was quashed; Adrian Newsome, manslaughter, indicted in the death of Grethel, July 31, of Kermie Evans, a small boy.

CARD OF THANKS
The death of our beloved sister, Shirley E. Roberts, has left an emptiness in our hearts that can never be wholly filled, but the many kind words and acts of sympathy from our friends, neighbors and the Revs. Delmar Williams, Troy McKles and H. N. Vanderpool helped immeasurably. We are deeply grateful to them. Also we wish to thank the Hall Bros. Funeral Home for their kind service, the flower donors, and all who in any way assisted.

51 Week-End Students At Pikeville College From Floyd County

Pikeville, Ky., Sept. 22 (Spl.)—Floyd county furnishes 51 of the 208 students enrolled for Pikeville College's week-end teacher-training classes it was announced this week.

The number, down some 20 per cent from last fall's 270, includes elementary—and high-school teachers from 10 Eastern Kentucky counties and adjoining area of Virginia and West Virginia, Dr. A. A. Page, college president, said.

Now teaching on temporary certificates and emergency permits, they are working on week-ends to qualify themselves for the provisional and higher teaching certificates. Each is earning up to six semester hours, or about a third as much credit as full-time work would bring, by attending classes at Pikeville on Saturday mornings and afternoons.

The drop in Pikeville's week-end students this fall was laid in part to the lapse of Kentucky's temporary certificate, which until September 1 was issued for two years of college work. A "stranded" group of Eastern Kentucky teachers, who had almost finished qualifying for their certificates before requirements were raised a few years ago, also has been reduced as many have completed their college courses and earned four-year certificates.

Floyd countians enrolled for week-end study at Pikeville are Lawton R. Allen, Minnie; Mrs. Charlene Baldrige, David; Ruth Reedy Bates, Wheelwright; Kathryn Henkle Blackburn, Betsy Layne; Laura R. Bradley, Amba; Jeannella D. Campbell, Weeksburg; Hazel P. Clifton, Prestonsburg; Doris Elaine Collins, Dema; Margaret Compton, Harold; Grace Conley, Bonanza; Lillian G. Conley, Prestonsburg; Iola Crisp, Martin; Carlisle Avis Crum, Betsy Layne; Evia Faye Curry, Wheelwright; Alva A. Davis, Martin; Violetta A. Davis, Pyramid; Oma P. Elkins, Hi Hat; Adanna Hayes Francis, Garrett; Josephine N. Frasure, Grethel; Edna B. Frazier, Weeksburg; Georgia S. Hall, Galveston; Vestlene A. Hall, Amba; Frank Hammonds, Watergap; Anna Belle Harris, West Prestonsburg; Emma Grace Hartley, Betsy Layne; Joan Hatfield, Prestonsburg; Delphia J. Hicks, West Prestonsburg; Jackie L. Jarrell, Dana; Joyce N. Johnson, Bypro; Edna Keathley, Harold; Eugyle S. Martin, McDowell; Voilia A. May, David; Verbal H. Meek, Betsy Layne; Golda Mae Mitchell, Grethel; Judy Elizabeth Newman, Grethel; Melvina Newman, Grethel; Draxie H. Newsome, Ligon; Verdie F. Newsome, Amba; Earl D. Ousley, Dock; Lola P. Ousley, Hueysville; Edith H. Price, Wayland; Mildred A. Salisbury, Hunter; Mary Stuchfield, Prestonsburg; Melba P. Sexton, Hueysville; Gladys H. Shepherd, Pyramid; Ruth T. Smith, Weeksburg; Mary Lou Spradlin, Betsy Layne; June H. Stephens, Pyramid; Helen C. Stumbo, McDowell; Marie D. Stumbo, McDowell; Evelyn Warrick, Prestonsburg, and Josephine Whitaker, East Point.

bringing this suit have been fully justified by the result." Ferguson added, however, that if it turns out Hall and his companies are not worth the $66,960 judgment, he will ask the Court of Appeals to hold the four officials liable, also, so he can recover from them and their sureties.

Judge Ardery's ruling upheld in part, and reversed in part, the June 4 findings of Squire N. Williams, Jr., Frankfort, the special commissioner be named to take proof in the case.

He upheld his commissioner's findings that the contract with Hall was void, hence entitled the state to recover the $66,960.

But he reversed the commissioner's finding that the liability rested jointly on Hall, Martin, Oates, Wells, and West, and their sureties.

Neither the judge nor his special commissioner, however, excused the four officials from responsible knowledge that the proceedings with Hall were irregular.

Judge Ardery wrote. ". . . the defendant Hall was fully aware that he dealt with the Highway Department at his peril and, specifically, the division of it whose responsible head is J. B. Wells, Jr.

"On the other hand, it is equally certain that the state highway officials were aware of their statutory limitations in spending trust funds of the taxpayers of Kentucky.

"It is difficult to understand how such procedure could have been followed as that outlined in the special commissioner's report.

"At the time the money was paid to Hall without first advertising for bids, it was the law that all such highway projects had to be advertised for public bids in order to provide a safeguard and proper yardstick for spending public funds.

"In the event the bidding showed collusion among bidders seeking an unconscionable profit, then the department could build the road a cheaper way. But before it could do that, it had to have before it an honest determination of the value of the work, as measured by public bidding without collusion.

"The project was not advertised for bids, and the special commissioner properly held the contract between Hall and the state void, and that the state should recover.

"That money is now in the hands and illegal possession of Richard Hall and his companies, and the judgment will go against Hall, his companies, and insurers.

The voluminous records in this case reveal:
Hall is a son of David Hall, the Highway Department's principal foreman in Knott county.
Hall did the work partly with his equipment, but mostly with rented equipment. He rented it from Licking River Limestone Company, West Liberty, at rates ranging from $11 to $15.50 an hour, and rented to the state at from $15 to $22.50 an hour.

Ward B. Allen, 65, Of Hueysville, Dies; Last Rites, Tuesday

Ward B. Allen, 65, well-known Hueysville man, died at 9:45 p.m. Saturday at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, W. Va., a victim of heart disease from which he had suffered the last seven years.

7. FREEDOM FROM ROAD HAZARDS
8. ELIMINATION OF COSTLY PARKING PROBLEMS
9. AVOIDANCE OF JOSTLING CROWDS
10. THE CHANCE TO BUILD A BETTER COMMUNITY BY PUTTING YOUR DOLLARS TO WORK HERE

We don't believe you gain anything at all by driving long distances to shop at BIG CITY stores. Our local sources have merchandise that's just as good and costs no more.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. And suppose you don't even count the cost of gasoline and oil, car wear, parking fees, etc. Forget, too, if you like, the hazards of driving in today's heavy highway and city traffic.

But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

Why drive scores of miles looking for trouble? Shop right around the corner and be safe and satisfied.

FLOWER SHOW SUCCESSFUL
The many persons attending the fall flower show sponsored by the Maytown Woman's Club at Langley, Saturday, were amazed at the beauty of the flowers which were artistically arranged with such good design in both balance and color harmony. The judges were Mrs. James Camelia, Mrs. E. P. Hill and Mrs. Grace Burke, all of Prestonsburg. From approximately 250 entries they chose the following winners—listed in order of first, second and third place:

Mrs. Dolly Messer, of Garrett, won the Outstanding Arrangement Award by using perfect yellow dahlias arranged with English holly for foliage. These were in a tall black compote on a black base and a black Phoenician figurine added the winning touch.

The brilliant orange cacti dahlia of Mrs. Fannie Hyden won the Outstanding Flower Award.

Miniatures not more than three inches—Dolly Messer, Greg Halbert, Shirley Stewart; miniatures not more than six inches—Shirley Stewart, Dolly Messer, Dolly Messer; Night and Day—Shannon Gibson, Shirley Stewart; Reflections—Shannon Gibson, Dolly Messer; Dahlias (orange)—Minerva Click, Hildred Baldrige, Shirley Stewart; Dahlias (yellow)—Dolly Messer, Shirley Stewart, Margaret Borders; Ebb Tide—Shirley Stewart, Duna Combs, Harriet Cooley; Wearing of the Green—Shirley Stewart, Greg Halbert, Imogene Stone; Deep Purple—Goldia Osborne, Irma Tallent, Dolly Messer; Dahlias (purple)—Irma Tallent, Mosaleete Patton, Helen Ison; Dahlias (red)—Shannon Gibson, Hildred Baldrige, Margaret Borders; Dahlias (rose)—Shirley Stewart, Shannon Gibson; Mo'night and Roses—Goldia Osborne, Goldis Osborne, Holly Faye Wicker; Anything Goes—Holly Faye Wicker, Wanda Reed, Shannon Gibson; Happy Holiday—Irma Tallent, Wanda Reed, Shirley Stewart; Twilight Time—Hildred Burchett, Irma Tallent, Irma Tallent; Ave Maria—Irma Tallent, Dolly Messer; Gladoli—Shirley Stewart, Shirley Stewart, Irma Tallent; Marigolds (yellow)—Shirley Stewart, Violet Allen, Wanda Reed; Marigolds (orange)—Irma Tallent, Wanda Reed, Wanda Reed; Church in the Wildwood—Viola Stewart, Minerva Click, Mrs. R. M. Barnett; Anything Goes—Violet Allen, Kitty Rowland, Becky Bouch; Teenage Crush—Jackie Hicks, Jackie Stone, Linda Roberts; Autumn Leaves—Dolly Messer, Shirley Stewart, Shirley Stewart; You Are My Sunshine—Holly Fay Wicker, Goldia Osborne, Dolly Messer.

Miss Nancy Dingus, Home Economics teacher at Martin, and Mrs. Holly Faye Wicker, Home Economics teacher at Maytown, were judges for the table settings. The award for the outstanding table setting was given to Shannon Gibson for her table set in Early American Fostoria. Other winners were: Breakfast—Irma Tallent, Wanda Reed, Irma Tallent; Dinner—Shannon Gibson, Helen Ison; Special occasions—Bonnie Hopson, Sandy Hicks, Susan Webb; Childrens—Jeanie Webb, Ruth Ann Burchett.

After the awards were presented the group enjoyed a musical program presented by a talented group of teenagers from McDowell, who are under the direction of Olive Rose Hall.

FOOD NOTES

By FRANCES HOWLAND
Home Demonstration Agent

With fall vegetables in full swing, you couldn't find a better time of year to put a stew on the menu.

Rich, flavored beef combined with bacon and vegetables is the basis for the country-style beef stew. When it comes to choosing the vegetables to go into the recipe, you'll find that a wide choice is available at your grocery store. Though different people prefer different combinations, the favorite is usually, potatoes, carrots, and onions. When deciding which vegetables should go into the stew, it's important to remember that those which complement each other in color, flavor and texture make good selections. For this particular stew, potatoes, carrots, onions and turnips are used.

For six generous servings, purchase two pounds of boneless beef for stew. When it's time to begin preparing the recipe, cut 4 slices of bacon into pieces and cook until lightly browned. Remove the bacon and brown beef slowly in bacon drippings. Next add the bacon, 2 teaspoons of salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 clove, and two cups of water. Cover tightly and simmer for two hours. Slow cooking at a low temperature will bring out the best flavor of beef and insure tenderness.

While the meat is simmering, peel 4 medium potatoes, 6 medium carrots, 2 large turnips and six small onions. Cut the potatoes and carrots in half, and the turnips in quarters. After meat has cooked two hours add vegetables and cook until tender. Remove the meat and vegetables and to the juice add enough water to make two cups of liquid, and thicken with 3 tablespoons of flour. Serve the gravy either separately or over the vegetables.

Take advantage of September's store of good vegetables and team them with beef. Both the family and the budget will be glad you did.

MISSION PLANS REVIVAL

The Dinwood Baptist Mission, one of three missions sponsored by the First Baptist Church of Martin, will hold revival services in the mission building at Alphoretta. The services will commence Monday and continue through October 4 at 7:30 p.m. nightly. James Adkins will lead the singing. A junior choir and special music are being planned for each night.

Clarence King is the mission superintendent and a charter member of the First Baptist Church. The mission was re-opened two years ago. Teachers of the mission are: Beginners — Mrs. Lora Moore; Primary — Mrs. Maxine Bailey; Juniors — Mrs. Marcella Ward, Intermediates — Mrs. Clarence King; Adults — Sumpter Tackett. These workers invite all to attend the revival services.

First General Election

The first general election held by the Republic of India was the largest free, democratic vote ever held until that time (October 1951 to March 1952). More than 106,000,000 people went to the polls out of a total electorate of 176,000,000 people. In India's second general election in 1957, a total of 121,000,000 votes were cast for the Central Parliamentary seats out of a possible vote of 193,000,000. By comparison, Americans cast 62,000,000 votes in the 1956 presidential election.

MASTER COMMISSIONER'S SALE FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT

Grant Taylor ..... Plaintiff
Vs.: NOTICE OF SALE
Ruby B. Frazier .... Defendant

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered and entered at the September term, 1958, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 27th day of September 1958, at ten o'clock, a.m., same being the first day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, upon a credit of six (6) months, the following described property, to-wit:

Located in the Town of Martin, Floyd county, Kentucky, and being one house and lot located on Brawley Addition, Beginning at a stake on Brawley Street in the line of Dr. Osborne; thence a westerly direction with Dr. Osborne's line to low water mark of Beaver Creek; thence up the stream 50 feet; thence an easterly direction to street; thence a northerly direction down the street 50 feet to the beginning, being the same property described in deed of conveyance to Ruby B. Frazier dated Sept. 28, 1954, and recorded in Deed Book 157, Page 482, Floyd County Court Clerk's Office.

The property will be sold to satisfy a judgment in favor of plaintiff against the defendant in the above styled action for the sum of $300.00 with interest from Jan. 26, 1955, and the costs of this action, subject to a credit of $25.00. Purchaser has the privilege of paying cash in lieu of executing bond.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 8th day of September, 1958.

SEARCHER FOR SWIFT'S SILVER FINDS "WHERE IT WASN'T," SAYS; BOYD TOMATO PATCH RUINED

By HENRY P. SCALF

A Texan finished digging last week in a Boyd county tomato patch, not for oil, but in a vain search for the fabled Jonathan Swift's silver cache.

It all started 180 years ago when an Englishman, Jonathan Swift, wandered through the Western Woods and ever so often returned to Alexandria, Va., with loads of silver bullion he and his companions were supposed to have mined somewhere. He later died after storing vast amounts of silver in East Kentucky. Since then the legends and diggers have multiplied with the passing decades.

Lawrence Camfield, native of Strait Creek, Boyd county, but for years a foreman in a Houston steel mill, was the latest digger in a long line of predecessors searching for the end of the rainbow and Swift's cache.

Camfield was a bit reticent at first about his venture in Boyd county and allowed John Moore, neighbor to Tom Fitz, upon whose farm the digging was being done, to do the talking. Moore who has lived on Strait Creek for 63 years declared that a band of outlaws and counterfeiters from Wise county, Virginia, stashed incalculable counterfeit wealth in the good earth of Tom Fitz's farm in 1854. John Camfield, father of the present excavator, found the minted counterfeit money in 1912, received $5,000 government bonus for his discovery. He later buried the reward on the farm.

That was Moore's story and Cam-

field let people talk and continued to dig—for Swift's silver. He had heard tales, tall stories of "enough money right there on Strait Creek to support everybody for miles around." If Moore wanted to expiate on the red herring story of the Wise county outlaws, let him entertain his friends.

Camfield had saved $1,000 in the Houston steel mill and with this financial backlog made an arrangement with Tom Fitz to split even any wealth recovered. The indicated place to dig was right in the middle of a tomato patch but what are a few tomatoes when you can uncover Jonathan Swift's silver?

The bulldozer made a mess of the garden but by late Thursday of last week it uncovered the top of an old well. Camfield had heard the money was in that well. He had his helpers to remove the wall, stone by stone.

And what did Camfield find at the bottom of the 20-foot well? He found the bottom of a hole in the ground, nothing more.

Camfield is a philosopher, though, and said Friday as he started back to Texas: "At least I know where Swift's silver isn't."

Life with all its chronic ills would be dreary indeed in Eastern Kentucky without the rainbow and Swift's silver or other treasure lying at its end. We can always look forward to a time when we may hear a new legend and dig ourselves.

Everybody knows that somewhere there is a pot 'o silver and gold.

Fred F. Gearheart, 77, Native Of Floyd County, Is Victim In Ashland

Funeral services for Fred F. Gearheart, 77, Floyd county native, were conducted Monday at 2 p.m. at the Pollard Baptist Church, Ashland. Revs. Sam Sloan and J. Ralph Wood officiated.

Mr. Gearheart died Saturday morning at an Ashland hospital following a long illness. Burial was made in the Gearheart family cemetery in Boyd county.

He was born Oct. 13, 1880, a son of Beece and Helen Spencer Gearheart of the Right Beaver Creek section. A resident of Ashland for 16 years, he was a retired employee of the Inland Gas Company.

Survivors include his wife, Carrie Martin Gearheart; three sons, Ted, Fred and Calvin Gearheart, all of Ashland; three sisters, Mrs. O. J. Webb, of Hueysville, Mrs. R. A. Stone, of Louisa, and Mrs. William Dixon, Pompano Beach, Fla.; a brother, A. L. Gearheart, of Colorado, 14 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Burial was made under the direction of John Steen Funeral Home.

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

What About Hypnosis?

The history of hypnosis thru the ages has been a series of ups and downs. Periods of great interest by the medical profession have been followed by almost complete rejection. At times it has had little more than the status of a vaudeville trick. Today interest in its use in the treatment of illness is again on the upswing.

The extent of interest in hypnosis is illustrated by the fact that the American Medical Association has seen the necessity of making a study of the subject and making recommendations to the doctors of the nation. The complexity of the subject is shown by the difficulty the AMA had in arriving at a definition of hypnosis, even though there was no question about the results brought about by hypnosis.

What they came up with was "a temporary condition of altered attention in the subject which may be induced by another person . . ." During this condition of "altered attention" doctors and dentists have been able to accomplish remarkable results. Severely burned patients have been able to do exercises necessary to recovering the use of their limbs. Children who need surgery have been anesthetized easily and without being frightened. Dentists have used it successfully both for anesthesia and to allay patients' anxiety. The use of hypnosis in psychotherapy has been frequently dramatized, even overdramatized.

The dangerous aspect of hypnosis is the fact that it can so easily be induced by someone with little or no technical training. It is meat for the charlatans who can dramatize its mysterious quality. The harm that can be done by hypnosis is still debatable, but it should only be used for medical treatment by a qualified, trained practitioner. Its use for entertainment purposes is vigorously condemned by the AMA.

THE SHEPHERD'S LIFE

The shepherd and his flock are common everyday scenes in the Bible Lands, filling the hillsides and valleys. Hundreds of men and boys engaged in this pastoral life as a livelihood. It is perhaps, the most peaceful calling of all the vocations in the East.

The life of the Oriental shepherd is a responsible one. It demands his best in watchfulness, care, fidelity, love and sympathy; the very traits found in Him who took upon Himself the name of "The Good Shepherd."

The Shepherd's outfit is very simple. He has a small leather bag which he uses for keeping his food. He carries a flute with which he whistles away the long days and assures his sheep that he is near. His stout staff he uses to defend himself and his flock. He also carries a sling as did David long before him.

It is the shepherd's responsibility to find for his sheep a suitable pasture during the day and a quiet resting place at night. When the weather is suitable, the sheep may be folded in the open fields, sometimes in an enclosure fenced with rough stones, and sometimes they pass the night in a peaceful valley or a depression in the plain. But never alone, the shepherd abides with them. When there are storms, the flock is led to a shelter in a cave or overhanging rock until the storm is passed. In many of these caves there is a supply of chaff, thoughtfully provided beforehand, so the sheep may have something to feed on should the storm last long. The shepherd must take care to know where he can find shelter and provender, for the sheep are in his care.

It is also common to see a shepherd carrying a lamb in his bosom, especially in the springtime. The large and loose garment of the native has a cozy place just above the girdle as a receptacle which he uses for carrying the lamb. Some shepherds are engaged seasonally. Besides a small sum of money, they may receive garments of clothes and a share of the lambs. The latter makes him careful, and if he is very watchful he may come out well. Shepherds have to make good any losses unless he can prove it was not his fault.

THE GREAT GREEN FLEET is just that! Over 85,000 cars and trucks are used by the Bell System—the largest private automotive fleet in the world. Of this total, over 10,000 of these vehicles are in use in Southern Bell's nine-state area. They're a familiar sight as they roll through the highways and byways of our land, and in times of emergency or disaster they're often first on the scene. Bearing the Southern Bell emblem, this great fleet is a symbol of progress and good telephone service to all of us wherever we live.

SAFE DRIVING is a habit. With school days underway, it's a good time for all of us to get the habit of driving carefully, especially near school zones and playgrounds. Each year traffic deaths of children alone add up to a terrible toll—a fact that should remind each of us to drive with extreme care. Drivers of telephone cars and trucks can be counted on to set a good example... because safe driving is part of every telephone employee's training. Southern Bell is proud of the record of its drivers who have helped earn for the Bell System the nation's top safety award for the sixth time in seven years... the Award of Honor by the National Safety Council.

THERE GOES DAD! Racing from the shower to answer the phone! Now wouldn't it be wonderful to have a convenient extension phone right there in the bathroom? And wherever you need them, you'll find colorful extension phones make living so much easier. In the kitchen... bedroom... den... enjoy extra phones where you work, sleep, live. The cost is really low. The convenience great. And, they're available in pastels and other beautiful colors. To order as many as you'd like, call our Business Office any time.

FOR THE CHILDREN

We, the undersigned, being parents of children in school and having a great interest not only in their welfare, but that of all the children, have been convinced by our many fellow citizens that we could serve our county well as members of the Floyd County Board of Education. We, therefore, submit our names to the voters of our respective Educational districts No. 1 and No. 2, and state herewith our platform:

- Restore the teaching profession to its proper dignity by removal of Gestapo tactics and threats to teachers.
- Increase the salaries of all teachers by eliminating waste and unnecessary jobs.
- Bring all good teachers who have been run out of Floyd county back home to our own schools where they are needed.
- Keep good teachers teaching by creating an atmosphere of friendliness and good will among all school employees.
- Appoint a well trained, qualified Superintendent of Schools who has the ability to supply the educational leadership needed in Floyd county.
- Make appointments to all positions in the school system on the basis of qualifications.
- Keep the school system and the teachers free from all political entanglements.
- Improve the Course of Study in all high schools so that our children will not be handicapped because of a meager background when they go to college.
- Work with an Educational Advisory Committee made up of citizens from every community in the county to help formulate school policy and to develop a wise school building program.
- Encourage Parent-Teacher Association groups in every school district.
- Develop a more economical maintenance program by employing local labor thereby eliminating the many unnecessary permanent employees on the payroll.
- Provide a transportation program that will not force children to leave home before daylight and return home after dark, and eliminate discrimination between children attending rural schools and consolidated schools.

"Great stuff!" Allen Review of Literature.

"Translated into one language, namely English, after years of study."—Sir Cedric Hardwick.

"Wide acceptance (in spots around the premises)"—Good Housekeeping.

"A circulation-bulder; circulation to be maintained thereafter by running away from the reading public."—Mad Comics.

Just the other day, my Hupmobile, commonly called a Mercury Raptog, and I went wending our wearisome way into the local parlor for blemished transportation devices.

"What happened here?" A mechanic, large and jocular, questioned, eyeing my car as a doctor who finds a patient with two legs severed and an arm dangling precariously.

Swiftly blending my Oxford accent into regional vernacular, I unloosed a quick stream of mountain humor.

"Hit went and tore right up on me. I swear to Betsy she did or hit did."

"Lord, have mercy!" the mechanic grinned in mock sympathy.

"Have mercy," I repeated, exposing a decayed tooth.

"Now the back window can be fixed pretty fast. You want the car this evening?" This was suddenly the serious mechanic. He looked at me, his bill-gar eyes bulging out.

I slipped back into my customary cultured way. I compressed my lips astetically.

"No, you can keep the car this afternoon," I piped, assured that my voice sounded very deep and suave.

"You mean, 'may,' for, after all," the mechanic continued, "'can' implies capability and 'may,' on the other hand, indicates permission."

I crawled, red-faced, from the premises. While looking for an intellectual inferior I was accosted by their used car salesman, Sellin' Sam.

Frantically searching the dim recesses of my muscle-bound mind, I leaped upon the problem which afflicts all the used-car salesman—The out-of-county used car lots.

They gnash their teeth about this. I smirked and twisted my hands behind me.

"My good fellow," I started out, like a cultured fellow should, "are you aware that you are losing a great deal of trade via the out-of-county used car lots."

I braced myself for the storm which was surely to follow. The awful redness would come into his face. He would clench his fists and wave his arms through the air as a man bent on stopping an onrushing train.

But he didn't. Instead, he turned to me, with the air of a man calmly detached from the issue, and coolly began to speak.

"Yes, my hip-pocket and I are aware of that, Eggbert Squash-mouth. It is not only hurting us, but this town and the county as well."

"Well, now, my good man, how, pray, does the sale of a car in another county hurt anyone in this town and county?" I spoke in my most supercilious fashion.

"Look," he said, a little perturbed, "when our garage begins to fall, we have to cut off employees. They take care of their families. Now they can't buy as much in this community. There isn't as much money circulating. There is less of everything, friend, and you, like us, don't get your share."

Auxier Woman Begins Home Mission Service; Is Graduate Of Eastern

Miss Laura B. Wells, of Auxier, is one of 22 young men and women who are beginning this fall two years of home-mission service for The Methodist Church.

Miss Wells, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Wells, will go to Hayesville, N. C., as a town and country church worker.

Miss Wells studied at Pikeville College and Eastern Kentucky State College, Richmond. She was graduated from Eastern in 1954 with a bachelor-of-science degree in elementary education. In 1958 she received a master's degree at Scarritt College, Nashville.

For 11 years Miss Wells taught in the elementary schools of Auxier. She is a member of the Methodist church at Auxier.

MRS. PATTON HOSTESS

The Maytown Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. George Patton, Thursday evening. Final plans were made for the Flower Show. It was voted to give $20 to the Pony League. It was also voted for the club to buy milk for the first graders that otherwise wouldn't get any.

Mrs. George Patton and Mrs. Ivan Bouch were appointed to take magazines to the hospitals for the next two months. A personal gift shower was given for the club's protegee, Patty Booth. Following the business meeting and some quiz games, Mrs. Patton served a dessert course to the following members: Mesdames John Ison, James Allen, L. E. Roberts, Paul Borders, Edward Robinson, Theodore Gibson, David Reed, Ivan Bouch, Roland Burchett, Jones Tallent and guest, Mrs. Burnis Gearheart.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Patrick motored to Knoxville, Tenn., this week-end. They were accompanied by their daughter, Sandra Sue, who entered the University there to study for her M. A. degree.

Mrs. Ivan Bouch is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Keith Wolfe, and family in Irwin, Penn. She was accompanied there by her granddaughter, Darla, who has been visiting here.

The community welcomes the high school principal, Burnis Gearheart, and his wife, who have moved here from Garrett.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ray Flannery are the parents of a daughter born September 17 at the McDowell hospital. This is the couple's second child and has been named Elizabeth Anne.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Meek and Mrs. Homer Daniel, of Paintsville, attended the Flower Show here, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edd Sutton spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crowe in Covington. While there, Mr. Sutton attended the Cincinnati Redleg-Milwaukee Braves game.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stewart and children of Circleville, Ohio, spent the week-end here with his mother, Mrs. Viola Stewart.

"Well, now, that is all well and good. But if a fellow has a hundred bucks off on a car, should he turn it down—just because he has a streak of humanitarianism in him?"
"It's a racket, Eggbert. When you take your car out of town to trade, the cutthroat dealers give you a low price for the car but give you less for your trade-in."
"You mean to say we end up about even?"
"Yes."
"Izzat so?" I questioned.
"Or," he continued, "they'll give one man an unusually good deal on a car to attract other customers from out of county. Then they'll sock them with an exorbitant price which will make up for their loss on the first man."
"Great Scott!" I shouted. "How about that?"
"Not only that. You don't get service with the cars." He looked like a man who had won his point.
"Service?" I flared, with the air of Mike Wallace, the effrontery of Groucho Marx, the stupidity of Gracie Allen.
"Yeh, the 1,000, 5,000 mile checks. It's one thing among others, that a home-town dealer can give a customer. He has honest rates. No trickery."
"Well, how can a man run a business if he wants to trick the public?" I put my hand into my vest like a warped Diogenes, assuming a public-stature stance.
"All business from this county or any other county is extra gravy to them. They can undersell some. They haven't the overhead on them, as we have. So they can advertise and sell cheaper."
"But it looks to me," I said, hastening to add something constructive to the conversation besides questions, "you pay extra to give home-town customers extra service in guaranteeing maintenance."
"Exactly, Eggbert. Home county service is honest service. It's service with a personal concern."
"My gracious," I exclaimed, hit with the dawn of a new truth, "I believe you're right."
"Glad to see you learned something, Eggbert. Since you graduated from the University of Camargo, you orta learned something."
"Since my pretense of marticultating from Harvard and Oxford had been for naught, I slunk away in my own inimitable snake style. Q.A."

At What Point Does Law Say Driver Is Drunk?

By J. COLLIS RINGO, Executive Director Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism

What constitutes a drunken driver? How can one be positive a driver is "under the influence?" Many states, including Kentucky, have laws and methods of accurately assessing the degree of intoxication of a suspect.

Under Kentucky law, up to 5/100 of one per cent of alcohol by volume in the blood is presumptive evidence that an individual is sober. From 5/100 of one percent up to 14/100 of one per cent of alcohol content is neither evidence that an individual is, or is not, intoxicated and 15/100 of one per cent of alcohol by volume in the blood is presumptive evidence that a person is intoxicated, or drunk, if that is a more meaningful word. At 4/10 of one per cent of alcohol by volume concentration, the drinker passes out, is completely anesthetized.

The Kentucky Department of Public Safety maintains at Frankfort a laboratory where the alcohol by volume content of the blood can be accurately analyzed. Highway troopers will not only with the consent of the person involved transport the suspected driver to the nearest hospital or physician. A trained technician obtains a small sample of blood, forwards it to the Frankfort laboratory where an analysis is made. A transcript of this analysis is permissible evidence of innocence or guilt in court trials.

While 15/100 of one per cent of alcohol by volume in the blood is the established legal dividing point between sobriety and intoxication, many authorities in the field of safety believe this fallacious. In Sweden's Karolinska Institute, Dr. Leonard Goldberg conducted tests with experienced drivers who were moderate drinkers. He found that after three bottles of beer or three or four ounces of spirits, there was "an impairment of driving of 25 to 30 per cent."

In a lecture at the Yale School of Alcohol Studies, Dr. Leon A. Greenburg, a distinguished physiologist who has made exhaustive studies in this field, (Dr. Greenburg is one of the inventors of the "Breathalyzer") noted the following effects of three drinks on motor car drivers. "Your judgment starts slipping" . . . "Your restraints relax" . . . "Your reflexes begin to slow" . . . "Your vision, particularly peripheral (side) vision, is impaired" . . . "You are less able to distinguish differences in sound and light" . . . "You start losing coordination and timing" . . . "Your confidence jumps."

The slogan, "If you are drinking, don't drive . . . If you are driving, don't drink" takes on added significance in the light of these studies. It is not just a catchy phrase. It is a sound conclusion, based on actual and factual experiments.

AREA BOY SCOUTS SCHEDULE OCTOBER 1, DAY OF PRAYER

Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters at Pikeville, is urging its 3,000 members to observe October 1 as a day of prayer for the nation and for mankind, in accordance with President Eisenhower's proclamation.

Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout, executive of the Boy Scouts of America, in a message to Scout Executive Bryon F. Pennebaker, of the Lonesome Pine Council, said, "Each of us, I know, covets every opportunity to make the twelfth point of the Scout Law effective. Also, each of us in Scouting recognizes the power and importance of prayer."

The twelfth point of the Scout Law reads: "A Scout is reverent. He is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion."

Dr. Schuck informed President Eisenhower that the organization has taken steps for the "fullest cooperation to this noble purpose" and that the members totaling 4,751,000 boys and men have been requested to "fully support the proclamation."

President Eisenhower, a member of the Boy Scouts' National Executive Board since 1948, wrote Dr. Schuck: "I am heartened by your note telling me of the support to be given to the National Day of Prayer to be observed on October first. Not only am I delighted that the Boy Scouts themselves will participate, but I know that they will carry back to their homes an interest in this significant, and I hope from now on yearly event."

Dr. Schuck wrote the local council that he "was very much moved by the thought of an entire nation on a given day, and in accordance with forms and tenets of our respective religions, praying to God for the moral and spiritual strengthening of our nation, for peace among all people, and for freedom for mankind."

He urged that, where possible, "leaders and Scouts join with others in any meeting or attend services that may be arranged by people of the same faith to participate with them in prayer, in accordance with the tenets of their religion and in cooperation with their respective religious leaders; or that at meetings held during the week in which October 1 occurs, where boys are of like faith, prayer be made, again in accordance with the faith of the members of the unit."

Dr. Schuck also suggested that during that week Scouts be encouraged to attend the church of their faith and engage in prayer.

Retiring Bank Cashier Is Honored at Dinner

Directors and employees of the First Guaranty Bank at Martin gathered for a dinner meeting at the Sea Cafe at Martin last Wednesday evening to express their appreciation to the cashier of the bank, Doris Pinson, for her years, of loyalty and efficient service to the bank. Mrs. Pinson has resigned her position as cashier of the bank, effective September 30, and will join her husband in St. Louis, where they will reside.

Mrs. Pinson was the first employee of the bank when it was organized in 1946. She became cashier on the first of January, 1958. All the directors expressed their thanks to Mrs. Pinson for her excellent work in helping to build the present fine organization of employees.

The directors were particularly pleased because of the fine report received from the accountants who regularly audit the records and all other affairs of the bank and report to the board of directors. The accountants stressed the fact that they have never found a bank in more satisfactory condition and more efficiently operated.

Present at the dinner were B. F. Reed, chairman of board and director; Glenn C. Spradlin, president and director. Mrs. Pinson, and directors Harry O. Zimmerman, B. Alvin Reed, J. C. Cooley, Wayne Stumbo, C. Kilmer Combs; Employees, Betty Sue Hutchinson, assistant cashier, Mary Sue Smith, Willie Peary, Magdalene Hughes, Glenda Mayo, Ben J. Spradlin and Delores Click. From out of town was Kent Wilson, vice president, Louisville Trust Company, who addressed the group.

COULDN'T BE DONE??

They said it couldn't be done!

But Music-Colvin Motor Company has proved that cars are selling better than ever. Even in times termed hard and discouraging for any automobile dealer, Music-Colvin Motor Company continues to sell.

Why?

Because of these reasons:
Their cars are right.
Their prices are right.
Their guarantee is right.

The "old pros" of the business know how to serve their customers best by modern merchandising adjusted constantly to changing times.

Music-Colvin Motor Company is never behind the times. Cars are priced to go. And they are selling better than ever. The public has trust in the personable salesmen of the beautiful automotive outdoor court.

Ed Music, Bert Colvin, and Bill Allen—all low-pressure salesmen—cordially invite you to drop by the automotive court. Take a ride in any of their demonstrator models.

They have cars—new and used—at the lowest prices in Eastern Kentucky. They have the big, luxurious Edsel for Dad and a clean, sharp extra car for Mom to do her shopping and for Junior to "gad about" for dates.

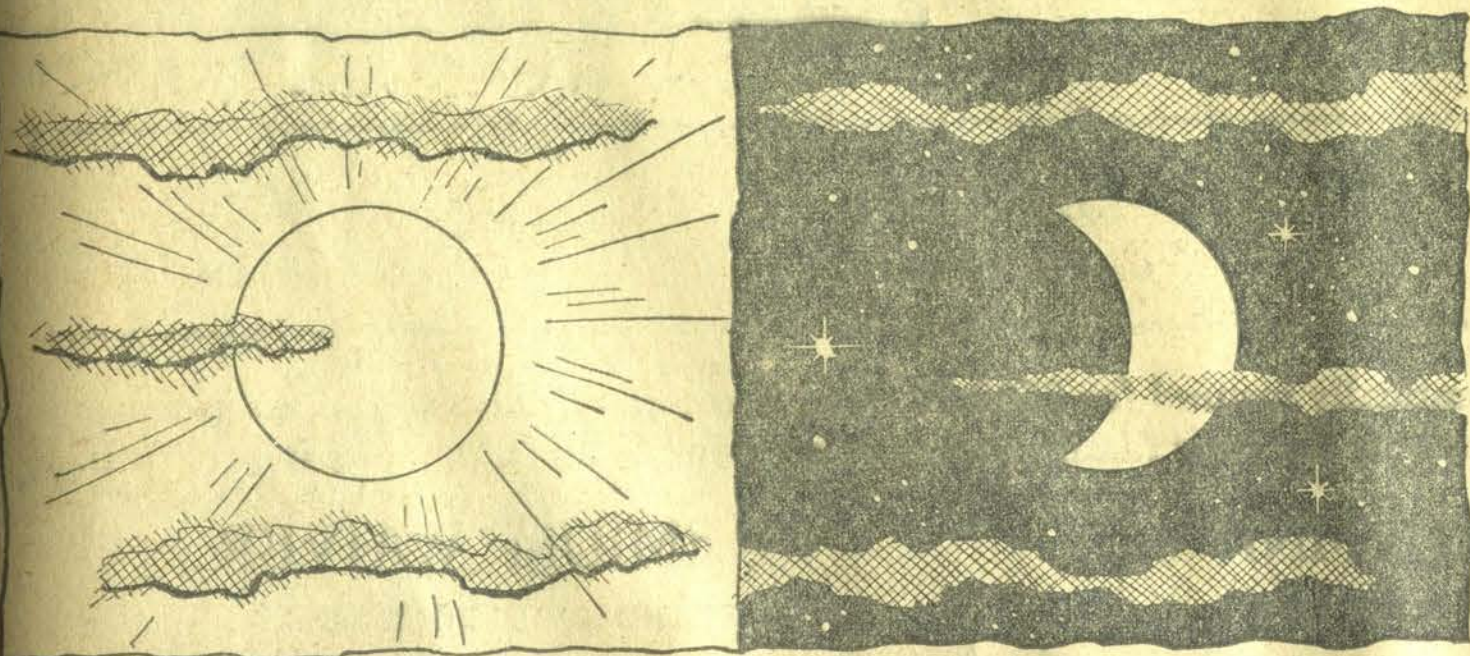

One of the biggest tests of any business is repeat business. Music-Colvin Motor Company customers have demonstrated that their motto, "Confidence Gets Business and Satisfaction Keeps It," is NO IDLE BOAST.

4-H Club News

By Jack M. Friar
Assistant County Agent

The new 4-H club year has just started in Floyd county. We are now in the process of re-organizing old clubs and organizing new ones. Last year in Floyd county there were 36 4-H Clubs with an enrollment of approximately 1,250 members.

Just what is 4-H Club work and what must I do if I become a member is a question that I am often asked around the county.

When a boy or girl joins 4-H he or she will become a member of a local club. In Floyd county all the clubs are in the schools. The new club member will select a project that they will do and take part in other club activities such as tours, fairs, club picnics, rally and community programs.

Every 4-H club has club leaders and project leaders. The club leader is usually a teacher and will meet with the members at their regular monthly club meetings. The project leaders are usually a farmer or a homemaker and will teach you the correct method of carrying out your project.

There is no enrollment fee. The only cost will be for your own project. Members are between the ages of 10 and 21 years of age and if you are eligible for membership whether you are in or out of school.

Club members "learn by doing" so each 4-H member does a project. If you are a boy you will have an agricultural project. Some of the projects for boys include swine, beef calf, dairy, home yard improvement, crops, graden, strawberry, poultry, electricity, woodwork, farm labor and entomology.

If you are a girl, you will probably carry a home economics project but you can select an agricultural project if you want to. Some of the home economic projects include: clothing, food, canning, home freezing, good grooming, house-keeping, and room improvement.

In a 4-H club you will do other things beside work on your project. Your club will meet each month and you will help your club when necessary. You will be elected a club officer, asked to serve on committees, give demonstrations, or take part on the club program.

If you are not already a club member, you will find an opportunity to "Learn by Doing" and also have fun and good fellowship by joining your local club.

For further information on the 4-H club program in Floyd county, contact the County Extension Office in Prestonsburg.

ANNUAL CHECKUP

An annual cancer checkup takes less time than golf game or permanent wave but, if everybody had one, cancer deaths would be halved, reports the October Reader's Digest. It quotes a spokesman for the American Cancer Society: "A few years ago, we were saving one in four people stricken by cancer. Today the figure is one in three. It could be one in two, without the discovery of a single new drug."

Lady Is Free Of Rheumatic Pain

One lady told us she had rheumatic pain so bad she had to walk with a cane most of the time. The joints of her knees and ankles were stiff and sore. Recently she got RUGON and says the pains began to go within a few hours, and now after one week the pain is gone entirely.

RUGON is helping so many victims of rheumatism and neuritis because this NEW Liquid Formula contains Three Wonderful Ingredients. Not a tablet or capsule. RUGON goes to the very source of pain almost at once and costs but a few cents a day to take. So don't go on suffering. Get RUGON at W. A. Rose Drug Co.

School Lunch Programs To Receive Canned Foods;

Kentucky is one of several states in the southeast area that will receive cases of canned food from the U. S. Department of Agriculture this fall for use in school lunches.

The USDA is supplying these foods to schools participating in the national school lunch program to help meet the nutritional needs of children. Buying was started this summer so that most of the foods would be available to schools early in the school year. Other regions in the United States will also be receiving their allotted foods within the next few weeks.

Kentucky will receive the following foods: 17,524 cases of canned peaches, 2,758 cases of blackberries, and 10,634 cases of green peas. The schools will receive also 150,000 pounds of frozen turkey.

In addition to these special food purchases to help schools provide well-balanced lunches, USDA continues to supply schools with foods which were acquired under price support and surplus removal programs.

Among the foods acquired and distributed under these programs are: nonfat dry milk solids, process cheddar cheese, butter, rice, flour and enriched cornmeal.

Other southeastern states and U. S. possessions cooperating in the school lunch program are: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands.

The total supply of foods to be currently distributed among the several states included 148 cartons of canned freestone and clingstone peaches, 91 cartons of canned green peas, 20 cartons of canned blackberries, and 53 cartons of frozen-ready-to-cook turkeys.

Funeral Rites Held For John Price, 53; Was Former Merchant

Funeral services were held at Auxier at 2:00 p.m. Wednesday of last week for John Price, 53, former merchant of East Point, who died about 8:00 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 14 in the Paintsville hospital. He had been hospitalized for about four weeks with a kidney ailment, but his sudden death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

He was born August 20, 1905, a son of the late Martin L. and Mandy Castle Price, of Paintsville. He was married January 15, 1941 to Willie Jane Musie.

He moved to East Point about nine years ago where he operated a grocery store. After selling the business, he built a home near East Point where he resided until the time of his death.

He began in the merchandising business by working as a youth in Paintsville stores, and he followed this occupation throughout his working years, with the exception of five years as an employee of the C. & O. Railway Company.

He was affiliated with the Free-will Baptist church of Auxier, and was a member of the Masonic Lodge of East Point.

Surviving besides his wife, are one daughter, Mrs. Viola Cury, of Wheelwright, seven sisters and six brothers: Mrs. Lenore Coleman, Mrs. Neva Stapleton and Mrs. Hulda Hall, all of Paintsville, Mrs. Julia Music, Columbus, O., Mrs. Josephine Bailey and Mrs. Mildred Castle, both of Wabash, Ind., Mrs. Mary Woods, Ravenswood, W. Va., Otto Price, Newport, Ky.; Jack Price, Baltimore, Md., Charley Price, Wabash, Ind., Ted Price, of Meally, and Harry Price, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Services were held at the Free-will Baptist Church at Auxier with Revs. Will Horn, Charles Perry and E. H. Overman officiating.

Graveside rites were conducted by the Masonic Lodge. Burial was in the Ford Gap cemetery at Auxier.

OLD TIMERS REMEMBER

(In The Asheville Times)
By JOHN PARKIS

RAINBOW SPRINGS — An old-timer is one who remembers when: Grandma smoked a corncob pipe, made her own snuff, and kept a tin can of blackgum toothbrushes on the mantel.

Republicans were called Radicals and election day was a nightmare of free-flowing whiskey, easy trigger-fingers, and fist-and-skull fighting.

High-button shoes were all the rage and bustles were fashioned of flexible wire and not of pelon and nylon.

Box suppers were events and not pickups at the corner delicatessen. Folks went to bed with the chickens and got up with the chickens.

A paper bag was called a poke and branch water was fit to drink. Medicine shows came to town as regular as the first frost and the minstrel show was an institution.

A violin was a fiddle and a record player was a talking machine.

A pocketknife was called an apple-peeler and a boy wouldn't be caught outside without a bone-handled Barlow knife.

An old-timer is one who remembers when: The surrey with the fringe on top was the Cadillac of its day and not a popular song.

Babies, regardless of sex, were decked out in a swirl of fancy ribbons and bows.

A county fair meant a baby contest for the womenfolk and a horse race for the menfolk.

Grittled bread was a mouth-watering summertime treat and cornbread was baked in ashes.

Second-hand wares were called calamities.

The country store was America's greatest forum for free expression and discussion.

Saturday was a holiday and everybody came to town to see everybody else.

The technique of buying underclothes for a woman resembled that of buying liquor in prohibition days.

Long sweetening was honey and short sweetening was maple syrup. Folks thought nothing of sitting down to a breakfast of fried chicken, country ham, eggs and hot biscuits.

Sweetened toddy was the mixed drink of the day and a cocktail was a duster for sweeping the ashes off the hearth.

Coffee came in green beans and a man parched and ground his own. Buggy whips, saddles and harness hung in prominence in the local hardware store.

Everybody had a coal-oil lamp and a jug of oil with a corncob stopper.

The washing machine was an iron pot and a scrubbing board. Womenfolk from time to time aired their quilts and blankets, hung them on a line and gave them a good beating to beat out the dust and perk them up.

An old-timer is one who remembers when: Peartening juice fresh from the still was called baldface whiskey.

The family water supply—drinking water, that is—came from a spring back of the house.

Borrowing was universal and folding money was suspect.

Men wore paper collars and sleeve holders.

Dosing with ginger tea and boneset and sage was a popular home remedy for colds and coughs.

Asafitida was worn on a string around the neck to ward off the whooping cough.

A mountain man's economic status could be calculated by the number of hound dogs about his cabin—the more, the poorer.

Oranges were a rarity, making their appearance only at Christmas, and peppermint stick candy was all the rage.

A hitching post or the rail was in front of every store, emporium or other commercial establishment in town.

A lawyer drew a will for a dollar or a deed for seventy-five cents.

Babies seldom were born except at night and the grannywoman was an institution.

Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes were just that.

Chicken ran wild and scratched for a living.

An old-timer is one who remembers when a dollar bought a sack of flour.

He is one who remembers when:

Preston Leslie Was Governor Of Two States

By CHARLES SE HINDS
Secretary-Treasurer,
Kentucky Historical Society

Frankfort, Sept. 22 — The election year 1871 marked the beginning of the two strong political party systems as it is known in Kentucky today, the Democratic and the Republican.

Three years previously, in 1868, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, John W. Stevenson, won over his Republican opponent by 88,955 votes out of 142,165 cast in the election, an overwhelming majority.

Yet in 1871 in the race between the Democrat, Preston H. Leslie, and his able Republican opponent, John Marshall Harlan, the latter received 41 per cent of the total vote or a gain of 22 per cent over the miserable 1868 showing.

The rise of the Republican Party in Kentucky could be partially explained by the Fifteenth Amendment which allowed the Kentucky Negroes to vote for the first time in a Governor's race, but another factor in the rise of the Republican Party was the able and conservative leadership given to it by John Marshall Harlan, the future U. S. Supreme Court justice.

Governor Leslie faced the beginning of a new era. The war issues were shifting now further from view. Henceforth, political campaigns in Kentucky were to be geared more and more to the economic and social needs of the Commonwealth.

Governor Leslie was born in 1819 in what is now Clinton County. His parents were poor, and therefore what opportunities he had, he made for himself. He was a cart driver at 13, a woodchopper at 14, and a ferryman, farm laborer, and cook at 15. He was, however, quite ambitious. When the chance came, he studied law under General Rice Maxey, and in 1840 was admitted to the Kentucky bar.

After that his rise was rapid. He moved to Monroe county, where in 1841, he was elected County Attorney. He served in the State House of Representatives in 1844 and 1850 and in the State Senate from 1857 to 1871.

From 1869 to 1871 Leslie was Speaker of the Senate. When Governor Stevenson resigned in February of 1871, Leslie became Governor as next in line of succession. Later on in the same year he ran against Harlan and won the election in his own right.

From 1887 to 1889 Leslie was Governor of Montana. He died in Helena of that state in 1907.

MARTIN

The Allen-Martin Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Dave Marrs, September 15, at 7:30 p.m. The new president, Mrs. Dorothy Martin, presided at the business meeting.

The program for the coming year was discussed. The president read an invitation from Mrs. L. E. Price, president of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club, inviting the Allen-Martin club to a dinner November 7 at 6:30 p.m. in the Woman's Club house, Wayland.

A letter was read by the president from E. M. Pace, Wheelwright, president of Floyd County Council for Retarded Children, asking the club to give assistance to the radio auction to be given by WPRT, Oct. 1, 2 and 3 for the benefit of the retarded children. Plans were made for the club to entertain the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club and the Drift Woman's Club in February. The president turned in $21.90 to the treasurer from sales made on sandwiches and soft drinks during the recent land auction sale held at Martin.

The hostess, Mrs. Marrs, served refreshments to the following members: Mrs. Wm. Martin, Mrs. German Vance, Mrs. John C. Hall, Mrs. Emmett Tackett, Mrs. George Laven and Miss Nell Music. The next meeting will be held October 6 at the home of Mrs. Hazel Adams.

A party was given Sept. 13 by Misses Phyllis and Brenda Mayo in the Martin Youth Center. Dancing was the main attraction. The following enjoyed their hospitality:

Statistical Answer Book, Reveals Interesting Data

How well do you know your country? Are you fact-minded? Do you like to win an argument based on facts? The interesting facts and figures contained in the new 1958 edition of the Statistical Abstract of the United States will amaze you, according to Robert M. Lackey, manager of the Cincinnati Field Office of the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Did you know that Alaska, prospective 49th state—produces more gold than California, has a shortage of women—161 males per 100 females, (most states have more women than men), and has a higher birth rate and lower death rate than any state? Alaska is more than twice as big as Texas, and as compared to the 48 states has the lowest population, the highest mountain, the most schooled (average number of school years completed) adult population, (excluding non-white), and paid the highest average weekly unemployment benefits last year. There is, of course, more in the book about Alaska, and much more about the country as a whole and the 48 states individually. Here are some other interesting facts that are contained in the 1052-page book of information.

In the fall of 1957, U. S. public school enrollment was nearly two million pupils in excess of normal school capacity, and over 90,000 teachers were teaching under substandard credentials.

Females of voting ages (21 and over) outnumber males by over 2 and 3/4 million.

The average cost of filling a tooth was $6.17 in Washington, D. C. and New York City, compared with a high of $7.14 in San Francisco and a low of $3.50 in Cincinnati.

There are more than twice as many suicides as homicides in the U. S., and more than three times as many suicides among men as among women.

There are 13,431 women bartenders in the U. S.

In the processing of individual income tax returns for the 1955 tax year, the Internal Revenue Service reported 263 showing incomes of one million dollars or more.

For the first time railways account for less than half the volume of inter-city freight moved in the U. S., and oil pipelines have moved ahead of inland waterways. Percentages for 1956 are railways, 49; motor vehicles, 18; oil pipelines, 17; inland waterways, 16.

These and half a million other facts reflecting the social, economic, and political life of America are to be found between the covers of the book.

SPRADLIN PARTICIPATES

Wurzberg, Germany — Pfc. Richard E. Spradlin, 22, whose wife, Bonnie, lives in East Point, Ky., is participating in a field training exercise with the 3d Infantry Division near Hohenfels, Germany. The exercise is scheduled for completion late this month.

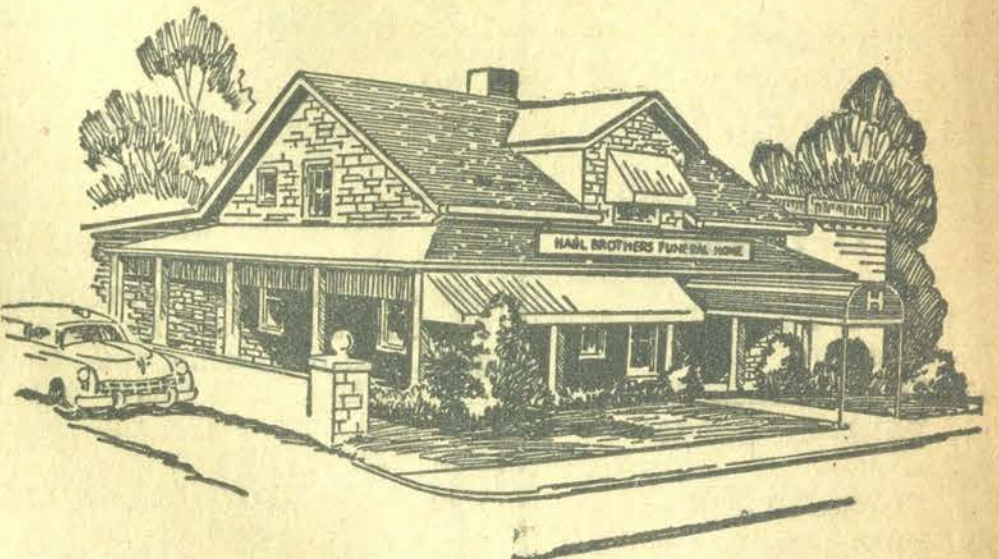

An infantryman in Mortar Battery of the division's 30th Infantry, Spradlin entered the Army in October 1957, completed basic training at Fort Benning, Ga., and arrived in Europe last March.

He attended Oil Springs high school. Spradlin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spradlin, of Denver.

Starting forest fires "out of spite and general cussedness," local arsonists cause 80 per cent of the South's average annual loss of six million acres of timber, reports the October Reader's Digest. In many communities near the Gulf Coast, "burning the big man" has become more or less a pastime.

(No. 12 in a series)

RICHARDSON, BIG SANDY RAILWAY TERMINAL IN 1884

Richardson was named for George S. Richardson, Massachusetts native, who was manager of the Peach Orchard Coal Company, the first big mine operation in the Big Sandy valley.

The Chatteroi Railway Company, incorporated by the Legislature. March 11, 1873, began construction of the Big Sandy road by turning the first shovel at Ashland, April 1, 1880. The road reached Louisa, April 10, 1881, Peach Orchard, 1882, and Richardson, May 1, 1883. It was extended to Whitehouse, April 19, 1886. The old Chatteroi company was succeeded by the Chesapeake & Ohio, which initiated new construction, April 2, 1902. The road entered Floyd county in 1903 and the first passenger train came to Prestonsburg, Nov. 15, 1904.

The above picture was taken in Richardson in 1884. In the foreground is the MacDonald Preston family and a few others. The tall building was a hotel.

The First National Bank was organized in 1904, the year the first passenger train came to Prestonsburg.

ONLY YOUR LOCAL STORES GIVE INSTANT DELIVERY AND SERVICE . . .

HERE'S HOW YOU BENEFIT BY DOING ALL YOUR SHOPPING LOCALLY

When you buy from your hometown merchants you get:

1. HONEST VALUES
2. AMPLE SELECTION
3. INSTANT DELIVERY, SERVICE AND ADJUSTMENT
4. MORE PERSONAL AND FRIENDLIER TREATMENT
5. SAVING OF TIME
6. RELIEF FROM COSTLY TRAVEL
7. FREEDOM FROM ROAD HAZARDS
8. ELIMINATION OF COSTLY PARKING PROBLEMS
9. AVOIDANCE OF JOSTLING CROWDS
10. THE CHANCE TO BUILD A BETTER COMMUNITY BY PUTTING YOUR DOLLARS TO WORK HERE

We don't believe you gain anything at all by driving long distances to shop at BIG CITY stores. Our local sources have merchandise that's just as good and costs no more.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. And suppose you don't even count the cost of gasoline and oil, car wear, parking fees, etc. Forget, too, if you like, the hazards of driving in today's heavy highway and city traffic.

But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service, or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

Why drive scores of miles looking for trouble? Shop right around the corner and be safe and satisfied.

Bobby Dodd is in his 14th season as Georgia Tech football coach. He is using a modified version of two-platoon football this fall.

Hughes Executes "Play of Year", Tech Coach Says

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd has credited Lowell Hughes with calling what he terms could be the most perfect play of the year. Quoting "It Says Here" column by Ed Ashford, of the Lexington Herald:

"Tech Coach Bobby Dodd, in Monday's Atlanta Journal, said 'the biggest and best single play' in the Wildcats' 13-0 triumph over Tech Saturday night was the 31-yard scoring pass from Lowell Hughes to Ronnie Cain.

"It not only was the big play of the game," Dodd said, "but it was as near to being the perfect play as anybody will see this year."

The Georgia Tech coach further commented: "It was perfect as to time and situation—an exceptionally smart call and the execution also was perfect.

"It was called when we were not looking for a pass at all. It not was only first down at the 31, but the Kentucky running game had been going fine. Cravens (Bobby) and Shaw (Glenn Ed) had just made fine gains. Both are big, strong, solid-footed lads of the type needed on a heavy slow track."

"The ball was wet, making any kind of a pass dangerous especially a long one. Kentucky had not thrown a pass previously, and never threw another one. They didn't need to as it turned out."

"Ironically, it was the inside belly pass we have used so much with good success, but we never executed it better than Hughes did Saturday night. Hughes faked to his left on what looked like an inside smash, then rolled back and threw the wet ball perfectly."

BLACK CATS CHALK UP SECOND WIN OF SEASON

By QUENTIN ALLEN

The Prestonsburg Blackcat's "Marshall Plan" apparently had great success at Elkhorn City last Friday night as the Blackcats ground out a 25-6 victory.

The win evens the Blackcats record at 2-2, and soothed somewhat the ruffled feelings of Blackcat followers who suffered indignities at the hands of Hazard the preceding week, 41-7.

The "Marshall plan" is the placement of Bobby Marshall at quarterback and the movement of James Allen to fullback. Allen needs a step or two to gain the speed necessary to buck opposing lines and get the yardage.

Marshall's ball-handling was good and solid; Allen's running was all powerful, and Willie Ousley added some rambling runs which were something to see.

Scoring for the revamped lineup which also found former fullback Dennis Stephens at an end position—went as follows:

Halfback Willie Ousley dashed for a score on a fifteen yarder; point after score failed; James Allen ground out 12 for the other marker in the first half. Rodney Bussey added the extra point. Ousley and Allen also added one touchdown each in the second half.

Quarterback Marshall, a quiet and determined worker at his position, is already a good ball handler and has promise as a passer. Reserves are also jelling behind the first-line veterans.

The Georgia Tech Ramblin' Wrecks—who got wrecked last Saturday at U. K.'s Stoll Field in Lexington, by a score of 13-0, were clearly outmaneuvered in the drippy weather.

Our man Lowell Hughes not only did Georgia Tech wrong in pulling his timely pass but also the spectators. The stadium announcer prematurely blared that Shaw, a halfback was smeared for a loss. Half the 30,000 present agreed that we got clobbered on the play.

The other 15,000, not so far under their pup tents and rain paraphernalia, jumped up and started yelling. U. K. had scored.

Hughes faked the spectators, the Georgia Tech players, the stadium announcer, half his own teammates. We wish he might tell us of his plans so we ignorant louts can enjoy the ball game the next time.

Oh, yes, while on our favorite topic, we might mention the new Glen Ed Shaw, whose blocking and faking tore Cravens loose for gains all night long. The 195-pounder looked like a different player from last year. He was playing with abandon; a very spirited performer. Cravens, the Owensboro dandy, is an All-American performer. When he isn't running for yardage frontwards, he's pulling and chugging for yardage backward and sideward. He's a blocker, tackler, and generally football-terrific. Ronny Cain, Cumberland football product, another Eastern Kentucky boy, took Lowell's feather-like toss for the T. D., or so I am told. Dick Scott, of Pikeville, is a Wildcatter who had an outstanding freshman season and is slated for big duty on the varsity this year.

Alert Play of the Night: Our boy, Hughes, spotted an infinitesimal shift in the Georgia offensive pattern which betrayed a quick-kick. Spectators, not under the weather of the precipitation or "mountain dew", muttered that Hughes had flipped. The Georgia team, miraculously enough, kicked. Hughes returned the kick 10 yards. If he had not spotted the kick, we (assuming we are pro-U. K.) would have been crowded back on our heels on about the 15-yard line. By keeping the ball about midfield the majority of the second half enabled U. K. to maintain a telling pressure on Georgia. Some of Georgia's panicky play and fumbles indicated the pressure was mighty thick on the playing field.

CALLING ALL COACHES!
Please, but please, CO-OPERATE. We are not telephatic. We do not have extra-sensory perception. We want your scores of baseball or football or anything you want to send us. We are interested in you and your teams. Give a smart, young man the duty of keeping his county paper informed as to the story of his team during the season. We will give him a byline, maybe a word of criticism (not too harsh, we can say), and a little experience in reporting. We want to give you credit and the boys credit for their efforts in behalf of the school team. Thank you and please accept best wishes for a fruitful season of work with Floyd county youth.

Perhaps, we are all a little too competitive. We expect of our athletes what we expect of ourselves in our most sublime moment of achievement. Let us all remember, whenever we see a high school game, that the teen-agers are doing their best.

What is it that Grantland Rice once said, "It's not whether you won or lost the game, but how you play the game." Your enthusiasm and backing are needed by your high school team. Promote, not demote your children and high schools by taking a more vital interest in their welfare.

Perhaps, we are all a little too competitive. We expect of our athletes what we expect of ourselves in our most sublime moment of achievement. Let us all remember, whenever we see a high school game, that the teen-agers are doing their best.

MOORE POSES BIG QUESTION

Who Can Stop Sizemore, Fleet Hazard Halfback? Has 90 Points to Credit

The big question in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference high school football race is "Who's going to stop the Hazard Bulldogs and Astor Sizemore?"

Jim Caudill's unbeaten Bulldogs rolled to their fourth consecutive win in bowling over crosstown rival, M. C. Napier, 47-0, with ace halfback Sizemore scoring four touchdowns and five extra points to run his total to 90 points, highest in the state.

Sizemore raced 4, 10 and 15 yards and took a 35-yard pass from quarterback Ken Cobb to tally his four six-pointers. Running mate, senior Britt Handy, came in for his share of the scoring honors in scoring three times. In the initial period he moved in from five yards out, in the last half grabbed a 25-yard heave from Cobb for his second t.d., then climaxed at 71-yard drive by going 33 yards to pay dirt.

Cobb, a three-season veteran, increased his touchdown passes to six with two scoring flings. He also raced 75 yards to no avail in the final frame, the elusive trek being nullified by a penalty.

In other Friday action, Pikeville fell before powerful Ashland, 62-7; Prestonsburg returned to the win column at the expense of Elkhorn City, 26-6, and the Whitesburg Yellow Jackets were nipped, 6-0, by Cumberland.

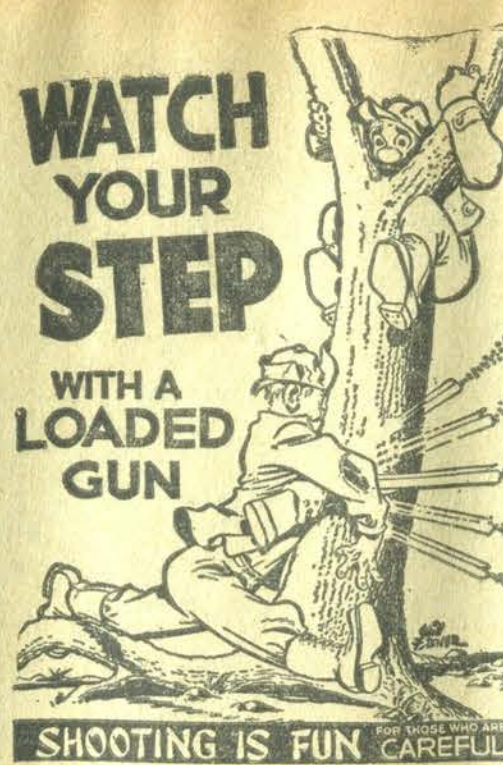

Playing in a sea of mud and a driving rainstorm Saturday night, the Jenkins Cavaliers outdid neighborhood rival Fleming, 12-0. After a scoreless first half, the defending E. K. M. C. champions marched 55-yards in the third period and quarterback James Mahan picked up the score with a three-yard dive. In the final quarter, Mahan hurled a ten-yard pay-off pitch to six-foot-five-inch senior end Nicky Dann for the final tally.

Walter Brugh's Paintsville Tigers pulled a mild surprise in taking Louisville, 19-6.

Prestonsburg's revamped lineup marched to a 13-6 halftime margin over the Cougars as halfback Willie Ousley went 15-yards for one marker and fullback James Allen dashed 12 for the other. Halfback Rodney Bussey added the point after.

In the second half, Allen and Ousley each tallied another touchdown.

Rod and Gun Are Multi-Million Dollar Industry

Hunting and fishing were a multi-million dollar industry in Kentucky last year, says an article in the current Kentucky Business Magazine, published by the State Chamber of Commerce.

The article, by Harry Towles of the State Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, said the average sportsman spends $120 a year. Applied to the 700,000 Kentuckians who indulged in hunting and fishing last year, this means that this recreational activity produced $84,000,000, said Towles.

The 700,000 sportsmen consisted of 400,000 who bought fishing licenses and 300,000 who bought licenses in Kentucky last year.

The department operates entirely on money collected from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses.

The sportsman's dollars has enabled the department to attain tangible results. Streams, lakes and ponds have been stocked with billions of fish native to Kentucky waters. Continued propagation of game—deer, quail, dove, the ruffed grouse and other species—has resulted in fine hunting with prospects for an excellent season this year, Towles said.

Hunters bag as many as 3,000,000 squirrels annually in Kentucky. Last year Kentucky's dove crop ranked third among the states with 1,500,000 bagged. About 1,300 buck deer were taken last year—23 by bow hunters. About 3,500 acres of public ground are available to duck and geese hunters. More than 3,000,000 rabbits were killed by hunters in 1957. Last year's quail kill totaled more than 4,000,000.

HAZARD REFUSES BOWL GAME

The Hazard Bulldogs, currently Eastern Kentucky's leading high school football team, with a 4-0 record, will not play in any post-season football game unless such a game is sponsored by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association.

Hazard school officials have received "feelers" from sponsors of four post-season Bowl games. In response, the City Board of Education and City Superintendent Roy C. Eversole have issued this administrative order: "(1) The K. H. S. A. A., of which Hazard is a member, is opposed to these games as proven by their legislative action against them (No game can be scheduled after September 30th.)

"(2) If Hazard is to participate in post-season games it should have to be for some championship on a state-wide or conference basis.

"(3) Most of the guarantee given to participating bowl teams (on invitational basis) comes from local fans; therefore, we would be wiser to schedule an additional home game then to play in a bowl game.

"(4) Hazard fans, school officials and players would be embarrassed participating in a bowl game with a mediocre team.

"(5) If Hazard in any season should be so fortunate as to have a successful season, we think it would mean much more to the tradition of the school, and members of the team, to not risk undefeated season in lieu of the money involved. (Usually after expenses are paid, little is realized from most invitational bowl games.)

"(6) We feel that extending the playing season (or playing in a bowl game) would seriously handicap our basketball program. If a state-wide post-season game is sponsored (at a later date) by the K. H. S. A. A., the basketball schedule would be alternated accordingly."

The Big Sandy, Pinnacle, Recreation and Exposition Bowls, held in Paintsville, Middleboro, Mt. Sterling and Louisville, respectively, have all indicated an interest in having Hazard and the state's leading scorer Astor Sizemore, play in their post-season attractions.

This season, Hazard plays a nine-game schedule, while virtually every other Eastern Kentucky team plays ten games. Hazard only played eight games last season.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Willie Ousley, senior halfback and co-captain, was named Player of the Week for his fine play in pacing Prestonsburg to a 26-6 victory over Elkhorn City last week. The weekly contest is sponsored by the Francis Stores and to date these players have been selected, Henry Hughes, Rodney Bussey, Paul "Red" Minix, in addition to Ousley.

ADD GLOBETROTTERS

The Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce, who signed Kentucky Wesleyan and Middle Tennessee State College for a basketball game in Prestonsburg on Saturday, December 13, has signed another stellar attraction for the same week.

On Wednesday, December 10, the Harlem Globetrotters, featuring "Wilt-the-Stilt" Chamberlain, will play a touring professional team in Prestonsburg.

WILSON MIZNER, WIT

The late Wilson Mizner, wit and confidence man, contributed many lines to the language. Reader's Digest credits him with saying: "A good listener is not only popular everywhere, but after a while, he knows something." Also: "Be nice to people on your way up because you'll meet 'em on your way down."

Vets' Widowers May Get Help From Uncle Sam

A new federal law provides benefits to certain widowers of veterans of the U. S. armed forces' branches for women.

These widowers may be eligible, reports the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Service Men's Board, if they have not re-married, are incapable of self-support and were permanently incapable of self-support at time of wife's death.

The board said the new law also authorizes dependency payments to a veteran of the women's forces whose husband is not capable of self-maintenance and cannot support himself because of permanent or mental disability.
