This Town— That World

In the summer it's flies; winter, it's flu. And it's not all a case of tense, either.

Why be messy about it and blow up an airplane and everybody in it, just to collect insurance? Why not an automobile ride with one of these drivers who respect neither your neck nor his own?

This belongs in the Wish-It-Said-That Department:

"The Russians will send their rockets to the moon, and we'll drive ours to school." (By W. W. Burchett, in The Weekly Bulletin of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club.)

LOOK, ONCE!

Folks over the country have been amazed by the high rate of rejections for military service for all reasons, physical and mental, etc. At the same time some have had an idea that illiteracy and other reasons have chalked up a black eye for the mountain areas in this department.

Just to set the record straight, Dr. R. L. Hall, of Wheelwright, several weeks ago gave us the following figures on rejections per 100 men examined, as accumulated by the Rural Life Council of Tuskegee Institute:

State	For State As a Whole	For Mountain Area of State
Alabama	32	28
Georgia	33	27
Kentucky	36	29
Maryland	27	25
N. C.	37	25
S. C.	34	31
Tenn.	32	28
Virginia	31	26
W. Va.	33	31
Region	33 (average)	28

ASC EXPLAINS COST-SHARING

Practices Are Named On Which Assistance By Government Given

"It is now time to submit requests for cost-sharing under the 1960 agricultural conservation program," said Elder Goble, office manager of the Floyd County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation committee, this week. Goble urged that farmers eligible for cost-sharing with the government apply in writing before the practice is started.

The sign-up period will be from Jan. 18 through Feb. 19, Goble noted. He named 17 practices listed for payment. These are:

Establishing permanent grass-legume seedings for soil protection, applying liming material on farmland for soil improvement, erosion control, improving cover planting trees for forestry or on permanent pasture or hay fields, constructing wells for livestock water, developing springs for livestock water, constructing ponds for livestock water, installing pipe lines and water storage facilities, and establishing sod waterways, seeding gullies, dams, and field borders, constructing terraces, construction of diversion ditches, constructing open drainage ditches, installing tile drainage systems, constructing ponds for irrigation, and establishing (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

10 SENTENCED TO DO TERMS FOR FELONIES

Five Draw Convictions In Court Within Week; Major Trials Continued

Ten persons convicted of felonies at the current court term were sentenced to pen terms today (Thursday) by Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill.

Five of those sentenced had been convicted within the week. Their names, crimes of which they were accused and terms of imprisonment follow:

Tommy Newsome, child desertion, five years; Delmas Brown, child desertion, three years; Charles Castle, assault with intent to rob, five years; Paul David Green, grand larceny, two years; Johnny S. Ward, falsifying, one year. The other five sentenced today had been previously convicted. They are:

Frank Green, grand larceny, two years (was named in a cattle-stealing case with Paul David Green); Isaac Hall, Jr., forgery, two years; Monroe (Roman) Caudill, forgery, four years; Harold Lloyd Prater, assault with intent to rob, five years (Prater was accused in the same case with Charles Castle); Elmer Newsome, child desertion, one year.

The charge against Paul David Green of detaining a woman against her will was dismissed on condition that he plead guilty to the grand larceny charge against him. The one-year pen term of J. D. Hall for arson was probated.

Others convicted since last Thursday:

Paul Johnson and Bobby Henderson, throwing a stone into a dwelling, $10 fine for Henderson, $25 for Johnson; James Slone, selling liquor, $20 fine and 30-day jail term on each of two counts, with $1,000 peace bond required; Leonard Marsillet, assault and battery, $25. Not guilty verdicts were made in five cases. Defendants in these were: Rutherford Williams, cold check; Lewis Butcher, possessing moonshine whiskey for the purpose of sale; Willie Slone, child desertion; Sam Lee Crum, cold check; Bill Allen, involuntary manslaughter.

The Lewis Hall murder case, the arson case involving an alleged attempt to burn Radio Station WDOO, and the case arising from the dynamiting of the Frank DeRossett home on Bull Creek were continued till the April court term.

WOMAN WHO WANTED 'HUSBAND' INDICTED NOW BEING SOUGHT ON SERIES OF COLD CHECKS

Warrants were issued here Monday of last week for a Minnie Frances Murry for passing forged checks on the Service Insurance Company of Omaha, Nebr. Four of the checks are known to have been cashed by Prestonsburg merchants and it is said several were passed in Paintsville.

The checks were cashed during the holidays and she was last seen in town Jan. 9 when she appeared at the County Attorney's office and asked Miss Catherine Ellis, clerk, to draw up an indictment that had been rendered against Kenneth G. Stratton, of Banner. She told Miss Ellis that she was Stratton's wife. Warrants for the woman were issued two days later.

The checks, all drawn on the Service Insurance Company at the First National Bank of Omaha, were made out to Minnie Francis Murry, and with names of different persons as maker. She represented the checks were for claims for insurance.

Victimized were Hager Hay Market, $52, Leake Service Station, $35.87, Adams & Gorge hardware store, $79, and the Farm and Home store, said to be for $52.

The woman was said to be about five feet, ten inches in height and well-dressed. She told various stories about where she was from, chief place being Arizona.

Kenneth G. Stratton, said by the woman to be her husband, is in jail here charged with forgery and carrying a concealed deadly weapon. He is also wanted in Tennessee and Michigan.

The charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon against Stratton resulted from an arrest a few weeks ago by Deputy Sheriff Joe W. Lewis. Stratton was picked up near Banner and found to be carrying a gun. The forgery charge arose from the passing of a forged check for $57

Head Heart Fund Drive In Floyd; Mrs. Harkins, Mrs. McHone Appointed

Appointment of Mrs. Mary Jane Harkins, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Cora McHone, of Wheelwright, as co-chairmen for Floyd county in the 1960 Heart Fund Drive has been announced by William H. Kendall, Louisville, president of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, who is state Heart campaign chairman. The drive will open on Feb. 1 and run through the month.

This will be the sixth year in which Mrs. McHone has served in a leadership position in the Heart campaign and the second for Mrs. Harkins.

Pointing out that the Kentucky Heart Association's 1959 money grants for heart research and equipment within Kentucky, and for its clinics for indigent heart patients in the State were the largest in the organization's history, Mr. Kendall said no minimum goal is being set for 1960. He said, however, "it is essential that we at least exceed the approximately $328,000 raised last year."

Most Kentucky communities, he announced, will climax their campaigns with the special "Heart Sunday" door-to-door collection on February 28.

DEALER TELLS OF CAR DEAL

Music Says Exemption On Tax Provided Slim Margin on Combs Auto

"If any dealer in Kentucky will deliver 20 Buicks identical to the one Governor Combs got, I will be glad to pay him $4,300 each for them, delivered in Prestonsburg."

That was the reply made this week by Ed Music, of the Music-Colvin Motor Company here, to a statement made in a Courier-Journal news-story that the Buick the state purchased for $4,300 for the Governor from the Prestonsburg dealership was almost $551 higher than each of two bought by the previous administration.

"In fact," said Music, "it was an unprofitable deal for us. The only reason we could sell this particular car, with all its extras, for $4,300 was that the state was exempt from the $296 federal excise tax, at that, and even including the excise tax and not counting trip expenses to Frankfort, our profit was only $215." ## APPELLATE COURT DECIDES BONUS PROPOSAL IS VALID

An unanimous decision of the Kentucky Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that the veterans' bonus proposal approved by the voters in November is constitutional. The appellate ruling reversed the finding of Judge William B. Ardery of the Franklin Circuit Court who had held it invalid.

The high court declared that the proposal submitted to the voters was not actually an amendment to the Constitution. It held it was a legislative act which sought the people's approval.

Voters did not approve bonus payments to "widows or heirs, or next of kin," the court said, because these beneficiaries were not mentioned either in the act's title or in the question put before the voters on election ballots.

It will be up to the Legislature to define "veteran." The court said the Legislature may well want to include in its definition at least the dependents of deceased veterans.

Specifically, the high court ruled: 1. In principle, veterans' bonus legislation does not violate the Federal Constitution or the Kentucky Constitution.

2. Veteran members of the 1958 Legislature had no personal or private interest in the measure for the reason that the act itself did not grant a veterans' bonus to anybody.

3. Calling the bonus proposal a "constitutional amendment" did not make it so. By failing to follow legal steps outlined in both the Constitution and the statutes, no proper question was submitted to the voters for a constitutional amendment.

4. In authorizing a retail sales tax upon "all" sales, the bonus proposal—as a legislative act—runs afoul of Section 230 of the Constitution which expressly earmarks motor-fuel taxes for highway purposes only, but this defect is insignificant.

5. The 1958 Legislature, "even if by inadvertence," enacted what was in form an "almost ideal act" to submit a question to the voters under Section 50 of the Constitution.

6. "It is evident that the legislature did not contemplate that the word 'veterans' included all of those in the classification added by amendment—widows, heirs, or next of kin."

7. By specifying that bonds to finance the bonus were to be retired in "not less than 30 years," the Legislature intended to say "within 30 years." The words used were "inserted by inadvertence."

The appellate court conceded that "many practical and legal problems" are presented in the bonus controversy. Its opinion, written by Commissioner Watson Clay, observed:

"We have not undertaken to determine questions which may arise when specific legislation is enacted pursuant to the authorization granted by a vote of the people."

"Many matters of constitutionality are not clear-cut, but we must bear in mind that this instrument is a living organ.

"It is not for the courts to be hypertechnical in seeking reasons to defeat the will of the Legislature and the people when they have had a fair opportunity to express themselves under procedures recognized by the Constitution."

Tuesday's ruling would seem to (See Story No. 7, Page 6)

TENNESSEE FIRM LOW ON RESERVOIR PROJECT

The Big Sandy flood control program nears the beginning of actual construction with the opening of bids Wednesday by the U. S. Corps of Engineers, Huntington, W. Va., of bids on one phase of the John W. Flanagan dam.

The Harrison Construction Co., Alcoa, Tenn., submitted the apparent low bid of $980,372.50 for building a diversion tunnel for the dam. Ten bids were offered, and Col. Steven Malevich said these will be checked and a contract awarded within two weeks.

Work is to begin within 10 days after the contractor receives notice to proceed and is to be completed within 420 calendar days.

The project is in Dickenson county, Va., on Pound river, which is a tributary of the Russell Fork of the Big Sandy. The dam, which will be located less than two miles above the mouth of the Pound, will

FLU EPIDEMIC HITS SCHOOLS

Most Floyd Sufferers Are 18 or Older; Some Believe Peak Reached

A flu epidemic affecting hundreds of Floyd countians has lightened in some areas and maintained itself in others, according to medical reports received this week.

Montain Clark, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department, said that by last Friday Dr. J. A. Stumbo had treated 150 cases in the Martin area; Dr. Claude L. Allen, 130 at Beaver Valley hospital, Martin; Dr. R. L. Hall, 500 at Wheelwright; Dr. J. J. Sherman, Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin, 150; and the McDowell Memorial hospital, 8. Others reported not localized brought the total to 1,203. Nobody knows, however, the number of flu sufferers in the county, because hundreds of persons have not consulted doctors.

The Floyd County Superintendent's office released figures this week indicating that 200 grade school pupils in the McDowell vicinity were flu sufferers. Other schools which were said to have students ill with flu and thus far have not been forced to interrupt their schedules are:

Prestonsburg high school, seven teachers, 90 students by January 18, 136 by January 19; Maytown high school and grade school, four teachers and 75 students; Allen, grade school, 66 students; Drift grade school, 41 students, Arkansas grade school, 18 from a two-room school. ## CONSERVATION URGED BY SPORTSMEN LEAGUE

"You have to live conservation every day, for upon conservation depends the destiny of the human race," Dr. Fredrick Scroggin, of Dry Ridge, president of the League of Kentucky Sportsmen, told the annual meeting of the Seventh District Wildlife Federation here Sunday afternoon.

"Conservation has been forced on us and now people are beginning to live and breathe it," he continued. "When we have conservation we have good forests, game, water and industry."

Scroggin stressed the need for the elimination of stream pollution, urged reforestation and said that this would raise the water level of the region. He noted that Kentucky has come a long way in conservation and in anti-pollution work, and said: "The pollution problem must be solved, for all of us can't live upstream."

The head of the League pointed out that this was the silver anniversary of his organization and that his group had waged a particularly successful battle to keep the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources out of politics. He said the civil service system under which the employees serve is a successful one.

He urged that members of his organization should help increase the membership of the League of Sportsmen to 60,000. Every Sportsman should belong to some conservation club, he said.

Sam Garnett, of Hazard, secretary of the Perry County Fish and Game Club, presided. He was elected president of the district federation to succeed John Paul Runyon, Pikeville. George E. Allen, of Langley, was named vice-president and Jack Turner, also of Langley, was reelected secretary.

Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, spoke briefly and devoted time to answering questions from the audience.

Clark said he was greatly disturbed by pollution in Kentucky's streams but said that the employees of the Kentucky Pollution Commission, of which he was a member, had been tied up in Green county with pollution problems arising from the new oil development there.

"We don't want to put an industry out of business but no industry should put another out, either," he said.

Dr. Claude L. Allen, of Martin, asked Clark to discuss the proposed boating law. The commissioner gave the information that the new boating law has been drawn up, added that he thinks his department will administer it. He said that under federal regulations owners of boats with 6 h.p. motors or more must register their craft and pay a fee.

"Kentucky will have a new boating law as a safety measure," Clark added. He said that some wanted boating regulations, others didn't.

Discussion at the meeting returned time and time again to the pollution problem. A representative of Ashland Oil & Refining Company told of his firm's efforts to protect streams from pollution. He detailed new control methods being tried, said that leaks of crude petroleum would occur, added: "We are trying our best to keep down pollution but accidents will happen."

Clark added to this: "Many companies are operating in good faith. Sometimes down the line an employee lets them down. More and more companies will have employees in the future to look after anti-pollution problems."

Clark noted results of the last hunting season in the state, said the deer population was about 52,000, with poaching a rising problem. He said that one out of every four hunters got a deer in Kentucky but that only one out of 18 was successful in Ohio.

The next meeting of the Seventh District group was set for May 8, again at the Wise Restaurant here.

Fuel Clause Approval Granted Power Firm; Minimum Charge Set

Kentucky Power Company has received final approval from the Public Service Commission to include a fuel clause in its residential and commercial rates and to change its monthly minimum from $1 to $2.

The changes had been granted October 1, subject to additional review of the Public Service Commission. The final order became effective January 18.

The fuel clause provides for a slight rise or fall in the cost of electricity as the cost of coal used to provide it rises or falls. This (See Story No. 9, Page 4)

3 TO 4 HOURS NEEDED TO CLOSE FLOOD GATE

Prestonsburg flood gates can be closed in three to four hours after the key has been turned on the gates, Dick Davis, Superintendent of the Flood Wall, said this week.

Plans have been made to add, if possible, two men from the Fire Department, Emergency Squad, Gas and Water Department, Davis said, for around the clock shifts.

When the gates are closed, Davis said, it will become necessary to keep two men on the job twenty-four hours a day. The pumping equipment, to be started, must be manually operated.

Davis said that the Trimble Branch gate will be closed when the water reaches a stage of 23.2 feet. He said that the water is 588.84 feet above sea level.

ALUMNI GROUP HEARS BEMENT

Dire Predictions Made As To College Situation In Few Years By Speaker

The Joint Alumni Council of Kentucky at its ninth state meet here Wednesday evening of last week heard Dr. Maurice Bement, executive director, make dire predictions as to what may happen to colleges over the country when the "war baby" crop starts knocking for entrance to higher institutions of learning.

The University of Kentucky will have approximately 20,000 students by 1970, he predicted, if the building program is advanced enough to care for them. He noted also the steady growth of colleges without the "war babies" and said that in 1954 Morehead State College had only 900 students but at present the enrollment exceeded 2,000.

Dr. Adron Doran, president of Morehead State College, presided at the meet of alumni groups of six Kentucky colleges. Represented were Eastern Kentucky State College, Kentucky State College, Morehead State College, Murray State College, Western Kentucky State College and the University of Kentucky. ## FISHTRAP DAM CONSTRUCTION NOT BUDGETED

Perkins and Senators Hopeful That Congress Will Increase Budget

President Eisenhower's budget proposals recommend $3,100,000 for continued construction work on John W. Flanagan reservoir on the Pound River, it was disclosed Monday.

The president withheld any recommendations to initiate construction on the Fishtrap reservoir but did ask $349,000 for advanced planning on the project. In addition to the two Big Sandy recommendations $10,000 was in the proposed budget to complete a comprehensive survey of the river.

Eastern Kentuckians, while pleased with the Pound River recommendations, were apprehensive that construction funds for Fishtrap would not be available for another fiscal year.

Rep. Carl D. Perkins had been optimistic as to Fishtrap up to the submission of the presidential budget. Some of his optimism stemmed from a letter he received from the Army Engineers, August 28, in which that body had written:

"The capacity shown for Fishtrap reservoir includes $344,000 for completion of advanced engineering and design and $306,000 to initiate construction. The importance of this project is fully recognized and every effort will be made to carry on planning expeditiously consistent with availability of funds."

Perkins, in a wire to The Times, said, "I entertain the hope that we will at least be able to obtain from the House Appropriations committee the full amount which the Army Engineers state we may efficiently use during the next fiscal year for construction in addition to our planning."

The Hindman Congressman took exception to the $10,000 recommended by the President for a comprehensive survey of Big Sandy River. Perkins thought $35,000 would be a more adequate figure. (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

Heart Disease Number One Enemy In Floyd County, Reports Show

(Special to The Times)

New York, Jan. 18 — Heart disease continues to rank as enemy number one in Floyd county. It is, by far, the greatest threat to human life locally.

Latest Government reports show that no less than 39.7 per cent of the county's total mortality annually, from all causes, is attributable to the cardiovascular group of ailments, more commonly called heart disease.

The ratio is a high one, but not as high as that in the United States as a whole, where it is responsible for 53.6 per cent of all deaths. In the East-South-Central States, it is 51.0 per cent.

The heart disease problem has come to the fore at this time because of the designation of February as National Heart Month.

Despite the massive research effort that has been going on in laboratories and in medical centers, the mortality has been rising. According to the American Heart Association, it is taking over 875,000 lives a year, which is more than are lost to cancer, to accidents and to all other diseases combined.

The rise, however, does not mean that medical science has not made advances in the prevention and treatment of heart disease.

Rather, it is explained, the increase is due to the fact that so much progress has been made in other directions, through the control of the infectious and contagious diseases, that more people are living to an older age, where heart disease takes its greatest toll.

Among residents of Floyd county, according to the recent report of the U. S. Public Health Service, giving vital statistics figures for 1957, there were 312 deaths from all causes, of which 124 were due to heart disease. Excluded are the deaths locally of non-residents.

Without the significant gains that have been made through research in the fight to control the circulatory ailments, the mortality today would be considerably higher, it is claimed.

Among them are new techniques in open heart surgery and in the replacement of diseased arteries with plastic arteries, as well as the perfection of effective drugs for the treatment of high blood pressure.

Todd Farmer Is Winner In Kentucky Corn Race; Johnson Man Ranks High

A Todd county farmer was tops in the five-acre division and a McCreary county farmer was tops for the second year in a row—in the one-acre division of the 1959 Corn Derby.

S. H. Phillips, University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service agronomist in charge of the Derby, said the winners were Charles Brooks, Guthrie, Ky., with a yield of 184.5 bushels an acre for the five-acre division; and Cecil Groom, McCreary county, with a yield of 209.7 bushels for the one-acre division.

Creekmore was a repeat winner. Last year (with the 1958 crop) he was the one-acre winner, with a yield of 231 bushels an acre.

Brooks' corn averaged 38 inches between rows, as did Creekmore's. Brooks' field was in corn the third year in a row; he limed it in 1958 and in 1959 disked in 300 pounds an acre of 6-18-6 fertilizer, drilled in the row 200 pounds per acre of 10-10-10 fertilizer and used 325 pounds per acre of urea (liquid nitrogen) before planting. Brooks planted May 5, using DeKalb 352 hybrid variety, but was unable to maintain a cultivation schedule due to heavy rains. He was able to spray the crop for weed control, he said.

Creekmore planted on May 25, using Broadbent 235A hybrid variety. He used 1,000 pounds of 0-20-20 fertilizer, 400 pounds per acre of 3-12-12 in the row and 160 pounds of ammonium nitrate as a side-dressing, plus six loads of manure before planting. He cultivated the crop three times.

Both men will be honored with certificates and watches at the Kentucky Seed Improvement Association banquet scheduled Thursday, Jan. 28, at the 49th annual Farm and Home Week.

Pension Eligibility Of Veterans' Children Discussed By VA Head

The great majority of children of both Union and Confederate war veterans are not eligible for pension payments, Olney B. Owen, Manager of the VA Regional Office in Louisville, pointed out today.

Taking note of recent inquiries, Owen explained that generally pensions are paid to children of deceased veterans who are under 18 years of age.

Only when a child became permanently incapable of self-support, through mental or physical disability, prior to age 18, is the pension payment allowed after age 18.

Since July 1, 1958, when dependents of Confederate veterans became eligible for pension, the VA has found only 20 children, none from Kentucky, of Confederate veterans who meet this provision of permanent incapability prior to age 18, among the many applications that have been received.

The fact that a child became permanently incapable of self-support after he reached age 18 does not qualify him for pension payment. Such permanent incapability for self-support must have started prior to age 18 and continued since.

Based on experience with children of Union veterans, the VA says that although there are probably some hundreds of children of Confederate veterans, comparatively few will be eligible for pensions since their disabilities do not date prior to their 18th birthday.

In addition to the 20 children, the VA has placed 1,172 widows of Confederate veterans (16 from Kentucky) on the pension rolls. There are 2,481 widows of Union veterans and 665 children of Union veterans on the rolls.

How Shall the Money for Teachers Be Distributed?

Money does not always buy an education, nor can it be expected always to assure good teachers. But the huge outlay of funds planned for teachers' salaries by Governor Combs may well mark a high-water point in the progress of Kentucky.

This is the march of progress from which there will be no retreat. Never again will teachers serve for pittance-pay; there is no direction but forward for Kentucky, its teachers and its schools, once such steps as are proposed are finally taken. The Minimum Foundation Program and its implementation was one such step, and now Kentucky moves a step farther. There can be no going back, now.

But great care should be taken to assure teachers the pay raises they deserve. Without such care, millions of dollars will be dissipated on salaries for supervision, for administration and the like—and again the classroom teacher will be left only a fraction of what started out as a fund to improve teachers' salaries.

And, even if the funds to be made available are dedicated to the improvement of the lot of teachers, how shall they be allocated? Shall top-bracket teachers—that is, those with degrees, more experience and already being paid top salaries for Kentucky—get the lion's share in order to stop the outward flow to other states of top-flight teaching talent that has been educated and developed in Kentucky at Kentucky taxpayers' expense?

Or shall there be a straight, across-the-board pay raise for all teachers of whatever classification?

It must be remembered that in the lower salary brackets are thousands of dedicated teachers who for valid reasons—lack of opportunity, cramped financial circumstances (this largely because they have so long been paid starvation wages), plus factors involving location and family obligations—have not yet earned the college credits that automatically elevate them in the pay schedule.

It also should be remembered that these teachers are spending money every year to acquire additional college training and keep pace with Department of Education requirements. And under-graduate hours are as costly to these teachers as are those hours taken by higher classification teachers as they do post-graduate work to earn a doctorate.

The Times cannot, for lack of information, suggest a hard-and-fast salary schedule. It admits there are many factors involved but it cannot find any that would justify a second-rate salary raise for those who are sincerely working—even while underpaid—to become first-rate teachers.

The lowest-paid classroom teacher in Floyd county this year drew $1,500. The highest-paid bracket drew $3,670. Admitting, as they must, that college degrees do not always make a good teacher and that the lack of degrees does not on all occasions mean that the teacher is inferior, those charged with the responsibility of planning justly for both groups, as well as for those between, need to do in these early days of 1960 much serious thinking.

Be A Better Public Official

(From Ashland (Ky.) Independent)

We are happy to note that Catlettsburg's new City Council at its first meeting adopted as its "Code of Ethics" suggestions on how to "Be A Better Public Official." The suggestion originally came from The New Hampshire Municipal Association, were reprinted by the publication of the Kentucky Municipal League, and on June 15, 1959 were included in an editorial in this newspaper.

In view of the fact that the Catlettsburg Council has, by resolution, subscribed to the ethics suggested for public officials, and feeling that it would be well for Ashland's new city government officials also to consider these ethics, we again reproduce the suggestions in full:

—Don't act as a committee of one. Remember that your only authority lies in your membership on the board of Council.

—Devote sufficient time and energy to your job. If you find that your private business, social life or health makes it impossible to carry out your obligations, step aside for someone else.

—Don't use your official position for personal gain or to promote your own interest.

—Don't let honest differences of opinion degenerate into personality conflicts.

—Visit other communities, particularly those that have the reputation of being well-run. If your community is about to undertake a special project, inspect similar projects in other communities.

—Keep the public informed. Issue frequent news releases, accept invitations to speak before local groups, hold open meetings, issue an attractive, readable annual report.

—Never accept gifts or favors from individuals or firms doing business with your community.

—Represent all the people in your community, not just your friends, neighbors or business associates.

—Express your honest convictions, although you are in the minority, but support majority decisions.

—Don't be misled by the vocal demands of special interest groups. When in doubt ask yourself: "Is this in the best interest of the whole community?"

—Remember that there are at least two sides to each question. Listen politely, but reserve making a decision until you have all the facts.

—Don't try to be an expert on all phases of local government. Seek the advice of real experts.

—Cooperate with your school officials, other public agencies and with all citizen groups working in the best interest of your community.

—Work for and insist that the affairs of your municipality be conducted on a sound, business-like basis.

—Don't be content to just "hold office." Use your office to provide the kind of dedicated, creative forceful leadership that your citizens have a right to expect.

DISEASE CONTROL

Frankfort, Jan. 14 — The State is seeking more federal funds for livestock disease control and brucellosis eradication. Letters from Agriculture Commissioner Emerson Beauchamp to Kentucky congressmen pointed out that federal allocation for this program in Kentucky had been reduced from over $620,000 last fiscal year to $487,000 this year.

The first court ever held in Kentucky was at Harrodsburg, Jan. 16, 1781, when that town was still in Lincoln county. The county at that time stretched from Cumberland Gap to the Mississippi River.

On Dec. 22, 1775, the new Navy commissioned 18 officers, including John Paul Jones. The "Father of the Navy" became the senior of the first five lieutenants appointed.

LETTERS

TO THE EDITOR

QUESTIONS COLUMBIA FUEL

Editor, The Times:

I have addressed the following as an open letter to the Kentucky Utility Commission:

From the time the Columbia Fuel of Kentucky obtained a franchise on the natural gas supply to the consumers in the community of Lancer, Ky., we have enjoyed price rise after rise while there has been very little if any maintenance or repair of lines necessary. There has been no major repairs that we know of. The company has adopted a plan whereby some of the meters are read only once or twice a year, thereby cutting costs, yet ask and receive raises in consumer price steadily.

Perhaps the commission would like to publish an answer to this letter, stating why while the Kentucky Power Company and the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company continue to give excellent service without these frequent price rises, the Columbia Gas Co. continues to enjoy raise after raise, seemingly at their own option.

A very great amount of this company's money is spent in advertising on TV and other channels while the people of this community are forced to accept their gas if they are to use that medium of heat. If they don't have competition, why the need of this costly advertising at my expense?

Attention, Mr. Gordon Moore:

I saw a statement you had in The Floyd County Times where you stated:

"Don Wallen's charges (currently 15-2) are enjoying the highest state-wide rating ever for a Floyd county basketball team by being in 8th position."

Far be it from me to take anything away from the fine ball club Coach Wallen has. In fact, I would like to see them in the No. 1 spot.

If I am wrong please correct me. I believe that our Wayland basketball team during the reign of "King Kelley Coleman," back about '55 or '56, was in the top four most of that time.

Bement moderated a panel at which attendance drop-outs, the curriculum, finance and increased enrollment were discussed.

"The importance of higher education to America is now receiving prominent attention, both domestic and external," said Earle Martin, of the pupil personnel department of Floyd county schools and former president of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association. "The conclusion is inescapable that if our colleges and universities keep their houses in good order they will be compelled to improve financial arrangements."

The theme of financial urgency ran through the conference. Martin introduced a resolution that was passed endorsing the proposed three per cent sales tax and the 11-point Kentucky Education Association legislative program.

Approximately 90 educators and interested laymen attended the meet, held at the Wise Restaurant. Morehead State College was host to the conference. Presidents of six alumni associations were present. Five more meetings are planned in the state, it was said.

The Joint Alumni Council was organized three years ago by leaders of the six colleges with the purpose of advancing education in the state.

Attending from this county were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stumbo, Kilmer Combs, Earle Martin, Dr. George P. Archer, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., Mrs. Shirley Hughes, Wade Burchett, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Haywood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wellman, Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland, Mrs. Robert Regan, Mrs. Sarah McQueen, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Roberts and others.

Auto Accident Victim Succumbs To Heart Attack Leaving Hospital

Death came suddenly and unexpectedly to Miles Little, 77, retired Wheelwright miner, Friday evening as he was preparing to depart from the Sharon/Heights hospital, at Jenkins.

Surviving brothers and sisters are T. J. provision does not affect any customer at the present time, and does not go into effect until the cost of coal goes up or down 12 cents a ton from present levels.

The new minimum charge of $2 a month for 42 kilowatt hours offers the customer slightly more than twice as much electricity as the old minimum of $1 for 20 kilowatt hours. The new minimum affects only those customers who have a two-month bill less than $4.

The company explained that the cost of making service available to each customer is over $2 a month, due to the increase of costs in materials and labor. Kentucky Power also emphasized that the two revisions do not change the basic kilowatt hour charge for electricity.

The new provision regarding fuel was explained by the following example; for each 12-cent change up or down in the cost of coal per ton, the two-month bill would go up or down as follows: Bill of $5 up or down 1c; $10 up or down 2c; $15 up or down 3c; $20 up or down 5c; and $25 up or down 6c and $30 up or down 8c, etc.

The company said the effect on the average bill for two months will mean an increase or decrease of about two cents.

Club Speakers Tell Story Of Community Recreation Center

A long cherished dream of a large number of the people of the community of Wheelwright and the surrounding area became a reality July 1, when the doors were opened on the Community Recreation Center. At the January meeting of the Wheelwright Woman's Club, Raymond W. Gibson, chairman of the board of trustees, Raymond Cook, recreation director and Raymond Baldwin, president of the Teen Council, spoke to the members on this subject. Mr. Gibson, keynote speaker, gave a brief history of the youth center. He said the initial meeting for the organization of the youth center was in November, 1958. Each organization in town was urged to have representatives present at this meeting. From this meeting, a committee was chosen. The first thing that this committee did was to send questionnaires to both large and small communities which had youth centers to get an idea of how to go about starting a youth center in Wheelwright. They also took a poll of the students at Wheelwright to see what the young people would be interested in seeing in a youth center. Dancing, of course, was high on the list; other things were roller skating, bowling, art, dramatics, crafts, singing, studies of serious literature, and chess. It was learned that the prime requisite for a successful recreation center was to have a full-time, salaried director. They decided some individual, preferably from the teaching profession, would be best. The position was filled by Raymond Cook, a teacher in the local high school. The Teen Center had to be incorporated to obtain a tax-free status. The controlling group is a board of trustees consisting of 13 people. They are R. W. Gibson, A. L. Hall, E. H. Roberts, James Blevins, Aileen Wallen, Nell Logan, Sarah Hall, Landon Rowe, Herbert Gillis, H. O. Zimmerman, Ralph Banks, Joe Perrano, and Kim Fields. These are responsible for the maintenance and running of the center. The actual governing of the center is a Teen Council which consists of 15 teen-age members of the center duly elected by the members. Mr. Gibson stated that the Teens Council has exceeded expectations in the way it has functioned. They meet regularly every two weeks on Wednesday afternoon, and have been responsible for many fine activities. Mr. Cook, the director, gave an interesting talk on his dreams for a bigger and better youth center which he hopes will materialize some time in the future. Raymond Baldwin, president of the Teen Council, expressed his thanks for the help the Woman's Club had given the youth center, and gave the views of the teenagers on the center. Mr. Gibson stressed the fact that the center is not a cure-all for delinquency but a guiding force to elevate the moral standards of recreation in this area. He said that in the last six months the community has had the lowest delinquency rate in the last 10 years. School attendance is better, the achievement level of the average student is high, and there is an increased participation in church activities. Mrs. Hall, president, thanked the speakers for their interesting and informative talks. She pledged the support of the Wheelwright Woman's Club to the Youth Center as long as it is needed. The members voted to give $100 a year to the center. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Arthur Bradbury and Mrs. Roy Souleyrette. The next meeting will be on February 8 and will be sponsored by the Fine Arts Department. Miss Stella Elkins will give a book review.

We don't believe you gain anything at all by driving long distances to shop at BIG CITY stores. Our local sources have merchandise that's just as good and costs no more.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. And suppose you don't even count the cost of gasoline and oil, car wear, parking fees, etc. Forget, too, if you like, the hazards of driving in today's heavy highway and city traffic.

But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

PRIMER FOR PARENTS

A is for ALL AMERICANS—who must not ignore the crisis in our rural schools, for 50 per cent (over 15 million) of America's children live in areas and communities served by these schools. The inadequacy of many of these schools means restricted educational opportunities for millions of our children, not just a few. B is for BACKWARD and BAD—the general condition of many of these schools. Many rural school buildings are dilapidated, unsanitary and dangerous—some were built before the Civil War. Some have leaking roofs, poor flooring, and no lights, no windows, no modern facilities of any kind. Some don't even exist, and school is held in a shed during good weather only.

C is for the CHILDREN who suffer from present rural school conditions. Thousands of these children struggle to acquire learning with outmoded or inadequate equipment—with shortages of pencils, paper, blackboards, chalk and textbooks. Thousands have teachers who have inadequate preparation for their work. D is for DANGER—the danger our country is in because of this alarming situation. For America's prosperity, security, and place of world leadership are directly dependent upon maintaining high standards of education.

E is for EDUCATION—the right of all American children—whether born in cities, villages or on farms. Education increases the power to progress, to earn, and to contribute to the common happiness and welfare. N is for the NUMBER of children who may be cheated of their full chance for education by conditions in our rural schools. N is also for the unusually large NUMBER of Teachers who have left rural teaching—and the far greater NUMBER needed to replace them.

P is for the POWER of public opinion which can help solve this dangerous situation. School conditions will be improved if the people—if you—demand it. T is for the TEACHERS who give so much, under many hardships, because they know their work is essential to the welfare of the nation. And T is for the TALENTS these Teachers use so wisely, guiding the young in the ways of knowledge and progress.

Y is for YOU—and what you can do to help. First—Check up on educational conditions and the equipment in your local schools. Second—Work with civic groups and school boards seeking to improve Teachers' working and living conditions. For the efforts of every parent—every citizen—are needed to help correct this situation. OUR TEACHERS HOLD OUR NATION'S FUTURE

Like Rugged Terrain? — Then Drive Over Ky. 119 thru East Kentucky

Vacationers who like vistas of rugged mountain terrain should follow Ky. 119 from the West Virginia line in Eastern Kentucky to Pineville, Ky.

This southerly route winds through banks of rhododendron in season beneath the towering ranges of the Appalachian mountains and is known as the Rhododendron Trail.

First town is Pikeville, 31.7 miles south and the seat of Pike county, largest of Kentucky's 120 counties. Just below Russell Fork, the Breaks of the Big Sandy River and the forest present a scene of rugged beauty.

The road next passes through Jenkins (68 miles), a coal center, and Whitesburg (85 miles), a coal and timber center. Pine Mountain, near Whitesburg, affords a splendid view of a great mountain chain.

At the 169 mile point is Cumberland, formerly the town of Poor Fork, which is the locale for the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Near here is Kingdom Come settlement and Black Mountain, highest Kentucky elevation, 4,150 feet.

Coal capital of Kentucky is Harlan, 130 miles down the road, in the heart of the finest mountain scenic area in the country. Near Harlan is a 3,600-acre state forest.

Pineville, 162 miles, was the gateway to the new west and Kentucky's eastern terminus of famous Wilderness Trail. Here Ky. 119 joins U. S. 25-E. Only 15 miles away is Cumberland Gap, Cudjo's Cave, Pinnacle Mountain and Fern Lake. Near Pineville is Pine Mountain State Park, adjacent to a 12,000-acre state forest. The park has modern cabin facilities and a large dining room. Here is presented each summer "The Book of Job," a religious drama, and the Mountain Laurel Festival, both in Laurel Cove, a natural amphitheater.

Efforts to get funds for Fishtrap have the support of Senators John Sherman Cooper and Thurston B. Morton. Cooper raised the question of construction funds for Fishtrap at the meeting of a Senate subcommittee. Senator Allen Ellender, of Louisiana, chairman, agreed that construction funds should be provided this year.

The budget calls for $68,649,000 to continue work on seven big construction projects already under way in Kentucky.

They are:

Warsaw - Markland lock and dam, $12,600,000.

Greenup lock and dam, $9,959,000.

Lock and Dam 41 at Louisville, $9,995,000.

New Richmond lock and dam, now named Capt. Anthony Mel-dahl lock and dam, $15,000,000.

Nolin River reservoir, in Edmondson county, $2,600,000.

Barren River reservoir, six miles from Scottsville, $2,175,000.

Barkley Dam at Grandview on the Cumberland River $17,100,000.

The budget approves $100,000 for advance engineering and design on the upper Green River reservoir in Green county. That project would be part of a system including Nolin reservoir, Barren reservoir, and Rough River reservoir, the latter being completed this year.

The budget authorizes $10,000 to be spent for continuation of a survey of the Big Sandy River. Perkins said $25,000 more would have been enough to complete the survey.

It also approves $15,000 for a survey of the Cumberland River near the mouth of Bunche Creek; $20,000 for a revision of the Licking River survey, and $15,000 for the Panthers Creek drainage project in Daviess county. The sum of $400,000 is provided to continue a survey of the Ohio River.

If we accept these facts, strawberries could mean several thousand dollars to the farms of Floyd county.

Dr. L. C. McCloud, a total of 12 to 15 cases had been treated a day.

Dr. Sherman related that a study conducted by the University of California had concluded that the crest of the flu outbreak has at least a month to go. The peak of the epidemic will be reached by the middle of February, Dr. Sherman pointed out.

Dr. Claude Allen reported that the Beaver Valley hospital has every bed occupied. He feels, however, that the epidemic has reached its peak and is subsiding.

Dr. Allen cited figures from cases treated last week and this, pointing out that 17 were treated last Thursday, nine Monday and only three by 2:15 p.m., Tuesday.

The Prestonsburg General hospital again closed its third floor this week as a result of what Dr. George P. Archer termed "a definite subsiding." He said that the epidemic, in the Prestonsburg area, is "over the hump."

Health Administrator Clark said that two new cases of hepatitis have also been reported this week.

STRAWBERRIES

The 1954 agriculture census shows that only 192 of the 2,532 farms in the county sold as much as $250 worth of farm products. These figures point out the need for a cash income. If we are going to make any progress on the farm something must be produced to sell.

Strawberries seem to offer one of the best opportunities for a cash income. Let us look at some of the reasons why strawberries fit our situation.

The limited amount of land suitable for row crop production makes it important to choose an intensive crop. Strawberries like tobacco give a high return per acre. Gross sale of $1,500 per acre of strawberries is not uncommon.

The labor supply is available to produce a large acreage of strawberries. Family labor is available in many cases to handle as much as one acre of strawberries. In most cases the labor force must be trained properly to pick and grade berries, but the labor is available.

Strawberries also provide a cash income in the spring, when farm families need extra cash for seeds, fertilizer and other farm expenses. Housewives in the area have made a habit of preserving strawberries for year around use. This area is also located in a favorable position to supply berries to several large cities.

If strawberries are ever to reach their potential income level, there are certain facts that must be accepted.

First of all, strawberries are not a get rich quick project. They require hard work, attention to details and carrying out certain practices on time. Some practices can't be put off until tomorrow or next week.

There will be good years and bad years, also good days and bad days on the strawberry markets. The nature of strawberries, a highly perishable product, cause prices to vary. A good market can only be built around a high quality product that is available year after year.

If we accept these facts, strawberries could mean several thousand dollars to the farms of Floyd county.

EGG SUPPLIES

Egg supplies are on the increase, seasonally, now through March. At present the price of eggs is slightly less than what you paid this time a year ago. However, they are expected to drop in supply and rise slightly in price the second quarter of this year. This situation will probably result in higher prices than the second half of 1959.

Eggs are a source of high quality protein which has not and is not expected to show the higher retail prices that other sources do.

When buying eggs, one of the best guides is to select only those which are displayed in refrigerated cases. Eggs can lose quality very quickly at room temperature.

Keep eggs clean, covered, and cold in the refrigerator at home until used. Because the egg shell is porous they will lose moisture and absorb odors and flavors if not covered.

Store eggs with the large end up because the air cell of a freshly laid egg is at that end. Otherwise the weight of the egg will rest upon the air cell causing the membrane to break. The deterioration of the egg is hastened as the yolk moves down to the shell.

To cook eggs in the shell, wash them, put them in a pan; cover completely with cold water. For soft-cooked eggs, heat water slowly to simmering. Cover pan and remove from heat. Let stand three to five minutes, the longer time for the larger number of eggs. For hard-cooked eggs bring water to simmering and simmer 20 to 25 minutes. Do not let water boil. Serve the eggs hot or put them under cold running water to chill.

Auxiliary high school has been closed, an official of the Superintendent office said.

Clark estimated that 65% of the sufferers are over 18 and the other 35% are generally concentrated in the first, second, and third grade age groups.

At McDowell Memorial hospital where the flu epidemic was termed as a little over normal, officials said a few cases had been admitted. An official of the hospital said that the majority of the cases were mild and did not require hospitalization. Cases indicating complications were admitted, the official said.

At Our Lady of the Way hospital, Dr. John J. Sherman said that the epidemic was maintaining itself and the hospital was filled to capacity. He said that together with Dr. L. C. McCloud, a total of 12 to 15 cases had been treated a day.

Dr. Sherman related that a study conducted by the University of California had concluded that the crest of the flu outbreak has at least a month to go. The peak of the epidemic will be reached by the middle of February, Dr. Sherman pointed out.

For the high court ruled that the Legislature already had authority to levy sales taxes, power to authorize payment of a veterans' bonus, and power to issue bonds to pay a debt of the Commonwealth, provided the debt does not exceed the constitutional limit of $500,000.

All the referendum vote did—under the high court's ruling—was to give voter approval to the issuance of bonds in excess of the $500,000 constitutional debt limit for the purpose of paying bonuses.

WAS THE LADY "HIPPO-ED"?

Somehow, I have a feeling that that Frenchman who cured his wife of total paralysis by trying to put her out of her misery with the sharp edge of a knife didn't do much after all. If the news reports are correct, he shook around so badly that he missed the spot and inflicted only a painful wound which sent her leaping and yelling from the bed.

I am suspicious of the seriousness of the lady's ailment because of an incident I have heard of for many years. It seems that a certain oldtimer of the region was confined to bed for seven years or longer, unable to turn from side to side, utterly helpless all the while. Then came the time when it was decided perhaps a change of scenery would be good for him, so his folks prepared to take him to another relative's home.

But they never got there with him. They loaded him onto a sled and hitched thereto a span of young and spirited mules which, en route, pinned their ears back and took off for undesignated points.

Upshot of the matter was, the invalid jumped from the sled and for a distance outran the mules.

Ever since, when folks in our neck of the woods suspected somebody they've suggested that a sleddin' might be helpful.

*One suffering from an imaginary ailment is said in this area to be "hippo-ed." That, incidentally, is a corruption of the colloquialism, "hypo," which comes from the word, "hypochondriac."

A MATTER OF CONCERN

Youngster saw this morning's headline announcing that the Russians have already launched a missile 8,000 miles into and across space to land, kerdab, in the Pacific ocean. What do you think was his concern?

"They ought to be made quit that. They'll keep on till they kill all the fish!"

I feel sure that if another exclamation point looms up before me I'll sneeze.

Music emphasized that he was anxious for the facts to be known for two reasons—to vindicate his firm as dealer in the transaction and to relieve Governor Combs of embarrassment.

"The difference," he said, "lies in extra accessories the Buick purchased for the Governor has. The Buicks bought last year for Highway Commissioner Oates and Vego Barnes had no power windows, no six-way power seats, no white-sidewall tires, an air conditioning system that was $145 less expensive, and they also lacked other optionals. Besides, trade-ins figured in last year's purchases, and dealers figure to profit from them."

The two Buicks were purchased last year for $3,749 each.

Finance Commissioner Robert R. Martin said Music-Colvin's profit would have been $1,047, had they sold the car at the regular list price suggested by the manufacturer.

Said Governor Combs: "Invitations to bid were issued, as I am now informed, and Music-Colvin Company, Prestonsburg, submitted the only bid. I was informed by Dr. Martin . . . that the bid might be considered a little high and that if I wanted to avoid delay the car could be bought by negotiation."

Governor Combs said he requested Dr. Martin to proceed in the manner described and to pay no more than usual for that type of car. He stated that Ed Music later saw him (Combs) and told him he was on his way to the Purchasing Division in the Finance Department.

The Governor added that he told Music he did not want him to make too much of a sacrifice and that he would rather pay the difference out of his own pocket rather than leave room for criticism as to the purchase of the car.

"I am perfectly willing," said the Governor, "for the newsmen to print anything that occurs in this office or in connection with this administration. We will probably make mistakes, and when we do, we will not attempt to hide them; however, this is not one of those instances."

Seems as if interest in Kentucky politics is an addiction that is visited upon the children, even into the third and fourth generation and past, if an "Arkansas Traveler," who is a direct descendant of Kentucky's seventh governor is an example.

Jack Adair, of Ft. Smith, Ark., descended from Gov. John Adair (1820-24), says an interest in Kentucky politics was "born in me."

Adair, born in Oklahoma, is a representative of a men's clothing manufacturer in Texas, whose business frequently brings him to Kentucky.

Sample Survey Scheduled By U. S. Census Bureau; Questionnaires Mailed

A sample survey to provide new data on the financing of owner-occupied and rental properties is being conducted in this area by the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce. It was announced this week by Robert A. Yerkey, Director of the Bureau's Cincinnati, Ohio, regional office.

Questionnaire forms currently are being mailed to a cross-section of 25,000 to 30,000 property owners throughout the nation. Recipients are requested by the Census Bureau to fill in the forms as soon as possible and to return them promptly in postage-free envelopes provided for that purpose.

The residential financing program is part of the 1960 Census of Housing, and will provide mortgage information comparable to data collected in the 1960 Census of Housing Inventory.

Mailing of questionnaire forms to owners of large rental properties began in November, 1959. Additional information on financing will be sought from mortgage lenders early in February, 1960, covering properties which are included in the survey.

The questionnaire currently being mailed to property owners will provide the following types of information:

1. Mortgage characteristics such as type and amount of loan, government insurance status, presence of junior mortgage, and amount of mortgage payments.
2. Property characteristics including value, purchase price, year built, year acquired, and number of dwelling units in property.
3. Owner characteristics for rental properties, including type of ownership, rental receipts, and expenditures for selected items.
4. Characteristics for owner-occupied properties include, among other items, veteran status and expenditures for property taxes, property insurance and utilities.

The Census Bureau emphasizes that the law which authorizes collection of this data guarantees that information furnished will be accorded confidential treatment and cannot be used for purposes of taxation, investigation, or regulation. The law also requires that inquiries be answered completely and accurately.

Kentucky Addiction to Politics Visited on Children, Says Adair

"I keep my eye on Kentucky politics, just as a hobby," says the tall, tanned Arkansan, who wears a Texas hat at a rakish angle that is definitely Irish.

"I've even campaigned for the Kentucky candidate of my choice on some of my business trips across this state," says Adair. "I'm a pretty good political weather-vane to watch, since I've never backed a losing candidate."

Adair explains that all this interest in Kentucky politics must have "gotten into my blood from Governor Adair, who was a pretty adept hand at politics. The governor was my great-great-great-great grandfather . . . at least four 'greats,' I lose count of 'em."

Governor Adair was the son of one of two brothers who came to America from Ireland. The governor was born in North Carolina in 1757. He came to the Kentucky backwoods in 1786 and gained note as an Indian fighter and political leader. As governor he adopted a program of internal improvements to fight hard times. In the War of 1812, he was a brigadier general commanding Kentucky volunteers at the Battle of New Orleans under Andrew Jackson.

The Adair of today has a few tales about Jackson and Governor Adair. Seems as if some of the 2,200 Kentuckians at New Orleans had been unable to bring the family squirrel rifle to battle and were weaponless. Informed of this, Jackson scoffed: "I don't believe it. I've never seen a Kentuckian without a gun, a pack of cards and a bottle of whiskey!"

Job's Troubles Are Theatrical Fare At Park

The suffering of Job will provide inspiring theatrical fare for visitors again this summer at Pine Mountain State Park, Pineville.

The outdoor Biblical drama, "The Book of Job," is to be presented June 24-Aug. 21 in Laurel Cove, now called the "Cathedral of the Hills" because of the setting and religious theme of the play.

The stage is a grassy plot beneath an 80-foot sandstone bluff and above a reflecting pool. Ten actors re-enact the drama of the oldest book in the Holy Bible. They speak, chant, intone and sing words from the King James translation. Spotlights throw giant shadows of praying figures to the top of the cliff behind.

Looking like stained glass because of their costumes and masks of brilliantly painted mosaics, the players form and dissolve into more than 100 different tableaux.

Author and director of the play, one of only two outdoor Biblical dramas in the United States, is Orlin Corey, former dramatics professor at Georgetown College, Kentucky's senior Baptist school. Designer is his wife, Irene Corey, head of the college's art department. Players are drawn from the Mask-rafters, dramatics club at Georgetown.

From this source, Corey formed the company which took his play to the Brussels Fair in Europe last year and won international acclaim.

The ancient theme of the drama, the only religious play with a text entirely Biblical, is applicable to man today. At the climax, Job, representing troubled man of all times, stands with arms extended and sings that he knows his Redeemer liveth. The lights project upon the cliff his shadow in the shape of a cross nearly 100 feet tall.

SCENIC MOUNTAIN Pinnacle Mountain near Middleboro is one of the most noted scenic promontories in the United States. It affords an excellent view of Cumberland Gap and the mountains around it.

Franklin Becomes Head Of Mountain Mission

The Scripture Memory Mountain Mission of Emmalena announces recent changes in its organization. The Rev. Garland Franklin, a native of this area, has resigned his position as director of the Mission. For twenty-seven years Rev. Franklin has served faithfully in directing the work which he founded in 1932. This spiritual ministry is carried on at Camp Nathanael and in the surrounding five counties—Knott, Perry, Letcher, Leslie and Harlan.

About 35,000 young folks are reached each year in a Bible teaching ministry. During the summer approximately 800 children attend Camp Nathanael, and 2,000 are enrolled in Bible schools in various communities. Many adults also attend Bible conferences and in communities served by the Mission's 35 workers. Many hear the Mission radio program, "The Voice of Camp Nathanael" each Saturday at 8:30 a.m., over WKIC.

Rev. Franklin has entered a new phase of ministry for the Mission. The workers have elected him president, with the freedom to engage in public relations, and a ministry of preaching and evangelism.

Rev. Robert Beckwith, of Hindman, has been elected the new director of the Mission. He has served with Camp Nathanael for the past nine years, ministering in various communities of Knott county, and is at present pastor of the Ivis Bible Church.

Hayden Is Appointed On Veterans Board; Succeeds R. R. Thomas

Thomas H. Hayden, Louisville, former state adjutant of the American Legion, assumed duties Jan. 11 as director of the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Board. He was appointed to the job by the five-man member board whose chairman is Lieutenant-Governor Wilson W. Wyatt.

Hayden is wellknown in this identified with service men's affairs for years. He succeeds R. R. Thomas, of Elizabethtown who resigned in November. Hayden was an active supporter of the Combs-Wyatt ticket.

As director he will be in charge of processing claims by Kentucky veterans against the government.

American Legion Post No. 129, Prestonsburg, that is now heading the March of Dimes drive in this vicinity, will keep members of the veterans organization informed on progress of the bonus program, it was announced this week by Tom James, publicity chairman. Any needed assistance in connection with the bonus will be extended without charge, it was said.

Rev. Robert Beckwith, of Hindman, has been elected the new director of the Mission. He has served with Camp Nathanael for the past nine years, ministering in various communities of Knott county, and is at present pastor of the Ivis Bible Church.

Former Baptist Pastor At Prestonsburg, Dies At Owensboro Residence

The Rev. Clarence H. Nicholls, former pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here, died at the age of 81 Monday at his home in Owensboro.

Retired from the ministry for several years, he held pastorates at Yelvington and Sorgho, Ky., prior to the local pastorate, Mrs. Nicholls preceded him in death several years ago.

Surviving are a son, Wendell H. Nicholls, of Bowling Green, and two daughters, Mrs. Ruth McCullough and Miss Alma Nicholls, both of Owensboro. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the Owensboro Funeral Home, and burial was made there.

Tennessee Farm Studied By Progressive Farmer; Peaches Offer Returns

In the mountain areas of Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia, peaches make the second highest return per acre of any crop. Tobacco is first, but acreage allotments limit the extent of tobacco plantings. Sheep are thrifty users of rough, steep pastures and roughages often wasted on mountain farms. They also make large returns per dollar of operating capital.

These are a few of many vital farm management points carried in a detailed "Precision Farm Planning" report in the February issue of The Progressive Farmer, according to T. P. (Pete) Head, Kentucky-Tennessee editor.

The Bledsoe brothers' farm near Philadelphia, Tennessee, was one of five selected in the South for analysis by The Progressive Farmer editors, working with experts from Doane Agricultural Service, one of the nation's leading farm management agencies. Result of the calculations by electronic computing equipment is a blueprint that the brothers, Roy and Hubert Bledsoe, can follow with confidence as the best possible for their farm. Findings on the Bledsoe farm can be used by other farmers whose general farm characteristics are similar.

Final recommendation to the Bledsoes was that they convert their 80-acre farm to sheep, alfalfa, corn, wheat-lespedeza, tobacco, corn-oats rotation on 50 rented acres. The projection indicates that peaches and strawberries, with 12 acres of peaches will make up about 60% of their annual income. Total net income from the farm if they continue their present dairy farm operation would be only half the projected net of $7,761 from a gross income of $15,600.

Both pasture feeder pig production and a confined feeder pig program seem to be likely candidates for farmers in these states. Dairying uses operating capital effectively, and has a place in farming here if care is taken to improve herd quality and step up production per cow.

Such a detailed farm management plan, based on mathematical analysis of soils, financial resources, climate, equipment, manpower, and even family personalities, has long been a dream of agricultural educators and leaders. Electronic "brain" computing machines to handle the involved calculations made the method possible. The Progressive Farmer, through the Precision Farm Planning feature, makes some of the major benefits of this technique available to farmers who wish to figure their own farm plan.

Mr. Head said the Bledsoe farm was selected because it is representative of many other mid-South farms whose owners risk disaster if they make a wrong decision on how best to get full income from their resources. Ten different income opportunities are carefully presented, by units, in the Precision Farm Planning section of The Progressive Farmer. Each farmer is invited to take a pencil and apply the information to his own farm.

DRIVING JOB

The Kentucky Department of Public Safety urges you to keep in mind that driving is a full-time job. You'll have a happier trip if you devote all your thoughts to the job at hand. In other words: slow down to a legal rate of speed; don't drive when tired; don't drink and drive; pass only in passing zones and when there is plenty of room for passing; and avoid such highway violations as jumping the light and following too closely.

MARTIN AND MAYTOWN
The Maytown Wildcats are expected to have their gymnasium "bulging at the seams" Friday night when Denzil Halbert brings his Martin Purple Flash in for the second meeting of the season between the two schools.

In the first battle at Martin, Nov. 11, last year, the Purple Flash copped a 76-48 decision. Since that time Maytown has run up the second best record in the county at 1-4 while Martin is a notch behind at 13-5. Another strong incentive for Ray Heinisch's charges is they are in the midst of a six-game winning streak.

Jim Caudill, veteran Hazard high school football mentor, will be the head coach for the East team in the annual Coaches Association East-West All-Star football game in Lexington this August. Caudill will be assisted by Phil Owen, of Mt. Sterling, and he will choose a second assistant later.

Basketball stars continued their friendly rivalry in Knoxville last Saturday night as the University of Tennessee Freshmen team out-pointed the University of Kentucky Kittens, 102-89.

Orbie Bowling, 6-10 center of Sandy Hook high school, hit 14 points for the Volunteers and Bill Booth, last season's Pikeville flash, hit the nets for 15 points.

Bob Rice, team mate of Bowling at Sandy Hook last season, was high for Kentucky with 21 points, and Richard Conley, of Oil Springs, dropped in 10 for the losers.

The rebuilding Prestonsburg Black Cats are in for two "tough" home battles this week-end as they meet Sandy Hook on Friday and tangle with Hindman on Saturday night. Bill Goebel's inexperienced quintet has lost two of its last four games in overtime periods and one by four points but suffered a humiliating 71-point loss to Pikeville.

Paul Phillip Hughes and John Gibson, ex-Prestonsburg high team mates, battled each other Saturday night as the Transylvania freshmen downed the Morehead State freshmen, 117-98. Hughes pitched in 14 for the winners and Gibson registered 9 for the Morehead frosh.

Don Sullivan, local "whistle-tooter," was the lone official in the Wheelwright-Meade Memorial game last Saturday night after one official had cancelled out. Both coaches were well satisfied with Sullivan's one-man effort.

Dewey Lake is still too clear for fish-fishing. However, the area next to the dam and in the headwaters of Big Branch is clear enough for casting.

AROUND FLOYD COUNTY

By Quentin Allen

Parents, I wonder why Junior is so interested in basketball, football, or baseball. In fact, he is so inclined to these sports that he will literally bleed for his coach.

We might well wonder what gets into Junior. Why, if his coach were to command a brickwall butting contest, then Junior would bash that wall.

This might lead us to several conclusions concerning the motivations of athletes as opposed to the motivation of the average student. We, of course, wonder how our students can utilize this superior type of "desire" in reference to his books.

We can infer that we might be more successful in academic circles, if:

1. The values placed upon athletics might be transferred to scholarships.
2. Parents might attend debates, recitals, P-T.A. meetings with as much gusto as athletic contests.
3. That parents might recognize that books might be praised as much as a ball. After all, a boy or girl should get on "the book" as well as on "the ball."

Doesn't the heroics of an athletic contest make at least one statement? When a player leaps 15 feet through the air for a "loose" ball in football we know there is a strong motivating force behind that leap.

This dashing athlete perhaps knows that dad will be proud of him, that his coach will praise him before his fellow players. His athletic achievements, his accomplishments, are recognized. He feels as though he really counts in the community for his contribution.

But, cannot an "A" in physics merit the praise, the adulation of the community as much as the touchdown, the heroic play?

It is probably the same reason that Babe Ruth will be more firmly fixed in the minds of youth than the accomplishments of Physicist Dr. Albert Einstein or Humanitarian Dr. Albert Schweitzer.

The goal of attaining the status of a Babe Ruth has more immediate possibility than intellectually initiating Einstein or Schweitzer.

The coach drives his charges to a superior goal. He wants to win and the victory is made in sacrifice to the individual. The coach is no coddler, no mamby-pamby type. He wants the job done and heaven help Junior if he chokes. He gets the most hated treatment if he does—the bench.

The coach's rule is, "Get the job done, or hit the bench." The coach doesn't deal in Freudian psychology.

So, we understand, that motivational forces are most important. We know that motivations are prerequisite to the building of an athlete, soldier, or scholar. Some may be:

1. To proper motivations ingrained into the individual, emanating from the home, the school room, every advertising and communication media.
2. The individual recognition of the motivational forces, his reaction to them, positive or negative, and his ability to succeed in response to the standard our society sets for him.

Wouldn't it be better if Junior or Little Nell were getting blood-shot eyes by using the electric lamp a mite too much than over-devoting their young lives to sports?

This is not particularly a plea to de-emphasize athletics. No, not in the least. But it is to advocate the same system of values as used by parents and coaches in motivating a boy to athletic success.

If a game is fascinating to a boy let's make geography fascinating to him. Let's put a honor to learning, for by the truths of learning shall great men arise. And, we might add, the potential devoted athletic greatness might also be utilized for future greatness as citizens.

But our youth, your youth, is exactly what parents live by, what their unrealized or realized dreams they have, their every word and action—the guidposts to the road that youth take as adults.

Our youth, it may safely be said, would be better if parents would take a greater interest in educating themselves as their children grow to school age and through it. Imitation is a great educational factor, and what a parent does, a child will imitate in some manner.

Ray Clark is contributing a creditable season to the Vanderbilt Commodores who, as of January 13, held a 9-4 record.

Clark has played in all 13 Vanderbilt games, has made 37 of 112 field goal attempts for a .334 shooting average from the floor, connected for 22 of 33 free throws for a .667 shooting mark, captured 67 rebounds for an average per game of 5.2, committed 24 fouls in being disqualified once, and has scored a total of 96 points in 13 games, averaging 7.4 per game.

Maytown Defeats Garrett, 67-60, Despite Shooting Of Bombardier Trusty

Although hot-shooting Gary Trusty connected on 14 of 27 field goal attempts and scored 29 points, Maytown staged a team victory when five regulars scored in the double figures in a 67-60 win.

However, Trusty was the shooting star of the game. He hit eight of his first eleven shots of the second half, all over 20 feet or more.

Tallent, Maytown forward, lead his team to the win, while Cooley was the runner-up in scoring with 15.

Woods Improves Scoring On Pikeville Ball Team

Vern Woods, improving in all departments of scoring after starring for a season and a half as a rebounder for the Pikeville College Bears, has raised his points-per-game average nearly a point in a week.

The only active player on the squad not to drop in any statistical item, Woods also has improved his accuracy, from both the field and the free-throw line, and his rebounds per contest. Still fourth-highest pointmaker on the squad, he has boosted his scoring mean to 13.7 points per game from 12.8 and is pushing third-place Paul Setser, whose 15.0 is up slightly from last week's 14.8, and 15.5 George Carroll.

Raising his field-goal precision from 43.7 to 46.0 per cent and his eye at the free-throw line from 71.2 per cent to 71.9, Woods has improved his rebounding also, from an average of 15.1 to 15.3 per game, the squad's best.

Donnis Butcher still leads in scoring with 21.0 points per outing, down from last week's 21.3, and in assists with 6.7, totaling 42 per cent of the whole squad's 15.9 giveaways per game. Paul Setser's 4.7 field-goal shooting on more than 20 attempts, raised from 47.2, is tops for the squad, and George Carroll's sharp .813 accuracy from the free-throw line, although a drop from his .828 in the last figures, still leads the Bearpack in that column.

WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE

Chevy's new torsion springs and Sturdi-Bilt design are changing everybody's ideas about how much work a truck can do. Last year's schedules are out—Chevrolet trucks ride faster over the rough runs to get in more trips a day! Big repair bills are no longer a problem—Chevrolet trucks soak up punishment that means downtime to other makes! And trade-in time's put off for extra thousands of miles—60 Chevrolet trucks stay new like never before!

New Dollar-Saving Prices
Step-Vans, 4-Wheel Drives, many light-duty models with automatic transmissions—all are lower priced. Prices have also been reduced on all optional V8's.

New Torsion-Spring Suspension
Eliminates I-beam shimmy and wheel fight! With torsion springs up front there's a brand-new, smoother, easier handling feel behind the wheel. New rear suspensions include wide-based coil springs in most light-duty models; tougher variable-rate leaf springs in medium- and heavy-duty models.

Electronically Balanced Wheels
Front wheels and tires are balanced at the factory. Helps make that new ride revolutionary!

New Cabs—Wider, Safer, More Comfortable
Many models are a whole 7 inches lower (without sacrificing road clearance), so it's easier to hop in and out of cabs. Still there's more space inside: more room for hats and hips, more foot room with suspended pedals. Cabs are safer, too; new build makes them 67% more rigid.

Plus Improvements All Through the Line
A new steering linkage system that cuts vibration, means better control. There's new V8 efficiency. Sixes long famous for saving. New key-turn starting. Higher, wider visibility. Talk to your Chevrolet dealer about the world's most advanced trucks.

Morton Hunt, 6'4" Betsy Layne basketballer, is a bright prospect for next year's 1960-61 edition of the Bobcats. Hunt has been averaging 10 points a game and hauling off more than his share of rebounds. Still growing, the tall center-forward is finding more confidence in himself as he gathers more experience.

Taking the proposed football stadium out of the arena of politics has been the wisest thing maneuvered in Prestonsburg since Daniel Boone used to shoot squirrels around here.

The Parent-Teachers Association is the grand-daddy of the project, directed by a young man called Byron Thompson, who is co-ordinating the enthusiastic talents of fourteen other Floyd counties.

The project, not costing the county one red cent, has received a great amount of study. Five stadiums have been the subject of much scrutiny. The best one, it was hinted, has been selected. One requirement of the stadium is 2,000-seating capacity.

George L. Shannon, professional engineer and architect, has donated his services to the P-T-A, and contributed a key job in creating the "mostest" stadium, the best stadium, for the least amount of money.

Billy Cleo Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Hale, of Martin, has been playing a nice game of golf at Georgetown College.

Last year, in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference tournament, Billy Cleo finished in second position.

Playing in the national collegiate tournament held in Indiana, the Martin high school product wound up in 60th position.

"Boy, I'm playing bad," he commented. "I couldn't wish a good shot."

The Picture of Power — Willard Adkins teeing off. Adkins, a bundle of co-ordinated muscles much resembles Ben Hogan as he launches into a ball with controlled viciousness.

This explains why Willard, on the long No. 5 hole at the Allen Beaver Valley Golf Course last year, was able to score a hole-in-one. Fan-tabulous!

Speaking of golf players, you'll never see a Father-Son duo here more fun on a golf course than Walter and Melvin Stewart.

Walter, who is about par most of the time on the Beaver Valley Golf Course, has a wonderful time ribbing Melvin. And Melvin, a student at U. K., shoots a slick game and ribs right back at Father Walter.

Another two, Thurman Hughes-Paul Hughes, get their kicks on the golf course. Thurman sights a putt with the precision of a bombardier, and makes them! Paul, after a Frank Merriwell finish last fall in the Beaver Valley open tournament, gave another spectacular performance to beat ace golfer Billy Cleo Hale the next day.

CARD OF THANKS We want to offer our deep appreciation to our many friends and relatives who were so helpful through our hours of grief upon the death of our mother, Maude Sherman.

We thank each one who sent flowers and those who sent or brought food. We also are grateful to the ministers, Rev. Don Fraley and Rev. C. C. Hall for their consoling words and to the Jones & Preston Funeral Home for its kind and wonderful service.

THE MAN NOBODY ADMIRES, THE POOR, POOR OFFICIAL

BY CAWOOD LETFORD In any sporting event... the man nobody loves is the official. The baseball fan shouts his protests and frustrations at the umpire. The referee gets a going-over in football and basketball. Does it bother the official? Max Macon, a Southeastern Conference basketball referee, says it does not. "We're hardly aware of the fan's reaction during the heat of the game," says Max "We're too busy trying to keep the game under control, and keeping the players and coaches in line, to listen to the crowd."

There is no unanimous opinion on any athletic official. Coaches rate the officials at the end of the season, and several S. E. C. cage bosses rate Max number one. Others disagree.

S. E. C. basketball officials are paid $60 a game. They're allowed eighteen cents a mile expenses to cover travel and meals. Most officials have other sources of income... another job. For Macon, officiating basketball fits perfectly into his schedule. During the long summer months, he is a minor league baseball manager. In 1960 he leaves the Los Angeles Dodger chain, to take over Columbia, South Carolina in the Cincinnati system. The winter is devoted to refereeing.

While in Nashville to broadcast the Kentucky-Vanderbilt basketball game over WHAS, I had coffee with Max. What's the toughest call in basketball, I asked. "Blocking and charging," he said. "It's the call you have to make more than any other, and it's difficult to tell at times whether the man driving for the basket with the ball is at fault, or the defensive man trying to stop him." Max went on, "That call has become such a major decision in basketball, that you see more and more dramatics. The defensive man will fall all over the floor hoping you'll call charging."

I asked about the coaches, what is their biggest gripe? "Each one usually has a pet peeve, "Max told me. "Bob Polk (the Vandy coach), claims the opposition is riding his players, laying on them. Coach Rupp's pet peeve is about infractions called against his club for walking. Most coaches repeat the same beef every game. Few get belligerent, they just want to yell about something."

I asked Max how he got into the refereeing business. "Baseball," he said. The ex-St. Louis Cardinal hurler said, "When I into pro ball, the AAU ruled me off the New Albany, Indiana, National Guard baseball team. We played a good schedule: the University of Louisville, Western. But after I was ineligible to play basketball, I just officiated. You know, Caswood," he said, "it takes a lot more for an official to go a full game than most people realize. I stay in pretty (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

PIKEVILLE, KIAC LEADERS, BEATS BEREA MOUNTAINERS, 85-75, AT BEREA SATURDAY

Pikeville, Ky., Jan. 20 — The league-leading Pikeville College Bears out-rebounded and outshot a scrappy but shorthanded bunch of Berea Mountaineers, 85-75, Saturday night at Berea.

Paul Butcher's Bears, expected to overwhelm their victims, completely dominated the backboards, but couldn't keep the ball when they got it, and fired only 72 shots to Berea's 71. They won the game on a 6% edge in field-goal accuracy, hitting 34 fielders, or 47 per cent of their attempts, while Berea sank 41 per cent with 29 buckets.

Vern Woods, taking scoring honors with 26 points, had a field day in the absence of Berea's former starting center and tallest player, Jim Dixon, who withdrew from college several days ago. Of Woods' field goals, several were on tip-ins, and he was credited with 18 rebounds, 10 under the offensive board.

Everett "Mutt" Varney, of Belfry high school fame, paced Berea with 21 points from his guard position, looping in seven fielders and making good seven of nine free throws.

The victory was the Bears' sixth against one loss in Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference play this season, and in all games was their 1th in 15 starts. Berea is 1-6 in loop games and 4-7 in all contests.

In their next action the Bears will travel to Montgomery, W. Va., Jan. 27, to face the Golden Bears of West Virginia Tech, who have averaged 108 points per game in their first 15 contests. The game, scheduled last summer, was spotted by accident exactly in the middle of Pikeville's four-day final-examination period.

Branham Participates In Training Exercise

Grafenwohr, Germany — Army Sgt. Frank Branham, 26, son of Joe Branham, of Dwale, Ky., is participating in a six-week field training exercise with the 3rd Armored Division in Grafenwohr, Germany. The exercise is scheduled to be concluded Feb. 10.

825,000 Drink Fluoridated Water

Frankfort, Jan. 18 (Spl.) — More than 825,000 Kentuckians are now drinking fluoridated water, the State Department of Health reports.

In the agency's report for last fiscal year, the Division of Dental Health said fluorides are being added to the water supplies of 33 Kentucky communities and natural fluorides occur in Hart and Grayson counties.

During the past 20 years there has been a gradual decrease in the number of children needing dental care, the division said, adding:

Last year 24,626 children were provided clinical services by agency clinics held in 115 counties and 57,952 dental operations were performed.

The division works to improve dental health in children throughout of state through consultation to counties, assistance in organizing and maintaining dental clinics, encouraging fluoridation of water supplies and cooperation with state and local dental societies.

The Advisory Committee of the Kentucky State Dental Association helps guide the activities of the division and acts as liaison between the association and the health department. Similar committees are being formed in counties with local dentists acting as consultants to county health departments.

DEEP DRILLING FOR OIL OFFERS HOPE FOR AREA

Deep oil — Is it likely to turn Kentucky into a major oil-producing state?

The next 10 years should tell. The shallow-oil production that brought oil men scurrying to the state has in the last few months experienced a decided decline.

Deep oil could spark a recovery.

If it does, the recovery could be more dramatic and more important than the highly publicized Green county boom that gave Kentucky oil its 1958 shot in the arm.

A prediction of oil's future can be made with about the same accuracy as a prediction of doomsday.

But there is reason to believe that deep oil underlies Kentucky, despite the fact that little of it has yet been found in commercial quantities.

Here's why: Geologists experienced in both Kentucky and Texas have become quite certain in recent weeks that the Knox geological layer found beneath Kentucky soil is equivalent to the prolific Ellenburger formation found in Texas.

There is, however, an important difference. And it is that difference that is encouraging the serious oil explorer to sink more and more money into Kentucky drilling.

The difference, simply, is that a driller in West Texas might go from 11,000 to 16,000 feet to penetrate the Ellenburger pay zone, while the same driller in Kentucky might hit the Knox zone anywhere from 1,500 to 6,000 feet.

Viewed in the cold light of economics and remembering that oil-well drilling costs are computed on a per-foot basis, the interest in Kentucky Knox zone is easily understandable.

Operator's attracted by Kentucky's shallow-oil potential now are testing the deeper Knox level in East Kentucky, West Kentucky and points in between.

Test results, while seldom revealed, apparently have been encouraging in a number of locations. Some operators who failed to find commercial oil at the top of the Knox, are probing still deeper, confident that the Knox—which often runs as much as 5,000 feet in depth—does have lucrative pay zones to offer.

Extensive geological exploration now taking place at other geological levels could be just as rewarding in the next decade.

The 1960's should see these developments in Kentucky Oil:

1. The opening up of major oil fields in East Kentucky, in an area stretching from the Cumberland National Forest to the state's eastern boundary. Look for Magoffin and Breathitt counties to become big producers.

2. With the coming of talked domestic refineries will have an of controls on crude oil imports opportunity to step up production. This should lead to an extension of Kentucky's oil gathering pipelines, especially into the South Central Kentucky counties bordering Tennessee.

3. State legislation to regulate oil activities should provide for conservation measures that will extend oil production and prolong the life of oil fields. Proper conservation controls will attract major oil companies more interested in the long haul than in ordinary recovery methods to seem.

4. The application of improved secondary-recovery methods to seemingly played-out oil fields should revive some abandoned fields and add considerably to the state's over-all oil output. A new well-fracturing process recently developed by Gulf Oil researchers can be quite meaningful to Kentucky.

THEY DIED... NEEDLESSLY

Abraham Lincoln's boy died of a malarial infection. William McKinley died of peritonitis produced by a bullet wound. Calvin Coolidge's son died of an infection that developed in a blistered foot. A few dollars worth of drugs—drugs that we take for granted today, but that didn't exist years ago—would have prevented these deaths. That's why...

Washington's Coat Lining Displayed At Old Capital

Frankfort, Jan. 18 (Spl.) — A lining—all that is left of a fur coat worn by George Washington at Valley Forge—is on display in the Kentucky Historical Society Museum at the Old State House here.

The coat was worn by the first President during the bleak winter of 1777-78. After passing from his possession, the coat was kept by the Washington family for many years between two mattresses. But eventually the moths took their toll. The lining was then ripped out and the fur part of the coat was burned.

The lining was presented to the Society in 1924 by Miss F. May Washington, Newport, Ky., a great-grand niece of General Washington. Miss Washington was a descendant of Samuel Washington, a brother of the general.

The coat had come into her hands by way of another Samuel Washington, a great nephew of the general; Samuel's son, John T. Washington, and his daughter Mrs. Betty Washington Taylor, a sister of the donor.

good shape, with baseball and golf, and hunting. But before the basketball season starts, I do a lot of running in the basement.

Would Max like anything about his job changed? "Roy Mundorff assigns officials to work the S. E. C. games," said Max. "Take this Kentucky-Vandy game. I've never seen the fellow I'm to work with. That's tough on both of us. When you work a few games with a guy, you get to function as a team. We know what the other is going to do, and where he is on the court. I think officiating would be better and more consistent if officials were assigned in pairs. Then grade us as a team. You wouldn't expect two players to meet at tip-off for the first time then play together, would you?"

I wouldn't. And those are some of the opinions of Max Macon, basketball official... the other side of the story.

BURCHETT FAMILY

Another letter from Mrs. Beulah R. Walffenstein, Hubbard, Ore., who is compiling a history of the Ferguson and allied families.

"Since my letter appeared in your paper I have received four or five letters on the Hamilton, Hannah and Lemaster lines and they have been most willing to assist in my work and all have requested copies of the finished history, which they shall receive without charge. Unfortunately, our findings have been much alike and it seems we must pool our notes and try to work out new searches.

"One clue which is new and most exciting is the fact that our Catherine Lemaster seems to have been born in South Carolina. I am sorry though that none of the Lemaster families living in Johnson county have answered my queries as I now know that at least one of Catherine's brothers came to Johnson county (then Floyd) to settle and according to my telephone directory, some still reside in Johnson county, or nearby.

"Mrs. Stella Fyffe was kind enough to send some notes on the Fyffe family for which I am most grateful. Now if others with other specific records on this and allied families will contact me I feel that this line in particular can be fully compiled with no exclusions. Even families without records can assist by referring me to "Aunt Della" or "Uncle Bill," etc. someone within the family who recalls the past history or has possession of the old family bible.

"I have before me the family group of Joseph Fyffe son of John and Fannie Fyffe. He was born in 1818 and his wife, Martha (Skaggs) Fyffe, daughter of John and Judah (Wood) Skaggs, was born 1825. Death Dates are needed for both Joseph and Martha. For Martha's parents John and Judah.

"Joseph and Martha had the following children and birthdates, death dates and names of their spouses are requested: James, Mary, Francis, Elizabeth, Nancy, John, George.

"Samuel Fyffe also son of John and Fannie (Burchett) Fyffe, was born in 1814 in Wilkes county, North Carolina. He married a Hannah... somewhere in Virginia enroute to Kentucky about 1831 or 32. Descendants of this couple are urged to contact me with information to be included in the forthcoming publication.

"The following families of Johnson county, Kentucky, are also urged to contact me with information on their families and ancestors: Theodore Burchett, Alta, Hysell, Jay, Jess, and Ray Burchett. These families are descended from the same parentage as Fannie or Francis (Burchett) Fyffe referred to earlier. Someone in these families have a clue or key to the history of this family and without cooperation of same, the Burchett portion of our history will be incomplete and inaccurate to say the least. Other Burchett families residing in your county are also a part of this family and their cooperation is earnestly requested.

"One last problem to lay before you. In my research I have located records on many, many Ferguson and Williams families, particularly those living in Morgan county. I have traced this line, as an earlier letter stated; to the emigrant ancestor William Ferguson, father of Richard Ferguson, and grandfather of Ambrose Ferguson; and so on down the line to the present generation. All, or almost all of these families are in my records and quite complete. Not so with Ambrose Ferguson, I have record of his marriage 19 April, 1832, to Phoebe (Polly) Williams. I know he was born in 1810, I also know he had a son Henry Jay Ferguson, born 1838 at Moon, Morgan county, Ky. Still I am unable to find other children, I cannot locate the death date of Ambrose and wife Polly nor do they appear in the 1850 and later census records. Can anyone at all, descendants or otherwise, give me the names of his other children, birthdates if possible, death dates and names of spouses. Can anyone tell me what happened to Ambrose and family, why of all his line they cannot be found in the records?"

BLAIR FAMILY

A request from Mrs. Stephen T. Davis, Moundale Ave., Winchester, Ky., is for the parentage of Jesse Blair, Floyd county resident in the early part of the last century.

"I am anxious to find the parentage of Jesse Blair who had a land grant, Oct. 29, 1816, in Floyd county, Ky.," Mrs. Davis writes... I think he married Dorothea Ellington. David Ellington had a grant same day, same amount in Floyd county. I believe that Dorothea Ellington was David's daughter."

Anyone who may be able to assist Mrs. Davis will find their efforts appreciated.

PREHISTORIC INDIANS

Martha A. Rolinson, of the University of Kentucky, Lexington, is interested in artifacts of the prehistoric Indians of Kentucky.

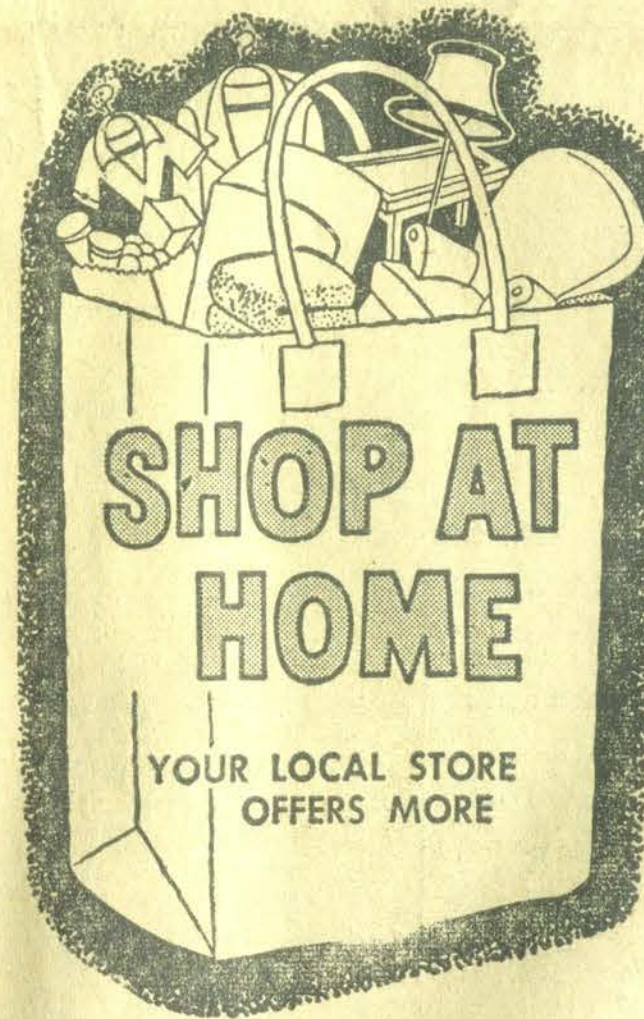

She writes:

"A present we know that the earliest people in Kentucky were hunters living in the area about 10,000 years ago. They are best known by a specialized spear point they used in hunting. These points were fluted or grooved on one or both sides as shown by those on the enclosed sheet. I am trying to obtain as much information as possible about these people and their specialized tools—how many there are, where they were found, who owns them at present and what they are like.

"If you have spear points such as these or others which are similar, or know of anyone in the area who has points of these types, I would appreciate it if you would contact me, by mail, at the University of Kentucky Museum of Anthropology, Lexington, Ky."

1. HONEST VALUES
2. AMPLE SELECTION
3. INSTANT DELIVERY, SERVICE AND ADJUSTMENT
4. MORE PERSONAL AND FRIENDLIER TREATMENT
5. SAVING OF TIME
6. RELIEF FROM COSTLY TRAVEL
7. FREEDOM FROM ROAD HAZARDS
8. ELIMINATION OF COSTLY PARKING PROBLEMS
9. AVOIDANCE OF JOSTLING CROWDS
10. THE CHANCE TO BUILD A BETTER COMMUNITY BY PUTTING YOUR DOLLARS TO WORK HERE

We don't believe you gain anything at all by driving long distances to shop at BIG CITY stores. Our local sources have merchandise that's just as good and costs no more.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. And suppose you don't even count the cost of gasoline and oil, car wear, parking fees, etc. Forget, too, if you like, the hazards of driving in today's heavy highway and city traffic.

But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

Lexington, Ky. — Does your family have a "money problem?" Do you have trouble finding the money for those "extras" you want and need? The main problem often lies in how the money is spent, rather than in the size of income, according to Frances Stallard, University of Kentucky Extension specialist in home management.
