This Town-- That World

We read a lot about ententes, these days. It's not their ententes but their purposes that interest us.

TV TROUBLES

The story is told that a drunk was reduced to tears as he watched a certain television commercial. "If I'd ever dreamed sh'd be the fate of that aspirin I wouldn't have swallowed it 'r' the world!" he wailed.

France, Britain and Egypt thought they were having trouble with the Suez Canal. They should see what we Americans have to put up with over the alimentary canal.

IN HONOR OF DOCTORS

March 30 was Doctors' Day, a time for recognition of those who are seldom appreciated fully until we are so sick we can't even say "Thanks." Voltaire paid these who serve fitting honor when he wrote "No man is more worthy of esteem than a physician who, having studied nature from his youth, knows the properties of the human body, the diseases which assail it and the remedies which will benefit it; who exercises his art with caution and who gives equal attention to the rich and the poor."

FISHING REPORT

John Warrick, of Prestonsburg, was the only Floyd county fisherman known to have come home from Cumberland Lake with a fish after having a go at the lake's famous walleye run over the weekend. He landed an eight-pounder.

MRS. CONNORS VISITS PARK

State Hospitality Head Meets With Drama Group To Discuss Outdoor Play

Mrs. Katherine Connors, hospitality chairman for the state, met Saturday evening with the board of directors of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association and voiced enthusiasm for the project to present a drama at the park here on the life of the area's pioneer heroine.

Mrs. Connors, who was instrumental in initiating and the promotion of the Pineville and Bardonia plays presented last summer, toured the Jenny Wiley State Park and viewed the proposed amphitheatre site.

"The Wiley story lends itself tremendously to a successful drama," she said. She noted that Paul Green, author of Wilderness Road and other successful outdoor plays, had approved of the suitability of the story for presentation.

Discussion at the meeting, held in the Municipal building, centered around effective organization, the employment of an outside promotion specialist and budgetary problems.

Green, and Kermit Hunter, author of "Unto These Hills" and Chuck Jack, both outdoor plays presented in North Carolina, have indicated their interest in writing the drama.

HOUSING BODY NOTES INTENT ON PROPOSAL

Commissioners Assure Low-Rent Housing Plan To Be Expedited Here

The new Prestonsburg Housing Commission, appointment of which last week created a furor such as Prestonsburg has seldom experienced, announced this week that it has unanimously agreed on low-rent public housing and has signed all necessary papers in connection with the project.

First meeting of the commission with Mayor Edward B. Leslie broke up in sharp disagreement last week, but a special meeting Monday night was marked by a friendly, cooperative spirit.

Next day, the four housing commissioners—W. A. Spradlin, chairman, J. O. Webb, Clabe Bingham and Otis Cooley—and Dr. Edward B. Leslie, mayor and ex-officio member, signed the following prepared statement:

"The undersigned have been appointed by the Mayor of the City of Prestonsburg as members of the Prestonsburg Municipal Housing Commission. Our appointment has been approved by the City Council. We met last night and signed all the necessary papers in connection with the low-rent housing project. These papers are being mailed to the Public Housing Administration, Atlanta, Georgia.

"We plan to push this project and will do all in our power to see that it is a success.

"We will need, however, the cooperation of all the citizens of Prestonsburg in order that this project will not fail, and we call upon all good citizens to give us their cooperation."

Joe Hobson, who was named executive director for the commission, added:

"This statement has my unqualified and enthusiastic support."

Commented Mayor Leslie after Monday's meeting:

"It looks like we're going to get this project. We've mailed a heavy volume of necessary matter to Atlanta—everything needed to make (See Story No. 5, Page 8)

PIKE MISHAP CLAIMS TWO

Floyd Rescue Squad Assisting In Efforts To Find River Victims

The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad joined the Pike County Rescue Squad this week in searching the Big Sandy River in the vicinity of Millard, Pike county, for the bodies of two men who were drowned there last Sunday afternoon.

The victims were Wade Akers, 32, and Randall May, 33, both of the Grapevine section of Pike county.

The two disappeared about 3:30 p.m. Sunday when an auto in which they were riding slipped from a low-water bridge. A third man, Billy Bevins, 22, swam to safety. He was jailed at Pikeville on a drunk driving charge but was later released under bond.

The auto was recovered late Sunday, about 20 feet below the bridge. Its doors were open and there was no trace of the two missing occupants. The bridge from which the auto slipped is near the junction of the highways leading on the one hand to Elkhorn City and the other to Grundy, Virginia.

The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad had 13 men working on the river at and below Millard through the day Monday. Six continued the search Tuesday, and about the same number was there Wednesday. About two miles of the river had been covered by Tuesday night, but a five-foot rise from the melting of heavy snows in headwaters of the river hampered the searchers.

CITY LAND-USE STUDY SHOWS PLANNING LACK

Over 60 percent of the incorporated area of Prestonsburg is vacant land, a study of land use made by the Prestonsburg Planning Commission shows. The exact percentage, 60.1, constitutes 506.16 acres of the total 842 acres in the corporate limits.

The Commission found, too, that the improved taxable property constituted 28.1 percent of the land area with 11.8 percent non-taxable property, chiefly churches, schools, other public structures and streets.

The Commission said, "Because of rising costs and additional service demands upon the municipalities, Prestonsburg cannot economically tolerate the amount of vacant land comprising 506 acres within the corporate limits."

The Commission, which was appointed several months ago and composed of Tom Dingus, James Camica, Frederick A. James, W. V. Bunting and Judith D. Archer, noted that vacant lands bring relatively low taxation revenue. The chief burden of taxation lies heavily on the improved 23.1 percent of the improved property.

The study, titled, "Existing Land-Use Analysis, Prestonsburg, Kentucky," was made possible by the joint financial

SCHOOL BREAK CHARGE MADE

Irick Implicates Two Others; Officers Busy With Breaking Probes

Thirteen persons, including three juveniles, have been arrested or jailed, or both, since last Wednesday on charges connected with Floyd burglaries.

Four were jailed by State Detective Chester D. Potter. Ronald G. Stone was booked on a charge of receiving stolen property, while Jimmy Branham, Orris Hall and a juvenile were listed for breaking and entering. They were accused in Right Beaver Creek breaks. Tom Irick, whom Potter jailed Tuesday, was accused of breaking into the shop of the Betsy Layne school several weeks ago.

A statement ascribed to Irick implicated Mitchell Goble and Keith Parsons as his accomplices in the Betsy Layne break.

Accused of breaking into the school at Beaver last week, James Little, Donald Ray Tackett and Robert Tackett were jailed by Deputy Sheriffs Joe Wheeler Lewis and Harold Lewis. They admitted the break, Deputy Sheriff Lewis said. He added that two juveniles were implicated.

Three men were jailed Monday by Deputy Sheriffs J. Hall and H. Johnson in connection with a break into Clark's Laundry & Dry Cleaners at Wheelwright. They were listed as Eugene Counts, accused of breaking and entering, and James Johnson and Woodrow Elkins, as his accomplices.

Scouting Advantages Discussed By Walters At Council Meeting

Advantages of the Scouting program for boys was stressed by Walter P. Walters, president of Lonsome Pine Council, at a meeting of the executive board held Monday in the offices of the Bethlehem Steel Mines Corporation, Jenkins.

"It is highly probable," Walters said, "that many of the problems facing employers in hiring personnel, and with young people in preparing to begin work, would be solved if more of our youth were prepared for the responsibilities of life. The advantages of the Scouting program in developing self-reliance and good citizenship should be extended to more boys, and this can only be possible if we have enough men willing to help these boys get the program of Scouting."

George Leatherman, Council camping and activities chairman, reported that there are five major projects under way in the Council this year: the Jubilee Jamboree at Colorado Springs, from July 18 to August 1, the Council Camporee at Elk Garden, Virginia, from July 22 to July 24, the Scout Expositions, Scout trip to Philmont Scout Ranch, and summer camp at Camp Shawnee.

BANK HERE SPEARHEADS DRIVE FOR FUND TO HELP CHILDREN ORPHANED BY MINE TRAGEDY

Floyd countians as of Wednesday morning had contributed approximately $300 toward the establishing of a scholarship fund for the more than 100 children left fatherless by the deaths of 18 coal miners in the recent mine disaster near Logan, W. Va.

The First National Bank here is spearheading the move to raise funds in this county. In a letter addressed to various citizens and business firms Burl Spurlock, president of the bank, pointed out:

"We cannot help but recall a disaster of our own which snuffed out the lives of 28 school children in February of 1958. At that time a citizens committee was formed to receive funds to help defray expenses and meet the needs of families affected, some of whom were of less fortunate circumstances. During that fundraising campaign the people of West Virginia contributed approximately $2,372 to help meet the many needs then prevailing. One of these contributions, in the amount of $150, came from Logan high school, Logan, West Virginia."

Contributions may be mailed to Judge C. C. Chambers, trustee, Logan, W. Va., or to The First National Bank here which will forward contributions to Judge Chambers.

His "Tender Heart of a Healer" . . .

Veteran Physician Is a Man Of Plain Words, Many Ideas

Quentin Allen

Dr. Mark Dempsey, of Garrett, has been practicing medicine for more than 50 years, and has formed strong ideas concerning the health problems of the nation.

He is a man with frost in his hair, a social-philosopher's mind, and the tender heart of a healer. He is a man who could have gleaned a fortune from a medical practice but chose, instead, the rewards of giving people healthy bodies in lieu of materialistic gains.

Dr. Dempsey is a vigorous man, although he is 85. He speaks in the clear, strong tones of conviction after considered thought. He is plain in his beliefs:

- (1) He is a New-Dealer Democrat, and makes no bones about it.
- (2) He would not allow one penny of state relief to people who smoke and drink.
- (3) He believes that people should have free medical care.
- (4) He believes that the government should spend the tax money on our own people instead of squandering it on "drunk Frenchmen or grape-stomping Italians."
- (5) Every man, regardless of who he is, should be trained to do skilled work.

Dr. Dempsey is a plain, working man who has more aspirations to serve his fellowman by his (See Story No. 1, Page 7)

Only one report has been made by a community chairman to date, Miss Ella Noel White, executive secretary of the chapter, said. The total contributions reported stood at only $1,300.

Miss White expressed the fear that unless citizens of the county give the Red Cross better support Red Cross services to the people may be curtailed.

NEW PLANT PLANS MADE FOR VALLEY

Chemical Firm Says Industrial Installation Scheduled In Lawrence

A new industry in the general vicinity of the Kentucky Power Company's proposed power-generating plant in Lawrence county became a certainty a few days ago with the formal announcement of plans by the Pittsburg Chemical Company.

The power firm's plant and the chemical company's installation will each be known as the Big Sandy Plant.

The Pittsburg Chemical plant will be located six miles south (above) Catlettsburg, on the Big Sandy, between the power-generating plant location and the Leach plant of the Ashland Oil & Refining Company.

It will be on a 300-acre tract of the Bryant farm which the company bought for a reported $100,000 about six weeks ago and will produce activated carbon from coal.

Planned to cost $4,000,000, the plant will be completed next year. It will at first employ about 40 persons.

The company's activated carbon division is the nation's largest producer of granular, activated carbons used in a wide range of purifying and decolorizing applications. Electric ovens will be among the features of the new plant.

Pittsburg Chemical is a new and wholly-owned subsidiary Pittsburg Coke & Chemical Company.

PUPIL TRANSPORTATION COST LOW IN SECTION

The cheapest school bus transportation per pupil in the state is in the eastern section of Kentucky, according to statistical information released recently by John L. Vickers, director, Division of Pupil Transportation, Department of Education.

Harlan county, where the most difficult and dangerous transportation problems exist, leads the state in low cost per pupil. The school system there, in the school year 1958-59, transported its pupils at a cost of $14.64 each. Only one county, Boone, not in the mountains, was listed in the seven lowest per pupil transportation costs. Floyd county was seventh with a per pupil cost of $20.84. This county daily transported an average of 6,735 pupils.

Boyd county took second place in low per pupil cost, according to the Vickers study. There the cost was $18.91 with an average of 2,666 pupils transported daily. Bell county, adjoining Harlan and with the same problems of terrain, transported its pupils at a cost of $18.92 each to take third place as the state's third lowest. Bell transported 4,476 pupils daily.

One of the lowest transportation costs was by one of the poorest counties in the state, not only in low cost per pupil but in per bus mile. Menifee county transported its pupils at a cost of $20.11 each or .087 cents per bus mile. The county hauled an average of 1,063 pupils daily with 25 vehicles.

Knox county took fifth place, with a per pupil cost of $20.37 with a per bus mile cost of .336 cents. It had 36 vehicles and transported an average daily number of 4,694 pupils.

Boone county transported its pupils at a cost of $20.38 each with the use of 34 vehicles. The average daily number of pupils transported was 3,440 at a cost of .223 cents.

The highest per pupil cost was in Harrison county where the pupil cost ran to $51.14. Following closely behind Harrison were Wayne, (See Story No. 2, Page 8)

FREE PHONE PLANS MADE

Gearheart Announces Contract To Provide Toll-Free Service

The Harold Telephone Company has negotiated with the Inland Steel Company a contract which will afford free telephone service between the communities of Melvin and Wheelwright, it was announced this week by Paul R. Gearheart, president of the Harold firm. Without the agreement, tolls would have been charged between the two places, since each is on a separate phone system.

Gearheart also said that within six months after the Harold Telephone Company's exchange at Melvin is installed an engineering study will be made to determine the feasibility of offering free service to the McDowell area. Construction of the exchange at Melvin was begun Feb. 15, by the I. W. Routh Construction Co., Greensboro, N. C., but work has been hampered by bad weather.

When the exchange is completed it will use seven numbers rather than two letters and five numbers, it was said. The prefix figures will be 938, it was said.

(An Editorial — No. 3 in a Series)

In a few days the Big Sandy region again will make its plea to Congress for more funds which are necessary to assure headwaters reservoirs and flood control. Fishtrap Dam is, just now, of deepest concern.

It is difficult, almost impossible, for us who know what has happened to us in the past and what may happen again to understand why the federal government does not make available, now and without further delay, all the money needed for this work.

Human needs apparently are recognized in Washington. Well, we of the Big Sandy valley are human. And our needs include the need to survive. What are they waiting for?

Water Is the Answer

Big Sandy river industrialization, diversified beyond the area of coal mining, has already begun, and that is good.

The Kentucky Power Company's big coal-burning power-generating plant will be built near Fallsburg, in Lawrence county.

This centralization of industry in the lower reaches of the river is not wholly because that area is near other heavy industrial plants and centers of population.

Two major objections have been raised to river canalization in the past: the cost of the project and the low ratio of benefits in relation to total cost.

It might be pointed out that, although all construction costs more today than it did fifty years ago when canalization was first talked, even more than it did five or ten years ago, the fact that slackwater is thrown up the Big Sandy to a point a few miles below Louisa by the Greenup dam eliminates some of the cost of construction in the lower part of the river.

And as for ratio of benefits through use of the long-talked-of waterway to cost—what yardstick can be used to measure that? Who can say how much the waterway would be used as an artery of traffic?

The answer to this question about benefits should be pretty well obvious to all, now that the Big Sandy is reaping some of them, even though the only extra water supply and navigation facility are furnished by an Ohio River dam located many miles away.

Decline of Role as Lord, Master Started As Man Picked Up Dishrag

By Nevyle Shackelford (In the Lexington Leader)

Some authorities say the decadence of man in the role as lord and master of his castle began when he first started mowing his whiskers.

I believe differently: I believe the decline of man's household authority began when he first picked up a dish rag. For, in so doing, he violated a domestic tenet strong as the Mosaic Law and fractured a precedent older than Methuselah.

Whether the first overt act of man picking up a dish rag was committed out of pity for an overworked wife; from coercion, or for whatever reason, the results have been the same. The unfortunate deed revealed a chink in his armor against masculine domesticity.

Now it is most commendable for a man to take up the dish rag in cases of sickness or when his wife is otherwise incapacitated. Where he lost out, however, was letting her see him do it. Psychologically constructed as she is to be a clinging vine around a redoubtable treads of manly strength, she was at once disillusioned upon seeing him in a frilly apron with his arms buried to the elbows in sweet smelling detergents.

cell finances and made the suggestion that 100 club chairmen should serve for an indefinite period rather than limiting the chairmanship to one year, in order to preserve continuity of the 100 Club work.

Those in attendance were: David A. Zeeger, Jenkins; Cecil Sherman, West Van Lear; Herb Charles, Hazard; Sam Garnett, Hazard; Morgan Oze, Hazard; Charlie Johnson, Hazard; Jack Picklesimer, Jenkins; George Leatherman, Wheelwright; B. F. Reed, Drift; Lincoln Kiser, and H. L. Stuart, Jr., Big Stone Gap, Va.; H. E. Greer, Hazard; Walter P. Walters, Pikeville; Shafter Davidson, Jenkins, and G. W. Lockin, Wheelwright.

Also present were Byron F. Pennebaker, Scout executive, Lone-some Pine Council, and Jack Hodge and Rex S. McCoy, district scout executives.

"The early pattern of development in Prestonsburg was typically a sprawling, rambling type of growth guided only by the river, the steep hills and later by highway and railroad facilities," the Commission points out.

Residential land use occupies 175.86 acres, or 20.9 percent of the total incorporated area. These areas are divided into four sections: The central, the West Prestonsburg, Porter addition and Lancer areas.

The Commission particularly noted evidence of deterioration in the central residential sections:

"This old neighborhood is showing signs of decay caused by frequent flooding, overcrowding of lots, mixed land uses and outright division by the spreading of business places along Lake Drive. One such area near the Floyd county courthouse and fronting South Lake Drive has run the full cycle of urban decay.

The Commission was highly critical of the land use in the West Prestonsburg residential areas, saying that mixed land uses, overcrowding of lots and lack of building standards are showing ill effects in this area. In Lancer, however, the area is, generally speaking, a very desirable residential section except for undesirable street design and lot arrangement.

Prestonsburg's 190 business establishments occupy 30.64 acres, or 4.1 percent of the corporate area. The heaviest concentration of business is not in the central business area but fronting along Lake Drive for four miles and in a segment of Court street. The group envisioned a choking of the major highway through town if continued expansion along it progresses as in the past. It is recommended that expansion be encouraged along Arnold avenue and First avenue but only after being implemented by street redesign and new street accessibility.

Churches, schools, municipal, county, state and federal land-uses occupy 22 acres in Prestonsburg or seven percent of the developed area. The Commission says that the amount of public land should approximate only five acres per 100 persons in the population. There are open tracts of land which could be converted into parks and playgrounds, the group found.

Excluding railroad right-of-way, industry occupies 17.87 acres or six percent of the developed area, the Commissioners found, but the industries are scattered. There are many suitable sites for industry if the flood problem could be alleviated.

Streets and alleys comprise 68.2 acres or 8.1 percent of the total land area. This is 21 percent of the developed area.

"It should be noted that the past pattern of residential development has been to build only facing or fronting access to the interior of many blocks," without taking into consideration provisions to provide access to the interior of many blocks," the Commissioners wrote. "This condition discourages the development of block interiors and results in waste of usable residential lots."

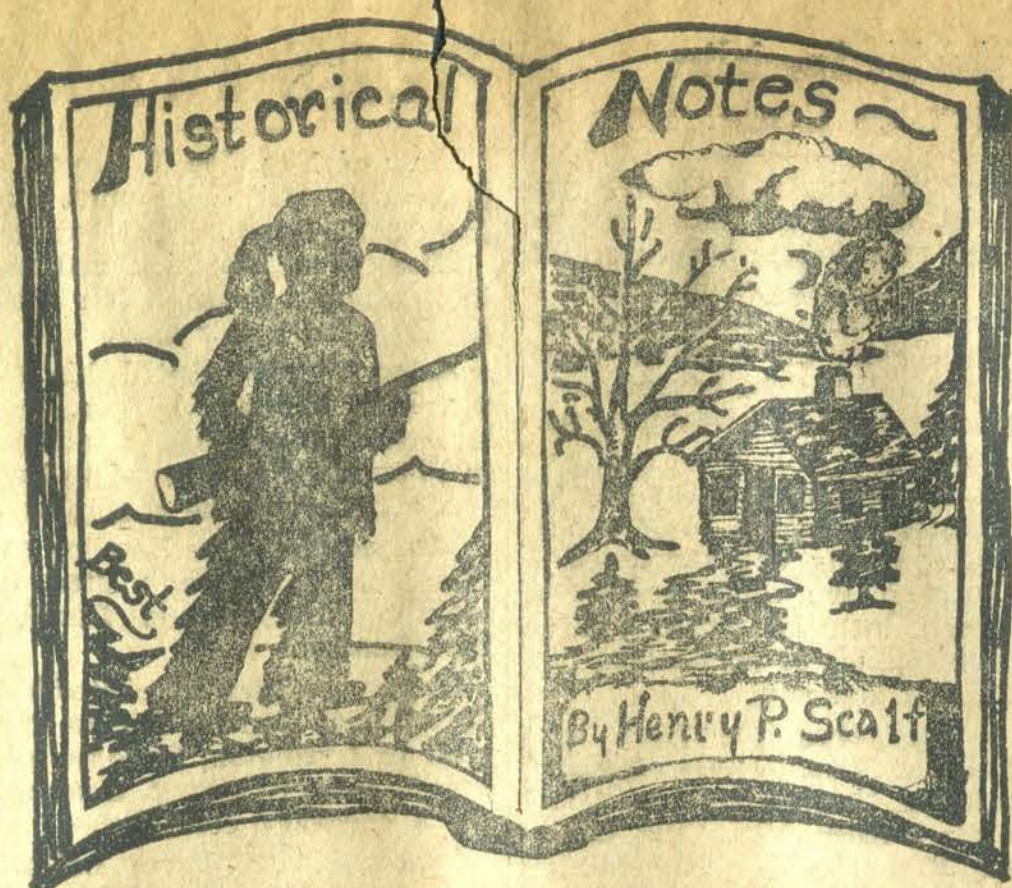

The Commission points out that the study touches only upon some of the highlights of the land-use problem in Prestonsburg.

"Incidentally this report was not written merely to find fault, for surely there are some areas within the city of Prestonsburg that achieve good standards," the group said. "The fact that thousands of communities in the United States have adopted a planning program to stop the spread of urban blight, testified to this truth. Prestonsburg is no exception."

The Commission recommended the solicitation of citizens understanding, implementation of the enforcement of the recently adopted zoning ordinance, adoption of a future land-use plan, identification of needed municipal projects, adoption of subdivision regulations, and an analysis of the extent of urban blight.

COX FAMILY

The contribution of Mrs. W. H. Welch, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on the Cox family of Virginia and Eastern Kentucky is concluded this week.

"I feel very sure that Joshua Cox who left a will, dated April 22, 1742, probated June 8, 1747, in Lancaster county, Pa., and his wife Mary Rankin had more children than I can find. The ones I have are: Richard, the eldest son; John, who married Margaret Davis; Mary, who married John Craig (the same John Craig who was captured by the Indians); Joshua, Jr., who probably located in Surrey county, N. C.; David, Thomas, William, and Samuel.

"The eldest son, Richard, presumably born about 1726 since he was presumably near the age of 21 when his father died, was left administrator of his father's will along with his mother, Mary.

"This will is filed in Will Book 1, page 148, Lancaster county, Pa. Witnesses were Andrew Lapp and Robert Jordan, John, David and Joshua were in the Indian wars from 1756 to 1763 and I believe received land for their services from the King of England. They came to the upper Valley of Virginia with Byrd and served under him with many of their kinsmen and neighbors from Pennsylvania. His son, James, was born at Fort Chiswell (the father James became captain of the Regulators), Feb. 24, 1763. He was the ancestor of most of the Morgan-Wolfe county Coxes. John, the mill owner in your section, was his son.

"When John came to Kentucky he brought several slaves who had been deeded to him by his father, James Cox, in Grayson county, Va. Two of them, Barney and London (Lun), went with him to Baltimore, Md., to pick up the mill stones for his mill.

"As it was told to me by my great-grandmother, Anne Cox Day, they carried them on the back of horses on platforms until they got to the mountains and the up-grade caused the stones to slide. They cut saplings and rolled the stones over the mountains by hand. Perhaps they took others along with them but Barney and Lun went with John. Alice, a wonderful colored woman, (a granddaughter of Lun or Barney, I don't remember which) was still working for my grandfather Day when I was a little girl. When the slaves were freed John Cox gave Barney and Lun each a farm. The deeds are recorded in Floyd county, Ky.

"My grandfather Day was interested and started compiling records on this family before the death of his mother, whom I knew for many years. She lived to a very old age. She had a clear memory. As a little boy my grandfather Day had been taken by his parents to visit the Cox relations in Grayson county, Va. One time they stayed there with the Austin family (one of the Cox girls married an Austin) for six months and the Austins came back with them and stayed a year. Apparently people made long visits in those days.

"I had the pleasure of visiting in the same home place the grandson of this original Austin in Grayson county where they still live. At the time, Pearl Bach, (her mother a first cousin to my grandfather Day on the Cox side) and I visited them. Mr. Austin was in his 90's but he was still a fine-looking man and he had a very clear memory.

"The Coxes are robust people, with a fine constitution and clear memories to the last. Most of the older ones were about six feet tall, often the women as well as the men.

"When Mrs. Bach and I worked in the courthouse in Grayson county the county clerk turned the keys of the courthouse over to us, saying that everyone in the county was a Cox or related to a Cox so there would be nobody to object.

"The Coxes of Grayson county are mostly either descendants of Capt. John or his brother, David Cox. A Matthew Cox came there fairly early from Orange county, Va., (a son of a William Cox) but they too married into the families of David and John. The assumption is that they were a related family. Another Cox family, a Quaker group also came to Grayson county. But I believe that they too were a related group. Why I believe this would take time if you are interested."

(Anyone interested in the genealogical and historical lore of Eastern Kentucky families would, I'm sure, be glad to hear again from Mrs. Welch).

STRATTON, HAMILTON, LAINE

Miss Joy Sparks, formerly of Ashland, but now of 517 Windsor, Lakeland, Fla., writes an inquiry. She has been at work on the Stratton and Hamilton lines for years, being a descendant of Solomon Stratton, the Floyd county pioneer through the Hamiltons. Another ancestor is William Laine or Layne, father of James Shannon Layne, early settler in the Big Sandy valley.

"Have you found anything new on Stratton, Laine and Hamilton lines? I'm interested in the Joseph and Mary Jones Sagraves, the Jackson Fields and Anne Crech families. They came into Harlan county with or about the time John Bailey came in the 1820's. My above John Bailey was husband of Susannah Sagraves, daughter of Joseph and Mary Sagraves and came from Hawkins county, Tennessee."

A new book, "James Stewart of Early Augusta County, Virginia, and Descendants, 1740-1959," by Mrs. C. W. Dickerson, Box 903, Amelia, Va., has information on the Hamilton line. This columnist hasn't seen the new volume but persons interested in the Hamilton lines should examine the book.

GENEALOGICAL BOOKS

One used book dealer, Borderland Books, Route 3, Box 337, Anchorage, Ky., offers for sale certain volumes of interest to persons doing genealogical research. Also the dealer has books on the history of Eastern Kentucky that should not be overlooked. This column understands the dealer is new in the business and this information is passed along with the thought that you might want to get on the mailing list.

SAYS DOUBLE STANDARD IN ARDERY LEGISLATION

Pupil—How can we identify a Ripper Bill, teacher?

Teacher—There is one sure test. If it hurts our friends, it's a Ripper.

Pupil—Can a bill be a Ripper if the Judicial Council recommends it?

Teacher—No, then it's not a Ripper.

Pupil—When is a Ripper Bill not a Ripper Bill?

Teacher—When it's aimed at removing an impartial judge.

A respected judge has had the important Franklin circuit court taken from his jurisdiction before his elected term of office was completed. From Mills Point to Big Sandy, the people of Kentucky have been shocked that their officials have allowed the Ardery Ripper Legislation to become law. They are appalled that their leaders will excuse practices in their friends which they condemned as evil in their enemies. Kentuckians want fair play. They will not long tolerate the hypocrisy of a policy of noble words and unfair deeds.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

When I recall how far humanity has advanced in some ways in the years I have been a part of it, I become rather hopeful for the human race. There has been so much, also, to dishearten one since my first memories began, that you must admit that I am either a very sanguine person or one who is cheered by little advancements. I am thoroughly conscious of the tragedy of the four wars that I can remember, of the loss of life, of the physical wounds that were left, of the heart-breaks that never get into the newspapers or the history books, of the onslaught on some of our most cherished traditions that the upsets of war bring. They are all things that burn deeply into our very souls. But there are some advancements that show us capable of "occupying and subduing the earth."

One of the things that rank high in my estimate of advances is the rather rapidly-growing feeling that man is to work with and not against nature. On the surface that may not seem big as compared with wars or our always-publicized achievements in invention. But when you remember how wasteful and thoughtless our predecessors were, it will not be difficult to see in this change in attitude a very important advance in our career as human beings. Slowly, very slowly, an actual knowledge of our wastefulness began to get into our consciousness. One person in a hundred, maybe, saw how we were using up our heritage of soils and minerals and lumber and water resources. I can recall quite well when Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot seemed like modern reincarnations of John the Baptist, "voices crying in the wilderness." While they begged America to save its timber, its soil, forests were despoiled, steep hillsides were brought under cultivation, to be streaked with erosion almost at once. But I have lived to see millions of acres of submarginal land retired from the plow, to see young timber appearing in what used to be worn-out old fields, which, in turn, had seemed mined forever of their ability to bring forth any vegetation. The road ahead is a long one still, but beginnings have been made that will ultimately restore some of our heritage, even though we older ones will not get to see much of the wonder of landscape in which man is working with and not against nature.

Even more impressive to me than the actual return of some of the earth's cover is the rise of a feeling on the part of millions that it is no longer sissy to love natural things, to thrill to the commonplace events that we used to associate only with the highly poetic. A flower garden today is often the prized hobby of a business man who finds in handling the "good earth" that Liberty H. Bailey used to talk about to slightly skeptical ears a blessed relief from cares and a feeling, too, that man is still a part of soil and plants and trees and birds and "every living thing that creepeth upon the earth." Let us hope that the wasteful philosophy of the folk will gradually blend into a helpful philosophy that sees man not as an enemy of nature but as nature's own helper. Personally it is not so difficult for oddities like me to love wild flowers and birds as it was when I was a boy; it has been many a year since I detected a sneer upon the face of someone who wondered how and why a full-grown man would wander through woods and along streams with no gun or fishing rod or even a boat paddle for company just walking along like one slightly "teched in the head," with no visible good accomplished. If a census were taken of all such oddities that now roam unmolested thanks to the awakening love for nature in the wild, there would be as startling finds as we bird lovers amass every season in our annual Christmas Bird Census. Maybe we should start that sort of count, too.

Combs Establishes Devotional Services

Frankfort, Ky., March 28—Governor Combs has established a policy of providing devotional services at meetings of his Cabinet, State boards, and other agencies.

He named a committee of five clergymen who will give 5-minute scriptural readings and prayers and designate other ministers to perform similar services free of charge.

The committee consists of the Rev. Henry Beach, Ninth and O Baptist Church, Louisville; the Rev. E. L. Tullis, Methodist Church, Frankfort; Monsignor Garland O'Neill, Christ The King Church, Lexington; the Rev. Glover Daniel, Presbyterian Church, Shelbyville, and the Rev. E. Ray Jones, Christian Church, Lexington.

Combs has asked department heads and the chairmen of State boards to co-operate in the undertaking.

Among the boards for which devotionals are scheduled are the State Board of Education, the board of trustees of the University of Kentucky, the boards of regents of the State colleges, State Fair Board, and State Board of Agriculture.

Appeal Made To Vets Not To Mutilate Cards; Pensioners Have Choice

The Veterans Administration regional office at Louisville has issued an appeal to the approximately 28,000 persons in the state who receive monthly pension payments from the Veterans Administration. First, said VA, it urges veterans and veterans' widows and orphans who received cards with their March pension checks about going under the new pension law on July 1; please be sure to fill in all the questions on the cards before sending them back to VA.

Second: Be sure not to mutilate, twist or damage the cards before sending them back to VA. They must be run through electronic tabulating machines at the VA office, but the machines can't handle cards that are mutilated.

According to Oleny B. Owen, manager of the VA office, some 1,500 of the questionnaire cards have already been received and more than 10% of them are incomplete in not having all the questions answered.

The new law becomes effective July 1. Pensioners have the choice of remaining under provisions of the present law or coming under the new statute. In some cases it is to the pensioner's advantage to change, in others it's not. It depends on the circumstances of the individual case, Mr. Owen explained.

The cards were enclosed with the last checks, together with a pamphlet explaining terms of the new law in detail. Each person receiving pension has the right to choose for himself whether to remain under the present system or go in under the new law. Once they have chosen to go under the new law, they cannot go back under the old. Hence the importance of the choice.

VA wants to see every veteran, widow and child in Kentucky who is eligible get the maximum amount of pension. Mr. Owen explained that the staff in Louisville Veterans Administration Regional Offices studies each card as soon as it is received. But, he added, "We can't take any action on it unless every item on the questionnaire is answered in full," and urged pensioners to cooperate in their own interest by filling in all the answers.

THE TOTAL HOMEMAKING PROGRAM

By Gloria Adams and Della Frasure Of Prestonsburg Chapter Future Homemakers

Home Economics is open to all students enrolled in junior and senior high school. Until recent years only girls took home economics, but now many high schools have set aside a class for boys. Many schools teach four years of home ec. but most often only three are offered.

There are seven areas of homemaking. These include: foods, clothing, housing, child care, management, health, and relationships. These are all taught during the year; each separately. In foods, students learn to select, buy, prepare, and serve meals that are nutritious, economical as well as attractive.

For the clothing course, a girl learns the basic steps of sewing, selecting, buying and fitting a finished garment. The course in housing teaches a student to shop for quality and still be economical. Caring for home furnishings helps a girl to realize what a home will be like after she has one of her own.

Child care offers a new adventure for any girl, even if she does have small brothers to help care for at home. She's always eager to know what's best for the health discipline and needs of a child. She finds that a wise mother is kind and loving, but motherhood also requires discipline. Management teaches us to save time, money, and energy. We learn to budget our money, that is, to get the best quality for the least money.

A knowledge of our health is very important. We learn the proper sleeping hours, the right foods, and plenty of exercise is very important. You can be sure that the person with shining hair, bright teeth, a clean and fresh complexion, is happier, more alert, and more able to fight off disease.

The course in relationships might include "The art of dating," Learning to get along with the opposite sex" or "Looking forward to marriage." Students learn to get along better with others and to adjust ourselves as teenagers.

Adult classes are offered to any married woman interested in furthering her homemaking ability. The classes are offered at night and are taught by the home economists at Prestonsburg high school. Classes are offered in clothing and cooking. Home projects are a major part of the total homemaking program. Any girl taking home economics is required to have at least one project each semester and one during the summer. The purpose of the project is to put into practice what a girl has learned during the homemaking course.

Unemployment Benefits Aid To Many Schemers, Reader's Digest Notes

Loafers and schemers make a grab bag of unemployment compensation programs, collecting for vacations, honeymoons and even into retirement, says the April Reader's Digest. Legislation now before Congress, it warns, would make the situation worse.

State compensation boards, pressured by the U. S. Bureau of Employment Security, the magazine says, have paid out nearly 11 and a half billion dollars in five years, much of it on claims like these:

A Pittsburgh industrial worker retired with a $188-a-month pension from his company, an $1,800 annual slice of deferred profit sharing, plus regular Social Security checks. Yet he registered as unemployed and collected more than $2,000.

A Wisconsin mine-hoist operator was fired after shamming sickness for eight weeks while he competed in county-fair harness races. It was ruled his truancy should not bar him from compensation.

A dancer left her New York show to vacation in Miami. She worked six weeks in a night club. When the show headed for Las Vegas, she returned to New York, her homecoming sweetened by jobless aid.

A Georgia schoolteacher, paid by the year, collected compensation during a vacation in North Carolina.

These cases were reported by the U. S. Department of Labor in a bulletin to inform state compensation officials on legal precedents in line with principles laid down by the Bureau of Employment Security. The Pennsylvania compensation fund, which has tried to follow those principles, is in an appalling mess, the article reports. Workers who retired on pensions collected 20 million dollars in unemployment benefits during a three-year period. Students, pregnant women, retired and seasonal cleared two millions in three months. Last April, Pennsylvania had to borrow $6 million dollars from Washington to keep out of the red. On the other hand, Ohio, which has resisted BES recommendations, and been sharply criticized for doing so, has 407 millions in its unemployment funds, without any need for federal loans.

A bill now before Congress would force the states to adopt federal benefit rates for nine-month payment terms. Says William Paper, director of research and statistics at Ohio's Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, "It seems inevitable that, if present trends continue, the states will be reduced to the status of rubber stamps or the system will break down of its own complexity."

The article, "The Scandal of Unemployment Compensation," was written by Kenneth O. Gilmore of the Digest staff after more than a year's research.

Floyd county residents constituted 86 per cent of the total payments throughout the state as a whole.

With income gains recorded in most areas of the county in the past year, the administration feels that the goal of $40.3 billion in personal taxes, as set for the nation in its forecasts, will be realized by the middle of next month.

In Floyd county, on the basis of preliminary income figures, current individual tax payments are expected to reach $3,387,000.

A continuation of the nation's economic growth throughout this year of 1960 is counted on by the administration, which sees the gross national product rising from $490 billion to $510 billion and income taxes for the year, due in April 1961, increasing by $3.4 billion.

If incomes in Floyd county move upward with the general average for the country, figured at 5.7 per cent in the budget, local residents will have just that much more to pay, come next April 15.

While there appears to be no comprehensive program in the works toward achieving a general reduction in personal taxes, neither has there been much of a move to raise them. The tax rates today are essentially the same as they were several years ago.

Instead, in order to raise additional money, the Internal Revenue Service will seek to bring in taxes on some $26 billion a year of income, the amount that it says "disappears" from people's tax returns each year.

More revenue agents and new electronic scanning devices will be brought to bear for the crackdown.

PIKEVILLE HI IS PENALIZED

Draws 30-Day Suspension
Beginning December 16th,
Placed under Probation

Pikeville high school has been placed on probation for one year and under suspension for 30 days, beginning December 16, Kentucky High School Athletic Commissioner Ted Sanford said Monday.

Sanford said the penalty was imposed because Basketball Coach John Bill Trivette, of Pikeville, removed his team from the floor following the final game of the 57th district tournament at Mullins high school on March 5, while the tournament manager was reading the names of the all-tournament players.

The commissioner said the evidence indicated that Trivette was dissatisfied with the balloting for the all-tournament team and possibly with the manner in which the balloting was being announced.

In a letter to Principal Charles E. Spears, of Pikeville, Sanford said he considered the school guilty of violating the association's sportsmanship rule.

Good Fishing Follows
Spring Weather, Noted; Kentucky Prospects Good

Frankfort, Ky., March 23 (Spl.)—When spring arrives good fishing cannot be far behind. That is the summation of the fish culturists of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, and with that in mind Commissioner Minor Clark has directed that conservation officers be shifted into the areas of the famous runs and be ready to assist the fisherman in his endeavors as well as see that the laws protecting fish be upheld.

The boys who study fishing know that the runs of walleye, white bass and crappie cannot be far away. They know, also, that with warm weather the black bass and the bluegill and other species will be on the move. When these various runs occur more conservation officers will be seen in those areas than ever before and they have been instructed by Commissioner Clark to assist the fisherman in any way possible to enhance his fishing trip and to also be on the alert for law violators.

More men will be placed on Lake Cumberland headwaters, where the walleye and the striped bass are due to take hold at any minute. And additional men will be shifted from non-fishing areas to Kentucky Lake to look over the famous crappie run and a shift in personnel will be affected at Herrington Lake where the white bass are due for their spawning jaunts up famous Dix River.

These shifts, Clark said, will be made at little or no additional cost by the conservation officers and will put the men in the areas of activity. They will be drawn from nearby counties where no fishing is available and will work with the officer who is stationed regularly on the lakes and streams.

Many who fish, the Commissioner added, know little about catching fish when these runs are on. They will be shown the proper lures or baits to use and favorite fishing areas will be pointed out to them. At the same time these officers will be ever alert to law violations, the Commissioner said.

W'WRIGHT SUPPLANTS
PAINTSVILLE IN E.K.M.C.

Wheelwright high school has been admitted as the tenth team in the four-sport Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference, replacing Paintsville, high which withdrew from the league to join the North-eastern Kentucky Conference.

The League's Board of Directors unanimously accepted Wheelwright's application, effective July 1, at its annual spring meeting in Pikeville last Friday.

Paintsville will compete in all spring sports before dropping from the loop.

Officers elected for the coming year were: James V. Powell, Elkhorn City high school principal, president; Roy Reiser, Fleming-Neon high school principal, vice-president; and Arthur Mullins, Elkhorn City high school athletic director, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Whitesburg high was awarded the conference basketball championship trophy on the basis of a 7-0 loop record, and Paintsville won the runner-up award with a 5-1 league mark.

The all-conference basketball team chosen was: Raynor Mullins, Jenkins; Mike Minix, Paintsville; Don Ratliff, Richard Weems and Charles Mims, Pikeville; Tommy Cole, Prestonsburg; Gordon Combs and Sidney Blair, Whitesburg; Danny McAlamris, M. C. Napier; Walter Green, Hazard; Harold Mullins, Elkhorn City; and Herbert Deskins, Paintsville.

The annual track meet will be held in conjunction with the regional track meet in Elkhorn City on the date selected by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association.

The baseball tournaments were dropped from the agenda, with the champion to be selected from the two teams that advance farthest in district and regional tournaments. The two teams, from the East and West sections of the loop, will set a site and date for the final game.

By virtue of winning the football championship, Hazard's Jim Caudill was awarded the honor of coaching the Kentucky team in the West Virginia-Kentucky All-Star football game in Williamson in August, however, Caudill will be coaching the East team in the East-West All-Star game in Lexington on the same date and will not be available. Whitesburg's Ed Moore was next in line.

The conference voted to give its entire support to the Williamson affair and ask individual players to participate in the event.

Army Needs Musicians,
Local Recruiter Says;
Qualifications Named

The U. S. Army is searching for qualified musicians in its famous Second U. S. Army band, located near Washington, D. C.

The local Army Recruiter is presently accepting applications from male musicians who play one of the following instruments:

Tenor saxophone, trombone, bass clarinet, French horn, baritone horn, flute, baritone saxophone, tuba and B flat clarinet.

"A young musician, especially if he has had high school or college band experience, will not find a better opportunity to fulfill his military obligation in a job he likes," Sergeant Craft, the Army recruiter for this area, said.

"The Army bandsman receives worthwhile training in music and may be offered a chance to learn orchestration, arranging, conducting and musical programming.

Local band musicians who would like to join the Army band may get full information by writing: Commanding Officer, U. S. Army Recruiting Main Station, Ashland, Ky., or from the local Army Recruiter.

Musicians qualifying for enlistment may receive a guarantee in writing which states that they will be assigned to the band following an initial training period.

In addition to the vacancies in the Second U. S. Army band, vacancies sometimes occur in other Army bands.

SPORTS
CHATTER
By GORDON MOORE

The acceptance of Wheelwright in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference should be a major step in the school's over-all athletic program.

New rivalries will be borne in all sports and publicity gained for the school as a member of the league will be greatly increased over being an independent school. This is especially true in football, since the Left Beaver Creek school only revived the sport three years ago.

Don Wallen's basketball team should add considerable prestige to the loop next season, since three of this season's players are returning to go with a strong group up from the junior varsity and freshman teams.

In past years Wheelwright has been noted for its fine baseball teams and golf teams, but the school has never had a track team. Visiting conference teams coming to Wheelwright will find one of the most modern baseball and football fields in Kentucky and a fine 2,000-seat gymnasium which ranks as one of the top five in Eastern Kentucky.

Safety Campaign Set in Kentucky Schools;
Scheduled April 4-16

Kentucky school children will participate in the annual School Safety Campaign sponsored by the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children in many Kentucky schools between April 4 and April 16.

Many of the children cared for by the Kentucky Society—the Eastern Seal Society—are boys and girls crippled by accident, so accident prevention has a direct tie-in with its statewide program.

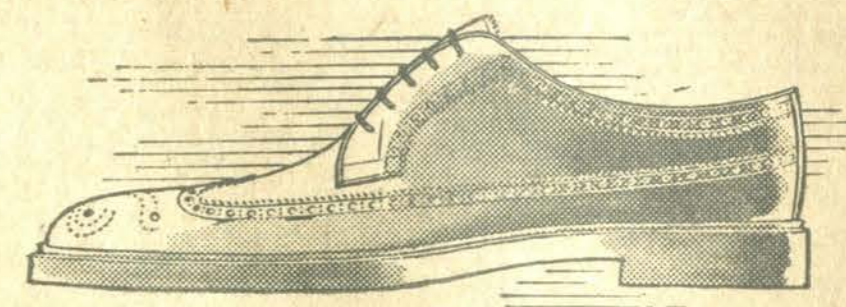

During 1959, according to preliminary statistics released by the Kentucky State Department of Health, 265 children under 15 were killed by accidents in the home, in motor vehicles, on highways and elsewhere. An additional 1,512 teenagers and adults were killed last year as a result of accidents.

Try this method to see if a fly rod has a true dry-fly action: Run a line through all the guides and tie it to something, then back off quite a distance and pull a slight bend in the rod. If the bend comes almost entirely in the upper half of the rod, but isn't confined too closely to the tip, it's a true dry-fly action. —Sports Afield.

"Worst roads in the world, but this new Chevy takes all the roughness out!"

Out near Wathena, Kansas, farmer Milt Roundy tends 800 acres with only one helper—his 1960 Chevrolet pickup. The truck almost never runs on Kansas's fine state highways—instead it averages about 2,500 miles a month on unimproved back-country trails or on hauls into the fields, off the road. "In my book, these are the worst roads in the world," Mr. Roundy says, "but this new Chevy takes all the roughness out. It doesn't fishtail or whip around like other trucks — I can steer it with one finger!"

They're speaking right up, these owners of '60 Chevrolets. Everywhere you go, they're giving out glowing reports on a revolutionary new truck ride that leads to a bigger day's work at less expense; praising truck power that knows the most about saving money.

It's Chevy's total newness they're talking about. And you'll be talking, too, once you turn a new Chevrolet loose on your money runs. Your dealer can get you started, right away!

It takes Chevy's new Torsion-Spring Ride to smooth out a road like this!

medical knowledge than to gain prestige and fortune.

This story is told about the doctor. One patient, on being counted out a sizeable package of pills for his ailments, was said to have told Dr. Dempsey who had charged him only a dollar:

"Doctor, you can't make any money selling your medicine like this."

The doctor shot back: "Who in the — is selling this medicine? I know what I pay for it."

The doctor is not one to take "sass." But he is keenly sensitive to the sufferings of the unfortunate, and his heart brings him to practice the philosophy that his mind dictates.

"These people didn't ask to come into the world. Somebody has to take care of them. Only 20% of the people in the United States can afford medical treatment," the doctor said.

Dr. and Mrs. Dempsey have made their home at Garrett since 1924 when Dr. M. V. Wicker employed him to help out in a medical practice connected with the Elk Horn Coal Corporation around Garrett and Wayland.

He is originally from Logan county, West Virginia, and is a third cousin of Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight boxing champion of the world. The doctor doesn't try to impress anyone with his famous relative. "A lot of people are kin to Jack," he observes.

The doctor's favorite subject is medicine and human needs.

"The scientists should take over the health program. Then we'd get rid of the dangerous use of tobacco. I've seen old-timers up and down these creeks chewin' their cuds like old cows. Pretty soon they come to me, complainin' about how numb their legs are. Their circulation is cut off. They get Burger's Disease. It plugs up the arteries in the legs and arms just like corks."

Dr. Dempsey is disgusted with the neglect of the people. When you meet the man he is ready to talk of the people's need to become whole and able as citizens of this country.

The doctor fears that his views may be misinterpreted. He is an avowed enemy of totalitarianism, of communism, Hitlerism or any enforced subjugation of individual rights—but he can point out inequities existing in our system of government which might be corrected, he has said, through courageous and honest leadership.

"All classes of people, regardless of who they are, should be trained to do skilled work and be free of disease. Our government seems to take the attitude that if you can't do something for yourself, then it won't be done.

"One man can't shoot a rocket to the moon. It takes the experts, the specialists. It takes the collective effort on the part of the people through the government.

One person can't give an education to eliminate the illiteracy and the disease of our people. Only the government and the scientists and the experts can do this."

"I have practiced medicine in more rich and poor homes than any other doctor in Eastern Kentucky. I have practiced among the Negro, the Jew, the Italian the Indian. They are all the same. The Negroes treated me better than anyone has ever treated me. The people in the lower economic class are being neglected. The experts should treat them. They should be free of disease, should have free medical service as they do in Great Britain or Russia."

"No, I am not a Communist. But how do we hope to compete with Russia? How do we compete with Russia when we have so much ignorance and illiteracy? You find ignorance worse in the city than you do in the country. If it hadn't been for some ignorant senators, Franklin D. Roosevelt would have made great land reforms. He wanted to irrigate the arid lands of our western states. Truman was a good president, too, before the wrong men caught hold of him. "I hope to God that we get some statesmen who can deliver us from our apathetic condition."

The doctor thinks that medicine has greatly improved over the years, especially in the continuing trend of specialization. "But," he said, "I think that a young man should spend a few years as a general practitioner before he specializes."

Dr. Dempsey is not narrow. Changing patterns do not scare him. In progress and betterment he finds the hope of the world. He said that he, as a general practitioner, can treat the ordinary diseases. He added that only a specialist can do a specialist's work.

Whether you agree or disagree with the veteran physician about his views, you can't say he doesn't practice what he preaches about affording medical aid to the poor. Those who have known him all these years, who have seen him ride, horseback, across the hills, over rough, muddy roads into neighboring Knott and Magoffin counties to minister to the sick will vouch for him.

Said one acquaintance:

"I've known Doc Dempsey to ride a horse into Quicksand, spend two days caring for a sick woman—and ride back out with a sack of cabbage for his fee. And it would have been all the same if he had got nothing."

MY PLATFORM

As a candidate for member Floyd County Board of Education I take this means to let you know what I stand for:

I stand for teachers being paid every cent the law allows.

I am for teachers teaching their home school if they want it, and not send them to some remote place in the county because they don't vote your way.

I am not endorsing any one, no one is running me, I will work with any Board or Superintendent as long as they are in the right. I will oppose them just as strongly if I think them wrong.

The good people of my district will be my boss.

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 86 in a Series)

Prestonsburg Residents Watch Railway Construction and the Rising River

This picture, taken 58 years ago, shows Prestonsburg residents watching the rising Big Sandy River and the construction of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway across the river from South First avenue. The shingle-covered building was the office of Dr. Charles Callihan.

The place here was known as the Upper Landing, where steamboats loaded and discharged freight or passengers. There was a ford here utilized by horseman and wagoners from the west side of the stream.

There were no paved streets in Prestonsburg in 1902 and timbermen hauled logs over the dirt streets and alleyways to the Big Sandy River for rafting.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of our past as a bit of its friendly service with the hope they will contribute to your understanding of our historic heritage.

MORE OF SAME

Olin Elliott, of Allen, came up Sunday with the prize local catch of the belated fishing season with a seven-pound bass taken from Dewey Lake. We also hear talk of a six-pounder being caught the same day. That big bass Oral De-long reported Wednesday afternoon was more than talk—it was so real I turned pea-green with envy.

AH, MUSE!

This is the season of spring poetry, but the verse we've seen circulated about town doesn't seem to be of that variety. We were not aware that there is so much literary talent hereabouts.

OF WORDS AND SUCH

Saw in a book, the other day, an explanation of how the word "greenhorn," came into usage. It seems that in the old days, when oxen were used as draught animals their owners found them so dumb that they would not learn to obey one or two simple commands till they were old enough to have heaver-horns. The ox with young, or "green," horns just would not "yea" or "back" or "gee" or "haw" when ordered to do so, simply because the brute was so dumb he hadn't learned what the orders meant. And so it came to pass, we are told, that a beginner or one who doesn't know the ropes is referred to as a "greenhorn."

Which gets me around to thinking about the origin of that good, old mountain word, "ferminist," which, as any fool should know, means, "opposite." I'm inclined to think this word is the result of the English penchant for contracting words and phrases in that clipped speech of theirs. Strikes me that it may have all started with the phrase, "over against," which does mean, "opposite," and with the English shortening it as they did with one of their oaths, "S blood." Thus they made of it "verginst," and by the time some of our sturdy pioneers got through with it, it wound up, "ferminist."

P'burg, Wheelwright Have 4 'Excellent' At Speech Festival

Students from Prestonsburg and Wheelwright high schools won four ratings of excellent in the Pikeville Regional Speech Festival last weekend at Pikeville College.

Altogether, 45 superiors and 68 excellents were given in the festival, in which 20 high schools were represented by some 375 students—from two to 27 students from each school.

The team trophy for the region went to Hazard, with 175 competitive points. Paintsville, with 139 points, barely nosed Benham, which had 135. The points are computed from entries and results.

The meet's six judges included four representatives of the University of Kentucky. They were Dr. R. D. Johnson, assistant dean of extended programs; Dr. J. Reid Sterrett, associate professor of speech; Mr. Gordon Nash, director of music for extended programs, and graduate student Daniel T. Yates. Other judges were Dr. Glenn Willis, director of adult education at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., and E. R. Purdom, Jr., of Henry Clay high school, Lexington.

Kendrick Wells, Paintsville high school, took first place in public speaking, with Betty Allen, Hazard, second, and Wayne Combs, Napier, third. Wells, with the top three survivors of the festival's debating, Hazard, Feds Creek and Mullins, and all superior winners in other events, will advance to the state speech festival April 18-20 at Lexington.

Excellents from Prestonsburg high school were Bob Marshall in expository-prose reading, and Judy Bussey and Carol Hubbard in poetry reading. From Wheelwright, an excellent performance was turned in by Edith Miller in junior-high prose reading.

Floyd Students Enter Regional Music Fest At Pikeville College

Pikeville, Ky., March 28 — Approximately 275 students from Betty Layne, McDowell, Maytown, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright high schools are entered in the annual Pikeville Regional Music Festival, to be held today and tomorrow (Thursday and Friday) at Pikeville College.

Representing 17 schools in eight counties, the student musicians will perform in vocal and instrumental solos and groups of all sizes. Ten bands and 16 choruses are among the entries, which are from Floyd, Harlan, Johnson, Lawrence, Magoffin, Martin, Perry and Pike counties.

Ratings of Division I, II, etc., will be given, with Division I denoting the best performances. The ratings will be based on standards as high as those of the state festivals which were formerly held. It was emphasized.

Some 80 of the students taking part, entered for criticism only, will not receive ratings.

Judges for the festival will include Dr. James E. Van Peursem, chorus director at Eastern Kentucky State College and a familiar figure at Pikeville festivals, judging vocal solos, small ensembles and choruses. Nick Koenigstein, also of Eastern, a former Paintsville high school band director, will criticize performances of brass instruments and bands, and Alexander LeSeur, of the Morehead State College faculty, will be judge of woodwind instruments.

Mrs. Violet Severy, also of Morehead State, will pass on piano performances, and baton-twirling will be criticized and rated by Faye G. Allen (Mrs. Quentin D. Allen), of the Pikeville College music faculty.

The festival will close with the annual concert by the All-Festival Chorus of singers selected from the participating schools, directed by Dr. Van Peursem, and the All-Festival Band, under Koenigstein, at 7 p.m. Saturday (April 2).

Many Dissent That Alcoholism Is A Disease

By J. Collis Ringo, Executive Director Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism

Many well-intentioned people seriously challenge the concept that alcoholism is an illness.

In a recent radio broadcast on a national hookup, a minister asserted that alcoholism positively was not a disease unless one could term any bad habit or any normal dereliction an illness.

This non-medical opinion is contradicted by every scientific research project on the subject. Facts disclosed by research caused the American Medical Association in 1956 to openly declare alcoholism a disease.

There has been some debate as to whether alcoholism is a disease in itself or merely a symptom of some underlying emotional disorder. Investigators have concluded that what starts as a symptom develops into a disease and is treatable as an independent illness.

The seeming contradiction that most illnesses can be cured by medication, but no pill or drug has been discovered which can help an alcoholic, is confusing. The fact that only a small percentage of drinking people, approximately seven out of each 100, are afflicted by alcoholism, confuses the problem further.

Those individuals who develop this illness have extreme difficulty in accepting the role of people set apart from normal drinkers. Most of them struggle through long periods attempting to keep their drinking at a normal level long after they have lost control and one drink triggers a reaction that invariably leads to intoxication. This abnormal reaction for a few was for thousands of years believed to be wilful, a purely moral deviation.

Alcoholics Anonymous blazed the trail in showing alcoholism could be corrected. There are now over 200,000 men and women who have suffered from varying degrees of this illness who have recovered. The medical profession now knows that the answer is simplicity itself—stop drinking.

After a certain point it is practically impossible for a true alcoholic to stop drinking without outside help. As a result, Alcoholics Anonymous is the No. 1 resource for help. Alcoholics can be helped and are worth helping.

can save Kentucky $31,600

on every 4-lane mile of the new eastern highway!

This same rate of savings will apply to Governor Combs' proposed new highway linking the eastern Kentucky coal fields with the Interstate System.

There are other important economic advantages, too. One thousand tons of bituminous coal go into the manufacturing processes for cement and reinforcing steel required to construct just one mile of 4-lane concrete highway.

Concrete construction also requires more local manpower. In fact, concrete pavement requires more than 20,000 more man-hours per million dollars of construction than does asphalt. Over 66% of asphalt construction cost is for materials while concrete takes only 50%.

Safety comes with concrete, too—especially on mountain driving. With light-colored concrete, you don't need painted guide lines to show the way at night. And with concrete's grainy texture, you're assured a safe stopping surface—even in the wettest weather.

These are just a few of the many reasons why concrete's true economy and quality are so important... why every mile of the new eastern Kentucky super-highway into eastern Kentucky should be paved with modern concrete.

No pavement could be stronger even if carved from solid rock!

Elm Marked Site Of Religious Meet

The first religious service in Kentucky was celebrated May 28, 1775, under a giant elm tree near Boonesboro. Judge Richard Henderson records in his diary that the service was conducted by the Rev. John Lyth, minister of the Gospel.

Amplifying Henderson's description, Professor George W. Ranck in his "History of Boonesboro" writes: "It was a religious event, absolutely unique."

"Most of the usual accessories of the service were wanting, from echoing church bells and long aisle to pealing organ. No women were there to join in litany or hymn and no children to list Amen. Disasters as well as Episcopalians, through common danger, had drawn together and the chance for public worship was eagerly seized by the pioneers."

Ranck's account continues, "and so cut off from the whole civilized world the forerunners of a mighty West of many states knelt together in the sweet white clover, under that magnificent tree, the sole cathedral in a wilderness as vast and as solitary as the ocean. This was the first and perhaps the last time that prayers were ever recited on Kentucky soil for the king and royal family of England." (The following year, the Virginia Convention expurgated from the liturgy the words relating to the royal family.)

History records that the Reverend Lyth died in 1778 of a disease contracted with George Washington's army or because of the rigors of the hard winter. Some pioneers record that he was killed by Indians while in Kentucky.

The elm under which the first religious service was performed was blown down by a high wind in 1828.

SHEEP

The lamb crop in the county is probably the best since the program started in 1954. Practically all producers are averaging better than a lamb per ewe, and several are averaging 1 1/4 lambs. With the market outlook being favorable for spring lamb price, the farmer with a flock should be able to show a nice profit this year.

During the five years that the sheep program has been going in the county, lamb prices have held up better than any other class of livestock. The outlook for the future is very promising. Farmers that have the hay and pasture should seriously consider sheep, as a possible livestock enterprise for their farm. Not every farm is suitable for sheep production, but those that are will find sheep to be profitable.

This year, should find conditions right for an expansion of sheep flocks. Cattle numbers are building up fast, which will cause a decrease in prices within a few years. Sheep numbers are on the decrease, and prices should be favorable for the future.

Anyone interested in starting a flock, will want to start making plans early. Any farmer with sheep will be glad to discuss their program with anyone interested, and they will be welcomed to discuss this situation with the county agent.

STRAWBERRIES

An order has been placed for strawberry plants. This year's setting will be below last year's. Only nine acres are being set. This will not be enough to supply the demand of the county. Anyone that did not get an order placed, can contact this office for a list of plant farms, where they can order plants.

The cold weather during March, has been helpful for the spring strawberry crop. The plants are still dormant, and have not been seriously damaged. The snow has provided protection.

PASTURES

Fescue fields, that have crowded out the clovers, can be brought to top production without plowing. The university has conducted experiments to determine the best method to follow. By disking the field heavily, and seeding at double the rate for legumes, the proper balance of grass to legumes can be made.

For this type of seeding, fertilizer without any nitrogen should be used such as 0-20-20 or 0-30-30. Use at rate 500 to 700 pounds per acre.

The advantage of renovating an old pasture, is that it is cheaper than establishing a new pasture, and the pasture can be grazed immediately. Many fields in the county could profitably be improved by this method.

TALENT SHOW

The 4-H Talent Show, which was scheduled for this Saturday night, April 2, at the Allen grade school, has been changed to April 14. The change was necessary because the date conflicted with the Band Festival at Pikeville.

The 4-H Talent Show is for fun and entertainment, and is not a contest, even though the acts are judged and ribbons presented. Like all other 4-H events, the Talent Show is a family affair. All parents, leaders and friends of 4-H members are invited.

FAMILY GARDEN IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

This has been very discouraging weather for the home gardens. Each time the weather shows signs of clearing, another snow comes, and delays gardening activities another week. Even though, gardens are three weeks later than last year's, there is still plenty of time to produce all the early season vegetables.

While it is still snowing or raining, the home gardener can save valuable time by planning his program for the year. First determine what vegetables to be grown, and the amount of seed needed. Seeds and fertilizer should then be purchased. This probably will save an extra trip to town. Anyone depending on hiring someone to plow their garden should make arrangements now. The few tractors and teams available, will be busy when the soil is dry enough to plow.

For those interested in enrolling in the Family Garden Improvement Program, packets of information and enrollment cards are now available at most seed dealers. This information is also available from the County Agent's Office, Vocational Agriculture Teachers, and members of the County Garden committee.

The purpose of the garden program is to improve the quality and increase the amount of vegetables produced, then to improve the quality of those canned and froze. The over-all purpose is to cut the family food budget. The county committee has set as their goal to enroll 500 families in the program. Prizes will be given to the best garden in the county, and the best garden in the district will also be recognized.

Outdoor Recreation, Tourism Parallels State Development

"Development of hunting and fishing and the tourist business parallels the economic development of Kentucky," according to Lt. Gov. Wilson Wyatt.

"We intend to see that these two programs are expanded greatly within the next four years," Wyatt declares.

The lieutenant governor has been a fisherman since boyhood, when he started out with a cane pole and a can of worms. His most enjoyable fishing now is using a flyrod to snake out bluegill and bass. This he does as often as time permits—not too frequently in the past few years.

The fisherman of his family, Wyatt almost boastfully admits, is his wife, who also leans toward bluegill fishing with the flyrod.

With the gun, bird hunting is his first love, but he likes to seek out the cottontail, when he has time.

The publication of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, "Happy Hunting Ground," quotes Wyatt as saying the state plans to expand its advertising program to bring more tourists into Kentucky and thereby increase hunting and fishing.

This campaign will point out the rustic beauty of the Commonwealth; of the Eastern Kentucky mountains, the Bluegrass section and the giant lake areas of Western Kentucky, all within reach of a great center of population.

"We know," said Wyatt, "that with the building of a chain of lakes in Eastern Kentucky and the completion of highways, this section will be opened to a great source of wealth."

He said the present administration is committed to a program of expansion of the parks program which will attract hundreds of thousands of additional visitors and the tourist trade may become the most significant part of Kentucky's economy.

Ella Bishop, a 17-year-old Lexington girl, became famous in 1862 when she single-handedly took a Union flag away from Gen. John Hunt Morgan's Confederate Raiders.

HAM FATT

The iridescent or rainbow film sometimes seen on the cut surface of a ham is harmless. The coloring is caused by a retraction of light rays on the film of fat on the cut surface, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

NEW WINDOW TREATMENTS

New curtains or draperies may be just the thing to give your rooms a newly-decorated look for spring. Window treatment can make the window look larger or smaller, hide built-in defects, or unify the room's color scheme. The treatment needed will depend on the type of window, the effect desired, and the rest of the furnishings.

Curtain styles that emphasize the basic lines and shape of the window usually are the most satisfactory. Criss-cross curtains and tie backs must be used carefully, as they do not follow a window's basic lines.

The three correct lengths for curtains and draperies are sill, apron and floor length. Full-length window treatment gives a more formal, elegant look, while apron or sill length is better for an informal room.

If you want to feature the view outside, leave the window itself in the background by keeping the curtains or draperies off the glass and using plain fabrics. In a small room, curtains or draperies usually should be the same color as the walls. When you want the window and not the view to draw attention, use a contrasting color or a patterned fabric.

Picture windows and window walls can have sheer curtains to help diffuse light during the day, along with draperies that can be pulled for privacy at night.

The room's walls, rug and upholstery will help you decide on plain or patterned fabric, type of pattern, and color when choosing curtains or draperies. The size of the room and the size of the window also are important. For example, a large print that looks well at a large window will be much less attractive at a small window.

State Farmers Planting More Tree Seedlings

Kentucky farmers may set a high record this year in tree-planting, says James Newman, University of Kentucky extension service forester.

Sales in early March, Newman says, amounted to more than 15,000,000 tree seedlings at the state Division of Forestry. That state agency indicates that, weather permitting, some 20,000,000 may be sold before planting time is past.

Previous highs were about 15 million trees in both 1958 and 1959, Newman says. Limitations those years were from shortage of seedlings.

Clay county is one of the leaders in the state, says Elmore Grim, Pineville, district forester. That county's farmers had ordered more than a million seedlings by early February. No county ever before has actually ordered and planted a million trees, though Clay county last year got 900,000 trees into the ground for the state's high in 1959.
