

This Town-- That World

The heat's on--and we're not talking about politics.

LIKE NUTS!

"Like nice," the youngster remarked, and I winched. He had been listening to beatnik talk, and he had no business talking beatnik like, but the youngster wasn't wandering much farther afield than his elders when they get "hipped" on some word, usually an adjective, "fabulous," for instance, and "daring" and "stupendous," etcetera. To describe a person or a thing as "fabulous" and be furlongs away from both the truth and accuracy of expression is quite as offensive as just to be like crazy.

FISHING TIP

You gotta creep up on the off side of these Dewey Lake fish. Charles Ferguson was on his way squirrel-hunting, the other afternoon, traveling by boat to a favorite spot. Somehow, a fishing rod got mixed up with his hunting paraphernalia, and just to while away the time en route he tossed out a plug and began trolling. Minutes later he had boated a six-pound bass. . . . I have my shotgun oiled up, all ready for my next fishing trip.

THE BLACKBERRIES ARE GONE

Councilman Watt Hale is right proud of the clean-up work being done in the lower section of Prestonsburg and advancing steadily up town, but he's concerned about funds to continue the job. Asked about the prospects, he replied with a story about a Methodist preacher. The preacher was holding a revival in a certain community, and the only rewards he received were purely spiritual. Every afternoon, folks would see him climb a long point, disappear from view, then emerge to preach that night. They wondered if he were going to that sylvan retreat for prayer, but finally the matter was fully explained. The explanation of his daily trips up the hill came when somebody asked him how long the revival would continue, and when he answered: "As long as the blackberries hold out!" MUSIC KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Auxier Soldier Victim Of Automobile Collision Near Painesville, Ohio

Pfc. David R. Music, 20-year-old Auxier soldier, died almost instantly of a skull fracture received in an automobile collision last Thursday at Painesville, O. The wreck occurred as Music pulled into a lane of traffic.

The victim, a member of the 67th Artillery Group (Air Defense), was stationed at Cleveland, Ohio. He was a son of Ben and Inez Reed Music, of Auxier, and was unmarried.

Besides his parents, he leaves three brothers and four sisters: Miss Betty Jean Music, Mrs. Mona Tardiff and Kenneth Lee Music, all of Springfield, Ohio, Charles Donald, Jerry Arnold, Ruth Ann and Ella May Music, all of Auxier.

The body was returned to Auxier where funeral rites were conducted Monday afternoon from the Auxier Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. S. C. Honeycutt, and burial was made in the Richmond cemetery here under direction of the Carter-Callahan Funeral Home.

BOARD VOTES TO BUY TRADES SCHOOL SITE

8-ACRE TRACT NEAR MARTIN IS SELECTED

First-of-Month Pay Of Salaries Is Seen; Teachers Are Added

The Floyd County Board of Education voted unanimously Tuesday to exercise the option it holds on approximately eight acres of land as a site for a future vocational school which will be operated as a branch of the Mayo Vocational School, Paintsville.

The site, optioned at a price of $2,000 an acre, is located near Garth, on Left Beaver Creek, and is a part of the Davidson farm which was recently purchased by Glenn C. Spradlin and Lawrence Keathley, of Martin.

Final purchase of the site is contingent on water being made available to the proposed school from the Martin water system by Keathley and Spradlin. The location, it was explained, was selected as central to all high school of the county.

Although architect's plans for the proposed structure have not been completed, school officials hope to have the building completed and equipped in time for the opening of the 1961-'62 school year.

The vocational school building will be constructed at expense of the board of education and equipped by the Mayo Vocational School. The move for a Floyd county vocational school was initiated by the Floyd County Council of Parents and Teachers. The motion for exercise of the option was made by John G. Hall, seconded by Ray Howard and unanimously voted, and thus was the project assured support of the full board last session.

Wayne Ratliff, assistant superintendent of schools, said, in the absence Wednesday of Superintendent Charles Clark, that pupils at the vocational school will do a half-day's work at their respective high schools and a half-day at the Garth school in the special fields they may choose. It is possible, he added, that night adult classes may be offered.

"We hope," Mr. Ratliff said, "the school will train skilled young men and women, particularly those who may not attend college, and thus attract industry to the county, as well as to provide skilled labor for the industry we already have."

The board was unanimous in its voting on all orders entered at the meeting. One such order authorized Superintendent Clark to negotiate with G. L. Shannon, Prestonsburg architect, for plans on remodeling of the old high school building here for office space and as a materials center. (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

COMBS CALLS LEGISLATURE

To Convene, Sept. 19; Payment of Non-Resident Veterans, Sole Purpose

Governor Bert Combs called a special session of the Legislature, Wednesday, for the specific purpose of adding Kentucky war veterans now residing outside the state to the lists of those eligible to collect the state bonus voted last January.

The special session will convene Sept. 19.

Republican leaders and other enemies of the Combs administration immediately branded the special session call a political maneuver to gain needed support of Keen Johnson, Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, and the Democratic ticket.

The bonus issue has been red-hot since the bill was enacted excluding from benefits those veterans who were not residents of Kentucky on Nov. 3, 1959. Governor Combs had contended out-of-state veterans could not be included until cost of paying them the bonus was determined and what revenues the 1% sales tax for the bonus would yield.

Immediately following the Governor's special session call, several legislators asked that the call be amended to consider removing the sales tax from food, medicine and clothing.

Representative Ollie Robinson, of Prestonsburg, said he has writ Combs asking that the sales tax on medicine and foodstuffs purchased from retailers be removed.

Dr. White Plans Office In Town Center Building; Is Native of Louisville

Dr. Norman E. White will open his office here for the general practice of medicine within the next two or three weeks, and already has moved his family to Prestonsburg. His office will be in the Town Center building.

A native of Louisville, he moved here from Paintsville where he has been practicing his profession. He was graduated from the University of Louisville and from the Louisville College of Medicine. He did his internship at Kentucky Baptist hospital and Children's hospital, both in Louisville.

Dr. and Mrs. White are residing in the Richard Spurlock property.

MARTIN PICKS DEMO AIDES

Campaign Committeemen Are Named By Manager; Headquarters Opened

Floyd county Democratic campaign headquarters have been opened in the offices formerly occupied by Paul Hayes opposite the postoffice building here, it was announced this week by State Senator Burnis Martin, chairman.

Martin also released names of appointees to various committees necessary to conduct the campaign. He said that additional appointments will be made in the future.

P.T.A. GROUP SEEKS BETTER PLAYGROUND

"Every single piece of equipment on the school, property is in need of repair and a large percentage of it is beyond repair," was the statement made Tuesday evening as the executive committee of the Prestonsburg grade school P.T.A. met to plan projects for the coming year.

This situation caused the committee to decide the playground at the grade school should be the first project to receive attention, and now an intensive drive is being planned to make the playground a safe and pleasant place where children may play.

The P.T.A. plans to clean the property, repair all equipment that can be repaired, remove dangerous, unrepairable equipment and buy new swings, a

FUNDS NEEDED FOR CLEAN-UP

Contribution Asked By Mayor To Finance Completion of Work

Contributions totaling $500 are needed from Prestonsburg citizens and business firms if the clean-up work now under way is to be continued from the lower city limits to the upper, Mayor Edward B. Leslie said this week.

He commented on the clean-up work and financial needs after the City Council had earmarked $500 for the work being done. "At least that much more is needed if we are to go all the way to Lancer," he said.

A crew of four city employees supervised by Councilman Watt Hale, and assisted by a mower operated by City Water & Gas System employees, is clearing vacant lots of weeds and debris.

A drive for funds to continue the work will be started Friday morning, it was said.

The City Council at its Tuesday evening meeting named Mrs. Orville Cooley tax collector for 1960 taxes. A. C. Carter will continue as collector of delinquent taxes.

Mayor Leslie said the city continues to be financially "in the black, although we're operating on a shoestring." He said all bills were paid Tuesday and that the outlook is that September obligations also will be met.

AUTO THIEF JAILED HERE

Missing Car Recovered On Ball Creek; Robbery Of Store Is Unsolved

Theft of an automobile here was quickly solved Saturday night, but a burglary and attempted theft of an office safe the following night is another matter.

Soon after Ex-Sheriff M. T. Stumbo had reported as missing the 1960 Chevrolet owned by his son, Bill Stumbo, news of an automobile wreck on Bull Creek was received. Deputy sheriff Lonnie Herald and State Trooper Allen quickly determined that the missing car had figured in a collision with a truck owned by Ashland Gearheart, of Bull Creek. Driver of the car had fled, but the trail led to a home on Town Branch where inspection of the suspect's shoes showed that (See Story No. 4, Page 5)

'More Pleasant Vista' Not Seen By Casual Visitor At Caney Cr.: Dedication of Dormitory Slated

When Caney Junior College dedicates its newest building, September 18, the visitor for the first time at remote Pippa Passes will view with wonderment the physical results of years of dedicated effort.

The occasion will be the dedication to its educational work of Caney Alumni Dormitory, which, says Mrs. Alice Lloyd, revered founder of the school, "my graduated students have built and given to their college."

Kentucky's Governor Bert Combs will speak at Cushing Hall at 2 p.m.; friends of the famed school and visitors "from all over" will inspect the campus, nestled between towering hills,

Hughes Is Named Caney Registrar; Assumes Duties

Caney Junior College announces the appointment of William R. Hughes, of Martin, as its new registrar.

Mr. Hughes assumed his duties Aug. 22, after having completed his master's degree work at Ohio University this summer. He has moved with his wife Betty and four children to a faculty house provided by the college.

The son of Joe Hughes, a coal miner of Buck's Branch, near Martin, he was graduated from Martin high school in 1948 and attended Caney Junior College to the spring of 1950. He taught one school term at Pitts Fork, in Pike county.

He then served in the Air Force for four years including assignments at Hamilton AFB, California, as an educational specialist, and in Korea with a special services unit. (See Story No. 3, Page 5)

DRAMA GROUP HIRES GREEN

Outdoor Drama Theme To Be Based on Story Of Borderland Heroine

Contractual terms between Paul Green, noted playwright of Chapel Hill, N. C., and the Jenny Wiley Drama Association were formally entered into Wednesday evening here for the writing and production of an outdoor play to be presented at Jenny Wiley State Park.

Officers of the drama corporation affixed their signatures to the Green contract at the offices of Marvin Music. A telephone conversation with Green ironed out last-minute changes in the agreement.

Production of an outdoor drama, based chiefly upon the Indian captivity of Jenny Wiley, is envisioned in the 1962 season. An amphitheater is planned at the park to seat 1,000 to 1,200 persons and construction will start next year.

Production of the play is part of the plan to develop the park. The Dewey Lake Master Plan committee that formulated a program presented its suggestions to the state government several months ago.

Plans, besides the play, include a golf course, lodge and dining room, cabins and corollary development.

Green, Pulitzer prize winner, author of "Wilderness Road," "The Common Glory," "The Stephen Foster Story," and other successful outdoor dramas, visited Prestonsburg and the park area in June to study production possibilities.

and the Caney "Village" of 25 or more structures with their romantic names. And they, Mrs. Lloyd, the Governor, faculty members and all the rest will picnic at noon in the Meadow.

The visitor will want to see, and the alumnus will want to return to, these spots, among others: The Shack, first structure to be erected on the campus; Barnswallow Library, so named because it was converted from a barn, and Barnswallow House where the librarian resides; Radcliffe, which is Mrs. Lloyd's office, named so for her alma mater; If, an office building named for Kipling's poem of the same name; and Pilot, Atlas, Sycamore, Up Yonder House, Star and Summerfield, Pippa Lodge, the Bee Hive, Gloria, Plankslides, the Eagle's Nest, Cushing Hall, Holton House, and, of course, The Firing Line.

The Spartan woman whose spirit, mind and hand have resulted in all this, will in all probability look farther than the others, however—far back down 40 years and to a long procession of mountain boys and girls who have gone in and out those doors, in search of the learning Mrs. Lloyd came from her native Boston to Pippa Passes to give them.

And hers will be the more pleasant vista: Light penetrating the gloom of ignorance; and buoyant young figures emerging from the shadows, many to take places of leadership where leadership was lacking.

Besides the hundreds who are teaching in smaller schools after leaving Caney, a recent brochure published by the college lists more than 130 doctors, dentists, technicians, nurses, educators, public officials (past and present), engineers, attorneys and ministers who first found opportunity (See Story No. 5, Page 2)

RESCUE SQUAD RAISES FUNDS

Two 'Roadblocks' Here Net $1,250; Response Exceeds Expectations

The glad readiness of out-of-state motorists—most of them Eastern Kentuckians visiting back home—to contribute to the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad was one of the most pleasing features of the Labor Day "roadblocks" maintained here and at Lancer, squad members said.

The 19 squad members who halted traffic to solicit funds were pleasantly surprised with contributions totaling approximately $1,250. Of this total, $1,000 is expected to be applied on the squad's building indebtedness, with the remainder held in reserve as operating capital.

"Ohio and Michigan drivers were the ones who gave most freely, but the general response was so generous that it made us feel that the work we have tried to do is really appreciated," one member commented. He told of an Ohio car that was halted.

"Glad to give," he quoted the driver as saying. "A squad similar to yours saved my child's life. I've got only 37 cents, but you're welcome to that.

The Emergency & Rescue Squad asked that its appreciation to all who helped be expressed.

STRIP-MINING IS OPPOSED

Letcher Countians Ask Combs To Call Session Of General Assembly

Opposition to strip-mining in Eastern Kentucky, particularly to several hundred acres in Letcher county, resulted this week in the circulation of petitions to Governor Bert T. Combs. The petitioners asked the governor to call a special session of the Legislature to prohibit this form of coal recovery in the mountains.

Controversy in Letcher county broke out when it was revealed Elk Horn Coal Company had executed a lease to Greer-Ellison Coal Company, an out-of-state firm, presumably for strip-mining. The lessee was moving heavy equipment last week into the area around Neon, Fleming, Cremona and Jackson.

W. W. Goldsmith, president of Elk Horn Coal Company, took exception to an editorial in the Mountain Eagle, Whitesburg weekly, that charged the lessee was an out-of-state firm, and in a letter to the editor, defended Elk Horn.

Goldsmith's letter follows: "A recent count disclosed that Elk Horn had stockholders in forty-three of the states and in Canada. Kentucky had thirty-nine. This is a small percentage of the total but there were only seven states with more stockholders than Kentucky.

"We will welcome more Kentucky shareholders. Elk Horn stock has been available to Kentuckians on the open market for forty years. In times past it sold as low as fifteen cents a share. Currently it is selling (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

MAYO IS FIRST DEAN FOR NEW LAW CENTER

Louis Harky Mayo, a member of the law faculty of George Washington University since 1950, has been named first dean of the Graduate School of Public Law at the George Washington University's National Law Center, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Mayo is a son of Mrs. W. P. Mayo, of Lexington, and the late Mr. Mayo. He is a native of Prestonsburg and received his early education here.

Mayo has served as assistant dean and acting dean of the Law School. He will, in his new position, administer the planning and development of specialized programs of study, instruction and research in public law.

The programs will involve participation by other areas of the university, such as the School of Government, and the School of Medicine, and possibly other law schools. The Graduate School of Public Law was established as part of the National Law Center in Dec. 1959.

Mayo is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy. He received a Bachelor of Laws degree from the University of Virginia and a Doctor of Judicial Science from Yale University. He is a member of the American, Federal, District and Virginia bar associations. From 1940 to 1947 he served as a

Gov. Combs To Address Fund-Raising Banquet For Retarded Children

The radio auction for the benefit of the Floyd Council for Retarded Children will begin Sept. 20, day after the kick-off banquet is held at the Prestonsburg high school cafeteria, it was said this week.

Gov. Bert Combs will be the speaker at the banquet. Tickets for the event went on sale last week.

Mrs. D. C. Stephens will be chairman of the radio auction, which, as in the past, will be handled through the facilities of Radio Station WERT. Auction headquarters will be in the Fitzpatrick building, on Lake Drive.

FOUR GIVEN PEN TERMS

Imposition of Sentence Of Three Convicted Here Withheld Until January

Pen terms of one year each were imposed on four Floyd circuit court defendants in the first two days of the September term this week.

The defendants were James Campbell, charged with child desertion, and Silas Patrick, Earl Patrick and Sherman Napier who were indicted on a charge of breaking and entering Western Associate Store at Martin.

Sentence on the two Patricks and Napier will not be pronounced, however, until the January court term. Meanwhile, they remain at liberty under the bond each had previously executed. Charges against Bessie Farley and Ruby Napier, who were indicted with the three men, were dismissed.

Sherman Napier sought a continuance of his case but when this was denied by Judge Hill the three entered pleas of guilty.

Two others were convicted on liquor-selling counts. Howard Slone entered a plea of guilty and was fined $20 and jailed 30 days. Melv Click stood trial, was fined $50 and given a 30-day jail term. Peace bond of $1,000 was required of each.

Click's demurrer to the indictment against him was overruled, and the Commonwealth's motion to amend the indictment as to date was granted. Then the defense attorney's request that the search warrant be produced was denied. An appeal was indicated.

Many cases were marked, "alias and continued." Three were dismissed: Robert Hicks, grand larceny, filed away, subject to being reindicted; Raymond Caudill, child desertion, defendant in prison; Paul Kendrick, selling mortgaged property, marked, "evidence insufficient to convict."

FOUR GRANTS AID SCHOOLS

For Retarded Children At Prestonsburg, Martin; Total Received $16,800

The Moral Side of the News Panel of ministers has released figures of special interest to residents of Floyd county.

A total of $16,800 has been given in four grants toward support of the schools being operated by the Floyd County Council for Retarded Children at Martin and Prestonsburg.

In 1959, $1,800 was given toward operating costs of three classes for retarded children.

According to the panel of ministers, children from this area also benefited by grants totaling $283,903 which were allocated to agencies serving afflicted youngsters all over the state. These grants included $49,839 for projects at Central State hospital, operated by the Kentucky Department of Mental Health; $44,600 for the inauguration and operation of a cancer clinic for children now at St. Joseph's Infirmary; $85,000 for the treatment of severely crippled children who require it over an extended period of time at the Rehabilitation Center in Louisville; $28,851 to the Kentucky School for the Blind, used for the construction of a kindergarten and purchase of library books for supplemental reading material; $22,800 for training of teachers who deal with handicapped children. The training grants underwrote workshops at the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville. $21,000 went to the Kentucky Society of Crippled Children to be used in support of its program for youngsters with speech and hearing handicaps. Some $14,000 was allocated to the Cleft Palate and Harelip Foundation Clinic; $7,800 to the Dental School at the University of Louisville for treatment of cerebral palsied children, as well as those suffering from cleft palate and harelip afflictions; $2,500 to equip an operation room at Children's hospital; $1,700 to the Kentucky Association for Retarded Children.

BALDRIDGE - BRADLEY VOWS EXCHANGED SEPTEMBER 3rd

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Baldrige, of Court street, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Judith Ann, to Mr. Edward Everett Bradley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Franklin Bradley, of Paintsville, on Saturday, Sept. 3. In a candle-light service the double-ring ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Harold Dorsey of the Pikeville Methodist Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Patty Baldrige, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mr. Donald Dewey Baldrige, brother of the bride, served Mr. Bradley as best man.

The bride wore a waltz-length, chianti lace dress, a full skirt with bustle effect, draped in a bow at the back. The fitted bodice had long, fitted sleeves coming to a point at the hands. The neckline was rounded at the shoulder. Tiny rhinestone buttons fastened the blouse in the back. Fastened to a tiara of pearls and lace was the full veil, falling to the shoulders. She carried a white Bible covered with a cascade of satin ribbons, with stapanotis tied in bows from a white orchid centered on the Bible.

The maid of honor wore a blue polished cotton with overskirt of white cotton, embroidered in blue, attached to a fitted blouse of the same material. The tunic skirt was caught in a bow in the back at the waistline. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Baldrige, mother of the bride, wore a pink, embroidered sheath dress with black accessories. Mrs. Bradley, mother of the groom, wore a lime-green fitted cotton trimmed in white, and a straw picture hat.

Following the ceremony a reception was given. The bride's table was covered with a Quaker lace cloth, centered with the four-tiered, decorated cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom and flanked by duo-crystal prism candelabra with white candles. Mrs. Ruth D. Sowards presided at the punch bowl. The wedding cake was served with nuts and mints to the bride and groom, Rev. Harold Dorsey, Pikeville; Mr. and Mrs. Everett F. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Williams, Charles Dewey Williams, of Paintsville; Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Crawford, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Delano Bellew, Niles, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Benny Richard Brewer, Pikeville; Jim Lyons, Sandy Hook; Miss Jann Holbrook and Mrs. Joe M. Davidson.

Mrs. Bradley is a graduate of Prestonsburg high school and Mayo Vocational School. Mr. Bradley will graduate in November from Mayo Vocational School. He is a graduate of Paintsville high school. Immediately following the reception they left for a honeymoon at Virginia Beach.

SIXTH DISTRICT MEETING OF D.A.R. HELD AUG. 22

The Sixth District of the Daughters of the American Revolution met Aug. 22, at the Paintsville Country Club, with Harman Station and John Graham Chapters as hostesses chapters.

The meeting was arranged by Mrs. George Cushing, district chairman, and member of Pogue Chapter. Mrs. Robert C. Hume, state vice-regent, was the general chairman.

Harold Cooley, of Prestonsburg, gave the assembly call, followed by the color bearers and processional of the state officers, state chairmen, district chairmen, Sixth district regents and pages.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Robert C. Hume, state vice-regent and general chairman. She introduced Mrs. Ridda S. Findlayson, regent of Harman Station Chapter, Paintsville. Mrs. Findlayson welcomed the assembly with a historical review of the early settlers of the Big Sandy valley who settled at Harman's Station, in Floyd county, and the capture and heroic escape of Jenny Wiley, Mrs. Edward May, regent of John Graham Chapter, Prestonsburg, extended greetings to all who were there to enjoy the natural scenic beauty of the foothills of the Cumberland Mountains. Mrs. Hugh L. Russell, member of Pogue Chapter, Ashland, responded to the hospitable welcome of the two hostesses chapters.

Mrs. Russell recalled early expressions of the pioneers, who often spoke of Eastern Kentucky as "Big Sandy Against the World." This theme was quoted throughout the day, in D.A.R. Chapter reports and accomplishments through the past years.

Mrs. Hume presented Mrs. Fred Osborne, state vice-president, Mrs. Hugh L. Russell, museum chairman, Mrs. Wilson Evans, recording secretary, Mrs. C. W. Rhodes, state treasurer, Mrs. E. L. Porter, state historian, Mrs. J. Everett Bach, state librarian, Miss Virginia Klaren, state president of the Children of the American Revolution. Mrs. Frank D. Cooper sang the Lord's Prayer, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Robert A. Conley.

At the morning session, Mrs. Osborne gave an interesting report of the work of the Society the past year. At noon a buffet luncheon was served.

Mrs. George Cushing, Sixth district chairman, presided at the afternoon session. She introduced state chairmen who gave their reports. Mrs. Herman Wheeler, chairman of the American Indians, asked for contributions for the education of the Indians. Mrs. W. W.

Weis reported on the D.A.R. Magazine, Mrs. Wilburn Walker urged the chapters to copy Bible records, court records and any historical or genealogical records available. Mrs. Laura Dickerson offered many subjects and historic slides to be used in programs. Mrs. W. E. Bach, chairman of Revolutionary soldiers' graves, asked all chapters to locate and mark all graves. Mrs. Wilson Evans, recording secretary, called the roll to which 114 responded. Mrs. D. H. Dorson, Sr., gave the Prayer for World Peace.

Pages to the state officers and convention were Lida Margaret Howard, Harriet Ann Sandige, Susan Ribble, Elizabeth Archer May, Norma Jean Mayo, Greer Litten, Alice Payne Brown, and Jane Kendrick. Page chairmen were Mrs. Mary Auxier Ford, Mrs. D. B. Howard, Mrs. T. E. Marcum. The Courtesy committee prepared a report which was read by Mrs. Pauline Blair of the Morgan County Chapter. Movement To Lessen Truancy In Schools of Prestonsburg Made By Presbyterian Women

Presbyterian women here have launched an undertaking in which they hope to be joined by others.

A resolution signed by 18 women of the church pledges them to "focus attention and action on the problems of our town, endeavoring to work to strengthen the public schools," with attention to be given specifically to school truancy.

The resolution will be presented to the Parent-Teacher Association at its meeting tonight (Thursday) in the hope that other parents and teachers will join the movement, and it also will go before the Local Council of Churchwomen at its next meeting, with active cooperation from that source also to be sought.

"We are not advertising our own women—we want all who will to take an active part," a spokesman for the group said.

The resolution reads, in part: "We feel that one of the most positive actions for benefitting our community and its citizens of tomorrow is to be concerned about truancy. Therefore we will make every effort to cooperate with the local truant officer in doing whatever we can to keep our youth in school, reporting known cases of truancy, providing material needs where necessary and offering encouragement to truantees at every opportunity."

Mrs. Gracie McCoy, Sister of Floyd Man, Succumbs In Toledo, O.

Mrs. Gracie McCoy, 66, died at 8:30 p.m., Aug. 28, in the Park View hospital in Toledo, Ohio, after suffering a stroke. She was the sister of Overton Wiley, of Wheelwright.

The daughter of Dave and Virgie Ward Wiley, she was born at White House, July 27, 1894. She had made her home in Toledo for the past three years.

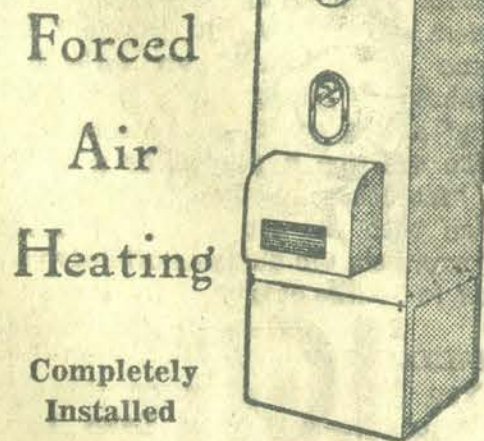

Her husband, Lon McCoy, preceded her in death June, 1938.

Surviving are three sons, Dave and Jim McCoy, Toledo, O.; Frank McCoy, Findlay, O.; two daughters, Helen McCoy, Toledo, O.; Juanita SESCO, Pikeville; three other brothers, Everett Wiley, Homer, Mich.; Odie and Paul Wiley, both of White House; two sisters, Mamie Kidd, Harold; Lillian Roberts, Dayton, O. Also surviving are six grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m., Friday, Sept. 2, from the White House church with Dock Burland as officiating minister. Burial was in the Wiley cemetery at White House.

MISS BABB WEDS MR. WRIGHT

Miss Marsha Lee Babb, daughter of Mrs. Martha Babb, of Martin, became the bride of Mr. Ronald Julian Wright, of Prestonsburg, Sunday, July 24, at the Martin Church of Christ.

John Paul Billiter performed the double-ring ceremony in a setting of greenery, white gladioli and tapers. Traditional wedding music was provided by Mrs. Jobie Click, Jr. Given in marriage by her grandfather, the bride wore a floor-length wedding gown of imported chantilly lace and tulle, fashioned with lace-edged V-neck line, closely molded bodice, tiny cap sleeves, and bouffant skirt, worn over a bridal hoop, with lace-edged tulle over skirt. Her fingertip veil of French illusion severed her lace half-bonnet, edged in tiny seed pearls. She carried a lace prayer book topped with pink rosebuds.

Her attendants were Mrs. Joe Hackworth, of Martin, and Miss Barbara Sue Marshall, of Manton. Mrs. Hackworth wore green organza over taffeta with bouffant skirt with scoop neckline. Miss Marshall wore matching yellow organza. Their flowers were colonial bouquets of green and yellow carnations.

The flower girl was Sue Ellen McComas, cousin of the bride. The ring bearer was Gary Michael Wright, nephew of the groom.

Elder Gary Wright, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Charles Douglas Dings, of Martin, and Joe Hackworth, also of Martin.

The mother of the bride wore a white sheath, embroidered in blue with matching accessories and white carnations.

The groom's mother wore a blue linen sheath with navy blue accessories and white carnations.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Wilson. Following the reception the couple left for a wedding trip through the Cumberland Mountains.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. C. E. James, Raceland, Ky.; Mrs. Ray Eggleton, Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. Ora Chrisman, Akron, Ohio; Mrs. Edwin McComas, Sandusky, Ohio; H. O. Wilson, Jr., and family, Dayton, Ohio; Don Polly and Sharon Burbank, Commins, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, Jr., Prestonsburg; Mrs. L. E. Roberts and daughter, of Langley; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Craft and sons, of Paintsville; Mrs. Jim Walters, of Lexington; Mrs. Edward Easter, of Ashland; Rev. LeRoy Sanders, Elkhorn City.

TEENAGER'S DAY NEEDS GOOD BREAKFAST AS "TAKE-OFF"

The "take-off" is important—not only in launching a satellite but in launching a good day at school, too. A good breakfast gives you the take-off you need for a successful day, according to Elizabeth Helton, University of Kentucky Extension specialist in foods and nutrition.

A good breakfast starts a girl off to school with the sparkle and clear complexion that gives the right finishing touch to her new school clothes. Miss Helton points out. For the boys, a good breakfast helps them have the physical stamina to make the "first string" on the team instead of just "warming the bench."

around fifteen dollars a share. Perhaps we would have more Kentucky shareholders if Kentuckians had as much faith in the future of their coal reserves as out-of-staters have.

"Your reference to our headquarters being at Charleston contains a half-truth. We also maintain headquarters at Wayland in your neighboring county of Floyd. The staff and payroll at Wayland are larger than the staff and payroll at Charleston. Furthermore, with one exception, all members of the Wayland staff are native Kentuckians as are three of the six members of the Charleston staff. I am unable to claim that distinction for myself.

On Tuesday, Aug. 2, I attended ground-breaking ceremonies on the Big Sandy River near Louisa for a new $39,000,000 power plant. Like Elk Horn, control of the company building this plant is owned by non-Kentuckians and its President and other officials reside outside of the state. Also, like Elk Horn it will engage in exporting Kentucky coal by transporting it into electricity and shipping current out of the state. I heard no criticism of these ceremonies. On the contrary, they seemed glad to have "out-of-state firms" and "out-of-state interests" invest their money in Kentucky.

Why do you need a good breakfast? In the morning you literally break the long fast since your night meal. Your body's supply of energy from yesterday's food is almost gone by morning. You need "energy foods" for breakfast to give you the pep you need for morning activities.

What is a good breakfast? Breakfast should include one-fourth of the calories and one-fourth of the protein you need during the day. A whole-grain or enriched cereal, toast or hot biscuits will furnish the energy you need. A protein-rich food—an egg, a glass of milk, or both—will help prevent a mid-morning slump. You need vitamin C every day, too, and drinking orange juice for breakfast is a good way to get it, she recommends.

Don't let the lack of breakfast rob you of pep and good looks. September is Better Breakfast Month, Miss Helton says. For the rest of the month, why not try getting out of bed a few minutes earlier and eating a good breakfast? Your school day will go much better and you'll want to make breakfast a year-round habit.

TIMES WANT ADS PAY

Quick payment of employees' salaries was voted. Such payment will hereafter be made on the first of each month or as early as claims are filed indicating salaries are due and payable. The board had earlier voted to pay employees in 10 monthly payments instead of the nine payments heretofore made. It is estimated that by filing claims promptly teachers and other employees will under the new order be paid 10 days earlier than in the past.

Another order authorized payment by the board of $10 a month toward a janitor's salary at the Prater Creek school, with the Parent-Teacher Association and teachers supplementing the janitor's pay. The same aid will be given by the board to all other four-room schools with indoor toilet facilities if the same local help is given.

Bids will be asked on the G. B. Hall school, on Frazier's Creek. The school has been abandoned and its pupils now attend the McDowell consolidated school. Sam Cook was employed at a salary of $25 a month to transport physically handicapped children to the Banner school, and the board authorized the Superintendent to negotiate for the transporting of five children to the school for the retarded at Martin.

The board voted to advertise for bids for material to be used in the construction of a walk-in cooler for the Harold school, the school to pay for the materials and maintenance employees of the board to do the work. Final payment was made to R. C. Dyer, contractor, and Scott & Perry, architects, upon the completion of the restoration job on the Melvin school. Boiler insurance was renewed with the Spurlin Insurance Agency, and insurance on the new grade school building at McDowell was awarded to the Ralph Allen Insurance Agency.

Recommendation by the Superintendent of five certified teachers for employment was approved. These are: Gladys Leshore Branch, Wheelwright colored school; Gordon Moore, assistant principal, Prestonsburg high school; J. O. Dingus, assistant principal, Martin high school; Eugyle Martin, Drift, and James Montgomery, Prestonsburg vocational shop.

Other teachers employed:

Fish and Wildlife Conservation Subject of State Essay Contest

Kentucky grade and high school students interested in fishing and hunting and the importance of conserving the state's fish and wildlife resources should be able to qualify for lots of prizes in the 1960 Soil Conservation Essay Contest this fall.

The subject of the 17th annual essay contest is "How Fish and Wildlife Conservation Benefits My Community."

This was announced by Barry Bingham, President of The Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times and WHAS, Inc., Dr. Wendell P. Butler, state superintendent of public instruction, and A. Threlkeld, president of the Kentucky Association of Soil Conservation Districts.

Winners in the contest will receive $3,250 in U. S. Savings Bonds. State awards of $100, $75 and $50 bonds will go to the top three winners. A $25 bond will be presented to the writer of the winning essay in each of the state's 121 soil conservation districts.

In addition to the bond prizes, the three top winners, their parents and teacher will receive all-expense-paid trips to attend the 23rd annual Farm Awards Luncheon in Louisville next February.

Certificates of merit will go to the winner and runner-up in each county as well as to the writer of the best essay in each school.

The contest has been hailed by Dr. Butler as a program through which "young people throughout Kentucky will come to realize the importance of fish and wildlife conservation to their community and state."

Last year 35,588 students entered the essay contest through their schools. Superintendents and principals throughout the state have been sent complete details about this year's contest.

Reference materials are being made available by the State Department of Education and the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources at Frankfort.

Teachers and educators, soil conservation officials, county and home demonstration agents and members of the fish and wildlife department and the Division of Soil and Water Resources are joining in the effort to make the 17th annual contest the largest ever. All these persons and the agencies have information about the contest, or it can be obtained by writing the Public Service Department, The Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times, WHAS, Inc., Louisville 2, Kentucky.

Mrs. Mollie H. Tussey, Age 71, of Dock, Victim; Rites Slated Saturday

Mrs. Mollie Harmon Tussey, 71, of Dock, died Wednesday, at 2 p.m., at home. She was the victim of a heart condition from which she had suffered several years.

Mrs. Tussey was a daughter of the late Richard and Julia Skeens Harmon, and the wife of Green Tussey, who survives. She was a member of the Methodist church.

Surviving sons and daughters are Harmon Tussey and Mrs. Nora Fitzpatrick, both of West Prestonsburg, Joe Tussey, of David, Frank Tussey and Mrs. Kathleen Ousley, both of Dock, Mrs. Bess Hayes, Portsmouth, Va., and Mrs. Josephine Blackburn, Springfield, Mass. Two sisters, Mrs. Sallie Stephens, West Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hayes, of Ashland, survive.

Funeral rites will be conducted at 1 p.m., Saturday, at the home, and burial will be made in the Tussey cemetery under the direction of Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

STUMBO MAKES STATEMENT

I wish to thank Mrs. W. D. Osborne for her endorsement, and her confidence in me that I will stand for the very best schools possible for all the children of Floyd County.

I also wish to again thank Ray Howard and John G. Hall for their endorsement. I appreciate this vote of confidence, and I covet the endorsement of all parents who are interested in good schools.

HOWEVER, I wish to make my position clear. I am an independent candidate for Board of Education and not committed to anyone or any group. Furthermore, I shall vote for those things which I think are good for the schools, and against those things which I think are bad for the children and teachers of Floyd County.

Fifty years ago when logging declined in the Big Sandy Valley many of the woodsmen migrated to West Virginia to work. This picture, taken on the Grand River in West Virginia, shows a Floyd countian, John Coffee, (between horses) with a logging crew from here.

Logging began on a commercial basis in the Big Sandy Valley around 1840 and almost stopped, except for Federal gunboat timber, during the Civil War. The industry revived immediately following the war and reached its peak in the 1880's. Catlettsburg was the greatest hardwood market in the world in the latter part of the 1880-1890 decade.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of our past as a bit of its friendly service with the hope they will contribute to your understanding of our historic heritage.

Some Go Out -- and Others Wait

A Courier-Journal headline says, "Elkton Goes after Industry," and the story that follows tells of what that town has done toward getting what it is after.

Elkton is a Todd county town of 1,300. It has one bank with assets of $2 1/2 million. Its one major industry, a men's work-clothing factory, employs 200 women. Elkton is no gold rush town; nobody has ever referred to it as "the garden spot of the world," "a coming metropolis" or as "a modern Eden."

But it does seem to be an ordinary town with a rather full quota of unusual people.

A few days more than two months ago this southern Kentucky town launched one of the most ambitious community improvement programs in the state. Its leaders decided, as have those of many the other community, that what Elkton needed most was new industry. Then the question arose, "But what does Elkton have to offer industry?"

After that they got down to business. At the end of 66 action-packed days Elkton has two attractive industrial sites to offer, one within a stone's throw of its courthouse.

A 35 by 75-foot swimming pool has been built, with a tennis court at the rear of the pool; a nine-hole golf course with grass greens is under construction. Along with these facilities, which fall under the general heading of the Todd County Recreation Center, a comprehensive recreation program has been developed: Teen Town, Little League and Pony League baseball, adult softball, free movies for children at a Community House.

The women had a big hand in that community undertaking. A Woman's Auxiliary was organized and within 10 days the ladies had raised between $12,000 and $13,000 for the swimming pool, tennis court and golf course fund. An additional $20,000 was borrowed. The 120-year-old courthouse was given a $6,000 dressing up.

And now the 1,300 people of Elkton are ready to meet, head-on, the big job of building a sewer system and a sewage disposal plant at a cost of $500,000.

Elkton is ready to talk business with any industry. It is ready, both physically and in its community spirit. Elkton goes out after industry. Prestonsburg, a community much larger, far wealthier, and many other towns, wait for industry.

From Cooper, True; From Morton, No!

Nobody can with complete honesty deny that Senator John Sherman Cooper worked faithfully and effectively for federal appropriations needed to begin work on the Fishtrap reservoir on the Big Sandy. He has been so dedicated to flood control and water conservation that he joined Democrats in overriding President Eisenhower's veto, daring even to risk Presidential displeasure.

But when he joins Senator Thurston B. Morton in statements to the effect that both have a keen interest in Fishtrap, he loses the overall effect of sincerity. The two Senators only last week joined in saying:

"The flood losses inflicted have been a tremendous burden to carry by a people of limited resources—resources already undergoing serious economic impairment. The constant erosion by floods of physical resources has, throughout the years, also led to an erosion of morale at a time when all possible courage is needed. The people have been unanimous in their support of Fishtrap; their patience and forbearance have been exemplary, and we strongly feel that construction should be started without delay."

As a statement from Senator Cooper this rings true. As Senator Morton's it smacks of double-talk. As a joint statement it is pure eyewash. For Senator Morton has by voting to uphold the President's veto of Big Sandy reservoir appropriations clearly shown to the people that his real interest is far from the people of the Big Sandy and that this is so because of his political loyalty to a man named Dwight Eisenhower, in the White House, rather than to a guy named Smith or Jones, on the Big Sandy.

Indeed our "patience and forbearance have been exemplary." It is when we get an over-dose of lip service that that patience and forbearance fail us.

Requiem to a "Grass Harp"

Sad requiem was recently sounded by The New York Times for a New York "resident" whose noble life had ended after 290 years. It is a requiem that might be as dolefully sounded, the nation over, as many thousands such as this "old resident" pass on, more often than not unmourning.

The Times' editorial obituary follows:

The deceased, the Greeley oak in Chappaqua, N. Y., died in a proud but denuded fashion, its long graceful limbs reaching helplessly into a summer sky where a stiff of white cloud was its only attendant. The tree, in a better day, had stood in the yard of Horace Greeley, once editor of the New York Tribune. Its long arms and thick clusters of leaves forming an umbrella against the sun or rain. On summer days, it is said, the editor's daughter waited in the great cathedral of shade, among mingled shadows and bird-song, for her famous father to return home from his newspaper office. An unknown multitude of fortunate birds through the years had built nests in the trembling grass harp of the big tree.

First aid, administered to the tree in its dying days, failed and orders had been given to chop it down. Cause of death was listed by coroner-arborist Bewhrst Wade, as a dispicable little insect, the golden oak scale that sucks the sap.

However, the tree had not appeared healthy since two years ago when an identical tree—so close that in places the branches were intertwined—died and was chopped down and carted away. The Greeley oak was left alone to contemplate the tunes of the birds that constantly twittered about in the high branches and dropped down bits of straw and weeds while, building their nests. Together the trees had been planted and together they watched through the years the procession of a strange history. Bullets that missed their mark during the Revolutionary War were removed from the earlier deceased when it was chopped down.

Meanwhile the 500-year-old Bedford oak near Bedford Village preens itself as it flounces its 150 feet armspread in a vain attempt to look "not a day over 400." Amazingly, (and thanks to its healthy leaves that shade a row of mailboxes) it has succeeded.

But for those who mourn the passing of the famed Greeley oak there is a ray of hope and encouragement. How many acorns must have shivered from its abundant branches during its almost three century span and how many other lofty oaks must not spread copious branches over the landscape. As long as there are remnants of an existent there is not really an ending.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

CHANGING CONCEPTIONS OF AGE

Just this week there died one of our educational patriarchs at Bowling Green. Conscious to the end of his days, he even suggested who should be his pallbearers. One of the men mentioned is away past ninety; when this man's name was mentioned, one of the family suggested that he would be too frail to lift. "But he can follow," said the dying patriarch. Somehow that does me good, for I have known the two old men for well over a half century, two active, intelligent men who have been and remain a very large part of our town. I never heard either of the two apologize for being older than many of us; they did not have time to sit down and cry, like another Jeremiah, because things were not ideal. They were forever doing something about the present world, the one in which they had lived so long and so well.

Present Constitution Signed By F. A. Hopkins, Floyd County Delegate

No one alive today has actually seen our present Constitution.

That Constitution was signed by F. A. Hopkins who was Floyd county's delegate to the 1890 Constitutional Convention, which revised the 1849 Constitution. That Constitution is also missing.

The missing 1890 Constitution was written in a beautiful script by William Randall Ramsey, delegate from Laurel and Rockcastle counties.

Samples of Ramsey's handwriting are on file at the Historical Society in Frankfort along with signatures of all the other delegates to that convention.

What we use today as our Constitution is plainly labeled "typewritten copy" on the cover; no one knows where the original is, or even if it still exists.

Co-chairmen of the Bipartisan Committee for Constitution improvement, Ned Breathitt, Democrat, and Marlowe Cook, Republican, stressed the need for a good look at our out-moded Constitution, speaking recently at the opening of that organization's headquarters in Louisville.

Cook said, "The issue appearing on the November ballot is simply to call a convention to study 12 specific areas in our Constitution." He said, "The Constitution was last revised in 1890 to adjust to changes which had taken place in our state during the 50 years since the last convention."

"Transcripts from that convention show," said Cook, "that an overwhelming majority of delegates believed the Constitution should be up-dated as the times demanded." Since 1890, we have gone 70 years without revision.

Breathitt said, "When the voters agree to the convention issue, the delegates to that meeting will be elected by the people to simply make recommendations for revision which will be subject to the voters final approval or rejection in a general election."

"The voters will have the final say--so in this matter," Breathitt said.

Away back in my life many people felt that age was at hand when sixty years or so had rolled around. And, because of the health conditions then prevailing, most such people were actually old. Denistry was almost wholly a matter of having teeth extracted, not kept for further use. Malaria and all of its accompanying ills broke people down early. And health itself was rarely talked about: people were too busy talking about aches and pains. When I recall Fidelity and my early years there, I know that even the whitest-bearded old men were no older than I now am, and some of them were probably ten years younger. When they could no longer follow the plow, they were old, almost contemporaries or rivals of Methuselah. What else could they do for their remaining years but nurse their aches and talk about time long past?

Longfellow, reading a poem to his class at its fiftieth anniversary at Bowdoin, lifted his voice in praise of what old age can still do. He mentioned many a great man who had added distinction to his country by work done after three score and ten years had gone by. I have often wished that a sort of postscript to this great poem could be written, naming some of our own great Americans who kept into their eighth or even ninth decade some of the ability that made them famous earlier: Oliver Wendell Holmes the poet, his great son of the Supreme Court, Bernard Baruch, Longfellow himself, and such old-timers as Thomas Jefferson and John Adams.

Just this week I led a group of science teachers on a long bird hike at Mammoth Cave National Park. Since I had retired a year ago, many of them, former students and long-time acquaintances, delighted me by regarding age as something hardly of the calendar. I could not help contrasting their comments on the activities of the older people with what I used to hear. These mature but not old science teachers have acquired a feeling that there is something besides years in considering age, until the years begin to pile up too high. Even the youngest students that I taught in my last year had ceased to regard forty as an advanced age and did not seem especially surprised to find their teacher all of seventy.

If some enterprising statistician decided to see what is being done in my town by people who are past sixty, he would come up with some startling figures: one distinguished judge is past eighty-five, an active business man is eighty, and men of a mere sixty seem up-and-coming youngsters to many of us who knew them when they were babies and, maybe, taught their parents. When the oldest himself gives up the struggle, there is no very safe way of deciding when he is old or licked.

First Plane Ride Taken By 70-Year-Old Visitor

Seventy-year-old Della Allen took her first air trip last Sunday when she flew from David to her home in Mt. Clemens, Mich. Mrs. Allen had been visiting her granddaughter, Mrs. Carl Wise, and when time came for her return there was Labor Day week-end traffic to breast, all the way to Michigan.

So she accepted Mr. Wise's offer to fly her home. The trip was over in four and a half hours, and one of the scenes Mrs. Allen watched with great interest during the flight were the hundreds of cars traveling, bumper-to-bumper, along the highways below.

Result of the trip may be that Mr. Wise has a flying job, anytime she decides to travel. "No more cars, buses and trains for me," Mrs. Allen told him.

HISTORY GROUP HEARS LEXINGTON HISTORIAN

"As a border state Kentucky's position during the Civil War was very like that of Missouri and Maryland," Dr. Hambleton Tapp, Kentucky historian, told the Floyd County Historical Society at its annual meeting here August 27. "But as for unilateral action, the Blue Grass state acted in many ways differently from the other states."

Tapp, former assistant to the President of the University of Kentucky and now head of the Museum of Life and Labor at Lexington, pointed out the ways that Kentucky reacted under the impact of the doctrine of secessionism and the counter moves of those loyal to the Union.

"Kentuckians have to be different, it is often said," Tapp stated. "There was much reason for frequent shifting and changing tack, because in 1861 Kentucky was one of the most important states of the nation and both Union and Confederacy vied desperately for it. Lincoln said that he hoped God was on his side but that he must have Kentucky on his side. The stakes were high and many queer things were done."

The noted Kentucky historian dissertated on the traditional Union sentiment of the state showing how this was reflected in the election of 1860, when pro-Unionists gained control of both houses of the General Assembly although Gov. Beriah Magoffin was leaning toward neutrality or was actually pro-Southern.

Tapp reviewed the efforts to call a secession convention and how these moves were stymied by advocates of the Union. He showed statistically how the elections of 1861 reflected Union sentiment and detailed how the military organizations in the state leaned to the South. Both sides began recruiting in the state.

Early in 1861 Lieut. William Nelson visited his home in the state and reported to Lincoln that pro-Confederates controlled the military arms of the Blue Grass state. The pro-Union Home Guards were sent guns, Lincoln guns, through the efforts of Nelson. Neutrality ended in Kentucky when Gen. Leonidas Polk with a Confederate army occupied Columbus, in the extreme part of the state. Gen. U. S. Grant seized Paducah and the Confederate General Felix Zollicoffer poured Southern troops through Cumberland Gap into the state. Kentucky was to become a battleground.

Lieut. William Nelson, later Gen. Nelson, entered the mountain section, particularly the Big Sandy valley to drive the Confederates from West Liberty, Presonsburg and Pikeville. The Confederates were holding the area under the overall command of Col. James S. Williams and Lieut. Andrew Jackson May.

Defeated at West Liberty and Hazel Green, the Confederates under May fell back on Prestonsburg, finally decided to evacuate the town and make a stand at Ivy Creek. The poorly-armed Confederates were de-clay similar to that near the wreck scene had clung to the soles.

James Ray Coburn was arrested and booked at the county jail by the two officers, Deputy Sheriffs Paul Lucas and Wesley Fannin. There he readily admitted his guilt, explaining that he was drunk at the time he took the car. Coburn is under probation from Glendale, Herald said.

A break into the Williamson Supply Company store on Third street, sometime between Sunday and Monday morning, has not been solved. State Detective Chester D. Potter said no fingerprints were left.

Approximately $200 worth of merchandise was taken, Harvey Gunnell, manager of the business, said. Missing items include a fan, a power saw, a radio and an electric roaster. The office safe was moved to the office doorway, but the thieves abandoned it there and are believed to have been frightened away.

They effected entrance to the building by prying off the hasp of one lock, then breaking glass of the front door, reaching through the opening and unlocking a Yale lock inside.

Also booked at the jail were the following:

Ronie Neeley, no operator's license, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Wesley Fannin; James Justice, possessing beer and carrying a concealed deadly weapon, arrested in a raid by Sheriff Hershell Warrens, Deputy Sheriffs Joe Wheeler Lewis, James Hall, Robert Hall and Harold Johnson; Randolph Jacobs, drunk driving and no operator's license, booked by Wayland Policeman Troy Mullins and Deputy Sheriff Sherd Daniels; George Williams, drunk driving, arrested by Deputies Harold Johnson and James Hall.

feated at the Battle of Ivy Mountain, Nov. 8, 1861, and May moved his shattered force into Virginia. After this defeat of the Confederates, Gen. Nelson left the valley and it was quickly re-occupied by the rebels.

The next military event of importance in the Big Sandy valley, Dr. Tapp pointed out, was the Battle of Middle Creek, Jan. 10, 1862.

Gen. Humphrey Marshall entrenched his Confederate forces at the mouth of Spurlock and resisted the Unionists under Col. James A. Garfield for four hours, but the arrival of reinforcements for the Federals from Paintsville decided the issue. Marshall held on until dark, fired his stores and retreated. It was one of the first Union victories of any importance in the internecine struggle between the warring actions.

Garfield occupied Prestonsburg, January 11, found the place almost deserted. "I found the whole community in the vicinity of Prestonsburg had been stripped of everything like supplies for an army," Garfield reported to his superiors. "I could not find enough forage for my horses for over one day and so sent them back to Paintsville."

Marshall, in his report to Richmond, said, "The people herabouts are perfectly terrified or apparently apathetic. I imagine most of them are Unionists but so ignorant they do not understand the question at issue. . . . The people should learn they belong to the Southern Confederacy."

Garfield commandeered the John M. Burns home on North Second street, now occupied by Mrs. C. P. Stephens and known as Garfield Place. Here he issued directions for the burial of Pvt. Nelson Boggs in the Boggs cemetery on Big Blaine Creek. The 16-year-old Lawrence countyman, a member of the 14th Kentucky Infantry, U.S.A., had been killed in the fighting and his body brought to the Burns house.

Paroling a few prisoners and issuing a proclamation to the citizens of Big Sandy, Garfield set up military occupation of the region to preserve order and after again defeating the Confederates at the Battle of Pound Gap, left to join the Union forces at Shiloh.

Although Garfield was in the Big Sandy valley only a few weeks, he left a legacy of history and legend.

FLOYD COUNTY EXTENSION STAFF: ROBERT M. JONES JACK FRIAR FRANCES HOWLAND

PULLETS This year there was a new all time low, in the number of pullets started in the county. This trend carried over the county. Those that started a new flock should be in a very favorable position to sell their eggs at a premium.

Every effort should be made to get top production from pullets or old hens for that month.

Provide clean housing with two inches of dry litter. Provide plenty of ventilation both this fall and winter.

When pullets reach six months of age they should be housed. By this time production can be at a fairly high level. Feed a 20% laying mash and provide plenty of clean fresh water.

STRAWBERRY MULCH

Rather than wait until December to buy mulching material, buy straw now for strawberry mulch. Place straw bales in the patch, and let the rain soak the straw. This will prevent the weed seeds, and save many hours of weeding later on.

The University of Kentucky Experiment Station has determined how much straw to use. The results showed that one and one-half tons of straw per acre is the best amount to use. Yields from the one and two-ton plots was less than the one and one-half ton plots.

FALL FASHION

Simplicity is the keynote in fall fashion. "Fluid line" is the fashion term used to describe the easy fit of new fall clothes.

The top width of past seasons is less extreme this fall, although some width is shown in dropped shoulder lines, dolman sleeves or wider sleeves that often end just above or below the elbow. Skirts are slim, pleated or slightly gored; some are a little longer, with a few designers trying out lengths just above mid-calf. However, most garments are two to three inches below the knee. Keep yours at the most becoming length to you.

Except in fur, the very large collars have given way to smaller ones which often are small standing collars. Many necklines are collarless. In dresses, the newest line has bodice dropped one to two more inches below the normal waistline

Governor Bert T. Combs recently took the state government to Maysville for two days. His contacts with citizens were not confined to interviews in the temporary office set up there for residents stopped him on the street to ask questions or discuss problems. Mr. Hughes earned his B.S. and M.Ed. degrees at Ohio University Athens, Ohio, and served as principal of the Laurelville (Ohio) high school two years. He will combine teaching of American history with his work as registrar and will also assist in the college's bookkeeping.

In this work he succeeds Ralph E. Hiney, who died in Dec., 1959, after nearly 14 years at Caney Junior College.

Round-Up Sunday To Be Observed

The congregation of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church will observe Sunday, Sept. 14, as Round-Up Sunday in the church Sunday School and its mission Sunday Schools. The pastor stated that this is an effort to re-enlist all of those who have been away on vacation during the summer months and the beginning of the Fall program of church work. All members of the church have been contacted and urged to be present for this special occasion.

Mrs. Fanny W. Clifton, Age 63, Prestonsburg, Victim At Paintsville

Mrs. Fanny Wallen Clifton, 63, of Prestonsburg, succumbed to diabetes Friday at the Paintsville hospital following a long illness. She was the wife of Elmer Clifton, who survives.

A daughter of Newt and Nancy Jane Smith Wallen, she is survived by two daughters: Mrs. Carl Osborne and Mrs. Jane Crager, both of Detroit. Surviving is a step-son, Darwin Clifton, West Prestonsburg, and a foster son, Paul Randall, Palm Beach, Fla. Three brothers, Jack Wallen, West Prestonsburg; Walter and Oscar Wallen, both of Prestonsburg, survive. Three half-brothers, Alex Wallen and Butch Wallen, both of Dwale, and Elmore Wallen, of Emma, survive, as do 11 grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m., Tuesday, from a Town Branch church, the Revs. Ted Nelson, L. P. Tussey and Robert Martin officiating. Burial was made in the May cemetery under the direction of Moore Funeral Home.

New Railroad Tariffs To Favor Commodities In Selected Regions

The nation's major railroads have announced they will file a new tariff on freight commodities with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The proposed increases reflect the carriers' new philosophy of selective-area increases, in which an across-the-board increase with some exceptions is replaced by rate increase proposals based on such factors as commodity grouping and traffic types.

Under the new proposal, coal rates would be increased 7c per net ton and 8c per gross ton, with an increase of 4c per ton for lignite. Many exceptions or adjustments can be expected in an effort to preserve traffic or prevent its diversion to competing modes of transportation.

If the ICC permits, the new rates are to be filed within the next few days. The railroads say the increases are the lowest ever asked in a general freight rate proceeding. If approved, they will be the first general increases granted since Feb. 1, 1958.

A meeting of coal traffic men from the industry is tentatively scheduled for today (Thursday) in the Board Room of the Coal Building, with the railroad rate proposal the principal item to be discussed.

Deadline for filing by farmers for refunds on gasoline is Sept. 30, the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service agricultural economics department said this week.

PIGEON ROOST HAD SNAKES

And now to make this column just a bit more horrible we recount a story reaching us that has to do with snakes. This report says John L. Howard and two sons, of Pilgrim, Martin county, found a snake den around a rock while hunting July 20, on Pigeon Roost Fork of Wolfe Creek. One of the boys, it seems, has such an aversion to snakes that he withdrew to a safe distance, participating in the battle that ensued only to the extent of keeping his father and his brother supplied with rocks and sticks. And when the two of them had finished they counted 80 dead rattlers and copperheads. Ugh!

Mrs. Saloma S. Roush, Age 74, of Estill, Dies; Funeral Held Wednesday

Mrs. Saloma Sammons Roush, 74, of Estill, died Sunday at home. She was the widow of Phillip Roush who preceded her in death in 1959. She was a daughter of Dan Sammons. Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. May Powers, Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Amy Hanson, Tampa, Fla. Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Estill Free Will Baptist church, the Revs. Bill Amburgey and Green Boyd officiating. Burial was made in the Miners cemetery at Eastern under the direction of Carter and Callihan Funeral Home.

WELL, NOW! . . .

How sarcastic can some people get? The following is a prime example:
BE PATRIOTIC! BUY FOREIGN-MADE GOODS!
. . . because hundreds of foreign manufacturers have had U. S. machinery and "know how" handed out to them on a silver platter as foreign aid. Now we certainly owe them the courtesy of buying the stuff they produce with it!
. . . because dozens of U. S. firms have had to establish plants abroad in self-defense against exorbitant union demands. It's only fair that we encourage them to ship back to us what they make abroad. That gives us benefit of the low labor rates they obtain over there.
. . . because if we all pitch in and buy enough foreign goods, our labor unions won't have to stage costly strikes to force employers into paying workers more and more for doing less and less. We can all retire on unemployment compensation. Then we'll get paid for not working at all!
. . . because if we no longer buy things made by American manufacturers their profits will be reduced so that they won't have to pay high taxes any more. Even our government can stop fretting about the failure of so many stockholders to report their dividends as income. There just won't be any dividends!

Name of the postoffice at Mare Creek was changed to Stanville, Ky., effective September 1. The new name was suggested by Mrs. Willard Ratliff and was chosen to honor an early family, that of the late Judge Robert Edward Stanley.

WORKING WOMEN

The many working women in the U. S. demand food products that can be prepared quickly and easily for the table. Scientists in industry and government have responded with canned goods, dry biscuit mix, quick cooking rice, instant mashed potatoes, partly-baked rolls; packaged sliced cheese, and frozen orange juice concentrate.

DAVIS, AGED IVEL MAN IS VETERAN OF MINES

Robert Davis, 93, of Ivel, hale and hearty, poses for a picture near his home. He is one of the oldest of the 5,488 beneficiaries of the Social Security program in Floyd county.

A representative of the Social Security office at Pikeville secured an interview recently with Robert Davis, 93, of Ivel, found him at a general store several miles from home.

He had advice on longevity. "I never eat too much even when I am hungry," he said. "I have never been a man who would overload his stomach."

A retired coal miner, his longevity may be attributed in part to his habit of "watching the top," by which he mean looking for signs of an impending slate fall. A native of Boyd county, he spent 52 years in the mines and thinks it is safer than out, considering the automobile fatalities.

Davis, a resident of this county for 20 years, who began drawing Social Security benefits several years ago, is highly partial to the program now observing its 25th anniversary.

James A. Morris, Social Security representative, points out since 1940 more than twenty-eight thousand five hundred persons who began drawing benefits 20 years ago are still on the rolls. Six of these have crossed the century mark, 2,000 are over 90 years old and more than 26,000 are in their 80's.

Mr. Davis, in discussing this with Morris, said, "I'm 93 years young."

When Is Governor Disqualified To Act?

Of the 12 subjects that are included in the proposal to revise Kentucky's 69-year-old constitution, one of the most important is the section that relates to circumstances under which the governor is disqualified to act.

Kentucky's constitution leaves the state wide-open for a serious incident such as the recent Governor Earl Long problem in Louisiana that threw the government of that state into a turmoil. Louisiana's constitution, like Kentucky's, does not state what procedure is to be followed to determine if the governor is mentally or physically unable to perform his duties.

Kentucky's constitution states very clearly that under certain conditions, the governor should be replaced by the lieutenant governor. Section 84 says, "Should the governor be impeached and removed from office, die, refuse to qualify, resign, be absent from the state, or be, from any cause, unable to discharge the duties of his office, the lieutenant governor shall exercise all the power and authority appertaining to the office of governor until another be duly elected and qualified, or the governor shall return or be able to discharge the duties of his office."

The shortcoming of Kentucky's constitution is reflected in the phrase, "be, from any cause, unable to discharge the duties of his office." Who determines if the governor is unable to discharge his duties?

The Legislature? The Court of Appeals? The voters? Nobody knows, and until the constitution is revised on this point, nobody can possibly know.

Many people feel Kentucky's constitution should be revised to state clearly the procedure that would be followed to determine if the governor should be unfit for office.

Another part of the same section that has recently been criticized is the clause that says the governor loses all power of office when he leaves the state. This was written when Washington was a two-day journey from Frankfort. Today it is no more than two hours from Frankfort.

Kentucky had three governors last month—the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the president pro-tem of the Senate. Under Kentucky's constitution, which was written in the horse-and-buggy era, the next official in line becomes acting Governor, exercising all power and authority of office the minute the Governor crosses the state line. The acting governor, if he chose, could have called a special session of the Legislature, ordered out the militia, pardoned all convicts, and no one could have questioned his power.

The President of the United States can fly half-way around the world and still act as president, but the Governor of Kentucky ceases to be governor even if he crosses the Ohio River to have lunch in Cincinnati.

Today the governor can efficiently perform his duties even though he may be in another state. And recent governors have been required to travel out of state more and more to deal with today's problems.

The referendum to hold a limited constitutional convention will be voted on in the November 8 election. The November vote, however, does not authorize any changes in the constitution; it only authorizes the 100 delegates that would be elected two years from then, to recommend changes to improve the constitution. Kentuckians would then vote to accept or reject the revision made by the delegates.

DRIFT

SHOWS COLOR SLIDES OF IRELAND

The Drift Woman's Club met August 12, at the Turner Elkhorn office building, with the president, Mrs. W. L. Reed, presiding. Mrs. Fred Cochrane was hostess for the evening.

Mrs. Ben Martin, chairman of International Relations, introduced Reba Salyers. Miss Salyers showed slides she had taken while visiting in Ireland as an International Farm Youth exchange student.

The president announced the fall board meeting will be held at Hardinsburg, Sept. 21-23. An invitation was read from the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Club to a picnic in September. Twelve members plan to attend.

Members volunteered to do clerical work for the X-ray mobile unit and also help with the school clinic. The clinics have been scheduled for Drift, Sept. 5, and McDowell on Sept. 6.

Thirteen members were present. The next meeting will be Sept. 6, with Mrs. McKinnley Little as hostess.

Among those attending the Friendship Night of the Eastern Star Lodge in Prestonsburg, Friday evening, were Mr. and Mrs. Otis Wright and Mrs. Flora Gray.

The Price of Milk . . .

In 1890, 25 1/4 minutes of an average factory worker's time was required to earn one quart of milk; in 1958, 7 minutes, 6 seconds; in 1960, 6 minutes, 48 seconds.

PROCESSED MILK

The processed forms of milk—evaporated, condensed, and dry milk solids—all can be safely stored on a cupboard shelf. However, after cans of evaporated or condensed milk have been opened, they should go into the refrigerator. Dry milk solids will keep well at room temperature for several months if the container is tightly covered to keep out moisture.

Women Named To Plan Civil War Observance; Miss Gifford Directs

The core of a National Women's Committee of 100, to be made up eventually of two members from each state, was named recently to plan and carry out a full and nationwide program of observance marking the part played by women during the Civil War.

Announcement of the initial members of this group that will head up the nation's tribute to the unsung female heroes of its greatest struggle for survival was made by Miss Chloe Gifford, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She was chosen by the National Civil War Centennial Commission last spring to direct the women's observance of the forthcoming five-year series of commemorative programs.

Members already chosen for the committee are Miss Bertha S. Adkins, Undersecretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C.; the Honorable Margaret Stitt Church, congresswoman of Illinois; Mrs. Spessard Holland, wife of the senior senator from Fla.; Miss Mary Elizabeth Massel, of Rock Hill, S. C., author and leading authority on the subject of women during the Civil War.

"Many of us remember sitting at the knee of a fond grandfather or a favorite uncle and listening to them, for hours at a time, as they related stories that dealt with the deeds of bravery and heroism of our soldiers during those perilous years. Now we want to tell the stories of our grandmothers and grandaunts who shouldered their part of the burden while their menfolk were off fighting a war. We shall not relieve the conflict in bitterness, but in such a manner that will give us an awareness of its true depth and meaning, for out of it has emerged the greatest nation on earth."

they Going?

A familiar sight . . . men with briefcases daily through airports all over the nation, winging their way from one place to another. But where, really, are they going?

In this busy age of appointments, rush hours, and summit meetings, we search for success, for more money, for a better future, for a variety of things. Yet, like so many mid-twentieth century Americans, the harder we seek the less we find.

We need a job, a purpose, a home, a family. But also, we need a church. We need to go into that church to reaffirm our faith both in God and in our fellow beings. Only then does our quest — and our ultimate destination — begin to make sense.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'POSSUM PUNKIN' . . . Clyde Spurlock, parking lot operator near the courthouse here, points out a pumpkin, vernacularly known as a 'possum,' growing at his office building. Spurlock will pull the pumpkin, now attaining a gigantic size, as soon as it ripens. 'Possums are nocturnal raiders,' he says.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our appreciation to everyone who in anyway assisted us during the illness and death of our beloved daughter, Mildred Jane Long. We are especially grateful to those who sent flowers, to the ministers, Rev. Estill Hall, and to the Hall Brothers Funeral Home. MR. and MRS. FORREST LONG

Common Cold Is Cause Of Most School Absences In Kentucky, Elsewhere

The common cold continues to be the largest single factor contributing to the 18.3 days per school year the average Kentucky student is absent from school, according to a study by the Schering Corporation.

Using statistics of past absences from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the National Education Association, the study reveals that Kentucky ranks 25th from the top in number of days missed per pupil. The best attendance record for last school year was set by the new state of Hawaii, with an average of only 10.5 days missed. Nebraska was second best with an average of 11.2. The national average of school absences was 20.1.

Weather temperatures and humidity apparently contributed little to the incidence of absence of colds. Cold Alaska, for instance, had the average pupil missing of 27.3 days from school last year because of colds, while hot an ddry New Mexico had 28.4, Florida had 29, California 23.2, Illinois 29, Indiana 20.8, and Ohio 16.3.

Figures just released by the U. S. Office of Education set the 1960-61 elementary and high school enrollment at 44,670,000. This is an increase of 1,700,000 over the past year and marks the 16th consecutive year of increased enrollment. Based on these figures, total school days lost throughout the country for all reasons will hit an all-time high of 898 million days.

Medical surveys indicate that children of elementary school age have five times as many colds as do adults.

The first onslaught of colds strikes the schools almost as soon as children re-assemble for the new year. One contributing factor to this, according to research scientists, is hat spread of colds like other virus-caused infections is accelerated by the mixing of populations.

Lady Is Free of Rheumatic Pain

One lady told us she had rheumatic pain so bad she had to walk with a cane most of the time. The joints of her knees and ankles were stiff and sore. Recently she got RUGON and says the pains began to go within a few hours, and now after one week the pain is gone entirely.

RUGON is helping so many victims of rheumatism and neuritis because this New Liquid Formula contains Three Wonderful Ingredients. Not a tablet or capsule. RUGON goes to the very source of pain almost at once and costs but a few cents a day to take. So don't go on suffering. Get RUGON at W. A. Rose Drug Co.

MEET CHAMP HAZARD

The Prestonsburg Black Cats and the Hazard Bull Dogs fangle on the local athletic field Friday night at 8 in an Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference battle and also a Region 4, Class AA game.

Both were successful in their opening games last week in conference play; however, the defending league and regional champions were more impressive in belting Jenkins, 47-0, after piling up a 40-0 halftime margin.

Prestonsburg copped the Floyd county football championship in edging intra-county rival Wheelwright, 14-6, in a game that was marred by penalties and early season mistakes.

The victory also proved costly for Prestonsburg as junior fullback Dixon Nunnery suffered a cracked ankle and may miss half the season.

Hazard, seeking its 15th consecutive conference game, has five regulars returning from last year's team that downed the Black Cats, 21-0, and Prestonsburg has seven regulars returning.

Heading the Bull Dog attack is senior halfback Darwin Turpin, who jaunted for three opening game touchdowns, and quarterback Johnny Davis. Both were starters last season. The line is anchored by junior tackle Lloyd Caudill, acclaimed to be the best ever of Hazard's stellar linemen, and Kenny Fitzpatrick.

The Black Cats have veterans in Paul "Red" Minix, William Prater, Bob Smith, Bobby Marshall, Bill Leedy, Dennis Stephens and Bob Pearson.

Four Eastern Kentucky halfbacks scored at least three touchdowns each last week in pacing their respective schools to easy victories. Paintsville's Mike Minix, Darwin Turpin, of Hazard; Bill Baird, of Pikeville, and Napier's Jerry Brewer, all started with a bang in the individual scoring picture.

Some 4,000 fans are expected to attend Prestonsburg's opening home game Friday night. They will receive free one of the finest football programs published by any school in the state. School busses will make their regular runs in the lower half of the county to transport students to and from the game. Paul "Red" Minix, senior guard, was awarded "Black Cat-Player-of-the-Week" for his outstanding line play in the Wheelwright victory.

THE AVERAGE PERSON

Scientists say that the average person blinks his eyes 25 times a minute, with each blink averaging 1/5 of a second. If he drives 40 mph over a 10-hour motor trip, he travels 33 miles with his eyes shut—more proof of the importance of keeping both eyes on the road.

Crop Prospects, Good

With crop prospects pointing toward a record harvest this fall, farmers are being reminded that Government storage facility loans—as well as loans for drying and ventilating equipment—are still available to farmers who need additional storage capacity on their farms.

HAZARD OPENS
EKMC DEFENSE

Bull Dogs Defeat Jenkins
47-0; Mid-Season Form
Shown By Paintsville

Hazard's Bull Dogs successfully opened defense of the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference and Class AA, Region 4 title on the high school grid front over the past week-end as they mauled Jenkins, 47-0.

The win was the first under new head coach Paul Wright and was the 14th consecutive win in the conference for the flashy Bull Dogs.

Jack Hall's Fleming-Neon Pirates coasted to victory No. 3 in overpowering Cumberland, 34-0; Belfry nipped Whitesburg, 20-19, in a league fray, and Prestonsburg edged Wheelwright, 14-6, in a penalty-marred contest.

Paintsville's Tigers, showing mid-season form, belted Raceland, 48-0; Pikeville outlasted Louisa, 25-6, and M. C. Napier dumped Leslie County, 33-7.

Senior halfback Darwin Turpin paced Hazard's opening win with three touchdowns on runs of 10 and 19 yards and returned an intercepted pass 14 yards to pay dirt. After the Bull Dogs gained a 40-0 halftime advantage, Coach Wright played the reserves the final half.

Jerry Brewer, one of the area's top backs, tallied three touchdowns in M. C. Napier's conquest of Leslie County. The agile senior speedster scored 145 points last season.

In a non-conference opener for both schools, Pikeville stopped Louisa as Bill Baird registered three of the Panther touchdowns on a 45-yard trek, a two-yard drive and a 80-yard run on a pass interception. End Bob Venters caught a pass from Baird for the other six-pointer in a 40-yard scoring play. Fullback Paul Maynard annexed Louisa's marker on a 45-yard gallop.

Junior fullback Dixon Nunnery climaxed a 14-play, 65-yard touchdown march in the first period with a two-yard drive to give the Prestonsburg Black Cats a 6-0 lead over Wheelwright. Quarterback Bobby Marshall ran for the point.

The Black Cats controlled the ball throughout the first half and in one stretch were penalized six successive times for violations. Senior halfback Dennis Stephens added the second marker on a ten-yard jaunt after Marshall, Nunnery and Bill Leedy had gained 41 yards in three tries.

Quarterback Jess Little scored for the Trojans on a sneak after Wheelwright picked up an attempted Prestonsburg kick on the five-yard stripe.

Free Gold Reserves
Are At All-Time Low,
Reader's Digest Says

The United States once had more than its share of the world's gold but our reserves of free gold have shrunk almost to zero, writes James Daniel in a September Reader's Digest article, "The Coming Crisis in Gold." He warns that the value of the dollar is in jeopardy as a result. Only ten years ago, as a result of the flight of foreign capital to the United States to escape World War II, plus the postwar demand for U. S. goods, this country had about 25,000 out of 35,000 tons of the free world's gold.

At that time foreign dollar claims against gold amounted to 8,000 tons, leaving 17,000 tons which were ours alone. Only 11,000 tons were needed as legal backing for our currency; 6,000 tons were surplus.

"Today," writes Daniel, "we have almost no surplus gold. Every banker in the world clearly understands that if all the foreign claims against U. S. gold were presented simultaneously, and honored, the United States would be left with barely enough gold to prop open the gates of Fort Knox."

For ten years, the U. S. has been sending more dollars abroad as payments for imports, as foreign and military aid, as tourist travel and as private investment, than came back in any form.

"Recent anti-inflationary measures have arrested the gold drain," says Daniel, "but the underlying problem of an alarmingly high balance-of-payments deficit remains. Unless this situation is solved, no one can predict how long foreigners will be willing to keep accumulating dollars instead of gold."

UNION-VETERAN'S WIDOW

Several months ago a note came to this column relative to a Civil War widow, Mrs. Polly Whitaker Johnson, address not then available. She is considered to be the last surviving widow of any Union soldier in this region, perhaps in the state, and certainly one of the few remaining in the United States.

A note of inquiry was inserted in this column several weeks ago about Mrs. Johnson and soon came the answer. It is a letter from the widow, dated August 15, 1960, from Hartley, Pike county, Kentucky.

"I am the widow of Caleb C. Johnson who was one of the Civil War soldiers. He was born December 10, 1843, and entered the Army at the age of 18. He went into the Army in the year of 1861, served until the end in 1865.

"I was born to the James Whitaker and Rebecca Puckett Whitaker family on April 14, 1875. I am one of a family of 18 children and was mostly raised on the head of Jennie's Creek.

"I was married to Caleb Johnson on the 23rd day of October, 1902; was separated from him by his death March 25, 1937. I moved from Floyd county in the year 1910 to Letcher county, Kentucky."

MAIL CONTRACT CAPITAL

"The Mail Contract Capital of the World." This was the title popularly bestowed on London, Ky., 75 years ago.

This begins an article, by Fred W. Luigart, Jr., of the Courier-Journal's East Kentucky Bureau, dated Aug. 29, 1960, at London.

We reprint the article as an interesting bit of our mountain history:

By act of Congress the mail-contract business as it was conducted before the turn of the century exists no longer. The title, too, has since passed from the local scene.

There are still mail routes throughout the United States delivered by contract carriers. But now, unlike 75 years ago, the carriers must live on their routes.

Which explains why London no longer controls the delivery of contract mail in much of the United States. Congress changed postal laws in the early 1900's apparently to keep the lucrative mail contracts available for constituents back home.

Until then, however, it was a major and unique industry for this community.

"There were probably 27 contractors operating as many as 75 firms here," recalls Logan Ewell, a 77-year-old London resident with a storehouse of local history.

What Wall Street is to the financial world, Main Street of London was to the United States Post Office. Mail routes all over the United States, including some in major cities, were under contract to London businessmen.

Postal laws then permitted anyone in the United States to bid on a route. And there were thousands of contract routes of all sizes then, Ewell recalls.

London businessmen, Ewell relates, specialized in subcontracting the routes at less than what they paid for them.

"Back then Laurel county had over 100 men in the county who had visited every state in the Union," Ewell remembers.

These men worked for mail-contract firms here, traveling the United States to sublet routes.

"It was the main business in town," Ewell said.

"The men who made the most money were those who studied the economic conditions, terrain, and climate along their routes. It cost money to deliver the mail in places like Maine in the winter."

One firm here, Chilton & Yaden, Ewell recalls, went broke hauling a contract route that included Death Valley.

Red tape was as much a part of dealing with the government then as it is now.

The contracts expired at irregular intervals, and the local mail on any particular day might include as many as several hundred invitations to bid. Signatures of each member of the firm were required on the government forms, often as many as five times for each form.

"If a firm had five members and was bidding on 150 routes, that meant 750 signatures were needed," Ewell explains.

This situation led to lucrative employment for young boys who became "turners." A youth would turn the pages of the forms while his boss was affixing his signature.

All that remains of this once-prosperous industry in London are the buildings and homes built from the large fortunes amassed by mail-contract operators, none of whom are still alive, Ewell believes.

Among the firms here were Farris, Boering & Jones; Boering & Boyd; S. T. Steele & Son; Ewell & Smith; and Smith, Katchum & Boering.

Because of operating costs, operators would join together into firms when their routes coincided, were in the same state or general geographical region.

This was important for local firms, Ewell explains, because they operated in cities that included Atlanta, Jacksonville, Fla.; Boston, Mass.; and Baltimore, Md., and in most of the states.

Throughout London, physical traces remain of the business. The late Ed Parker, a successful businessman, started a cemetery here with money made in mail contracting. Homes built here by W. B. Catching, J. D. Smith, and J. H. Pearl, now all deceased, can be traced to mail-contracting money.

This business also built the Poynter Building and a block of business buildings across the street from the site of the new courthouse, now under construction on Main street.

State Institution Farms Are Efficiency Models, Survey Reports Show

Farms at several state institutions are turning into models of efficiency, according to a report on a study ordered by Gov. Bert Combs.

The report by the Governor's Institutional Farm Study Committee was based mostly on farm operations at the State Penitentiary, Edyville; State Reformatory, Lagrange; Kentucky Village, Greendale; Kentucky Children's Home, Louisville; and Kentucky Training Home, Frankfort.

The report said the committee's study had resulted in these improvements:

Better organization of personnel for business-like operation; better records; improved sanitation, including cooking of garbage fed to hogs; reduction of bacteria count in milk below the desired maximum; upgrading quality of farm products; soil conservation plans; reconditioning of machinery; keeping of maintenance records and adequate supervision of a beef herd that had become infected with brucellosis.

Declaring the farms "in serious need of reorganization," Combs ordered the study shortly after he took office and placed in money the budget for the project.

The farms are operated to provide vocational training for patients and inmates, to provide occupational therapy and a produce food for the institutions at low cost.

MAYTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Combs and Angela motored to northern Wisconsin where they spent the latter part of August with Mrs. Combs' Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Verich, of Silver Lake. Also vacationing with the Combses were Navy Lt. and Mrs. D. A. Verich and son, Peter.

Luncheon guests of Mrs. Dorotha Allen, of Martin, Thursday of the week before school opened, were Mesdames Ed Sutton, Henry May, Thomas Patrick and Elizabeth Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Vaughn and children, Margaret Ann, Bob and Dick, and young friends, Donna and Steve Stapleton, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., spent the Labor Day weekend with Mrs. Vaughn's father and sister, Dr. J. H. Allen and Harriet.

Kenny Bartels and Freddy Meerer, of Louisville, were guests of Dr. C. L. Allen and family last weekend. Teddi Allen accompanied them, Monday, to Louisville where she will be the houseguest of Mrs. Lillian Bartels for several days.

The 1959 class of Maytown high school held a reunion and picnic at Dewey Lake, Sunday afternoon. Fourteen of the 31 members of the class attended. These were: Steve and Teddi Allen, Donna Branham, Bucky Ellis, Ranaldo Frasure, Aster and Sandy Hicks, Claudena Love, Lowell Martin, Darwin Prater, Brenda and Edgel Ratliff, Dan Rowland, and Patty Warrens.

Sunday dinner guests of Harriet Allen were her sister, Mrs. M. L. Vaughn, and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Combs and Angela, and Mr. and Mrs. Harriet Turner.

Pamela Shoddy, of Nitro, W. Va., who has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sutton, for the past two weeks, accompanied her parents home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sparks, of Washington, D. C., and Don Martin, of Ft. Meade, Md., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patton. Mrs. Sparks, who is the former Babs Patton, is staying for an extended visit with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Beverage Refitt are the parents of a daughter born September 2, at the Beaver Valley hospital. The babe has been named Beverly Raye.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Crisp, of Macon, Ky., and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Crisp, of Hite, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patton last week.

The Maytown Woman's Club held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Edward Robinson last Thursday evening.

ANSWERS TO YOUR TAX QUESTIONS
 BY WILLIAM E. SCENT
 KENTUCKY'S COMMISSIONER OF REVENUE

Q. Is a non-profit educational institution liable for sales tax on sales made to the general public?
 A. Yes. If a school sells articles to the general public, these sales are subject to the sales tax.
 Q. Must a non-profit educational institution pay sales tax on lunches, food and school supplies sold to school children and teachers?
 A. No, provided the facilities are not open to the general public.
 Q. Are the school's gross receipts from the sale of food, candy and drinks always tax exempt?
 A. No. If such items are sold in conjunction with school plays, athletic events, lecture series, film and other exhibits and concerts, at which sales of admissions are made to the general public or if such items are sold by a cafeteria or grill that is open to the general public, the sales are taxable.
