This Town-- That World

Count your blessings—the cranberries aren't poisoned this year.

Many wonder of nature there be but none more baffling than this: Nothing grows faster than a dead fish.

Vester Fraley and I will file our fishing report as soon as we cool down a bit and can trust our language.

Robert Ruark says he has nothing against youth, since he isn't afflicted with it any longer.

To Whom It May Concern: I do not haul that dog around to enjoy his company or to please him. Deaf as an adder—sometimes I think he's dumb—he has an affinity for automobiles and has a peculiar ability to bob up when one is leaving our place. He also has become a bit wary about being caught and tied till the family chariot is around the next bend, and has been known to take to the hills, there pretending to be digging busily with his south end pointed toward the car, but it seems he's peeking back between his legs all the while, and is ready to give chase at the first turn of a wheel. So—being as dumb as the dog, I pick him up instead of letting him run his tongue out as I should. And that's why you see this mutt perched on the rear seat with a "Home, James" air while I chauffeur him around.

THANKFULS—TO WHOM?

Thanksgiving is a religious occasion, whether you know it or not. The day was born of religious people, the Plymouth settlers, and it dates back to the heritage of Judaism which they brought to this land of ours.

If you will read about the feast of tabernacles in the 23rd chapter of Leviticus you will have a clearer understanding of the origin on these shores of Thanksgiving. This (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

JAIL SEXTON FOR THEFT

Of Television Boosters;
$500 Reward Was Posted
By Maytown Residents

Charles Sexton, of Maytown, was jailed here Tuesday on a grand larceny charge in connection with the theft of television boosters in the community. Wholesale theft of the boosters led residents of Maytown to post a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of those guilty of the thefts, it was reported here.

Deputy Sheriff Lonnie Herald said the arrest of Sexton is only one of several expected to be made. He said the Sheriff's office believes a theft ring is operating in that area.

Also jailed within the week were: Paul Johnson, arrested by Deputy Sheriffs R. Case and J. Hall on a charge of obtaining money under false pretense; Orville Coleman, drunk driving, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis; Joe Meade, booked on a forgery count by Deputy Sheriff Lonnie Herald.

The Sheriff's office this week served notice on operators of punchboards and dealers in fireworks. Strict enforcement of the law forbidding both punchboards and the sale of fireworks was promised.

State police help will be given on the enforcement job. The Sheriff's office said the punchboard situation already is out of hand and that action will be taken wherever they are found.

FIVE BURNED BODIES FOUND IN PIKE AUTO

Autopsy Fails To Show
Death Cause, Call Says;
Carbon Monoxide Hinted

(An autopsy by a Cincinnati pathologist on two of the victims definitely determined Tuesday that the car occupants died as a result of the fire although there was a concentration of carbon monoxide in their blood. This leaves unexplained the puddle of blood found nearby and the blood stains inside the car.)

An autopsy failed to shed much light Tuesday on what caused the deaths of five Pike county men whose charred bodies were found in a car on a lonely road on Greasy Creek, Sunday.

Unofficially, State Police leaned toward a murder theory. And Pike County Sheriff Moss Kessee said there was "strong evidence" the men had met with foul play. He did not elaborate.

State Police said the bodies may be sent to Cincinnati or some other large city for further examination.

The autopsy showed evidence of carbon monoxide poisoning, police said. Earlier, X-rays had revealed fragments of metal, possibly shotgun pellets, in the chests of four of the victims.

However, Dr. E. T. Thorsness, of Pikeville Methodist hospital performed an autopsy on one of the four bodies and could find no metal fragments.

Coroner Raymond Call said autopsies would be performed on the other three bodies in which X-rays indicated metal fragments were present.

Police also said the car's gas tank was empty, but they were unable to determine whether gasoline had been used to set the men afire.

He also said the car's right front door was open, making it difficult to understand how enough carbon monoxide had accumulated to "knock up" an autopsy.

A funeral home identified the victims as:

Bud Hopkins, 24, and Louie Hopkins, 16, brothers; Harmon Robinson, 42; Harvey Ratliff, 24; and Denver Yates, 25. All but Louie Hopkins were coal miners. He was unemployed.

Robinson, divorced, was the father of four children. Ratliff was the father of three and Bud Hopkins of one. Louie Hopkins and Yates were single.

All lived in the remote Greasy Creek section of Pike county. (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

FEWER FLOYD-CO. HI GRADS ENTER COLLEGE

Fewer graduates of the nine Floyd county high schools entered college this year compared with those starting higher education last year, it was noted this week by Earle Martin of the pupil personnel department of the county system.

Of the 510 graduates this year, 173 entered college, a statistical survey shows, but of the 514 graduated by the schools in the 1958-59 term, 199 entered college.

"The exact causes of fewer college entrants this year as compared with last year is unknown," Martin said. "Only four fewer were graduated. Fewer entrants in college may be attributed to our economic condition."

TRIALS SET IN DECEMBER

Blackburn, Warrick,
Mrs. Francis Cases
Continued By State

Three murder trials slated in the Floyd circuit court this week and next have been continued till early in December, but a fourth, that of Ballard Fleming, of Prestonsburg, charged with the slaying here of Don Woods, is expected to begin Friday.

Trial of Bennie Blackburn for the slaying of Bill Buck Baker, scheduled for Wednesday of this week, was continued till December 5. The Nov. 28 trial of Zen Warrick for the fatal shooting on Abbott Creek of Roe Layne was set for Dec. 7, and that of Corby Francis in the gunshot death of her husband, A. B. Francis, was continued from Nov. 29 till Dec. 8.

The December dates are in the November term, which was convened Nov. 14 for four weeks.

"I want to try all these murder cases that can possibly be tried," Commonwealth's Attorney Hollie Conley said Tuesday.

Four defendants drew pen terms at the hands of juries this week, and three others were fined. Grady and Edsel Osborne and Jack Moore were held guilty of grand larceny Monday and given one-year terms each. Russell L. Hall was convicted Tuesday of seduction and was given a two-year pen sentence. Fined were Estill Newsome, accused of cutting and wounding, $75; and John and Ernest Reynolds, $100 each on their trial on a charge of changing a boundary line.

Martin noted the high number of students dropping out from secondary schools. Last spring, when commencement exercises were being held in this county, 279 students who had entered in 1956-57 failed to appear for graduation. This was a percentage of drop-out for this year of 43 per cent compared to a percentage of 38 per cent drop-out last year.

Statistics on individual high schools with the number of 1960 graduates and those entering college, follow:

Auxier high school, seven graduates, two entered college; Betsy Layne high school, 65 graduates, seven to college; Garrett high school, 48 graduates, 20 to college; Martin high school, 32 were graduates, 15 entered college; Maytown high school with 26 graduates had 11 to enter college.

McDowell high school had 47 graduates, 20 went to college; Prestonsburg, 142 graduates (the county's highest), with 46 to college; Wayland, 56 graduates, 23 to college; and Wheelwright, 87 graduates with 29 entering college.

Of the 1960 graduates, 41 entered nursing or technical schools, seven began commercial courses, 35 entered stores or offices, nine chose farming as a vocation, 58 went into factory work, 51 took other employment, 127 remained at home. The whereabouts of 20 are unknown.

One of two men wanted by Pike county authorities on a murder charge was removed from a bus here Wednesday of last week. Roy Branham, 22, who had fled to Illinois, was placed under arrest by two deputy sheriffs and returned to Pikeville by auto.

Branham and Goebel Lee Newsome are charged in the baseball bat slaying of Lawrence Robinson, 20, of Caney Creek, Pike county, Friday, Nov. 11. Both of the wanted men had fled to Illinois and were the object of a wide search by Pike officers and the Kentucky State Police. Branham had called his mother to inform her that he was (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

STUMBO DIES AT LEXINGTON

Former Circuit Clerk,
Sheriff, Heart Victim;
Rites Conducted Monday

Oliver H. Stumbo, who for almost 30 years was prominent in the official life of Floyd county, died at 3:40 p.m., Friday, at the Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington, following a paralytic stroke and a heart attack. Mr. Stumbo was 78 years old.

A resident of Lexington about 10 years, he was one of Floyd county's most widely known men. He began his official service with the election of his father as Sheriff in 1903. He himself later was elected Sheriff and after that to the office of Circuit Court Clerk, and almost continuously till he and his family moved to Lexington he was connected with county Democratic politics and official service.

His acquaintance with Floyd county's people was intimate, and he held the deep regard of those who knew him. Mr. Stumbo was a member of Epworth Methodist Church, Lexington, and of Zebulon Masonic lodge here.

A son of the late William and Mary Allen Stumbo, he was born and reared at Minnie, on Left Beaver Creek. He was preceded in death by his first wife, Mrs. Annie Jones Stumbo, and a son of that marriage, Oliver Hanson. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian Combs Stumbo, a son, Phillip, and a daughter, Miss Olive Caroline Stumbo, all of Lexington; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Myers, Roseville, Mich., and Mrs. W. H. Matthis, Waynesboro, Va., and four brothers, E. A. Stumbo and M. T. Stumbo, of Prestonsburg, Grover C. Stumbo, McDowell, and Dewey Stumbo, of Minnie.

Funeral rites were conducted from the Kerr Brothers Funeral Home, Lexington, at 10 a.m., Monday, by Dr. R. R. Patton and Dr. R. P. Ockerman. Burial was made in Blue Grass Memorial Gardens, Jessamine county, under the auspices of the Masonic Order. Pallbearers were Dewey Gilbert Stumbo, Bill Stumbo, Wenz Stumbo, Glenn Burton, Ben Martin, R. R. Allen and Chalmer H. Frazier.

HILL RESIGNS LIBRARY POST

Board Chairman Says
Work Does Not Permit
Discharge of Duties

Lon C. Hill this week submitted to County Judge Henry Stumbo his resignation as chairman and member of the Floyd County Library Board, the resignation to be effective immediately.

Mr. Hill, who has been a member of the board since its beginning in 1954, told Judge Stumbo in his letter of resignation that he was resigning the post because his other work does not permit him "sufficient time to discharge these important duties in the manner which they demand."

He added:

"It has been an honor and a genuine pleasure to have been intimately associated with the Floyd County Bookmobile and Library program since its beginning in 1954. The splendid support of the Floyd County Board of Education throughout these years has enabled the Library Board to expand the program from zero to more than 100,000 readers per year, and to increase the number of good books from 900 to more than 20,000."

Remaining members of the Board are County Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark, Mrs. Anna Sue Stumbo, Mrs. R. V. May, Norman Allen.

Judge Stumbo is expected to name a successor to Hill in a few days.

ANTIFREEZE BID RAISED

New Price Negotiated
After Bid Is Awarded
Causes Capitol Comment

A nickel's worth of tempest boiled up in a gallon of anti-freeze at Frankfort this week.

A Prestonsburg tire firm's low bid on antifreeze for State vehicles was raised after all bids had been opened and a contract awarded.

An examination of Purchasing Division files disclosed Friday that Sandus Valley Tire Company was low bidder at $1.30 a gallon on 12,000 gallons of antifreeze.

The firm finally was given an award of $1.35 a gallon—still 3 cents lower than the offer of the second low bidder.

Also included in the package were 10,000 quarts of antifreeze at 35½ cents a quart. No change was made in this part of the award.

Maurice Carpenter, director of purchases, said state laws permit a negotiated revision of the price to be paid a low bidder, under certain conditions.

His explanation of why Sandy Valley was given a better price than the one it bid differed from that of Don Meade, manager of the firm.

Scoutmaster Ross Receives Honor At Appreciation Meet

Scoutmaster Paul Ross, of Price, received the Scoutmaster's Key before some 60 Scouters at the annual Jenny Wiley District Appreciation dinner, Friday evening at the Prestonsburg high school cafeteria.

The Scoutmaster's Key is the highest award a Scoutmaster can receive. It is earned through many years of dedication and service with the Boy Scouts, Council Scout Executive Byron Pennebaker, made the presentation.

Cub Pack No. 21, First Methodist Church, and Scout Troop No. 27, Community Methodist Church, were awarded the Presidential Streamer for outstanding progress in 1960.

Woodrow Allen, Prestonsburg, was installed as the district chairman. He succeeds Bill Lockin, of Wheelwright.

A turkey dinner was prepared and served by the Prestonsburg high school P.T.A. The six operating committee chairmen gave their annual reports followed by a film, "They Also Serve."

Sixty Scouters from the four-county district were present.

ADVICE GROUP PLANS MEET

At Allen Grade School;
Officers, Committeemen
To Be Elected Tuesday

The Citizens Educational Council, having effected a preliminary organization, will meet Tuesday evening at the Allen grade school building to elect officers and appoint several committees, it was announced this week by Anna Jean Tackett, acting secretary. James Carter, acting chairman, will preside.

Tackett, chairman of the by-laws committee; discussion of duties of committees moderated by the newly-elected president, election of the advisory and resolutions committees.

"This will be an important meeting for all of us who sincerely wish to see this organization become an active and useful group," Tackett said. "The public is urgently invited to attend."

CITY LEVIES ON CASUALTY, FIRE POLICIES

New Classification
Envisioned By Council
May Nullify New Tax

A tax of 10 cents per $100 worth of premiums of fire and casualty insurance policies was levied by the City Council at its Monday evening meeting in what was explained as an effort to better the community's insurance classification and to make the fire department here self-supporting.

At the same time the Council countered the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company's proposal to settle on a gas rate increase of 7 cents by offering the company a raise of 5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. The gas company stood firm on the 7-cent figure, and the Council deferred until Friday evening of this week its final action. A showdown fight before the Public Service Commission appears in prospect.

Prestonsburg at this time is actuarially in the seventh class. If it can attain the sixth class, it was explained, the lowered insurance rates will nullify the new 10-cent tax, Mayor Edward B. Leslie said.

Leslie explained that two things must be done to qualify for the lower-rate classification: (1) Purchase of a new fire truck, giving the town three fire trucks and (2) employment of another fulltime fireman.

A new fire truck will cost from $12,000 to $15,000, it was said. If these measures are not taken, the Mayor said, Prestonsburg could be placed in the ninth class, which would add to insurance costs.

The town of Paintsville, which now is in the sixth classification, has on order a $23,000 fire truck purchase of which is expected to give the city a fifth class rating.

The new insurance premium will become effective here, Jan. 1. Two cents of the 10 cents thus levied will be paid to insurance companies to compensate them for collecting the tax.

The city tax rate provided in ordinance published in The Times last week is the same as that already existing, and the ordinance was enacted to comply with the law. This explanation was given after some taxpayers became concerned, fearing the published rate meant a tax increase.

Prestonsburg's contract with the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company expired Oct. 29, but the company extended the time for a new (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

FORMER PRESTONSBURG RESIDENT RETURNS TO DEVELOP NEW AREA

Most Floyd countians who leave home want to go back, some day, and when they get here to do something for the old hometown.

Monte Scott Harkins, who left Prestonsburg when a boy, has done just that, although he has not come to stay. Nor has he yet completed the job of doing something for the place that was his boyhood home.

Now an owner of motels and restaurants along the Atlantic seaboard, he comes home, once in a while, and when he does he's not merely "visitin' for a spell." He's busy in the development of Prestonsburg's newest residential addition.

Harkins is converting rural, mountain-hemmed Trimble Branch into an area of beautiful suburban homes. This area, which has long been owned by his family, is now owned by him and his sons, Mrs. Iley B. Browning, of Ashland and Henderson, Ky., and Mr. W. F. Van Landingham, of Miami, Florida.

He has not only made building sites available but is spending good, hard money beautifying the narrow valley that was named for Capt. Edwin Trimble, the Civil War soldier from this county who was killed in the battle of the Salt Works in Virginia.

First of all, the old "Harkins houses" at the mouth of Trimble Branch were razed. Down went the old house and dairy barn up the hollow. The uppermost house on the branch was vacated and it, too, was levelled. Now the representative explained, Carpenter said, that the firm's intention had been to bid $1.38 a gallon. He did not recall the name of the representative.

Meade's version was that a $1.30 bid was submitted when it appeared on the invitation-to-bid sheet that the antifreeze was to be delivered to two locations in Frankfort—the Central Highway garage and to the State Police garage.

But, Meade said, orders soon were coming in for deliveries to the state colleges and other institutions, as well as to the Frankfort garages. (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

Three Community Needs

(A Guest-Editorial, No. 2 of a series)
BY HENRY P. SCALF

The Prestonsburg Community Development Council recently published in The Times a request that residents of Prestonsburg express their opinion as to the three greatest needs of the community.

A reply to this request, made by Henry P. Scalf, associate editor of The Times, attracted the attention of the Council, and its chairman, Mrs. R. V. May, later submitted the letter to provide the text of the second guest-editorial to be published on the subject.

Mr. Scalf's letter-editorial follows:
Herewith, attached, is my ballot for the needs of Prestonsburg. I would like to state at the beginning that I do not want to pose as an infallible observer but being acquainted to a large extent with affairs in Prestonsburg I feel that these needs as cited are highly important.

These three needs, I feel, are basic to progress here. If we had these three needs fulfilled, other needs then would take priority.

Let me observe:
1. A wider civic interest in the city's progress. It seems to me that the desire for progress in this city is very limited, that scores of persons who should be taking an interest, just aren't doing so.

I was at your dinner meeting last week and I gathered the impression that all of us, and I hope I am wrong, were merely there to eat a bite, get through the agenda and plunge out at our daily tasks again. Too, several people were not there that should have been there. Perhaps they had the excuse of personal business but don't you think very little personal business should take precedence over progress in Prestonsburg?

2. More dedicated leadership. Perhaps I shouldn't say more dedicated leadership in the sense that our leaders are not consecrated enough. What I mean to say is that not enough people with leadership ability are coming forward to help. A few people CANNOT carry the load. I'm sure you have observed that in every move for progress here a certain little group has to carry the load. I could take ten persons out of any civic organization and the group would be unable to function.

3. A more attractive town. Doesn't everybody agree that the town needs cleaning up? Vacant lots, weeds, junk, et cetera, litter the streets and town. This need, I'm sure, needs no elaboration.

No. 1 and No. 2 seem to be running over into each other a bit but they are distinct needs.

May I offer the above suggestions with apologies? I am no sage, no intellectual. But progress will come to Prestonsburg when interest and leadership permeates to the man of the street.

ORRECTION

The Times inadvertently omitted the name of Mrs. Tobie Nichols at the 100th birthday celebration for her father, Levi Strickland, Tuesday last week. Mrs. Nichols participated in the observance and assisted Mrs. Strickland with arrangements.

Late Fishing at Dewey Pays Off—for Some

Shown in the photo (above) is Earl Castle, Prestonsburg jeweler, with the 7 1/2-pound bass which he caught at Dewey Lake last Thursday.

Heber Burke bettered that mark with a bass of 8 pounds, 3 ounces taken from the same water, two days later, and unless somebody turns up with a larger fish he will again take top prize in the Floyd County Fish & Game Club's fishing contest, Burke's bass still is not the largest taken from the lake this year. Sgt. Marvin E. Craft, of Prestonsburg, having landed an 8 1/4-pounder. Craft, however, was not a member of the fish and game club, and so is ineligible to a prize.

Clark Felphrey may have a corner on the walleye pike division of the contest with a 4 1/2-pound catch of that species from the Big Sandy Tuesday morning.

Irvin Harris and Carl Horn are among those catching good bass at the lake. Horn, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Horn have perhaps caught more bass in recent weeks than others, the four of them specializing in the use of Lazy Ikes.

(Continued from Page One) book of the Bible gives these instructions to the people of God who had reached the Promised Land after many vicissitudes:

"Also on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the Lord seven days . . . Ye shall dwell in booths seven days . . . that your generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths when I brought them out of the land of Egypt."

Those booths were crude shelters, probably made of boughs. And they stayed in them seven days: not in comfort but in discomfort to recall the days when they did not have it so good; nor to stuff themselves with rich food and drink but to "keep a feast unto the Lord."

The Pilgrim Fathers knew their Bibles, and it is fairly certain that therein they found inspiration for that first Thanksgiving. Exactly half the colony had died of disease or had fallen to Indian attack, and the fruit of the land, that rugged, New England land, had not been heavy. Yet they were thankful, and whatever feasting was theirs to do was to be to the Lord.

We say we are thankful, this Thanksgiving season. To whom and for what? If our thinking does not include God, we cannot be thankful, for we surely cannot thank ourselves.

Then shall we eat a fine meal, revel in the company of loved ones and friends, and wind up with a perfunctory "Thank you, Lord?"

Strikes us that if we will emulate our Pilgrim forefathers to the extent of turning back to the Bible for our guidance in the matter, we will say our thanks in another way and give the Giver of Gifts something more than a bit of thoughtless lip-service.

(Continued from Page One) Sheriff Kesse said the men had not been robbed. He also ruled out the possibility of labor violence.

"There is no evidence of labor trouble whatsoever," he said. The father of one of the victims said he thought robbery was the motive and that the men had been murdered.

John Yates, a Floyd county carpenter, said his son, Denver, was carrying $200 when last seen alive.

"He was the only one who had any money," Yates said. "I think somebody wanted that money real bad. Police haven't found any trace of the billfold or the money. There should have been something."

An unidentified little girl discovered the car early Sunday in a creek bed along dead-end Greasy Creek Road about 17 miles south of Pikeville.

The car was badly burned inside, but the exterior was not damaged.

The victims apparently made no effort to get out, although the doors were not jammed. All were sitting straight up "as though they had just gotten into the car."

Police suspected their hands may have been tied behind them.

When first discovered, it was believed the car had run off the road and wrecked. Police said there were indications the men had been drinking Saturday night.

Officers said the condition of the car suggested that it could have been set afire after being driven off the road.

Kesse said none of the victims had any record of arrests or trouble with the law.

Relatives reported last seeing them early Saturday night.

Bodies of the five were burned almost beyond recognition.

"The freight was breaking us up," he said. "We wanted to get out of the bid."

The Purchasing Division was willing to raise the price, rather than change the award to another company, Meade added.

Meade is a son of Banner Meade, malt-beverage administrator on the State Alcohol Beverage Control Board. The father is a close friend of the Governor.

The amendment to the purchase award, giving Sandy Valley an added 5 cents a gallon, was attributed to an "error in contract price."

International Harvester Company, Louisville, had been second low bidder at $138 a gallon and 36 1/2 cents a quart. Tied for third were Ashland Oil & Refining Company, Ashland, and Quality Oils, Louisville, at $138 a gallon and 36 1/2 cents a quart.

The invitation to bid specified permanent-type antifreeze with an ethylene-glycol base, with deliveries listed only for the two garages in Frankfort.

Sandy Valley's original offer would have totaled $19,715, including sales tax. The added 5 cents each on gallon containers raised the total by $630 to $20,345.

Carpenter said he authorized Sudduth to negotiate with Sandy Valley up to $1.35 a gallon rather than make an award to the second low bidder, because the $1.35 would still save the state 3 cents a gallon.

tenant of the last house left standing has been asked to move; if, too, is to make way for progress.

Since Harkins got the idea of letting Prestonsburg grow in this direction seven modern residences have been built on Trimble Branch. First, Fred Francis built. Then he had a neighbor, Frank Harman. Now H. D. Blackburn is building a home of the same modern structure, farther up the branch. Meanwhile, five modern residences have been built by Byron Nunnery and Scott Craft on lots purchased from Mr. Harkins. A sixth is being started. Most of these have three bedrooms, some have full-size basements, all have the latest conveniences. Families are living here where formerly was only a dirt road and unkempt surroundings, and they're loving it.

Harkins is not playing the philanthropist with this venture; he's developing the property, spending money doing it, and selling the lots. But a friend who knows his plans and what he is doing says he sees no big profits in his undertaking. This friend says Harkins has the same affection for Trimble Branch that his late father, Walter Scott Harkins, Jr., had, years ago. He mainly wants the place to amount to something.

It is estimated that Harkins will spend $35,000 on his property, bulldozing out building sites, building a road, providing drainage, landscaping the area and so on. Just now a road to leave Highland via the old lane on the east side of the branch is being begun. This will cross the branch, and join the existing street, a short distance above the end of the pavement approaching the development.

For this undertaking a landscape architect from Lexington has been employed. At either end of this segment of road will be an archway. Some walls will be built at points along it. Shrubs and trees will be planted. "You won't know that part of the old 'burg," they predict.

Another road leading off Court street opens an area overlooking Prestonsburg from the hillside opposite the old city hall on Highland.

Trimble Branch itself will be taken care of by the laying of 60-inch tile to contain it when it gets boisterous.

Thus is being opened to development an area which will provide perhaps 50 100-foot building lots. And before they get through with all those the builders and buyers will have spent upwards of three-quarters of a million dollars.

Mr. Harkins owns Howard Johnson restaurants in Roanoke, Va., and Washington, D. C. He has Howard Johnson motels in Washington, Roanoke and Annapolis. But he doesn't own a car—they get in his way. He flies wherever he needs to go, and at flight's end rents a car.

He has no idea of returning to Prestonsburg to live but he has ideas for Prestonsburg.

returning to Kentucky and asked that she advise the searching officers.

Newsome had been arrested the day before at Belvedere, Illinois. Both Branham and Newsome had been indicted by a grand jury the day preceding the latter's arrest.

Three other indictments for murder were handed down by the Pike county panel last week. Joe Ralph Broadhead, Jr., of Toler, was charged with the slaying of his son-in-law, Robert William Lewis, of Toler, July 13; Ed Blankenship, of Argo, was indicted in the death of his wife, Mrs. Mary Ruth Blankenship, who allegedly was the victim of a shotgun blast fired by her husband, June 22; and Edgar Clevenger, of Belcher, who was charged in the death of Earl Tackett, Sept. 3. Charged with Clevenger are Fred Justice and Marvin Clevenger.

Deputy Sheriff Dial Mullins, one of the officers who took Branham from the Pikeville-Ashland bus here last week, gave this account of the slaying of Robinson at Caney Creek:

Lawrence Robinson and his brother, Arlin Robinson, about 25, also of Caney Creek, became involved in a dispute with the other two men at Indian Creek, Friday night. The Robinsons went to the home of Charles Eiswick, of Caney Creek, where they were followed by Branham and Newsome.

The two pounded on the house with a baseball bat and the door was finally opened. Lawrence Robinson left the house and was beaten with the bat in front of the house. Arlin Robinson came out of the house and also was struck with the bat but was not seriously injured.

Branham and Newsome fled the scene in an automobile.

William G. Jarrell, 77, Veteran Martin Employee, Is Heart Attack Victim

William G. Jarrell, 77, veteran superintendent of the Martin water system, died of a heart attack Sunday evening as he sat at the supper table with his wife.

Mr. Jarrell had been in charge of the water system since it was started in 1933. He assumed responsibility for the system when the source of water supply was a few drilled wells. He continued in charge to see a modern system installed.

He was a son of Harvey and Jane Branham Jarrell of the Bull Creek section and the husband of Frances Lafferty Jarrell, who survives. Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Alma Griffith, of Martin, Mrs. Helen Jarrell, Munith, Mich., and Mrs. Lula May McCullough, Phoenix, Arizona.

Funeral rites have been delayed until his daughter, Mrs. McCullough, arrives, and will be conducted at 1 p.m., Friday, from the Martin Methodist Church, the Revs. Robert Martin and others officiating. Burial will be made in the Davidson Memorial Gardens under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Elliott County Votes Bonds For Courthouse; Sponsored By Many Clubs

Elliott county may soon commence the building of a new courthouse to replace the one destroyed by fire in December of 1957.

Voters approved issuance of $100,000 in bonds for the court house project in Tuesday's election by a vote of more than three to one. The vote was 1,692 to 511.

Last year Elliott citizens rejected a bond issue of $170,000 to rebuild the courthouse, but this year the architects reduced the size of the building to bring it within the $100,000 range and the county fiscal court submitted the bond issue question to the voters for approval.

County Judge Charles B. Porter said several groups cooperated in sponsoring a favorable vote, including the Rotary Club, the Women's Club, the Farm Bureau, the Southern States Cooperative, the county board of education and the school teachers.

Architects have planned a court house that will have a full basement with half above ground, and one story, built of brick, but the circuit court room has been reduced in size from 250 to 150 seats due to the lack of money to build as large a building as had originally been planned.

A bonding house in Cincinnati will issue and sell the bonds, and then the project will be advertised for bids.

PATRICK WINS MAGOFFIN JOB

Holbrook Family Hold On County Is Broken By 82-Vote Majority

The tight hold of the Holbrook family on Magoffin county politics was broken in last week's election when Ben Patrick, Republican, defeated the Democratic candidate, Roy Holbrook, son of the late Magoffin political leader, Kash Holbrook. Patrick won by 82 votes in the race for sheriff.

The defeated candidate for the unexpired one-year term of Dona Arnett, who was killed several months ago, is a brother of County Judge Ray Holbrook and a nephew of Mrs. Grace Henry, whom County Judge Holbrook appointed as interim sheriff.

The Magoffin election was, as are most elections there, a hot affair and it developed some unusual voting patterns. The situation which developed there was described by Fred Luigart, Courier-Journal writer, in this way:

Democratic party factional fight for control of state patronage in Magoffin county is credited for some of the unusual voting patterns revealed by the vote count.

Early returns from the first few precincts tabulated after Tuesday's election showed the proposal to call a limited constitutional convention passing at the ratio of 18 to 1.

And the total vote on this issue was greater than that cast for president of the United States in some.

Here is some of the background: Magoffin has a population of 11,800. The largest industry in the county is the school system. The jobs involved in the state patronage constitute the second largest industry.

Protagonists in the fight for control of these jobs are said to be County Judge Ray Holbrook and John C. Arnett, both of Salyersville.

The two of them worked closely during the 1959 campaign for the election of Bert T. Combs to the governorship. Then they split when the Combs administration sought to apportion both by dividing the patronage jobs equally between them.

Judge Holbrook disclaims any great interest in the patronage. "It's more trouble than it's worth," he commented.

J. B. Holbrook, a cousin of the County Judge, put it this way: "We didn't want half of it. We wanted it all."

Walter Isaacs, of nearby Elsie, Ky., said he, Arnett, Boone Brown, Alvin Arnett of Royalton, and Frankfort attorney, Ben Manns, jointly disburse state patronage in Magoffin.

Isaacs was considerably disturbed Wednesday night about the way the vote was going. He threatened to call in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, since it was a federal election.

He said a ballot he had not cast had turned up during the counting with his name on the stub. The ballot showed that Isaacs, a Democrat, had crossed over to vote for several Republicans.

Isaacs said the stub had been removed from the ballot he voted at the polls, an infraction of election law which he called to the attention of precinct officers. He said stubs are not supposed to be removed until after a voter marks his ballot.

The vote count attracted more than normal attention here Tuesday night when Magoffin county's first three precincts reported huge pluralities for the constitutional convention. These three precincts reported 1,331 "yes" votes but only 73 "no" votes.

This reporter observed the tabulation of Tuesday's election Wednesday night and Thursday. When we arrived at the new $500,000 Magoffin county courthouse Wednesday night we found the Constitution and bond issues bouncing along to huge victories.

Magoffin counties, so the official tabulation showed, were more interested in these two questions than they were in all other races. Salyersville Precinct No. 1 gave the constitutional proposal a combined vote of 537-521 for, 16 against. Senator John F. Kennedy and Vice President Nixon together polled only 492 votes in (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

COMBS' HOME COUNTY REMAINS DEMOCRATIC BASTION IN FACE OF NIXON LANDSLIDE ASSAULT

Note to Governor Bert Combs: Floyd county did well, from your point of view, at last week's election. Fact is, it gave the Democratic ticket its biggest Kentucky majority—4,866 for President-Elect Kennedy and 3,019 for Keen Johnson whom John Sherman Cooper literally swamped in most other counties in their race for U. S. Senator.

And on the constitutional convention, which lost statewide, Floyd cast 5,826 "Yes" votes to 2,607 votes against. But the biggest majority it gave any candidate or issue was on the roads and parks bond question: 6,900 for to 1,905 against.

Percentage-wise, Knott county may have outdone Floyd, but the volume of ballots was heavier here. Even Pike county, which cast 7,000 plus ballots more than Floyd was behind this county on all counts except the constitutional convention.

Besides this, Floyd county gave Congressman Carl D. Perkins almost one-third of his Seventh district lead over his Republican opponent, Herbert Rowland. The county's vote for Perkins was 9,770 to 4,309 for Rowland. His unofficial district margin over Rowland was 18,000.

Final election returns from Kentucky show 1,104,609 persons voted in the general election last Tuesday when Vice-President Nixon and Senator John Sherman Cooper scored overwhelming state victories.

Nixon took Kentucky's 10 electoral votes from President-elect John F. Kennedy by 76,927 votes. The final, unofficial tally:

Nixon	596,268
Kennedy	518,341
Cooper scored with the biggest majority ever given a Kentuckian when he defeated former Governor Keen Johnson and earned his first full Senate term. The final score:
Cooper	635,276
Johnson	440,514

The final reports came from eight Magoffin county precincts which boosted the winning margins of Nixon, Cooper, and Representative Carl Perkins in his bid for re-election.

The unofficial vote count in Mr. Perkins' defeat of his Republican opponent, Herbert Rowland were:

Perkins	82,072
Rowland	64,063

All other Kentucky congressmen apparently were elected.

The final figures on the proposed $100,000,000 road-park bond issue showed:

Approval	385,533
Rejection	285,926

The constitutional revision convention final figures:

Approval	321,760
Rejection	341,053

This collection represents the best of the publishers' output for the year and provides students, teachers and the public the opportunity to examine the best books for 1960.

Through state sponsorship and under the direction of Robert Wallace and the Regional Library, nine Floyd school libraries will be open during the regular school day at each of the following schools:

Nov. 28, Betsy Layne high school; Nov. 29, Prestonsburg high school; Nov. 30, Prestonsburg grade school; Dec. 1, Prestonsburg grade school; Dec. 2, Maytown high school; Dec. 5, Garrett high school; Dec. 6, Wheelwright high school; Dec. 7, Wheelwright grade school; Dec. 8, McDowell grade school; Dec. 9, Wayland high school.

Danny and Tess took part in the Thanksgiving tableau at school last week, and they did a good job. As I looked at them, I thought of the real Pilgrim children and that first Thanksgiving.

Our forefathers weren't inoculated against childhood illnesses. They didn't have miracle drugs and warm clothes. They certainly didn't have more than they could eat. They faced incredible hardships, with no bright toys for special rewards, no candy bars. But they knelt down in the cold with their parents and gave thanks to God just for being alive.

Can we do less today? Can we possibly do less, this Thanksgiving, than go to Church and humbly give thanks to our Creator for His wonderful gift of life?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Collier's Corner

BY BLANTON COLLIER

University of Kentucky

Our game with Xavier started out as a tough contest, as several meetings in the series have been. The Xavier boys were hitting hard and giving it everything they had; and our team started a little flat.

We played better ball finally and wore down the Musketeers. One reason we were able to operate effectively in the second half was our reserves. Some of the boys who haven't played too much got their chance and wanted to make the most of it. They looked hungry.

We were concerned about the regulars' attitude. They had been up for a real good effort against Vanderbilt the week before and weren't at their best for Xavier. We tried to get them in a mood to hit, not only to win but also to keep them from getting hurt.

You have no doubt heard many times that the player who gives less than his best is the one most likely to be injured. The way to stay healthy on the football field is to go all out all the time.

In the first half Saturday our offense sputtered. God defensive effort and consequent poor field position for Xavier kept us out of trouble. The Musketeers seldom got the ball in good offensive territory. This gave us time to get our offense in gear.

Also in the first half our passing attack didn't work. We didn't throw too much, but when we did the passers didn't hit open men. On pass defense, they got a receiver beyond our deep man a couple of times. This just will happen, but I certainly wasn't happy about it. Letting a man get in the clear deep is the cardinal sin of pass defense.

Xavier used an unusual formation. It doesn't have a name so far as I know, but I guess you might call it a "short punt T." We were looking for it. Coach Ed Doherty had added a wrinkle that we hadn't seen.

The quarterback was behind center as in the normal T. Both ends were split, and the fullback was split past one end another 5 or 6 yards. One halfback was in normal position and the other 8 or 10 yards deep. We had seen both halfbacks in normal position.

This formation resembles a short punt from the T. Xavier used it for wide plays. Its weakness is that little power is left for the middle.

One positive asset for us was that Tom Rodgers got to play his second game since being out four weeks. That should sharpen him some for next week's final game at Knoxville.

Tom appears to be fully recovered from the shoulder separation. Some of the other boys suffered bumps and bruises and we don't know how they will be in a couple of days. Two boys, guards Mel Chandler and Red Hill, didn't even dress, but they should be in good shape by Saturday. Two others, Gary Steward and Tommy Simpson, suffered injuries; just how bad, we don't know.

Doctor's Duty Is Discussed By Magazine

Whether physicians should use "extraordinary" means to prolong the lives of fatally ill old people is discussed by Lois Mattox Miller, noted writer on medical subjects, in a provocative December Reader's Digest article, "Neither Life Nor Death."

Dr. Edward H. Rynearson of the Mayo Clinic, the late Dr. Alfred Worcester, of Harvard, and other doctors are quoted as agreeing that under certain conditions "the physician should do all he can to alleviate the patient's suffering and make no effort to prolong his life."

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, emeritus consultant in medicine of the Mayo Clinic, believes something should be done "to moderate the zeal of some physicians who like to keep treating strenuously long after all hope for a cure has gone."

All agree that the question of prolonging life is quite different when the patient is young or middle-aged. "Every good physician," says Dr. Alvarez, "knows that in most cases of serious illness in childhood he must keep fighting for a cure until the very end."

"So far as I know," says Dr. Rynearson, "there have been no voices representative of the Roman Catholic or Greek Orthodox churches or of the Protestant faiths to suggest that physicians should try extraordinary means to keep life going when every process of the body is bent toward extinction. His Holiness Pope Pius XII, within the last year of his life, stated the official position of the Roman Catholic Church as not requiring the physician to use extraordinary means when only certain death and suffering lie ahead."

EDUCATION OF DRINKER CONCERN OF COMMISSION

Education of the problem drinker is one of the chief concerns of the Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism and in this week, the Yale study Center of Alcoholic Studies, through a massive research program, has developed a small leaflet, "The Profile of a Problem Drinker", now widely recognized as among the most helpful of all available literature in aiding individuals who suspect but usually do not admit they have this problem.

The "Profile" traces progress of symptoms from pre-alcoholic state to early stages and later stages of alcoholism. The Kentucky Commission has re-published this leaflet and it is available on request. More than 2,000 copies already have been distributed in Kentucky.

Many of these copies have gone to individuals, on request: some to families or friends of problem drinkers and alcoholics, and a number to industrial organizations.

Using a large chart depicting the "Profile", representatives of the commission, graduates of the Yale Summer School of Alcoholic Studies, have explained the symptoms of developing alcoholism to a large number of groups, aggregating 3,500 persons in Kentucky.

Some immediate results have been obtained in arresting developing alcoholism and it is believed many other individuals have been benefited, though often it is not possible to offer visual evidence.

The "Profile" is, in the opinion of the members of the Kentucky Commission, the most valuable tool yet developed and it will be continuously used and this phase of the work expanded as the problem of alcoholism becomes more widely understood.

PARTIAL VIEW OF ASHLAND OIL'S LARGEST REFINERY NEAR ASHLAND, KENTUCKY

We believe in Kentucky

...and we're backing this belief with dollars!

The history of Ashland Oil in Kentucky is a record of long and solid growth. Latest in our Kentucky investments is the world's first unit to produce naphthalene in commercial quantities from petroleum. This hydrodealkylation unit, a development of Ashland Oil research, will provide both naphthalene and benzene for use by chemical and plastics industries in the manufacture of a variety of consumer goods and industrial products.

This new unit, now under construction near Ashland, will add further diversification to Ashland Oil's refineries in Kentucky, which are providing a market for over 85 per cent of all the crude oil produced by Kentucky's more than 15,000 oil wells. Like all good Kentuckians, we enjoy doing business with our Kentucky neighbors. Our expenditures in Kentucky this year will be over $125 million for crude oil, salaries, wages, materials and services. We know that purchases made in Kentucky add strength to our state, create more opportunities for all Kentucky people.

Ashland Oil & Refining Company now counts more than 9,600 employees and stockholders in Kentucky, and mails over 11,500 checks each month to Kentucky oil producers and royalty holders. Our Kentucky neighbors in turn have shown their appreciation by increased patronage of "Good Neighbor" Ashland Oil Dealer Service Stations.

Kellogg Foundation To Finance Building At Quicksand Site

Architects are drawing up plans for the Eastern Kentucky Resource Development at Quicksand, Breathitt county.

Governor Bert Combs announced recently that the Lexington architectural firm, Frankel, Curtis & Coleman, has been engaged for this purpose.

The project will be a long-time endeavor to develop opportunities for the people of eastern Kentucky from the resources of the area, according to Dean Frank J. Welch, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Welch said the architects have surveyed the Quicksand site for the headquarters building.

A $750,000 Kellogg Foundation grant and state money are financing the project. This fiscal year the State is making available $127,000; next year, $133,000. Each year $100,000 comes from the capital construction fund and the remainder from the governor's emergency fund.

Welch said Combs has shown that he "is vitally interested in the development of the Appalachian area of Kentucky."

The Kellogg grant will be used over a seven-year period. Welch explained, after which the University will support the 32 county project. The University has an agricultural experimental sub-station at Quicksand.

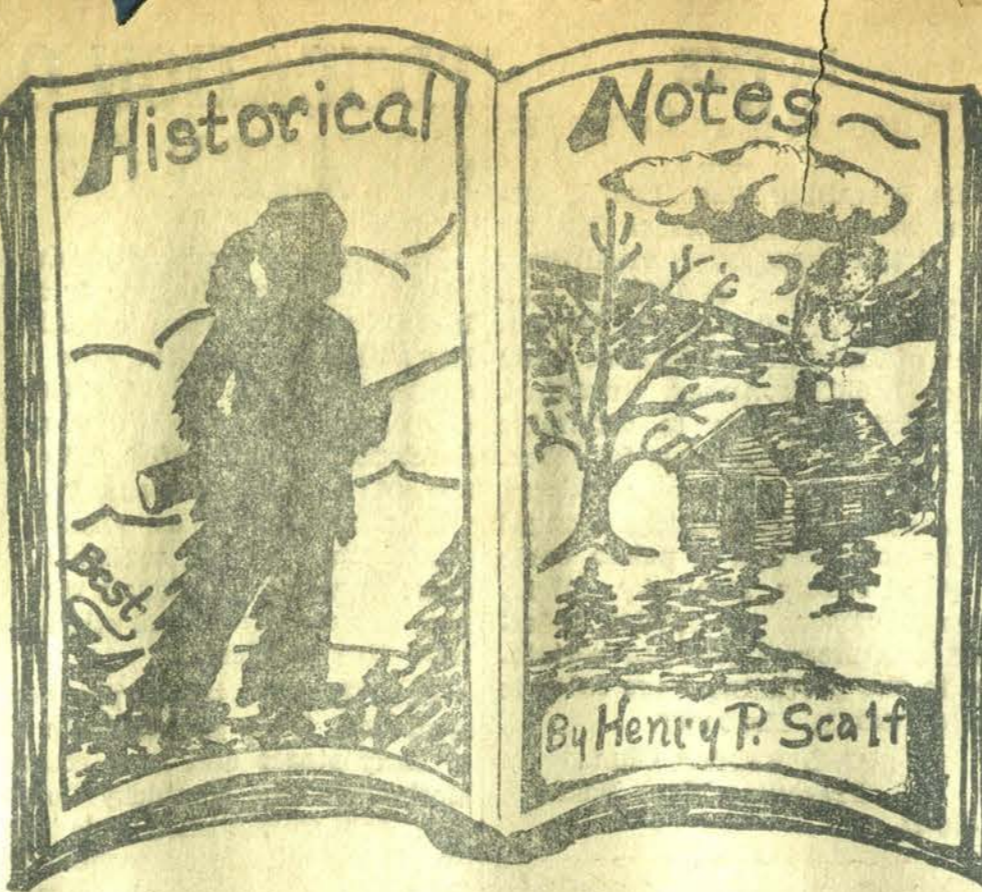

The project should get underway around January 1, Welch said, adding that progress is being made with that date in mind.

Specialists in resource development are being screened in order to enlist personnel, he said. Selection of personnel is slow, he pointed out, because of high standards to be met.

Personnel employed will become regular members of the University faculty, Welch said.

He stated: "Increased funds for the University Extension Service program made available by the State make it possible for the Extension Service to extend support to the Eastern Kentucky Project out of its regular operating budget. Without the interest and support of Governor Combs, it would have been difficult, if not impossible, to have initiated this resource development project that has attracted national attention."

Music helps to relieve the boredom of routine labor in factory or home, reports the December Reader's Digest, and mental processes—creative or calculating—seem to be aided. El Greco hired musicians to play as he painted.

ALLEN FAMILY

Wade Hayes, Route 1, Box 298, Vidor, Texas, recently wrote Mrs. Irma Wicker Haney, Hodgenville, for information on the Allen family. Mrs. Haney, daughter of Dr. M. V. Wicker of this county and husband of Ova Haney, county superintendent of schools of Larue county, is an Allen descendant and interested in research on the family.

The Texas correspondent notes that Mrs. Haney's name was given to her by Mrs. Ross Brinley, 8112 Milred, Houston, Texas. Mrs. Haney refers the inquiry to this column. It is hereby passed on to the readers.

William Allen, born circa 1756, was twice married, first to a woman whose first or last name was Hazel. The Texas correspondent thinks Hazel is the last name. The second marriage was to Hannah Pride. Of this last union were 12 children. Two children, Nathaniel and Lydia, are mentioned in the letter of inquiry.

Nathaniel Allen was born in Georgia in 1782 and his sister, Lydia, was born in Tennessee, Feb. 1788. Nathaniel, the eldest child, married Mrs. Sarah Grigsby Glenn, of Daviess county, Ky.

"It appears that William Allen was at one time in Kentucky associated with the Grigsbys and possibly the Grahams," Mr. Hayes wrote. "This is where I stop going back, yet I have lots this side of 1800 on these families. I desire to extend the William Allen line as well as Hannah Pride and . . . Hazel lines."

The accompanying genealogical chart sent Mrs. Haney shows that Lydia Allen married John Stephenson, Oct. 3, 1805, in Wilkenson county, Miss. John Stephenson was a native of Virginia. A son of this union was Gilbert Stephenson and his son was Zillian Stephenson. The line continues from Zillian Stephenson through Phoebe Cole (probably the daughter of Zillian) through Daniel A. Pattillo, Ella Pattillo, to Ellis Hayes, father of the correspondent, Wade Hayes.

CLAY FAMILY

Another letter is referred to this column is an inquiry from Miss Lucile Clay, 824 Avenue F, N. E., Winter Haven, Fla. The Florida lady originally wrote Henry Stephens, Circuit Court Clerk, Floyd county. He referred the inquiry back to Miss Clay with the notation to write Mrs. Winnie F. Johns, Prestonsburg; Miss Clay wrote Mrs. Johns, who referred the letter to this column. Thus inquiries get around and perhaps some one profits, genealogically speaking.

Miss Clay is interested in Clay family records.

"My great-grandfather, Peter Clay, was married to his first cousin, Patsy Clay, in Floyd county, Ky., Oct. 19, 1829, by Sam Hanna," she wrote. "He owned 100 acres on Johns Creek, Floyd county, Nov. 5, 1840. I am most anxious to find the names of great-grandmother Patsy's parents."

"Would it help you to know that Peter's father, Jordan Clay, was born in Virginia about 1777 and was married to Mary Carter in Halifax county, Virginia, May 5, 1799? Jordan's father was Caleb Clay, of Halifax county and my Patsy should be the daughter of another of Caleb's sons."

"My grandfather, a son of Peter and Patsy, was another Jordan Clay and was born in Wytheville, Va., in 1836. My father, the Rev. Peter Clay, was born at Inez, Martin county, Ky., in 1863."

SPEAK FAMILY

Twice this column has excerpted data from The Logan Ewell Stories in the London (Ky.) Sentinel-Echo on the Speak family of Laurel county. We repeat for the third time, with apologies to Mr. Ewell.

Mr. Ewell, who has written about Jonathan Speak, Swiss native and early Laurel county settler, received a letter recently from John B. Evans, Fairburn, Ga., relative to the family.

Mr. Evans wrote: "I wish to add a few comments to the information published in the Sentinel about Jonathan Speak."

"I was born in London, Ky., September 18, 1898. My father was S. P. Evans, (always known as 'P' Evans), and he married Alice Speak, the youngest sister of Jonathan Speak. Jonathan had a brother James who served in the Civil War and later was killed in a railroad accident in Indiana. He also had a sister Elizabeth Jane Speak who married Jesse McPadden, a sister Melissa Speak who married P. L. McPadden and a sister Mary Ann Speak who married John Sparks.

"Jesse C. Speak, their father, was a Lieutenant in the Army during the Civil War. He came from Virginia and established the Speak Mill and store, and raised his family there. Grandma Speak with her children operated the mill during the war. My mother, Alice Speak, was born there Sept. 12, 1867. When she was about seven years of age, Grandfather Jesse C. Speaks died. Then Jonathan Speak, the son, took charge of the mill and operated it.

"After the death of his wife, Jonathan Speak moved to Montana, but he did not die there. He returned to Kentucky about 1925, and died at the home of his sister Mary Ann Sparks, in Piney Woods, about 1826 or 1827, and was buried in the small cemetery nearby."

MARTIN PARTICIPATES

Fort Benning, Ga. — Army Pvt. Paul R. Martin, 24, whose wife, Beulah, lives at Shelby, Ohio, participated with other personnel from the 428th Medical Battalion's 3rd Field Hospital in exercise South Wind at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The exercise ended November 7.

Exercise South Wind, a joint Army-Air Force operation involving more than 10,000 men, featured land and air operations in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Martin is a ward attendant with the hospital, a support element of the Strategic Army Corps regularly located at Fort Benning, Georgia.

He entered the Army last March and completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

Martin is a 1955 graduate of Wayland high school. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reb Martin, live at Dema, Kentucky.

Relatives and the United Lutheran Board have erected a $20,000 dispensary at Sanoyea, Liberia, as a memorial to the 40 persons killed in the crash there of the Johannesburg-New York air liner "Great Republic" on June 22, 1951.

GOVERNOR INVITES LEADERS TO PROBLEM STUDY, NOV. 29

All citizens interested in problems arising from need of constitutional revision have been invited by Gov. Bert Combs to attend a meeting at rankfort, November 29.

Combs has asked that business, civic and political leaders, including those of the many state-wide organizations that supported revision in the last election, meet to discuss "the existing situation."

One crisis arising from the defeat of the revision proposal concerns salary limitations. A Court of Appeals ruling on this becomes effective, January 1.

Combs said that although the revision effort failed, "I express my lasting thanks to all who have tried to help . . . particularly to the organizations which endorsed the convention call."

The governor said approval of the parks and bond issue will permit the continued development of Kentucky's road-building and parks program. Those who campaigned for this issue, Combs added, "can take pride in having made a valuable contribution to progress in Kentucky."

The educational program on the constitutional convention proposal "has made it clear that at least some of the restrictive provisions in our Constitution must be removed," Combs said. "A foundation has been laid which, in my judgment, will make it possible to remove some of these restrictions by the process of amendment."

He said it is his intention "to give great consideration to the advice of this group" which attends the November 29 meeting.

Anchorage, biggest city in Alaska, has zoomed from a population of 3,500 in 1940, to almost 46,000 at present and, according to the December Reader's Digest, is the fastest-growing metropolitan center under the American flag. It also boasts the highest average income, highest birth rate, highest per capita ownership of boats, airplanes and automobiles and only one resident in ten is as much as 45 years old.

'TALKING BOOKS' SUPPLIED BLIND WITHOUT CHARGE

Miss Jenelda Sanders of Louisville prepares to "read" a talking book—that is, a recording of someone reading a book aloud. About 10,000 titles are available to blind persons who apply for them. They are free of rental charges and are carried free through the mails. Gov. Bert Combs has suggested that persons reading the accompanying story tell any blind acquaintances about the service.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 21 (Spl.) — If there is a blind person among your acquaintances, you may be able to do him a big favor by passing the following information along to him.

A survey just completed indicates that five of six blind persons in Kentucky are not taking advantage of an opportunity to borrow "talking books"—long-play recordings of the reading aloud of all kinds of books, of which about 10,000 different titles have been put in records. It is believed that approximately 5,000 blind Kentuckians are not using the service simply because they do not know that it exists and that it is free of rental charges and also free of postal charges on delivery of the recordings to the blind borrowers and their later return to the lending agency.

"Talking books can bring a stimulating new interest into the life of a blind person, offering enjoyment, enlightenment and almost unlimited opportunities for self-improvement, according to reports from the blind who have used the free service," Gov. Bert Combs said in launching a movement to acquaint more blind persons with the program. "Even without such testimony," he added, "I think most of us can imagine what a blessing it would be to anyone who has lost his sight thus to regain access to the world of books."

Besides suggesting that those who read about the talking books relay the information to prospective borrowers, Gov. Combs directed the State Library Extension Division to send the rules for applying for the service to all public libraries in the state. Thus anyone wishing to assist a blind person in qualifying can obtain the necessary information at the nearest public library.

The book recordings are paid for with federal funds by the Library of Congress, which Congress designated as the agency to select the titles and have the talking books produced. Congress also directed the Post Office Department to handle the shipments to the blind persons and back to the lending agency without cost to the beneficiaries. Any other expense of distributing the recordings must be met by a state if its blind citizens are to benefit by the program.

In Kentucky, arrangements for distributing the talking books had been handled as an emergency measure until this year. The 1960 legislature, at the request of Gov. Combs, passed an act making Kentucky's participation permanent. It appropriated funds sufficient to permit an expansion of the program. Investigation showed that it would be cheaper for the Commonwealth to contract with the Cincinnati Public Library, which was already handling similar work for Ohio, than to establish and maintain a distribution center of its own. A separate Kentucky center would have required about 30,000 square feet of building space and the payroll would have been about $40,000 a year. Since the Cincinnati library already had the necessary office, working and record-storage space, and the additional requests from Kentucky could be handled with only a slight increase in personnel, it contracted to do the work for $6,500 a year.

Kentuckians using the service will deal directly with the Cincinnati Public Library. Catalogues of available titles are printed both in ink and in Braille. A bulletin is issued every other month, naming and describing briefly the new books recorded since the last issue. One may send the library a list of books wanted; thereafter, as soon as a talking book is returned, the library automatically sends the next book on the list that is available. A talking book may be kept 18 days; one 18-day renewal will be granted on request. That applies to everything except a weekly news magazine, which may be kept only four days, with no renewal privilege.

Is your refrigerator motor too noisy? The refrigerator may not be level or it may be touching something, says Mrs. Gladys Lickert, University of Kentucky Extension specialist in home management. This also may be caused by the two lines of metal tubing near the compressor vibrating against each other; bending the two lines slightly apart will stop this.

From Floyd; Civilian Job Number Low Here, National Figures Show

(Special to The Times)

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—How many people in Floyd county are holding down civilian jobs in the federal government? Is the local quota of such jobs high or low, considering population?

The question of public employment has come to the fore with the release of figures showing that there were no less than 2,400,000 civilians on the United States payroll as of July 1.

In terms of the 68 1/2 million people employed throughout the country, it means that one out of every 29 was a government worker.

According to the Tax Foundation, a non-profit organization, the payroll cost involved is $12 billion a year, equal to $194 per American family.

The latest official figures giving the distribution of federal employees, county by county, are in a report issued by the Joint Congressional Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures.

It shows that in Floyd county, in 1950, a total of 112 people were in government jobs. That is without counting any working for the Defense Department or the veterans Administration. The two categories are eliminated in all cases because of the special distribution of their facilities in certain areas.

Related to the local population, the number of jobholders was equivalent to 21 per 10,000 people.

The proportion was smaller than in the rest of the United States, where it averaged 51 in the federal employ for every 10,000 people. The District of Columbia, because of its abnormal ratio, was excluded.

In the East-South-Central states, the rate was 43 per 10,000 population and in the state of Kentucky 25.

The breakdown shows that most of the Floyd county employees, 109, were in the Post Office Department, with the rest divided among other bureaus.

The figures have grown larger since then. In the state of Kentucky there has been a 30 per cent rise in the ten-year period, according to the Tax Foundation. On this basis, the number of federal employees in Floyd county at the present time, exclusive of Defense Department and VA workers, is estimated at 146. This assumes a local increase in line with that reported for the state as a whole.

ANSWERS TO YOUR TAX QUESTIONS
BY WILLIAM E. SCENT
KENTUCKY'S COMMISSIONER OF REVENUE

The questions asked in this series were prompted by certain questions being asked by taxpayers and by certain problems showing up in checking over sales tax returns.

Q. What is the purpose of a resale certificate?

A. The purpose of the resale certificate is to release the seller from sales tax liability. All sales of tangible property are subject to sales tax unless the seller can prove that the sales tax does not apply to that sale.

Q. What obligation does the seller have when he sells to a person who has given him a resale certificate?

A. He must make the sale in good faith and keep the proper records.

Q. How does the seller make the sale in good faith?

A. He cannot sell in good faith to a person if he knows or has good reason to believe is not entitled to issue a resale certificate. If the seller knows that the buyer is not in business and has signed the resale certificate just to avoid paying sales tax, the seller is required to pay sales tax on that transaction.

Q. Should the seller require the buyer to issue a resale certificate each time he make a purchase?

A. No. If the buyer executes a blanket resale certificate, this certificate will cover all of the buyer's purchases until July 1, 1962.

Q. What records should the seller keep?

A. He should keep the resale certificate issued by the buyer and a copy of all invoices of sales made to that buyer.

Q. How long should the seller keep these records?

A. Records should be kept for at least four years.

this precinct. Even the two candidates for sheriff, Roy Holbrook, the Democrat, and Ben Patrick, the Republican, were running second to the constitutional issue.

Buck Patrick, Salyersville, was keeping the tally sheet. He told us, "I don't know where they're getting the figures for the Constitution." Mrs. Henry, a member of the Election Commission, was also in the dark.

"I don't watch them count," she said. She kept some distance from the counting table.

B. F. Holbrook, second member of the commission, couldn't explain how the Constitution issue was faring so well.

"I haven't got any comment on that thing," he said.

Republican Dennie Hensley, the third member of the commission, didn't know who was counting and tabulating the Constitution vote.

"I told them to call the votes on this and tabulate them. I just guess we'll have to go back and count these ballots," Hensley remarked.

"I suggested the names of some tabulators, (to the other commissioners) but they didn't accept but one," Hensley said. "They said they didn't like their faces," he continued.

One tabulator had a possible explanation for the proceedings. He said tabulators were told not to count the bond and Constitutional-issue votes because they "was gonna pass anyway by a big majority."

Of the 11 precincts that had been counted when we arrived, the Constitution issue had been approved 2,381 to 123, a ratio of 18.6 to 1.

In nine of these 11 precincts more votes were cast on the Constitutional issue than in the Presidential race.

These 11 precincts, according to the tabulations, gave the Constitution issue a total of 2,509 votes. The same 11 gave the two presidential candidates a total of 2,309 votes.

Tabulation was resumed Thursday morning. But the Constitutional-convention issue did not fare as well as on the previous day.

The first precinct that was counted Thursday, Bays No. 15, gave the Constitution issue 60 "no" votes and 40 "yes" votes. Kennedy and Nixon got a total of 172 in this precinct.

Virtually the same thing happened in the next one counted, Carty Branch No. 23. While Kennedy and Nixon were receiving a combined total of 137 votes, the Constitution issue was losing 51 to 41.
