FIRST GROUND BROKEN FOR HIGHWAY TO AREA

ROAD HAILED AS BREAKTHRU TO MOUNTAINS

Appraisers Arrive Here For Preliminary Work On Middle Cr. Sector

The breakthrough from the Blue Grass to the Mountains became reality Saturday as Gov. Bert Combs broke ground near Winchester, to mark the official beginning of the Eastern Kentucky toll road to Campton.

Two days later, the Department of Highways had appraisers in Prestonsburg, ready to begin work preliminary to the buying of right-of-way on Middle Creek for a part of the northeastern arm of the highway extending on from Campton into the Big Sandy.

The groundbreaking ceremonies at Winchester were held, despite a driving snowstorm which held the crowd to about 250. Several Floyd countians braved the weather to be present.

Gov. Combs, Lt. Gov. Wilson Wyatt and other state officials took spades in hand and shoveled the ceremonial earth at a site on the Schoolsville Road, 4 1/2 miles outside of Winchester.

The ceremony followed a luncheon and a round of speeches by Combs and others who praised him for what they called farsighted efforts in building the 43-mile super highway from Winchester to Campton.

This Town-- That World

March came in like a leopard ready to spring.

COULD BE

Every picture tells a story, so they say. The other day, the daily newspapers carried a picture of a 10-car pile-up on the Ashland-Coal Grove bridge, but we doubt if it told the real story. Somehow, we have an idea that that mixup occurred when one of these Kentucky candidates saw a potential supporter walking and jammed on the brakes to give him a lift without signalling a stop. It's plumb dangerous, these days.

The newspaper boys gave one of their annual parties, the other night, with President Kennedy the guest of honor. There was, we are told, as if anybody needed telling, when come Joey Bishop was center-stage, as m.c., somebody shoved onto the stage a piano. Quipped Bishop: "Don't tell me he's back again!"

MRS. JARRELL SHOT VICTIM

23-Year-Old Mother Takes Life At Home Of Father-In-Law

Mrs. Mildred Conn Jarrell, 23-year-old wife of Leo Jarrell, ended her life Monday morning at the home of her father-in-law, Ned Jarrell, of Banner, by firing a bullet from a .22-calibre rifle into her breast.

The suicide verdict was rendered by a jury at an inquest conducted soon afterward by Coroner James J. Carter. No reason for her act was given. The shot was fired, it was said, while Mrs. Jarrell was alone in the home.

The body was found at 9:45 by her father-in-law upon his return home, the Coroner said. A note, written in lipstick, asked Mr. and Mrs. Jarrell to take care of her two children.

The victim was a daughter of Leonard and Eunice Robinson Conn. Besides her parents and her husband, she leaves two daughters, Debra Ann and Judy, six brothers, Leonard, D. C., Paul, Donnie, Frankie and Johnny Conn, all of Banner, and three sisters, Mrs. Thelma Anderson and Mrs. Marie Cook, both of Ypsilanti, Michigan, and Wanda Conn, of Banner.

The funeral was conducted Wednesday from the residence of the parents, and burial was made in the family cemetery at Banner, the Hall Brothers Funeral Home directing.

RIGHT-OF-WAY WORK ON NEW ROAD BEGUN

Governor Bert Combs and Highway Commissioner Henry Ward at a meeting with a delegation from here, promised, February 27, they would have appraisers here within 10 days to do preliminary right-of-way work on the Big Sandy arm of the road to this section from the Bluegrass.

The appraisers arrived within eight days, and they were present at Wednesday's luncheon meeting here of the Community Development Council to meet the public, explain the work they are to do and enlist public support.

A gathering of 40 community officials and leaders heard brief talks from Walter Mobley, of the legal department of the right-of-way section, Department of Highways, and Lawrence W. Johnson and William R. Sykes, of the appraisal section.

The prediction was made that within eight to 10 weeks right-of-way negotiations on the Prestonsburg sector of the new road up Middle Creek will have been completed.

"I know," Mr. Mobley said, "you people want roads, and if ever a people deserved them you do. I hope you can help talk down exorbitant right-of-way prices which can be very discouraging to the state. We want—I can speak for Mr. Johnson, Mr. Sykes and myself—everybody to have all their property is worth but we do not want to pay excessive prices."

Mr. Sykes detailed the steps to be taken on procuring rights-of-way: First, tracing titles to the land, then appraisal of the land, this to be followed by a review of the appraisals by the Federal Bureau of Roads, since the federal government will pay half the highway costs. Then, if the appraisals are approved, negotiations for purchase are begun. Condemnation action is taken only when negotiation for purchase proves fruitless.

Don Webb, of the Department of Economic Development, told the gathering an industrial brochure of Prestonsburg will be issued and

As snow flew, Gov. Bert Combs broke ground Feb. 25 near Winchester for the Eastern Kentucky Toll Road. At a Winchester luncheon just before the groundbreaking, John Whisman (standing), assistant to the Governor for underdeveloped areas, pointed out the economic benefits expected from the four-lane turnpike from Winchester to Campton and from its two feeder routes to connect with Whitesburg and Pikeville. At the luncheon are (from left) Dwight Bray, chief engineer for the Kentucky Department of Highways; Cloyd McDowell, of Harlan, member of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission; Lt. Gov. Wilson Wyatt, Whisman and Governor Combs.

SUITS ATTACK ACTION FOR CUT IN WORKERS

Resolutions adopted by a majority vote of the Floyd County Board of Education at its Saturday meeting here were followed Wednesday by two circuit court suits attacking their validity.

The resolutions in question are those providing that maintenance and clerical employees shall be employed on a month-to-month basis rather than for a full school year and that the number of maintenance workers be reduced from 20 to five and the clerical force in the Board's offices here to four.

Ray Howard, Board chairman, and Board members John G. Hall and Ross Cooley were named defendants in each suit.

One of the petitions contends that these maintenance workers were employed on June 7, 1960, on recommendation of Supt. V. O. Turner, for the school year, July 1, 1960, to June 30, 1961, and at these annual salaries: George E. Allen, $5,400; Joe C. Moore and Bert Greene at $3,900 each; Ray Campbell, Harry Martin, Eugene Frazier and Theo Frazier at $3,600 each.

At the same Board meeting these were employed on a month-to-month basis: Dexter Baldridge, Graham Calhoun, Bert Cecil, Clarence Click, Willie Meade, Riley Reynolds and Stanley Bamer at $3,600 each; Mattison Hale, Emmitt Roberts and Glenn Stone at $3,300 each; Raymond Meade and Kenneth Roberts at $3,000 each.

On July 5 salaries of Hale, Meade, Roberts and Stone were increased to $3,600 a year. Ben Martin was employed for maintenance work on August 13 at a salary of $300 a month.

On December 6, 1960, Dexter Baldridge, Graham Calhoun, Clarence Click, Mattison Hale, Raymond Meade, Stanley Bamer, Kenneth Roberts and Willie Meade were employed for the remainder of the year, rather than on the month-to-month basis on which they were originally hired. At this same meeting Liney Boyd was hired to replace Riley Reynolds, who quit, and Walrus Reynolds was employed to replace Emmitt Roberts who was discharged. The suit says Ray Howard, now chairman of the Board, and John G. Hall voted for the employment of Boyd and Reynolds.

It is contended in the petition of these workers, who join Supt. Charles Clark and Board members John M. Stumbo and Bill Blair as plaintiffs, that:

1. It is impossible to carry on the maintenance work with five employees, and the resolution reducing the number of maintenance workers to five is "a gross abuse of discretion, and was done solely for political purposes."

2. The resolution was an attempt to force the Superintendent to employ on the maintenance force persons to whom the defendants have made political promises.

3. All the employees, except Ben Martin, Glenn Stone and Bert Cecil, were employed for the entire school year and that none may be discharged except on recommendation of the Superintendent.

In the other suit nine women are plaintiffs, attacking the reduction of clerical employees. They claim they were employed at the June 7, 1960, Board meeting for the full school year. Their salaries were set at that meeting but were raised at the October 4, 1960, meeting, retroactive to July 1. Names of these employees and salaries now paid follow: Lucille M. Herndon, $3,360; Margaret Spradlin, Rebecca Rastick, Betty Ann Phillips and Wanda Greene, $3,216 each; Helene C. May, $2,736; Maude Sloan, $2,160; Mildred C. Kendrick, $5,400. ## BOARD HEARS UNITY PLEA

Role Of Peacemaker Essayed By Thompson; Hall States Position

Byron M. Thompson essayed the role of peacemaker at Saturday's meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education, and, although his efforts met with no appreciable success, he said this week he will not discontinue his efforts to work as best he can toward cooperation between the two opposing factions within the Board.

Mr. Thompson explained that he is a resident of Prestonsburg, that he has a son attending high school here but that he also is a resident of the "Mud Creek school district." On that basis he appealed for construction of the Mud Creek school.

"The purpose of my being here is to encourage the Board, individually and collectively, the Superintendent and the assistant superintendents to have the whole county at heart at all times," he said.

Three projects, he pointed out, have been stopped by a 3-2 vote, and he added: "That isn't good. It appears 3 to 2, but it is more. It might as well be 6 to 0. Each one of you members, including the Superintendent, is responsible for the situation today."

"The people are highly displeased with the operation of this school board," he bluntly told the Board. "But you are capable, to the man, of giving Floyd county an educational system second to none. . . . We need to forget petty differences, biases and old political commitments. . . . You are all good men. Had I been in your places three years ago I, perhaps, would have been no different. But there isn't a thing you can't do if you will only cooperate."

HUGE BUILDING PLAN UNFOLDED BY EDUCATION BOARD MAJORITY

BLAST KILLS LANGLEY MAN

Accidental Discharge Of Gun Kills Frasure; Inquest Is Conducted

The shotgun blast which almost decapitated James Ray Frasure, 25, on Wilson Creek, near Langley, last Wednesday was the result of an accident, a jury empaneled by Coroner James J. Carter held.

Frasure was shot in his right cheek. He and his brother had been together at the barn, back of the home of their father, Willie Frasure, and the brother had gone into the house when he heard the shot. He returned to find his brother dead. Investigation disclosed skid marks on the roof of the barn, and the belief was expressed that the gun may have slid off the barn roof and discharged by the lock striking some object.

The victim was a miner. He is survived by his parents, Willie and Ollie Mae Goble Frasure, his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Frances Bailey Frasure, two children, John Wayne and Janice Sue; three brothers, Arnold Edward, Billy Ross and Northless Frasure, all of Langley; and five sisters, Mrs. Lula Adkins, Langley, Mrs. Patricia Miller, Martin, Mrs. Ledoris Fields, of Allen, Oleta Jo and Willadene Frasure, of Langley.

Funeral rites were conducted Saturday from the Wilson Creek Regular Baptist Church by the Revs. Banner Manns, Bert Howard and Earl Lawson. Burial in the family cemetery was under the direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

FOUR SUITS ASK $408,379

Of Radford K. Barnett; Litigation Is Result Of Highway Accident

The filing of two suits against him in the Floyd circuit court last Friday brought the damages asked of Radford K. Barnett, of Martin, to a total of $408,379.

In all, four suits have been filed against the Martin man since the December 28 auto collision on the Middle Creek road, near here, which claimed the life of one man and injured three others.

The latest actions were filed by Bruce Phelps, who claims $100,000 damages for injuries, plus $1,500 for medical and transportation bills and $25 damage to personal property; and by Herbert Deskins, who also asks $100,000 for injuries, $2,000 for medical bills, $1,140 for his car and $65 other personal property loss.

Both actions, filed by G. C. Perry, Paintsville attorney, allege carelessness on the part of Barnett in the operation of his auto. Earlier suits filed against Barnett were one of $102,500 by Mrs. Dess Bolen Lee, widow of Norman Lee, who was killed in the wreck, and a $101,149 suit filed by Winfield Holbrook.

Woman, 66, Suffers Broken Leg When Hit By A Motor Scooter

Mrs. Elmer Music, 66, of the Auxier road, suffered a broken leg and other injuries here Friday afternoon when she was struck by a motor scooter operated by Huey Gray, Prestonsburg grade school boy.

Young Gray sustained a broken hand and a head injury and is a patient at the Prestonsburg General hospital. Mrs. Music was taken to the Paintsville hospital and remains a patient there.

The scooter operated by the boy was owned by Paul Neil Allen, also of Prestonsburg. Ronnie Harris, who was riding behind Gray, was uninjured. Mrs. Music's leg was broken, a few inches above the ankle.

RIVER VICTIM IS RECOVERED

Near Paintsville; Floyd Rescue Squad Had Searched For Body

The decomposed body of a Pike county man for whom the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad searched the Big Sandy River 11 months ago was found in the Big Sandy, near Paintsville, last Sunday.

Two men saw the body of the victim, Randall May, 27, floating beneath the bridge across the river near the Paintsville Country Club. The victim's wife identified the body from clothing and personal effects.

May was one of three men who occupied a car when it plunged into the river at Millard, Pike county, last March. The driver escaped. Body of the second man, Wade Akers, was recovered three weeks later. The search for May's body was finally discontinued as the weeks passed and the efforts of scores of searchers were fruitless.

Both May and Akers were residents of the Grapvine section of Pike county.

HEIRS WOULD ANNUL LEASE

On Martin Building; Turner Heirs Allege Consideration Fails

Heirs and joint-administrators of the estate of the late W. J. Turner have filed suit in the Floyd circuit court seeking to void the lease on banking space in the Turner building at Martin to the First Guaranty Bank there which recently moved into its new building.

The lease agreement, made February 27, 1946, was for a period of 99 years, with $13,000 the total rental to be paid.

The suit, prepared by Baird & Hayes and Joe Hobson, contends: The principal, if not sole, con- (See Story No. 8, Page 6)

HIGH SCHOOL MERGER SEEN FOR 4 TOWNS

Reductions in Numbers Of Employees Ordered In Board Resolutions

The most ambitious building program ever conceived by the Floyd County Board of Education was unveiled in the first of 15 resolutions adopted at the adjourned meeting of the Board here last Saturday.

Including the Mud Creek elementary school, for which a site has been bought but which awaits Board approval of construction, the program would involve the expenditure of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, it was estimated by one member of the Board. Another said the cost would be nearer $6,000,000.

The resolution provides that the following buildings will be constructed as soon as plans can be made, and approval of the State Department of Education gained:

Cow Creek elementary center of eight rooms, with combination physical education and cafeteria facilities.

Mouth of Bull Creek elementary center of six rooms, with combination physical education and cafeteria.

Bosco, one-room addition and lunchroom facilities.

Prestonsburg, addition of seven rooms to the grade school and construction of grade school gymnasium; also repair and remodeling of the old high school building for the use of the county and regional library and to house the vocational, agricultural and art departments of the school.

Arkansas, addition of one room. McDowell, addition of five rooms. Clear Creek, construction of new lunchroom.

Prairie Creek, construction of lunchroom.

Lower Prairie Creek, repair and remodeling of school.

Lackey, lunchroom construction. Middle Creek, elementary center of 12 rooms, with combination cafeteria and physical education facilities.

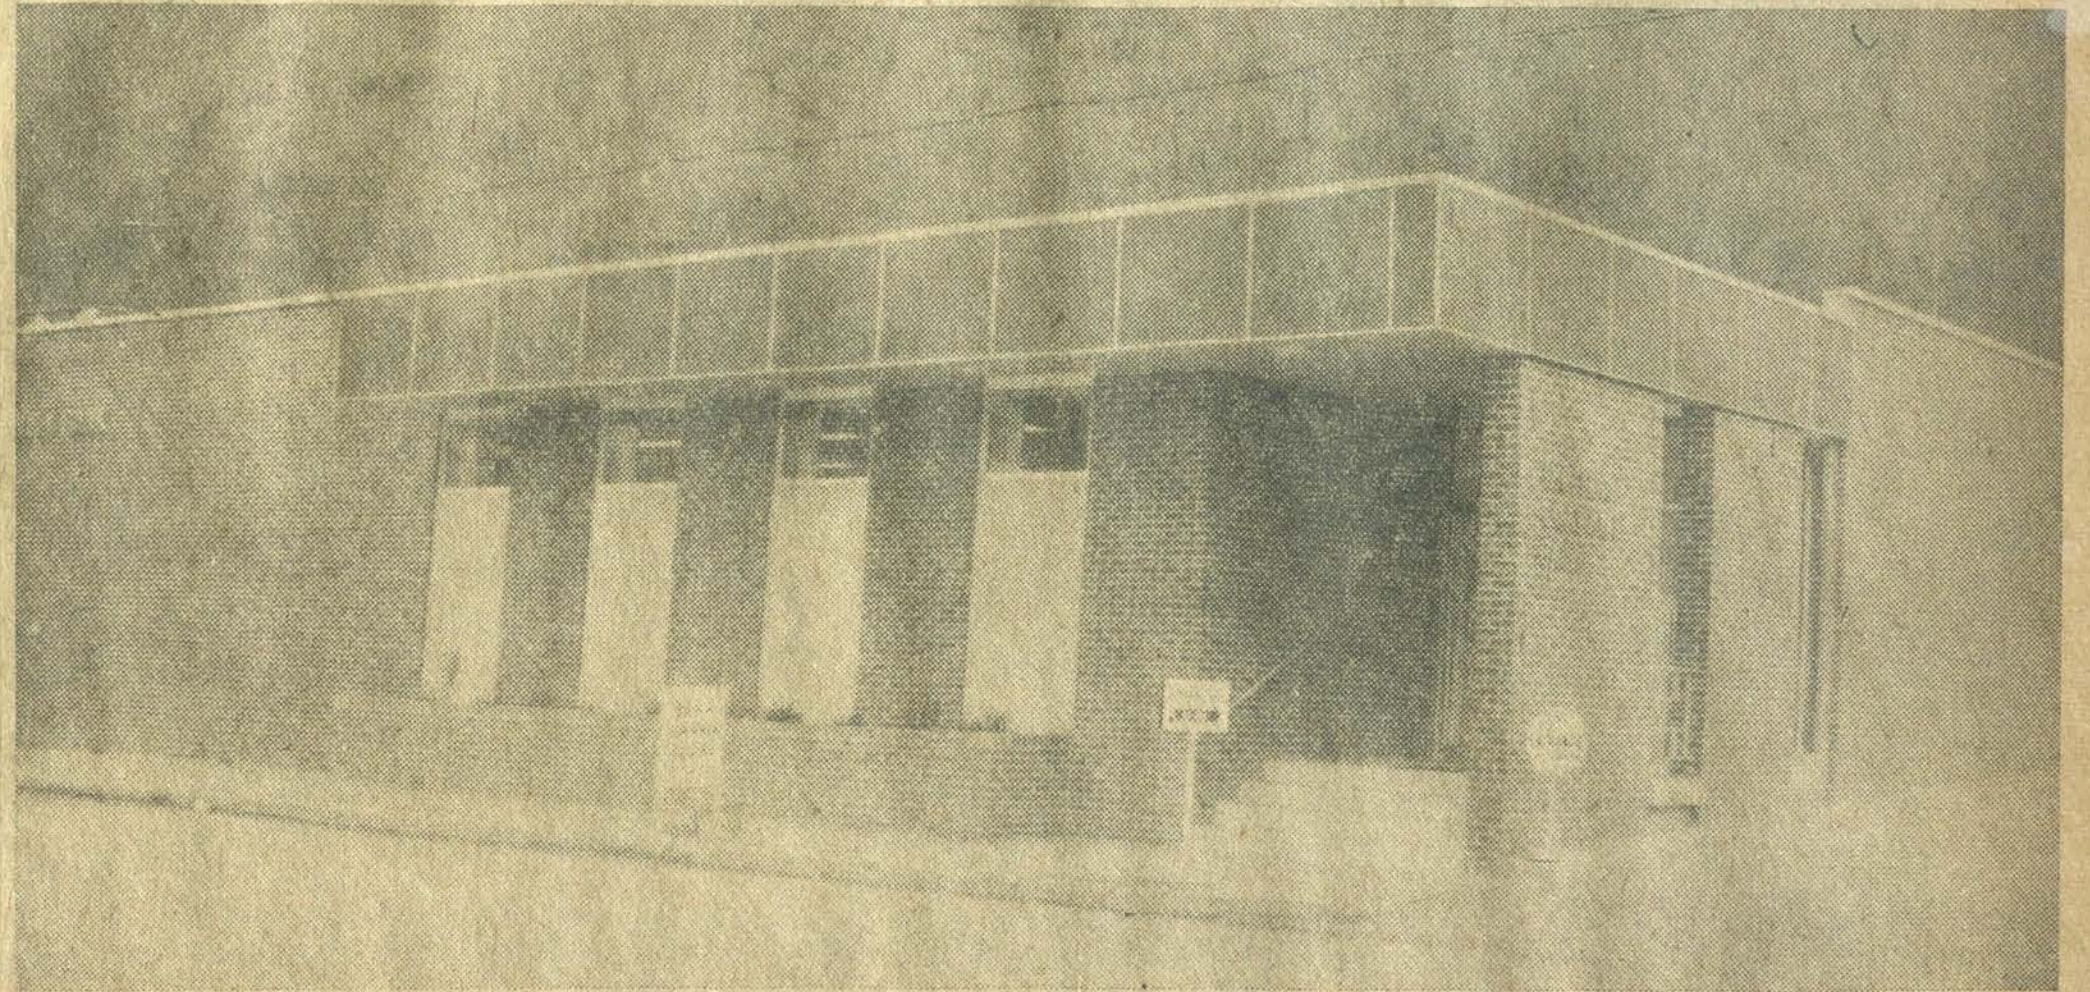

The resolution was adopted by a 3-2 vote, with the opposition coming from John M. Stumbo and Bill Blair. Mr. Blair asked permission to make a statement but was denied his request with the promise that he would be given time later.

Similar later requests made by Superintendent Charles Clark and Joe Hobson also were denied by Ray Howard, Board chairman.

Another resolution, adopted by a 4-1 vote later in the session, looks toward consolidation of the Wayland and Garrett high schools and the Maytown and Martin high schools. Two new buildings would be constructed, each with a gymnasium, to serve the present four schools. All members of the Board, except Stumbo, voted for the consolidation.

The second resolution, adopted also by a 3-2 vote, provided for the issuance of revenue bonds to the maximum amount the State Department of Education will accept. (See Story No. 4, Page 3)

Give Mountaineers the Credit!

Call it provincialism if you will, but we are particularly pleased that the so-called Eastern Kentucky Turnpike (we prefer to call it the Bluegrass-to-the-Mountains highway) was conceived by Eastern Kentuckians, none other, and is being made a reality by a man to the Mountains' born.

It was perhaps three years ago, at a meeting of the Eastern Kentucky Planning Commission here, that we first heard talk of such an undertaking. At the time it seemed as fanciful as Big Sandy river canalization has become after all these frustrating years. Such a route was talked at that meeting as the prime need of this valley.

Then, during Governor Combs' second campaign for the governorship, W. H. "Bill" May, of Frankfort, a native of Prestonsburg, added his characteristic vigor to such thinking. He proposed to do the engineering work on the whole project, risking a heavy financial loss if Bert Combs were defeated. Candidate Combs accepted the offer, and Bill May did not wait till the campaign was over to get started.

Governor Combs at last Saturday's ground-breaking ceremonies outside Winchester graciously gave Mr. May credit for the major role he played in this bold undertaking which, if it had been left to men less sympathetic to the Mountains or with less iron in their make-up, would have been another of these never-never projects.

And now Mountaineer Bert Combs moves, despite discouragement, criticism and opposition, to bring to Eastern Kentucky a road such as has for all these years been the peculiar possession only of those more fortunate parts of the Commonwealth.

The Floyd County Times is not unappreciative of the goodwill of other sections as Eastern Kentucky's plight has become more pitiful with the years, and it acknowledges support of the road from newspapers of other areas of the state. But it is proudest of these of our own region who conceived, promoted, worked for and left this gigantic road-building undertaking in the talking stage for the shortest possible time and got down to the business of doing something that should have been done several decades ago.

Why Not A Four-Year College?

It may develop that the proper course for this county is to seek a full-fledged four-year state college such as Morehead, Richmond, Bowling Green and Murray ready have.

It becomes more and more apparent that not even half of the high school graduates of this depressed area can afford to continue their education at distant state colleges or at the University of Kentucky in Lexington. This is the sad situation which has developed, and which grows darker by the year, at a time when the day of the common laborer is almost gone and as the day when the truly forgotten man will be the man without a college degree. Academic learning and technical skills, and these acquired as a matter of record at established centers of learning, are becoming prerequisites to gainful employment.

Last spring, 514 young men and young women were graduated from Floyd county's nine high schools. As of last November, only 173, or 33.9%, of these were in college. A year earlier, when the economy was not so depressed, the percentage of Floyd graduates of that year who were in college was 36.7.

Floyd county and five others around it have a population of approximately 125,000. Another 100,000 live in other counties of the region which are not served by a state college near them.

Morehead State College, the nearest to Floyd county, is 80 miles away. Eastern Kentucky State College—what a misnomer, "Eastern Kentucky State College"—is in Richmond; it is not in Eastern Kentucky, it is in the Blue Grass. It is 25 miles from Lexington, the University of Kentucky and Transylvania College.

The two church-owned colleges of the true Eastern Kentucky area to which this county belongs are already overcrowded, and only one of these offers a four-year curriculum. And as Morehead and Eastern and the University of Kentucky attempt to accommodate the hundreds of students from this isolated area literally millions of dollars are expended annually in tax monies to construct new buildings for housing, classroom work and other necessary educational activities.

Federal aid for school buildings is almost a certainty. Kentucky doubtless will get its full share. Then why not spend some of those millions in an area where such facilities are most sorely needed, in a section of the state where fewer facilities of education, travel and commerce have existed ever since the days of Isaac Shelby than in any other?

Surely the presidents of the existing colleges cannot argue that a new four-year college isn't needed and that they should continue to receive only those students who can afford to move onto their campuses and live while the more unfortunate ones are left to the unrelenting grip of circumstances.

If they do, they will be very impractical. For to argue that only Richmond, Morehead, Western, Murray and the University of Kentucky should exist and that none other should be founded would be to contend against taking education to the people and for centralization.

And the argument for such centralization of education would naturally result in the extreme suggestion from somebody that we should go a step further, eliminate some or all of these state colleges and throw them into one mighty educational complex at Lexington.

Obviously, it is not the part of any of us to destroy what we have but rather to build and to develop our human resources. Which means that we shall consider, first of all, the needs of people and then turn to trying to meet those needs, even excluding self in doing so.

Carl Perkins Predicts Added Fishtrap Funds; Kennedy Is Interested

Congressman Carl Perkins predicted Monday that President Kennedy will ask Congress for more money to start construction of Fishtrap reservoir and enough money to finish planning Grayson reservoir on the Little Sandy River.

Kennedy is expected to send Congress a supplemental budget message on river-development projects in two or three weeks.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's budget included $900,000 to start construction of Fishtrap. No money was budgeted for Grayson, although Congress authorized the project last year.

When he appeared before the Budget Bureau last summer, Perkins asked it to set aside $3,000,000 for Fishtrap. The project is expected to cost $40,000,000.

Perkins also said Monday that a depressed-areas bill is desperately needed to bolster the sagging economy of Eastern Kentucky.

He gave a House subcommittee a statistical sketch of conditions in his hard-hit Seventh District, but he said statistics cannot properly dramatize the human suffering there.

"I am talking about friends and neighbors whose dire needs I know from personal contacts," Perkins said.

A great many areas would be eligible for aid under the bill, Perkins said, but areas in Eastern Kentucky where unemployment has been chronic for a decade should get first consideration.

The bill, being considered by a subcommittee of the Banking and Currency Committee, directs the Secretary of Commerce to decide where the money should be spent.

As of January, there were 20 major urban areas and 83 smaller urban areas with a degree of unemployment that would entitle them, under the bill, to assistance to get new industries started.

An undetermined number of rural areas will be added to the list, according to Agriculture Secretary Freeman, who also testified before the subcommittee.

Freeman said parts of Eastern Kentucky could qualify under both urban and rural classifications.

The former Minnesota governor said he does not subscribe to the theory unemployed residents of depressed areas should move elsewhere.

"If half a man's land could be used for a recreational development and 15 miles down the road a potato-chip plant were built where the man could work, it would be an economically efficient area, wouldn't it?" Freeman asked.

The Administration bill would establish a $300,000,000 revolving fund for loans to help new industries get started in the depressed areas. It also would make available $75,000,000 in grants for public facilities and smaller sums for economic planning and for retraining of unemployed people.

THE WATCHMAN SPEAKS, THAT YOU MAY KNOW

What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ? (Mt. 27:22.)

To this "They all say—let Him be crucified." This was their final decision as to who JESUS is, for what Jesus was then He is now.

The same question is one for every one to answer for himself, today, tomorrow; and as long as the dispensation of grace lasts, remind you, you must answer while you are here, on earth—even if man travels to Venus, or another planet, he is an "earthling" and is subject to the "word of God" as it is given to us, without change.

As far as I am concerned, there are no human beings on another star, moon, or planet. The Bible says, "God so loved the WORLD;" not, God so loved Venus, etc. Jesus was a GIFT to us; for me, I am grateful for the greatest gift ever given.

"Quit religion," says one leader in a February 5, 1961, news account. He called his religion "hell of darkness and deception." "I've changed my mind—I wasn't there." If God wanted to do it that way, it's all right with me. "When I get to heaven or hell I'll find out."

"The Virgin Birth narratives are tremendous myths." So says Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike in a recent account.

These are what two high leaders in great religious movements are doing with JESUS. And hundreds of others in our great Protestant churches are doing the same. They are paving the way for more, and more of our people to travel the road of "apostasy."

HERE ARE FACTS. PLEASE PONDER THEM. ETERNITY IS BEYOND ALL OF US; GOD HAS NOT, JUST A SHORT SPAN IN WHICH TO STRIKE DEAD, OR AFFLICT US; WHEN THE CYCLES OF A NEVER-ENDING ETERNITY ROLL ON AND ON, IT IS HIS TO MEET OUT JUSTICE TO ONE AND ALL.

God has not developed in Himself. God will never be what He is not. What He ever was, He is. The Bible does not give us a revelation of God's growing power or knowledge. God's energies do not grow—they change not. God's power has not changed from dispensation to dispensation—but the incidence of that power and the manner of its communication have.

MAN'S mind has changed. Has yours? Remember for yourselves, ladies and gentlemen, "What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ?"

BUENA VISTA FURNACE

This year, June 11, will mark the 21st annual American Folk Song Festival which will be held in the woodland adjoining the museum—home of Jean Thomas, the Traipsin' Woman located at 3201 Cogan street, Midland Heights, Ashland. This year being the Civil War Centennial the program will feature two events slanted to the War which concern the immediate region, Boyd county, Ky., and the Big Sandy country. The former will concern Buena Vista furnace located on the edge of Boyd county where a part of the stone structure still stands. Buena Vista Furnace was built in 1847 by the Means and Russell families who came from the East. It was one of the first charcoal furnaces in this Kentucky region.

The Festival story will recreate in ballad, narration and folk dance the historic and colorful "lighting the first fire" of Buena Vista Furnace. The story was first published by the late Dr. George G. Bell in a trade journal and co-authored by his sister, Jean Thomas.

A group of children in calico and blue jeans will present a folk dance such as seen at the celebration of the historic "lighting" in the year 1847. The dance is a combination of early American folk dancing and the schottische and waltz brought into the foothills of Kentucky by peasant furnace workers from Germany along with their skill of iron making.

One of the iron masters of this region was Colonel John Bell, who was a spy for the Union army and upon whom the title was bestowed by President Lincoln. He was the oldest brother of William George Bell, father of Jean Thomas, who in his youth worked as bookkeeper and time keeper at Buena Vista Furnace.

A special ballad written for the Festival by Blanche Preston Jones will be sung to the tune of Darling Nelly Gray by a group of boys and girls some of whom are descendants of the workers at Buena Vista charcoal iron furnace, led by Jean Thomas. Franklin Tufts will play an accompaniment on an old accordion which his grandfather carried through the Civil War. The Tufts family settled in this region after the close of the War. Young Franklin Tufts' father, Benjamin Franklin Tufts was a familiar figure in the American Folk Song Festival, as long as he lived, playing on the old accordion and singing Darling Nelly Gray.

Descendants of the owners of Buena Vista Furnace who still reside in this region have been invited to seats in the court-of-honor at the American Folk Song Festival.

Another feature of this year's Festival will be the presentation in ballad and narrative of the Big Sandy story which will feature the participation of the Hatfield and McCoy families in the Civil War: Captain William Anderson Hatfield (Devil Anse) of the Logan Wildcats, a Rebel Company, his loyal friend Uncle Dyke Garrett, a private under Captain Hatfield, and the Union soldier, Randall McCoy.

This story will be adapted from the book, "Big Sandy," by Jean Thomas (Henry Holt & Company, New York, 1940). The story was reprinted in World Magazine in 1945. Descendants of both families will participate again in the Festival and will sing a ballad especially written for the occasion by a Big Sandy poet, Blanche Preston Jones.

We are authorized to announce LEROY AKERS of Ligon, Ky., for Jailer of Floyd County Your Left Beaver Mail Man Democratic Primary, May 23, 1961

She has participated in the American Folk Song Festival for more than a quarter of a century.

A newcomer to the Festival will be Mrs. John Speed Harvey, of Huntington, poet laureate of West Virginia. Mrs. Harvey will read one of her poems in keeping with the Civil War Centennial.

AUXIER FAMILY
Levi Strickland, Prestonsburg centenarian, contributes a bit of information on the Auxier family of West Virginia. Strickland was born November 15, 1860, at Clendenin, West Virginia, son of Stephen Strickland and Barbara Auxier Strickland.

He says that Barbara Auxier's parents were Sam Auxier, who married Bush. He does not remember her first name. He does remember that she lived like himself to be over 100 years old. Sam Auxier and his wife moved to Ohio during the Civil War and are buried there.

Three other children of Sam Auxier, besides Barbara, are remembered by Strickland. They were Adam Auxier, who married an Estep; Mary Auxier, who married Joel Estep; and Ailsie (Elsa?) Auxier, married John Rucker. Strickland says that following the death of Sam Auxier and his wife, the sons and daughters removed to Kentucky.

HALE AND HUFF FAMILIES
Mrs. Glenn Holstein, 7301 North 33rd St., Omaha 12, Nebraska, contributes census information on two families.

From the 1856 Census of Hardin county, Iowa, she found the following: Benjamin Hale, age 54, farmer, born in Virginia; Hannah (Anna?) Hale, his wife, age 53, born in North Carolina; Elizabeth Hale, daughter, age 21, born in Kentucky; A German laborer, William Fiture, age 25, is listed with the family. The family had resided in Iowa 15 years.

(Benjamin Hale and Anna Hall were married in Floyd county, Kentucky, July 29, 1821, and sometime after 1835 had begun the long trek westward.)
At the time of the census referred to above, Edilpha Hale, daughter of Benjamin and Anna, was married to Thomas Huff. The 1856 Hardin county census lists this Huff family.

Thomas Huff, age 25, farmer, born in Kentucky; Ezephy (Elizabeth) Huff, age 34, born in Kentucky; Lewis Huff, age 9, born in Iowa; William James Huff, age 7, born in Iowa; Caroline Huff, age 6, born in Iowa; Anna Huff, age 4, born in Iowa; Mary Ann Huff, age 2, born in Iowa; and Elizabeth Huff, one year old, born in Iowa.

Mrs. Holstein thinks there were a Lydia and Benjamin Huff, born after the 1856 census. She notes that the record shows they had been in the state 20 years, so Mrs. Huff's parents, Benjamin and Anna Hall Huff, had evidently followed them to the new state of Iowa.

Lewis Huff became a Baptist minister in Oregon and Benjamin Huff was a drummer in the Union Army in the Civil War.

Feed Grain Acreages
Record Is Indicated;
Akers Issues Comment

Farmers in Floyd county who may be interested in a possible feed grain production adjustment program in 1961 are urged to call at the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, according to Daniel Akers, chairman of the ASC County Committee.

The request is made to farmers at this time because farm feed grain and other crop acreage information will be needed for any feed grain program that may be authorized for the coming crop season.

Farmers who supply feed grain and other acreage figures at this time will not be obligated to participate in a feed grain program if one becomes available, but will be eligible to participate. However, Mr. Akers points out that a program can be quickly put into operation if the necessary farm acreage information is on file at the county office. He asks farmers' cooperation in providing information that will be needed before a program can be put in effect.

Interested farmers are asked to bring to the county ASC office their records of the acreage of cropland used for field corn, grain sorghums, oats, barley and other crops for the two crop years 1959 and 1960. The report should be on the basis of the acreage planted and the use made of the crop produced. Accurate information must be obtained immediately for possible establishment of farm feed grain base acreages.

Since Floyd county is classed as a minor feed grain producing area, only interested farmers are being asked to make reports.

TIMES WANT ADS PAY!

I want to take this opportunity, not to ask you for your support in the May Primary, but rather to say "THANK YOU" for all you have done for me in the past. Needless to say I could not have been successful in all my previous races had not so many of you worked so hard for me.

Kathleen and I shall always be grateful for having had the privilege to serve you. We have had many people from all sections of Floyd county asking one of us to run for County Court Clerk. For the kind things that so many of you have said about us and your willingness to continue to support us, we are deeply grateful.

Neither of us can make the race because we are engaged in selling Phillips Petroleum Company Products and it is necessary that both of us devote full time to our business after this term is over.

Before Burnis Martin announced for County Court Clerk, I told him that if he should become a candidate for that office that I would vote for him and that I believed he could win and that because of his service in local and state government and his education and legal experience that he would make a good County Court Clerk.

As your County Court Clerk, I want you to continue to visit your County Clerk's office and we will do our best to serve you and make you feel welcome.

Thank you again for your support and trust in me.

 said last week. He told Keyes that Prestonsburg is urging its engineers to complete plans for the sewer improvement project here, and he expressed the hope that the city can develop with the federal agency a financing program. "We are interested," Leslie also wrote, "in urban renewal, and feel that we have two or three projects that we would like to discuss with your agency, so that planning can be started immediately. Our workable program has been approved for this year. Please place us at the top of your list as the city which is most anxious to cooperate with you to the fullest extent."

 Combs said the department of Highways hopes to let several construction contracts simultaneously on the road, as well as expedite the planning for a toll road through Western Kentucky. A million-dollar contract had been awarded for construction of a six-mile stretch near Winchester and the contractor, R. C. Durr, of Florence, was on hand for the ground-breaking festivities. The snow flying outside came in for its share of good humor. "Taking note of that, he said the snow was flying when the $39 million worth of bonds for financing the road were sold, when the contract was signed and now that the beginning of construction is officially recognized. "And I hope the snow flies two years from now when we cut the ribbon opening the road," he added.

Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said Kentuckians generally believe in the importance of building modern highways and pledged full cooperation in seeing that the Eastern Kentucky road is built quickly. Gov. Combs acknowledged the vital part played by W. H. "Bill" May, of Frankfort, formerly of Prestonsburg, in the conception of the bold highway venture and in his offer to take a chance, do the preliminary engineering work and depend on Combs' successful campaign for payment for his work. May commented, in a brief talk: "The road would have been built to Eastern Kentucky, even if Gov. Combs had not been elected. He would have built one lane and I the other, as both of us pulled back to Eastern Kentucky."

The ground-breaking ceremony was sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission whose chairman, B. F. Reed, of Drift, spoke to the crowd by telephone from his home town. Reed said the building of the highway to Campton, which will have two lane spurs to Pikeville and Whitesburg, is as important as railroads to Pikeville, Hazard and Harlan in an earlier period. His reference to the latter areas stemmed from the time the territory was opened to coal production. Reed suggested that the road should be known as the Governor's Turnpike because Combs personally had hurdled numerous road-blocks that "could have discouraged a less determined governor."

Harry LaViers, called the toll road the "first major breakthrough for solving our problems." LaViers, a member of the planning commission, was master of ceremonies in place of Reed. Only two other members of the commission were present — Rex Blazer, of Ashland, and Cloyd McDowell, of Harlan. A former member, S. C. Van Curen, Frankfort newspaper editor, was also introduced. Combs introduced members of the Kentucky Toll Road Authority — Felix Joyner, executive director; Dwight Bray, chief state engineer; and Atty. Gen. John Breckinridge. Combs was presented with a fox-horn because "you have a lot to toot about." The presentation was made by Fred Billard and Dewey Daniel, both of Hazard.

The Pearly Gates swung open wide, St. Peter touched the bell—"Come in," he said, "and choose your harp;" "You've had your share of hell!" The ebullient Mr. Harlowe is hereby informed that this old, old bit of doggerel came at a time when it was so very welcome. For this editor had just gone through the rather trying ordeal of having his rather large auricular appendages pinned back again, his critic had picked new spots to drive the pins through and the pain was unusually excruciating.

Friend of mine remarked the other day that one of our big troubles is that we still have a strong strain of the feudist running in our veins. "The only difference," he added, "is, we leave our guns at home."

 Their action contends it is impossible to do the office work if the force is reduced to four; that at least three persons are required to operate the bookkeeping department; that they can be removed from employment only for cause and that no attempt has been made to show cause. They also claim that the Board has only four clerks—Miss Phillips, Miss Greene, Mrs. May and Mrs. Tackett; that Mrs. Hornum is a secretary, Mrs. Spradlin a bookkeeper, Mrs. Rasnick assistant bookkeeper, and Mrs. Kendrick a clerk and worker in the attendance office with the rating of a teacher. Both suits ask that the defendants, Howard, Hall and Cooley, be enjoined against interfering with plaintiffs in the performance of their duties, against discharging any of them or requiring the Superintendent to discharge them. The court also is asked to issue a mandamus injunction to require the defendants to reassemble and set aside the resolutions in question. Both suits were prepared by Attorney Joe Hobson.

CASTO-METCALFE DUEL RESULTED FROM PRESTONSBURG RECRUITING

By Henry P. Scalf
 Prestonsburg, a mere hamlet of less than 150 people, was a thorn in the side of Union generals in the autumn of 1861.

To Gen. W. T. Sherman, commanding the Department of the Cumberland, with headquarters at Louisville, the presence of Col. Andrew Jackson May and other Confederate recruiters at Prestonsburg, posed the threat of an army that might conceivably disrupt Gen. George H. Thomas' planned invasion of East Tennessee. Sherman wrote Thomas, Oct. 25: "Don't push too far... Your line is already long and weak... an interruption of the railroad by an incursion from Prestonsburg would cut you off..."

Gen. W. O. Nelson, who had established Camp Kenton three miles from Maysville, was also worried about what was going on at Prestonsburg. He not only knew that the Confederates were throwing an army together at the Floyd county seat but he knew that Robert H. Stanton, former Congressman at Maysville, was surreptitiously sending recruits from that section of Kentucky to join May's Confederates.

"Bull" Nelson had men watching Stanton's house. Messengers were coming and going at all hours of the night from the former Congressman's home. A Confederate officer had slipped in and out of Stanton's house to the chagrin of Nelson. The "Bull's" rage mounted, and on Oct. 2 he issued an order to arrest Stanton and six others.

"This man Stanton is the head of secession in Northeast Kentucky," Nelson wrote Secretary of War William H. Seward, five days later. "He is the depository of money for fitting out men from this and adjoining counties for the Southern army. He was actively engaged at the time of his arrest in establishing and maintaining nightly drills of armed traitors... He is in regular correspondence with Richmond, Va... As many as eight mounted messengers have left Stanton's house in one night. Two hundred and fifty-nine armed men have gone to Prestonsburg under his advice and aid."

Nelson advised Seward that the arrested Southern sympathizers, Stanton, William T. Casto, William Hunt, Isaac Nelson, George Forester, B. F. Thomas and James H. Hall had been sent to Cincinnati. Despite much maneuvering and an appeal to President Lincoln, the prisoners were finally incarcerated at Fort Lafayette at the entrance to New York harbor.

Nelson, having taken precautions to eliminate Confederate leaders in his rear, advanced into Eastern Kentucky, defeated May at Hazel Green and West Liberty. Pushing on to Prestonsburg, he found the place evacuated by the Confederates who were making a stand at Ivy Mountain. Here Nelson resoundingly smashed the green and ill-trained rebels in early November, 1861. May fled to Pound Gap and began to put his defeated and depleted companies back together. Eastern Kentucky was now quiet and Nelson's rage against Confederates waned.

A short while after the Battle of Ivy Mountain, Nelson wrote Seward to release all of the Fort Lafayette prisoners he had sent there. Release, of course, was conditioned on the taking of an oath of allegiance. Nelson, Hunt, Forester, Hall and Thomas promptly took the oath and returned to Kentucky. Casto refused the oath, contemptuously. "On no account release him," Nelson advised the Secretary.

Casto, a graduate of Transylvania in law, former mayor of Maysville, and prominent Mason county barrister, remained in prison with Stanton. Several weeks passed and Stanton wrote an appeal to President Lincoln. It had the desired effect. The President ordered his release if he would take the oath of allegiance, which he did. Stanton returned to Maysville to live quietly.

Casto steadfastly refused to take the oath on technical grounds that the action would imply he was a traitor. Political maneuvering was going on in his behalf, and Secretary Seward finally agreed to his release if he would state upon his honor that he would render no aid or comfort to the enemy. Casto signed this and on Feb. 22, 1862, the prison gates were opened.

Back at Maysville, Casto brooded darkly and long on his supposed wrongs. Particularly, he chafed his arrest to Col. Leonidas Metcalfe, son of ex-Governor Thomas "Stone-Hammer" Metcalfe. Casto—and the feeling was probably fanned by Stanton and other secessionists—thought that he would never have been arrested if the Union Colonel had not suggested it. Actually, Casto and Metcalfe had never met.

Tuesday, May 6, 1862, the Union Party held a convention at Maysville to nominate candidates for Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney of the Tenth Judicial District. Col. Metcalfe attended and, having had lunch at the Lee hotel, was walking down the steps when he was approached by Isaac Nelson who handed him a note from Casto. It was an appeal to the "code duello," outlawed in Kentucky for 50 years.

Metcalfe, standing on the bottom step of the hotel, broke the seal and read: "Sir—Having done me great wrong under circumstances adding indignity to injustice, you cannot deny me what is the purpose of this note to demand, the satisfaction due one gentleman from another."

Metcalfe immediately sought the advice of a friend, Thomas M. Green, editor of the Maysville Eagle. Green advised against accepting the challenge, pointing out that Metcalfe had only carried out orders in effecting the arrest. Metcalfe went out to see other friends but later made his own decision. He told friends that if he refused the challenge he would "have three hundred similar ones" and "he would be obliged to kill some or lose his own life." Two hours after he had received the challenge, he wrote a note of acceptance, sent it by Nelson, who was acting as Casto's second. Metcalfe named Green as his second.

All the seventh and eighth of May were consumed by the two parties in completing the arrangements, and, notice of the affair having leaked out, rumors flew around Maysville. The authorities became interested, and Casto was arrested on the seventh. But in some way he was released, and the arrangements went on. Friends of both sides importuned Casto and Metcalfe to give up the mad business, it being pointed out to Metcalfe that as a Federal officer he could be court-martialed and to both it was explained that under Kentucky law they would be excluded from holding public office for seven years. These arguments had no effect.

Metcalfe, being the challenged, had the right under "code duello" to select the weapons, and through his intermediary he suggested the Sharpe's rifle—or, if one could not be procured, a Colt rifle would be acceptable. He named the distance between them to be 60 yards. Other details of the duel were suggested. This correspondence was between Green and Nelson on the seventh.

The Union officer was by far the better shot with a rifle but Casto thought by practice he could overcome this defect in training. He repaired to an isolated spot, the story goes, and began to use the Colt rifle with which he wasn't familiar. The Colt rifle had been adopted by the Union army without much testing, and the revolving mechanism which operated five chambers was subject to develop a fault, causing all the loads to go off at once to the injury or death of the user. Casto familiarized himself with the weapon without mishap.

Late on May 7, two seconds for each of the principals met at the Lee hotel to sign an article on the rules and regulations. Affixing their signatures to the document were Capt. W. M. Oden and Maj. (See Story No. 1, Page 3)

What would happen to you if all the Rural Electric Co-ops in Kentucky ceased to operate?

"Nothing," you say? You live in town.

Think Again!

Rural electricity, as supplied by the Rural Electric Co-ops has done more than any other thing to raise the buying power of the Kentucky farmer. Thanks to low cost rural electricity he can operate his farm more efficiently, can produce more and better crops, can make more money. And this money that he makes he spends in the towns and cities of Kentucky. Take away rural electricity and you take away the farmer's power to buy... and much of your own prosperity.

Kentucky's farmers originally built their rural cooperatives for one purpose only... to get the electric power they could not buy elsewhere! Out of their cooperation has grown a force powerful enough to keep Kentucky's prosperity growing.

Military Success May Depend On RESERVE MOBILIZATION

"Everyone will now be mobilized and all boys old enough to carry a spear will be sent to Addis Ababa. Married men will take their wives to carry food and cook. Those without wives will take any woman without a husband. Women with small babies need not go. The blind, those who cannot walk or for any reason cannot carry a spear, are exempted. Anyone found at home after receipt of this order will be hanged."

—HAILLE SELASSIE

by Lt. Col. William H. Cox

History is replete with examples of the mobilization efforts of many nations. These examples differ widely. Some demonstrate a considerable degree of prior planning for a phased and orderly expansion of military forces. Others demonstrated a complete lack of prior planning and an immediate, compulsive effort to meet the requirements of national defense. The latter is probably best exemplified by the Ethiopian Mobilization Order of 1935, quoted above.

A study of the mobilization history of our Nation, as well as that of other Nations, reveals that when mobilization comes it seldom, if ever, occurs in the exact manner planned. Nevertheless, it is apparent that where mobilization plans were prepared in advance, they proved to be invaluable as a basis for proceeding with actual mobilization. This has been particularly true where war struck with little or no advance warning. Since it is this type of threat which confronts the Nation today, it is immediately apparent that mobilization planning must constitute an essential element of National defense. This requirement has been recognized by our National leadership, in that Section 3062 Title 10, U.S. Code, provides that the Army is responsible "in accordance with integrated joint mobilization plans for the expansion of the peacetime components of the Army to meet the need of war."

Just how does the Army discharge this responsibility? The first step in this process is the development of a broad National strategy as to how the United States will apply its military forces to achieve the national objectives, both military and political. Based on this strategy, objective plans are prepared by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. These joint plans include not only the military objectives essential to support the national strategy but also establish the overall size of military forces of each Service required to achieve these military objectives. The joint plans, when approved by the Secretary of Defense, establish the basis for the overall force structure of the Services. In other words, these plans determine how many divisions, air defense units, and supporting elements the Army requires to carry out its assigned mission. The next step in this process is the determination by each of the Services as to how these force requirements are to be fulfilled. This not only includes when the forces are required but also how much of the force is to be in the active establishment and how much is to be in the Reserve Components. The development of this phase varies widely between the Services due to Service concepts of the type of war to be fought, its duration; and the anticipated budget support of the forces required. In the case of the Army, all the resources and assets including the Active Army, the Army National Guard and the Army Reserve, as well as the manpower produced by Selective Service, are combined into a cohesive ONE ARMY to accomplish the mission assigned by joint plans. In developing this phase of the planning cycle the Army aligns forces to accomplish the four broad missions of the Army. Next is the development of a sequence or plan of mobilization of these forces to insure that they are deployable at the time required and at the required degree of combat or operational readiness. Based upon these schedules the Army then determines what is required in peacetime in terms of strength, equipment, and training to insure that the required degree of readiness to accomplish the assigned mission will be maintained. This determination is the basis for the Army's annual program and budget submissions to the Department of Defense.

UK Honors Scholars - A Bit Below Par

University of Kentucky honors scholars were not as scholarly during the fall semester as had been hoped, but this has not dampened the director's enthusiasm for the program.

The 34 students enrolled in the UK Honors Program averaged 3.26 on a 4.0 scale during the first semester, Dr. Stephen Diachun, director of the program, reported.

"This is not as good as we had hoped," Dr. Diachun said. "But grades are only one criterion by which to judge the program or the students."

"Even though nine of the students made below a B average, generally they feel the program is stimulating and valuable and want to continue as honors scholars," he added.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our thanks to our friends and neighbors for their kindness and assistance offered during the illness and upon the death of our beloved husband and father, Sam Crager. We would especially thank the ministers, the Revs. Bill Amburgey and Green Boyd, for their comforting words, the choir of the Martin Branch Freewill Baptist Church for the beautiful hymns, those who sent flowers and the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

S. C. Rogers for Metcalfe and inscribing their names for Casto were Thomas A. Respass and Isaac Nelson. The time was left somewhat indefinite at an hour the next day, but the place was to be at the "fishing shore" above Dover on the Kentucky shore. The place, greatly isolated, is in Bracken county.

A final note in the correspondence early the next morning, from Respass to Green, set the time at 5 p.m.

Col. Metcalfe's party arrived at the duelling ground at noon and moved away to a secluded spot about half a mile distant. Metcalfe began to practice with the Colt rifle. At 2 o'clock Casto and his friends arrived, removed themselves in another direction from the selected grounds. Casto began also to practice. Both parties could hear the rifles of each other.

Last-minute efforts of friends to prevent the deadly meeting proving to no avail, the parties repaired to the duelling ground. Metcalfe had brought two doctors but Casto had none. The doctors spread blankets on the ground, laid out surgical instruments and bandages. Metcalfe and Casto came up and exchanged frigid greetings.

The seconds now took over and examined the weapon each man was to use. They found both rifles with only one cartridge, as had been agreed, Nelson was given the right to call the fatal prelude of words. The choice of position having fallen to Metcalfe under the complicated and precise "code duello," he moved to a spot that suited him. His friends objected that the sun was in his eyes and shone too brightly on his person. He refused to change his position. Casto was standing exactly 60 yards away.

"Are you ready, gentlemen?" Nelson asked. Both men replied in the affirmative.

Nelson slowly intoned the word, "fire." Metcalfe and Casto were standing at present arms.

Under the articles Nelson was to call, "one, two, three, stop," the shots to be fired between the word, "one" and "stop."

"One," Nelson called again. Casto fired, the bullet going wild, several inches to Metcalfe's right. It was thought.

"Two," Nelson said, sharply. Metcalfe's gun blasted. Casto fell. The bullet had entered his body just below the heart.

The surgeons now came forward, asked leave of Casto's seconds to attend the wounded man. Permission being given, they bent over the wounded man, who lived only about 15 minutes without regaining consciousness.

Seeing Casto fall, Metcalfe turned away, said to his friends, sadly: "Gentlemen, this fight was forced upon me. I did not even know him by sight. I bore him no ill-will."

The body was placed on a boat, taken to Dover, transferred to a steamboat and on it to Maysville. His funeral was held in the Maysville cemetery, the next day. A vast crowd of friends and Southern sympathizers crowded the cemetery and gave him the last honors. Casto was only 38 years old.

Metcalfe continued to serve in the Union forces, fought bravely with his regiment at Big Hill in Madison county, but his raw troops ran away. Although Col. Metcalfe and another officer tried to rally the running soldiers, it was useless. Metcalfe resigned from the army in disillusionment and moved to Cincinnati.

Gen. "Bull" Nelson, who had set off the chain of events leading to the duel, fought at Shiloh, and at the Battle of Richmond his troops also turned and ran. He was twice wounded.

Louisville, being in confusion because the Confederates under Kirby Smith and Braxton Bragg were threatening it, Oliver Morton, governor of Indiana, and a friend, Gen. J. C. Davis, arrived to help in the planned defense of North-eastern Kentucky. Morton and Buell sent Nelson, now irritable from wounds and made more irritable by drink, to soothe Morton and Davis.

The men sat down to talk, a bottle of whiskey between them on the table. In a few moments both men were arguing, and Davis made some remark.

"So you both came up here to insult me," Nelson bellowed and rose to his feet. His rage rising, he growled at Davis: "Get out of my way, you contemptible puppy," and struck him in the face. All three now were on their feet, reaching for revolvers.

Davis was quickest on the draw. He shot "Bull" Nelson dead.

The army took the victor of Ivy Mountain back to Mason county and interred him in Maysville cemetery. If you stand beside the stone that marks where William T. Casto lies you can see the memorial to Nelson a short distance away.

The wind and the rain had laved and washed the Casto grave only five short months when they laid General Nelson to rest.

JOE WHEELER LEWIS MAKES STATEMENT

After careful consideration I have decided to enter the Democratic Primary for Sheriff of Floyd county, and after having made that decision I feel it important that the voters of Floyd county should know how I stand on LAW ENFORCEMENT. However, to begin with, I want to call attention to a few brief facts about my life.

I have been an officer of the law for seven years but before that I was a coal miner for twelve (12) years. In addition to my coal mining experience as a man who goes under the hills to earn a living for his family, I was engaged for two years in operating a mine of my own. While I was a United Mine Worker I was trusted with several positions of responsibility, such as president, vice-president, financial secretary and Local Union check-weighman. I have been a member of the Masonic Order for a period of eight (8) years.

I have always worked for a living and had many temptations offered me but I have always had the courage to withstand them. A man's own sense of right, honesty and integrity mean more than life itself.

I have tried hard to enforce the law in a reasonable way and to have a record as being honest. I am the father of thirteen (13) children and the kind of county they live in means much to them as it does to me. Two of the oldest girls are in college, one in high school, five in grade school and five at home. I would like to ask the voters of Floyd county to consider each candidate seeking the nomination for Sheriff of Floyd county and carefully select the one you think or know will try to give you the kind of LAW ENFORCEMENT that will be a credit to you and all our children and not to give a vote and be sorry of it for the next four years.

I pledge myself to the church people, business people and better citizens of Floyd county to give them dedicated and considered devotion to LAW ENFORCEMENT in the future as I have in the past. I invite the voters to search the records.

Many creeks and small communities have had LAW ENFORCEMENT problems, as well as bootlegging in larger communities. I believe I can prove and truthfully say that many of these roads in Floyd county have been made decent and safe to travel through my efforts.

In the future I will explain how I propose to give you good LAW ENFORCEMENT.

VOTE A VOTE AND BE SORRY OR VOTE A VOTE AND BE SAFE.

But merely for the sake of argument, suppose you do save a few dollars on a time-consuming trip many miles from home. But don't overlook these things: What you buy here can be in your home in a few minutes—no waiting several days for delivery. And if the merchandise doesn't give full satisfaction, any needed service or adjustment of the purchase can be made without shipping the items back to the BIG CITY or being forced to make a second trip yourself.

Why drive scores of miles looking for trouble? Shop right around the corner and be safe and satisfied.

State To Purchase 2-Way Radio Equipment To Deter Deer Hunters

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 21 (Spl.) — Purchase of two-way portable radio equipment for use by conservation officers in areas of extreme deer law violations was recommended yesterday by the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission, meeting at the Frankfort offices of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The units, which it is hoped will be obtained in a few weeks, will be used by officers patrolling areas where known deer poaching exists and will permit the officers to coordinate their efforts in given areas. Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department, said.

Other action included: Publication of a booklet on conservation education to be used by teachers in the 6th, 7th and 8th grades. These texts will be used as a supplement by the teachers in science classes and will expand the conservation education program 10 fold with no additional cost to the Department.

Previous commitments ordered carried out included: Building of a dam on Troublesome Creek in Perry county; cooperation with the SCS in erection of a watershed project near Hopkinsville; construction of a caretaker's home at Camp Currie.

The Commission also recommended that the commissioner seek a reciprocal agreement with Virginia on the use of fishing licenses in the Breaks of Big Sandy Park in Pike county and decreed that Guist Creek Lake near Shelbyville, Kincaid Lake in Pendleton county, and Lake Malone in Logan county be opened to fishing on January 1, 1963, and recommended size and creel limits for these lakes; approved the use of motors not to exceed 18 hp on Guist Creek Lake and Lake Malone with special areas set aside for water skiing.

Also given approval were dates for a turkey gobble season on Kentucky Woodlands during which only shotguns may be used. Dates approved were April 20-21, April 24-25, and April 27-28.

Commissioner Clark gave a financial report on the Department and pointed out that the Department is in better condition financially than it has been in recent years.

Setser Paces Bears At Pikvill College In Field Goal Accuracy

Pikeville, Ky., Feb. 27 (Spl.) — Sharpest eye from the field of the Pikeville College Bears' regulars all season, Paul Setser, of Auxier, now paces the whole squad at field-goal accuracy.

Dropping 12 of 18 attempts in two conference-tournament games last week, the Floyd county senior ran his season total to 149 buckets on 253 shots for 57.7, a percentage slightly better than last week's 57.0. He has ranked among the 20 best small-college shooters in the nation most of the year, according to NAIA reports.

Still leading Paul Butcher's Bears from the charity line is Pete Campbell, who bettered his free-throw percentage by dropping in seven free tries during the week. Now with 85 charities to his credit on 105 attempts, Campbell is up to .810 from last week's 796.

Scoring ace Donnis Butcher, listed sixth among the nation's small-college scorers by one statistical service (NAIA) and eighth by the other (NCAB), also stands fractionally in front of big Vern Woods at rebounding.

FISHING

Ever try chumming with milk? If not you've been missing out on a sure-fire way to lure blue gills, crappies and perch to your hook. All you have to do is punch two nail holes (one in either end) in a can of condensed milk. When you drop it in your favorite fishing hole the current will work the milk out. The fish will do the rest.

Oars are mighty handy when you need 'em. But when they're not in use they get in the way of your fishing and they drip water into the boat. Bend coat hangers over the edge of your boat and form them into large hooks. Your oars rest in this cradle. No more problems.

HUNTING

A good way to ruin a well-planned hunting trip is to lose the tiny screw that fastens the ear piece to your glasses. Yet all you need to fix it is a book of paper matches. Remove the staple from the match book cover. It will serve as a substitute for the screw until you return to civilization.

An old khaki shirt and trousers can be transformed into an effective camouflage suit by applying black and brown shoe dye to the material. It's a whole lot cheaper than the store-bought kind—and the ducks never know the difference.

SHOOTING

Shooting at flying targets is one of the best ways to keep a sharp eye in the off-hunting season. It's also a lot of fun—especially when you can shoot at targets that break up. Next time out, get your buddy to toss some old clay flower pots up in the air for you, and you can do the same for him. A good place to get 'em for free is your local greenhouse.

If you're lucky enough to have a gun room (or any other room you can call your own) a simple touch that will give it an outdoor flavor is to convert 30-06 cases into coat hooks. It's easy. Drill slanting holes in a one-inch pine board the proper size to receive the empty cases (if not 30-06 then whatever else you have on hand). The final result will look good. It will also hold coats.

CAMPING

Most camping tragedies can be avoided before ever leaving home. Here's one way. A good firestarter can be made by pouring paraffin into empty shotgun shells. Pour in enough to fill within a half inch of the top. Shred the remaining portion of the shell to serve as a fuse. Put a few in your pocket before your next venture afield.

ARCHERY

If lost arrows plague your days, try this. Mark your shafts with reflective tape. Wait until after dark, then go looking for them with a flashlight. Chances are you'll find them.

(Try for a $50 prize. Send your tip to A.A. Contest, Sports Afield, 959 8th Ave., New York 19, New York.)

NOTICE

The Floyd County Board of Education will accept sealed bids until 10:00 a.m., March 4, 1961, for 500 (more or less) high school diplomas for 1961 graduates.

Samples must accompany bids, and bidder will be required to furnish and deliver to Floyd County High Schools a diploma in its particular inside color.

The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

COLLEGE BEARS MEET BEREA IN FIRST TOURNEY ACTION

Pikeville, Ky., Feb. 23—The Pikeville College Bears will meet Berea's Mountaineers at 7:45 p.m. (CST) Thursday, February 23, in the first-round action in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference tournament at Louisville, Kentucky.

Paul Butcher's Bears ended their regular season on an unhappy note Saturday at Covington, Kentucky, taking their fourth loss in 23 games, 91-87, from the Villa Madonna Rebels.

Earlier in the week they had added two home wins, trouncing Transylvania, 85-68, Monday and clipping Pfeiffer's Falcons, 96-75, Friday.

Other first-night pairings in the tournament will bring together Union and Georgetown in Pikeville's bracket, and host Bellarmine and Transylvania in the other half. Defending champion Villa Madonna drew a first-round bye. Semi-finals will be held Friday, and finals on Saturday night.

Junior Horn and Vern Woods scored five points in the last 21 seconds of Saturday's game to cut back a 9-point lead, 91-82, the Rebels longest of the contest. The Bears had led four times by one or two points as the two squads battled on even terms for second place in the K.I.A.C.

Donnis Butcher took scoring honors in the losing cause with 28 points and matched 6-5 Don Albrinck on the boards as each snared 12 rebounds. Five men scored in double figures for the seventh time in the Bears' last nine games. Paul Setser tabbed 19 points with seven field goals on 10 shots, plus five of six free throws; and Woods, Horn and Pete Campbell netted 12 each.

Against Pfeiffer, Butcher rolled to a 38-point production and snatched 20 rebounds, but was out-rebounded by an opponent for one of the few times this season as 6-9 Bob Franks grabbed 24. After pulling from a 12-8 disadvantage, the Bears broke in front to stay, 13-12, as Butcher stole a throw-in in the opponent's back court and drove for a layup when the game was seven minutes old.

Before Pfeiffer scored again the Bears had rolled up a 19-12 lead on their way to a 51-38 halftime margin.

The fighting Falcons pulled back within seven points, 66-59, in the second half before the Bears surged ahead to win by 21 points.

Butcher notched 31 points to lead all hands in the Transy clash and again topped the rebounders with 17.

Rebound Leader Head In Three Departments; Setser Vans In Accuracy

Pikeville, Ky., Feb. 23 — Donnis Butcher, back in the lead in rebounding for the Pikeville College Bears, once again heads his mates in three departments.

The 6-2 1/2" jumping jack has snatched 316 rebounds for a 13.7 average in 23 games.

In the other fields which have been his property all season, Butcher has risen to 28.5 points per game with a total of 656 tallies, and has handed over 157 assists for a mean of 6.8.

The Bears' balanced attack has lodged five starters in double figures, with Vern Woods hitting at a 16.5 clip and Paul Setser averaging 14.4 points per game, as both saw all 23 contests. Pete Campbell and Everett Horn, appearing in 21 games each, have means of 14.0 and 12.9, respectively.

Setser still vans the Bears in field-goal accuracy, hitting 570 on 134 buckets with 235 shots. From the charity line Campbell shows the best eye for the first time this season with 796 on 78 of his 98 attempts converted, as all five starters dropped in free throw percentage.

HOLD FIRST MEETING ON DEVELOPMENT JOB

By Nevyle Shackleford
(Special to The Times)

The first staff meeting of the group of specialists who will be responsible for helping carry out the long-range University of Kentucky sponsored Eastern Kentucky Resource Development Program was held at Hazard, Monday, Feb. 13.

The purpose of the meeting was for the specialists to get acquainted with each other; to hear reports of preliminary findings of those of the group who have already been working throughout the area, and to plan for a future course of action.

As Program Chairman Keith Kelly explained, the project, which is expected to assist in elevating the 30-county area to a higher social and economic level and consequently increase the over-all standard of living, will require large amounts of imagination, initiative, and teamwork. "It is new, and it is different," he said, "and it contains an unusual package of technical skills grouped for application to one program in one place."

"Teamwork," Kelly continued, "may be an overworked word, but if it is ever applicable anywhere, it is here." He added that it must not be thought of as just the specialists working together as a team, but must include the people, leaders of the area, all other agencies and organizations, and the whole state.

"At all times," he said, "we must maintain contact with all departments of the University of Kentucky and draw upon their resources. Each specialist will work in close cooperation, not only with each other, but with related departments at UK and at Frankfurt. He reiterated that the total resources of the University were behind the project and must be utilized if success was to be attained.

Kelly emphasized that two things are now being stressed in the area: (1) the formation in each county of an organization composed of representatives of all state and federal agencies serving the county; and (2) if not already in existence, a county-wide organization of citizens in each county, which would be concerned with planning and executing action programs for progress and development in the county. It would be expected that the specialists would work closely with these organizations. Inquiries as to how a county may take advantage of the educational services available through the Program should be channeled to him, he said, through the local Extension office.

It was also brought out at this meeting that Eastern Kentucky Resource Development Program is not, in any sense of the word, a "give-away program" and all means should be used to keep it from being assumed as such. Rather, it is an educational program designed to furnish a variety of the best technicians who will evaluate situations, locate "pockets of opportunity" and aid and encourage the people to take advantage of what they have and make the most of it. The program was entered into on the premise that people want to help themselves and will do it if given a reasonable chance.

The specialists were also advised to help dispel any idea that tangible results can be expected in a few weeks, or even months. The program is of necessity a long-range project because such a situation as exists in this area cannot be alleviated materially overnight. The social, economic, and educational circumstances that exist have been building up over decades and cannot possibly be remedied in weeks.

Another conclusion reached at this meeting was that county Extension workers within the area will be key figures in the program within their individual counties.

In explaining the plan of work, Kelly advised the specialists to think constantly on and search for new ideas of approach. "Don't discard any idea that may occur," he said, "until its merits can be investigated. Keep alert to pockets of opportunity and when one is found, report it to the specialist in whose particular field the opportunity happens to fall."

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week two natives of Kentucky, who had been born within less than nine months of each other and a little more than a hundred miles apart, were in the respective capitals of the United States of America and the Confederate States of America, each confronted by grave problems of presidential leadership.

Abraham Lincoln arrived in Washington on an early-morning train February 23, 1861, nine days before the March 4 inauguration date. He had not been due until later that day. The night before he had been persuaded to slip secretly out of Harrisburg, Pa., where he was supposed to spend the night, and proceed at once to Washington, because of a tip that there was a plot to assassinate him when his special train passed through Baltimore. Accompanied by Allen Pinkerton, the detective, and Lincoln's friend, Col. Ward Hill Lamon, he had ridden through Baltimore hours ahead of schedule and upon reaching Washington had been taken in a closed cab to a side door of the Willard Hotel.

Mrs. Lincoln remained overnight in Harrisburg and the next day rode in the special train to Baltimore, where nothing unusual occurred, and on to the capital. Residents of Lexington, who had known her from her childhood as Mary Todd, may have chuckled when they read in the Kentucky Statesman that upon her arrival in Washington she had pooh-poohed the report of an assassination plot, expressing the scornful opinion that there never had been anything to it.

At Montgomery, Ala., the other native Kentuckian, Jefferson Davis, had been inaugurated as provisional president of the Confederate States while Lincoln was on his way to Washington. These two men, whose destinies were so strangely entwined, had both served in the Black Hawk War, Lincoln as a Volunteer, the equivalent of today's Reservist, and Davis, a West Point graduate, as a Regular Army officer. It is known that they were both at Dixon, probably at the same time, but it is not known whether they met there or elsewhere during that minor war.

When the two future presidents were boys, their families left Kentucky, the Davises heading south and the Lincolns north. Joseph Edgar Chamberlain wrote a clever little book, "The Ifs of History." One chapter dealt with a question to which you may want to supply your own answer: "What would have happened to the United States if Samuel Davis had moved to Illinois and Thomas Lincoln had moved to Missouri?"
