PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

JUNE 14, 1962

This Town-- That World

If the Cincinnati Reds get any worse, it'll be Khrushchev who'll be protesting about the name.

Whatever else you may call them, you can't say those who compose the city administration here haven't any nerve. They've done it--kaput!--on the motor-scooter matter, and now they're facing up to this sewerage job without any great amount of flinching.

OF WRITTEN DIALOGUE

Tyros at the writing game fill their pages with so many "he said's" and "she said's" in their dialogue that the reader begins wondering if maybe there isn't something wrong. Here's an example of conversation in which there isn't a "he said;," in fact, the conversation is supplied by only one character, yet you know pretty well what the other said.

It has to do with a darkey and a mule which had decided to stay put and go not another inch. Sambro goes to the telephone.

"That you, boss? Well, I'm down here at the mudhole."

"Which mudhole? The biggest 'un in the county, boss."

"Am I gonna stay heah all day? No, boss, but Nancy, she 'fuse to move."

"I already whupped her, boss."

"Yessir, boss, I build a fiah under her."

"Twist her tail? No, suh, boss, not me. Dat mule been layin' fer me six months already. And ef I twist her tail I'll be the one that won't move!"

FLOOD REPAIR FUNDS ASKED

Fiscal Court Adopts Train Discontinuance Protest Resolution

The application of approximately $16,000 for Civil Defense funds to help repair Floyd county flood damage to roads and bridges was approved by the fiscal court last Thursday.

In a meeting Monday the court adopted a resolution protesting the discontinuance by the C. & O. Railway Company of its last two passenger trains running between Ashland and Elkhorn City. The resolution was forwarded to the Kentucky Railroad Commission, which conducted a hearing Wednesday on the C. & O. application for permission to curtail this service.

The court asked in its resolution that the railroad continue to operate the two trains "for the benefit and welfare of the Big Sandy valley."

Tax levies were set, as requested by the various benefiting agencies or branches of county government. The levies follow:

Health tax, 8c per $100 valuation; library tax, 5c; county--50c per $100 on realty, $1.50 poll tax, 20c on bank shares, 1% of market value of crude oil, 2c per acre of forest land for fire protection; schools--$1.50 per $100 real estate valuation, 30c per $100 former Prestonsburg independent district tax, 40c on bank shares, $2 poll tax.

SEWER CONSTRUCTION NEARING WORK STAGE

CITY STUDIES $880,000 JOB FINANCE PLAN

Footage Tax Proposal Not Legal, Council Told, For More Than 10 Years

Prestonsburg could be within six weeks to two months of actual work on the long-talked construction of a modern sewerage system and sewage treatment plant.

The City Council took a long, hard look Tuesday night at the suggested plan of financing the $880,000 project and apparently will wait no longer than the arrival here of the loan agreement from the Community Facilities Service, Housing & Home Finance Agency, Atlanta, Georgia, to make its final decision to proceed with the undertaking. That document is expected here Friday, and the Council was adjourned till that time.

Mayor George P. Archer explained that the Council had hoped to finance the federal agency loan on the basis of retiring 75% of the debt by an assessment per front foot of real estate and the remaining 25% by a sewer service charge added to water bills. But a representative of the federal agency and two representatives of the Bell Engineering Company, Lexington, indicated the real estate assessment may not be possible.

It was pointed out that a levy against real estate is not legal in Kentucky to retire bonds beyond a period of 40 years. The federal loan is for 40 years, and the annual payments on a 10-year basis would be prohibitive, it was pointed out.

If a real estate levy does not enter the financing picture, the bonds may be retired by a sewer service charge amounting to approximately 70% of water bills. It was pointed out that a tap-in, or connection charge, applying to those making connection with the sewer system for the first time would materially help toward amortization of the debt and could result in a reduction of the sewer service charge.

The amount of this tap-in charge will be decided later. Charges ranging from $50 to $150 were talked. It was suggested that a lower charge be set for owners of vacant lots who tap in while sewer lines are under construction past their property and that the fee be raised if connection is made after the excavation is filled.

Asked if the 70% sewer service charge added to water bills would not be burdensome, a Bell representative said it would be.

GUN BLAST HURTS THREE

Rock Bombardment Of Tram Home Results In Shooting, Friday

Three Pike county men were wounded, one seriously, by a single shotgun blast fired late Friday night by a woman whose home at Tram they allegedly were bombarding with rocks.

Charles Elswick, 20, was struck in the back by 13 heavy-size pellets, and his condition later was described as serious. He is expected to recover, however. His companions, who suffered only slight wounds, were listed by officers as Jimmy Simpson, 20, and Billy Lamb, 23. All are residents of Pikeville, it was said.

Mrs. Victoria Collins, wife of Elgie Collins, of Tram, was arrested by State Trooper Bill Williamson and Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and jailed here on a shooting and wounding charge. She later was released under $1,000 bond.

The officers said they were told the three Pikeville men had "rocked" the Collins home, earlier in the evening, and returned for a second attack when the shooting occurred. They also learned that three men, including the woman's husband, were at the residence when the shot was fired.

The wounded men fled in an auto and crossed the bridge from Tram onto U. S. 23 at such speed that they could not cut into their lane of traffic. The result was, their car and an Ohio car collided. Nobody was seriously hurt in the crash, although both autos were badly damaged.

Uniform Number System For Houses Is Slated; Work Already Initiated

A uniform system for numbering houses in Prestonsburg was adopted in an ordinance passed by the City Council at its regular meeting last Thursday night. The ordinance also changed the name of two streets. First Avenue will hereafter be known as Front Avenue and Third Avenue will be called Central Avenue.

The Council authorized the Junior Chamber of Commerce to put the numbering system into effect. The Jaycees have tackled the job, which may take all summer. They will be calling on home occupants, assigning them their new house numbers and asking a fee of $1.00 for furnishing a uniform number.

SCHOOL PLANS AUTHORIZED

Goal Still Unattained For $100,000 Site Fund; Total Now $83,669.62

Although the $100,000 fund sought for purchase of a site for it has not been attained, planning for the Prestonsburg Community College was authorized last Wednesday by Finance Commissioner Robert Matthews.

Final plans on three of the five such colleges authorized--Prestonsburg, Hazard-Blackey and Somerset--were authorized by Matthews. George Lee Shannon, of Prestonsburg, and Jack Hatcher, Pikeville, have been employed as architects on the Prestonsburg construction job.

The total of funds actually paid and on deposit in banks stood Wednesday morning at $83,669.62. These institutions reported:

First National Bank, $48,437.42; Bank Josephine, $26,055.05; First Guaranty Bank, $6,719.00; Floyd Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n, $2,458.15.

The college at Elizabethton was authorized some time ago by Matthews, and it is now in the final plans stage. It is anticipated that this project will be under contract this summer.

The other college on which authorization will be forthcoming, is at Hopkinsville.

These campuses will serve not only young adults, but also the working adults in the area by providing afternoon and evening classes. Matthews expects final plans to be completed on these facilities no later than this fall and that the college buildings will be completed by the 1963-'64 school year.

The colleges will cost approximately $680,000 each. Matthews said he "is keeping in close touch with some federal legislation, which if passed, could provide federal funds on a 50-50 matching basis. If the federal legislation does not materialize, the construction will be financed by bond issue."

Liquor Raids Result In Arrest of Ratliff; Neeley Fined by Stumbo

Liquor raids Friday by Sheriff's deputies resulted in the arrest of William Ratliff at the former home, near here, of his sister, Mrs. Allen Stone, and Ronnie Neeley. Both were booked at the county jail for possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale. Neeley was fined $20 and given a 30-day jail term by Trial Commissioner Harold Stumbo.

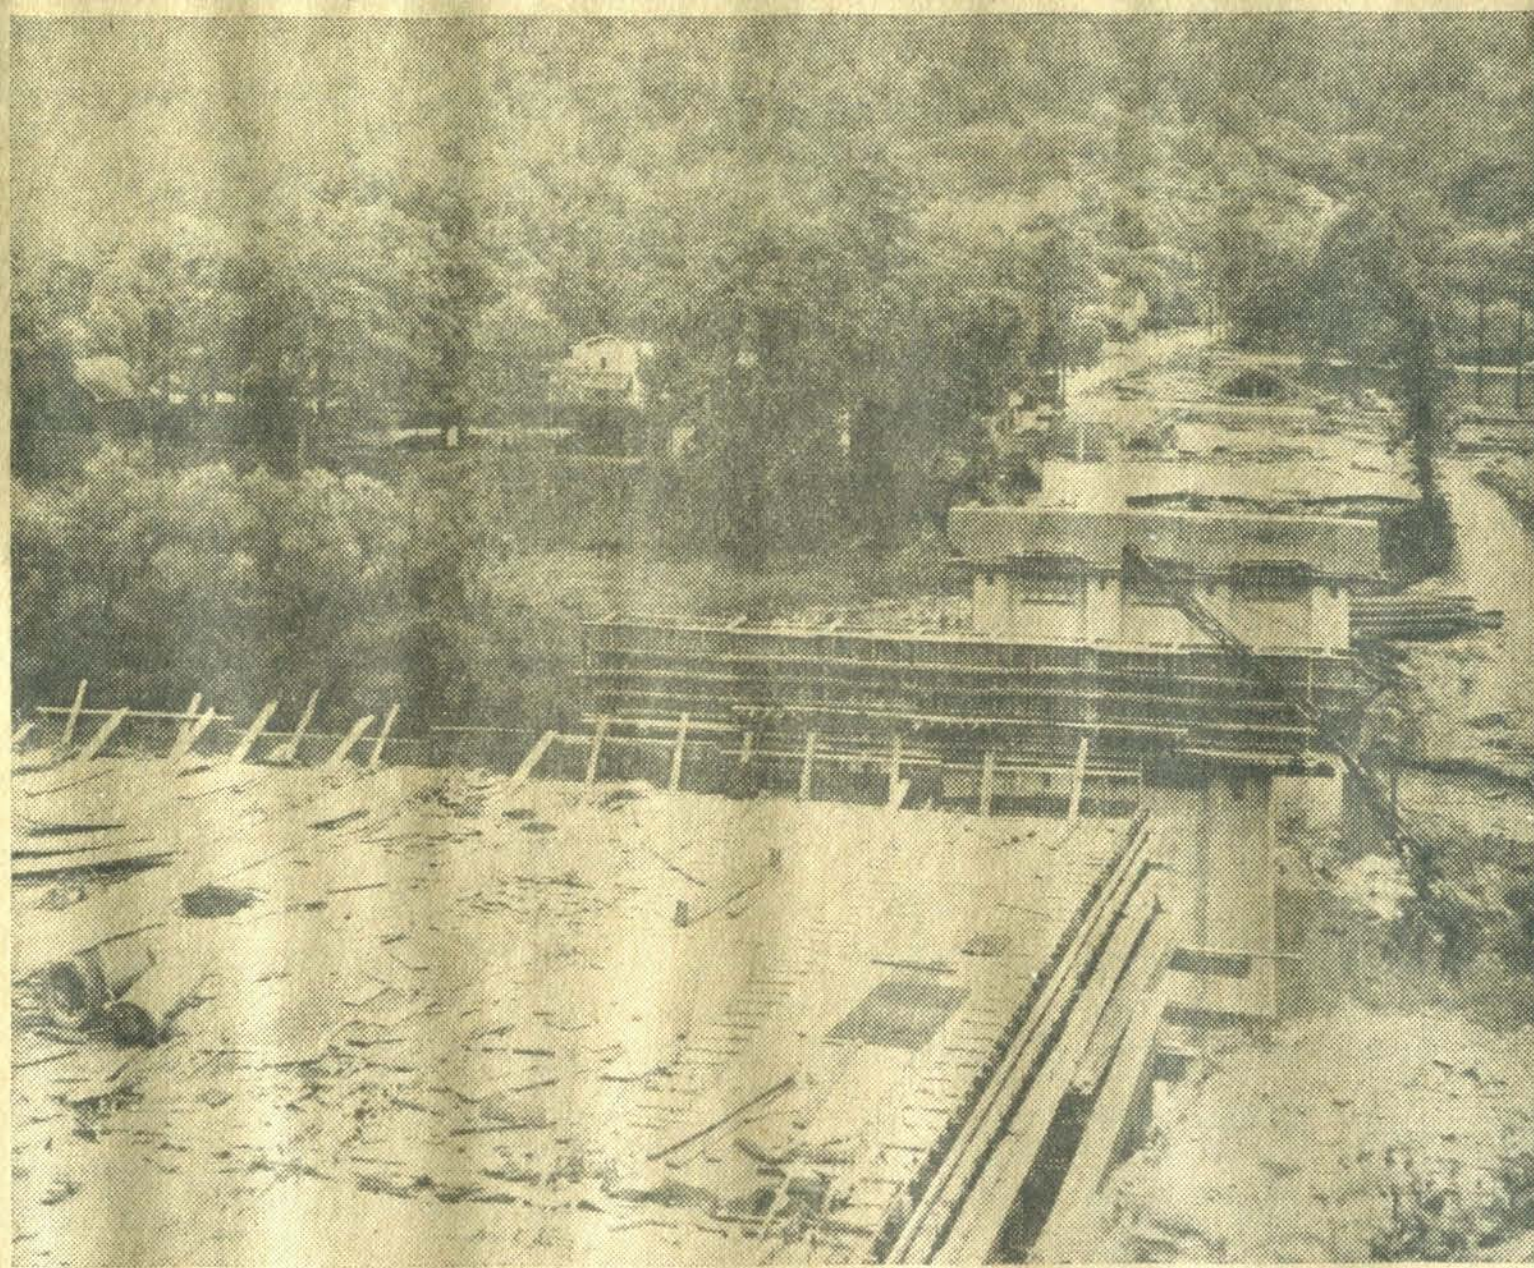

A raid by Prestonsburg police and the Sheriff's force on the premises of Sam Adkins here netted only two half-pints of whiskey. Those booked at the jail within the week, and the charges alleged against each, were:

Randolph Jacobs, hunting without license, arrested by Conservation Officer Don Mead, fined $31.50 by Magistrate Edward Caudill; Earl Walters, forgery, Orville Hall and Jimmy Yates, drunk driving and hit-run driving, Arnold Spradlin, destroying private property--all arrested by deputy sheriffs; Turner Lefferty, drunk driving, booked by Policemen Frank Blackburn and Woodrow Solyers, of Prestonsburg; Reginald Dean Fitzpatrick, drunk driver, arrested by Allen Policeman John Woods.

M. Y. F. TO HAVE SWIMMING PARTY

The Floyd county sub-district Methodist Youth Fellowship will have its annual swimming party at Wheelwright Monday, June 18, beginning at 8:30 p.m. All M. Y. F. members are urged to attend and to invite others. The picnic grounds will be available for those who wish to bring their suppers.

WHERE THE TURNPIKE ENTERS PRESTONSBURG. The four-lane bridge spanning the Big Sandy is shown from the West Prestonsburg end of construction. Piers and abutments have been completed, the steel is ready to set, and the bridge should be completed within 60 to 90 days, it was said this week. Photo shows in background Dingus street, one side of which is devoid of buildings and along which the highway will be routed to join U. S. 23.

ANNUAL CAMP PLANS MADE

Boy Scouts Schedule Camp Shawnee Program; Hodge Supervises Staff

Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, will open its annual summer camp program for a four-week period at Camp Shawnee on Dewey Lake.

The present reservations indicate that more than have ever before will attend. There is no space left except for the first two weeks as of June 12. Those interested in securing space for this summer's camp should contact the Scout office at once. Every effort possible will be made to accommodate all, it was announced by Byron F. Pennbaker, Scout executive. Because of this large advanced reservation, the camp facilities have been expanded already by about 50 percent.

Jack Hodge, with a highly qualified staff of 25, will provide another interesting program this season. A full program is planned for all Scouts from Tenderfoot to Eagle and a special program for Explorers will be offered, according to needs and wishes.

Visitors' Night, which usually attracts 500 to 700 parents and friends, will be held on Thursday evenings, as usual. The Order of the Arrow, with its famous Tapping and Dancing ceremony, will be held around the big campfire for the new Order of Arrow members to be witnessed by the other campers and visitors.

Lackey Miner Victim Of Silicosis, Monday; Burial Made at Dwale

Russell Powers, 53, of Lackey, died at home at 7 p.m. Monday. Death was attributed to silicosis. He was a miner.

Mr. Powers was a son of Billy and Cynthia Collins Powers and the husband of Ina Belle Page Powers, who survives. He was in ill health for seven years, seriously so three weeks.

Surviving sons and daughters are Billy Roy, Stroh, Indiana, Virgil Lee, Toledo, Ohio, Roger, Palmer Gene, Larry Thomas, Pauline and Linda Jane, all at home, and Mrs. Juanita Thornsbury, of Eastern. Surviving are four brothers and a sister: George Powers, of East Point, Kendall Powers, in Michigan, Don Powers and Davie Powers, both of Van Lear, and Minnie, address unavailable.

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. today (Thursday) at the graveside and burial was made in the Dwale cemetery under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

M. Y. F. TO HAVE SWIMMING PARTY

The Floyd county sub-district Methodist Youth Fellowship will have its annual swimming party at Wheelwright Monday, June 18, beginning at 8:30 p.m. All M. Y. F. members are urged to attend and to invite others. The picnic grounds will be available for those who wish to bring their suppers.

CITY FIRE PROTECTION RATING IS MAINTAINED

Prestonsburg has taken steps to maintain its seventh-class fire protection rating and is now looking forward to doing those things which will earn a sixth-class rating and a reduction in fire insurance rates. Mayor George P. Archer said this week.

Before new equipment was added and a better department organization was effected, he said, the city was threatened with being demoted to a 10th-class rating which would have meant a 30% increase in insurance rates. If recommendations made by the Kentucky Inspection Bureau can be met and the sixth-class rating attained, a 20% rate reduction will result.

John L. Thompson, manager of the Kentucky Inspection Bureau, last week confirmed in a letter to Mayor Archer Prestonsburg's compliance to maintain its seventh-class rating. A major improvement is the purchase of an additional pumper (fire truck), fully equipped, of 750-gallon-per-minute capacity. The fire department organization, he noted, has been greatly strengthened and firefighting apparatus and equipment are being maintained in better condition.

He urged strengthening of the water system, providing additional fire hydrants and maintenance of hydrants and gate valves. Thompson suggested that, although firefighting equipment will be required to follow heavily travelled streets on runs to Lancer, it will be advantageous to provide housing for all fire trucks and equipment at the present fire station in order to eliminate confusion among firemen as to where they are to report.

These are some of the things which must be done here to attain a sixth-class rating, Thompson said.

CITY ORDERS SCOOTER BAN

Illegal Operation Of Juveniles Subject Of Council Directive

Two motor-scooter wrecks here within a week and the injury of three youths were factors contributing to action taken by the City Council last Thursday to eliminate the operation of these and all other motor vehicles in the city limits by persons under 16 years of age or by those who do not have an operator's license.

City police were directed and State Police were requested to take action against such drivers, effective June 21.

It was said later that drivers of operators who are under age or who do not have licenses will be cited without exception after that date and their parents will be subject to fines.

The Council went on record at the same meeting as favoring employment of a private firm to do tax assessment equalization work here if help from the state is not available.

Evans Named To Board Of First Guaranty Bank, Effective on June 4th

George E. Evans, Jr., Wayland coal operator, was elected to the board of directors of The First Guaranty Bank at Martin, effective June 4, it was announced this week.

Mr. Evans, 10th member of the bank's board, is president of the Evans Elkhorn Coal Company at Estill and the Black Star Coal Company, Louisville. He also is connected with other coal mining operations and is active in Scouting and other civic work.

Other directors are A. H. Mandt, B. F. Reed, Byron Brashear, Wayne Stumbo, Harry Zimmerman, J. C. Cooley, B. Alvin Reed, Glenn C. Spradlin, Wesley Campbell.

James Conn, 83, Dies At Residence of Sister; Funeral Held Wednesday

James Conn, 83, died Sunday, at 8:30 p.m., at the home of a sister, Mrs. Myrtle Williams of Dana. He was a farmer and had been in ill health for seven years, seriously so for five months.

Mr. Conn was a son of Hiram and Ellen Crum Conn. His wife, Lona Clark Conn, preceded him in death. He was a member of the Regular Baptist Church.

Surviving sons and daughters are Norman Conn, Fred R. Conn and Mrs. Goldie Boyd, all of Betsy Layne, Mrs. Ocie Howell, Oakwood, West Virginia, and Mrs. Jane Harvey, of Honaker. Brothers and sisters surviving are Isaac Conn, Charley Conn, Henry Conn and Mrs. Williams, all of Dana, Dave Conn, Catlettsburg, Lee Conn, of Harold, Mrs. Elmer Rice, Banner. Surviving also are 28 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Little Salem Church at Banner, the Revs. Banner Manns, Luther Conn and Bert Conn officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Dana under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

WARD VIEWS ROUTING OF U.S. 23 IN AREA

Porter Construction Low On Rt. Beaver Road Bid; Other Work Is Scheduled

Low bidder on grade and drain construction of the sector of Ky. 7 from Red's Branch, near Bosco, to the mouth of Raccoon, is the Porter Construction Co., of Allen, with a bid of $254,000.

The contract calls for construction of a bridge across Beaver Creek to connect the route with Ky. 80, and another spanning Salt Lick Creek. Stone surfacing of the road is also asked.

The contract had not been awarded Wednesday noon. One other firm offered a bid on the project, and it was said here that its bid was about 6% above the Porter bid.

Opening of bids on blacktop surfacing of Ky. 7 from the Magoffin county line to the mouth of Raccoon, on Salt Lick, blacktopping of the new road to the lodge at Jenny Wiley State Park and repair of the bridge crossing the river here at Town Branch is scheduled for Friday of this week.

AIRPORT PLAN IS EXPANDED

Congressman Notes Inclusion of Five New Regional Ports

It was announced Monday by Congressman Carl D. Perkins that persistent efforts to establish eastern Kentucky airports within the National Airport Plan have resulted in inclusion for the first time in the plan for the next five years five new public airports for Eastern Kentucky communities.

Perkins said that the Federal Aviation Agency's National Airport Plan contained new authorizations for airports for Prestonsburg-Pointsville, Hazard, Pikeville, Olive Hill-Morehead and Whitesburg. In addition, land improvements were authorized for the Ashland-Huntington airport. The action was taken pursuant to Act. 3a of the Federal Airport Act. No airport is eligible for federal financial assistance in its construction unless it has been included in the Federal Aviation Agency's National Airport Plan. (Condemnation suits to acquire a site for the Prestonsburg-Pointsville airport at Block House Bottom, near East Point, have been filed in the Johnson county court.)

Perkins expressed the hope that plans and action on the state level would follow rapidly so that these communities in the Seventh District could have the benefit of improved air service and facilities. Perkins emphasized that improved transportation facilities of all types were important factors in developing the economies of eastern Kentucky communities and attracting new industry into the area.

Under the approved National Airport Plan new airports could be constructed at Hazard, Pikeville, Whitesburg and at Paintsville. (See Story No. 5, Page 5)

METHODIST PASTORATE APPOINTMENTS LISTED

The Rev. Orrin M. Simmerman was appointed to the pastorate of the First Methodist Church here for a third year of service at the closing session of the four-day session of the Kentucky Conference of the Methodist Church, held last week at Eastern Kentucky State College, Richmond.

The Rev. LeRoy Sanders was named pastor of Community Methodist Church here. He comes here from Elkhorn City where he was pastor two years. Before that, he was pastor of the Allen-Martin Charge. He succeeds the Rev. David Blankenship in the local church.

The 315 ministerial appointments announced by Bishop Walter C. Gum included that of the Rev. Harold W. Dorsey for a third year at the Pikeville Methodist Church. Simmerman came here as pastor at the same time Dorsey was transferred to Pikeville.

GROUP HEARS ROAD TALKED AT LUNCHEON

Alternate Way Follows Middle Creek Extension Of Kentucky Turnpike

To the question frequently heard here to the effect, "How will U. S. 23 be routed through Prestonsburg?" Highway Commissioner Henry Ward Tuesday added another, "Will it be routed through Prestonsburg or elsewhere?"

Speaking before a group of citizens and officials from Floyd, Johnson and Pike counties at a luncheon meeting at the Wise Restaurant here, Commissioner Ward frankly stated that he prefers that U. S. 23 pass through Prestonsburg and substantially follow its present route to Pikeville.

But he pointed out that U. S. 23 is a federal-aid road, and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads must concur in plans for it. He cited a letter written to him April 9, last, by J. C. Cobb, federal district engineer, in which Cobb pointed out the two possible routes for the highway between Prestonsburg and Allen. One alternate follows the present U. S. 23; the other would leave Prestonsburg, follow the Middle Creek extension of the Kentucky Turnpike a distance of two miles, then turn southeasterly via Watergap and cross back to the present U. S. 23 near Dwale.

Cobb told Ward the Bureau of Public Roads will need an engineering report "setting forth the advantages and disadvantages of each of the alternates... for our review before action will be taken on any program items for improvement of this section of highway."

Both engineering feasibility and economic factors will be considered, Mr. Ward said. "I will go to Washington tomorrow for a thorough discussion of the economic effects of highway location on communities. We think they are not giving proper consideration to this factor."

"So far as I am personally concerned," he said, "I think it makes sense to modernize the present route rather than to go across the river where the road would not serve as great a population."

The highway commissioner pointed out that a study of traffic has shown that even high-speed interstate routes are used mainly by persons going to a particular town, or leaving that town for home. He added that a study has shown that 85% of the expressway traffic into and out of Louisville is created by persons having Louisville as their destination or persons leaving Louisville to return home.

Commissioner Ward made no direct reference to the Kentucky political situation. But he did remark: "There are rumors that I may not be around very long. One of my objectives is to get this U. S. 23 matter settled while I am around."

He is believed a certainty to seek the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor as a running-mate of Edward T. (Ned) Breathitt, who has the Combs Administration blessing for the top state post. (See Story No. 6, Page 3)

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN LISTENERS

"Snow" White is such a refreshing guy to talk to on a hot day! The other morning, he was holding court on the postoffice steps while resting from what he called work on his farm. The sun was over on the other side of the building, he hadn't sweated enough to attract any sweat-bees, and the cool, marble steps were devoid of ants. It was a good place to sit and make chin music, even if some in the crowd doubted that Snow had been literally melting away in the hot sun keeping up with his farm work.

When such traitorous doubt was expressed, Snow tacked and filled and came at us from another direction. Began telling how easy farming is, these days. No corn to thin, you drill it; no weed-cutting, you simply spray 'em with weed-killer; no working the crop after it's knee-high—if you do, you lose.

Now, this man White will lead you down the primrose path, so to speak, with his fine tales of this and that, and I know it; but, so help me, if he didn't have me won'ting if maybe I shouldn't try the farm again, after all. It was the business end of a goose-neck hoe and corn-thinning (Roland Allen swears neither Jack Howard nor I ever pulled a cornstalk from the good earth by its tender, young roots in our lives, but my back hurts yet when I think about that business)—it was down-to-earth matters such as this, I say, that got me away from the farm, in the first place.

But I shall not rush back to the farm. I shall first go calling on Mr. Snow White and watch him leisurely grow corn and potatoes and beans and such before I make the big change—if I can find the tree under which he is "working."

THE BETTER WAY

With increasing concern, many leaders in education, government and business are trying to cope with a school problem which some consider to be near-explosive. In a single statistic it is this: Four out of every ten students who started the fifth grade last September probably will not be graduated from high school.

Many will quit even before they finish elementary school. The school drop-out constitutes a crisis of growing national implications in terms of unemployment, welfare costs, and according to some authorities, crime.

School drop-outs will number an estimated 7.5 million in the 1960's. Long-range efforts to reduce that number may improve schools for all students, starting in kindergarten. These efforts center on plans to increase the counseling and guidance services in schools and to provide more varied programs to meet a wide range of learning abilities. Such measures, say educators, benefit all students, not only the potential drop-outs. In test projects, such as the Higher Horizons program of New York, drop-out rates have been sharply reduced and more high school graduates have continued on to college when schools used costly increased counseling and curricula designed to meet special student needs.

As long ago as 1870, educators were writing about "the early school leaver." Nevertheless, they still are not absolutely certain who is the typical drop-out. For instance, one recent study in an Illinois community described him—and almost as many girls quit school early as boys do—in this way: "(He) is consistently found to be of low social status, below average intelligence, an academic failure, frequently absent from school, and often retarded."

However, a major U. S. Department of Labor study reported that two-thirds of all drop-outs have I.Q.'s in the normal intelligence range; and about one out of ten of all college-potential students leave high school early. There are drop-outs, not insignificant in number, who come from what one U. S. Office of Education official calls "privileged" families.

REGARDLESS OF WHO he is, the drop-out, in general, faces a bleak job future compared to that of the high school graduate. A 1960 report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics stated: "It takes longer for (drop-outs) to get their first job. The jobs they get initially aren't nearly as good, especially for girls, either in level of skill or earnings. This disparity increases even over a comparatively short span of years. The amount of unemployment . . . is much greater, and the rate of unemployment, at a given time, is unquestionably higher."

That is what the drop-out can look forward to. Why, then, does he leave school? By far the biggest cause is that he becomes dissatisfied, frustrated, or simply bored and unhappy at school. Why this occurs has been traced to many factors. Among them: he can't keep up with classmates, both in the classroom and socially; his family is indifferent to the importance of education, his various frustrations and failures make him a disciplinary problem. Surprisingly, financial need is not a major cause for early school leaving.

Educators believe early identification by counselors and teachers of the potential drop-out is essential if he is to be kept in school. Regrettably, few school systems have what is considered to be an adequate counseling system. When counseling is available, it is usually at the high school level. At this point, many school authorities say it is frequently too late to prevent a student from quitting school. (The largest number of drop-outs is at age 16, the legal withdrawal age in most states.) What is urgently needed, these educators say, are expanded counseling services at all school levels. (The Office of Education will spend $7 million in the current fiscal year to help train more high school counselors.)

SOME SCHOOL PRINCIPALS and teachers, it should be noted, believe many drop-outs are "noneducable" and are better off out of school. This attitude was possibly justified in 1900 when one out of eight jobs could be filled by unskilled labor. Today, according to Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg, the unskilled job rate is one out of 20 jobs—and it shrinks almost daily. This is why the drop-out problem—although the actual rate has declined a few percentage points in recent years—is causing so much apprehension among employment experts. A gigantic, multimillion pool of unemployable—not just unemployed—young people is being formed."

Regarding the so-called noneducable student, U. S. Commissioner of Education Sterling McMurrin says: "We must find out whether they can be educated in a different kind of school. All too often we toss these people out on the streets." Too, many people believe what contributes to creating a school drop-out also is responsible for causing delinquency. In 1961, Congress authorized $30 million for a three-year Department of Justice action-study program on juvenile delinquency. It will include work on the drop-outs.

WHAT IS BEING DONE about drop-outs? To find out, The Better Way surveyed 20 state departments of education and interviewed authorities at the U. S. Office of Education, National Education Association, Department of Labor, the National Committee on Employment of Youth and in schools.

In relation to the size of the problem, relatively little research and work is now underway on it, although most states surveyed indicated there are programs in the planning stage. Of the few states which have launched major efforts to reduce school drop-outs, Michigan's Committee on School Holding Power is regarded as having one of the most comprehensive plans. On the national level, the National Education Association is using a $183,000 Ford Foundation grant for a three-year study of school drop-outs. The Ford Foundation is also working with individual cities on employment programs for students. The federal government's role has been mainly by grants from the U. S. Office of Education. Since October, 1956, the office has helped to finance 22 research projects related to the drop-out (at a cost of about $1,100,000).

AUTHORITIES agree generally that programs to keep children in school must contain these basic parts:

COUNSELING. More experienced counselors are needed for every grade level. Such guidance is important to every student, not just those encountering difficulty. Counselors must be able to work with parents who may be creating the environment that is the real reason a child leaves school.

CURRICULA. Not all students are capable of taking and mastering the same courses. This does not make the educational needs of below-average students any less than those of superior ones. Instead, different kinds of training are needed. School should be interesting and meaningful for all students, not just those going on to college. Curricula changes will necessitate developing new books, new courses (particularly basic ones in reading) and special training for teachers.

WORK EXPERIENCE. Programs which combine school with actual job experience may be the best solution for students who otherwise would leave school completely. Many educators, though, believe the work-experience programs, valuable as they may be, are only "nibbling at the edges" of the real drop-out problem. Pending in Congress legislation, the Youth Employment Opportunities bill, which sets up various work-training programs for 16-to-22-year-old youths. The bill would provide about 200,000 jobs over a three-year period.

Implementing the above program would undoubtedly add to school costs. But, as Daniel Schreiber, director of the NEA-Ford Foundation study, commented: "The costs of unemployment, delinquency and crime is even greater."

tentative replied that 720 of the 1,100 water company customers here would pay an average of $5.87 a month. He compared this with the $9 to $10 average paid by consumers at Flemingsburg and possibly one or two other Kentucky communities.

Robert R. Goetsman, Louisville, represented the Housing & Home Finance Agency. Bell Engineering representatives at the meeting were Starling Gregory and James Lacy.

All water, gas and sewer revenues would be pledged to retire the bonds, but the sewer bonds would take second priority behind the water and gas bonds already existing. All utility revenues would go, it was pointed out, "into one pot," all utility expenses—debt service, operation, maintenance and the like—also would be lumped together.

H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., pointed out that the federal government is taking second place with the bonds at the lowest interest rate and on the longest terms. The interest to be charged is 3 3/8%; the final maturity date, 40 years hence.

Summarizing the information elicited during the session, Mayor Archer pointed out that the City of Prestonsburg is already obligated to furnish sewerage to Jenny Wiley State Park, to the proposed Prestonsburg Community College and to the low-rent housing development. "Besides," he said, "we are on reprieve from the State Health Department—on borrowed time for another year to get something done about sewerage."

Six years ago, the cost of the work proposed here would have cost between $500,000 and $900,000. Now it stands at $880,000, Archer said.

Members of the Council and the Mayor expressed disappointment that the major part of the debt load cannot be placed on real estate, but apparently were agreed no alternative but to accept the offer was open to them.

Said Mayor Archer to Councilmembers:

"I'm going to preside, not decide. I hope to God you don't tie when you vote."

Ward emphasized these points, early in his talk:

1. U. S. 23 is and will continue to be a most important artery of traffic; 2. For the first time in the history of the Commonwealth, Kentucky is utilizing all federal funds available for planning; 3. A long-range program and effective planning to this end are important.

He said slides on the new Prestonsburg-Paintsville highway had added $500,000 to the cost of the project. "We had to go back to the solid rock, and that took half a million dollars which could well have been spent elsewhere," he added.

Mayor George P. Archer presided at the meeting and expressed his personal appreciation of the assistance given by the people of Paintsville and Johnson county toward winning for Prestonsburg the community college now nearing the drawing-board stage.

Speaking briefly to express for themselves and their communities appreciation of Commissioner Ward and his work in the areas of parks and highways were Harry LaViers and Mayor Ralph Preston, of Paintsville. Floyd County Judge Henry Stumbo and Mrs. R. V. Mav, president of the Community Development Council here.

The Paintsville delegation reported on the fight for an airfield at Block House Bottom, near East Point, and said a quick court decision on condemnation suits filed to acquire right-of-way is being sought.

"Where It's Fun To Bowl!"

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

One of the favorite flowers for the garden in grandmother's day was named, "Ten O'Clock Bells," by those of the older generation. The books call it, "Virginia Spiderwort," or "Tall Dayflower." It belongs to the Dayflower Family.

The botanical name of this lovely garden flower gives us a key to the role it played in our early history. This name is, Tradescantia virginica, and this name was given to it in honor of a famous gardener named John Tradescant, who was the official gardener to Charles I. of England. In England he was often referred to as John, the Elder Tradescant. He made an exploration of the Atlantic coast, along the area of what is now Virginia. He made this exploration with John Cabot, the famous Italian navigator, who piloted ships for English sailors. Cabot, accompanied by John Tradescant, and with a good working crew of sailors, left England in 1498, to seek a new way to the mainland of Asia. Cabot was a great trader as well as explorer; they were also looking for "the spice islands of the Indies," and perhaps for many new specimens of plants and herbs to add to the king's gardens.

The exploring party landed on the coast of Greenland and they really believed they had found the mainland of Asia! They began to sail down the Atlantic coast and kept on down until they reached the coast of what is now Virginia. But neither Cabot or John Tradescant knew what a great new world they had discovered! They explored along the coast of Virginia, and it was there they found the beautiful dayflower, later to be named, "Virginia spiderwort," growing in abundance. They had never seen it before, for it was native to the New World. Tradescant gathered several specimens to take back to England, to plant in the king's garden; these flowers flourished in England and proved quite popular. The early colonists of America also found them and began to grow them in their gardens. At length, botanists named it "Tradescantia virginica," in memory of the man who discovered it.

Virginia spiderwort has long, grasslike blades, and the tufts of blue hairs inside the blooms, give it a "spidery look." Our grandmothers called it "ten o'clock bells" because it keeps on blooming until the season gets so hot and dry—quits about "ten o'clock of the summer," and then blooms again in the autumn. Ten o'clock bells bear three violet blue, showy petals, broadly ovate; there are also three sepals, green and hairy and the long, tapering grasslike leaves are bright green. In our region, this flower has now escaped and come back to its beautiful wild and free state, just as John Tradescant first found it in 1498. It grows in great clumps now along stream banks and in secluded areas, and is still popular with many people who love the old-fashioned things best.

On the western farms and ranches, there are members of the milk vetch family called "loco weed," or "crazy weed," because they run sheep, horses and cattle stark crazy! There are three kinds of these poisonous "milk vetches," the purple, blue and white, and cattlemen, ranchers and sheep herders have to be on constant guard to keep the livestock from getting "locoed." After a horse or a mule has eaten the loco weeds, he soon begins to act strangely; sometimes he will take out running wildly and will bump into a barn or anything in his way. He cannot step over a small ditch or a plank, and often whirls around and around in a crazy manner. Soon he will lose his eyesight, become weak from starvation and will die, unless treated in time. Cattle also act crazy, as if they were in a daze or a state of shock. They refuse to eat and soon die of starvation.

Disease Institute Set At UK Medical Center; Control Contemplated

Frankfort, Ky.—A chronic disease institute for county health officers will be held June 19-23 at the University of Kentucky Medical Center.

The institute is being sponsored by the Division of Chronic Disease Control, Kentucky State Department of Health, and will be conducted by faculty members from the Medical Center.

Emphasis will be placed on the county health departments' role in the development and organization of chronic disease control programs within the community.

Health officers will be introduced to the faculty and services of the new Medical Center. They will be given an opportunity to discuss how these services relate to county health department programs in the area of chronic illness.

REMOVING STAINS Stains on summer clothing all warnings carefully. Some removers are flammable; some give off poisonous vapors; and some are poisonous if swallowed.

Work with care and patience when you treat the stain. Results often depend as much on how the job is done as on the kind of remover used.

Mrs. Pitts recommends these methods for removing some common summer stains from washable clothing: Mildew—Treat spots while they are fresh—before the mold growth has a chance to weaken the fabric.

Grass stain—work a detergent in to the stain; then rinse. If some stain remains, use a chlorine or sodium perborate bleach.

Mustard—Rub detergent into spot; rinse. If stain remains, soak in a hot detergent solution for several hours or overnight.

A U. S. Department of Agriculture bulletin, "Removing Stains From Fabrics," (Home and Garden Bulletin No. 62) gives specific instructions on removing many different kinds of stains, is available at the County Extension office, call or write if you would like to have one of these bulletins.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D. Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

"DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT..."

Recently, in looking over dozens of old pictures to find some that would be appropriate for a folklore publication of mine, I was struck with the self-satisfaction of some of the people who were facing the camera. I was always a bit too lacking in self-satisfaction and, therefore, on the lookout for the more fortunate fellow who is a little more assured of himself.

Several times in a generation we decide that we have become more sensible in the way we dress. And a few years later we laugh or sneer at our child-like love of dressing up and playing "going to see."

It had been a sort of landmark for much of its life. But styles of houses have changed many times since that old house was built.

Whether it should have been preserved and a mine of money spent to restore it to its former grandeur, I do not know. But I thought, as I walked over the ruins, how unshakable that old house seemed to be, how firmly fixed as a part of our society.

Anniversaries Marked By Gas Firm Quartet; One Serves 35 Years

A quartet of veteran employees of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company are observing anniversaries totaling a century and a quarter of service with the local firm. For two of the men, 1962 marks thirty-five years on the job.

Charles (Scrub) Haywood, of Banner, recently marked 35 years with Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company. A compressor station operator at Dvale station, Haywood, a native of Blue River, joined the gas company in May, 1927, as warehouse chief at Prestonsburg. He and his wife, Rosa, have eight children.

Set to mark his thirty-fifth anniversary with the firm on June 16 is Arthur Garrett, of Prestonsburg, a field foreman. Born at Water Gap, Garrett joined Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company as a well operator in 1927. He and his wife, Anna, attend Freeville Baptist Church, in Prestonsburg, where he serves as assistant superintendent of Sunday School and as a trustee.

Henry L. (Red) Bonar, of Tram, also a station operator at Dvale compressor station, joined the company April 30, 1932, as a tool dresser. Bonar was born in Nova county, Ohio. He and his wife, Pearl, have four children.

Twenty-five years on the job with the company was marked recently by Bee Nickles, of Dma, a station engineer at Right Beaver station. Nickles joined the firm as a laborer in May, 1937.

CHAFFINS AT FT. KNOX Fort Knox, Ky.—Army Pvt. James M. Chaffins, 19, whose wife, Sharon, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Chaffins, live at Garrett, Ky., completed the eight-week clerical course at the Armor Training Center, Fort Knox, Ky., May 31.

Chaffins received instruction in typing, English grammar, Army correspondence and filing and the preparation of morning reports.

He entered the Army last January and completed basic training at the fort.

He is a 1961 graduate of Garrett high school.

Woman's Club Holds Installation of Officers

The Prestonsburg Woman's Club held its annual dinner meeting and installation of officers at 6 p.m. Friday, at the Wise Restaurant.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of three life memberships to Mrs. Lydia Spradlin, Mrs. Winnie Johns and Mrs. B. F. Combs. Mrs. Spradlin was a charter member and Mrs. Combs and Mrs. Johns were affiliated with the club a short time later during the term of Mrs. Zula D. Spradlin, the club's first president. The club was organized in 1919. Mrs. A. C. Harlowe was given a life membership earlier in the year.

Mrs. Burl Spurlock, the retiring president, spoke briefly of the past year's work and expressed her appreciation to all who cooperated so well to make it a successful and beneficial year.

A few of the accomplishments listed were:

1. A coffee on June 14, 1961, for 200 guests at an industrial workshop conducted by the Community Development Council with Governor Bert Combs, numerous state and federal representatives and specialists in various fields attending.

2. Entertaining the Seventh district meeting of K.F.W.C., October 10, with approximately 125 guests.

3. Participation by members at the November election for the passage of a 5c tax per $100.00 assessment for the Floyd County Library.

4. Participation in both radio telethons at local stations for the junction college and donation of $1,000 to the college fund.

After a report on the K.F.W.C. state meeting in Lexington, May 8-11, Mrs. R. B. May, press and publicity chairman, K.F.W.C., and former governor of the Seventh district, installed the following officers for the coming year:

Mrs. Virgil Goble, president; Mrs. Clyde Burchett, first vice-president; Mrs. Zella Archer, second vice-president; Mrs. E. P. Hill, Jr., third vice-president; Mrs. Lillian Pelphrey, secretary; Mrs. J. W. Graham, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Jack Keenon, treasurer.

Mrs. Goble, the new president, challenged the membership to work together for a good year for the club and the community. She announced the following chairmen for the year 1962-1963:

Program, Mrs. Clyde Burchett; year book, Mrs. Zella Archer; membership, Miss Fannie Mae Howell; finance, Mrs. Emma May; publicity and scrapbook, Mrs. J. W. Graham; home life, Mrs. J. L. Booher; education, Mrs. Edward Worland; public affairs, Mrs. J. B. Clark; spiritual life, Mrs. Hal Midkiff; arts and crafts, Mrs. James Donahoe; public welfare, Mrs. Regina Mayo; telephone, Mrs. W. W. Wallen; civil defense, Miss Alice Harris; community development, Mrs. Marvin Music; music, Mrs. Tom James; garden, Mrs. Burl Spurlock.

A buffet dinner was enjoyed by the following members: Mesdames Arbor Jones, Carol May, Ed May, Fannie Runnels, J. B. Clark, Paul Combs, Mary Jane Harkins, James Donahoe, Winnie F. Johns, Francis Pitts, Lydia Spradlin, B. F. Combs, William Dingus, W. W. Wallen, Woodrow Allen, R. V. May, Zella Archer, Olga M. Latta, Burl Spurlock, Lillian Pelphrey, Jack Keenon, Clyde Burchett, Virgil Goble and Misses Fannie Mae Howell and Alice Harris.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. William J. Dingus, chairman, Mrs. Russell Hall, Mrs. J. B. Clarke, Mrs. John Archer, Mrs. E. P. Hill, Jr., Mrs. Victor Hale and Mrs. Sara Gibson.

The Rev. John F. Ratliff officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The bride wore a pastel blue dress, street-length, trimmed with blue lace, a tiny blue head-dress of the same shade, and carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid with shower of narrow blue ribbon. Miss Avanelle Blevins, maid of honor, was attired in a pink dress of overlace and a corsage of white carnations. Mr. Delano Owsley served as best man. Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Conley left for Silver Lake, Indiana, where they will reside.

Showers Not for Brides Only, P'burg Groom-to-Be Learns

By KITTY HUNDLEY
(In the Kentucky Kernel)

Some may think that showers are for brides only. Lucian Burke, a Phi Delta Theta from Prestonsburg, found out differently Monday night.

Lucian received a mysterious phone call Monday from the Kappa Kappa Gamma house where he is a houseboy asking him to come over at 10:30 p.m.—closing hours.

Pushed by curiosity, Lucian went. While sitting in the living room waiting for something to happen, all the Kappas began coming in attired in house coats and curlers.

A few minutes later, the weekly house meeting started, and still Lucian sat there confused.

Then the dining room doors were opened, and there was a table full of gifts waiting to be opened. It is the annual tradition of the Kappas to give a shower for their sisters who will be married in the summer. This year they wanted to include their houseboy in the party.

Stunned and still not realizing what was going on, Lucian sat there with many beautiful packages before him.

"I've never had a shower before," he replied while opening his first gift, a set of salt and pepper shakers with sterling tops.

Holding up a set of measuring spoons, he asked, "What are these for?"

A paint brush, a salad fork and spoon, a set of tumblers, marbles, and mouth wash were among his gifts.

After opening several gifts, Lucian was reminded that he should be careful not to break any ribbons because of the old superstition that for every ribbon a "bride" breaks, she will have that many children. He had already broken one ribbon.

Lucian is engaged to Mary Jo Newcomb, a Delta Delta Delta from Metuchen, N. J. They will be married in June.

Varicose Vein Ailment Discussed In Article; Medical Aid Advised

Varicose veins are probably the most common of circulatory disorders and they affect both men and women. The word "varicose" simply means swollen, the Kentucky Heart Association says.

You can understand the why's and how's of varicose veins better if you know something about the circulation of blood through the body.

Probably no system of transportation is as wonderful as the circulatory system which carries blood to every part of your body. The heart, of course, is its center and dynamo. It sends blood out through the arteries and is the depot to which the blood returns through the veins.

On its way back from the legs to the heart, the blood has a long uphill climb. Three things help in this upward journey. Blood pressure, stronger in the arteries, is much diminished in the veins but still gives some push to the blood. The movement of leg muscles during normal activity or exercise helps massage the blood upward through vein walls. The third aid is a very ingenious anti-gravity device: tiny cup-like valves which section off the veins and maintain one-way traffic. These valves open to let the blood travel upward, then close tightly so that blood will not fall back.

Varicose veins develop when vein walls or valves become weakened. Some people may be born with weak valves or weak vein walls. But diseases, injury, overweight, tight clothing, pregnancy and other stresses can also damage or put greater pressure on the veins.

When walls of the veins are weak, in time they may give way under the pressure of blood and sag outward at the site of the valves. As a result, the valves cannot close tightly to regulate the flow of blood. This, in turn, further increases the pressure of blood against the vein walls, which may balloon out and become "varicosed."

Standing or sitting for long periods is hard on people with varicose veins because blood accumulates in the lower legs and puts greater pressure on the veins. This is one reason why doctors recommend that such persons put their feet up—at the office if they can get away with it, at home watching television or doing sit-down chores. Even if you don't have varicose veins it's a good idea to walk around every half-hour or so during a long plane or train trip. Interrupt long motor trips to let the whole family get out and stretch their legs.

Periodic medical check-ups are advisable for people with varicose veins. Let your doctor decide whether or not you need treatment. If your veins seem to be getting worse, your doctor can prevent serious damage if you see him soon enough. A free booklet entitled "Varicose Veins" is available on request from the Kentucky Heart Association, 311 Speed Building, Louisville 2, Kentucky.

MEAT BUDGET

Meat takes a smaller yearly bite from your pay today than it did 40 years ago. According to a recent publication of the Economic Research Service, 4.5 percent of your take-home pay was needed to purchase meat in 1951; four decades ago, 6.7 percent was spent on meat.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This is to advise that I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by any one except myself individually. This June 5th 1962.

JENNY WILEY CHANTERS SLATE PARTICIPATION IN FESTIVAL

A banjo whittled from white oak with a coon-hide sounding-head, a primitive three-string dulcimer and a 16th Century lute are among the instruments which Eastern Kentucky folk-singers will play at the American Folk Song Festival in Ashland, on Sunday, June 10.

On a Sunday afternoon this month a hush will fall over a woodland glade in Ashland, and a "singing gathering" lifted right out of the Kentucky mountains will unfold before a century-old log schoolhouse.

This June afternoon of music, set against a backdrop of rugged Eastern Kentucky hills was organized by the Traipsin' Woman, Jean Thomas, a native of the hills herself and a strong believer in mountain traditions.

The 32nd annual American Folk Song Festival opens at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 10, continuing until sundown. The Jenny Wiley Chanters, Prestonsburg folk song group, directed by Mrs. Edith F. James, will participate in the festival.

In this setting, removed from the commercialism of most festivals, melodies committed to memory and passed from generation to generation will be sung and played on the same instruments on which they might have been composed. In the "Wee House in the Wood," her combination residence-museum, the Traipsin' Woman has collected antique lutes, zithers, dulcimers, fiddles, lap harps, Irish harps and other instruments so much a part of her people's Anglo-Saxon heritage.

Three generations of the Fraley family—ages six to 90—are among the singers who will appear this year.

With them the festival founder will chant a Sixth Century Gregorian hymn composed for foot-washing ceremonies in the early Christian church. Once a paid church singer, she spent 13 years in New York before returning to Ashland in 1930 to put together the first American Folk Song Festival. Such notables as Burl Ives, Deems Taylor, Erskine Caldwell and Paul Green make up her national advisory board.

Little Danielle Fraley, six years old, will sing an "answer-back" ballad, "A Paper of Pins." She will be the youngest minstrel at the festival and will wear the traditional hand-loomed "linsey-woolsey" dress. Her mother, Anna Dean Fraley, will sing "One Morning in May," accompanying herself on a 16th Century lute. Ninety-year-old J. P. Fraley will fiddle with zest. His father played the same instrument in the first festival in 1930.

The festival has been taped twice for use by the Voice of America's worldwide broadcasts. Jean Thomas has appeared on nationwide television programs and her gathering has received the attention of newspapers and magazines. She has published a collection of hill melodies and several books on the festival and the Big Sandy region.

The Represent P'burg FHA At Annual State Meet

"Future Homemakers Seek Precious Values" is the theme of the 17th annual state meeting of the Kentucky Association of Future Homemakers of America being held this week at Eastern Kentucky State College, Richmond.

Among the 750 members and advisers attending the meeting will be Jeanette Vaughan, Wanda Cornett and Nancy Marshall, adviser from Prestonsburg high school. Miss Cornett, who is historian, and Miss Vaughan, who is treasurer of the Sandy Valley District FHA, will serve as group leaders for buzz sessions concerning the problem of how Homemakers' values influence them.

KENTUCKY NORMAL COLLEGE AT LOUISA

The Kentucky Normal College, of Louisa, was built in 1908 and for many years was attended by hundreds of East Kentuckians and Southern West Virginians who were preparing to teach. It was founded by the beloved W. M. Byington, one-time Prestonsburg teacher and later County Superintendent of Boyle County Schools at Danville.

The three-story structure, bought by the city of Louisa and used as a high school since 1923, is now being razed to make way for a new high school building. The above picture was taken in 1923.

The First National Bank salutes the memory of Prof. W. M. Byington, one of Eastern Kentucky's great educators.

THE FEMININE SIDE OF BOWLING NEWS
By IMA BOWLER

Lake Lanes has resurfaced, and league play begins this week. There are still a few openings for late entries, so get busy and get entered. High bowler at Lake Lanes this week was Daisy Maize, with a 202—the second time she has bowled over 200. The Junior Leagues start Tuesday at 2 p.m. Mothers, get your kids enrolled, so that they can learn to bowl the right way and enjoy this healthy sport. Contact Mr. Carter for information on teams and entering.

Crown Lanes started resurfacing this week, June 11, and will re-open on June 18. League play begins at Crown on June 24. There are still a few openings here, too, so get going. Simply contact your manager, Mr. Daniels, for information about how to form a team, and join a league.

Starlite Lanes has refinished and is starting leagues next week also. It might be fun to bowl on a league in all three houses. You'd be surprised how nice it is to renew old acquaintances and make new friends.

Those of you who are going to bowl this summer should be signed up by now, but it isn't too late yet to start, anyway, and the managers will be happy to help you. There are also openings for substitutes on all leagues, so if you don't want to bowl regularly, sign up for a substitute, and they will call you when they need you. You'll enjoy bowling on different teams, and yet won't have to bowl every week.

Jennie Wiley Park To Have Part-Time Supervised Recreation

An expanded program of supervised recreation has been launched in Kentucky State parks—including activities ranging from folk dancing to nature studies.

Guests at 11 state parks will enjoy the services of a full-time recreational leader or naturalist. In some cases one person serves in both capacities.

Kentucky Dam Village State Park has three full-time workers on its recreation staff this summer. Cumberland Falls and Kentucky Lake State parks have two each and others will be stationed at Pennyrite, Rough River, Audubon, Lake Cumberland, Natural Bridge, Pine Mountain, Carter Caves and General Butler state parks.

Two other state parks—Jenny Wiley and Levi Jackson—will have part-time recreational leaders active two or three nights each week.

"We have surveyed 50 states and their organized recreation programs and facilities," Charles Spears, director of supervised recreation for the State Parks Department, reported. "Kentucky's program last year was far superior to that in any other state. And this year's program in our state parks will be even better."

Among activities scheduled are folk dancing and social dancing, movies and color slide presentations, nature hikes and self-guided nature trail studies, free swimming lessons, bingo, playground games, group singing, story-telling and campfire circles. "Many of these activities are aimed primarily at entertaining the children so parents will have more free time," Spears added. "Alternate recreation is planned in doors for rainy days."

Martin-Brashear Vows Solemnized on May 19

Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Martin, of Allen, announce the marriage of their daughter, Carlyn Sue, to Lt. William Byron Brashear, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Brashear, of Manton. The ceremony took place May 19 in St. John's Catholic Church, Waco, Texas, and was performed by the Rev. Vance Thorne, chaplain of James Connally Air Force Base.

The bride wore a street-length white dress, with white accessories. She carried a bridal bouquet of gardenias and wore a pearl choker, a gift from the groom. Her matron of honor was Mrs. Dan Morris. Mr. Richard Brashear served his brother as best man.

The young couple will reside at 2315 Columbus avenue, Waco, for the duration of Lt. Brashear's stay in Navigation School at James Connally Air Force Base.

COOK ASSIGNED

Karlsruhe, Germany—Army Pvt. Vannis Cook, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cook, of Banner, Ky., recently was assigned to the 575th Medical Company in Karlsruhe, Germany.

Cook, an ambulance orderly in the company, entered the Army in November 1961 and completed basic combat training at Fort Knox, Ky.

United States Marines were the first Union troops to enter New Orleans in April, 1862. Accompanying Farragut's squadron past the Confederate forts at the mouth of the Mississippi, a detachment of Marines landed on the 25th and took possession of the U. S. Mint.

GARDEN INSECTS

The number of garden insects are multiplying fast. The second hatch is now present. A good estimate would be that insects destroy and reduce yields of gardens one half. This means that the people of Floyd county spend a lot of time and money to feed a hoard of insects each year. This is not necessary. There are several materials on the market that will do a good job controlling insects. The three major insecticides to use now are Malathion, Methoxychlor and sevin. They can be used separately or in combinations. Follow the direction on the label.

STRAWBERRY CONTEST

As previously announced in this paper The First National Bank, Burl Spurlock, president, is providing Savings Bonds as awards in a strawberry production contest for Floyd county growers. To be eligible, growers must turn in their weight slip, within one week after the plant closes. The slips will be returned.

Indications are that there will be some very high yields this year. Several growers will have better than 300 crates per acre.

It has been interesting to observe how pleased all the growers are have high yields and are sure when incomes per acre are compared, those that delivered to the plant will show the most income per acre. It is also interesting to note that those who have done a good job of producing and marketing are planning to increase the size of their patch.

STRAWBERRY MEETING

A report will be made in next week's paper on the strawberry meeting being held this week. This meeting is being held for the purpose of determining where the strawberry project goes from here. This will have to be a decision of the growers.

Practically all the strawberry fields if properly renovated, can be as good next year as this. Only those fields where weeds have crowded out the berry plants and those that disease has badly damaged the patch should be turned under.

The second year will require much less labor, and the returns per hour of labor is considerably higher for the second year. If we are going to have enough berries next year to amount to anything everyone will need to renovate.

Follow these steps, this method has proven to be the most successful:

1. Just as soon as you quit picking spread 800 to 1,000 pounds of 10-10-10 fertilizer per acre. Broadcast over the patch.
2. Mow off the leaves. You can use a lawn mower, mowing machine or a scythe. Be careful not to cut the crowns.
3. Rake off leaves and trash. This can either be burned, or can be used as a mulch in the garden.
4. Work out the balks. Leave two feet of matted row—a rototiller is probably the best tool to use. A small turning plow or cultivator can also be used.
5. It would be wise to use craig hericide after the patch is worked over. Most patches will be free of weeds and crab grass has not started growing. One application now of craig, would eliminate a lot of hand weeding during the year.
6. Should it turn off dry following renovation, it would be profitable to irrigate if water is available close to your patch.

CALFHOOD VACCINATION

Roy Cook, who is with the State Department of Agriculture, has scheduled time to vaccinate any calves against brucellosis. This is a free service provided by the state. Calves are vaccinated at age of four to eight months old. To get this service call the office extension agent, TU 6-2668. A list of all farmers with calves to be vaccinated will be turned over to Mr. Cook.

"Barbecued" meat must be cooked over burning hardwood or its hot coals—not electronically cooked, according to standards for USDA federal meat inspection.

CLIFF

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. May and father, L. J. May, of Waynesburg, Ky., were here Tuesday calling on Will Stephens and family and R. A. Burke and family.

Mrs. Lucy Music, of Canute, Okla., and Mrs. Anna Hale, of West Prestonsburg, spent last week here with their brothers, Will, Tom and John Stephens, and their families.

Mrs. Martha Collins, of Auxier, visited her cousin, Will Stephens, here Sunday. She had not seen Mr. Stephens in 60 years.

Patrick May, of Auxier, was the Sunday guest of his sister, Mrs. Cledis Beverly, and Mr. Beverly.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Stanley and daughter, Glenda Jean, were Friday visitors at Camden Park.

Woodrow Stephens, who recently underwent major surgery at a Lexington hospital, is able to return to his job at the Strand Theater. His many friends are happy for his speedy recovery.

Misses Hlene Dotson, Nida Gail Moore and Nell Steppe spent several days last week at Berea College, visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Henry Dotson, all of Cliff, attended the graduation of Miss Rose Moore from Berea College last Sunday.

Mrs. Celin Hackworth, who spent a month here with her sister, Mrs. Will Stephens, has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Huey Spradlin, in Walbridge, Ohio.

Stephen Lee Best, who was a student at the University of Kentucky, and Miss Brenda Stepp who was a student at Berea College have returned to their respective homes for the summer.
