This Town-- That World

JUST WONDERING

Whatever may come of all this hearing business protesting the C. & O. move, to cut off the last two passenger trains in the valley, it all has not been dull. John Ward, publisher of The Pike County News, got into the record a quip about the Budd cars used on the line. They're the RDC-BUDD models, and John wondered if RDC could mean, "Reconditioned To Discourage Customers."

THANKS!

I lost a big bass last Friday afternoon, over at the lake. This morning, I received from an anonymous giver a "crying towel." I admit, I yelped with anguish to some extent, but it didn't occur to me they'd hear me all the way to town.

ERRATA, ETCETERA

A few weeks ago, in "Our Yesterdays" column, we dated our "Thirty Years Ago" department April 29, 1832. It so happened that the young lady who does the bowling column for us was mentioned in that column as having been born April 22. Wrote she of her contribution the next week:

"I am sorry this has run so long again... but I'm rather wordy—perhaps because a woman of many years has many words to say. At that, I think I'm right well-preserved to be 130 years old."

CREDIT

For the excellent article on school drop-outs which we reprinted last week from GOOD HOUSEKEEPING we are indebted to Mrs. Glenn Blackburn, of Betsy Layne. She read the article in the magazine and was interested enough in other folks in the county to get permission from the publishers for us to use it.

THE SILENCE WAS BROKEN

Speaking of losing big bass, I was reminded, the other afternoon, after I had ended off, of the story told of the preacher. He lost a five-

TRAIN SERVICE POOR, WITNESSES CONTEND

CITIZENS ASK CONTINUANCE OF 2 TRAINS

Publishers, Officials, Others Protest Proposal To Stop Valley Service

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company jostled here Wednesday with Big Sandy newspaper publishers, public officials and citizens who protested to the Kentucky Railroad Commission against the company's elimination of its last two passenger train runs between Ashland and Elkhorn City.

The railway's testimony was heard at an earlier hearing at the Railroad Commission's offices in Frankfort. The case was moved to the Floyd county courthouse on motion of those protesting cancellation of the trains.

C. & O. contends that automobiles and buses traveling improved highways have taken the passenger train business and that continued operation of the two trains, Nos. 36 and 39, is not economically feasible.

Protesting witnesses contended here that the railway company has put into operation such poor facilities for passenger transportation that the public cannot be expected to patronize it. They also claimed that if air-conditioned trains, with modern seating and other facilities, were put into service, the passenger business would rise.

These witnesses portrayed the improvements made in the valley, its industrial potential and the efforts made to attract both tourists and industry, claiming that passenger train service is important to the progress of the area. They also contended such development of the valley would, in turn, benefit the company's passenger business.

County Judge Henry Stumbo and County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill reported on the two coaches used on Train 39 after they had been passengers on it from Harold to Prestonsburg. Members of the Railroad Commission, Wayne W. Freeman, Mayfield, and Robert Dameron, of Ivel, together with a sizeable group of others interested in the train problem, met Train 36 at West Prestonsburg Wednesday morning and made brief inspection of the two Budd cars used for passengers, express and the U. S. mail.

Judge Stumbo and County Attorney Sturgill reported that diesel fumes entering the open door of their coach between Harold and Prestonsburg affected them, that the windows of the coaches were not opened, that the one rest-room of the coach in which they were seated was unmarked and was, presumably, used by both sexes.

Only a part of each of the two coaches is used for passengers. There are seven seats in each, and these will accommodate, altogether, approximately 35 passengers. Part of one of the coaches is used for express, with a partition dividing the coach into express and passenger compartments. The other is similarly divided for mail and passengers.

ROAD WORK IS AWARDED

Porter Construction To Grade, Surface Job On Right Beaver Creek

A contract was awarded on one Floyd road job this week, and bids were received a few days earlier by the State Department of Highways on three others.

The Porter Construction Company, Allen, it was learned here Tuesday night, was awarded the contract for grade, drain and stone surfacing of Ky. 7 from Bosco to the mouth of Raccoon on Salt Lick Creek. The job includes construction also of two bridges. Porter's bid, low of two offered, was $254,000.

Low bidders on three Floyd projects were announced by the Department of Highways last Friday, and contracts are expected to be awarded on each within the next few days. These are:

Concrete surfacing of Ky. 7 from the mouth of Raccoon to the Floyd-Magoffin line, 2,037 miles, Adams Construction Co., Paintsville, $57,967.

Howard (center), president of the club, are Miss Brenda Horn, valedictorian, and Larry Johnson, salutatorian, of the Prestonsburg high school graduating class this year. ## FLOYD WOMAN ACCUSES FOUR

Bond Hearing Scheduled Today In Pike-Co. Court; Beating, Rape Alleged

The Pike quarterly court hearing on bond set for four Pike countians accused of the rape of a 25-year-old Floyd county woman was postponed from Monday till this morning (Thursday), it was said Tuesday at the office of County Judge Ervin S. Pruitt.

State Police Detective Perry Taylor said the woman, Hattie Kiser, 25, of Beaver, was found in a dazed or unconscious condition beside the road near Indian Creek in Pike county about 4 a.m. Tuesday of last week and was admitted to the Methodist hospital later the same day.

Taylor said the woman, who was in a dazed condition when he questioned her about 11 a.m. Tuesday suffered bruises and apparently had been beaten.

He said the woman claimed she had been both beaten and raped while detained about four hours. Taylor said the accused persons have admitted having intercourse with the woman but maintained that it was with her consent. They denied that she was beaten.

Taylor and Deputy Sheriff Dial Mullins arrested the five accused at their homes Tuesday afternoon.

The four adults accused are Robert McPeak, 20; Glenn Dameron, 21; Gary Wright, 23, and David Fleming, 18. The fifth is a 16-year-old boy.

The four waived examining trial and were held to the November grand jury. The hearing will be held by Judge Pruitt to determine the amount of bonds. A hearing also will be conducted to determine if the charge against the boy will be disposed of in juvenile court or referred to the grand jury.

All five accused are held in the county jail.

This summary of information gathered by officers from Hattie Kiser was recounted by The Pike County News:

"Hattie Kiser had been to a restaurant near Melvin in Floyd county and, accompanied by a neighbor, Luther Page, 19, was walking to her home at nearby Beaver about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday.

"A car containing four of the accused, all but Fleming, came by and the occupants offered the two a ride home. Instead of being taken home the two were taken

TWO VICTIMS OF MONOXIDE

Beaver Man, Girl-Friend Missing 8 Days, Found Near Rockville, Indiana

Bodies of a former Floyd county man and his girl-friend, who had been missing eight days, were found Saturday in an automobile, near Rockville, Indiana.

The Floyd countian, 30-year-old Claude Hamilton, formerly a resident of Beaver, and a woman companion disappeared June 8. Cause of the couple's death was ruled accidental monoxide poisoning. It was said that the exhaust pipe of Hamilton's car was loose and that he had been warned by mechanics of the danger of monoxide.

Name of the woman-victim was not learned here.

Hamilton was employed in Indiana as a construction welder. He was a son of Kenis and Frankie Mullins Hamilton, who live at Beaver. Surviving brothers and sisters are: Odra Hamilton, Ashabula, Ohio; Ishmael Hamilton, Huntington, Indiana; Birchell Hamilton, of the U. S. Army, in Germany; Mrs. Jean Vance, Huntington, Indiana; Mrs. Avonell Ray, Albion, Michigan; Mrs. Ethel Hamilton, Mrs. Ivel Jean Newsome and Mrs. Flossie Hall, all of Ashabula, Ohio, and Mrs. Jeanine Stone, Dayton, Ohio.

Senior 4-H Members In Leadership Courses

Melanie Ann Conley will serve as song leader for the camp.

MINIMUM WATER BILL STATISTICS COMPILED

Roughly, almost half of the water consumers of Prestonsburg's 1,140 pay the minimum $2.25 monthly bill and so will pay an average monthly bill of $3.83 if the proposed sewer system and sewage disposal plant are built.

Figures compiled by Bell Engineers, Lexington firm which has done the engineering, and planning for the big project, show that there are 506 consumers who pay the minimum water bill on the average, using from 1,000 to 2,000 gallons. The same data show that the group of customers using from 1,000 to 5,000 gallons a month totals 934, leaving only 206 whose average water and sewer service bill would exceed $9.95 a month.

This information was spotlighted this week as the City Council was scheduled to consider, and almost certain to accept, the loan agreement proposed by the Community Facilities Service of the Housing & Home Finance Agency, Atlanta.

The portion of the $880,000 cost of the project to be financed with the federal agency will be paid by means of a sewer service fee of 70% of the consumer's water bill. Revenue bonds against the water and gas system and the sewer system would bear 3 3/8% interest over a period of 40 years.

Bell's figures, compiled from a 12-month analysis of billing to water consumers over the period ending September 30, 1961, shows that the average water bill in Prestonsburg is $4.10 and that the 70% sewer addition to that would bring that average to $6.97.

Other figures listed reveal that:

AUDITOR CLAIMS TWO INDEBTED TO COUNTY

Floyd Assistance Aid Totals $80,136 In May, Earle Powell Announces

Floyd county's public assistance recipients received $80,136 in aid last month through the State Department of Economic Security, Commissioner Earle V. Powell has announced.

The needy aged received a total of $37,456 in May, families receiving aid to dependent children were paid a total of $31,653, the needy blind $2,667 and the totally and permanently disabled $8,360.

Statewide payments totaled more than $5.3 million during the month, Commissioner Powell added, and went to 145,757 needy Kentuckians.

COLLEGE FUND IS $85,267

Slight Rise Marks Last Week's Effort; UK Personnel Confers

The fund being raised for the purchase here of a site for the Prestonsburg Community College rose slightly this week and now stands at $85,267.

While the effort continues to raise the $100,000 pledged by residents of Floyd and surrounding counties, the University of Kentucky is making a study of needs prior to setting to work architects who will plan the college structure.

University representatives conferred here last week with leaders of the move for the college and also called on county school superintendents of the area. They sought information as to the student body potential and curriculum needs. A second visit here is scheduled, it was said.

It is expected that size of the structure and details of the curriculum will be determined in time for planning work to be started around July 15.

2 OFFICIALS MOVE OFFICE

Stumbo, Sturgill Occupy Education Board Space Rent Saving Is Effected

Offices in the west wing of the courthouse which were vacated earlier this year by the Floyd County Board of Education were occupied over the week-end by the offices of County Judge Henry Stumbo and County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill.

In turn, the offices vacated by Judge Stumbo will during the month be converted into the Floyd county food stamp office which now is housed in Town Center. Minor alterations will be required of the courthouse space for the stamp office, but a saving of $75 rent a month will be effected by the move, it was said.

Both officials found roomier quarters in the west courthouse wing which became vacant when the Board of Education moved to the remodeled and renovated old high school building. Offices of Circuit Judge Edw. P. Hill, Commonwealth's Attorney Hollie Conley and Tax Commissioner Clive Akers are on the second floor of the same wing. Frank H. Layne, district supervisor of the state program on alcoholism, will occupy another of the second-floor offices.

FLOYD FEDERAL MOVES TO NEW BUILDING

The Floyd Federal Building & Loan Association opened to business Monday morning in its new Lake Drive building to which finishing touches yet are being added. The move from its original location, across the street, was made over the week-end. Formal opening of the business in its new structure has tentatively been set for July 6 and 7. Front of the building is of Texas granite, with liberal expanses of glass adding variety to the exterior. The interior is finished in black walnut. It includes the main banking department, a semi-private office, the manager's office, vault, storage room, boiler room and two bathrooms.

Cost of lot, building, new furniture and equipment and surfacing of the parking area was placed at $115,000.

Floyd Federal, which has assets of $3,250,000, will observe its fifth anniversary Saturday,

AND THAT WASN'T ALL OF THEM. This photograph of the beach at the Stratton Branch recreation area of Jenny Wiley State Park shows only a part of the bathers and the automobiles parked there on a recent Sunday afternoon. At that, the weather wasn't favorable for swimming. A pavilion-shelter has been constructed this year, a short distance off the highway at Stratton Branch, and nearby have been installed slides and swings and picnicking facilities.

Newcomb-Burke Vows Said

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Luther Newcomb, of Metuchen, N. J., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Jo, to Mr. Lucien Francis Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Burke, of Prestonsburg, Ky., on June 9 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the Second Presbyterian Church in Lexington, Kentucky.

The Rev. James Angell performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar banked with ferns, white gladioli and branched cathedral candelabra holding white candles. Pre-nuptial music was furnished by Miss Priscilla Hepburn, accompanist, Mr. Edmund R. Burke, Indianapolis, Ind., brother of the groom, who sang, "I Love You, Truly," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a cream gown of taffeta and lace, which featured long, lace sleeves, a scalloped neckline etched with pearls. The theme of a single rose of taffeta, which was featured at the center of the bodice, was also carried out in the six roses, each placed at the end of a lace applique on the full, floor-length skirt. Her illusion veil was topped with a pearl tiara. She carried a bouquet of white roses, showered with satin ribbons.

Her maid of honor, Miss Marianna Whitmore, Peoria, Illinois, wore a soft rose dress of silk organza over taffeta. The dress had a full skirt and tight bodice, featuring a removable rose lace jacket with long sleeves. She carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations and sweetheart roses with pink streamers. Her veil was a wisp of rose organza, captured by a miniature pearl tiara.

Dresses and bouquets of the bridesmaids, Miss Susan Sinclair, Detroit, Mich., Miss Rita Ray, Louisville, Miss Judith Ann Lampton, Charleston, W. Va., were identical to Miss Whitmore's.

Mr. William Baker Burke, Ashland, Ky., served his brother as best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Mr. William Jones, III, Louisville, Ky., Mr. Donald Knapmeiger, Erlanger, Ky., and Mr. Thomas Harmon, of Prestonsburg.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlour. The bride's table was covered with an Italian cut-work cloth centered with the three-tiered bridal cake and flanked by triple repousee candelabra holding white candles. Silver trays of individually decorated cakes, mints and nuts were accompaniments. Mrs. Gerald Butcher, Lexington, served the bridal cake. Mrs. Arthur Lampton, of Charleston, W. Va., aunt of the bride, poured punch. Mrs. Frank Hopkins Layne, Prestonsburg, aunt of the groom, presided at the guest book.

Following the reception the couple left for a week-end stay at Beaumont Inn, Harrodsburg, Ky., later spending a week at Gatlinburg, Tenn., and other places.

The groom, a graduate of University of Kentucky, will enter the University of Kentucky Medical School this fall. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-medical honorary, and Lambda Chi Omega, senior men's honorary. The bride is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. Mrs. Burke will continue her studies at the University. They will reside in Lexington.

Berea, Ky., June 8 (Spl.)—Miss Edith Conyers Cook, daughter of Mrs. Cora Cook, of Berea, and Mr. Leon Cook, of Roxboro, North Carolina, and Mr. Play Spencer Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Price, Caroleen, North Carolina, were united in marriage Monday, June 4. The ceremony was performed at 10 a.m. in Danforth Chapel on the Berea College campus by Dr. Gordon Ross.

(The bride formerly resided at Prestonsburg.)

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Sam H. Tabb, the bride wore a floor-length gown of starched lace over taffeta with a fitted bodice outlined in sequins, and a full skirt of wide, inverted pleats. Her fingertip veil fell from a coronet of seed pearls and her bouquet was white roses and blue baby's-breath.

The matron of honor, Mrs. John Cook, sister-in-law of the bride, wore a street-length, full-skirted gown of teal blue dotted swiss over taffeta with matching broad-brimmed hat, and carried a colonial bouquet of spring flowers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Carolyn Farley, South Williamson, Kentucky, and Miss Carolyn McGhee, of Lake City, Tennessee. They wore identical dresses of pale blue of material and style like that of the matron of honor, and carried colonial bouquets.

Mr. Larry Greathouse, of Chicago, served as best man. The guests were seated by Mr. Ray Gibson, Dixon, Kentucky, and Mr. Dalton Smart, Forest City, North Carolina.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Morris Todd, Berea, organist, and Mr. John S. Cook, Lexington, brother of the bride, who sang "This is My Beloved," "O, Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

A reception was held in the Fireside Room of the chapel. Assisting were Mrs. Sam H. Tabb, Lexington, the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. Bates Henderson, Mrs. Charles Lewis and Mrs. Charles Pauck, of Berea.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Price will make their home in the Powell apartments in Berea for the summer.

Both the bride and groom were graduated from Berea College on Sunday, June 3. They will live at Wake Forest, North Carolina, in September where Mr. Price will attend Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Wrong Bleach Yellows Wash & Wear Cottons

If you have trouble keeping wash-and-wear cottons from turning yellow, perhaps you're using the wrong kind of bleach. A chlorine bleach may weaken the fibers and yellow the fabric with some wash-and-wear cottons. Be sure to check label directions—if it says "Do not use a chlorine bleach," then don't! Instead, use sodium perborate as a bleach on these fabrics, suggests the USDA Agricultural Research Service clothing specialists. Sodium perborate is available at most supermarkets under several brand names.

ORDINANCE

ORDINANCE NO. 11-62

An Ordinance Providing for the Annual Licensing of all Nonresident Persons, Firms or Corporations Using Motor Vehicles to Transport Goods and Make Deliveries of Goods in the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

WHEREAS, commercial motor vehicles using the streets of the City of Prestonsburg require additional maintenance and repair of the streets, additional services of the Police Department, and other departments of the City of Prestonsburg, and the costs of these services so rendered are such that the Revenue now received by the City is insufficient to defray these costs, and

WHEREAS, it is determined that nonresident persons, firms or corporations using commercial motor vehicles to transport goods and make deliveries of goods in the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, should be required to pay a reasonable annual license fee to contribute to the cost of the services required and for the privilege of operating said vehicles on the streets of the City of Prestonsburg.

BE IT, THEREFORE, ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY, AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. There shall be charged an annual license fee to each person, firm or corporation using motor vehicles to engage in the transportation of goods and/or the delivery of goods within the corporate limits of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky. The license for this privilege of transportation and delivery of goods shall be issued by the City Clerk on payment of the required fee and satisfactory evidence of classification.

SECTION 2. This license fee shall be based upon the gross load capacity weight of said vehicles, as follows:

(a) For all motor vehicles rated up to and including a gross load capacity weight of 1,000 pounds, a license fee of Twenty-one ($21.00) Dollars per year.

(b) For all motor vehicles rated up to and including a gross load capacity weight in excess of 1,000 pounds, a license fee of Forty-one ($41.00) Dollars per year.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance, and no part thereof, shall apply to common or contract carriers holding a certificate issued by the Department of Motor Transportation, who are specifically exempt by statute from such taxation; and no persons, firms or corporations who are presently required to be licensed under Ordinance No. 7-62 of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, shall be required to purchase the license provided in this Ordinance.

SECTION 4. The provisions of this Ordinance are separable.

SECTION 5. The owners of vehicles to be licensed under the provisions of this Ordinance shall provide satisfactory evidence, documentary if required, of the proper classification for license hereunder, and the Clerk shall not issue such license until this requirement is complied with. If more than one motor vehicle is used in the City of Prestonsburg by the same company for the purposes mentioned herein, then the license fee shall be charged to cover the truck having the greatest gross load capacity weight.

SECTION 6. Said license shall be issued for a period of one year, for the period covering July 1 to July 1, and no license shall be issued for a shorter period than six months. A license issued under this Ordinance for less than one year shall run from January 1 to July 1. A license issued for less than one year shall be charged for at the rate of one-half the applicable charges set out in Section 2 hereof.

SECTION 7. Any person, firm or corporation violating or causing to be violated any part of this Ordinance, by transportation or delivery of goods within the corporate limits of the City of Prestonsburg, without first having obtained a license under the provisions of this Ordinance, shall be fined in an amount of not less than $30.00 nor more than $100.00 for each offense, and each day of violation shall be deemed a separate offense.

John Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Davidson, Sr., and a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Burke, of Prestonsburg, won three top awards given seniors at the honors assembly recently of Manistique (Mich.) high school.

First of all, he won the Lazarus and Rachel Rosenthal scholarship award of $500. He also received the J. J. Herbert speech trophy for excellence in speech, dramatics and forensics, the Bausch & Lomb science award, and shared the Danforth Foundation book award with another student. A four-year honor student, young Davidson also was a member of the debate team which won the Michigan High School Forensic Association debate plaque for winning 75% of all league debates.

ALCOHOLISM

Alcoholism is no respecter of persons. It strikes regardless of social or business position—as likely to ensnare the president of a company as the janitor, the professor as the illiterate, the wealthy wife as the domestic servant. It gets its name as the "hidden disease" from the thousands who yield to social pressures and conceal their uncontrolled drinking behind closed doors, perhaps at home, perhaps in the office, perhaps out on the job. They represent a cross-section of society, including professional men and women, business executives, skilled mechanics, laborers, housewives and even ministers.

APIDS ON TOBACCO

Lexington, Ky. — Several materials, used in tests last season to control the green peach aphid on tobacco, looked "very promising." So says Richard Thurston, UK Ag Experiment Station entomologist, this week. He noted that the materials did as well as, sometimes better, than Malation, one of the recommended insecticides for this pest.

A current edition of a C. & O. publication was used in the interrogation of one witness. It featured an article, the headline and text of which told of C. & O.'s recognition of the importance of the passenger and of its desire to get more passengers. Asked his reaction to the article, the witness replied that he found it very funny.

County Clerk C. Ollie Robinson and Norman Allen completed the testimony for the morning session. The hearing was resumed Wednesday afternoon. Ready to testify were Sheriff Henry C. Hale, Commonwealth's Attorney Holle Conley, Tax Commissioner Clive Akers, representatives of the Railway Brotherhood and others.

Frank L. McCarthy, Lexington, chairman of the Railroad Commission, was not present for the hearing here. Cross-questioning witnesses, Porter Gray, Ashland, C. & O. counsel, attacked the protest by asking witnesses when they last had ridden a passenger train between Ashland and Elkhorn City. He also sought to prove that increased tourist business and industrial development would not mean more passenger business for the company.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TO CORRECT AN ERROR

We, the family of the late Mrs. Florence Crisp, wish to take this means to publicly renounce the article that was published in The Times concerning our mother's religion. From the day she first joined the church until the day she died she was a Methodist. She was a charter member of the Methodist Church of Bull Creek, her former home. Later in life, when it became difficult for her to walk to church, she went with friends to any church. She listened to and enjoyed hearing a minister preach, regardless of his denomination. Then, almost eight years ago, she suffered a stroke and never was able to attend church any more. Ministers came to her house, held prayer, sang and conducted services for her right at her bedside. She really enjoyed and greatly appreciated these wonderful deeds the ministers did for her. She gave large sums of money to help keep these wonderful programs on the radio. But never, never did she change her membership from the Methodist Church to any other. During her long, drawn-out illness she was not even able to talk clearly or make herself understood, much less become a member in any other than her own church. This is absolutely true, regardless of the article that some one, who did not even have the nerve to sign his or her own name, had published in The Times.

And Still Prestonsburg Waits

Prestonsburg is the hometown of the Governor of Kentucky. But, except for the prospects of a college here, the building of a road into Prestonsburg from Central Kentucky and a great improvement program at Jenny Wiley State Park, —except for these things the Governor is doing for his "hometown," the stranger approaching our gates would never know it.

Prestonsburg waited exactly 163 years before it had the right to tell others, "This is the home of the Governor of Kentucky" —and it is still waiting, although it has had the long-awaited right for almost three years now.

Other communities in Kentucky and in other states have proclaimed to the world such a distinction. The traveler to other states will see handsome signs proudly setting this hamlet, village, town or city apart as the home of the state's chief executive. But Prestonsburg has made no such claim to distinction.

Boldly emblazoned signs, reading, "A.B.C. in '63," you will see here. But nothing of the only man who ever left Prestonsburg to reside in the executive mansion at Frankfort.

This is not to quarrel with anybody. Those who oppose Governor Combs have their rights, and we recognize them. In fact, this editorial does not concern them. But it does concern the friends of the Governor. It should concern all of us who have long lamented our lack-lustre position in Kentucky, those of us who believe Prestonsburg has some claim to a singular position in the state, temporary though it is.

It should concern us who have a friend at Frankfort that we are doing a great job of keeping that fact secret.

Those, then, who agree with us should join in placing at the approaches to Prestonsburg attractive signs stating simply, proudly, at our own expense, that this is the home of the Governor of Kentucky. Let us do this without rancour toward any other individual but simply in recognition of one of our own and on behalf of our community.

As Governor of Kentucky Bert Combs does not need the advertising. But Prestonsburg does.

Crack Down First on the Crack-Pots

Boating Director Scott Barbour has warned the public that the time is near when his division will get tough and begin issuing citations and making arrests for violation of the law governing boats, boaters and boating.

It is time for arrests and fines. But we think Mr. Barbour in his recent statement failed to stress the major violations being committed on state waters, and thus indicates he is not getting a true picture of the situation.

He pointed out that 17 per cent of 1,234 boats inspected showed one or more violations that would have warranted a citation. Then he added that most violations included lack of registration for the current year, failure to have at least one life preserver per person aboard, also no anchor and line.

These are the sins of omission. What about those of commission? What is the status of that boat which has life preservers fore and aft and amidships, which has its registration number gleaming on the prow, and has both anchor and line—and also has a nitwit at the controls who by his recklessness threatens the safety of other boaters?

They arrest drunken drivers of automobiles. Why not crack down on the drunks afloat? Can you imagine a motorist in his right mind cutting some of the capers perpetrated by boaters on Dewey Lake, for instance?

Bear down first on those sins of commission, we say. Then, if officers have any spare time left, they can with justice check the technical violations. We believe in this boating law—if it can be made to mean anything.

thence leaving said right-of-way line and with the property line of proposed college property the following courses and distances, S 29 09 W 300.00 feet to a stake, in the right-of-way line of the old U. S. Highway No. 23 and 460, thence with said right-of-way and college property the following courses and distances,

N 02 05 W 103.00 feet to a stake, N 54 49 W 284.92 feet to the beginning, containing 55.00 acres.

Copy of the aforesaid Ordinance, as published in the Floyd County Times and posted, as directed by law, is attached hereto as a part hereof.

WHEREOF, plaintiff, City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, prays that this Court enter a judgment annexing the above described territory into the City of Prestonsburg, and further directing that said territory shall thereafter be treated and considered for all purposes as a legal part of said incorporated city. It further prays for all other proper relief.

CLARK'S LIFE PARALLELS RISE OF AREA NATURAL GAS INDUSTRY

BY HENRY P. SCALF

The life of E. E. Clark, who retired June 1 after 38 years of service with the Kentucky West Virginia Company and the history of the gas industry in Eastern Kentucky run parallel in time.

Clark was born in 1897, five years after the first Eastern Kentucky gas well was drilled. A quarter of a century later, when he entered the employment of the Ivyton Oil & Gas Company, the industry was still in its infancy.

The industry grew, and he with it. He retired from the post of vice-president in charge of operations as one of the three officers of the corporation in the state. The gas industry is now a multi-million dollar complex of wells, distribution lines, offices, compressor stations, communication lines and lease-holds.

Clark contributed much to the success of his company in this region, and in turn the firm reciprocated with promotions. Recognition was awarded from beyond his own company. The Kentucky Oil & Gas Association, composed of executives from all the states producing organizations, elected him president two years ago.

Several years ago, Clark and a few supervisory employees of his company were looking after a job on a branch of Sycamore Creek in Pike county. Today, neat farms and nice homes dot the area but then, especially in the upper reaches of the stream, there was only a pre-tense of a road, and the rough terrain impeded the work.

An associate made an inquiry about a certain location.

"Yes, I know the place," Clark said. "I was born there."

"You were born there?" the associate queried, now a rising company executive. "If you were born there, tell me how in the devil you ever got out?"

"Get out" he did, but it was slow. He had to grow and go to school and find employment and rise with the gas industry.

He went to the nearby rural school at Sycamore. His parents, Willie Clark, still living in his 89th year, and his mother, Ruth Scalf Clark O'Neil, who now resides with him, saw to that. He carried a syrup bucket with home food for lunch and ate it sitting on a log outside the frame school building. The family "got out" of Sycamore Creek when he was ten years old but they didn't improve location any when they settled down on the head of Mare Creek near relatives.

Here he attended a rural school presided over by John T. Scalf in an old Methodist Church log building and sat on seats made from raw lumber donated by a generous trustee. Books were scarce and store-bought slates were hard to get. If you had one, you chiseled a pencil from a nearby slate deposit in the creek bed.

That old log school building was a travesty on the school system in 1912 but what it lacked in comfort and utility, it made up for in idiosyncracies. The floor sloped at a perilous angle toward the black-board and the pulpit. If a "scholar" didn't step with care, he'd fall and spill every buckeye in his pocket.

Several did, and the buckeyes rolled out at the feet of D. O. Harmon, Bascom Clark, Kate Leslie or whoever was teaching the school.

Spilled buckeyes were a lesser worry, however, for the knocked-out mud chinking between the logs left gaping holes that admitted cold which the wood-fired Burnside stove failed to reduce enough for comfort. Clark fared a bit better than some. He had a seat near an intact wall. A favorite cousin fared worse. He had to bring an extra coat and "poke" it in a hole to keep his teeth from chattering.

From that school he learned hard lessons from Ray's arithmetic and usually managed to stand at the head of the class in Friday afternoon spelling bees. In a few years he came to Prestonsburg and had secondary education sponsored by the late W. W. Williams. He was "getting out."

The maelstrom of World War I picked him up in 1918 and he did a hitch in the Army. Coming back to Prestonsburg, he finished high school, and went off to Bowling Green Business University where he acquired a proficiency in shorthand. Looking around for a job, he found a position as high school teacher in Prestonsburg. His teaching career lasted a year, and then Judge W. W. Williams appointed him court reporter of the Thirty-First Judicial district in 1921. While serving in the Floyd and Knott county courts he worked "on the side" in the offices of the law firm of A. J. May, Edward L. Allen and Porter Mayo.

It was while doing court reporting and law office work that he met Miss Mae Hill, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Edward P. Hill, Sr. They were married November 9, 1922. One of their common interests is the Presbyterian Church which Clark joined two years later and in which he has served as elder for 20 years, 10 of them in the Ashland church.

In 1924 he went to work for the Ivyton Oil & Gas Company as a clerk-stenographer. The firm, one of the pioneer developers of the area, with offices in Prestonsburg, was later merged with other properties to form the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company. Two years later, Clark was made chief field agent in the land department.

He was "up and going" now with an "up and coming" new industry in Eastern Kentucky. It had been less than two decades when promoters wanted only oil. They were searching for oil five years before Clark was born when they drilled East Kentucky's first well and struck gas. Oil was still drilled for until 1913 and gas was found consistently. Promoters didn't want the stuff. They destroyed the wells by letting water flow in or allowed it to escape and burn at the well-head.

By 1913 owners of gas wells must have taken a lesson from the old pioneer settlers who used to cut down giant forest oaks and strip them for the tan bark. Three plants were constructed in the Beaver Creek area to burn natural gas for the residue of soot. A lot of carbon black was made but incalculable energy values went up in the air.

The city of Louisville was needing gas for its burgeoning industry, and in 1913 the Louisville Gas & Electric Company constructed 17 1/2 miles of pipeline into Inez where it could reach West Virginia gas from the United Fuel Gas Company. In 1918 an extension from this line was made from Sitka, Johnson county, to Maytown, the heart of the Beaver Creek gas development. Small gas companies sprouted everywhere in the shadow of big firms such as United Fuel with its extensive line development and Inland Gas Corporation which purchased wells and laid a line to Ashland and Huntington. The carbon black plants succumbed to a better way to utilize a product.

The mid-1920's was a period of fierce competition between United Fuel and the interests combining to create the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company. Entrepreneurs were in the field, maneuvering for advantages, organizing companies or combines, grabbing at fast-disappearing leaseholds, drilling wells and laying lines. One of these was the picturesque and rugged Oscar Sears seeking to exploit a field pioneered by the Dimicks and others.

The industry was impinging itself upon an area with primitive communications, or none at all. The railroad tapped only the major tributaries of the valley, and telephone service lagged everywhere.

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company bought one million acres in fee in 1926 and ordered Clark to record the deeds in half a dozen Eastern Kentucky counties. A trip that would take a day now in an automobile required a whole week then.

Clark was born in 1897, five years after the first Eastern Kentucky gas well was drilled. A quarter of a century later, when he entered the employment of the Ivyton Oil & Gas Company, the industry was still in its infancy.

The industry grew, and he with it. He retired from the post of vice-president in charge of operations as one of the three officers of the corporation in the state. E. E. Clark and Mrs. Clark; his mother, Mrs. Ruth Clark O'Neil (center); daughter, Mrs. Howard Lening, wife of a Sarasota, Fla., minister, relax on the lawn of his home at Ashland with two grandchildren.

It took Clark a month to get those deeds recorded. He rode horseback from Lackey to Hindman, horseback to Inez, and the same means of transportation from Hazard to Hyden. It took a day to ride from Hazard to Hyden, a day, as per orders to stay and get the deeds on record, and another day to ride back to Hazard.

To get to Inez he called the town on a private telephone line the company had and procured the services of the place's lone taxicab. The cab drove to a designated place on Rockcastle Creek and waited. In the meantime Clark went by train to Whitehouse, struck out on foot up Greasy Creek and onto Rockhouse Creek, thence to where the patient cab driver waited. He reversed this procedure to get back to Prestonsburg.

Today, over the sprawling regional gas field, a microwave system supplants a primitive company-owned telephone. Changing the gas flow at Osborne Gap in Virginia or at other points now is done at a control panel in the company's Prestonsburg office.

To expedite the operation of the firm's facilities when Clark was climbing up the ladder of the executive hierarchy, a company-owned telephone system stretched and sagged from point to point. It radiated from Prestonsburg to Maytown and Left Beaver Creek.

At Sitka, Johnson county, it connected with a line of the Louisville Gas & Electric Company and carried messages to Kentucky's largest city. A few links remain today but only for telemetering purposes.

Years passed and, coincidental with the development of Eastern Kentucky's gas field, economic conditions improved and changed. Communication became better, roads were built in the area. The old ox-drawn wagons hauling coal-fired drilling rigs along roads that were a ribbon of mud have given away to the highway truck and diesel-powered drilling engines.

Four decades ago, when Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company was laying the foundation of its industrial complex, it owned only a few thousand acres of leases and approximately 100 producing wells. Today it owns a million acres in fee, 1,800 wells and more than 1,000 miles of pipe line.

Clark stayed at Prestonsburg as chief field agent and superintendent of realty until 1945 when he was made head of the land department with an office at Ashland. He succeeded H. L. Ley. He served in this office of realty until 1945 when he was promoted to a new job as assistant to the vice-president. This was a newly-created job covering personnel problems and other duties. Ley, whom Clark had followed for several steps in the company organization, resigned in 1960 as vice-president in charge of operations. Clark was elected by the board of directors to succeed him and moved back to Prestonsburg.

The story of his climb up the ladder to one of the top rungs reflects but one side of his many-faceted activities. He has given dedicated service to his church at Prestonsburg, Ashland and at Prestonsburg again. He was a Rotarian at Ashland and a Kiwanian at Prestonsburg. He has been a Mason since 1925 when he joined Zebulon Lodge here. Today he has membership in all York Rite bodies and El Hasa Temple. He has attained the Knight York Cross of Honor.

Clark, in naming the various activities in which he has engaged, remarks that these things made his life full and complete. Scouting was one of his first loves. He was Prestonsburg's first Scoutmaster, having organized a troop here in 1921. He has held various posts in the leadership field, but he is proudest of the Scouting years during which he was able to follow Bill Ed, an only son, now an Ashland teacher, from Cub to Eagle Scout.

Although he will retire to Ormond Beach, Florida, July 1, severance of the old ties will never be complete. In preparation for the golden years he has been visiting old friends, viewing again the scenes of his early years and taking innumerable pictures.

He plans to come back each year on a visit but in a sense he will never really be away.

SPECIAL SESSION
Lexington, Ky.—Space-age health—citizenship—travel—public speaking—modeling—home management—this wide range of subjects, along with many others, will be topics for special sessions during the 39th state 4-H Club Week, which opens Tuesday, June 12, at the University of Kentucky.

Clark revisited many scenes of his childhood last summer in anticipation of his retirement to Florida. Here he stands under a giant cedar on Mare Creek where he played as a boy.

Highway Planning Lack Hit by Citizens' Group In Road Bureau Report

Three members of the Kentucky Government Council, a statewide citizens' group committed to effecting significant improvements in Kentucky governmental affairs, represented the Council's resolution on highway planning to J. C. Cobb, Division Engineer of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, and to Department of Highways Commissioner Henry Ward.

The members were William Bower, secretary of the Kentucky Government Council; Carl Wachs, executive director of the Kentucky Municipal League and Dr. James Martin, director of University of Kentucky's Bureau of Business Research.

The resolution pointed out that Kentucky's lack of continuity in highway planning arises from the absence of a long-term program or budget, from policy changes between administrations, and from the failure, once a project is selected, to stick to the work necessary to complete construction.

In the interest of a potential saving of many millions of dollars, the resolution recommends that plans for primary and urban-road construction be made six years in advance of the scheduled completion date, and that, once a program is adopted, it should be carried out faithfully. It also stressed agreement with the position of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads that highway planning should coincide with general planning in urban areas.

In reference to the resolution, Mr. Ward said:

"I welcome the Kentucky Government Council's support of the Department of Highways' effort to develop and faithfully execute an orderly long-term plan for continuous construction—a program geared to a similarly detailed plan for financing. I should add that the key to long range highway planning is a staff whose undoubted competence will mean that any situation or complex of situations will be assessed only in terms of knowledge, judgment and facts. I can say with all modesty that during my tenure as Commissioner I have made considerable contributions toward that goal."

Mr. Cobb added: "I believe that the Kentucky Government Council's recommendations for the scheduling of highway improvements and long range construction planning are consistent with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads' settled policy for the most efficient development of highway transportation nationally and for the state of Kentucky."

The Kentucky Government Council intends to solicit the endorsement of its resolution by all candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

pounder, right up at the boat, yet preserved his ministerial calm and went on fishing without a murmur. Then came the big strike, and a seven-pounder was cutting capers. Right up to the net he brought the big one, and off he came.

Whereupon the man of the cloth arose in his wrath and solemnly intoned, not once, but two or three times, "Boulder!"

His fishing partner wanted to know what boulder had to do with a fellow who had lost two big fish. "Well," said the preacher, "I'll tell you—it's the biggest dam I can think of."

"THE SADDEST WORDS . . ."

This column doesn't go in for verse very often, but the following which appeared in Allan Trout's "Greetings" column recently seems to me to speak such a special message for most of us that here it is:

Around the corner I have a friend In this great city that has no end; Yet days go by and weeks rush on And before I know it a year is gone And I never see my old friend's face;

For life is a swift and terrible race. He knows I like him just as well As in the days when he rang my bell And I rang his. We were younger then.

And now we are busy, tired men. Tired with playing a foolish game, Tired of trying to make a name; "Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim. Just to show I'm thinking of him."

But tomorrow comes and tomorrow goes And the distance between us grows. Around the corner, yet miles away, "Here's a call, Jim died today." That's what we get, deserve in the end.

Around the corner, a vanished friend.

It's an awkward situation like playing the piano sitting on the floor—you have to stretch up and over to hit the keys. ### TIDBITS of Kentucky Folklore

SPRING HOUSES

Somchow I have failed, in the twenty-seven years of this column, to record the passing of the spring house. In the south-central part of Kentucky, where I have spent all my life since early manhood, water is not the abundant commodity that it is in the Jackson Purchase and in the Mountains, where every hill seems to have a spring at its base, every valley a running stream. In the pioneer times, because much of the Green River-Barren River area was a prairie, the first houses were likely to be built back in the hills, where there were trees and springs. Wherever there were springs in the Barrens, there soon grew up all the buildings of a farm. Stone was so plentiful, a stone springhouse was erected and often was a real work of art. A water supply and a place to keep things cool were thus guaranteed. A whole book, profusely illustrated, could be made about the springhouses I have known. I came into this area early enough to see many of them in use, for that was long before electric refrigeration.

Some of the spring houses had elaborate shelves where all sorts of buckets and jars and cans could be set. In some of them the water was diverted to flow around the vessels to be cooled. Vines often grew up over the springhouse, making a picturesque nook in a corner of the yard.

Then by degrees deep wells were put down, and the springhouse began to lose its importance. In recent years R.E.A. has penetrated even the remotest places; it will seem unbelievable to younger persons that the springhouses were once so important. Very few of them have been kept in repair. More modern houses are often built far away from such water supplies. In general, the old stone springhouses are, like the cabin in the old song: "Falling down, and the roof is caving in." Many of the old stone houses are practically obliterated except for a pile of stones. Cattle, through many years, have sought the spring and have helped time itself topple the stones. Sometimes the wreck of a former picturesque building stands in a veritable jungle of weeds, and briars and bushes, deserted, no longer needed in the economy of farm life. Because of the limestone in which the springs around here originated, sometimes a new channel for the spring has been found; thus the springhouse ruins stand dry and deserted, just as hundreds of ponds that I have known have gradually become dry and are cultivated fields.

It is hard to convince younger people that an older time could have values comparable with those of the present. Before we acquired a liking for ice water, cold spring water seemed about the finest drink ever vouchsafed to men. Coming to the spring from hot, dirty work in the fields, we of other times, whether we said so then or not, somehow gave thanks as we knelt to drink from Nature's own bounty. We who were reared in sandy areas of the state had little to fear of contamination of the water supply and felt that nothing was more pure than spring water. When I first came to the limestone country, I drank long and often from the springs. Now I shudder at my rashness. For I know that, even then, with far fewer means of contaminating water, the underground drainage had already made water unsafe for human consumption.

Typhoid fever was still an annual event, even in the town, when I was young and for a long time after. Something very poetic went out of our lives when we had to admit that spring water might be deceptively clear and cold. But this conception of springs in the limestone area came largely after the spring and the springhouse had been abandoned. Some strongly-built springhouses remain, remnants of other times, but, so far as I know, nearly all of them are merely kept for memories sake and not even to keep milk and butter and canned fruits and fresh meats cool. Why take something out of the refrigerator or the deep freeze and take it down the hill to the springhouse?

CLEAN UP STREAMS

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A coal company executive urged that control agencies and coal companies cooperate in cleaning up the nation's streams. "The coal industry is aware of and accepts the premise that it has serious and far-reaching responsibilities in the control of water pollution from coal mine drainage," said R. L. Ireland, Cleveland, Ohio. "The coal industry also believes that the water pollution control agencies have equally serious and far-reaching responsibilities in the best interest of the local community and the industry which supports it," Mr. Ireland suggested.

Miss Davis In Contest As Miss Floyd County

Miss Charlene Davis, a junior at the University of Kentucky, appeared as Miss Floyd county to compete last week with other beauties of the state for the title of Miss Kentucky.

The Miss Kentucky contest was a prelude to the Miss America beauty-talent pageant to be held later this year at Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The Kentucky contest was won by Miss Naomi Bowling, of Harlan. In the talent phase of the state competition Miss Davis did a dramatic monologue, "The Harp Weaver."

At the University of Kentucky Miss Davis is a member of Delta Zeta sorority. She was a beauty queen candidate for Homecoming, 1962, was one of the freshman beauty queens in the 1961 Sweetheart of Sigma Chi beauty derby, and was Delta Zeta's queen to Little Miss Kentucky Derby of 1962 and the Kentucky Kernel Sweetheart of 1961.

Valedictorian of her graduating class at Martin high school and a majorette there, Miss Davis is an elementary education major at the University. She is the daughter of Mrs. Georgia Salisbury Davis, of Martin, and the late Staff Sgt. Charles H. Davis, World War II bombardier in the U. S. Air Force.

sary expenses of his office, but that the Auditor had notified him he would be given credit only if receipts were supplied. Receipts were sent the office, Stephens said, but were returned without credit being given.

Moore, who now lives in Lexington, said the audit included in receipts of his office fees due from the county for preparing tax bills which the county never paid him.

"I have claims outstanding against the county for several thousand dollars for tax bills," Moore said.

Also, Moore added, the audit included in his receipts fees from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses which were never collected by him. Under an arrangement with the Game Fish & Wildlife Department, Moore said, all revenue from the sale of licenses was distributed directly to the Floyd County Fish & Game Club.

"I'm perfectly willing to make a settlement with the county," Moore said. "It's just a matter of finding out exactly how much they owe me, and how much I owe them—but it isn't as much as the auditor says."

The audit listed Stephens' expenses for the year as $14,774.68 and his income as $23,391.97, leaving a net income of $8,617.39.

The audit showed Moore's receipts totaled $41,829.80 and his expenses $21,635.48, leaving a net income of $20,194.32.

At the time the analysis of billing was made, 10 customers used an average of 10,000 gallons of water a month. Their bill would be $11.10 for water, plus $7.77 sewer, or a total of $18.87.

Fifty-one customers used above 10,000 gallons. The consumer using 61,000 gallons up to 100,000 gallons (there were slightly less than two of these on the average) would pay $61.30 water bill and $42.91 sewer; those using more than 100,000 gallons, $99.85 water and $69.90 sewer. There were two in the latter classification.

Ezra Robinson, Van Lear Scout leader, said he envisions that when the trail is opened next year that approximately 3,000 Scouts from the eastern United States will hike the 18-mile route. It will be necessary to establish an overnight camp along the route, he said.

Plans call for the opening of the trail at the time the drama on the life of Mrs. Wiley is first presented at the park here. Architects are drawing plans for the amphitheatre and Paul Green, noted playwright, will write the play.

Henry P. Scalf, president of the Floyd County Historical Society presided at the meeting at which a large delegation of members of the Johnson County Historical Society attended. Edward R. Hazelett, of Paintsville, and president of the Johnson county group, commented enthusiastically on the proposed trail.

Alva Rice, of Oil Springs, one of the Little Mud Creek falls landowners attended the meeting and pledged his cooperation to the project.

The trail would begin at Little Mud Lick falls, follow that stream to its juncture with Big Mud Lick Creek, down that stream to Big Paint Creek at the 460 Drive-In restaurant on U. S. 460 and ascend Big Paint Creek to the mouth of Jennie's Creek which was named in honor of the borderland heroine. The trail would continue up Jennie's Creek to the Lick Fork, up it and through Cannel Coal Gap and down Bear Branch to Little Paint Creek. The final laps of the trail would be down Little Paint Creek to the Big Sandy River and up it to near the mouth of Johns Creek, where Mathias Harman built his pioneer station.

along the Indian Creek road into Pike county despite their protests and requests to be let out of the car.

"The car, after reaching the main highway in Shelby Valley, slowed down when turning off at a side road, later identified as the Caney Creek road, and Page jumped from the car. He told Hattie Kiser to jump also but the other occupants of the vehicle restrained her.

"Each of the four had intercourse with her on Caney Creek and the four then took her to a community, later identified as Dorton, where Fleming, in a car, was encountered by the group.

"Fleming was asked by the male occupants of the car and the woman to take her home and he agreed to do so. Wright got into the car with the woman and Fleming and both later had relations with her.

"The woman could not recall how she got out of the car or why she was lying beside the road."

Taylor said Wright and Fleming admitted having relations with her in Fleming's car but claimed it was with her consent. They denied beating her and declared that nothing was wrong with her when they let her out of the car on Indian Creek about 3 a.m. or 3:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Taylor said four of the accused who admitted picking the woman and her companion up on the road, claimed that the couple was hitchhiking.

The officer said they also admitted restraining the woman from jumping out of the car but claimed they did so to keep her from becoming injured.

Taylor said Luther Page, the woman's neighbor who was walking home with her, notified state police about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday of events prior to his jumping from the car and also gave officers a description of the vehicle.

Taylor said that according to his information neither the woman nor Page were acquainted with any of the accused.

James Claude McDonald, Prestonsburg, awarded scholarship to College of Engineering at the University of Kentucky. Evelyn Carol Webb, of David, awarded scholarship to study music and religion at Berea College.

DREAM OF PIONEER WOMAN UNHEEDED BY IMMIGRANTS; INDIANS KILL 24 PERSONS

The night was still save for the sobbing of an anguished woman. She cried out to her husband and told him of her third dream that the Indians were to take the pioneer camp by surprise and to slay all.

The terror of the dreams was so written in the woman's eyes that the man attempted to awaken the camping party. He was abused and ridiculed for his efforts. No sentry was posted, there had been merry-making, drinking and gambling. When the pioneers had settled into deep sleep that October night of 1786, the Indians attacked and killed 24 persons.

So goes the story of "McNitt's Defeat," now commemorated by the Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park. Two passageways which made Kentucky the pioneer crossways of the nation meet here.

"Boone's Trace," which Daniel Boone carved through the wilderness in 1775 for the Transylvania Company, and the "Wilderness Road," a wagon road established by the Kentucky Legislature in 1795, pass through the park.

"Boone's Trace" was a bridle path through the woods for about 100 miles. It served as a lifeline over which more than 100,000 immigrants made their way by foot, horseback and horse train. This was the only overland route from the Yadin River in North Carolina and from Virginia, via Cumberland Gap, to the early settlements from 1775 to 1795.

Here, if you listen to the old-timers, you will hear of mountain legends, moonshine stills and "revenooers," quilting parties and the days when neighbors gathered at corn-huskings.

Although the years have accounted for many changes in the area, the language of the people still bears the flavor of their forebears who spoke medieval Chaucerian.

Like their ancestors, many of the mountain people use such earthy Anglo-Saxon terms as "holp" for help, "poke" for bag, "pack" for carry and "fernist" for opposite.

Other historical and scenic attractions in the mountain area are Dr. Thomas Walker's Cabin, replica of the first house to be built in Kentucky by a white man (located at Barbourville); Pine Mountain State Park, near Pineville in the rugged beauty of the Kentucky Ridge Forest and presenting this

"DRIVE-IN" LIVING

A world of comfort and pleasure at the side of the road

Phillips 66 suggests a luxurious weekend vacation that's low cost

A revolution in travel has taken place on American highways, and the most important factor in this revolution is the development of the modern roadside motel and drive-in hotel.

The old time "rooms for tourists" signs have given way to a network of luxury facilities that make each overnight stay or weekend a vacation. What most persons considered unusual a few years back is becoming commonplace in today's motel-hotel. Facilities such as TV, swimming pools, restaurants, clubhouse lounges, dry cleaning service, piped-in music and many other services add to the pleasure of a vacation. And some of the new units have kennel service, marinas, kitchenettes and even electronic baby sitting where TV cameras watch the children. Home was never like this!

This kind of living is economical too. Average daily rate is around $8.50 for the more than million and a half modern drive-in units. Many of these now offer special weekend family rates. Rooms are big and inviting. They are designed for family vacation living.

Drive-in living is not only for cross-country travelers. For a pleasant change of surroundings try a weekend motel or hotel vacation within a half day's drive of home. And to make sure it's really a vacation, see your Phillips 66 Dealer before you start. His friendly, efficient service and top quality products help you make every trip a pleasure trip!

It's a pleasure to please you!

Have more fun going... Go Phillips 66!

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

Our eastern hemlock, which most farmers call "spruce pine," is a truly beautiful and remarkable tree, with many uses made of its wood, foliage, roots and bark. Our leading evergreen, it is found growing along cool creek valleys, often hugging old sandstone cliffs, and sometimes grows on heights too, where it often attains a height of 100 feet. It is a long-lasting tree and has been known to live more than 500 years.

The hemlock can be transplanted readily and makes a fine ornamental tree, a good shade and nesting places and cover for birds. Its botanical name is Tsuga Canadensis, and it grows far north, in deep Canadian woods. Up north, the rugged lumbermen of the Canadian wilds, when they work out in sub-zero cold, drink an aromatic, fragrant beverage made from brewing the needles of the hemlock. It is said this warms the blood quickly and is a good preventive of colds. The north woodsmen also often make their shelters and lean-tos from hemlock boughs; also their beds, which are soft and fragrant.

The outer bark of the hemlock is often dark grayish brown, but the inner bark is a deep cinnamon red, and is rich in tannin. Woodsmen of the north, when they get cut or wounded, often make a poultice of the hemlock bark to heal their wounds. The bark is also often sold to be used in the tanning industry. The needles of the hemlock grow in thick rows along the twigs, are about half an inch long, and often overlap like shingles. The needles are slender, flattened, dark green above and whitish underneath. They are shed every third year. The new growth of needles on the twigs in the spring gives a fresh, new silvery look to the trees.

The hemlock produces its seeds in small, light brown cones, which are seen thickly studding the branches; the seeds are naked, as the hemlock belongs to the family of gymnosperms, trees that bear naked seeds. The cone scales are broad, rounded, and the cones have an artistic appearance. The tiny seeds are borne at the base of the scales, and are so small it takes many thousands of them to weigh an ounce. The tiny seeds have transparent wings for being wind-carried to new localities.

The wood of hemlock is much used in making lumber for wood-work, flooring, paper, lathes and often in making forms for cement work.

The crown of the hemlock forms a dense, symmetrical, dark green spire often seen silhouetted against the winter sky. A clump of sky-reaching hemlocks in deep woods seems to convert the whole area into an outdoors cathedral, where there lingers a sense of reverence and peace.

The hemlock is also one of our oldest trees in geological time. Its needles, wood and cones have often been unearthed in deep geological strata, where they had solidified into stone.

Let us plant more hemlock in our forests, fields and about our premises, to add beauty to the countryside, to protect the birds and wild life, and to conserve the moisture.

WILD HYDRANGEA
If you walk along the shaded brooks and ravines of our region you will now see showy blobs of white blossoms brightening the woods. These large flower clusters are those of the wild hydrangea, Hydrangea Arborescens, which old-timers used to call "nine-bark," and considered it a medicinal plant. On many lawns the cultivated variety is now in bloom and is called "snowball bush," or "hills of snow."

The bark and roots of the wild hydrangea (nine-bark) were once widely used as a remedy for gallstones and the colic they caused. The flowers form large, flat-topped cymose clusters and are showy in the woods. Sometimes these clusters produce on long pedicels white to dimly yellow flowers that are sterile, and often persist throughout the season.

Amendments Are Enacted To State Adoption Laws; Black Market End Seen

Frankfort, Ky., June 17 (Spl.) — Amendments enacted by the 1962 Legislature to Kentucky's law on child adoption are now in effect.

In letters sent to lawyers, physicians and circuit and county judges, Commissioner Richard J. Clendenen of the Kentucky Department of Child Welfare said the changes give Kentucky the strongest adoption law in the United States. One of the objectives, Clendenen said, is to end a black market traffic in babies.

The changes in the law require that the child to be adopted must have been "placed for adoption by a licensed child-placing institution or agency or by the department, or the child (be placed) with written approval of the commissioner."

Penalties for violation include fines up to $500 or jail terms up to a year or both.

There are practical exceptions—as when a family relation seeks to adopt a child (step-parent, grandparent, sister, brother, aunt or uncle), or when the child is received from an approved agency in another state with the commissioner's written approval.

It was for lack of this positive authority, Clendenen said, that unregulated practices had grown up, amounting in some cases to a social evil. The department's records contain many cases of what he called private, furtive and unsupervised transfer of babies.

New regulations put into effect as a result of the amendments include a speed-up of department action on applications for permission to adopt a child. After application is filed, the commissioner is limited to 60 days to grant or refuse permission—thus shortening the time for investigations and proof of suitability. Unfavorable action may be appealed to a circuit court. Clendenen said one of the factors discouraging applicants and causing them to make their own arrangements had been the long period of time often required to complete adoption under present regulations.

Even before adoption of the amendments, the department's policy has been to work for quicker action, the commissioner said. In the first year of the department's operation, from July 1, 1960, children placed for adoption through the department totaled 180. Already in the first nine months of the second year, (through April, 1962), 235 have been placed. In the first year, 152 homes were approved for adoption; in the nine months of the second year, 241 approved.

Gov. Bert Combs has directed the State Department of Finance to acquire sites for 10 educational television transmitting stations.

Kentucky's first Constitution was framed and adopted in a log courthouse at Danville in 1792.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

Nothing came of the Garrett Davis attempt to have Buckner turned over to civil authorities, and in August he would be exchanged for a Union officer who was a prisoner of war in the South and would return to duty, immediately being promoted major general. By the end of the war he would be a lieutenant general.

Brig. Gen. George Washington Morgan had his Federal troops in East Tennessee 100 years ago this week, having led them in through Wilson's Gap. That flanked the Confederate forces occupying Cumberland Gap and forced them to withdraw from that strategic pass, which Morgan then seized.

It was announced that 930 soldiers had died in the military hospitals at Louisville since the previous September 18—less than nine months.

Buckner, who had been born in Hart County, Kentucky, in 1823 and thus was 39, was a prisoner of war because it had fallen to him to surrender Fort Donelson to Union Brig. Gen. U. S. Grant the previous February at the time of Grant's famous "unconditional surrender" ultimatum. Buckner, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy and later professor of philosophy, ethics and infantry tactics at West Point, was a veteran of the Mexican War, in which he had been twice breveted for gallantry.

After five years of Indian-fighting in the West with the Regular Army, Buckner had resigned in 1855 to become a construction superintendent in Chicago, where he also engaged in real-estate operations and amassed a fortune. (He transferred title to his Chicago holdings to his brother-in-law before the Civil War began, and that kept his property from being confiscated, with the result that after the war he was able to sell it for $500,000.)

At the outbreak of the Civil War, President Lincoln signed a general's commission for Buckner and sent it to Kentucky, specifying that it was not to be delivered to him without first sounding him out and making sure he would accept it. Instead, Buckner took a Confederate commission.

'BOOK OF JOB' TO OPEN JUNE 28th AT PINEVILLE

Frankfort, June 7 (Spl.) — "The Book of Job," opening for the fourth consecutive season at Pine Mountain State Park, Pineville, Ky., is expected to draw even greater attendance this year than last, according to Preston Slusher, general manager of the drama.

"Job," said Slusher, has probably received more space in newspapers and magazines than any other outdoor drama in the United States. "It's a natural for publicity," Slusher pointed out. Slusher explained that "Job" seems to affect writers in such a way they consider it a challenge to describe the myriad effects they carry away after witnessing the unusual drama.

Life magazine wrote that the actors in "Job" appear as though they were figures from a church mosaic window transformed into flesh and blood. Life carried a full-page picture with text.

Religious publications, such as the Baptist Western Recorder, have praised "Job." Recently, "Together Magazine," the national Methodist Church publication, carried a two-page color story.

Extensive color presentations have been made in large metropolitan newspapers. The Nashville Banner carried a page story with color pictures. The Columbus Evening Dispatch and the New York News in its Sunday Magazine also gave "Job" good treatment. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch printed a color layout.

"The Book of Job" will be presented nightly at 8:30 p.m. (EST), except Sundays, from June 28 through September 1.

Wrong Bleach Yellows Wash & Wear Cottons

If you have trouble keeping wash-and-wear cottons from turning yellow, perhaps you're using the wrong kind of bleach. A chlorine bleach may weaken the fibers and yellow the fabric with some wash-and-wear cottons. Be sure to check label directions—if it says "Do not use a chlorine bleach," then don't! Instead, use sodium perborate as a bleach on these fabrics, suggests the USDA Agricultural Research Service clothing specialists. Sodium perborate is available at most supermarkets under several brand names.

YARROW OR MILFOIL

The whitish clusters of this old-fashioned popular flower, yarrow, are now brightening up the old fields and roadsides, and is often seen blooming with Queen Anne's lace. Its finely dissected leaves were once used as a remedy for nosebleeds. The foliage is pleasantly aromatic and the blooms are formed in flat-topped clusters.

Former David Resident Is Heart Attack Victim;

Robert S. Walker, 62, former general manager of Mallory Stores, Inc., and a former resident of David, died Sunday of a heart attack at the clubhouse of the Logan (W. Va.) Country Club as he and others prepared to play golf.

Mr. Walker resided at David during 1942 and 1943 when he was Mallory's Kentucky division manager. Named general manager over all Mallory stores, he moved to Man, West Virginia, and continued in that capacity till about two years ago when ill health curtailed his activities. He continued, however, as West Virginia divisional manager.

A native of Hartford, Kentucky, he was a son of Mrs. Ida Renter Walker and the late R. D. Walker. He was a member of the Man Rotary Club, the West Virginia Seniors Golf Association, the Powellton Foreman's Club and a director of the National Industrial Association. He leaves his widow and two brothers.

Mrs. Mary Davis Wittman, 43, formerly of Garrett, died at North-east hospital, Youngstown, Ohio, Friday. Injured in March by an auto, she had been hospitalized several times since the accident.

An autopsy was performed but, it is said, the Youngstown coroner and medical authorities could not agree on the cause of death.

She was the wife of William Wittman, who survives, and a daughter of the late John and Orlean Scott Davis. She had no surviving children.

Surviving brothers and sisters are Milton Davis, Albion, Michigan, Mart Moore, of Garrett, Mrs. Rosa Moore, West Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Milly Gibson, Willard, Ohio.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Wednesday from the Garrett Church of God, the Rev. James Duff officiating. Burial was made in the Tom Martin cemetery under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

COAL ASSOCIATION SLATES LEXINGTON MEET, FRIDAY

Lexington, Ky., June 19 (Spl.)—Five prominent coal industry officials will be featured at the annual membership meeting of the Kentucky Coal Association here Friday. The business session will begin at 1:30 p.m., at the Phoenix hotel.

In announcing the meeting, Association President Fred B. Bullard said, "This promises to be one of the most outstanding coal meetings ever held in Kentucky. The program features men who can speak with authority on their respective subjects, all of which are of considerable current interest to the industry."

B. F. Reed, chairman of the board, will preside at the meeting. He is also secretary-treasurer of the Turner-Elkhorn Mining Company at Drift.

Speakers at the business session include:

William W. Bayfield, senior vice president, National Coal Association, Washington, who will discuss "Intensive Marketing—the Key to Coal's Future." Bayfield is a veteran of more than a quarter of a century of trade association work for the coal industry. He headed the American Coal Sales Association from 1934 until it was merged with NCA in 1960.

C. William Davis, president, Southern Coal Producers' Association, Washington, will relate and discuss "Recent Trends in Labor-Management Relations." A 1948 graduate of the University of Tennessee College of Law, Mr. Davis is well known in Kentucky. He went to Pikeville in 1952 as executive secretary of the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators Association. He accepted his present position in April, 1960, succeeding Joseph E. Moody, who became president of the National Coal Policy Conference, Inc.

One of the highlights will be a review by James R. Garvey, vice-president and director of research, Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., of "National Coal Association's Research Program and the New BCR Laboratory." The presentation will include color films of some of the research work in progress and the new laboratory at Monroeville, Pennsylvania, which was dedicated June 19 during the NCA Convention at Pittsburgh.

"The Threat of Federal Control of Stream Pollution and Strip Mining" will be presented by James Hyslop, vice-president, Consolidation Coal Co., St. Clairsville, Ohio.

Lt. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow (Ret.), legislative representative, National Coal Policy Conference, Inc., Washington, will speak on "The Impact of the Importation of Residual Oil on the Coal Industry in Kentucky."

The meeting will close Friday evening with a "no speech" banquet, at which George E. Evans, Jr., president of Evans Elkhorn Coal Co., Wayland, will serve as master of ceremonies. The "Patsy Teenagers," a choral group directed by Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, Prestonsburg, and sponsored by Princess Coals, Inc., David, and tentatively, the "Buckskin Pioneer Dancers," directed by Dr. Carl M. Clark and sponsored by the Explorer Scout unit at Central Christian Church, Lexington, will provide a program of entertainment.

PRESTONSBURG NATIVES PIONEERED CALIFORNIA

Jesse Barnett was born in Prestonsburg in 1826, son of Elias Barnett (1805-1880) and Nancy Blair Barnett. Elias Barnett, also a native of Prestonsburg, carried the first overland letter from Independence, Missouri, to California in 1841 with the Bidwell-Bartleson immigrant party.

Jesse Barnett, his wife, Lorena Clark Barnett, and their children, followed Elias Barnett to California in 1855 with a covered wagon train and settled in Pope Valley where he died in 1906. The Barnetts, courageous and daring, were typical of the vast number of Kentuckians who helped to people the west.

TWO BIG STORES IN PRESTONSBURG TO SERVE YOU BETTER

8-DAY SALE ENDS JUNE 30

Outdoor Recreation Urged by Association; Camping Is Applauded

Dr. L. B. Sharp, executive-director of the Outdoor Education Association, last week called for more city residents to venture into the wild beyond.

There's nothing like camping to take a man's mind off his worries, according to Dr. Sharp, a professor of outdoor education at Southern Illinois University.

"It's a wonderful stimulant," the professor has said, "It's time away from artificiality. Man needs it for sanity's sake."

Dr. Sharp would applaud the preparations Kentucky has made in its state tent-camping facilities.

Kentucky has anticipated the huge increase in tent-camping and has greatly enlarged camping facilities through its current $18,000,000 park expansion program.

The migration back to nature stems from a desire for inexpensive and longer vacations and, as Dr. Sharp would explain, the enjoyment of the simple, earthy life.

Halbleib-Scutchfield

Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Halbleib, of Fisherville, Kentucky, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Phyllis Ann Halbleib, to Mr. Frank Douglas Scutchfield, son of Dr. and Mrs. Beecher L. Scutchfield, of Martin.

Miss Halbleib attended Eastern Kentucky State College where she was a member of CWENS, national honor society for sophomore women.

Mr. Scutchfield also attended Eastern Kentucky State College where he was a member of Omicron Alpha Kappa, junior-senior men's dormitory. Mr. Scutchfield will enter the University of Kentucky School of Medicine in the fall.

The wedding will take place August 11 at 8 o'clock in Christ Lutheran Church, Jeffersonton, Kentucky.

THE FEMININE SIDE OF BOWLING NEWS

By IMA BOWLER

Crown Lanes is now open after their closure for a week for refinishing of lanes. Their league play starts next week. There are still a few openings, so contact the Crown if you are ready to get back to work.

Lake Lanes began League play this week. There is still time to join a league, if you are interested. Call Lake Lanes for information. High bowler of the week at Lake Lanes was Esta Tackett, a new bowler who in the third game she'd ever bowled rolled a beautiful 203. How about that! Pin Princess was Paula Pigg with a 155.

Starline Lanes has also refinishing their lanes, and their league play begins next week also.

The National Convention of WIBC was held in Phoenix on May 7, 8, 9, 1962 and there were 75 amendments proposed and acted upon. Many of them are of great interest to us. They will be in the new rule books, issued next fall, but those of you who are interested can buy Woman's Bowler Magazine and have a complete listing of all 75, and whether or not they passed.

Woman Bowler Magazine is interested in us and what we do. They will print articles for us and pictures of any high scorers—from 200 up our girls have bowled. So why don't you send me a picture and high score of yours. I'll send it to Columbus, they will probably print it, and you will have national recognition for your high score.

An Evansville, Indiana League has inaugurated a Sponsor Recognition Day at the beginning of the league schedule where the sponsors are fed and honored. This, they report, was a huge success. It might be well to think about this, if it weren't for our sponsors, some of us wouldn't be bowling.

A gal from Pikeville suggested that after we have the league roll-offs the champions of each league should meet for a Cream-of-the-Crop championship roll-off. This sounds like loads of fun to me. Let's think about it, and maybe get it going.

Any suggestions you have toward making our City Association a more active one, and helping us get going, will be greatly appreciated. One city association has an annual party where each league is represented and offers some sort of entertainment. Be thinking about this, girls; we need some active interest.

This summer the colorful musical drama, "The Stephen Foster Story," goes into its fourth season (June 23-Sept. 3) at My Old Kentucky Home State Park, Bardstown.

CLUB MEETING HELD AT UK

Miss Hicks Models In Style Revue Show; Conduct Mock Congress

The 39th annual 4-H Club Week was held on the campus of the University of Kentucky last week.

Delegates attending for the first time formed into a mock United Nations Assembly and debated the question, "Should Members of the United Nations Who Are in Arrears of Payment of Their Contribution Be Denied the Right to Vote in the General Assembly?" Melanie Ann Conley served as president-pro-tem of the Senate and Burgess Lowe as a Senator from Louisiana. Delbert Ousley served as a Representative from Maryland.

Joan Hicks, Floyd county style revue winner, modeled in the state style revue Friday night.

Other activities enjoyed by the group during the week were friendship party, talent show and a tour of the various colleges on the University campus.

Burgess Lowe and Delbert Ousley sang in the vesper choir during the week.

Paintsville's city park and playground will be the scene of a baseball try-out camp this Friday and Saturday. Two Cincinnati Reds' scouts will be on hand to watch youths, 17-21 years of age, who are interested in a possible future in baseball.

Players are asked to be on the field at 10 a.m. each day and to supply their own gloves, uniforms and spikes.

The Kentucky state semi-pro baseball tournament will again be held in Paintsville, July 7-10, at the city baseball park.

Entries are now being accepted by Ford Ferguson, Paintsville, director of the event. Twelve to 14 teams are expected to vie for the crown now held by West Liberty.

West Liberty won the Kentucky-Tennessee playoffs last year and advanced to the finals in Wichita, Kansas, where they won three games before being eliminated in the semi-finals.

The Paintsville tournament will be a double elimination affair and is open to all semi-pro teams in the state.

Drawings will be held at 7:30 p.m., July 5, at the Paintsville bowling lanes. Umpires will be Walter Brugh and Bruce McClain, head football and basketball coaches, respectively, at Paintsville high.

Harold G. Britton, Louisa, is the Kentucky state commissioner.

Youth Eager To Accept Bid by Air Force

Bisbee, Ariz. — Cosme Martinez, 18-year-old Bisbee high school senior, is ready and willing to accept an offer he received from the Air Force. Martinez' letter from an Air Force recruiter read: "The Women's Air Force welcomes your enlistment. The W.A.F. is a most distinctive group of young ladies. You may enjoy a new and exciting social life. There are unequalled opportunities for you as a member of the W.A.F."

The Bisbee boy says he hopes the Air Force won't back out on the offer.

Navy Base Gas Thieves Smell Sweet

Key West, Fla.—The Navy is using perfume to sniff out gasoline pilferers. Several thousand gallons of gasoline disappeared from filling stations on the Naval Base here over a period of months. So perfume was added to the Navy gas supplies. Gate sentries stop drivers of private cars for questioning if the automobiles smell too sweet as they leave the base.

How To Make Child a Crook

The archdeacon of Chesterfield has given his Church of England parishioners a handy guide on "How To Turn Your Child Into A Crook."

Drawing a bead on indulgent parents, the Venerable Talbot Dilworth-Harrison listed these 12 "rules" in his parish magazine:

1. Begin from infancy to give the child everything he wants. In this way he will grow up to believe that the world owes him a living.
2. When he picks up bad words, laugh at him. It will encourage him to pick up "cuter phrases" that will blow the top of your head off later.
3. Never give him any spiritual training. Wait until he is 21, and then let him decide for himself.
4. Avoid the use of the word "wrong." It may develop a guilt complex. This will condition him to believe later when he is arrested for stealing a car that society is against him and he is being persecuted.
5. Pick up everything he leaves lying around — books, shoes and clothes. Do everything for him so he will be experienced in throwing the responsibility on to others.
6. Let him read any printed matter he can get his hands on. Be careful the silverware and drinking glasses are sterilized but let his mind feed on garbage.
7. Quarrel frequently in the presence of the children. Then they won't be too shocked when the home is broken up.
8. Give the child all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. Why should he have things as tough as you had them?
9. Satisfy his every craving for food, drink and comfort. See that every desire is gratified. Denial may lead to harmful frustration.
10. Take his part against the neighbors, teachers and policemen. They are all prejudiced against your child.
11. When he gets into real trouble, apologize for yourself by saying, "I never could do anything with him."
12. Prepare for a life of grief—"You will have it."

Overdressed Women Seized

Miami, Fla.—Police put the heat on three warmly dressed women arrested in a South Miami shopping center and charged with larceny.

A policewoman said the three were wearing "enough dresses to fill three large shopping bags." She said one of the three had on eight dresses, "hangers and all."

Women Suspected In Football Loss

London—The British Football Association has spent $16,800 to learn why the game lost 100,000,000 fans in the past 10 years. One main answer — English-women are no longer content to be alone while their men attend football games. And the women don't want to accompany their men to the stadiums either.

Mayo State To Offer Summer Classes Here; Considered Pilot Plan

Mayo State Vocational Technical School will offer summer classes in carpentry, electricity, and machine shop at the Prestonsburg Extension Center.

This announcement was recently made by George L. Ramey, director of the school. In making the announcement Mr. Ramey said that he wanted to offer training facilities to all persons in the community 16 years of age or older.

The summer session is new in the extension center areas and is considered a pilot project. There will be no tuition charge for enrollment in the courses this summer.

The opening date for the classes is July 2. An enrollment date is set for Friday, June 29. Interested persons should come to the school at 1 p.m. on this date. Mr. Ramey said that classes could be scheduled to fit the hours most suitable to the students and teachers.

The Mayo School, founded in 1933, was set up to serve a 15 county area, even though it accepts students from a much wider area. With the aim of more adequately serving the area, the school has operated the Prestonsburg and Belfry Extension Centers for a number of years. In 1960 the West Liberty Extension Center was opened. The Millard Extension Center opened in 1961, and the Jackson Extension Center is to be opened with the beginning of the fall school term next September.

Evening extension classes, another phase of training available through the school, has been conducted in a number of locations in the area. These opportunities are in addition to the training that is available through the 17 courses that are offered in the regular day program at the school located in Paintsville.

"The Harps, as you know, made much bloody history in Kentucky. Books have been written about them, however our branch of the family were Christians, converts of Alexander Campbell and Barton W. Stone. My great-grandmother married Solomon Stone, a close relative of Barton W. Stone.

"Phillip Harp came from Kentucky into Tennessee and married Sally Vaughan, a daughter of William Vaughan and his Cherokee wife, Fair-a-Bee-Lunah. I have been told Fair-a-Bee-Lunah was an Indian princess. William's sons were Daniel and Samuel and there may have been others. I am sure these are the ones who blazed the trail from Tennessee to the Ozarks.

"I wrote the story of the Vaughans and Harps, TRAIL BLAZERS, which was published serially in the Star Progress, a Berryville, Arkansas, newspaper, last year. It will be in book form later. It is the story of the Vaughans who drove the first overland wagon from Tennessee to the Ozarks sometime between 1799 and 1805. . . . I received a letter from a Miss Lucy Ball, Jacksonville, Illinois, who was born in Wales from whence the Vaughans migrated to America."

Use dairy foods to perk up your summertime menus during June Dairy Month. Some of the many dairy products available are: whole milk, skim milk, buttermilk, cottage cheese, milk shakes, cream, half and half, heavy whipping cream, ice cream, butter, ice milk, cottage cheese, and other cheeses.
