Many Over Age of 65 Years May Be Losing Money

According to E. B. Malinay, social security district manager, Pikeville, many people over 65 who are still working have not applied for social security benefits. These people may be losing money every day. Just because they are earning over $1,200 a year does not mean that they may not be entitled to some social security benefits.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan and 3,900 officers and men of his Confederate cavalry division, most of them Kentuckians, were on their famed "Christmas Raid" behind enemy lines in Kentucky. The object of the expedition was to cut the Louisville & Nashville railroad, over which the huge Union force in and around Nashville was being supplied from the federal government's depot at Louisville.

Starting from Alexandria, Tennessee, on December 22, the division reached Sand Shoals ford on the Cumberland River that night. The next day it marched 30 miles, the artillery not being able to keep up with the troopers if they rode any faster. On Christmas Eve the main body encamped within five miles of Glasgow and three companies were sent into the town after dark to see whether enemy troops were there. As the Confederates entered Glasgow from one direction, a battalion of Michigan cavalry rode in from the other and they clashed in the center of town.

Describing that engagement in his "History of Morgan's Cavalry," Basil Duke wrote: "First Lt. Samuel O. Peyton was severely wounded—shot in the arm and in the thigh. He was surrounded by foes who pressed him hard, after he was wounded, to capture him. He shot one assailant and, grappling with another, brought him to the ground and cut his throat with a pocket knife. Lt. Peyton was by birth, education and character a thorough gentleman. Perfectly good-natured and inoffensive except when provoked or attacked—and then he dispatched his affair and his man in a quiet, expeditious and thorough manner. The federal cavalry retreated from the town by the Louisville pike."

On Christmas Day the division rode through Glasgow and out the Louisville pike, the advance guard charging and scattering Union cavalry that had dismounted and formed across the road. That night it crossed Green River and encamped at Hammondsville.

"A day before," Duke wrote, "just upon the bank of the river, the most enormous wagon, perhaps ever seen in the state of Kentucky, was captured. It was loaded with an almost fabulous amount of Christmas neckties; some enterprising sutler had prepared it for the Glasgow market, intending to make his fortune with it. It was emptied at an earlier date, in shorter time, and by customers who proposed to themselves a much longer credit than he anticipated. There was enough in it to furnish every mess in the division something to eke out a Christmas supper with."

The next day the Rebels struck the L. & N. railroad, burning bridges at Bacon Creek and Nolichucky. December 27 they stormed Elizabethtown; after a hard fight the Federal garrison surrendered. The next day they burned two great trestles at Muldraugh's Hill, each 500 feet long, and a scouting party destroyed a bridge only 27 miles from Louisville. On the 28th, pinned back against the Rolling Fork River by 7,000 Union troops, they barely got across and escaped from the trap.

5 FIRMS ASK PICKETING BAN

Floyd Coal Companies File in Federal Court Against 21 UMWA Locals

Five mining firms asked for a permanent injunction Wednesday against 21 United Mine Workers locals in Floyd county. Suit was filed in United States District Court, where similar action was taken December 10 by a group of union members to halt unofficial picketing.

Plaintiffs in the latest action are Right Beaver Coal Company, Left Beaver Coal Company, Hite Preparation, Harold Fuel Company and Premium Elkhorn Coal Company. They claimed they represent about 200 coal firms in this county and sought "injunctive relief for all."

The order, if issued, would prevent picketing, boycotting, intimidating, coercing, or otherwise interfering with operations of the plaintiffs as long as they are parties to the national union agreement.

That agreement, the suit stated, is the official contract covering coal miners.

The earlier suit, filed by 21 men claiming to represent all U.M.W. members in the county, was against Lee Howell, James Odell Cavins, and others.

They were accused of preventing "union members from working with duly elected officers of the United Mine Workers Union as their bargaining representative."

Free-Food Rolls Are Doubled in 2 Years

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19—The number of Americans receiving free food from the Government has nearly doubled since the Kennedy Administration took office.

An Agriculture Department report Wednesday showed that 6,100,000 needy persons are receiving surplus foods under the agency's direct-distribution program. This compares with 3,200,000 late in 1960 under the outgoing Eisenhower Administration.

In Kentucky, which ranks fourth among the states in number of surplus-food recipients, 293,709 were given food this September compared to 216,344 in September, 1960.

Thomas A. Lewis, director of commodity distribution for the State Department of Agriculture, said that 106 Kentucky counties were participating in the food program this fall compared to 86 in September, 1960.

Lewis attributed the increased participation to improvements made in the quality of the food since President Kennedy took office.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture makes surplus foods available to state welfare agencies for donation to needy persons through local relief units.

The present count does not include about 50,000 receiving assistance under a trial food stamp plan in effect in some localities.

Wednesday's report showed that during the first quarter of the 1962-63 fiscal year the department donated 1,100,000,000 pounds of food to the needy at home and abroad. This was a poundage increase of about 25 percent over the like quarter two years ago.

Of the donations this year, 421,000,000 pounds went to the needy at home and 732,000,000 to the needy abroad.

States with the largest number of free food recipients during September included: Pennsylvania, 815,759; New York, 533,041; Michigan, 301,283; Kentucky, 299,709; Oklahoma, 287,028; West Virginia, 230,643; Mississippi, 210,457; and Tennessee, 176,752.

In addition there were 676,313 recipients in Puerto Rico. The only states without recipients were South Carolina, Hawaii and Alaska.

MINING AREA AID CLIMBS

Avalanche of Donations Arriving At Headquarters Established At Hazard

A nation preparing for Christmas has opened its heart and pocket-books to Southeastern Kentucky's destitute unemployed coal miners. Promises of food and clothing from all over the United States are pouring into Hazard. More than $3,000 in cash has been received since Hazard and Perry county were made the subject recently of the C.B.S. television documentary "The Hungry Americans."

Since then a steady stream of letters containing money and expressions of sympathy and several packages of food and clothing have swamped Hazard.

The largest contribution was $500. It came from a Louisville musical firm.

Paramount Studios in Hollywood, California, notified the receiving point it is sending a C-119 Flying Boxcar airplane loaded with five tons of food and clothing for the mountains' needy families.

Residents of Louisville and Fort Knox are collecting two truckloads of food and clothing. One manufacturer phoned and promised 400 pairs of new shoes.

Not all the gifts have been as dramatic, but the sincerity—the spirit of Christmas giving—was still there.

With one small gift came a note explaining:

"We cannot send much because we have three little boys of our own. Please let us know if there is anything further we can do."

Another envelope contained a $10 bill and a dollar bill with a note in childish scrawling—"Help Some Little Kids."

A little girl in Kansas sent along 50 cents because she wanted to share her Christmas with those "who may not have one."

A group of youngsters in an Illinois school donated the money it had saved for Christmas tree decorations.

One couple, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bailey, drove to Hazard, bringing bundles of clothing and boxes of toys. Bailey is art director of the Akron, Ohio, Beacon-Journal. Other gifts are coming in small packages. Some are writing for the names of needy families they can help directly.

Telephone offers of aid have been received by the Hazard Herald, the town's bi-weekly newspaper, from Denver, Colorado, Pittsburgh, Norfolk, Virginia, New York City, Atlanta, San Francisco, and other cities.

The Herald was designated in the television show as the receiving point for the contributions. Actually, a committee of nine including three members of its staff, three ministers, and representatives from the Hazard Junior Chamber of Commerce are arranging for the distribution of the donations.

Governor Bert Combs has promised to make state trucks available.

Mrs. W. P. Nolan, wife of the publisher, called the donations an "expression of the heart of America." She said $6,000 has been received.

"The thought of Christmas is in every letter we have received," she added. "These donations are coming from the religious families of America. Practically every letter has a tone of Christianity. Only a few have been critical," said Mrs. Nolan. She said the committee will meet Friday to arrange distribution of the food and clothing.

Small Area Home Industries By Louisville Firm Assists Forty East Kentucky Families

Forty families operating small home-industries in Eastern Kentucky are going to have a merrier Christmas this year because of promotion by a large Louisville meat packer utilizing handicraft products.

The latest promotion, which has employed nine families, is a special Christmas offering of meat products packaged in gift baskets and pottery made by craftsmen in Breathitt and Madison counties.

Featured in a Christmas catalogue published by The Klarer Company, the products are made by members of the Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen.

The baskets were designed by Lee Bach, who in competition with craftsmen from 27 nations at the 1939 World's Fair, took the championship for basket making. The pottery comes from Bybee Pottery, operated by the fifth generation Cornelison family.

Klarer's Christmas promotion has received enthusiastic acclaim from

Pike County Merchant Attacks Old Coal Deed Right In Federal Court

A suit that could decisively affect strip and auger mining in Eastern Kentucky has been filed in United States District Court at Pikeville by a Pike county merchant.

The plaintiff, Elbert Roberts, Marrowbone Creek, has attacked strip and auger mining in his complaint as a violation of the Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution.

The defendant is the Twin Fork Coal Company of Pikeville. The company has been strip- and auger-mining coal on Roberts' land since October under a mineral lease from Big Sandy Corporation, a land company with headquarters in Maine.

Roberts claims in his suit that strip and auger mining is destroying his land, vegetation, and timber, rendering it unfit for agricultural and forest purposes, and poisoning the soil and surface and sub-surface waters.

He has asked $15,000 in damages and a permanent injunction to halt surface mining on his property.

The suit alleges the surface mining is being done under provisions of a legal instrument known in the coalfields as the "Old Northern Coal and Coke Company Deeds." The deeds referred to in the mountain coalfields as "long-form" or "broad-form" deeds because of their all-inclusive provisions.

The suit attacks strip and auger mining under the broadform deed as a violation of the Fifth Amendment, which provides no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law.

The broad-form deeds were used between 1880 and 1910 by speculators and land companies to buy mineral rights in Eastern Kentucky.

The deed split surface rights away from the mineral rights, leaving the land companies in possession of the minerals and property owners in possession of the surface. Clauses in the deeds, however, gave the land companies virtually complete use of the surface to obtain the minerals.

Upward of 90 percent of the surface and mineral in some mountain counties are covered by the deeds.

So long as coal was obtained by underground-mining methods in Eastern Kentucky, the deeds were rarely in dispute between property owners and the land companies.

The deeds have caused disharmony in recent years, however, because of the advent of strip and auger mining for coal.

Roberts' suit acknowledges that while the broad-form deeds give owners of the mineral broad powers, the deeds were nevertheless originally written to reserve "something" of value for the owners of the surface rights.

His suit argues that "something" is the surface, and since strip and auger mining destroys the surface, his land is being taken without due compensation.

The suit is believed the first in which a federal court has been asked to decide the rights of surface owners under the broad-form deed. The Kentucky Court of Appeals has traditionally held that the deed conveys to the mining companies full use of the surface while in the process of mining coal or other minerals.

Robert's attorneys are Harry Caudill of Whitesburg and Grant Knuckles of Pineville.

Supreme Court Upholds State Sunday Closing; Review of Law Refused

The United States Supreme Court said Monday it will not review the question of constitutionality of Kentucky's Sunday-closing law "for want of substantial question."

Only Justice William O. Douglas dissented. He said he considered the 19th Century blue law a violation of the First Amendment, which guarantees freedom of religion.

The Supreme Court action in effect affirmed the Kentucky Court of Appeals decision that the closing law is constitutional and will end that court's stay of enforcement of the law.

Since Supreme Court mandates are not issued for 25 days after the sitting, Kentucky officials have a breathing spell to determine their legal position. The Kentucky Court of Appeals is in recess until January. Attorneys for both sides assume that the stay of enforcement will be ended when the Appellate Court reconvenes.

State Attorney General John B. Breckinridge said his office will not become involved in an interpretation of the complicated legal maneuverings surrounding the controversial law.

"That's the law and that's that," Breckinridge said of the Supreme Court's decision. He said local officials must now solve their own problems of interpreting the old Kentucky statute.

Breckinridge at one time tried to write an omnibus interpretation, but gave up and advised legal agencies to handle Sunday-closing charges "case by case."

A well of approximately the same volume and in the same formation was drilled in two months ago by R. M. Sirkle and associates, on the head of Katy Friend Branch of Middle Creek.

Two Families Lose Belongings To Fire

The house occupied by Leonard Marsillet and family on Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, burned, with the family saving nothing. The building was owned by Henry Meadows, it was said.

The other structure burned was occupied by Dallas Freeman and family on Abbott Creek. Few of the family belongings were reported saved.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

In my last years of teaching I often had great difficulty in explaining why certain practices used to be regarded with horror. In my Chaucer class it was revelation to most of the students that a woman bare-headed in public was once worthy of the worst punishment. In World War I there was a song that suggests that some young woman had better keep her shades down, for

"Last night, by the pale moonlight, I saw you;
You were combing your golden hair; it was hanging upon a chair."

Boy, that girl was certainly wicked and daring! If she had lived two decades before the war, however, she would have been disgraced for life, for nothing was quite so degrading for a woman as to be caught combing her hair. A hired man at Fidelity, usually held up as the very worst example of manners, came into our house one day without knocking. My older sister was combing her long hair. She fled as from a prairie fire and for a long time after the fellow had stayed out his time, she was very angry and completely humiliated. Mother, not very nervous and always philosophical, managed to calm my sister down, and so far as I can now remember, no great calamity came upon anybody because of the hired man's bad manners, not even upon the hired man.

Away back in 1907 I taught my first school and was supposed to be quite proper in my dress as a very badly-scared eighteen-year-old. Never one day did I enter that one-roomed country school without my coat, and a hard detachable collar, and a tie—too! Even in my boarding house I never ate a meal in my shirt sleeves, for I was the neighborhood teacher and must be a model of excellence. Of course, before and after the meals, I removed my coat and was a rough-and-tough boy with the three boys of the family; but manners were manners in those days, I tell you. To have been caught coatless and collarless and tieless would have disgraced me as much as my sister felt disgraced when the neighboring hired man saw her combing her hair.

Author's Father-in-Law Dies in Auto Crash

Ashland, Ky., Dec. 18 — Emmett W. Norris, father-in-law of author Jesse Stuart, died Tuesday in an Ironton, Ohio, hospital of injuries received in an automobile accident.

Norris, 78, suffered internal injuries Monday and his wife, 75, received a skull fracture when their automobile overturned three times after a collision on U. S. 52 west of Ironton.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said Russell Honaker, 28, Chicago, was cited for improper passing and released on $25 bond.

Norris, a retired bookkeeper, was a native of Hopewell, Kentucky.

Mrs. Stuart and her husband are on a State Department tour, lecturing now in East Pakistan.

Norris is survived by three other daughters, Mrs. Russell Zachem, Mrs. George Curry, and Mrs. Robert Callahan, Greenup; a son, Charles William Norris, Greenup, and a sister, Mrs. Vernon V. Kendall, Greenup.

CHILD DIES

Birchell Lee Hall, ten-year-old son of Ray and Lizzie Frasure Hall, of East McDowell, died Monday at home. Besides the parents, he is survived by four brothers and sisters. Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday at 10 a.m. from the home, the Revs. H. Moore and Shelby Newsom officiating. Burial was made in the Frasure cemetery at East McDowell under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

More than forty years ago a boy enrolled in our college who seemed the most daring person we had ever seen. Though a native-born Kentuckian, he had spent his high school years in California with an older sister. That hot September day, when all the rest of us were sweltering in our boiled shirts and in our coats, too, this husky lad appeared in what is now called a sport shirt, with very short sleeves, no collar, and no coat. If he had been some stray from a zoo, he would not have attracted more attention. I do not know whether anybody drew aside and advised him to cover his nakedness; anyway, he soon showed himself to be an excellent student and in no sense a sort of prehistoric beatnik. He graduated at our college, has had a long career of teaching in California, and must be within a few years of retirement by now. But it was a long, long time before anybody else dared to dress like George.

Recently there died, at a rather advanced age, a teacher whom I knew for dozens of years. Hundreds of times I met her as she went to her work and I to mine; on no occasion was she minus a hat, whether the weather was hot or cold, or moist or dry. In her schoolroom she discarded the hat, but back it came before she dared walk out on the street. In most other ways she seemed as modern as any of her generation, but a lady was supposed to wear a hat in public.

If someone in Fidelity has stood up at a political gathering or even at church and solemnly declared that he was the son of a Yankee soldier, I believed that half the audience would have fainting and the other half would have said ugly words. But I have heard reference to one's being descended from a Confederate soldier everywhere, from a political speaking to a prayer meeting or a schoolroom.

Isn't it queer how things change "for better, for worse," and all the rest of the ritual we have heard so many times?

Telephone Directories Distributed by Bell; High Number Is Noted

A measure of the growth of Prestonsburg and the communities of Wayland, Allen, Martin, and McDowell is the large increase in the number of telephone directories being distributed beginning today to local subscribers, it was pointed out this week by A. Guy Hisle, local manager for the Southern Bell Telephone Company.

Approximately 4,275 new directories are going to homes and businesses, compared with 3,940 when the last directory was delivered. Delivery will take several days but should be completed by December 22.

The new telephone directory has many new and changed listings and their helpful telephone information. It is easily distinguishable from the old blue-covered telephone book by its picture of the Kentucky State Capitol on the blue-and-white cover. Enough new directories have been printed to supply every telephone subscriber and to allow for future telephone expansion in the Big Sandy area.

Mr. Hisle asked that the old directory be destroyed and that the new one be used when looking up telephone numbers. It helps avoid the possibility of getting wrong numbers and saves time for both the calling and the called parties. "Information" should be called only when the number is not listed in the directory.

Deactivation of Reserve Unit Set for January 1

This area will lose an estimated $50,000 annually with the January 1 completion of the deactivation of the 80-man reserve unit of the 923rd Quartermaster Company located here.

The deactivation was recently ordered by Major General Andrew R. Lohli, Commander of the XX United States Army Corps, Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio.

Captain Eugene C. Rice, Company commander of the 923rd, received the following letter from General Lohli:

"To permit a more effective and efficient utilization of manpower and material, the Department of Defense has directed an overall reorganization of the Reserve Program which necessitates the inactivation of your unit."

"The Defense Department has determined that as technology, strategy, tactics and war plans change the active Army must change its organization and force structure to accommodate these factors. The Reserve Components also must make changes necessary to provide units capable of blending with active Army forces to provide an effective, cohesive fighting force capable of implementing all plans on schedule. Units not required by current mobilization plans are being inactivated or reorganized."

"The XX United States Army Corps has the responsibility to implement the current reorganization to provide top priority units with greater mobilization readiness."

"You and the personnel of your unit will be afforded full opportunity to volunteer to become members of other Reserve units. All are urged to continue their service in our vital Reserve Program."

"Enclosed is a letter by the Department Army Commander with additional pertinent facts indicating the position of Department of the Army and US Continental Army Command on the reorganization."

"I commend you and the personnel of your unit for your past contributions to the success of our mission and the defense of our country. I am confident our future in the USAR will be better than ever. Together, we will make it so!"

Cincinnati Bond Firm Compliments Commission On Utilities Operation

Evidence of faith in the successful operation of the Prestonsburg water and gas systems is pointed in a recent letter of Charles A. Hirsch & Company, of Cincinnati, specialists in municipal securities.

Robert R. Meyer, of the firm, wrote the Prestonsburg Utility Commission last week that his company had received copies of the audits of the two systems, and added:

"It appears that the operation of these utilities is proceeding very satisfactorily and should be of great benefit in financing your proposed sewer project. Incidentally, we believe that with the excellent record of the water and gas system we could finance the proposed sewer project and if you would be interested in discussing this matter with us, we would be most happy to come to Prestonsburg and talk to you about it."

CAUSE FOR DELAY

It may be that Kentucky will invoke its so-called "Blue Laws" soon, which would require the closing of most businesses on Sunday.

"Of which erudite opinion I am not the least bit juberous. Only, I do wish Doc would tell me where and how the mischief he got on the trail of this word. —Editor."

CIVILIZED?

The news item about the raid made by Sheriff Preston of Johnson county on that new rooster-fighting arena near Paintsville reminds us that Floyd county has had one of these so-called sporting events going for several years, during which time it has been one of the county's least-kept secrets.

I also am reminded that, about 50 years after the birth of Christ, a Roman emperor packed the mob into an amphitheatre by advertising that a varied assortment of wild animals and 2,000 gladiators would battle to the death.

But we have come a long way since then. Now we let the roosters do the fighting till they drop. Let the blood fly and the dumb things die—lay your money on the line—we're civilized!

SKEPTICAL AND GULLIBLE

A fellow who confessed to little faith in matters of the spirit—to put it more bluntly, little faith in God or Jesus Christ—marveled at man's scientific knowledge and the fact that the United States has put a mechanism a cool 35 million miles into space and that that speck of human ingenuity out there somewhere is radiating back to earth messages as to what it saw and felt as it neared Venus . . . If one is to be so skeptical of everything he does not see and feel, why be so gullible about this matter? That signal seemed to my delicate ear only a repetition of monotonous, unchanging sound. How do I know the guy at the decoding machine isn't faking all this data that has the world pop-eyed?

Mind you, I'm not questioning anybody's veracity or the wonders of this gadget. But I'm not skeptical about those other truths, either.

Special Service Planned By Wheelwright Church

The Community Church of Wheelwright will have a special candlelight Christmas service, Sunday evening, December 23, at 7:30. There will be special choral music by the Cherub Choir of 18 voices. Brass and reed accompaniment will also be furnished by John Brock, Jr., Ellsworth Collins, Jr., Don Cooper, Steve Benedict and Daniel Greer. Miss Brenda England will be at the piano and Mrs. Jean Gibson at the organ. The MYF of the church is directing this service, and the public is cordially invited.

Wheelwright Defeats Pikeville With Ease

Wheelwright's Trojans raced away from Pikeville with a 19-6 second period as they broke the game open and went on to win 79-47.

The Panthers made a game of it in the first period when the Trojans were only able to manage a 16-12 edge. A balanced scoring attack moved Wheelwright to a 17-point halftime lead, 35-18, and this was too much for the Panthers to make up especially when Wheelwright increased their scoring down the stretch to widen the margin.

Wheelwright had four scorers in double figures with Danny Hall on top with 17. Jim Rollins had 16, Joe Fargo 12, and Bill Cook came off the bench as a sub to net 10.

Warfield Downs Cats With 3rd Period Drive

Warfield used a big third period to overtake Prestonsburg Saturday night, then held on to register a 58-54 basketball victory.

Prestonsburg, paced by Fred Sesser's 30 points, shot ahead at 27-26 at the intermission, but lost the lead in the third quarter when Warfield outscored the Black Cats 16-8. Prestonsburg pulled to within one point on three occasions in the fourth quarter but could never catch the visitors.

The win left Warfield with a 5-3 season record and the defeat was Prestonsburg's second in five games.

Tom Pinson led Warfield with 13 points.

Traffic Violation Blame Due To Lax Enforcement

If the public has a tendency to regard traffic violations as unimportant, some of the blame must be shouldered by those of us who enforce the traffic laws.

The average driver's first contact with the law is the enforcement officer. If his attitude belittles the law he enforces, the motorist, understandably, places little importance on his violation.

Assuming, however, that the officer's attitude is correct, and that the offense results in a citation, the driver's next contact is with the court. If, as sometimes happens, the case is discussed out of court and without the testimony of the citing officer, respect for the enforcement officer is materially lessened, and justice is apt to suffer in the process.

TWIN BILL, SATURDAY

Saturday night's doubleheader in the local gymnasium should be one of the best of the young season as Martin clashes with Wheelwright in the first game and Prestonsburg meets McDowell in the second. Game time is 7 p.m.

GOOFED . . . Last week it was stated that McDowell would become the second Floyd county team to play in the highly-regarded Ashland Invitational tournament. This should have been third. Denzil Halbert's fine Martin team played in the event in 1959.

McDowell and Paintsville, representing this region will be in some fast company in this season's event. Paintsville will see action on the tourney's opening night, Friday, by meeting Boyd County.

After the Friday games, the tournament will recess until Wednesday, December 26, when Louisville Male meets Newport at 7:30 and McDowell collides with Maysville in the 9:00 p.m. tilt.

Three of the officials in the ten-team field are Floyd county natives—Sid Meade, Nelson Allen and Milford Wells.

HOW TRUE

According to the most authoritative people, there are only ten people who know everything there is to know about basketball and how it should be officiated. Isn't it funny that every time you attend a game these same ten always sit right next to you?

LATEST RATINGS

The latest Lit-ratings list three 58th district teams as the best in the 15th region: Wheelwright is first, Garrett, second, and McDowell, third. Martin is sixth, Wayland, seventh, Maytown, 11th and Prestonsburg 14th.

Betsy Layne, tied with McDowell for the most games won in the region with nine, hopes to make Wayland its tenth victim at home, Saturday night.

Since there will be no paper, next week, we will report the success of our annual Florida fishing tour in the January issue and to our faithful readers we would like to supply each with a large bass, but maybe a Merry Christmas will have to suffice.

New State Regulations Governing Ky. Boating Go Into Effect, Jan. 1

Two new regulations that will affect boaters and fishermen will go into effect January 1 according to E. C. "Bud" Calman, acting director of the Division of Boating.

One of these is Boating Regulation No. 20 which prohibits the operation or mooring of a boat within 500 feet, above or below, of a power dam; also, that no one shall take a boat into a power dam exhaust chute.

Calman pointed out and emphasized this does not effect boating at other dams. The regulation applies only to dams having power generators, such as Kentucky or Cumberland Lake dams. It was made in the interest of safety and was among needed regulations advocated by the U. S. Coast Guard.

Regulation No. 21 was made to control speed of boats passing docks and moorage areas. It requires passing boats—when under 100 feet from either—to do so at a "no-wake speed." This was necessitated because of the damage the past two seasons to moored boats and to docks from the wakes of passing boats.

Violation of either regulation, as with all other boating regulations, calls for a fine of $15 to $100 upon conviction.

What's Going On in

FISH & WILDLIFE

by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner

Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

Q. Is it legal to fish in Kentucky with a light? What I mean is to shine the light out in the water and fish around it. H. S. Radcliffe, Kentucky.

A. It is legal to use a light while fishing in Kentucky. Actually some of the very best fishing, especially for crappie and white bass is had by using a light to attract minnows or shad or skipjacks to the surface of the water, with these food fish in turn attracting fish below them. In this manner the fish are congregated and good catches can be made in this manner.

Q. Your opening of 7,000 acres in Cumberland National Forest for muzzle loader hunting interested me very much. Do you plan the same thing for muzzle loaders next year? L. P. Chicago, Illinois.

A. Those interested in muzzle loading rifles and shotguns found their exclusive season highly interesting and a great number of persons participated in the hunt. We feel that interest in this season will grow from year to year and plan to continue to open approximately the same area for this type hunting each year. The requested literature has been mailed to you.

Q. What is the reason for opening Guist Creek Lake to fishing on January 1 rather than when the water becomes warmer and the weather is more suited to fishing? J. G. B., Versailles, Kentucky.

A. Past experiences have shown that by opening a lake when the fish are highly mobile and easy to catch the population is reduced too much in a few days before they become accustomed to lures and live bait. In other words, fish become accustomed to fishermen after a few days and are more wary. Therefore, by opening the season at a time when the fish are less active they become accustomed to the fishermen and the lures and therefore are not so gullible as when conditions are more favorable. In other words the Department is attempting to spread out the fish population so that more fishermen will harvest them, rather than have a few take practically all the fish in the first few days.

SPELLING LESSON—20th CENTURY STYLE: The "maser" (a word you won't find in the dictionary) is an important part of the ground station which receives and amplifies signals from the Telstar satellite. The word "maser" is made up of the first letters of several other words: M (microwave), A (amplification), S (Stimulated), E (emission), I (radiation). A tiny ruby crystal is at the heart of the maser which amplifies signals transmitted from Telstar to earth. The maser is another Bell System contribution to the exciting world of satellite communications, and a brand new word in the vocabulary of 20th century man.

AS A NEW SERVICE TO TELEPHONE USERS WITH IMPAIRED EYESIGHT, a plastic covered dial number plate with adhesive backing has been developed. Burns studied law under the preceptorship of his father, was admitted to the bar in 1867 and has since been in active practice in Boyd and adjacent counties. September 3, 1866, he married Miss Jennie Wamrock, of Boyd county, daughter of James Wamrock, and to this union have been born three children. Mr. Burns is a Freemason, and in politics is a Republican.

OLIVER W. BURNS

"Oliver W. Burns, a merchant of West Liberty, Morgan county, Kentucky, was born December 20, 1837. His father, William H. Burns, a native of Greenbrier county, Virginia, was born in 1816 and was brought to Kentucky when small by his parents, who settled in Lawrence county, where he was brought up on the farm and received his education in the common schools. About 1833 he commenced the study of law and the following year was admitted to the bar. About 1840 he moved to Pike county where he practiced his profession until 1845 when he moved to West Liberty and soon gained a large law practice, becoming very popular professionally in Eastern Kentucky.

"In 1859 he was elected circuit judge of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit and served in that capacity until the outbreak of the war. He then joined the Confederate Army, in the commissary department of the Fifth Kentucky Infantry, and served until the close of the war. He then located at Lebanon, Virginia, where he resumed the practice of law and lived until his death.

"In 1833 he married Mary M. Sulphur, of Ohio, and they had six children, viz: Harrison C., Oliver W., Josephine K., Malinda A. and Leonidas H. Oliver W. Burns was brought up in West Liberty where he received his education and also at Owingsville. In 1856 he engaged in the mercantile business at West Liberty to which he has since devoted the greater part of his time. He has been very successful in business and is regarded as one of the most enterprising and prosperous businessmen in the mountains. February 20, 1856, he married Miss Anne E. Schoolfield, a daughter of John and Francis A. (Dudley) Schoolfield, of Lynchfield, West Virginia. Mr. Burns is a member of the F. & A.M. fraternity and of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Democrat.

DR. CHARLES S. CALLIHAN

He followed farming and stock raising extensively all his life and was for many years looked upon as one of the leading men of Eastern Kentucky. He was the father of twelve children, the most of whom grew to manhood and womanhood. He gave them all a fair education and a good start in the world. Having accumulated considerable money and property during his lifetime he died in good circumstances. He was a man of good moral character, beloved by all who knew him, and the name of Simon Cockrill is justly entitled to a place in history as one of the pioneers and settlers of the territory now known as Kentucky. He was an enterprising man, of powerful physique and of superior intellect and did much to build up his country.

"Harrison Cockrill, the fifth child in the family of twelve was reared and educated in his native county. He entered into politics when quite young, as a Democrat and was elected county court clerk of Breathitt county, serving in that capacity for a number of years. He was subsequently elected county judge, serving some time. He was a member of the State Senate two different terms, and in 1874 moved to Irvine. In 1875 he made an active race for Congress from the Ninth District but was defeated by a small majority. Christmastime Is Sad

In memory of a loved one, T. Y. Martin, who passed away Feb. 1, 1960:

I have lost my life companion,
A life linked with my own,
And every day I miss him more,
As I go through life alone.
It won't be long till
Christmas Day,
A day that used to be so good and sweet.
Little did I know that one day
I would be giving you a bunch

Instead of a Christmas cake.
If all the world was mine

I would give it all and more,
To see the face I love so dear,
Come smiling through the door.

AIR POLLUTION CURBS STUDIED

Burning Coal Wastes Problem in E. Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 17 (Spl.)—Steps need to be taken to prevent air pollution, a rapidly growing public health problem in Kentucky as well as throughout the United States, Russell E. Teague, M. D., commissioner of health, said upon his return from the National Air Pollution Conference in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Teague said that at the present time, with a lack of funds for this work in Kentucky, it is possible to investigate and take action only in acute incidences of air pollution, whereas the real problem lies in prevention, not only of such problems, but also of the day-to-day accumulative effects on people throughout the state. People, he said, with some existing respiratory disability, as asthma, bronchitis, tuberculosis, silicosis, etc., which have a high incidence in Kentucky, are most readily affected with serious trouble when pollution exists.

One of Kentucky's more serious problems is in eastern Kentucky where wastes from coal mines are burned, giving off sulphur dioxide, an injurious gas largely responsible for the deaths and illness in the recent London, England, smog. Other problems are recognized in certain areas of the state where there is a concentration of industry. Most of these problems could be corrected with proper control equipment, which the newer industries are installing.

"However," Dr. Teague added, "while for many years we have worked to see that our food and water are safe, it is time we see that the people have safe air to breathe—not polluted air which injures the health of many, especially older persons. It is the responsibility of the scientific community to work out new ways of handling the growing problem, and soon," he said, "since new proposals of a possibly hazardous nature, including gases from automobile exhaust, are being put forward constantly."

Our Historic Heritage
A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 220 in a Series)

A MOUNTAIN "PLANTATION" HOME SIX DECADES AGO

Many mountain homes of the period between the Civil War and the coming of the railway at the turn of the century reflected the architecture of the English countryside. Usually two stories, these homes were commodious and designed for large families and the entertainer of many visitors.

Shown here is the home of Kenas F. Leslie on Johns Creek in 1902. It was surrounded by paling fence enclosing fields of corn, a meadow and an orchard. The owner is seen on his favorite gray horse in the lane.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of the regional past in recognition of our historic heritage.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

Of all the Kentuckians of both armies who were serving in Tennessee 100 years ago this week, undoubtedly the happiest were those in Brig. Gen. John Hunt Morgan's Confederate cavalry division, for they were setting out in high spirits on a raid that would take them back to Kentucky again. It was the expedition to become famous as "the Christmas raid."

Morgan had 3900 officers and men, the largest force he ever commanded, larger than any he had before that or afterward. The division was in several camps around Alexandria, Tennessee. Its departure on December 22, the first of twelve days of hard riding, was described by an unidentified eyewitness in part as follows:

"The regiments had been carefully inspected by the surgeons and inspectors... stout men and serviceable horses only were permitted to accompany the expedition. The men were never in higher spirits or more joyous humor; well armed, well mounted, in good discipline, with perfect confidence in their commander and with hearts longing for the hills and valleys, the bluegrass and woods of dear old Kentucky, they made the air vocal with their cheers and laughter and songs and sallies of wit..."

"This December morning was a mild, beautiful fall day; clear, cloudless sky, bright sun, the camps in cedar evergreens where the birds chirped and twittered; it felt and looked like spring... Soon came Duke and his staff, and his column—his own old gallant regiment at the head—and slowly regiment after regiment filed out of the woods and into the road, lengthening the long column."

"After some two hours' march, a cheer began in the extreme rear and rapidly came forward, increasing in volume and enthusiasm, and soon Gen. Morgan dashed by with his hat in his hand, bowing and smiling his thanks for these flattering cheers, followed by a large and well-mounted staff."

"Perhaps no general in either army surpassed him in the striking proportion and grace of his person, and the ease and grace of his horsemanship. Over six feet in height, straight as an Indian, exquisitely proportioned, with an air and manner of a cultivated and polished gentleman and the bearing of a soldier, always handsomely and tastefully dressed and elegantly mounted, he was the picture of the superb cavalry officer. Just now he was in the height of his fame and happiness; married only ten days before to an accomplished lady, made brighter justly but very tardily, in command of the finest cavalry division in the Southern army, beloved almost to idolatry by his men and returning their devotion by an extravagant confidence in their valor and prowess, conscious of his own great powers yet wearing his honors with the most admirable modesty, and just starting upon a carefully conceived but daring expedition, he was perhaps in the zenith of his fame..."

SAFETY DIRECTOR NOTES HOLIDAY SEASON DANGER

The Christmas holiday period is the most dangerous time of the year for travelers, according to State Police records.

State Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovern said that this short period, usually about three days in duration, claims more lives on the highways than any other time of the year.

"One hundred and fifty people have died in traffic accidents during the Christmas season period since 1950. In 1961, 19 persons died during the three-day period. This means that about six persons each day never live to start the new year, as the results of highway tragedy," Lovern said.

Fatal accidents, as well as individual fatalities, increase in proportion during this period, according to past experience. For the 19 persons killed in 1961 Christmas time accidents, there were 17 accidents that took the 19 lives. "This eliminates the theory that we have many multiple-death accidents during the holidays," Lovern stated, "and this experience goes back through the years to 1950." In 1950, 16 accidents caused 17 deaths; 1951, 23 accidents, 25 deaths; 1952, five accidents, five deaths; 1953, 17 accidents, 22 deaths; 1954, 10 accidents, 12 deaths; 1955, nine accidents, 11 deaths; 1956, three accidents, three deaths; 1957, 13 accidents, 13 deaths; 1958, four accidents, five deaths; 1959, 10 accidents, 12 deaths; 1960, six accidents, six deaths; and 1961, 17 fatal accidents caused 19 deaths during the brief period.

Commissioner Lovern pointed out that some of these time periods are shorter than others, and therefore, there were fewer accidents and deaths recorded but the pattern remains unchanged. In reviewing the report, Lovern recommended the following for those who will travel during the Christmas holiday period this year: Plan the trip carefully, allowing ample time regardless of the weather. Weather conditions change quickly at this time of the year and the time element is usually a deciding factor when planning a trip.

"Even good weather hurts the traffic safety picture during the holidays," Commissioner Lovern remarks, "because many drivers tend to over-drive traffic conditions if the roads are dry and the sun shines.

Another tip for travelers is to dress comfortably for a long trip. Children should be made as comfortable as possible and should take along toys or other things to keep them occupied. Restless children make drivers nervous and drivers need to concentrate on driving only under such conditions.

Drivers should get plenty of sleep before embarking on a trip and should not consume alcoholic beverages during the trip. Drinking, even during a stop for meals, dulls the reflexes and tends to make one sleepy. Falling asleep is a major cause of accidents during trips.

Other safety needs also important for a safe journey are checking over the mechanical condition of the car well in advance of the trip, and waiting until the last minute is usually not a good idea because there are many things to do for a trip and they cannot all be done at the same time.

Drivers should know routes that they plan to take before leaving. Check the map to find the best way, according to available roads marked on the map. In many instances, roads formerly used by the destination have been replaced by new Interstate highways and these new safer roads should be used when available. Accident experience is 10 times greater on old-type roads, compared with the limited access highways.

Commissioner Lovern said, "Be prepared. Emergencies don't usually happen to those who are prepared for them, and in view of the fact that we never know what kind of emergency may occur, be ready for anything. Give the gift of brotherly love to your fellow motorists and both you and the other driver will be around for another year."

HICKS IN KOREA
U. S. Forces, Korea—Army Pfc. Garrett K. Hicks, son of William Hicks, Hueysville, Kentucky, recently qualified as expert in firing the .45-caliber submachinegun in Korea.

Hicks, a personnel carrier driver in Headquarters Troop of the 10th Armored Cavalry Regiment's 2nd Reconnaissance Squadron, entered the Army in September, 1961, and completed basic combat training at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

The 25-year-old soldier is a 1956 graduate of Maytown high school in Langley, Kentucky, and was employed by Ferma Glass, Inc., in Payne, Ohio, before entering the Army.

Johnson GI Killed By Sentry in Korea

An American soldier shot and killed south of the truce line in Korea last Tuesday when he failed to heed a challenge by one of his comrades at a guard post was identified as Pvt. Larry G. Vanhose, 20, Sitka, Johnson county, Kentucky.

Another soldier was shot but his wounds were not serious, an Army announcement said.

The wounded soldier was not identified immediately.

The incident occurred at Camp Kaiser, about 25 miles north of Seoul.

"Military police reported the two men were first observed by the sentry as they approached his guard post," the announcement said. "After being challenged, Vanhose continued to advance . . . but turned and fled after the sentry fired a warning shot into the ground."

"As the pair fled, the sentry challenged them again and when they failed to halt, fired," it said. "Vanhose was hit in the back and pronounced dead on arrival at the Camp Kaiser aid station."

Officials said he is survived by his father, Clyde Vanhose, also of Sitka.

Look in your cupboards for Christmas food gift ideas. A jar of homemade jam, jelly, marmalade, pickles, or relishes will be a welcome gift to many.

35,000-ACRE GAME REFUGE SURROUNDING LAKE LEASED

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 17—Almost 35,000 acres of land bordering Lake Cumberland and owned by the U. S. Corps of Engineers has been licensed for a 25-year period to the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources for "implementing, operating and managing a wildlife program." Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department, announced today.

This acquisition, Commissioner Clark says, means that the area will be under the jurisdiction of the Department as a public hunting ground and will be managed in a wildlife manner to obtain from these 35,000 acres the optimum of the various species of wildlife native to this section.

Already plans have been made to take over the area with the proper management for grouse, squirrels, quail and deer that are now present on the land, Clark continued, while at the same time regulating a reasonable and safe take of the species by hunters.

Most of the area is in woods and, although the timber rights are retained by the Corps, the Department will mark trees which it deems necessary to maintain wildlife habitat and those trees so marked will be preserved. Also, since some areas are now in second growth timber and have reached the stage that is not conducive to the best wildlife management, the Department plans to sharecrop the areas to create openings for better wildlife conditions. The Department has the right to sharecrop or lease any area it so desires in its overall wildlife plan, in accordance with the Corps policy. Money so derived must be used on the licensed tract in wildlife management program.

Commissioner Clark pointed out that statewide regulations will apply to hunters on the area and no special permit will be required. He also noted that the seasons, in necessary cases, may be regulated to suit the area and wildlife affected. He said that the Department plans to erect signs designating public hunting at various access points.

Although the area is not now suited to waterfowl management because of the great fluctuation of the water level, it is hoped that at some future date aquatic plantings that are feasible for this type shoreline may be possible.

The area will be under the direction of a Department biologist who will, under his project, inventory game from time to time in an effort to determine the type and length seasons that may be dictated. Commissioner Clark said a complete wildlife management plan has been perfected by the Department and will be put into execution as rapidly as possible.

First of Peacetime Vets Get Rehabilitation Aid Under New Legislation

The first of some 2500 Kentucky peacetime veterans with service connected disabilities are undergoing Veterans Administration counseling to avail themselves of rehabilitation benefits offered by a new law.

Public Law 87-815, known as the Peacetime Rehabilitation Law, signed by the President, October 15, provides for education or job training for veterans who sustained disabilities during peacetime military service. Peacetime service for purposes of the new law is the period July 26, 1947 to June 26, 1950, and after February 1, 1955, when the Korean War period ended. Previously, only wartime veterans were eligible for such benefits.

Training may continue until the veteran becomes employable but cannot exceed 48 months.

Olney B. Owen, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office, Louisville, estimates that between 200 and 300 veterans will begin training under the law by next spring.

The law requires VA to evaluate a veteran's potential and counsel him on the most suitable type of rehabilitation training.

Mr. Owen pointed out that veterans who receive future VA peacetime disability ratings will be notified of their possible entitlement to training. Those previously rated disabled should contact the VA Regional Office, 1405 West Broadway, Louisville, Kentucky, in the event they are interested in benefits of the law.

While the law covers all disabled peacetime veterans, it is intended primarily to assist those with pronounced handicaps.

man, both socially and politically, and was a great favorite with all who knew him. He was a liberal contributor to all church and charitable institutions and a friend to the poor and needy.

"In 1848 he married Miss Fannie Sewell, a daughter of Thomas and Joanna Turner Sewell. Thomas Sewell was well-known in Eastern Kentucky for many years as a trader; he was also engaged in merchandising in several of the mountain towns. He had four children, three sons and one daughter. Mrs. Fannie Cockrill, the only one now living. Thomas Sewell was born in 1798, and lived to be eighty-four years old. He began life very poor, leaving his father's home in Virginia when a mere boy. His first occupation was that of selling merchandise. He carried his goods over the country on his back. The country being sparsely settled, and it being a long distance to the towns, this method was a great accommodation to the first settlers. At this employment he made money and afterwards came to Kentucky where he did business on a larger scale, exchanging his merchandise for furs and ginseng, in which the country abounded.

"He was a man of untiring energy, prompt in all his business engagements and honest in all his dealings with men. These characteristics insured him success in all his enterprises and he amassed a considerable fortune before his death, which occurred in 1882. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and his home was a resting place for the weary itinerant preacher. He did business successfully in Breathitt, Lee, Estill and Fayette counties, in each of which he owned property.

"He died at Clay's Ferry, Fayette county, in 1882, in his eighty-fourth year. His remains lie in the cemetery at Lexington, Kentucky. To Mr. and Mrs. Cockrill were born eight children, six of whom are still living, viz: Mary J., Flora, Isabella, Fannie, Horace B. and Harrison who rank among the best citizens of their community. For many years before his death, which occurred April 22, 1876, Mr. Cockrill was a member of the F. & A. M."

For Christmas breakfast, serve cinnamon rolls in the shape of a Christmas tree. Two small rolls can be used for the trunk. Then, starting with four rolls in a row across the bottom of the tree, add a row of three, then a row of two, and put one roll on top. For bright, edible decorations on this "tree," sprinkle with candied fruit immediately after baking.

PEACE AT CHRISTMAS

KY. SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS BACK PRESENT TAX PROGRAM

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 14 (Spl.) — Kentucky's school administrators have pledged full support for the state's present tax structure and say they will oppose any plan to exempt certain items from the sales tax.

At a three-day meeting in Louisville last week the state's 203 school superintendents and other administrative officers, unanimously adopted a resolution backing the tax structure.

Road Engineers
 Study Grants
 Raised At UK

The University of Kentucky scholarship program in highway engineering, sponsored by the State Department of Highways, has been expanded for the 1963-'64 school year.

Freshman scholarships have been increased from 30 to 40, and sophomore scholarships from 15 to 20.

"The increase in this work-study program was prompted by the shortage of qualified engineers in this field," explains Dean R. E. Shaver of the UK College of Engineering. "The state's expanding highway program continually requires more technically trained men than are available."

Freshman scholarships are available to present high school seniors who rank in the upper 40 per cent of their class and who are looking to a career in highway engineering. The University Scholarship Committee will select at least two freshman recipients from each of the 12 highway districts and up to 16 from the state at large.

Sophomore scholarships will be granted to students who have completed the necessary requirements by September to enter the first-semester sophomore program in civil engineering at UK.

Students interested in either the freshman or sophomore scholarships should write Dean Shaver at the UK College of Engineering.

The group also agreed that the office of state superintendent of public instruction should be an appointive rather than an elective office. But they feel the appointment should be made by an elected State Board of Education. Board members are presently appointed.

The group also endorsed resolutions that called for:

1. An expanded adult education program.
2. Continuance of a study currently being made on the subject of merit pay for teachers.
3. Federal aid to education in the form of appropriations for teacher salaries and school construction.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell Butler, discussing the increasing cost of school operations, told the group that to continue the state's Minimum Foundation Program for schools at its present level for the next biennium will cost an additional $20 million.

He said the increased funds will be needed to provide for growth, higher salaries for teachers, and transportation costs.
