This Town... That World

NOTE TO WARREN SCHWEDER, of The Lexington Leader: Rush back to Prestonsburg. We have the word of Tom Leake for it that a certain Prestonsburg businessman is trading food stamps for fishin' worms.

DON'T SHAKE THE FAMILY TREE!

I have never gone in for this hereditary business and coats of arms with those Latin inscriptions for embellishment and the mystification of the ordinary reader. It was just too much trouble. Besides, I've shared with Mark Twain a fear that if I got to backtracking on my ancestors too far I might wind up at the end of a plank and a projecting yard-arm.

And ever since Harry Caudill's book, NIGHT COMES TO THE CUMBERLANDS, got into circulation, I've been downright pleased that I wasn't any more vain about my forebears than they would be of me if they were around to make a proper evaluation of my short-comings.

For this Caudill takes out after some of our "original" families, vows they didn't leave the old ancestral castle for the wilds of Kaintuck or any other part of this New World, for the simple reason that they had no castle, and that their reason for leaving wasn't to seek religious freedom, at all, at all. They left the Old Country, says Caudill, because they were deported, or grew tired of living in the filth of London slums, or were only a jump ahead of the High Sheriff of Nottingham or some other official who wanted them to hold down a cell in debtor's prison for a spell.

And, lo! the Allens in this list of Caudill's almost equalled Aben Adam. We were right up near the top in that department—probably because our competitors weren't too anxious about leading the pack, anyway.

Guilty Plea Result Appealed When Court Imposes Jail Term

Willie "Bear" Little entered a plea of guilty Monday in quarterly court to a charge of possession of intoxicants for the purpose of sale, but when Trial Commissioner Glenn C. Burchett refused to suspend his resultant 30-day jail term the defendant decided to appeal the case to circuit court. The full sentence given Little included a $20 fine, the minimum being assessed because he had pleaded guilty.

Five liquor cases have been docketed for trial in quarterly court Monday, August 26, the County Judge's office said. Defendants and charges on which they will be given trial are:

Ronald Jones, Clarence and Nathaniel Moore, all for possessing for the purpose of sale; Junior Wells, selling, scheduled for second trial after the first resulted in a hung jury; Bennie Branham, whose earlier trial for possessing resulted in jury disagreement.

ASK DAMAGES OF COAL FIRM

Seven Property Owners Allege Company Caused Diversion of Waterway

Seven circuit court suits filed this week by property owners on Spewing Camp fork of Left Beaver Creek seek to recover a total of $149,000 from the Inland Steel Company for alleged damages inflicted upon their lands through mining operations of the firm.

In all, 32 persons are listed as plaintiffs.

Each of the complaints alleges that the company has negligently and carelessly dumped earth, slate, rock and other debris so as to obstruct the flow of the stream, thus causing it to flow onto their land. Plaintiffs contend that, as a result, the land is unfit for use and occupancy.

In each suit a permanent injunction to restrain Inland from further dumping is sought.

The plaintiffs in each case and amounts sought in both general and punitive damages:

Bert and Rattie Dye, $3,000.
Clyde and Evelyn Griffith, $40,000.
Isom and Melodia Hall, $20,000.
Herbert and Sarah Combs, Mary T. Combs, Irvin Combs, Faye Combs, Evelyn and Clyde Griffith, Dorothy and Girdle Moore, $32,000.

WELLS QUILTS STATE POST

Prestonsburg Man, Tax Body Attorney Out As Probe Made

James Milford "Toodles" Wells, of Morehead, formerly of Prestonsburg, last Friday quit the post of state director of probation and parole.

Britton P. Franklin, an attorney for the State Tax Commission, resigned the same day at the request of Governor Bert T. Combs.

The resignations culminated a strange and not fully explained chain of events developing from an investigation instituted by State Police at Frankfort. Mr. Wells himself has not made any official statement.

Governor Combs had made no detailed statement but had commented that Wells had at least used poor judgment.

Wells began his connection with the Division of Probation and Parole during the administration of Ex-Governor A. B. Chandler. He had been a senior investigating officer and was named in June, 1961, to the post which he resigned.

Franklin transferred to the tax-commission post from the Department of Labor July 1, 1962.

Their connection comes from interest that they have in two men involved in a year-old Louisville bank robbery.

Franklin was an attorney for record for Frank O'Dell Gaines, 39, and Kenneth Lee Crady, 39, both of Louisville, when the pair were convicted of conspiracy to receive stolen bank money.

Parole arrangements for the men were made through the office of Wells, as director of probation and parole, and he was identified as having arranged for Frankfort living quarters for them.

The case in its broader aspects began to develop last Thursday night.

The wife of Franklin was arrested on a speeding charge at 7 p.m. east of Frankfort on U.S. 60. A woman identified as Connie Burks, 23, Huntington, West Virginia, riding with her, was charged with parole violation.

Mrs. Franklin said Friday she did not know Miss Burks had a police record or was a parole violator. She said she was driving Miss Burks to the Lexington airport to catch a plane to Huntington, West Virginia, at the request of Wells, and that she was driving Wells' automobile.

She said that she explained this to State Police Detective Oriester Mahoney but was held overnight in the Franklin county jail nevertheless, without privilege of bond or access to a telephone.

A few hours after the arrest of the women, State Police took into custody Charles M. Vinson, Louisia, an employee of the State Department of Revenue, also charging him with speeding.

Vinson was required to open the trunk of his car and explain his acquisition of various articles of clothing and a television set. He was taken to jail on the speeding charge but was freed later after posting appearance bond.

State Police traced the television set through its serial number and (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

BLASTING OF DEPUTY'S AUTO AT HI HAT BEING PROBED

Deputy Sheriff Harold Johnson said this week that he saw in the dynamiting of his automobile before daybreak last Sunday morning retaliation from bootleggers whom he had warned to get out of the business.

(Photo shows part of the damage caused by the blast. Interior of the car was also damaged, and every window in the Johnson home was shattered.)

The officer quoted State Detective Chester D. Potter, who led the investigation of the dynamiting, as estimating that 10 to 12 sticks of dynamite were used. The car was parked in front of the home, about 10 feet from the porch. Force of the blast hurled Mrs. Johnson from her bed onto the floor.

Johnson said he and Deputy Sheriff James Hall had ended their Saturday night patrol and that he had reached home about 2:30 a.m. The explosion came around 4 a.m. "I had just got to sleep," Johnson said.

An automobile, driven at high speed, was seen passing the Johnson residence, shortly before the charge exploded, but officers have not unearthed any definite clues to the identity of those responsible for the dynamiting.

Johnson said he went to every known bootlegger in his area last week and warned them to quit and clear out their stock before Thursday. After that date, he said he told them, he would make every possible raid without exception. "I think that caused the dynamiting," he said here.

COMMISSIONER FIRES HOWARD

Says Former Resident Here Misappropriated Part of Collections

H. K. Howard, 59, of Harlan, former resident of Prestonsburg, was fired last Friday by State Revenue Commissioner Robert D. Bell for alleged misappropriation of public funds.

A brother of the late Orville M. Howard, former state senator and state revenue commissioner, the discharged state revenue investigator formerly was engaged here in the operation of a soft-drink plant and in the insurance business.

Preliminary examination of Howard's accounts by a team of special auditors and investigators disclosed discrepancies totaling $1,720.28, the commissioner said.

Bell has notified the bonding company that provides sureties for all state workers and said all the information he has will be turned over to the attorney general and the commonwealth's attorney of Harlan county.

Bell also ordered held up the July paycheck for Howard, totaling $285.71, and two expense checks due him that total approximately $100.

Bell also directed the special investigators to continue checking all taxpayer accounts handled by Howard in his 3½ years with the department—a task involving some 400 to 600 tax files.

And to make sure that no other discrepancies exist within his department, Bell said he would establish immediately an "internal security" section whose sole duty will be to audit the employees of the Revenue Department.

"This is similar to the system used by the Internal Revenue Service," the commissioner explained. "This division will be completely independent and will report directly to the commissioner."

Further, Bell directed that, starting immediately, no new or prospective employee of the Revenue Department be put on the rolls in tax-sensitive areas without a full security clearance more intensive than normally used for state employees.

The commissioner also ordered all supervisors in the department to make a state-wide check, on a random-sample basis by contacting taxpayers, to make sure that the Howard discrepancies were first suspected as the result of an annual audit of field-agent accounts.

A special investigator discovered, after checking with only two taxpayers, a difference of about $85 in the amount Howard reported he had collected and amounts the taxpayers receipted returns showed they had paid him.

HOUSE PASSES PERKINS BILL

Members Hail Legislation On Vocational Education; Aid To Kentucky Viewed

Last week, the U. S. House of Representatives passed and sent to the Senate the Vocational Education Act of 1963 sponsored by Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Democrat, of the 7th District of Kentucky.

Many members hailed the legislation as the greatest achievement in the field of education since the passage of the Smith-Hughes Act in 1917. There is no question but that Kentucky and other states will have an opportunity to greatly expand vocational education programs to fit young people and adults for employment opportunities.

For vocational education, Kentucky is currently spending approximately $5.7 million, of which about $1.1 million comes from the federal government. In the next four years Kentucky will receive, under the Perkins bill, about $12.1 million federal dollars for its Vocational Education program, $770,000 for the current year, $1,540,000 the second year, $3,060,000 the third year and $6,160,000 for the fourth and subsequent years. These amounts are in addition to the federal funds made available under the Smith-Hughes and George-Barden Acts.

The legislation faced a stiff test in the House of Representatives when the Republican leadership attempted to attach a Civil Rights rider to the bill. This maneuver was defeated, substantially along party lines. When the efforts to attach the Civil Rights rider to the bill failed a Republican motion to recommit the bill to the committee with instructions to include the Civil Rights rider also failed on a roll call vote, 217 to 181.

Under the Perkins Act, federal funds may be used for the first time without limitation on specific vocations so long as job opportunities exist commensurate with the training offered. For example, federal funds cannot now be used for business and office occupations. Yet 15% of the work force today is engaged in this type of activity. Under the new legislation federal funds may be used for this type of training.

Federal funds under the Perkins bill may be used in high school programs, area school programs and junior college and community college programs and funds will be available for both part-time and full-time students.

RIGHT TO INTERVENE GRANTED BY SWINFORD

What may be recognized as one of the most important legal rulings in half a century of coal field litigation and possessing possibilities of shattering effects on strip mining was made by Federal Judge Mac Swinford at Pikeville, Thursday of last week.

Judge Swinford permitted the United States to intervene in U.S. District Court in the case of Elbert Roberts, of Pike county, vs. Twin Fork Coal Company. Roberts seeks to halt strip mining on his surface lands.

Roberts asserts damage by strip mining is a violation of the Fifth and 14th amendments of the U. S. Constitution which provide no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law.

The government moved to enter the case in April, contending in effect that strip mining is destructive to the nation's natural resources.

The government's immediate in-

Work on 9.3-Mile Part Of Road to County Line Expected To Start Soon

Contract for grade, drain and traffic-bound surfacing project on the Salsersville-Prestonsburg road in this county was awarded last Thursday by the Highway Department, Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward announced.

Greer Brothers & Young, Inc., London, submitted the low bid of $1,953,940.17.

The project will begin at the Floyd-Magoffin county line and extend 9.3 miles to near Ky. 404 (the road to David).

This highway improvement is being financed with federal and state road funds.

Work on the project is expected to begin soon. Beginning of construction on this 9.3-mile sector will come as work is being completed from Ky. 404 to Prestonsburg.

Construction of the road to the Floyd-Magoffin line will run into next year. Its completion will leave only a short gap, from the Magoffin line to the end of present construction on Boring Fork, in the Prestonsburg arm of the Mountain Parkway.

FORD NABBED AT RICHMOND

Theft of Money Orders Alleged by Inspectors; Figure in Check Case

While Robert J. (Bobby) Ford, of Auxier, was in the custody of post-office inspectors at Richmond, Kentucky, warrants were being issued here this week, charging him and another Floyd countian, Bobby Mollette, with the theft of checks which were cashed at Prestonsburg stores.

Ford, 32, was arrested in Richmond as he attempted to cash a $90 U. S. government order at a Kroger Store. Postoffice inspectors said the order was one of 105 which were stolen last Thursday from the Sudith postoffice in Menifee county.

Two warrants for the arrest of Ford were issued here by Magistrate Bryant DeRossett, on the statement of Gilbert Adkins, of Salsersville, who alleged theft of checks. A similar warrant was issued by the magistrate for Mollette.

Checks of the Whalen Erecting Company of Ohio, issued to Ford and Mollette, and cashed here, were forgeries, it is claimed. Adkins' name was signed to all three checks. One of the checks, in the amount of $111.35 and endorsed by Ford, was cashed at the D & D Food Market here. One for $117.35, bearing the endorsement of Mollette, and another for $126.26, endorsed by Ford, were cashed at the Kroger Store here. All three checks were on the Salsersville National Bank.

Adkins claimed the checks, which were on a petty cash fund he administered for his company, were stolen. Warrants on the alleged forgeries had not been issued, Wednesday morning, pending further investigation.

This Work Also Needs Doing

Prestonsburg has filed with the Housing & Home Finance Agency applications for grants and loans of funds to do two jobs which are of much importance to the community.

One of the proposed projects is the improvement of streets and sidewalks. The other is a water system improvement to afford better service, greater fire protection and a consequent reduction in fire insurance rates.

It is explained that funds procured for street improvement would include the surfacing of old and broken-down streets, the surfacing of some thoroughfares which now have only a coat of gravel, replacing dilapidated sidewalks with new concrete and providing storm sewers to spare existing streets the heavy load of silt and gravel which is washed down from the roadside at every rain of any consequence.

The water improvement would enlarge lines in the area north of Court street where present lines are too small to carry a volume of water sufficient to meet homeowners' needs and afford fire protection and an economical fire insurance rate. It also would include a second water reservoir in the vicinity of the Prestonsburg Community College.

Not all the money needed for such work can be expected from the federal agency as a gift. Some of it will be the responsibility of Prestonsburg and its people, as it should be. The water system improvement can be financed by an addition of 25 cents to the minimum on water bills. The street improvement financing would be by taxation, based on the value of property.

The water system improvement, it is calculated, would in fact cost nothing, inasmuch as the saving in fire insurance would offset any outlay in the increase of 25 cents on the minimum water bill charge.

The improvements made within the last three or four years, or in the making, astound the visitor to Prestonsburg. We who live here may be losing sight of values as many projects are completed or begun. The community college, a modern highway entering the community from two directions, a splendid new lodge and an amphitheatre at Jenny Wiley State Park, a low-rent housing development nearing completion, a courthouse under construction, and urban renewal well toward realization—all these may be commonplace to us, but to others they mean a miracle of community progress.

With such advances as these, already made or in the making, it becomes more obvious that the job should be finished, and that these other needs should be filled now while federal help is available.

RICE AND BRANHAM RECALL OLD BANK MULE GRID TEAM

(Russell Rice, sports editor of The Lexington Leader, and Estill C. "Eck" Branham, formerly of Prestonsburg, shared reminiscences recently when the subject of Van Lear high school and its "Bank Mules" crept into the conversation at a practice session prior to the East-West All-Star games. Eck coached there; Russell was a student at Van Lear. The following, written by Rice, came out of their do-you-remember parley.—Editor.)

Various coaching assignments and directorship of the East-West All-Star games have brought E. C. "Eck" Branham in close contact with hundreds of ball players, including some of the greatest ever produced in Kentucky.

But etched deepest in his memory is the Eastern Kentucky mining camp of Van Lear, where Eck met a challenge which perhaps helped turn his hair prematurely gray.

He took over the Bank Mules at an inopportune time. The country was on the verge of World War II. Only one of the camp's previously rich mines was running. Football was declining. Basketball was just bouncing off the dirt court and into a small gymnasium which seemed to take the WPA forever to build.

The big football problem was lack of personnel. The new coach dug up rugged timber in boys like "Cow-boy" Blair, who showed up eagerly on game days but liked to remain at the head of No. 5 hollow when school was in session.

There were also a couple of players who went to school daytime, worked in the mine at night and clobbered you on the field in the afternoon.

Others included Bill Ditty, who once kicked a football 70 yards bare-foot but didn't do so well with his shoes on; Hondel Adams, a defensive back who always knocked himself out when he tackled a ball-carrier, and fullback Clyde Groves, who loved to ruin good helmets by meeting defensive men head-on.

Clyde was also the basketball long-shot artist. Many times he would stop at the center circle and loft a rafter-ticking two-bander. Sometimes it went in the basket.

Clyde now lives in Lexington. So do James Earl Dixon, team manager; Frankie Cunningham, safety man, and Mrs. Claude (Eloise Hall) Frady, cheerleader.

Coach Branham asked about these people and many others as he sat at court-side Tuesday in Memorial Coliseum and watched the Commonwealth's finest basketball players go through practice drills.

"I was particularly warned about one mother who would run out on the field and faint if her boy got hurt," he said. "The first time it happened, I put her off the field and told her never to do that again. Thank goodness, she didn't."

Football proved a nightmare of patching up enough boys to finish the schedule. The sport was dropped and the final game forfeited with Prestonsburg, a bitter pill for Branham, who had starred there before enrolling at Western State College.

The basketball quota was easier to fill. But the ranks were depleted when Denver Wells, one of the most natural basketball players and pool shots to ever hit the mountains, decided the Army needed him more than Branham and Van Lear. Oral Trimble, a starting guard, joined the Navy and went down with one of the first ships sunk after the war broke out.

But the Bank Mules struggled through the season, pulling a big upset by defeating hated Paintsville, 19-10, a big score in those days.

Branham asked about a certain center who played for him at Van Lear, but "just decided he didn't want to play" when the Bank Mules met Meade Memorial in the semi-finals of the 59th district tournament in 1941.

"Meade beat us by the same margin they beat Inez in the finals," he said. "But Meade got beat in the regional and Inez went on to win the state championship."

Which is just about as close to glory as the old Bank Mules ever got.

in Eastern Kentucky and Virginia, some of which is subject to strip mining under mineral deeds comparable to those being challenged in Roberts' suit.

2. Its natural concern for conservation of land near property it owns.

3. The government's allegation that the decision in this case will have a direct bearing upon the public policy favoring land stability, protection of streams against pollution and siltation, and the maintenance of aesthetic features of the countryside.

Judge Swinford's ruling had the immediate result of admitting two government documents into the records of the suit.

Both were submitted to the court when the government made its motion in April to enter the case.

The first was a "suggestion of interest" in the suit in which the government presented arguments against strip and auger mining, and outlined methods for restoring land destroyed in surface mining.

The second was a brief of law in which the government cited court cases in Kentucky, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Virginia to support Roberts' claim that the mineral deeds involved in the suit do not give the mining companies the right to strip and auger the surface.

Twin Forks commenced strip mining on Roberts' land under a mineral deed that was used in the mountain coalfields between 1880 and 1910 by speculators and land companies to buy mineral rights.

The deeds split surface rights and mineral rights, leaving land companies in possession of the mineral and property owners in possession of the surface.

Other clauses in the deeds, however, gave the mineral buyers virtually complete use of the surface to obtain the mineral.

The deeds have come in for dispute in recent years with the advent of mountaintop strip and auger mining.

Roberts' position in the suit is that while Twin Fork has the right to mine the coal, it does not have the right to destroy the surface property which belongs to him. He is contending that although the original mineral deeds permit the mining companies to use the surface, they were never intended to permit destruction of another's property.

KENTUCKY BAPTISTS NAME FUND CAMPAIGN LEADERS

V. V. Cooke and Joseph E. Stopher have been named co-chairmen of the $9 million capital funds campaign for higher education in the Kentucky Baptist Convention, it was announced by Convention President E. K. Judy, of Henderson, and Ted C. Gilbert, Louisville, chairman of the Convention's Christian Education Committee.

Judy, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Henderson, in making the announcement, said that the action of the Convention last November authorizing the campaign was the result of more than five years of study and planning which included the services of educational consultants. "It is the desire of Kentucky Baptists," he said, "to offer the youth of our churches and of the state the advantages of Christian higher education on superior academic levels." The studies made, he continued, revealed that new and expanded physical facilities were needed in all seven schools controlled by the Convention and that the campaign will result in the erection of 23 buildings and the renovation and expansion of 13 existing structures on these and seven other non-Baptist college campuses where student centers are located. In addition, boys' and girls' camps will be built at Cedarside, Baptist Assembly near Bagdad.

Originally set at $12 million, the campaign goal was revised downward to the $9 million figure by the Convention's Executive Board in June to preserve the major educational emphasis. Baptist institutions to receive allocations from the capital funds program are four senior colleges: Georgetown, Georgetown; Cumberland, Williamsburg; Campbellsville, Campbellsville, and Kentucky Southern, Louisville; one junior college, Bethel, Hopkinsville; one Bible institute, Clear Creek School, Pineville; and one secondary school, Oneida, Oneida.

Cooke, an outstanding Louisville businessman, has been prominent in denominational and civic life for many years. His personal and philanthropic interests have ranged over a wide area with special emphasis on education. He was one of the founding trustees of Kentucky Southern College and currently serves on its board. Stopher, prominent Louisville attorney, has likewise been active in community and denominational affairs. He is the attorney for the Kentucky Baptist Executive Board and a trustee of Southern Baptist Seminary.

The campaign, which has been named Christian Education Advance, is in its initial phases of organization among the 2,200 churches within the state. It is scheduled to end March 1, 1964.

Research Center Nears Organization, Operation; To Serve Appalachians

CHANGE OF REQUIREMENT
Since the rate of infection of livestock in Floyd, Pike, Knott, and Magoffin counties is low, farmers in these counties will not be required to have their animals tested before bringing them to the County Fair, but they will be inspected before unloading them on the fairground. (This applies only to their home county).

Creation of an educational, technical assistance and research center to deal with the complex economic redevelopment problems of the Appalachian region has moved a step closer to reality.

In a conference last week of federal and state officials, educators and development experts, an executive committee was formed and empowered to obtain a consultant who would organize, charter and place into operation such a facility.

Initial financing of the project will be requested from the Area Redevelopment Administration, ARA Deputy Administrator H. W. Williams indicated at the meeting that ARA would be interested in the new organization.

The Appalachian Center is an outgrowth of initial recommendations and findings of The President's Appalachian Regional Commission, headed by the under secretary of commerce, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., in cooperation with ARA and the Conference of Appalachian Governors, which is headed by West Virginia's Governor W. W. Barron. George Stephens, an aide to Governor Terry Sanford, of North Carolina, was named chairman of the executive committee. He said he would begin immediately to accept nominations for the consultant position.

Thirty Years Ago

(August 11, 1933)

After three days of counting, only a third of the ballots cast in Saturday's primary in this county had been tallied by election officials. Two Floyd county teachers, Seland Cook, 45, and his son, Ralph S. Cook, 21, both teachers in the two-room school on Upper Jack's Creek, are near death in the Methodist hospital, Pikeville, as a result of wounds received when they attempted to whip a student, who allegedly retaliated by shooting his teachers with a shotgun. Henry Wright, 45 years old, was stabbed to death, Saturday, at the voting place on Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek and was Floyd county's only election fatality. Circuit court costs in the 31st district, composed of Floyd and Knott counties, are the highest in the state, Nat B. Sewell, state inspector and examiner, reported last week. Adam Hughes was found Monday night on the railroad tracks at the Porter mining camp of the Wells-Elkhorn Coal Company, seriously wounded from a shotgun charge. Claude Layne, 17, of Wilson's Creek, suffered a serious wound when he accidentally shot himself, Wednesday, while hunting. There died: Mrs. Kate Hale, at her home at Goodloe, Tuesday.

Twenty Years Ago

In Saturday's primary, J. Lyton Donaldson won the Democratic nomination for Governor, and Floyd county's W. H. May, Jr., was nominated the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. . . . Because of the critical shortage of teachers, no leaves of absence will be granted teachers from Floyd schools, this year, the Floyd County Board of Education voted last week. . . . Lon Spradlin, 21, of Bonanza, was instantly killed, Monday night, in a truck-car collision at Lima, Ohio. . . . With the drought in Floyd county growing ever worse and sources of water becoming more scarce, the community of David, this week, was buying water from the Prestonsburg Water & Gas System and having it hauled ten miles by truck. . . . Jack Bannon, 30, of Chillicothe, Ohio, native of Prestonsburg, was one of three soldiers who died from exposure after becoming lost during a six-day endurance test on the wastelands of the Southern California-Arizona desert, near Camp Young. . . . Willis Hicks, of Langley, was reported last week by the War Department as having been killed in action in the European theater. . . . Married: Miss Garnet Faye Banks, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Seaman 2/C James Earl Dixon, of Van Lear, July 3, at Evanston, Illinois. . . . Born: to Pvt. and Mrs. Herbert Preston, twins, John Herbert and Sandra Sue, August 7, at the Prestonsburg General hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Yantis, a son, Frank Stuart, August 3, at Louisville. . . . Gatewood, of Huntington, West Virginia, Thursday, in a Huntington hospital; Fan May, 90, Friday, at her home at Maytown; Mrs. Agnes Scott Calhoun, 63, of Water Gap, Monday, at the Prestonsburg General hospital, of tetanus developing from a splinter wound in her hand; Waleida Smiley, 15, of Prestonsburg, Thursday, at the Martin General hospital; Mrs. Lewis Webb, 59, Friday at her home at Colonial Hollow, near here; Betty Lou Williams, 11 months old, at home at Blue Moon, Monday.

The latest Floyd service men to be released in the Korean war prisoner exchange are Pfc. Fred Obroff, Wheelwright, and Cpl. Fred Harper, of Wayland. . . . said they learned Friday that it had been stolen July 25 in Louisville. Vinson said he had no reason to believe that the set was stolen. Franklin said his recollection was that Vinson bought the set from Gaines and that it might have been transferred from Gaines' car to his (Franklin's) before it was moved to Vinson's car.

Vinson declined to comment except to say that the purchase was not made from Gaines. He said he met Gaines for the first time late Thursday night at a tavern in Franklin county.

Franklin said he assumed that State Police were watching when the set was moved from car to car at Thistleton Terrace, a Frankfort apartment development.

Thistleton Terrace is the address of Wells, Miss Burks, Gaines and Crady.

Revenue Commissioner Robert Bell said Friday that he asked for the resignation of Franklin because he considered Franklin's representation of Gaines and Crady incompatible with his job fulltime as attorney for the Kentucky Tax Commission.

Franklin said he had permission from former Revenue Commissioner James V. Marcum to serve his clients and from Bell, Marcum's successor, to keep the case.

Bell said he was unaware of the identity of Franklin's clients and did not know they were involved in a complicated federal case that might require much effort and time.

Miss Burks remained in custody Friday, charged with parole violation, but Franklin said he was notified by the Huntington, West Virginia, parole office late Friday that no "hold" order had been issued for her by that office.

Mrs. Franklin was released Friday morning and her trial on the speeding charge was set for August 26.

Bell said that no thought had been given to action against Vinson. He said Vinson's character led him to believe that the television set was bought innocently and that Vinson was cooperating with investigators.

Gaines, Crady and Mrs. Barbara Cain Byrd, 32, Louisville, each received five-year prison sentences in Federal District Court at Louisville, October 20, 1962.

The trio, and Edward Hanna, 43, Louisville, were arrested in Nashville, September 11, 1962, the day after the 7th and Hill branch of Liberty National Bank & Trust Company was robbed. Found in a white bag belonging to Mrs. Byrd was $4,480, of which $500 was identified as being part of the bank loot.

Conspiracy charges against Hanna were dismissed. He was the only defendant to testify.

Mrs. Byrd, who has said that is not her real name, said in court that she did not know John DeJarnette, the man identified as the actual robber of the bank.

Gaines and Crady won release on $10,000 bonds pending appeal of the convictions.

Franklin said the pair voluntarily agreed to submit to parole jurisdiction in Kentucky although they were not required to. He said the jurisdiction was first placed with the Louisville parole office, but that the men were subjected to too much harassment when crimes were committed there. Arrangements were made through Wells to transfer the jurisdiction to Frankfort, and the men soon became neighbors of Wells.

West Virginian Heading Company Holding Leases On Coal Lands Victim

One of two West Virginians killed in a plane crash Saturday near the Martinsburg, W. Va. airport was the head of a company which holds a lease on approximately 2,400 acres of coal lands, a short distance below Dewey Dam.

The coal group leader who was killed was Eugene Frederick, 49, who was chairman of the West Virginia Racing Commission. Killed with him was West Virginia State Fire Marshal Basil E. Wright, 55, pilot of the plane.

Immediate mining of the coal below Dewey Dam was planned, a year or more ago, by the group headed by Frederick, but it was said that recurring labor troubles discouraged the operation. It was thought, however, that the delay was considered only temporary and that the company proposed an operation of such magnitude that 19,000,000 tons of coal would be mined in 10 years.

Teamsters Union Seeks Contract With Quarries; Tractors Here Involved

The Teamsters Union will seek to negotiate a contract with two firms at West Liberty for quarry workers and independent-truck drivers, Jesse Webster, president of Local 779, Lexington, said Wednesday.

Webster said he would seek to open negotiations in a letter to the companies—Kentucky Road Oiling Company and Licking Road Valley Limestone Company. Both operate quarries at West Liberty.

If the firms refuse to negotiate, the Teamsters will petition for an election through the National Labor Relations Board, he said.

Webster's comments came during a meeting with 50 contract truckers and employees of the firms. He said about 70 have signed up with his union.

There are about 150 truckers and quarry workers in Morgan, Magoffin, and Breathitt counties, who would presumably be eligible to participate in an N. L. R. B. election.

If the Teamsters are successful in organizing them, it would be the first major breakthrough for this union in this Eastern Kentucky region where there are a large number of truckers in the quarry and coal industries.

Webster emphasized the union had called no strike. He said the truckers and quarry workers had asked the union to represent them.

Labor-management unrest broke out in the area last week. It was sparked by a protest from the independent truckers who haul paving aggregate from the two firms to various State projects in the area.

Webster did not indicate what wage demands will be made to the companies. Holbrook said the truckers are seeking a set ton-per-mile hauling rate. Which will assure them a "decent living."

Holbrook said most of the drivers were being paid $1.90 a ton to haul rock on a 116-mile round trip from the quarries to Prestonsburg. He said the trucks all had a eight-ton load limit.

"These men can't even make enough money to pay their truck payments and eat at these wages," he said.

Earlier Wednesday the workers met with a representative of the State Department of Labor. He said the department cannot force the firms to pay prevailing wage rates because the truckers are independent contractors and not employees.

Oh, well! The cow does not make the friar, as they say. We liked it here, to start with, probably because the hunting and fishin' was good, and we did a fair job of staying. I'm not going to take a cold trail and try to learn why it was we liked hunting dogs and the wilderness silences so much. Maybe it was because we found a hound better company than most of the people we had been associating with. Whatever the deep yearnings or ancient rebellions that beset us, they were there. One of our "set" refused to trade his rifle gun and hound dog, I am informed, for a long branch of many acres, fine timber and rich deposits of coal, with maybe a little gas and oil about which he knew nothing just waiting for him to start spudding.
I don't want to get serious about this matter, for the simple reason that it isn't worth it, but I would add that a number of those women and men who went ahead were of God's nobility and left a rich heritage. Some of the others I'm willing to let rest, as little disturbed as possible.
We were not the creme de la creme of Merrie England, I fear—but we got away, didn't we?

Childress explained the mode of operation this way:
Field investigators personally contact taxpayers who are delinquent in the payment of their sales, income or other taxes. Their job is to collect the money for the state.
Field agents have receipt books containing an original and carbon copy. When money is collected, the original is given to the taxpayer and the copy is sent to Frankfort along with the money that is collected.
In more than 40 tax files checked so far, Childress said, Howard failed to give the taxpayers the original receipt. Instead, he wrote "paid" and signed his name to their tax returns.
The duplicate receipts, meanwhile, recorded sums lower than amounts shown on the receipted tax returns. These sums ranged from $2 to $9 per return, Childress said.
Childress said some 45 tax files of cases handled by Howard had been examined, with some 400 to 600 more yet to be checked.

TWO CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS PLANNED

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 5—The attorney general's office Monday drew up the language of two constitutional amendments that will be on the November ballot.
This was in answer to a formal request by Secretary of State Henry Carter.
He must certify the questions to go on the ballots to all County clerks by September 17 and must publish both questions at least four times in two newspapers of general circulation.
In essence, one proposed amendment lifts the restriction on certain state salaries and the other makes it easier to amend or rewrite the state Constitution.
But unless the voter knows something of the background, the proposals on the ballot might not be clear.

PROBE THREAT IN BREATHITT

Made by Allie Watkins; Superintendent Denies Records Access, Charged

A Breathitt county lawyer said Tuesday he intends to make a thorough investigation of the financial records of the Breathitt county school system.
The probe was promised by Allie Y. Watkins, of Quicksand, after he was told by the attorney general's office that he may inspect the records.
Watkins is a former county attorney for Breathitt. He served three terms, first taking office in 1950.
Watkins said he had twice been denied permission to inspect the records by Mrs. Marie Turner, superintendent of the county school system.
"Armed with that opinion, I intend to ask her again to see them," he added. Watkins charged that Mrs. Turner has treated the Breathitt county schools as her own private bailiwick.
He said that office space rented by the Board of Education in Jackson is in a building owned by Mrs. Turner. He also asserted that she or "some other member of her immediate family" is renting other property to the County school system.
His effort to see the records came shortly after taking office in 1950, he said. He added that the system was then publishing a resume of its financial activities instead of a full financial statement.
"It was like saying we got a million dollars and we spent a million dollars," he added.
But Mrs. Turner turned him down then and on another specific occasion when he asked to see the records, Watkins added.
"She's had full sway over the county school system for over 30 years, dominated the board, and also been secretary-treasurer of it," Watkins said.
"She's had her own private little accounting system, and never been made accountable to the public."
At Frankfort, Assistant Attorney General Ray Corns said that citizens and taxpayers could legally inspect the records at a reasonable time and place.
He said the Court of Appeals has ruled that all financial records required by statute to be kept in books are to be considered public records, and that any interest in them is presumed.

Concrete for Kentucky Interstate highways is saving millions of dollars in future expenditures

With all its advantages of long life and low maintenance cost, concrete costs no more to build than asphalt on Interstate highways. Construction costs for the two pavements are virtually equal. And remember, on every mile of Interstate highway, the Federal Government pays 90 percent of the construction cost, the State pays 10 percent. Kentucky, in selecting modern concrete pavement, is building a network of super-highways that is equal to any in the nation. The big savings come in upkeep. Once these highways are built, Kentucky will pay 100 percent of all resurfacing costs as well as routine maintenance. Performance studies on concrete highways prove concrete will need no significant upkeep for decades. These same studies show asphalt highways in Kentucky require not only continuing maintenance, but complete resurfacing 8 to 12 years after they are built. To resurface just one mile of Interstate highway with a two-inch layer of asphalt will cost about $24,000. That is as much as Kentucky's 10 percent share of the cost of building it in the first place. With approximately 1,000 miles of Interstate highways and turnpikes to be completed in the next 10 years, the resurfacing dollars saved with concrete will be an important contribution to the modernization of the farm to market roads.

FIRST COST SAVINGS WITH CONCRETE ON KENTUCKY I-75
Mileage awarded	Average paving cost per mile
Asphalt 9.9 mi.	$245,500
Concrete 78.7 mi.	241,100

SAFETY IN STATE MINES PROMOTED

Preparing For Mine Foreman Exam

FREE PREPARATORY CLASSES for coal miners wanting to take the mine foreman examination given by the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals cover such subjects as ventilation, explosives, mine gasses, and first aid. Instructor here is Willard Stanley, senior State mine inspector of the Martin District. The 60-hour course prepares miners to take the test for certification as a mine foreman. Classes are held at night.

Frankfort, Ky., August 12 (Sp.)—With the tags of "labor violence," "depressed area" and "a dying industry" hanging like an albatross around the neck of Eastern Kentucky's coal fields, a quiet but determined bootstrap operation by one state agency is busy ignoring the crepe hangers and laying a solid foundation for safe and economical mining in the future.

Operating on the premise that improvement must come from within, the State Department of Mines and Minerals is using its statutory licensing powers to bring the message of safety and good mining practices right down to the men who dig the coal.

Along with its other duties, the department is charged with certifying mine foremen, firebosses (men who check for fire and explosion hazards in mines), and various machine operators. It also makes up the tests for these positions, and by controlling the quality of the tests, exercises some control over the quality of men occupying supervisory positions.

For example, a man seeking a first class mine foreman's license must score 85 or better on each section of an eight-part, 325-question written exam covering all phases of coal mining operations. He must also pass an oral exam and demonstrate his ability to assemble and use a flame safety lamp, conduct tests for the presence of dangerous mine gasses, and use an anemometer (wind velocity gauge) and plot maps to properly ventilate a mine.

Men who take this exam usually have one word to describe it: "Rough." Yet three-fourths of the applicants eventually pass the test and go on to hold responsible supervisory positions. One reason for the high rate of survival in this rigorous program is the determination of the men themselves. Another is the unique preparatory classes conducted in each district by Department of Mines and Minerals inspectors.

These classes are not mandatory; they're offered free to anyone wanting to prepare for the test, and the cost is a nominal $2 for a textbook published by the Kentucky Mining Institute. Sessions are held in the evening so they won't interfere with regular working hours of the miners.

And the inspectors donate their own time—usually two nights a week—to instruct the 60-hour course. Inspectors who aren't teaching usually show up at the classes anyway to offer help and encouragement to men they have enrolled in the course.

Subject material in these classes gets pretty heavy for men who average educational level is eighth grade. It delves into physics, chemistry and a smattering of geometry and algebra. The eight areas covered in the mine foreman's course are mining law, ventilation, mine gasses, mining apparatus, electricity, general mining practices, explosives and first aid.

Each section of the test is considered separately, and if a man fails one or two parts of the test, he can come back and be re-tested on those subjects only. Some applicants have returned as many as five and six times before finally receiving their certificates.

The tests are normally held eight or nine times a year at different points around the state so the men won't have to take too much time off from work or travel too far to participate. Last year the department issued 69 first-class and 26 second-class mine foreman certificates. The difference in the two is primarily in the type of mine supervised and is based on test scores. So far in 1963, 52 first-class and 10 second-class certificates have been issued. Three more exams are scheduled this year.

The man behind this from-the-bottom-up educational program is Mines and Minerals Commissioner A. H. Mandt, a soft-spoken, determined veteran of 40 years in the coal fields. Regarded by the industry as a "safety nut," Mandt had lived with the problem as a coal miner, and a mine operator before taking over the reins of the state agency in 1960.

Since then he has instituted reforms, toughened safety requirements, and initiated new inspection procedures for the 2,700 coal mines under this department's jurisdiction. These efforts bore fruit in 1962 when Kentucky posted its best safety record in 83 years and drew nationwide acclaim for its educational and safety programs.

"We believe that a safe mine is a producing mine," Mandt said. "The time lost from accidents and the correction of dangerous conditions can be fatal to a close-margin business like coal mining. With the changes taking place in the industry (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

Your Telephone Manager

IF YOU'RE A DOODLER, be careful of the kind of scribbles you leave around while making phone calls. You may give away some personal secrets. According to psychologists, if you doodle animals or birds, you're affectionate and understanding. Squares and checks show logic and emotional stability. Circles mean you're a daydreamer; stairsteps mean you're ambitious.

THIS IS THE NEW TOUCH TONE PHONE . . . with buttons instead of a dial, and musical tones for each signal sent! The new phone has undergone two years of testing, and users are so enthusiastic it will be introduced to the public on a limited basis some time in the next couple of years. One of its chief advantages is faster dialing . . . as one test-user said, "It's like magic!" The Touch Tone Phone—another result of continuing Bell System research and development.

FROM LUXURY TO NECESSITY . . . that's the kind of progress your telephone has made. Back in the late 1800's when telephones were first coming into use, a phone call anywhere at all was a big event! Today, phone calls are as much a part of life as going to work in the morning, or sending the children off to school. A telephone call is no longer a major project! It's simply an easy, pleasant, low-cost way to get things done, keep friendships warm, stay in touch with the world. Use your telephone . . . for all it's worth.

TEEN-AGERS ARE SPECIAL PEOPLE! (Any one of them will be glad to tell you so!) They have special problems and needs and likes and dislikes. If you have teens in your house, why not consider giving them the privacy and sense of importance provided by an extension phone of their very own. It'll be good for them, and for the rest of the family, too.

A TIMES WANT AD GETS AMAZING RESULTS!

COMBS GIVES EDUCATION AID

Cutback of Program Prevented by Action; Other Allocations Made

Frankfort, Ky., August 2—Governor Bert Combs provided $752,885 from his contingency fund Friday to avoid any cutback in the state's minimum foundation education program for this fiscal year.

An Education Department official said the allocation was necessary because the 1962 Legislature's appropriation for the 1963-1964 fiscal year was not enough.

Combs said his allocation would fully finance the program for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The 1962 Legislature appropriated $112,327,879 to finance the minimum foundation program for this fiscal year. A total of $108,729,457 was appropriated for the last fiscal year.

Budget Director Robert Cornett said the Governor's allocation would meet shortcomings in the program for the two years.

Had the Governor not made the allocation, local school districts would have been faced with a proportionate reduction in state aid.

Two reasons were given for the need for additional funds—a Court of Appeals decision several years ago and a record number of teachers who qualified for increases in pay because of additional education.

The court decision led to a reduction of local school revenue. It held that property of public service companies should not be assessed at higher rates than that of other property owners.

The minimum foundation program is based on local effort. A local school district gets state aid for what it cannot pay through local effort. The local effort is calculated by formula.

The Governor also announced six other allocations from his contingency fund:

Kentucky Educational Television Authority, $50,000 for operating expenses in 1963-1964. This amount, plus $15,000 from the Education Department, gives the authority necessary funds to operate.

Commission on Human Rights, $15,000 for operating expenses, with a portion to be used for an additional field man.

Health Department, $14,000 for establishing an alcoholic clinic at Louisville. It is contingent on the City of Louisville matching that amount. Jefferson county has allocated its $14,000 share.

Commission for Handicapped Children, $5,000 for indigent patients being sent to Jewish Home for Convalescent Children in Louisville.

Athletic Control Board, $2,000 for general operations.

State Blanket Employee Surety Bond, $1,700 to cover cost of changes in insurance for bonding state employees.

MSC Classroom Named For Governor Combs; To Serve Multi-Purpose

Morehead, Ky., August 10 (Spl.)—The largest classroom on the Morehead State College campus has been named the Bert T. Combs Classroom Building. The four-story, completely air-conditioned structure was named for Governor Combs by the Morehead Board of Regents at a regular meeting on March 12, 1962. But Combs requested that the announcement be made at a date nearer the end of his four-year term as chief executive of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Calling the naming of the structure for Combs "only a small taken of appreciation for his efforts on behalf of education in Kentucky," the Board of Regents has continued its policy of naming structures on the campus for persons who have made significant contributions to Morehead State College.

The building, which was occupied in the fall of 1961, houses the Division of Languages and Literature and the areas of business administration, speech, drama and special education. The Little Theatre is located in the building and numerous regional conferences are held in the building's conference rooms.

Two of the outstanding features of the structure are the large number of faculty office suites and the multi-purpose classrooms.

What's Going On in FISH & WILDLIFE

by MINOR CLARK, Commissioner
Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources

It's pretty difficult to predict with a great deal of accuracy the population of a given species of wildlife at a given time. Therefore, we know when we flatly forecast a great increase in the rabbit population come hunting time this fall we are leaving ourselves wide open for error.

But, nevertheless, such glowing reports have been heard from the field—from the biologists through the rural mail carriers; from the district supervisors; from conservation officers and from the farmers themselves, that we are predicting a great increase in the rabbit population this fall.

As of this writing all indications are for a much larger crop. This could be changed, however, by unfavorable weather conditions prior to the hunting season or by a disease of epidemic proportions. We believe that the likelihood of disease is very remote due to the healthy condition of the rabbits right now and the danger of enough bad weather to cripple the young crop of rabbits, which now is well on its way to maturity, seems slight. Therefore, our prediction:

This opinion is based on sound and simple logic. There are more young rabbits than for several years and there should be more mature ones.

And how do we know that there are more? This one instance should convince. Rural mail carriers, driving a certain number of miles over designated routes throughout Kentucky, sighted almost 24 per cent more young rabbits this past June than they saw last year, during the same days over the same routes. This survey was conducted under the direction of game biologists who tabulated the figures submitted by the mail carriers. If further proof is needed, the nine wildlife regional supervisors reported good to outstanding rabbit outlooks in their sections. Not one said the crop appeared to be smaller than for last season and one said indications were that the crop was the best for several years. Furthermore, conservation officers say, almost without exception, they are sighting an increased crop of young rabbits and farmers at random report the same findings. Therefore, we guess that rabbit hunters are going to have a fine season this year.
