This Town... That World

IT'S A GOOD WORD
I get some things that are worth my time from television. For instance: The other night, this old clan leader on "Rawhide" used an expression which took me 'way, 'way back. He referred to the heroine's travelling bag as a go-satchel.

SHE STUCK IT OUT
This reminds me of the woman who fell asleep during one of these "really worthwhile" programs a lot of people felt obliged to watch. She awoke with a start to inquire, "Is the program over?" Told that it was, she remarked, "Well, I can go to bed now."

A MATTER OF ORTHOGRAPHY
Maybe I shouldn't go to mentioning politics and political figures, but I have the word of Pauline Burchett that, day after the election, when she gave her class a spelling test and "gave out" the word, "none," among others, eight of the 30 in the class wrote it, "nun."

IN THE MAIL
In the mail comes a king-size card from Paul C. Linkous, of Wheelwright, who seems to be gadding about, down at Boyce, Louisiana. Says he: "Plenty of fish but not much water."

JEREMIAH
You should let this fishing matter go with that, but this is a topic which brings out the worst (prose) in me. Last week, my two sons made merry with the fish at Dewey Lake on four consecutive afternoon trips; caught, I believe, 23 black and white bass and a couple of crappie. So their old man hastens to get in on the fun. Fishes most of the day, watches his partner land five small ones and winds up the day with two strikes—strikes, not fish, mind you!—and a crick in his back. Boy, am I a Jonah! Next day the fish-catchin' duo of the family go back, and, lo! they, too, return empty-handed and almost as dour as the guy they laughed at.

DEAR DEER!
That's the way things have a way of going for some people. I've known fellows to spend themselves blind, freeze themselves to death and almost wind up in the divorce courts, trying to bag a deer, and come home with nothing but a lot of lame excuses. Then here comes Bruce Conley, of Prestonsburg, a week or so back, with deer-hunting farthest from his mind—and he downs a 12-point buck which leaped onto a Magoffin county highway, squarely in (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

Sight of Former Wayland Miner Restored by Lions Club Effort; Surgery Performed At Louisville

Tommy Vinson, a former Wayland miner in his early fifties, who had been partially blind for 10 years and totally so for a year, has had his sight restored through the interest of the Prestonsburg Lions Club and the facilities of the Lions Eye Foundation and the Louisville General hospital.
Mr. Vinson submitted to surgery at the Louisville hospital Nov. 8 and successful. He has returned home and with the use of glasses, made at cost by Dr. H. E. Midkiff, leads a normal life, it is said by Richard

AREA INTEREST RISES IN FEDERAL PROJECTS

PERKINS SEES EARLY START ON DREDGING

Congressman Suggests Landowners Give Rights To Expedite Control Job

Interest in flood control and water resources development projects, which will be among the topics discussed Friday at the hearing to be held by the U. S. Corps of Engineers at Pikeville high school, is gratifyingly high, Congressman Carl D. Perkins said Tuesday afternoon.
Perkins saw evidence of this interest in the appearance with him and other members of the Kentucky Congressional delegation before the Bureau of the Budget Tuesday morning of upwards of a dozen Floyd countians. Last week's meeting at Martin of interested leaders and citizens, preparatory to the Pikeville hearing, also was indicative of the mood of the people, he said.
Congressman Perkins predicted that no project will take precedence over the dredging and stream-widening planned at Martin. "I wouldn't prophesy work in 60 days, or in 90 days, but I will say it's pretty much a certainty," he said.
He suggested that if landowners on both sides of streams scheduled for such improvement will sign easements, giving right-of-way for the improvement without cost to the federal government, the beginning of work will be expedited. This is being done at Hindman, it was learned here.

The Pikeville meeting, according to the original announcement made by the district office, Corps of Engineers, Huntington, West Virginia, will convene at 1 p.m.

JUDGE ORDERS RATES RAISED

Martin City Water Cost Increased 30 Percent; Interest Pay Defaulted

Water rates in the city of Martin were increased 30% by order of Special Judge Jim Sowards last Thursday at conclusion of trial of a suit filed to provide sufficient funds to pay interest and principal on $71,000 worth of bonds issued to finance parking facilities there.
The original action was filed in October, 1962, by D. P. Newell, the First Guaranty Bank and Lawrence Keathley against the City of Martin, its Board of Water Commissioners, Mayor Haskel Frye, Sr., and the First National Bank. The plaintiffs alleged that they were purchasers of $71,000 worth of 5% water and parking facilities bonds on which due interest was defaulted October 1, 1962.
The suit asked that a receiver be appointed to administer the parking system, with authority to charge and collect rates and fees sufficient to pay interest and principal of bonds and to bear operating expenses. It also asked that the City of Martin and its water commission be mandamused to increase, forthwith, water rates sufficiently to net enough additional reserves to pay the interest on the bonds and to create a sinking fund for payment of the principal when due.
Judge Sowards held that the evidence "conclusively establishes, and the parties apparently agree, that an increase of 30% in the existing water rates charged by the Martin Water Works is necessary to eliminate the default, bring the bonds current and meet bond requirements for the next few years."

ROAD MISHAP KILLS FRIEND

Deputy U. S. Marshal, Woman Prisoner Victims Near Barbourville, Ky.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Noah R. Friend, 49, of Pikeville, and a woman-prisoner, Mrs. Electra Vargo, 59, of Smith, Kentucky, were killed Wednesday of last week, in a collision near Barbourville which involved four automobiles and a truck.
A woman deputy marshal, Mrs. Margaret Gilliam, 49, of Lexington, and Mrs. Anna M. Lay, Totz, Kentucky, were hospitalized at London.
Deputy Marshal Friend was a cousin of Frank and Charles Friend, Jr., of Prestonsburg.
Friend and his passengers were on their way from court in London to the Bell county jail in Pineville when, State police said, Friend's car struck the rear of a truck which stopped on U. S. 25-E to make a left turn. Three following cars then crashed, one into the other.
Deputy U. S. Marshal Archie Kraft said Mrs. Vargo had been convicted on bootlegging charges and Mrs. Lay of irregularities while post-

Registration Books Open Clerk Says; Eligibility Of Voters Is Announced

County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson Said This Week That The Voters' Registration Books Are Now Open And Will Remain So Until 59 Days Prior To The 1964 Primary Election.

Persons who have never registered or who will be 18 years of age by the November, 1964, election are eligible to register.
Robinson also pointed out that those who have moved to another precinct and have resided there 60 days may transfer their registration to their new precinct and that any woman who has married recently must re-register under her married name. He said inquiries as to voting status may be made by calling the Clerk's office.

PERKINS ASKS FEDERAL AID

For Flood Control Work; Dredging and Cleaning Of Streams Is Desired

More than $100 million in federal funds were asked by Congressman Carl D. Perkins Tuesday for flood control projects in the Seventh Congressional district.

Perkins, appearing with other members of the Kentucky delegation before the Bureau of the Budget in Washington, urged the program to construct flood control reservoirs on the Big Sandy, Little Sandy, Licking and Kentucky river basins be accelerated by funds included in the President's budget for the coming fiscal year.

Included in the Perkins request was $25 million for construction of Fishtrap Reservoir, $5 million for the construction of Cave Run Reservoir, $5.9 million to complete construction of the John Flannagan Reservoir, $3.7 million to complete construction on North Fork of the Pound Reservoir, $5 million for Carrs Fork Reservoir in the Upper Kentucky River and $75,000 for pre-construction planning on the Kinniconick Creek Reservoir, $92,500 for Walkers Creek Reservoir to complete the study, $10 million to continue construction on the Grayson Reservoir, $1,500,000 for construction of Red River Reservoir.

In addition Perkins urged a minimum of $50 million to enable the Corps of Engineers to do cleaning and dredging work to deepen and widen channels of many streams and tributaries in the Seventh Congressional district during the coming fiscal year. Perkins said such work should be a continuation of the emergency channel improvement to be undertaken by the Corps of Engineers in Eastern Kentucky at the present time. Perkins said that the funds were desperately needed to carry on stream improvement work by the Corps on such Big Sandy creeks and tributaries as Right and Left Beaver Creek, Levisa Fork, Tug Fork,

Junior Woman's Club Sponsoring Parade and Snow Queen Contest To Inaugurate 1963 Yule Season

The Christmas season again this year will be opened in Prestonsburg with the Christmas parade sponsored by the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club with the cooperation of five other local groups.
The parade has been set for November 30 at 2 p.m. The event was initiated last year by the Junior Woman's Club.

The 1963 Miss Snow Queen beauty pageant will be held at 1 p.m. at the Prestonsburg grade school. Judges will make their selection at that time but the name of the new Snow Queen will not be announced until after the parade.

COAL CHUTE IS BLASTED

Turkey-Cr. Installation Hit by Dynamite; Three Jailed On Break Charge

Sheriff Henry C. Hale flew Tuesday to Dayton, Tennessee, where he purchased a bloodhound for use in trailing fugitive lawbreakers.

Sheriff Hale made the purchase after the Monday night dynamiting of a coal chute on Turkey Creek was reported. "If we had had this dog, we could have found the guilty person without any trouble, for there were plenty of tracks," he commented.

He added that he was "tired of fooling around with these fellows." The dynamited chute was operated by Roy Hicks and Bill Stone. It was emphasized that the blast was not the result of a labor dispute and that no labor relations problem was involved.

Suspects are being checked. "I think we know who did it," was one comment made Wednesday.

The damage to the chute was not extensive, it was said.
Three Perry county men were jailed here Saturday on breaking and entering charges and later were also booked on the charge of possessing burglary tools. They are Carson and Carl Hunt and Garnie Watts. A fourth man, Elbert Fugate, for whom warrants covering the same counts have been issued, is being sought.

The four are accused of breaking into an explosives magazine near Allen of the Sandy Valley Explosives Company. The three men in jail were arrested by State Detective Chester D. Potter and State Troopers Elmo Allen and Larry Hutton.

Others jailed within the week: Jimmie Lee Ray and Shirley Newsome, both arrested by State Trooper Don Goble on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without an operator's license; Jimmie Ray, drunk driving, booked by Constable Gillis Com, of District 4; Eugene
(See Story No. 4, Page 8)

Coronation of the new Queen will be held at the Floyd County Library entrance, with Miss Sharon Frye, of Martin, the current Miss Snow Queen, crowning her successor.
Mrs. James D. Adams is in charge of the Miss Snow Queen contest.

Mrs. Clifford B. Latta, president of the Junior Woman's Club, said that all Prestonsburg clubs are joining in making this year's event larger than last year's. In 1962 the Junior Woman's Club built five floats, and local merchants sponsored them. This year, the following groups plan to build their own floats: Prestonsburg Senior Woman's Club, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Junior Woman's Club and Mrs. Virgil Goble's Girl Scout troop.

In the parade will be the six floats, gaily decorated convertibles and school bands. The Boy Scout troop led by E. B. May, Jr. will place the community Christmas tree near the Allen-Weddington building on Court street.
Following the parade and the coronation of the 1963 Miss Snow Queen, Santa will arrive to pass out candy to all children present.

WEEK MARKED BY ACCIDENTS

Leon Daniels Wounded By Shotgun; Gibson Car Plunges Into Big Sandy

The week was marked by accidents in this county, but none has resulted in death, it was said Wednesday.

On Marine Corps furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Serge Daniels, of Garrett, Leon Daniels lost a hand last Friday when he accidentally discharged a shotgun. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Huntington.

Edmund Gibson, of Lancer, rode out the wreck of his car, which carried him Tuesday morning from U. S. 23 into the Big Sandy, near the new bridge at Knotley Hollow. He suffered a cut forehead. Mr. Gibson had not recovered from an earlier back injury when the wreck occurred. He was taken to the Prestonsburg General hospital.

A truck loaded with scrap-iron left the narrow Allen-Bull Creek road, near Dvale, Tuesday morning, hospitalizing Ned Turner, of the Hazard area, owner of the truck. The truck struck a tree, dumping its load over the mountainside and throwing Turner and the truck-driver clear of the wreck. Turner was taken

ALLEN IS NEW EKEA LEADER

Prestonsburg Principal Succeeds Walton Jones; Meet Held In Ashland

Woodrow Allen, principal of Prestonsburg high school, last Friday became president of the Eastern Kentucky Education Association, succeeding Walton Jones of Morgan county.

Mr. Allen was elected to head EKEA at last year's annual meeting in Ashland.

Mrs. Hazel Kitchen, elementary teacher from Pike county, was named president-elect of the EKEA, breaking a five-year reign of male administrators. She will not assume office till next year.
Miss Mildred Bane, Mason county elementary teacher, was elected vice-president. Election of the two women marks the first time women have held elective offices in the association since 1958, and they are the first classroom teachers to do so since 1950.

The two women defeated Raymond Benton, outgoing vice-president, and Oran Teater, Paintsville city superintendent. The men were running as a slate.

Arnold Roberts, Pike county elementary teacher, and Nelson Allen, Russell Central principal, were unopposed for four-year terms as EKEA directors.

Russell Goble, Inez, treasurer of the Martin county board, was unopposed as a member of the nominating committee of the state Teacher Retirement System.

William P. Eldson, Boyd county superintendent, and Paul Trimble, Paintsville principal, were selected as NEA delegates. Howard "Jake" Bowling, Raceland principal, and T. N. McCoy, Catlettsburg superintendent, were unopposed as alternates.

Dr. Harry Sparks, newly elected superintendent-elect of public instruction, addressed Friday morning's assembly, advising educators to keep Kentucky education on the move and avoiding a disastrous return to the "good old days."

The educator said continuity of (See Story No. 3, Page 8)

KEA Designates Nov. 29 To Gov. Bert Combs; Frankfort Ceremony Set

The board of directors of the Kentucky Education Association has designated Friday, November 29, as Thank You, Bert Combs Day, it was announced Wednesday by Mrs. Roberta Davidson, president of the Floyd County Teachers Association. Appropriate ceremonies will be conducted on that day at 2 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, in the legislative hall at Frankfort.

The Floyd County Teachers Association urges all teachers and friends of Governor Combs to attend.

LEFT BEAVER TRACT BOUGHT FOR SCHOOL

Printer Youth Seeks $105,000 of Railway;

A total of $105,000 damages and hospital expense is asked in a suit filed Monday in circuit court against the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company and three of its employees by a Floyd county youth who was hit last year by a train, near Printer on Left Beaver Creek.

The suit was filed by Eddie Dean Stone, by and in the name of his father, Alec Stone. Rail employees named are Kenneth Webb, Hubert Ousley and Leon Hall. Negligence on the part of the defendants is alleged.

ALLEN BRIDGE WILL REOPEN

Repair Job Began Nov. 6 On Sandy Span; Work Involved Traffic Changes

The town of Allen, both sides of it, Old and New, looks toward Thanksgiving just a bit more thankfully than usual, and just about everybody else joins the community in that spirit.

For the bridge there, which has been closed to heavy traffic for weeks and to traffic of whatsoever kind since repair work was begun on it November 6, will be open to traffic this week-end.

The span was put out of commission when a crane of the H. B. Ranier Construction Company struck the superstructure, severely weakening it. All traffic except passenger cars and pickup trucks thereafter was routed around it. Beginning of work closed the bridge entirely.

The repair job involved the installing of a Bailey bridge inside the span to extend from the Old Allen side to the first pier. Thus the weight of the superstructure was shifted from the weakened span to the temporary bridge, enabling state workmen to install new steel to replace weakened parts of the original span.

While all this was being done, traffic was routed via the narrow Allen-Bull Creek route or up Middle Creek via Brush Creek to Ky. 30.

Business has suffered at Allen. New Allen on the east side of the river has the heavier industry. If lumber or blocks, for instance, were ordered by a buyer living across the river in Old Allen, the seller delivered the order by driving to Prestonsburg 10 miles, then driving back almost the same distance by way of Bull Creek.

BOARD PLANS NEW 22-ROOM BUILDING JOB

Construction Cost Set At $530,000; Architect Now Drawing Final Plans

The Floyd County Board of Education has purchased a 5.03-acre tract at the mouth of Riley's Branch on Left Beaver Creek as a site for the new Wheelwright elementary school, it was announced this week by County Superintendent Charles F. Clark.

Construction of the 22-classroom building is expected to get under way next spring. Overall cost of the project is estimated at $530,000.

Clark said the Board of Education has approval of the Division of Buildings and Grounds for the sale of bonds. A fiscal agent, the bond firm of Hirsch & Meyer, has been employed to handle the bond issue. Final plans for the structure are now being prepared by George Lee Shannon, Prestonsburg architect.

The Wheelwright building will be an adaptation of the plan of the Middle Creek elementary school which is now under construction. Mr. Shannon's Middle Creek plan, featured in last week's issue, is (See Story No. 1, Page 8)

NAB SUSPECTS IN ROBBERY

East Point Woman Told She May Be Requested To Try Identification

Two young men held in Franklin county may be the two who held up at gunpoint, bound and robbed Mrs. W. A. Baldridge and Virgil Combs, Tuesday last week, at the W. A. Baldridge Store on Little Paint Creek, State Police believe.

Mrs. Baldridge has been notified, relatives said, that she may be asked to go to Frankfort to determine if the prisoners held there are the same two who robbed her.

Mrs. Baldridge described the two who committed the Little Paint holdup as appearing to be almost identical twins. Strong similarity of the men held in Franklin county led officers to believe they may have been involved in the Floyd case.
Approximately $200 in bills and coin were taken from the store, and Combs was robbed of $35.

GARTH VOCATIONAL SCHOOL OPENS FOR CLASSWORK

The Garth Vocational School which was completed recently at a cost of approximately $180,000 opened for classwork October 14 under supervision of the Mayo State Vocational School, Paintsville, and is serving all eight Floyd high schools.

Designed to accommodate 200 pupils, the school already has an enrollment of 173 from the junior and senior classes of the county's high schools. The 195-foot-long structure accommodates five "shops," or classes, and has 29 enrolled in drafting, 36 in auto mechanics, 33 in electricity, 37 in machine shop and 36 in woodwork.

Opening of the school renders inoperative the vocational school maintained here since NYA days.

The school here served only three schools, Prestonsburg, Martin and Betsy Layne. Central location of the new school makes possible service to all eight high schools, with school buses transporting pupils for half a day's work at the vocational school and the remainder in their regular classrooms.

A schedule arrived at on the basis of enrollment in the eight high schools provides for juniors and seniors from the three larger high schools—Prestonsburg, Betsy Layne and Wheelwright—to attend vocational classes at Garth, mornings. Students from the other five schools, Martin, Garrett, Wayland, Maytown and McDowell, attend afternoon classes.

The Floyd County Board of Education supplied the site and building. The Mayo State Vocational School equipped and staffed the school and bears all operation expenses. The school was built by R. C. Dyer, Allen contractor.

Off to a fine start, with prospects of developing rapidly, the school may later go outside the ordinary classroom for pupils. Said County Superintendent Charles Clark this week:
"The training during the school day must be restricted to our high school juniors and seniors, but it is our hope that the Mayo State Vocational School will be able to organize classes for adults at night in this new plant."

Clubwomen Appeal For Members To Work In Community Projects

AN OPEN LETTER TO TODAY'S WOMEN

One of the most rewarding experiences to be felt by the American woman of today is that of knowing she is a vital and useful member of her community, a necessary link in the chain for progress, culture, and higher living standards.

Whether she is a bookkeeper, a teacher, a secretary, a clerk, or a homemaker, every woman has a choice to make. She must decide whether to take an active part in the affairs of her community and work toward making it a better place in which to live and rear her family or to sit back, criticize, and be nothing more than a parasite, reaping where she has not sown.

You, as an American woman of today, need to make that choice; you need to stand up and be counted!

We, as clubwomen, feel that we owe something to the place where we work and live. We feel the need to beautify it and improve its standards and to help wherever we can. We feel that we cannot just take from it and give nothing in return. By laboring together we know that we can accomplish much, not only in our community, but in the state, nation, and world, also. We know that those who come after us will see the evidence of our efforts or the sad lack of them. Our State President, Mrs. Adron Doran, has said, "As clubwomen, we are paid nothing, but we get much." The satisfaction of knowing we have done our part is the best reward of all.

Our club, which is a part of a district, state, and national organization, has lofty ideals, the central one of which is the betterment of the world for mankind. United it can do a very effective job but without qualified and willing members, it fails.

It also has its social side, for all work and no play would make us very dull clubwomen indeed. We have interesting programs once each month on vital and timely subjects and often visiting guest-speakers, each an authority in his or her field. We have dinners and parties, which our husbands frequently attend.

If you would like to give a little of your time and your talent to further our worthy aims, then our club would be most happy to welcome you into its membership. We need you, your community needs you, your state, nation, and the world needs you, and whether or not you realize it, you need us. Won't you join us?

If you live in the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland area, please contact any member of our club, or if you do not live in that area, and wish to become a member of such an organization, contact a member of any of the local women's clubs.

We shall look forward to hearing from you. Please don't delay! There is much to be done!

The Status Quo Under Attack

Dr. John Oswald, new president of the University of Kentucky, may be relegated to the role of iconoclast by other college presidents of the state as he contends that all is not well with Kentucky's system of public higher education and that the "closed shop" coterie of state college presidents is not the last word in planning, motivating and activating the higher educational program.

He agreed recently with Centre College President Spragens when the latter suggested that the state needs a fully planned system of higher education which would assign different types of roles to different institutions, meanwhile pointing out that a study of the entire system should be made by out-of-state consultants.

Only this week Dr. Oswald disagreed with other college presidents on the Council on Public Higher Education that the council should urge Governor Combs to designate it as the administering agency for funds which may be made available by a college construction bill now pending in Congress.

On both issues Dr. Oswald drew fire from presidents of other state colleges, notably Dr. Adron Doran of Morehead State College and Dr. Robert R. Martin of Eastern Kentucky State College, Richmond.

With all due respect to those heads of the state's five colleges who oppose these "revolutionary" ideas, we are grateful to Dr. Oswald and Dr. Spragens.

Kentucky cannot afford a half-dozen universities and a constant and ever-growing conflict between the colleges and the University of Kentucky as to their proper place in the overall educational picture. We agree with Dr. Spragens that a fully planned system of higher education would place the University of Kentucky at the apex, with the four-year state colleges providing "solid liberal learning," and with the two-year community colleges forming the base and offering terminal technical and professional courses as well as preparing students for further college work at a four-year institution.

Dr. Spragens has the advantage of a more or less detached view of the situation as head of a private college. Dr. Oswald has profited from his experience as vice-president of the University of California where he directed that state's splendid community college system.

The presidents of the five state colleges in Kentucky naturally are loyal to their own institutions and are inclined to resist any change which might reduce their power and influence. We must not be over-critical of them.

But we must not, for all our admiration of their abilities and of the colleges which they represent, be satisfied with the status quo. The people of Kentucky must arrive at the conclusion that there must be a planned system of college training which has a place for everybody, that the individual colleges accept their place in the plan and desist from engaging in a tug-of-war for students, some or many of whom may belong elsewhere.

Perhaps Dr. Oswald's knowledge of the California system will point the way. "They have an established standard," he has pointed out. "If a boy doesn't make it, it's not the university's fault; there are other excellent educational institutions in the state for him to attend."

Staunch friend of the community college program now beginning to become effective in Kentucky, he said of California's experience in that field: Sixty percent of the graduates of the University of California spent their first two years in community colleges, and in their last two years do just as well as those students who began their college work on the university campus.

Long-range planning is needed in this entire field of education on which the futures of so many depend. The Commission for the Study of Public Higher Education which Governor Combs appointed in 1961 recommended a state board for higher education composed entirely of qualified laymen. The next General Assembly should give this recommendation full consideration.

A Tribute To Governor Combs

BY W. M. WATKINS
(Former Superintendent of Casey County Schools, Liberty, Ky.)

In 1959 a giant appeared on the battlefields of Kentucky, girded with truth, power, and leadership. He attacked the source of our state's ills, which were the dark and gloomy citadels of ignorance, bigotry and poverty, personified by poor and degenerate school systems found over most of our fair state. With the hammer of Thor, the wisdom of Solomon and the patience of Job he boldly marched against these fortified strongholds and destroyed many of the outworn and blind warriors of tradition outgrown by time. No doubt many men and women had dreamed of the destruction of the Jericho walls protecting an ancient and inadequate Kentucky school system but had never been able to do anything except dream and fear the giants of ignorance and intolerance. Then came the champion of the children and parents with his shining armor of truth, leadership and sword of battle which rallied the disheartened spirit of the citizens and caused them to fight a great battle against the blind giants that had so long dimmed the lamps of knowledge and progress.

The war of 1959-63 against the hell of ignorance has about drawn to a close. It will long be remembered as the most glorious period in the educational history up to this time. The body of Gov. Bert Combs will grow old and revert to the dust from whence it came, but the understanding, the indomitable Lincoln-like spirit, will bless and enrich countless lives of the present and future Kentuckians.

A spirit such as yours, Bert, has climbed so high up the mountain of achievement that you can look down on the little snipers firing at you through the knot-holes in the fence of selfishness and ignorance and say: "Forgive them, Father, they know not what they do." Like the great Lincoln, you sought to lift and help humanity by issuing an executive order righting old wrongs, Lincoln's body was killed by blind hate and deep seated prejudice; his great soul still shines in the glorious firmament of freedom. The order is running the gauntlet of racial and religious savagery. It may fall to the ground, bruised from the savage blows of self-seekers who urge on the mob to frenzy by waving the red flag of racial and religious hatreds.

When you return to private life and become old and condemned by Father Time to live with memories, you can reflect that many Kentuckians rose, met and followed your inspiring, inspired leadership that broke an age-old inertia of standstill, drift, and play petty politics. You need not be ashamed of the footprints you left on the sands of time while governor of our state. You can peacefully wrap the draperies of your achievements about you and sleep and dream pleasant dreams of a life well lived in service for helpless children and their parents.

Your sense of humor, your humble spirit, your honesty and spirit of progress are jewels that fit well in your crown of life.

A Thanksgiving Meditation

BY ROBERT J. HASTINGS

Billy's favorite aunt had just given him a sack of candy big enough for two boys his size. Quickly he ripped it open and began stuffing the goodies into his mouth.

"Billy, do you know what to say to your Aunt Catherine?" interrupted his mother. "Sure," he grinned, "got any more?"

Thanksgiving of 1963 will dawn on the American people with more material blessings than any nation has ever experienced. True, some Americans are undernourished and underprivileged. But our harvests are so abundant that we spend $1 million daily just to store the surplus. We have so many automobiles that finding a place to park is often harder than finding the money to pay for them. We lead the world in enjoyment of such conveniences as telephones, home appliances, television, and sporting equipment.

It is most fitting that we pause one day in the year to rethink these blessings. And if we think about them, we can not help but give thanks for them. The truly grateful are never so busy asking for a second bag full of candy that they neglect to say thanks for the first sack.

This is the meaning of the Apostle's words, "But godliness with contentment is great gain" (1 Timothy 6:6). He was warning against the restlessness, the craving, the anxiety, the covetousness, the longing, and the impatience of those who can never enjoy the food on today's table for thinking about what they will eat tomorrow. They get little satisfaction out of driving their present car, or wearing the clothes they now have, or living in the house they now own.

Does this mean that to be thankful one must fold his hands in quiet submission to fate? Must he have no ambition, no desire for better things? Must he bow his head in quiet submission, caring little or nothing for what he eats, what he wears, or where he lives?

Not at all. But it does mean that being thankful for what one has is one of life's prized possessions. Maybe this is what Thanksgiving of 1963 can mean to each of us. Contentment, that is. Appreciation. Gratitude. Acceptance.

FLOYD RURAL AREA INSTALLS SEWAGE DISPOSAL FACILITIES

Residents of Hunter's Branch, on Bucks Branch, near Martin, with the cooperation of the Floyd County Health Department, have each installed a septic tank and lateral drain field for the proper disposal of sewage.

When the Health Department sanitarian first visited the community, raw sewage was flowing into the nearby branch. After he had visited each residence and explained to them the possibility of waterborne diseases which could result from sewage, the citizens became interested in eliminating this health hazard.

Commented a Health Department spokesman: "The Floyd County Health Department takes pride in pointing to this community as being the first in the county to completely eliminate its sewage problem. It is the hope of the Health Department that Hunter's Branch will serve as an example to inspire other communities in Floyd county to realize the need for the proper elimination of their health hazards."

Since sewage treatment plants are being constructed along the

THANKSGIVING DAY
Thanksgiving Day, as a result of the persistent unswerving campaign of Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, became a unified national holiday just 100 years ago. True, Thanksgiving had been observed many times by Americans in the years since the Pilgrims' Thanksgiving of 1621, but its celebration had been haphazard. It was celebrated irregularly and at varying times of year, sometimes falling in July.

George Washington proclaimed a national day of Thanksgiving in 1789, the year of his first inauguration. Another national observance was again celebrated in 1815 by President Madison. Otherwise, Thanksgiving was left to the discretion of state governors. President Abraham Lincoln, influenced by Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, campaigned for a national Thanksgiving, proclaimed in 1863, the last Thursday in November as a day of national observance. The date was no accident. Taking Washington's lead, Lincoln selected the last feast day of the church year. Mrs. Hale, the first editor of the first ladies' magazine, Godey's Lady's Book, widow at 34 and mother of five, by means of pen and prestige saw to it that the holiday was kept in the public's conscience.

In a country torn with war, Lincoln, hoped the holiday might help unite the nation once more. Over forty thousand dollars, said the New York Times, had been collected to send feasts to the fighting men. There were turkeys—thousands of them—barrels of sweet potatoes, pumpkins, tomatoes and apples, all supplied by the generosity of the folks back home. There was coffee, with or without sugar. Even in the bitterness of war, that battlefield Thanksgiving may have come closer to the feast of the Pilgrims' than any other observance. One hundred years later—it is a cherished holiday for everyone—and again at the kitchen scene there will be feverish activity—and on the markets are seen—turkeys—thousands of them—barrels of sweet potatoes, pumpkins, cranberries and a generous supply of apples and grapes.

THANKSGIVING FOODS
Turkeys and cranberries have been going steady for a long time. Team them on your market lists. The cranberry crop for 1963 is the third largest on record (1,317,600 bushels). Good cranberries have a lot of bounce. Every cranberry is bouncetested and then sorted, packed and sent on their way to the market. In the foodstores there are millions of gleaming cellophane bags that have cranberries which are plump and firm with a shiny, smooth, dry skin... Choose these... Avoid those that are soft, shriveled, dull in color as they have passed the peak of quality. However, cranberries may vary some in size, color and shape, depending on variety. Store in refrigerator in the box or bag in which they are purchased to keep quality. To freeze, wash and drain fresh berries and put in freezer bag or other freezer containers without sweetening, then seal and place in freezer.

If you haven't tried cranberries for breakfast—then a new treat awaits you. Cranberry fruit drink is delightful "as is" or combined with pineapple or orange juice. (The juice is fortified by processors with additional Vitamin C.) Cranberries combine well with other fruits in fruit batters, marmalades and sauces, and will make a "zesty treat" topping for waffles, pancakes and french toast.

TIME TO PLANT SHRUBS AND TREES
Fall, rather than spring, is the best time to plant most shrubs and trees in Kentucky, according to Earl H. New, UK Extension specialist in horticulture.

The planting season starts in October and continues through most of November, he says. With proper care, shrubs and trees can also be planted in December if the weather is mild and the ground remains unfrozen.

Most of these plants have soil balled about their roots during the early part of the planting season. However, plants which naturally lose their leaves often may be transplanted in the fall without soil on their roots.

How deep should the shrub or tree be planted? Dig the hole deep enough so the plant can be put in at about the same depth, or slightly deeper than it grew in the nursery. New suggests:

The only fertilizer which should be mixed with the soil at this time is a small amount of superphosphate. How much superphosphate to use depends on the size of the plant. Generally, from about two tablespoonfuls for small plants on up to eight or 10 tablespoonfuls for large shrubs—and about twice this much for large trees—is sufficient.

Do not place any other commercial fertilizer in the soil at this time. Fertilizers containing nitrogen and potash can be placed on top of the soil later. In the spring, just before growth starts, usually is the best time to add this fertilizer; however, small amounts can be applied to the soil surface a month after the plant has been set.

The newly-set plant should be thoroughly firmed into the soil. A thorough soaking with water is one of the best ways to do this; soaking with water is even more effective than tamping down the soil with your feet.

Plants such as trees, which have long stems, should have these stems staked to keep them from swinging in the winter wind. Swaying in the wind may loosen the plant in the soil.

Never allow newly-set shrubs or trees to dry out. Be prepared to water them thoroughly if natural rainfall does not keep them moist. This usually means a thorough soaking at least once a week if enough rain has not fallen to do the job for you. Under very dry conditions, watering as often as every four or five days may be necessary. However, too much water is just as bad as too little water; excess water can smother the roots and cause them to die.

Eastern Kentucky Target Of Winter Crash Program

Eastern Kentucky, described by President John F. Kennedy as the "most severely distressed area in the nation," will be the target of a crash winter relief program to provide food, shelter, health care and employment in 20 to 25 Kentucky counties.

The program resulted from a meeting in Washington, Wednesday of last week, of Kennedy, Gov. Bert Combs, Kentucky congressmen and Cabinet officials. Gov.-elect Edward T. Breathitt has also pledged his support of the program.

The joint federal-state plans for the area hit a snag in Congress when the House failed to approve the additional $45 million asked by President Kennedy for public works, mainly for Eastern Kentucky.

Kennedy said the effort will "enable those requiring assistance to have adequate food, shelter and medical attention during the difficult months of the winter season nearly upon us." He urged national service organizations and volunteer groups to join the federal and state governments in their efforts.

Specifically, the program will include hot school lunches and milk for children, surplus foods, and rural grants for repair and improvements, among others. All can be undertaken immediately without new legislation, Kennedy said.

Although declining to estimate the total expenditure, President Kennedy commented that his administration is asking for an additional $450 million in Accelerated Public Works funds. Kentucky's share of this, he said, could provide money for 1,000 jobs during the next four months.

Governor Combs said A.P.W. projects under consideration include forest-access roads, reforestation work, stream clearance and dredging, and possibly some highway work. He said the crash program will provide much-needed emergency aid but is no substitute for the five-year over-all economic plan being drafted by the President's Appalachian Regional Commission.

This development program can not go into effect until it has approval of Congress and the Appalachian states. Under-secretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., chairman of the Commission, will head the crash program in Eastern Kentucky, Kennedy said.

There are 3.7 million independent producers in U. S. agriculture.

In the U. S. in 1959, 1,638,000 farms sold less than $2,500 worth of products.

In 1959, 17 percent of U. S. farms sold products worth from $2,500 to $4,999. In 1959, about 653,000 U. S. farms sold products worth from $5,000 to $9,999.

WOOD-UTILIZATION FIRM TO EXPLOIT AREA TIMBER

Paintsville, Ky., Nov. 14—Charter stockholders applied for incorporation papers Thursday for a multi-million-dollar wood-utilization firm to be located somewhere in Eastern Kentucky.

A spokesman said present plans call for formation of a central firm, two subsidiary plants, and eight to 10 satellite companies—all to be located together.

However, no site has been chosen yet, although a number are under consideration and options have been taken on several.

The main company will be known as Kenwood Products, Inc., and will process raw second and third-grade timber into rough lumber.

The two subsidiaries will be owned 80 percent by Kenwood. One will sell Kenwood's lumber and the other will manage land and timber. The satellite companies, to be completely separate, will use Kenwood's lumber for various manufacturing and processing purposes.

I, certify that the balance on the Floyd County General Fund on June 30, 1963, was $38,873.22.

ADMINISTRATION SETS BLUEPRINT FOR REGION

turing a "hub" containing administrative offices and auditorium-gymnasium, and from which classrooms extend, has attracted wide interest, including that of State Department of Education officials.
Site for the proposed Wheelwright elementary school was purchased from John and Lula Jones and William Tilden Jones for $40,000. Riley's Branch, location of the site, is opposite the mouth of Jack's Creek.
The school will eliminate the old Wheelwright elementary building, move seventh and eighth grade pupils from the Wheelwright high school, and may close two schools on Jack's Creek.

A blueprint for a multi-billion-dollar investment in the Appalachian region is being drawn up by the Kennedy Administration.

Prepared by the staff of the President's Appalachian Regional Commission, the report places its entire emphasis on practical steps that can be taken at once to exploit the coal, timber, recreational and agricultural resources of the region.

It contemplates a federal investment of about $450 million next year, exclusive of federal highway funds. The big item in this total is $275 million for water resource projects — dams, reservoirs, watershed developments, and anti-pollution facilities. More than $133 million is recommended for recreational investment, including the development of new national recreation areas.

The commission proposes a $26 million budget for the improvement and exploitation of the region's potentially priceless timber resources and $18 million for coal research and reclamation of strip-mined lands.

The commission's approach to the Appalachian problems recognizes facts that have long been apparent to residents of the region. One of these facts is the physical isolation of mountainous Appalachian areas such as Eastern Kentucky.

To deal with this problem, the commission recommends a beefed-up federal highway program that includes a whole new network of "developmental highways," plus construction of a 269-mile Appalachian Parkway along the western border of West Virginia and a 190-mile extension of the Blue Ridge Parkway from North Carolina to Atlanta, Georgia.

The developmental highway network would include 2,151 miles of intercity roads to link up small towns and large cities.
Included are plans for a route from Charleston, West Virginia through Eastern Kentucky to the Tennessee border. Also there would be a road from Portsmouth, Ohio, south through Kentucky's eastern crescent and the tips of Virginia and Tennessee to Asheville, North Carolina, connecting with superhighways to Columbus and Charleston, South Carolina.

To tap the rich tourist market, the commission's staff proposes major investments in the water and forest resources of the region. Outlays totaling $1 billion are projected through 1989.

One of the traditional prescriptions for curing the problems of Appalachia has been to pump money into education and job-training programs. The commission's staff endorses these efforts. But it also emphasizes the possibility of creating thousands of jobs for the unskilled.

It estimates that 37,000 men could be employed in the next five years on timber improvement programs—reforestation, access-road construction and the location and marking of property boundaries. This work, according to staff report, would add millions to the value of timber holdings.

Although there are 67 million acres of forest land in the Appalachians, the quality of the timber is poor. The commission staff said at least 20 percent of the forests are made up of worthless, cull trees. A feasible reforestation program would add the report estimates, about 10 million acres of first-class timberland to the region's forest resources.

The commission plus few of its hopes for economic progress on the coal industry. Studies indicate that while coal production may rise, there is little prospect for major increases in coal industry employment.

Nevertheless, the staff report suggests increased federal spending on research to develop new coal industries and a major effort, costing up to $130 million, to reclaim the 138,000 acres of land in the region that have been ruined by strip-mining. This effort would provide thousands of jobs for the unskilled.

Six Specialists Conduct Two-Day Heart Clinic; 62 Examined Tuesday

The Kentucky Heart Association's clinics, sponsored by the Floyd County Health Department, were held here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Six physician-specialists conducted the clinics. Five of these, David Scott, Hunter Black, Boris Surowicz, Jaqueline Noonan and Jack Reeves, were from the University of Kentucky Medical Center; the sixth, Steve Edelstein, is from the U. S. Public Health Service on temporary duty with the Kentucky State Health Department.

Others assisting at the clinics included two electrocardiograph and one X-ray technician, one area nurse, plus the staff of the Floyd County Health Department.

Sixty-two adults were examined at the Tuesday clinic, and 44 children, plus six adults at the Wednesday clinic. Sixty-five percent of the patients were from Floyd county, the remainder from adjoining counties.

Several patients were turned away from these clinics, which are held twice a year. "We are attempting to secure a third heart clinic each year," Dr. Russell L. Hall, Floyd health doctor, said.

Pond Creek, as well as streams and tributaries in the Little Sandy, Licking, Ohio and Kentucky river basins involving the following Eastern Kentucky counties: Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Lawrence, Boyd, Greenup, Elliott, Pike, Carter, Morgan, Rowan, Lewis, Mason, Fleming, Bath, Breathitt, Lee, Menifee, Perry, Letcher, Knott, Magoffin and Wolfe.

Perkins expressed the hope that most of this channel work could be started now and completed before the early spring floods occur, but he said that the funds requested would assure continuation and completion of emergency channel deepening and widening projects which were started at this time.

Perkins also asked that $100,000 be included to complete the Big Sandy study, $100,000 to complete the Kentucky River study, $100,000 to complete the Upper Licking River study and $40,000 to complete the Little Sandy River and Tygart Creek study.

Perkins pointed out that the funds requested for the Big Sandy will enable the Corps to make its report on the navigation aspects of the river basin development—the flood control report being put in readiness at this time with funds currently made available.

The House Appropriations Committee recommended last Friday that $74,393,300 be spent this fiscal year in Kentucky and Southern Indiana for flood-control, navigation, and multipurpose water projects. The sum sought for Kentucky is $71,363,300.

Included in the committee's recommendations was one new construction start in Eastern Kentucky—the Grayson Reservoir. It is a $22,000,000 flood-control project along the Little Sandy River in Elliott and Carter counties. The committee allotted the project $1,000,000.

The bulk of the committee's requests for Kentucky called for appropriations to continue construction already underway for improving navigation in Western Kentucky and along the Ohio River.

Among other construction funds sought was $9,500,000 for Fishtrap Reservoir on Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River above Pikeville.

Approval of $40,300 for a survey of the Big Sandy River reflects concern over devastation caused earlier this year when floods raced through Eastern Kentucky.

A previous survey of the Big Sandy was to have been completed this year, but the March floods prompted the Army Corps of Engineers to seek additional study funds for a second look at the Tug River and Levisa Fork.

Other study and survey funds voted by the Appropriations Committee for Kentucky include: $17,000 for Kinniconick Creek in Lewis County.

$40,000 for the Licking River in Northeastern Kentucky.

$20,000 for Little Sandy River and Tygart Creek in Northeastern Kentucky.

$25,000 for the upper Cumberland and Kentucky River basins.

The committee also approved funds to complete planning on several projects. These included: $150,000 for Carrs Fork Reservoir, a flood-protection project in Knott county above Hazard.

$220,000 for the proposed Cave Run Reservoir along the Licking River.

$50,000 for the Red River Reservoir in Powell county.

action in the State Department of Education should be obtained through direct election of State Board of Education members rather than through appointment. He indicated he would use the influence of his office to accomplish that goal.
Verne Horne, KEA director of public relations, told delegates their association had been given an A-plus for effort and achievement. He lauded the "Mr. Novak" television program, terming it an example of the Madison Avenue approach to selling education to the American public.

Dr. Willard Goslin, keynote speaker at Thursday's night session in the Paramount Theatre, called for teachers to place the human being at the center of their values and to know more about the world they live in.

"We are not a nation that can live on its fat," he warned. "The effective teacher needs both knowledge and sensitivity of the world that surrounds him." He termed a teacher's education as a "growing knowledge of the life around us."

Overweight Adds To Load On Heart, Doctors Say; Precautions Are Urged

Is overweight in itself a health problem? Your doctor will no doubt promptly answer "yes!" to that question, whether you have heart disease or not. This is one point on which the specialists connected with the Kentucky Heart Association are firm.

Does overweight cause heart disease? The physicians won't say that. In fact they point out that a slender person may have heart disease. But they do insist that overweight adds to the heart's work load, and that's why doctors tell people with heart disease to keep their weight down.

Your own doctor is the best judge of what weight is "normal" for you. If he says your present weight is normal, then you are fortunate.

Any doctor will agree that it's much easier to prevent overweight than it is to cure it, and anyone who has struggled with this problem will agree. If your weight is normal and you want to keep it that way you must balance off (1) food intake and the energy it creates against (2) the amount of energy you use in your daily activities.

Today's labor-saving gadgets upset the balance for most of us. Push-button appliances in the home have replaced much hand labor of the past. Taking the car instead of walking to the shopping center burns up little energy.

As we grow older we require less food anyhow. But many people forget the work they are being saved nowadays, and habit makes them continue to eat the large amount of food they may once have needed. The result: overweight.

Your doctor will probably warn you, however, that you shouldn't go on a crash diet all at once, even if you are considerably overweight. The Kentucky Heart Association specialists fully support this view, as part of its continuing drive to conquer heart and blood vessel diseases. Let us repeat: your doctor is the best judge of what you should do if you are overweight, and is your best guide in handling your individual weight problem if you have one. He will tell you that a drastic diet may be harmful, as KHA has stressed, and that you may not need it.

Try to balance your energy with a varied, nutritious diet and moderate regular exercise. If your doctor puts you on a diet, by all means follow his directions exactly. They may make a life-or-death difference to you.

Frederick D. Fairchild, Age 88, Victim Monday; Burial, Mayo Cemetery

Frederick Den Fairchild, 88, of Allen, died Monday at home. He had been in ill health two years, seriously so 10 days.

Mr. Fairchild, a widely-known resident, was a former teacher, merchant and farmer. He began teaching years ago when the school term was only three months and the salary nine dollars monthly. Mr. Fairchild was a son of John and Clarinda May Fairchild. His wife, Lula Mayo Fairchild, preceded him in death. Surviving are a son and two daughters: Frank M. Fairchild, Cincinnati, Ohio, Miss Ailene Fairchild, at home, and Mrs. Lillian Burke, of Allen. He had no surviving brothers or sisters.

Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the Allen Methodist Church, the Rev. James Stratton officiating. Burial was made in the Mayo cemetery at Allen under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Water Repellent Product Dangerous, Haver Told; Foster Issues Warning

Allen Fire Chief Wilbur Haver received a letter last week from H. L. Foster, director, Division of Fire Prevention, Frankfort, that a new product just recently put on the market presents a potential life and property hazard. Foster referred to X-33 Water Repellent.

In the past year, eight injuries and two deaths from flash fire explosions have occurred from use of the product, Foster wrote Chief Haver.

"Householders and others who have purchased X-33 Water Repellent, an extremely flammable masonry water proofer distributed by the Wilmington Chemical Company of Chicago, should return it immediately to their dealers," Foster wrote, quoting a bulletin made available to the public. "They should not try to destroy or dispose of the product themselves without first consulting their local fire departments."

Foster detailed a bit of history of the product.

"The X-33 product first appeared on the market early in 1962," he said. "As manufactured up until two or three months ago it had a flash point (the lowest temperature at which the fumes or vapor from a liquid will ignite when exposed to a flame or spark) of 40 degrees below zero. The product manufactured since then has been changed and has a flash point of 73 degrees above zero. Labels on the can do not indicate which product is which."

"Yes...I Condemned THE CATHOLIC CHURCH"

"And you would, too," wrote a non-Catholic recently, "if all the things I heard about it were true.

"For years, I kept hearing that the Catholic Church was opposed to the Bible and tried to suppress it. I was told that the Church had changed Christ's teaching and practiced pompous pagan forms of worship. It was told to me that Catholics worship statues and images, and that the Catholic Church defied God's law and changed the Sabbath.

"But now I have learned that these stories and many others about the Catholic Church are not true—and never were."

Every day, thousands of our non-Catholic friends and neighbors are discovering, as this man did... that Catholic belief, worship and history are widely misrepresented and misunderstood.

That is why we publish these advertisements... and invite you to write for free pamphlets. We want you to know us as we are—not as false rumors and slanders represent us to be. We want you to know... if only for your own information... what the Catholic Church actually teaches, and what we Catholics actually believe.

This enables you to get authentic information about the Catholic Church—to investigate in the privacy of your own home. Then... even though you may not agree with Catholic beliefs and practices... you will at least understand them, and be able fairly and in good conscience to judge our Faith and what it is founded upon.

But more than truth and fairness are involved. For if it is true... as we claim it is... that the Catholic Church is the Church established by Christ, it is vital to your salvation that you investigate the genuineness of this claim. That is why we publish these messages. That is why we are happy to send you... without cost or obligation... authentic information about the Catholic religion on which to form your judgment.

We will send you free, an interesting pamphlet explaining Catholic teaching on divorce—mixed marriages—gambling and drinking—why Catholics do not attend non-Catholic worship, and answering many of the false rumors you have heard about the Catholic Church. Nobody will call on you. Write for Pamphlet No. KC-15.

School Audits Step-Up Slated by Breckinridge; Depth Studies Are Made

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 14—The state plans to increase the frequency of local school district audits to once a year, Attorney General John Breckinridge said Thursday.

Breckinridge is a member of the State Committee for School District Audits, set up by the 1962 Legislature under a law which calls for audits at least once every two years.

"But once each year is our goal and we think we have the operation whipped into shape," he said.

The committee was created because of controversies raging at the time about alleged irregularities in some school systems. It has finished its first full fiscal year.

"We think the early period has been very salutary," Breckinridge said. "We found a widespread lack of uniformity in accounting procedures."

The committee presents a list of independent auditors to local boards of education. The board chooses the firm and the state pays half the cost.

The committee operates on an annual $75,000 appropriation.

"We ran a bit over this time because we had the power to go into investigative audits when deemed necessary," Breckinridge said.

He said studies in greater depth were made in Carter and Pike counties, where financial records still are being checked.

Breckinridge said the audits are not necessarily investigations.

"They do catch things on the surface, however, and they put everyone on notice that the districts will be looked at every year," he said. "This will keep local school officials from getting too careless."

The state committee also consists of Finance Commissioner Dave Pritchett and Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell Butler.

It meets whenever business dictates. Right now it is reviewing audit procedure for the current fiscal year.

The committee is prepared to handle local requests for audit covering the fiscal year which ended June 30.

Auditing firms must give local districts copies of the report, plus 12 copies to the state audit committee which distributes them to state officials.

Pikeville Makes Plans For Future Expansion; Federal Aid Envisioned

Pikeville, a town flattened eight months ago by a flood, is exploring the possibility of undertaking a $7 million urban-renewal project.

The proposal — to change the downtown face in this community of 5,000 — is enthusiastically endorsed by Dr. William Hambley, the Mayor, and the City Commission.

And for good reasons. As presently financed, it may just be possible for Pikeville to swing the $7 million deal at a cost of less than $400,000 to the town.

"Our project has already progressed to where we have received around $38,600 in advance planning money to do a feasibility study," Dr. Hambley said.

He considers the urban-renewal proposal a necessary ingredient to the future growth and development of Pikeville.

Basically, the proposal has simple goals — to alleviate traffic conditions within the town, and slum clearance.

But to achieve these objectives, the proposal calls for the relocation of two miles of Chesapeake & Ohio Railway tracks, a $3,668,000 item in the proposed project budget that constitutes no small undertaking for a town the size of Pikeville.

The tracks are around much of the business and residential sections of Pikeville, a town in a crescent along a meander of the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River. The railroad tracks are retarding the growth of the town, and adding additional burdens to the traffic problems and hazards.

The tracks would be rerouted away from the business section through a 2,000-foot tunnel to be cut through a mountain near the city limits.

With the tracks gone, the town in cooperation with the state and federal government would build a major thoroughfare around the town along the railroad's right-of-way. It would relieve city traffic and through traffic traveling U. S. 23, 119 and 460, and Ky. 80.

"The railroad occupies 25 percent of the level ground in Pikeville," Dr. Hambley said. "It's right-of-way is the most ideal area for a thoroughfare to alleviate our absolutely terrible traffic problems."

Other changes involved in the project include the relocation of six coal docks within the city limits, the development of a 200-car public parking lot adjacent to the business section, the removal of around 125 blighted buildings in a 34-acre tract, and possibly a public housing project.

"The housing project is optional," Dr. Hambley said. "There's enough money — $40 million — in Pikeville banks to build homes for people who need them, but if they want public housing, we'll build it."

The coal docks — ramps for unloading coal from trucks into railroad cars — occupy valuable real estate within the city limits. Hundreds of trucks unloading at the docks daily add to the traffic problems and make street maintenance a fiscal headache.

"They also make it next to impossible to keep the town clean," Dr. Hambley said. "The docks, trucks and railroad are the cause of 75 percent of our housekeeping in town."

The docks would be moved to a special siding along the new railroad route.

Construction is under way on a $1.9 million water-and-sewer improvement program that started five years ago with the building of a new water plant. Included in this project is a new sewer plant, laying of 10-inch water mains in the town, and collecting lines for sewage.

The city is also converting a strip mine on a mountaintop near Pikeville into a ridge-top airport to replace a landing strip in a nearby valley.

The new airport will ultimately be 3,500 feet long and "visible from 50 miles around," Dr. Hambley said. He noted 24 private planes are presently berthed in Pikeville.

SURVEY OF ANIMAL WORLD INDICATES Milder Winter

Washington, D. C.—A survey—in depth—of polar bears' fur, the autumnal activities of squirrels, and the movements of hairy caterpillars pointed today to an inescapable prediction:

U. S. Americans face a much milder winter than the one that nearly froze our marrow the last time around.

The U. S. Weather Bureau, a conservative organization which is unfortunately wedded to science, refuses to confirm or deny this. It just sits there stubbornly, and declines to make such long-range forecasts.

But listen to Ralph Norris, veteran head keeper of the National Zoo: "Why, my gracious," says Norris, "I just inspected Snowstar, a polar bear, and that bear doesn't have any coat to speak of. Real thin-like. If cold weather sets in that bear will have to borrow an overcoat."

Snowstar looks for a clement winter.

To be sure, there are contra-indications, as we experts say. Norris notes that the reindeer have developed real plush coats. But you have to consider the overall picture, in which squirrels are important.

Squirrels usually stash away nuts against the winter. On a recent Sunday, 40,000 people visited the zoo and dropped a lot of peanuts around.

Now, ordinarily the squirrels would bury this provender in no time. But on Monday morning Norris noted many peanuts still lying around. Which shows that squirrels are unworried about the winter.

From all over, come reports that not many hairy caterpillars, or woolly worms, have been observed crossing highways. Last autumn a lot of them did so, in disregard of stoplights, and of course this foretold deep snow and severe cold.

Now when we turn to a study of almanacs, our hope that we may not need the old galoshes and mackinaw is somewhat shaken.

To be sure, the Old Farmers Almanac says that generally the winter will be warmer—37 degrees average as compared with 34 last year. But it adds that there will be 57 inches of snow, which is a lot of snow. It figures out to 2.72 inches more than last year.

The Hagerstown (Md.) Town and Country Almanack, in its 1964 edition, predicts rain or snow on 21 days of the year. Seventeen other days in the same period are marked fair and cold.

These two publications—started respectively in 1792 and 1797—have won a great deal of prestige among high and low. For example, a Maryland Governor in the 1830's always checked the Hagerstown edition before setting dates for hanging criminals. This was so the applauding spectators would not get wet.

Beginning its 139th year, John Baer's Agricultural Almanac at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, doesn't foresee such rigorous weather as last time. But it says the winter will be snowy, much of it cold and January will be the worst month.

The nearest thing to a long-range forecast that can be wrung out of the Weather Bureau is this from J. Murray Mitchell, Jr., widely known meteorologist:

"I feel that people would be well advised to prepare as if cold weather lay ahead."

Free Diabetes Detection Sponsored by Med Group; Tillet Notes Importance

"Only a few more days are left in which Kentuckians can take advantage of the free urine sugar tests being offered by physicians, hospitals and laboratories in Kentucky," Robert S. Tillet, M. D., Louisville, Chairman of the Kentucky State Medical Association's Diabetes Committee, said today.

In cooperation with the American Diabetes Association, the KSMIA is sponsoring for the thirteenth year a Diabetes Detection and Education Week in Kentucky, during which time a concerted effort is being made to find as many as possible of the estimated 15,000 Kentuckians who unknowingly have diabetes.

"Nearly 2,000 persons," Dr. Tillet continued, "are now leading happier, healthier lives as a result of having taken advantage of the free tests offered during the twelve previous campaigns."

"Early detection of diabetes is very important," he said, "because control measures are much simpler if the disease is discovered early."

All Kentuckians, even those who may have had the test a year ago, are urged by Doctor Tillet to take advantage of the free tests before the week is over, at which time the drive will come to a close.

OPEN NEXT WEDNESDAY

The Prestonsburg Black Cats will open their 1963-64 basketball season in the local fieldhouse at 8 p.m. next Wednesday, with the Elzel Rockets of the 60th district as the opponents. Saturday night, Louisa will be the second home opponent of the week.

Jack Wells lost only Wayne DeBoard from last season's team which won 13 and lost 12. He has veterans returning in forward Freddie Setser, one of the area's leading scorers last season, and forward Jimmie Seiser. Lonnie Penix, 6-2 senior, will probably move in at center and the guards will be holdover Danny Hamilton, Mike E. or Mike H. Wells or sophomore Beecher Hale.

The locals have been conducting drills for the past month at nearby Auxier high, since the floor here has been completely revamped and the finishing touches will not be done to the floor before Thursday. The first practice session will be held on it Friday afternoon.

P.-T. A. MEETS

The Harold grade school P.-T. A. met Nov. 12 at 6:30 p.m. at the lunchroom. The meeting was opened by the president, Cecil Sturgill. The minutes and financial report were read by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Doty Gearheart.

The P.-T. A. voted to give each teacher $20.00 to buy supplies replacing their rooms supplies destroyed by last year's flood.

On Nov. 26 at 7 p.m., the P.-T. A. will sponsor a bingo party at the lunchroom. The proceeds will be used to repair the basement, so it can be used as a music room. A special fund was started, with $126.00 already collected by Mrs. Doty Gearheart, to be used to buy a new piano for the school.

Eighteen members were present. All parents are urged to attend these meetings and check the progress of their children.

The P.-T. A. meets the first Tuesday of each month at 6:30 p.m. at the lunchroom.

They are: Judith Anne Howard, social studies, and Carol J. Johnson, art, both of Prestonsburg.

In making the announcement, Dr. J. Dorland Coates, associate dean of instruction for teacher education, said that these students have completed six weeks of preparation by observing and studying methods of highly trained professional teachers.

Professional degrees are awarded to those who successfully complete their student teaching and other required curricula for the bachelor's degree.

More than 75 per cent of Eastern's 12,000 graduates have entered the teaching profession.

TROJANS EDGE GARRETT FIVE

Wheelwright Becomes "Marked Team" After Win Over Black Devils

The Wheelwright Trojans will become the "marked" basketball team in 15th region basketball circles, now that they have edged the defending champs, the Garrett Black Devils.

Saturday night, before a capacity crowd at Wheelwright, Don Wallen's veteran team turned back Garrett, 68-66, in the region's best early-season game to date.

Garrett jumped to an 18-15 first period margin, then went ahead, 37-31, at halftime, but Ted Cook and Jimmy Rollins found the range for the eventual winners in the third period and tied the count at 55-55 as the final period started.

Cook finished as the game's leading scorer with 21 points, followed by Rollins with 16 and Danny Rae Hall with 14. Garrett's two fine guards, Jimmy Cox and Keith Lawson, hit for 25 and 16, respectively.

Wayland, another veteran-studied Floyd county school, won its fifth consecutive game Saturday night by pasting Hindman, 98-82. The victory was the second over the 14th region school in the past seven days.

As in the first meeting last week, Wayland was behind four points at the halfway mark, but came roaring back in the third period to go ahead, 69-57, at the close of the period.

In this game, the Wasps outstanding forward Bronley Williams was limited to 12 points but teammates K. Martin with 20 and T. Martin with 17 took up the scoring slack for Tommy Boyd's winners. E. Waugh also tossed in 19. Hindman, in losing for the third time this season, was paced in scoring by G. Combs with 23.

Phelps won its first game over Virgie in recent years by dumping Virgie, 67-53, and the victory was especially pleasing to new head coach Jim Carter in evening its season's slate at 2-2.

Betsy Layne entered the win column for the first time with a rousing 108-88 win over Dorton after losing consecutive games to Martin and Mullins. Mullins, a 57th district school, kept its record unblemished by nipping previously undefeated Johns Creek, 49-48.

McDowell capped its third win of the year with a 103-57 rout of Wolfe County. Five players scored in double figures for the Devils, with J. Hopkins high with 25 and returning veteran Shawn Howell next with 23.

Other week-end results were: Sandy Hook 59, Ezel 56; Dorton 59, Phelps 57; Hellier 71, Jenkins Dunham 49; Meade Memorial 84, Van Lear 67.

Thanks for Support

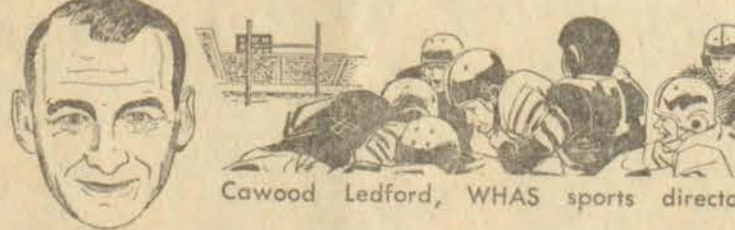

Although I did not have any opposition in the November election, I sincerely appreciate the warm, friendly support that I received from the good people of this county.

I say again that I will not seek personal revenge, and I will do my best to live by the following quotation for the next six years:

"A Commonwealth's Attorney is the Representative not of an ordinary party to a controversy, but of a sovereignty whose obligation to govern impartially is as compelling as its obligation to govern at all; and whose interest therefore, in a criminal prosecution is not that it shall win a case, but that Justice shall be done."

Cawood Calls Football

Occasionally a tornado moves out of the Gulf into the heart of Texas. Usually they're given names like Arlene and Zeldia; but last Saturday their names were Rick, (Kestner and Norton), Herschell, (Turner) and Darrell (Cox).

These and other Kentucky Wildcats wrought havoc on Waco and destroyed the budding bowl hopes of the Baylor Bears. Kentucky's sophomores grew up in Waco, and as the wind whistled through Baylor Stadium, reaching gusts of 44 miles an hour, the young Wildcats ignored their underdog role, and tore apart a good Baylor team. Representatives from three post season bowl committees were in the press box, but by the end of the third quarter the contingent from the Sugar Bowl had seen enough, and hastily departed from the scene.

A frustrating season will be brought to its conclusion for the Wildcats next Saturday afternoon in Lexington as the Wildcats entertain arch enemy Tennessee. On

Lovern Commends Judges For Increased Traffic Violation Convictions

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 18 (Sp.) — State Public Safety Commissioner Glenn Lovern has commended Kentucky judges for the "steady upward swing in Kentucky traffic court conviction rates during the past year."

Noting the increase in court convictions on State Police citations from 62 per cent to 69 per cent, Lovern said "While we recognize clearly the limits of the authority of the police officer, we are also convinced that the matter of public safety is one of working together on the part of the courts and the police."

"There are many areas of safety responsibility, but the persons who make direct contact with the traffic violator concerning his violation of traffic laws are the police officers." (See Story No. 1, Page 7)

Which type Chevrolet pickup do you need?

Chevrolet now makes four different types, each with its own distinct advantages. Whichever one you buy will be a lot more truck than your money bought the last time!

FLEETSIDE. Based on sales, the best liked pickup in the world. Outstanding feature is its large body extending clear out over the wheels. Two body sizes. Two wheelbases. Best riding truck, by far, with coil springs all around and independent front suspension. Cab and body have double-wall construction. Chevrolet Fleetside—best for all-around use.

STEPSIDE. Has flat interior body walls and convenient side steps between cab and rear fenders. Comes in same two sizes as the Fleetside plus one bigger size. Big model has heavier frame, 4-speed transmission and leaf-spring rear suspension for maximum payloads. Standard engine is 230-cu.-in. Six. A 292 Six or 283 V8 is available at extra cost.

RAMPside. Nobody else makes a pickup exactly like this one with a ramp at the side. The ramp makes loading easy because of its 16-inch rise. Truck also has a conventional tailgate. Body and frame-floor assembly are very rigid because they are welded together. Has larger 95-hp air-cooled engine this year. Independent coil spring suspension all around.

EL CAMINO. If you want a pickup as good looking as any car on the road, this is the one! It can work hard, and look like a million dollars doing it—the only pickup in the world with Body by Fisher! You can order an El Camino as plain or as fancy as you wish: bucket seats, air conditioning, 4-speed transmission, power brakes are some of its extra-cost options.

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 258 in a Series)

The Mountain Manse of 60 Years Ago

Typical of the architecture of the better homes in the Eastern Kentucky mountains at the turn of the century was that of K. F. Leslie, landowner, miller and farmer, of the Johns Creek section, Pike county, Ky. He was a great-grandson of the pioneer, William Robert Leslie.

Shown here in the photograph made about 1905, left to right, are John Leslie, K. F. Leslie, Jennie Leslie, Octavia Leslie (Hereford) and Minnie Leslie (Bond).

The First National Bank salutes the outstanding early settler families that contributed so heavily to the development of our area.

WHEELWRIGHT

The November meeting of the Wheelwright Women's Club was held recently in the clubroom with the vice-president, Mrs. G. W. Lockin, presiding.

Mrs. Bobby Grimm, chairman of the Public Affairs Department, presented the program, "Cause for Concern." It was pointed out that accidents cause more deaths among children, ages 1 to 14, than the four leading diseases combined. Half of these accidents occur in the home where the leading cause is fire.

A business meeting followed the talk, after which refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Karl Roller, Mrs. John, and Mrs. Hubert Cantrill.

STANLEY CREDITED FLOYD MULE WITH HIS VICTORY OVER MORROW

If Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt's victory over Louie B. Nunn in the race for Governor last Tuesday was a "squeaker," as some have called it, what would you call Simeon Willis' 8,619-vote win in 1943 over Lyter Donaldson or, to get even squeaker, Augustus Owsley Stanley's victory margin of only 470 votes in 1915 over Edwin P. Morrow?

These and other matters, including Stanley's mule-ride from Prestonsburg in that 1915 touch-and-go affair, are discussed in the following article by Thornton Connell, in The Courier-Journal:

Democrats today don't know anything about close elections. Take for instance Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt, Jr., Kentucky's Governor-elect.

He was only two years old and can't possibly remember the 1927 contest in which his uncle, James D. Breathitt, Jr., skinned into the lieutenant governor's chair by 160 votes.

Now people are using the words "squeaked in" to describe the 13,000-plus margin by which the younger Breathitt defeated his Republican opponent, Louie B. Nunn, last Tuesday.

It seems to me that I wrote the story in The Courier-Journal of November 22, 1927, which started off by saying:

"James Breathitt, Jr., of Hopkinsville, forgot to shave Monday and won the election for lieutenant governor, he says, by a whisker."

Notice To Owners Of Dogs In Prestonsburg

In order to protect our citizens, the Police Department has been instructed to take action to eliminate packs of dogs which have been roaming our streets.

ALL CITIZENS ARE ADVISED AS FOLLOWS: If you have a pet dog which you want to protect, keep your pet impounded at home for the next few weeks. Otherwise, your dog may be destroyed in our effort to remove stray dogs from the City.

BILL POTTER Chief of Police

"Mr. Breathitt put his majority at 160, checked and rechecked." Sounding something like The Courier-Journal of November 7, 1963, in quoting today's Breathitt on the result of the governor's race, the 1927 story continued:

"Absolutely confident he has won the race... Mr. Breathitt (James) said that "a very tense situation is finally relieved; the margin of victory, though small, is sufficient."

Tabulation took longer in the days of the paper ballot, and there were charges, countercharges, recounts and court action as well.

James Breathitt's victory statement came two weeks after election.

One of the remarkable races in Kentucky history, that of 1927, resulted in the election of a Republican Governor Flem D. Sampson, whereas the eight other statewide candidates elected were all Democrats.

The influence of racetrack interests on state government was an issue in the campaign and those interests influenced some Democrats to bolt their party's candidate, former Governor J. C. W. Beckham.

Another close election was in 1943, when Republican Simeon Willis won the governorship over Democrat J. Lyter Donaldson by an undisputed plurality of 8,619. But probably the most colorful race in this century occurred in 1915.

The candidates for governor that year were Augustus Owsley Stanley, Democrat, and Edwin P. Morrow, Republican. The two were orators of the old school and there are oldsters today who will tell you their like will never again be seen.

The Courier-Journal of November 5, 1915, carried this headline: "Results from Entire State Show Election of Stanley."

"Canvassing of Returns of Votes Cast Tuesday Will Begin in the 120 Counties Today."

"Democrats Interests to Be Protected."

"Any Attempts at Fraud to Be Frustrated."

"Ballot Boxes Are Under Constant Guard."

"Ministers and Workers in All Districts Watchful."

"Stanley Issu's Statement of His Victory."

"Claims of Republicans."

"Headline were really something in 1915; all this over on a story."

Three days after the Stanley story appeared, The Courier-Journal carried an article which told of the arrest of four Democrats in McCreary county—Morrow territory—for breaking into the office of the county clerk.

The Democrats charged that the number of votes cast for Morrow there had been raised from 1,229 to 1,479, said a statement issued from Stanley's state campaign headquarters in the old Galt House at First and Main.

Next day, The Courier-Journal headline said:

"Republicans Pay off Bets."

It was in January, 1951, that Stanley, himself, gave the low-down on the battle he had with Morrow 38 years previously.

Stanley thought that it was for the want of a mule, perhaps, that Morrow lost the governorship.

The 33-year-old Stanley, who had come to Washington from the governor's chair as a United States senator, and later a member of the United States-Canadian Boundary Commission, was on his way to Bardonia to address the Chamber of Commerce.

I ran into him in the Stables—a tavernlike dining room—in the old Seelbach, now the Sheraton Hotel. Stanley said that one of the big thrills of his career came when he won the state's highest office by a majority of 470 over his close personal friend.

Stanley and Morrow would drink and eat together and sleep in the same small-town hotel rooms sometimes after engaging with booming voices in heated debate on the issues of the times.

Stanley said the 1915 campaign was drawing to a close and that both he and Morrow were worn to a frazzle. They had been beating the bushes for votes from the Breaks of Sandy to Madrid Bend on the Mississippi.

"I followed Ed into Big Sandy Territory," Stanley said. "He had been there about a week before. We were both on special trains, which we used for some time in those days near the end of a statewide campaign."

Stanley said that in Prestonsburg, he found that Morrow had asked about conveyance into nearby mountainous territory. "Get me a hack," said Morrow.

"You'll have to take a mule," they replied. Morrow protested that he had not been on a mule in 33 years, and stuck to the C. & O.'s cushions.

"I heard about it when I got to Prestonsburg," Stanley said with a chuckle. "I knew the election was close, so I told the Democratic chairman to get me a mule."

"I stopped at every little settlement," said Stanley, "and I told the people that Ed Morrow had a chance to visit them but that Ed was too delicate to ride a mule, something that you do every day and think nothing of."

Stanley estimated that he spoke to about 470 of those hill people which surprisingly turned out to be the exact majority by which he beat Morrow.

In 1919 Morrow came back with a "right the wrongs" campaign for governor to defeat his Democratic adversary—Stanley's lieutenant governor, James D. Black—by a margin the Democrats did not have the temerity to doubt.

cer and the judge," Lovern said. "They stand in a vital position to help the motorist improve his driving."

Lovern observed that when a driver realizes he is likely to be convicted if he violates highway laws and that he will be fined and will have points assessed against his record, the "real teeth of a traffic law enforcement program are complete."

"We are hopeful that Kentucky judges will continue to recognize this critical need and that the Kentucky traffic court conviction rate will approach even closer the 90 per cent rate recommended by the International Association of Chiefs-of-Police and the National Safety Council," Lovern added.

The conviction rate in Kentucky during 1962 was 62 per cent and during the past three months it increased to 69 per cent. Figures are based on State Police traffic arrests and do not include local police officers' activity.

MAYTOWN HIGHSENIORS HEAR REPRESENTATIVES OF SCHOOLS DISCUSS PHASES OF EDUCATION

Highlight of the week of observance of American Education Week at Maytown high school came November 13 when representatives from six schools of higher learning visited the school. Each of these was allotted a 30-minute period to present the particular institution he or she represented to the senior class.

At school assembly the seventh and eighth grades and high school classes, along with a number of parents, made up the audience which listened to a planned program of speeches.

Speakers, the schools they represented, and their topics of discussion follow:

Henry G. Martin, Eastern State College, Richmond, "Learning Opportunities at the College Level"; William Hughes, Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, "Cost of College"; William Hampton, Morehead State College, Morehead, "Campus Life"; Howard Hoover, Pikeville College, Pikeville, "What College Education Means in Relation to Economic Gain"; Luther Safriet, Mayo State Vocational School, Paintsville, "What Vocational Education Can Do For Me"; Robert L. Goodpaster, University of Kentucky, Ashland Center, Ashland,

"What Will the University Branch at Prestonsburg Mean to Eastern Kentucky?"

All speakers were guests of the school for lunch in the school cafeteria.

During the three-day period visitors representing over a hundred families were welcomed. Many spent a whole day visiting the individual classrooms and attending the planned assembly programs which were held each day at 12:30.

Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd county schools, was the speaker on Monday, and Claude May, from the office of the director of pupil personnel, spoke to assembly on School Drop-outs, Tuesday.
