

This Town... That World

I would say this Liston-Clay fight was fixed, if I weren't afraid somebody would point out I had already been wrong about the matter.

CAUTIOUS

This Clay bears a distinguished name. It goes back to the "Lion of Whitehall," who never threw a fight, dodged or lost one, and more recently to a gentleman of Paris, Kentucky...

I report, very factually, that Longfellow has the mumps. (Now, there's a distinguished name for you.)

RED CROSS HELP CITED

Disaster Chairman Reviews Assistance Given State, County

The American Red Cross during fiscal year 1963 spent $2,710,976 to aid disaster victims in Kentucky, and $369,000 of that total was spent in Floyd county.

The number of Kentucky families receiving disaster assistance during fiscal 1963 rose to 5,118, compared to 2,044 during fiscal 1962.

The increase in the number of families assisted and in the amount spent for such assistance underscores the importance of the Red Cross disaster aid program in Kentucky.

Dicks reports that the Floyd County Chapter of the American Red Cross will launch its annual drive for funds to finance Kentucky operations on March 9.

PROBE BOOTLEGGING, CONLEY TELLS JURY

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS RIFE, BELIEF

Conley Emphasizes Grand Jury Power; 3-Day Term Planned

The special grand jury called by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to probe into the Floyd county bootlegging situation began work Wednesday morning after hearing from Judge Conley a strong admonition to dig deeply for information.

Other than court officials and those summoned for jury service, the instructions were heard only by a newspaperman, although the opening session was open to the public.

"I ask you to investigate these rumors that this county is wide open, that you can buy whiskey on any corner and that clubs are wide open," Judge Conley told the jury of three women and nine men.

Again Judge Conley hit at so-called clubs. "There are," he said, "half a dozen clubs in this county which, in my opinion, are nothing but bootlegging joints. They have no more right to sell beer or whiskey than you or I have."

He told the jury that he is recommending action be taken to confiscate property involved in bootlegging.

Appealing to the jury members and reminding them that they are the most powerful group of people in the county, and nobody can tell you what to do," Conley reminded them that "industry is not coming to a place which has publicity such as Floyd county has had. A college is coming here. We want to show the world that Floyd can be a clean county."

He reminded the jury to call on the Commonwealth's Attorney and the County Attorney for advice and help and assured the jurors that the court will support them.

PARKS PLAN REOPENING

Seven State Parks Set Overnight Lodge Date Com. Bell Announces

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 24 (Spl.)—Seven of Kentucky's state parks with overnight lodging will open for the 1964 season on April 1, Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell has announced.

"The six others will open later because of their geographical location, weather reasons, or the type of facilities offered," Bell added.

One new park—at Boonesborough in Madison and Clark counties between Richmond and Winchester—will be in operation this year, he said.

New accommodations and facilities elsewhere in the system will include lodges and dining rooms at Natural Bridge and Buckhorn Lake, four swimming pools, four golf courses, bathhouses and picnic shelters.

Reservations have been accepted for all the vacation parks, those with resort facilities, since January 1, and Commissioner Bell urged those planning state park vacations to get their reservations in early—"write now direct to the park of your choice."

State parks offering overnight accommodations that will open April 1 are Audubon at Henderson; Cumberland Falls, near Corbin; General Butler at Carrollton; Kentucky Dam Village at Gilbertsville; Kentucky Lake, near Hardin; Lake Cumberland at Jamestown; and Rough River, near Falls of Rough.

Bell said that Carter Caves, near Olive Hill, will open April 15, Pennyrite Forest, Dawson Springs, will begin the season's operations May 1; Pine Mountain, Pineville, May 15; and Cherokee, near Hardin, and Natural Bridge, near Slade, will open May 30. NEW TRIAL ORDERED FOR FLOYD OFFICERS

The verdict of a Floyd circuit court jury convicting Deputy Sheriffs Troy Mullins and Marion Martin of the slaying of Ex-Magistrate John May and sentencing each to the state reformatory for identical terms of two years and a day was reversed last Friday by the Court of Appeals, and the case was remanded to the lower court for retrial.

The reversal was based on new testimony given by Katherine Martin, who was listed as the only eyewitness to the slaying except the two accused officers. Miss Martin testified, in substance, that the two trials of the officers that Mullins and Martin walked into a room of May's home on Cow Mountain and shot him while he was seated at a table, eating. The first trial ended in a "hung" jury. Conviction resulted from the second.

After the second trial, Miss Martin moved to Columbus, Ohio, and from there, the opinion points out, sent for the Commonwealth's Attorney and gave him a sworn statement which, in effect, stated that the testimony given by the two defendants was a true account of what actually took place. JUDGE HEARS DAMAGE CASE

$250,000 Involved In McCoy's Action Against Texas Firm

U. S. District Judge Bernard F. Moynahan has the task of deciding a Floyd county case in which approximately $250,000 is involved.

The case at issue is that of the Mountain Metal Company vs. Mosley Machinery Co., Inc., of Waco, Texas, and its trial at Pikeville required four days last week.

The metal company, which is headed by Charles M. McCoy, of Prestonsburg, in 1961 purchased from the Texas firm a mobile baling machine, the company contracting to build a machine which would compress half an automobile into a bundle. McCoy contracted to pay $70,000 for the machine, paid $30,000 of this total down and financed the remainder.

The plaintiff claims that he was able to operate the machine less than three months, that its operation was interrupted by repeated breakdowns and that finally it became inoperable on June 29, 1962, while it was located at Parkersburg, West Virginia. Plaintiff's testimony also claimed the company's warranty provided that the machine would bale 50 cars in an 8½-hour day if cars were conveniently located to the machine, but that the average number of cars baled till the final breakdown was only 26 cars a day.

McCoy sued for breach of an express and implied warranty, asked for cancellation of the contract, refund of money paid for the machine, damages of approximately $180,000 and an additional sum of about $5,000 lost as a result of a drop in the market price of scrap in a two-month period during which he was delayed on delivery of orders.

The defendant company contended that McCoy accepted the machine and had knowledge at the time of any defects if it had any, that he did not attempt to rescind the contract in a reasonable time, and that his desire to get out of the contract was created by the fact that market conditions had become adverse to his interests.

BREAK HITS NEW SCHOOL

Plate Glass Smashed At Garth Vocational; Hi Hat Store Looted

Latest of a lengthy series of breaks in this county was last Wednesday night's entrance of the new Garth Vocational School.

A plate glass was smashed to gain entrance, then panes of one or more doors were broken. Desk drawers were apparently searched but nothing is known to be missing. State Police Detective Chester D. Potter and Deputy Sheriff Sam Hale said after investigating the break that the looters apparently were searching for money. One distinct fingerprint was found.

A sizeable haul of foodstuffs and other items was taken, the night of February 16, from the Hi Hat Elkhorn Mining Company Store at Hi Hat. A car which had been seen in the vicinity was impounded by Deputy Sheriff Harold Johnson but later was released to its owner, who executed bond. A week earlier, a building used by the Inland Steel Company for storage at Buckingham, was looted of mining equipment valued at $500.

State officers are investigating the continuing series of thefts of equipment and supplies from Young & Greer Construction Co., contractors on the Middle Creek arm of the Mountain Parkway.

FOES OF STRIP PITS SAY THEY'RE MURDER

Frankfort, Ky. — Strip mining was described Tuesday as murdering the Eastern Kentucky mountains and destroying Western Kentucky agricultural counties.

One of its provisions requires that land capable of agricultural use before stripping be graded "to a rolling topography that may be traversed by farm machinery."

If the state doesn't improve control over strip mining now, the public will demand state or federal abolition of the industry in a few years, Swinford warned.

There have been estimates that Kentucky Lake will fill up in 75 instead of 150 years, Swinford said. The federal government isn't going to build more dams only to see them fill up in a few years with silt from spoil banks.

H.B. 145 would also increase strip-mining fees from $15 to $50 an acre. Twenty-five dollars an acre, or about $125,000 a year at present, would go to a fund to reclaim land ruined by past operations.

NEW WASHER JOB STARTED BY PRINCESS

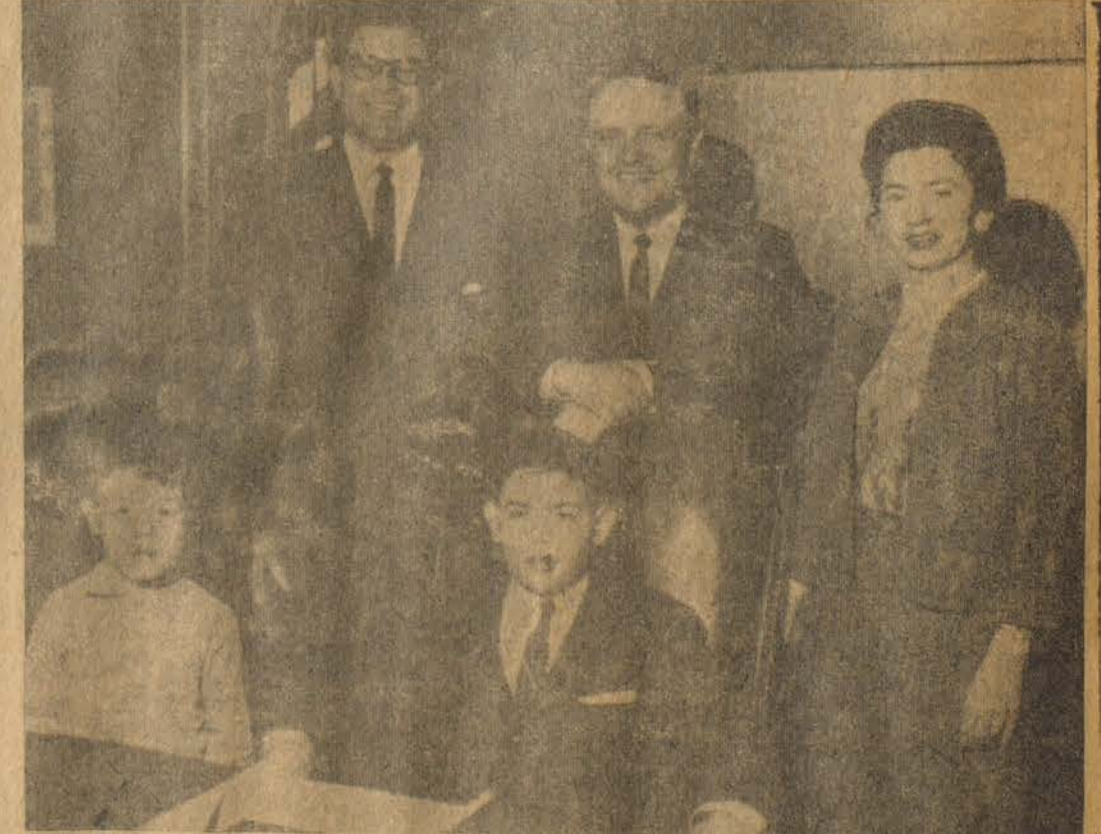

New Developments Insure Continuance Of Mining Operation

Floyd counties who have feared that the Princess Elkhorn Division of Princess Coals, Inc. may be nearing the end of its stay at David because of dwindling coal reserves learned this week that several years are being added to the company's operation there by installation of new machinery and acquisition of added coal acreage.

Princess has awarded a contract to the Daniels Company, Bluefield, West Virginia, to install at the No. 1 mine at David a Daniels media washer and auxiliary equipment including vibrators, conveyors and pumps.

The new washer, scheduled for completion May 1, will have a capacity of 200 tons of coal an hour—double the capacity of the link-belt jig washer now in use at the mine—and will guarantee the company a first-class product at all times. In itself, the new washer will prepare coal from existing reserves which will result in a product of uniform and satisfactory quality, thus adding to the working days of the company at David, even if no additional acreage were acquired.

The new installation will be made without loss of operating time at the mine, it was said. Concrete footers for the washer were being poured this week. Construction material is being fabricated and will be delivered at David by March 9.

New York—Venus and Jupiter are displaying celestial togetherness these evenings. They are the two bright objects visible in the western sky just after sunset. They've gradually appeared closer together, and tonight will make their closest approach, appearing less than two degrees apart. Huge Jupiter, to the left and above appears smaller than Venus, which is six times brighter now.

AMHERST STUDENTS TAKE TO BERT COMBS' STYLE

Amherst, Mass.—The image of a politician from the Kentucky mountains wearing academic robes on a New England campus is not so strange as one might be tempted to suspect.

Former Governor Bert Combs of Kentucky, who left the political arena in December, is serving as a visiting professor in political science at the University of Massachusetts.

Combs has taken up his new role with an odd combination of energy and ease. From 11:30 a.m. each Monday until 4:30 Tuesday afternoon, the quiet easy-going "professor" talks with students, conducts four classes, makes out exams and takes coffee breaks with fellow professors.

After his last class on Tuesday, he flies back to Lexington, where he lives and practices law.

His students, most of whom are New Englanders, have been warm and interested. His classes are often filled to capacity with student observers who want to get a look at a Southern politician.

"I thought Southerners never said what they meant—especially politicians—but he never backs off of anything," commented one student, a political science major who has never been outside of Massachusetts.

"It's an ideal class," observed a ski-panted girl student. "We ask all the questions and he has to answer—until exams." And this is as Governor Combs has planned it. "I just want to discuss what they are interested in so I'll have to let them do most of the questioning."

"We're just going to cover the waterfront, you might say," he explained, sitting in his rather bare office on the modern, snow-covered campus.

The former governor's professorship is offered by an $85,000 Ford Foundation program given the university five years ago.

Other political figures who have taught on the program include former Governor and U. S. Senator Earle Clements of Kentucky, former U. S. Senator Ralph Flanders of Maine, and Michael DeSalle, former Governor of Ohio.

Combs bowed out of politics, at least for the time being, when his four-year term as governor expired. Under Kentucky law, he could not succeed himself in the office.

Much like they would in a press conference, Combs' students, now used to his mountain twang and his rather non-academic style of teaching, ask questions freely.

How can you cover up a scandal?

"You can't . . . any way you handle it you are going to get cut up . . . the best way is to have a very public investigation."

How about appointing your friends?

"Only if they are also the best qualified . . ."

Why is the Republican Party gaining strength in the South? "Mainly because the Democratic Party has been sponsoring civil rights legislation, but also because industry, which is by and large Republican, is moving into the South."

"In Kentucky, we (Combs' Democratic administration) have been knocking ourselves out to bring industry in, and then invariably vote for the other fellow."

John Glenn? "You never know. Look at the Beatles. My opinion is that he will be a dangerous candidate."

Barry Goldwater? "It seems to me that he is opposed to just about everything that everybody else is for. He is making mileage on the fears and frustrations of the American people, which are bound to exist in this age—particularly in foreign affairs. I think, though, the more he talks the less strength he will have."

With political shrewdness, Combs answers quickly and cautiously. He is equally quick to acknowledge his mistakes.

Stumped on what the 23d Amendment is, Combs asked the class.

"It gave the District of Columbia electoral privileges," a student volunteered.

Combs looked at the class, his shy eyes twinkling, and replied, "I'll buy that. How about you?"

Combs' answers are sprinkled with what one student termed "mountain talk." Discussing objections to existing welfare programs, Combs concluded: "You don't want to burn down the barn because you've got a rat in one stall, now do you?"

He brought smiles with a description of Senator John Cooper: "He fumbles and mumbles a little bit . . . and gets off on a mouse track when he should be after a bear . . . but he is a hard working, honest fellow."

Combs teaches a junior-senior level class titled "The Practice of American Politics." A graduate student assists him with academic bookkeeping.

Several political and civic leaders have been scheduled by Combs to speak before his classes. Among them are Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, and Barry Bingham, editor and publisher of The Courier-Journal in Louisville.

"I'm teaching but mostly learning. This is something I think more politicians should do. I think professors should try their hands at politics every once in awhile too," Combs observed.

Asked if he would take advantage of the nearby ski slopes, he replied: "I've tried a lot of things, and skiing is probably not as hazardous as teaching."

On This We Might Build

The Times, busy with living with its own troubles in an economically troubled area, does not qualify for the role of expert on all the problems of the area and has no specific cure for any of them.

So it is that it finds the plans of the Appalachian Regional Commission not something to cavil at and pick to pieces but, rather, a start toward something better for the region and something on which this particular part of America might well build.

Highways, water conservation, reforestation, vocational training, preparation of factory sites above flood-stage, development of the area for tourism—these items in the Commission's plans for the Appalachians are sound enough for us; not an admixture which could be called a panacea, but certainly a start on the way back for a region which long has had chronic economic ills.

All this looks toward jobs for workers, toward putting Eastern Kentucky and other parts of Appalachia in the mainstream of national life rather than keeping it hidden at the nether end of an eddy. The plan looks toward the uplift of human existence.

We may get terribly tired, on occasion, of being portrayed to the rest of the nation as well as to ourselves as a poverty-stricken people, backward, neglected and unable to help ourselves. But we can no longer say that we are forgotten. And if we are to be remembered now, we must be remembered not for the money on deposit in banks or for a sprinkling of fine homes or for a coterie of wealthy in scattered pockets but for the grimmer aspects of life which are plainly to be beheld, crying out our need. Later, given a chance, we will make ourselves remembered for the other side of the picture—if we are worth a chance.

As we think of the possibility that a billion dollars may be spent in Eastern Kentucky in this stupendous task of reclaiming a great part of America, we cannot but hope that, somehow, the planners and those who carry out those plans will find a way to put people to work.

Let us be done with relief, as such, for those who are able to earn a living. Rather, let those who are able to work have an opportunity to cease simply to vegetate. Let them as human beings take part in something more worthy than the elemental process of merely drawing in free air and food. Let them have a part in life by becoming producers, however small their production may be.

There are country roads to be built, streams to be cleared and straightened, countrysides to be beautified, food to be grown, streets to be swept and mended—there are a myriad things to be done. Then let those who are unemployed and able to be employed be put to work—any kind of work—and so escape the slavery of soul that must be that of the healthy human being who is on the dole.

Six Months Ahead...

The University of Kentucky has promised for the Prestonsburg Community College faculty individuals who are, as one UK representative put it, "top-notch people."

This college is not to be a haven for teaching misfits; rather, it is "to go, first-class," with women and men, trained and known to be qualified, to form its faculty. President Oswald, of the University, is a staunch believer in the community college idea, and it is certain that he will work hard to make the college here and those other similar institutions being located over the state the successful ventures in education that they deserve to be.

But there is a fly in the ointment, particularly on the local scene. The same UK representative who promised "top-notch people" reminded those about him that these people would require adequate housing.

Those college people are due in Prestonsburg before next September. Housing has been promised for them. But if there is any prospect of that promise being made good, it is not in sight at the moment.

WHAT'S AN IFYE?

What is an IFYE? According to Boyd Wheeler, UK Extension 4-H field agent, IFYE means International Farm Youth Exchange—a two-way exchange between the United States and some 60 other countries of the world. The U. S. IFYE delegates are young people with rural backgrounds who spend about six months in another country living with rural families and taking part in their everyday life; in exchange, young people from those countries visit U. S. families as IFYE exchangees.

Who drinks milk—and who doesn't—were the topics covered in a recent study made by the American Dairy Association. The Association reports that 44 percent of the population drinks 87 percent of the milk consumed on an average day.

FRALEY FAMILY

A letter from E. S. Fraley, Box 348, Bristol, Virginia, asks questions on the Fraley family.

He writes: "I am trying to track down some of the Fraleys who made the mistake of moving from Virginia to Kentucky some few generations ago. Do you have any information on these:

"Elizabeth Fraley, born Elliott county, Kentucky, March 6, 1820, married Dr. Isom; Farina Fraley, born Elliott county, 1829, married first, Lafayette Phipps, second, James Hayes; Catherine Fraley, born Elliott county, 1832; married Rufus Humphreys; Alexandra Fraley, born Elliott county, 1830, married Suzanna... "Boone Fraley 'went to Kentucky' according to a record. He was born March 10, 1803. Boone was a son of William, born circa 1773, who was son of Frederick, born circa 1740, who was son of Frederick Froshich, born circa 1720. The latter may have been the son of William who lived at Edenton, North Carolina, in 1702.

"James Fraley, Revolutionary War soldier, was born in Rowan county, North Carolina, in 1759, and moved to Lawrence county, Kentucky."

If anyone has information on the Fraley family of Elliott county or any other Eastern Kentucky county, would you write Mr. Fraley?

VANHOOSE FAMILY

A letter from Mrs. Gypsa Lewis, Louisville, Kentucky, is an inquiry on the VanHoose family.

"My oldest son, who lives in Ashland, writes me that a man in Greenup is writing a book on the VanHoose family. He doesn't have our genealogical record straight. He has a picture of Moses VanHoose, an aged man, who was my father-in-law's youngest brother.

"I saw him twice. He was a small man and lived in Sedalia, Missouri. He was a State Representative. Mose Daniel's mother was a sister to Mose VanHoose. Mose Daniel was an engineer on a Big Sandy valley train. His mother was called Lettie."

Persons having information on the VanHoose family are asked to write this column and the information will be forwarded to Mrs. Lewis.

HARMAN FAMILY

James O. Morehead, division superintendent Prince George county, Virginia, Public schools, Prince George, Virginia, writes that Arista Harman, of Bland county, Virginia, is an authority on the Harman family of Southwest Virginia. Mr. Morehead is interested in the story of Mrs. Jenny Wiley and writes for a copy of HISTORIC FLOYD and Jenny Wiley remained open this winter.

Tent camping will start April 15 in all parks and beaches, and all bathhouses will open Memorial Day, May 30, Bell said.

Beginning the first week in June, supervised recreation programs will be extended to all vacation parks with many new activities being added to the daily program.

The Ray Harm series of wildlife paintings and nature studies will begin with the opening of the first parks April 1. A schedule is to be announced later, Bell said.

The two new lodges—at Natural Bridge and at Buckhorn Lake—bring to 12 the total now in operation. Additions were made to lodges at Pennyville and at Pine Mountain in 1962 and 1963.

Other state parks offering lodge facilities are Kentucky Dam Village, General Butler, Lake Cumberland, Rough River, Carter Caves, Jenny Wiley, Kentucky Lake and Cumberland Falls.

Forty new cottages were completed last year at Pine Mountain, Jenny Wiley, Lake Cumberland and Rough River state parks, bringing to 263 the number of cottages available in what many travel writers call "the nation's Number One state parks system."

New resort-type swimming pools for lodge and cottage guests will be in use this year at Pennyville, Rough River, and Carter Caves. A larger public-type pool will be completed at Lake Cumberland for use this season.

New golf courses will be ready at Kentucky Lake and at Lake Cumberland, and two others are to be opened later this summer at General Butler and at Carter Caves. Three are now under construction—at Pennyville, Audubon and Pine Mountain. When these are completed, it will bring to 12 the number of state parks with golf courses. Already in operation are links at Kentucky Dam Village, Lincoln Homestead, Jenny Wiley, My Old Kentucky Home, and General Burnside Island, Burnside.

New bathhouses have been added at Rough River, Lake Malone in Muhlenberg county, and at Buckhorn Lake. New picnic shelters have been built at Buckhorn and at Rough River.

"Last year over 11 million Kentuckians and out-of-state tourists visited our parks and shrines," Bell said.

PICKLED PRODUCTS

Pickled products are safe from harmful bacteria as long as their acid content is high to begin with and remains high during storage, the researchers point out. However, if yeasts and molds start to grow, this lowers the acid content. Botulinum spores, which produce the deadly toxin that causes botulism (food poisoning), can grow in such low-acid surroundings.

VEGETABLE SUPPLY

The USDA food specialists and bacteriologists have developed heat-processing times and methods suitable for home preservation of several popular pickled fruits and vegetables, Miss Helton says. Further information is available in the bulletin "Making Pickles and Relishes at Home," which can be obtained from the Food Quality Laboratory, Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Maryland.

VEGETABLE SUPPLY

Supplies of fresh vegetables during the remaining winter months are expected to be smaller than a year ago, due to January freezes in Florida, reports USDA. Total canned vegetable supplies for marketing into mid-1964 are moderately smaller than the record volume of a year ago, but still above average; holdings of frozen vegetables are about the same as in 1963.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky.

PASSING INSTITUTIONS—In my seventy-five years language has changed enormously, especially on the common level. With the coming of much better education, with radios, and with TV's, everybody is thrown daily with the best language as well as with some that is far from good. But the old-timers, who lived in small communities, where few people had more than an eighth-grade education and where "talking proper" was associated with dressed-up folks from outside, often lived long and useful lives without ever changing half a dozen expressions of their entire speech. My own uncle, who lived to have several college graduates among his descendants, knew and used and heeded to the end of his ninety years. Bombarded with reasonably good language from all sides, most people of our present day have to be pretty thick-skinned to preserve a representative number of their older words and older pronunciations.

Here are some regionalisms that persist, however, and may continue to do so: carry, to escort, like carrying your girl to an ice-cream supper; pack, to life and take away, like packing in a backlog; reckon, to suppose or think, like reckoning that it might rain tomorrow. Our champion regionalism, however, one that shows no signs of ever decaying but rather of spreading its influence, is you-all. Studies indicate that it is extending its usage area, for it is useful in indicating the plural, without one's having to add extra words to show that more than one person is meant: you boys, you girls, you fellows, you guys.

Folk smiles are still around, but many of them have had to be laid away in the mothballs, for the objects used in comparisons are so scarce or so non-existent that the simile does not enlighten but only confuses. Imagine similes pertaining to oxen, for instance; soon references to buggies and surreys and matched-teams will be unintelligible. Some of our similes may reappear in other forms, probably less intelligible than ever: Adam's old fox for Adam's off ox. Somehow I have not noticed any great tendency to use modern machinery in comparisons very often; maybe the constant change in our mechanical age makes any such figures out of date by the time they gain wide currency. Only the T-Model seems to be known and understood everywhere, partly because of old-car shows and snazzy reworkings of these old standbys. Figures about steamboats seem to most people as far away now as the old-time booster, before my time, in proclaiming himself a snag, a sawyer, a half-horse-half-alligator.

Standardized pronunciation approaches nearer acceptance now than ever before in the history of our language. Being understood rather than perpetuating some regional or family pronunciation is now quite important. Traveling is all over America, a person who clings religiously to his regional speech, even when it fails to get what he orders at a restaurant or a garage, is becoming annually more rare. Only on the homey, chatty levels do genuinely regional words and pronunciations remain almost untouched. And it would be a shame to destroy this picturesque language. Personally, I enjoy regional pronunciation when it is honest and true to type; an effort to acquire it, however, soon leads to laughter and even scorn on the part of the listeners. Since plain swearing has become so common, folk bywords have a hard time. Full of flavor, these left-overs, from a time when actual cussing was frowned upon or punished, added a certain salt-and-pepper tang to even the most every-day speech. Dainty young ladies can use expressions now that would have assured a cleansing of the mouth with lye-soap when I was a boy. Just whether obscenity has lost or remains as strong as ever I cannot say. I only know that it is not dead; if proof is needed, read the latest novel or attend the most recent Broadway show. Prudery is not needed now, though I occasionally hear some big he-man talking as if his mother might spank him if he used a naughty word. Language changes, conservatively, but it changes.

Get something off your chest. Your knees, for instance!

Imagine, unwinding and relaxing in a compact. Now you can! And that goes for backseat passengers as well as travelers up front. Because Dart is a compact in the large economy size. Lots of room for hips, heads, feet and knees. Family-size room all-round. And what goes for Dart in the comfort compartment goes ditto in the performance department. Standard engine is the famous Slant 6 that'll outscat the extra-cost engines in most other compacts. For even more action, there's an optional new Dart V8 that takes no sass from any size car.

But don't let the comfort and sizzle fool you. Dart is a compact. Witness its low price, easy upkeep, great gas mileage, and snappy parkability, and you'll know what we mean. If you're tired of cramped, underpowered compacts, talk to the man who can do something about it—your Dependable Dodge Dealer.

SO THEY SAY

Somebody has said that the most difficult thing a woman has to do is to keep secret her opinion of other women. The hardest secret for a man to keep is his opinion of himself.

LET THEM LISTEN

They're having hearings at Frankfort this week on the strip mine situation. If they could only hear what the folks back home are saying about it! If Kentucky acts with its usual alacrity, the machines will have taken the coal and gutted the landscape and gone to rust before the state gets realistic about the matter. Then the situation will be left to a page in Kentucky history, alongside the sad account of the destruction of the region's forests and other resources.

The only dangerous thing about a little learning, we are reminded, is that the fellow who has it mistakes it for a great deal.

THE FIGGERS

Just in the event some of those who use the columns of this newspaper to advertise their businesses might be interested, the circulation of The Floyd County Times this week is where it has been for the previous two weeks—at the 5,000 mark. At the risk of becoming a tooter of our own horn, we add that only eight other weekly newspapers in Kentucky have such a circulation.

Thinking on the subject of circulation, we recall the time when a local business man, aware of the value of getting his advertising in the hands of the people, offered to enter into a contract to use at least a page of space every week of the year if we would bring our circulation up to 3,000.

We also are reminded that some newspapers with little more than half the circulation of The Times charges their advertisers as much per column inch as we charge.

Baby Asphyxiated In Mud-Stuck Car

Salversville, Ky.—An 18-month-old child was found asphyxiated in a car near here Tuesday, and its parents were found unconscious.

The divorced parents, Gordon Lemaster, 23, and Beulah, 25, were taken to a Paintsville hospital, where they were listed in serious condition.

Officials said the car was stuck in the mud near Ky. 30.

FARM HOMEMAKERS

Lexington, Ky.—Mrs. Byron Tapp, Sr., Union county, and Mrs. Carlin Whaley, Fleming county, have been named Kentucky's Master Farm Homemakers for 1963. They will be honored during the annual meeting of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers, Mar. 30-Apr. 2.

"I can see the objections to cleaning up after somebody else's mess," said Swinford. "But the ones who are now deriving the benefits are faced with the responsibility of . . . the old (spill) banks."

Strip mining in Eastern Kentucky is "murdering mountains," Representative J. O. "Oz" Johnson, Louisville Republican, said. Johnson introduced H. B. 174, written by Harry Caudill, Whitesburg, which would prohibit strip mining on "precipitous terrain."

"Certainly what is going on now in the name of restoration is a farce," said Johnson, who visited Perry, Knott and Letcher county mines last week-end.

"These strip operators do not speak for the great bulk of Eastern Kentuckians—those who live in the shadows of the stripped-out mountains."

"Are we to applaud and encourage them just because they put some few people to work on their machines that assault the coal and mountains?" asked Johnson.

State figures for 1962, quoted by Swinford, showed strip and auger mines in Kentucky employed 3,299 men and underground mines 25,773 men, a 1 to 8 ratio. By tonnage, 37 percent was produced by strip and auger methods.

Asked if he had a solution for Eastern Kentucky's economic problems if his bill is adopted, Johnson predicted deep mining would increase, although the price of deep-mine coal would be higher to such customers as the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Johnson said his "common sense" tells him that, if strip mining is prohibited, improved machines will be developed for underground mining.

Caudill, Whitesburg attorney and author, said it is impossible to restore steep mountain slopes after strip mining.

"We can legislate, we can post bonds, we can make speeches, we can pass bills, but while all this is being done, the mud will be going downstream," said Caudill.

The House, said Caudill, should become a committee of the whole and visit the strip mines of Eastern Kentucky.

Representatives Fred Wallace, Jr., Central City Republican, who introduced a third control measure, H.B. 172, said he is not against strip mining but wants the land in better condition.

The Statutes No. 3 chairman, House Speaker Shelby McCallum, said he expects the committee to combine the bills and report one substitute bill to the house floor.

Historical Notes

COUNTY, the booklet issued here during the observance of the county's sesquicentennial.

FIRST BRUSHY CREEK MILL
R. B. Maynard, Heenon, Kentucky, writes an interesting bit of historical trivia in regard to the first steam sawmill on Brushy Creek, Pike county. The mill, probably one of the oldest in continuous operation, is still doing efficient daily work but not in Eastern Kentucky.

Heenon Maynard, for whom the Pike county postoffice was named, bought the sawmill on Buffalo Creek in 1900. How long it had been in operation then nobody is sure but it is thought the mill was originally purchased in 1875.

Heenon hauled the mill to Big Brushy Creek and set it up to grind corn and saw lumber. It was the first steam mill in the area and the object of pride and curiosity. Fields Maynard, brother to Heenon, became a partner in the mill's operation.

The first boiler gave away in a few years and the Maynard brothers bought another one and moved the mill to the main creek from Spannum Branch where it was first located.

The old mill became through the years a gathering place for farmers from Johns Creek, Big Brushy Creek, Wolf Creek and nearby valleys. There they brought corn, had it ground into meal. There they hauled logs and had them sawed into raw lumber. There, too, they gathered to just gossip and swap news . . . for many, many years.

Through the years the mill underwent many major repairs. Needing a drive pulley, the Maynards procured one from McGee, Martin county. Needing a wood pulley in the cab, they made one from a white oak procured nearby.

The late Rudolph Taylor, Pikeville businessman, recalled the old mill with nostalgia. He was a boy when it was transported from Buffalo Creek to Big Brushy. He remembers the several "yoke" of oxen as they strained to pull the giant mill up the Brushy Creek road.

The mill is now owned by Elmer Maynard, a grandson of Heenon Maynard, Elmer acquired it from the "folks" and after a few years decided to move it to Florida. He shipped the mill there with his other possessions.

Today, three miles northwest of Sparr, Florida, the old mill approaches the three-quarter century mark, but it is still sawing lumber.

Cawood Calls

Cawood Ledford, WHAS sports director

Instances, too insignificant to report, intrigue me sometimes. They are commonplace with a raiding party of 25 or 30 basketball players, coaches and reporters taking a swing through the Southeastern Conference. For the most part, Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp and his Wildcats are dead serious in their pursuit of cage victories, but the trips do produce their lighter moments, too.

In Montgomery, Alabama, recently, the night before Kentucky was to play Auburn in a crucial Southeastern Conference match, Coach Rupp granted the players their request to attend a rock-and-roll stage show with the admonition to be in by 10:30. The players had to leave before the performance was over in order to make the curfew. Coach Rupp, in good spirits, was standing outside his motel doorway as the players filed by on their way to bed. Rupp addressed Larry Conley, "Larry, what time do you have?" "10:32, Sir," answered the sophomore forward. "Well, you're late," kidded the Baron of Basketball, "so you won't start tomorrow night." Coach Rupp then addressed himself to his All-American, "Nash, what time do you have?" "I have 10:30 right on the dot, Coach!" answered high-scoring Cotton Nash. "That's okay then," Rupp said. "You're okay." Conley then reconsidered. "Coach, 10:30 is the right time. I just forgot that my watch was fast." This brought a roar of laughter from Rupp, and a suspended sentence for Conley.

Two mornings later at breakfast after Kentucky had defeated Auburn, Conley was showing the Wildcats' trainer, Joe Brown, a cut and bruised elbow. I inquired about the injury. Joe laughed, "He claims somebody bit him. Isn't that something? Most people would say they elbowed somebody, but Larry swears somebody bit him."

dry into what you are doing, report them to me," he advised. "And if any of you tells what you are doing, this court will take action against you."

He told the jury that if any witness refuses to answer questions to have the Commonwealth's or County Attorney bring the witness before him.

Expressing the hope that the work of the jury will be effective, the judge said, "I don't believe most people will swear a lie. You know some of these who have evidence—have them before you. It will take all of us working together to do the job of law-enforcement."

Only one person summoned for jury service, a woman who was ill, failed to appear. Frank Brantham, of Allen, was named foreman of the jury. Others on the panel are Hibbert Mead, Hi Hat; George R. Kidd, Honaker; Darwin Skeans, Martin; Jimmy Hopson, Auxier; Eleanor Herald, Lancer; Harlin Sexton, Hueysville; Fred Coburn, Hippo; Sid Case, Honaker; Elmer Stone, Hueysville; Mrs. Johnnie Ellis, Prestonsburg; Estill Shepherd, West Prestonsburg.

The jury hopes to adjourn after three days' work, but Judge Conley said the length of the term will be extended if necessary.

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo commented: "I am going to try to direct this grand jury to get results."

as we visualize it, to insure that justice is meted to each and everyone alike. By the same token, it is our responsibility to see that injustice is not done to anyone."

Wrote Judge Moreman in reversing the case:

"The new evidence offered in this case is of such compelling weight that we are convinced it had not been for the false testimony of Katherine Martin, a jury of fair-minded people probably would be constrained to return a verdict of not guilty."

Judge Palmore concurred, but wrote:

"I concur in the result, but only because of the position taken by the Attorney General. Of itself, the about-face of the witness, Katherine Martin, does not satisfy me that the judgment should be vacated. I cannot join in encouraging perjury."

Judge Stewart concurred with Palmore's position.

Year by year our research teams succeed in squeezing a little bit more electric juice from every lump of coal. Because coal is economical, it is our chief fuel, and the American Electric Power System, of which this company is a part, uses more than 15 million tons per year. At the same time we are engaged in atomic and other energy-source research. When such a source can produce electricity at lower cost than coal, we will use it.

KENTUCKY POWER COMPANY is a part of the American Electric Power System. This system produces more electricity than any other investor-owned utility in the United States. It serves over 2300 communities in 7 states—Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee. Through coordinated management and operations, progressive engineering and research, the six member companies of AEP bring you low-cost power with greatest dependability.

Some people get a new car every year, but the average American keeps his auto for several years.

Lexington, Ky.—Plan now for your home eating this summer, suggests Elizabeth Helton, UK Extension specialist in foods and nutrition. Right now—long before the canning season begins—is a good time to make plans for your summer canning program.

Lent began two weeks earlier this year than last and, although fresh fish is in its peak supply during the late spring and summer months, Lent is traditionally the season when fish is in the greatest demand.

HEAVY LAWMAKING WORK SLATED FOR LEGISLATORS

This is the week, barring complications, that will see the state senate pass and send to the Governor for his signature the House-approved $1.4 million budget bill providing for operation of state government services during the next two years.

This also is the week for which a hearing was set for 10 a.m. Tuesday on strip-mining control bills and a postponed hearing was scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday on proposed Sunday-closing legislation.

With the 1964 regular legislative session two-thirds completed, this is the week prior to the scheduled March 5 march on Frankfort by proponents of passage of a civil rights bill before adjournment, March 20.

H. B. 222, the budget bill, passed the House by a vote of 95 to 5 last Wednesday. For the first time in many years, all members of the House were recorded as voting on a biennial appropriations bill.

The measure was given its first reading in the Senate Friday after a favorable report by the Appropriations Committee headed by Senator Casper Gardner, Owensboro, Democratic majority floor leader.

Introduced in the House by Representative Gus Sheehan, Jr., Covington attorney, was a bill to reapportion Kentucky's seven congressional districts on a more nearly equal population basis.

The measure would combine Jefferson county "A" District with river counties to the north to form a new Fourth Congressional district. It would leave the city of Louisville and Jefferson county districts "B" and "C" as the Third district.

Introduction of the bill co-sponsored by other Northern Kentucky legislators followed a United States Supreme Court ruling that congressional districts throughout the country should be as equal as practicable in population.

Also introduced in the House Thursday was a bill whereby "any public school district or system may provide for students and faculty free time whereby the students may meet with the faculty . . . for a devotional period." The bill was offered by Representative Gether Irick, Pike county.

Referred back to committee for amendment in the House was a bill to provide a pension of $500 a month to former governors. Representative Mitchel Denham.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

My good friend, N. M. White, Jr., of Prestonsburg, who has launched a campaign to save our beautiful blue birds by providing them with suitable nesting houses, has termed his campaign: BLUE BIRDS UNLTD. He sent me some sheets of information about the plastic jug blue bird house. The instructions for putting up one of these are: Cut a hole 1 1/2 inches in diameter on the side of the jug, a little over halfway up from the bottom, then some small holes in the bottom for drainage. The jug should be fastened with roofing nails to a fence post or tree, about five or six feet from the ground. The roofing nails may be hammered into place, through the entrance hole, using a small iron rod and a hammer. Plastic jugs for wrens may be suspended from tree limbs. Mr. White has designed a plastic jug for use of bleach manufacturers, with a rough outside finish to imitate bark. The jug has a place marked for cutting the door to the blue bird house after the jug has been emptied of bleach. He hopes to interest the bleach manufacturers in this type of jug, for which he has applied for a patent. Its widespread use would furnish thousands of suitable homes for blue birds and wrens.

It would be an excellent project for Boy Scouts and 4-H Clubs, as soon as the weather warms up, to visit all the garbage dumps and other places, to collect the discarded plastic jugs and prepare them for bird houses. Both house wrens and blue birds are becoming scarcer and this would be a good way to help save these valuable birds.

THE HORSE, FAITHFUL FRIEND

The horse rates next to the dog as man's most devoted friend and companion. Horses have been known to grieve themselves to death over the loss of a beloved master. Horses have also been known to show great grief over the loss of one of their pals. They manifest a great love for one another where they have been kept and reared together. My father once kept a horse and a mule, and when he would take the horse out of the pasture and ride him off, the mule would run and bray all day long, as if he searched everywhere for the horse, and he wouldn't rest or eat until the horse returned. The horse would cut the same shine when the mule was taken out of his sight. I read about a lonely old bachelor who owned a fine, spirited horse, which he made his special pet and treated him with much love and kindness. The horse's limpid brown eyes would light up with joy each time his master spoke to him or patted his head. The old man died in his sleep one night and left the horse all alone.

When they carried his casket to the cemetery, that horse followed the funeral procession at a distance and stood nearby at the edge of the woods while the burial took place. The people somehow soon forgot about the horse and failed to notice his deep grief over the loss of his master. But when some people went to the old man's place to see about the horse and to feed him, he was gone! They searched all around the house and barn but couldn't find the horse anywhere. About two weeks after the funeral, some people were passing by the cemetery when they saw the old man's horse lying beside the new-made grave of his master. His hair was all bedraggled and he was thin and starved. He had been lying there without food or water for two weeks! There wasn't any sign that he had ever walked away from the grave since he had lain down by it. He was too weak to stand. They got slings and lifted him up and put him in a truck and hauled him to one of the farmers of the neighborhood to be fed and cared for. They tried hard, coaxing him to eat. He was a fine young horse and people's hearts were touched by his grief. But he refused to be comforted. Something inside that horse had broken and he refused all comfort. His lustrous brown eyes had turned dull and sad. He had to be put to sleep, to get him out of his misery.

A farm family in one of the mid-western states had five horses which they had kept together for many years, so that they were great pals and when one was taken away even for a day, the others would bray and search until that one came back. The farmer kept these horses until they were old; then one of them died. The whole family, including the children, went to the grave to see the dead horse consigned to his last resting place. One of the children told about this in later years — how she stood by the grave watching with tears as her father and brothers put the earth over her dead friend. She says while they were at the grave a strange thing took place. A deep hush settled over all, and when they looked around, they saw the four old horses coming slowly toward the grave; walking so softly they made scarcely a sound. She says they came and stood very still nearby, while the grave was being filled, and they seemed to be in deep mourning. She called her dad's attention to the looks of grief of the old horses, and he stared at them and stood shaking his head in puzzlement. Those old horses just stood there, while not a breeze stirred their manes and tails, with their heads all bowed over, and their great brown eyes looking very sad, as if they knew one of their old pals was being consigned to the grave.

The girl said in later years: "While those old horses stood there with heads bowed, it struck me that they looked like they might be praying. Maybe this sounds incredible, but after many years, my memory is still clear as to how they looked, as if their heads were bowed in submission to the Will of a Higher Intelligence. I can still shut my eyes and see those pitiful old horses standing so solemn and still. And I cannot but help believing that there is a way somehow for all things to reach their Great Creator; I believe they can, for they are a part of his created universe, and the Great Creator never left his creatures without some means of communication with his Great Spirit. For days after the death of their aged companion, those old horses would stand together in deep silence, not a hair moving, and with their heads bowed low."

SAYS 6,000 PASS UP AID

Breathitt Says Many Eligible for Benefits Have Not Yet Applied

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 24 (Spl.)— "Hundreds of people in Eastern Kentucky" are passing up social security benefits simply because they do not know they are eligible. Governor Edward T. Breathitt has reported.

Breathitt said he had been informed by the U. S. Social Security Administration that, according to their records, some 6,000 people in the area over 65 years of age who are eligible for old-age benefits have not applied.

He said an additional 2,000 unemployed or small wage-earners between the ages of 62 and 65 could start collecting reduced social security benefits if they would apply.

"I am concerned," Breathitt said, "because these are the people in the Appalachian area who probably need help most."

"Not only would this assistance give them a chance to live out their days in dignity and peace but the money would also help the economy in the area."

Breathitt suggested that private citizens contact older people whom they think might be eligible for social security benefits.

He said most county courthouses in the area are visited periodically by social security representatives. District offices of the federal agency are located in Ashland, Pikeville, Hazard and Corbin, Breathitt noted.

'64 Corvair Monza by Chevrolet

It's got a frisky new engine
(that puts superior traction under you)

Ever see a Corvair wearing tire chains? Not likely.

And it's not often you'll find a Corvair owner bothering to switch over to snow tires either.

Why? Rear-engine traction. The engine weight over Corvair's rear wheels gives them remarkable gripping power without any assist from special winter driving paraphernalia.

Reassuring to know this time of year—and also in the months to come when all that tidy white countryside turns into a melting pot that's likely to add to the misery.

Another thing about Corvair's engine: It's bigger this year.

Nearly 19 per cent more power in the standard version. Which is something you'll appreciate most any time of year, fair weather or foul.

You'll also appreciate not having to fool around with antifreeze. And not having to flush the radiator or fuss with hose connections. The engine's air cooled.

Matter of fact, we have a feeling that if more people knew what a cinch Corvair makes winter driving, there wouldn't be quite so many looking for excuses to duck South this time every year.

But then you never know. Corvair's a kick to drive in warm weather, too. Why not try one at your dealer's and decide for yourself?

RECORD 186,022 PERSONS CAMPED IN STATE PARKS

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 24 (Spl.)—All of the 50 states, 12 foreign countries, and the District of Columbia were represented in the record total of 186,022 persons who camped in Kentucky state parks last year.

This represented an increase of 76,675 campers over 1962. Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell reported, and added that it reflects the increasing popularity of state park camping sites and the rapid growth of this mode of family vacation.

Last year's 38,594 camping permits issued totaled 13,459 more than the 1962 figure of 25,125, or an increase of 53.6 per cent, Bell said. General Burnside, My Old Kentucky Home, Jenny Wiley and Rough River state parks did not issue permits, and it is estimated that a minimum of 20,000 campers used these facilities in 1963.

Opening date for camping facilities this year has been moved to April 1, instead of April 15, as originally announced, Bell said, because of the large advance demand from campers.

Total attendance at Kentucky's 34 state parks and shrines last year totaled 11,077,477, another record. The previous high was 8,532,075 established in 1962. Bell pointed out that in the three years since voters approved the $10 million state park bond issued in 1960, attendance at the parks has nearly doubled from the 5,939,250 total in 1960.

For the second straight year, Ohio sent the most campers to Kentucky's parks—38,519 or 23.2 per cent of the total. This was 1,272 more than campers from within Kentucky itself, home-staters totaling 37,247 or 22.4 per cent of the camping business.

Third in total registration and its percentage of the total was Indiana with 23,872 campers and 14.4 per cent. Fourth was Illinois with 22,179 and 13.4 per cent.

Next in order in the top 10 were Michigan, 7,122 and 4.3 per cent; Missouri, 7,052 and 4.2 per cent; West Virginia, 3,542 and 2.1 per cent; Florida, 3,198 and 1.9 per cent; Tennessee, 2,527 and 1.5 per cent; and Wisconsin, 1,965 and 1.2 per cent.

All other states and foreign countries sent 18,799 visitors and 11.3 per cent of the total, Bell said.

From other countries, the 1,196 from Canada was by far the biggest total. Seventeen came from Panama, 15 from Mexico, and 12 from Holland.

Five or fewer came from Nova Scotia, Scotland, British Columbia, New Zealand, England, Venezuela, and Germany.

A camp or trailer site for six persons or less is rented at $1.50 per day, Bell said. An additional camp site is required for more than six people.

Central service facilities for the sites provide toilet facilities, showers, and water. Electricity is furnished at 50 cents a day.

Tent sites are available at 16 state parks, primitive camping (no central services) at two others, and five-camp sites are provided by the Corps of Engineers on Rough River Reservoir at Falls of Rough.

Trailer sites are available at 15 state parks, Bell said.

He reported the average number of campers in each party last year at nearly five, the average length of stay two days.

Most popular camping site in 1963 was Kentucky Dam Village State Park, near Gilbertsville, where 7,093 camping permits were issued for 31,022 campers. Second-highest permit total was the 5,330 at Cumberland Falls State Park, near Corbin, for 21,423 campers. Third was the 4,560 at General Butler State Park, near Carrollton, for 21,292 campers.

Following these in order, with their location, number of permits and total of campers were these state parks:

Carter Caves (Grayson), 3,865 and 16,765; Lake Cumberland (Jamestown), 3,739 and 15,334; Natural Bridge (Slade), 2,774 and 12,797; Kentucky Lake (Hardin), 2,754 and 11,672; Levi Jackson (London), 2,244 and 10,045; Pennyrite (Dawson Springs), 1,552 and 9,090; Pine Mountain (Pineville), 1,792 and 6,346; Greenbo Lake (Ashland), 1,515 and 6,201; Audubon (Henderson), 1,032 and 4,492; and Columbus-Belmont (Columbus), 64 and 242.

TOURNEY OPENS WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The annual 58th district (Floyd county) basketball tournament opens play in the local fieldhouse at 7 p.m. next Wednesday as co-favorite Garrett clashes with McDowell in the first game. These same teams were the finalists in last season's 15th regional tournament on the same floor. John Campbell's Black Devils are the choice in the top bracket, while the Wheelwright Trojans loom as the favorite in the lower bracket.

In the final seasonal state-wide Tuesday morning, Garrett had a listing of 73.8, good for 8th place in the state. Wheelwright, with 71.7 was in 14th position and Paintsville at 71.0 held down 17th place.

The Prestonsburg Black Cats close out season play this week-end with successive week-end games. On Friday, Garrett will be in town for a single game at 8 p.m., and on Saturday Coach Jack Wells will tangle with his brother-in-law, James Carter, as the Black Cats square off against Phelps in a single game encounter.

Maytown's Bob Tallent still leads the region in total points and individual scoring with 807 points in 29 games for a nifty 49.1 per game mark.

Three Floyd county natives, Denzil Halbert, of Martin, Faircie Woods and John Campbell, Jr., of Garrett, have all amassed fabulous coaching records since their playing days at Kentucky Wesleyan College, when Wesleyan was located in Winchester.

Halbert was a senior on Robert "Bullet" Wilson's club when Woods and Campbell were sophomore members of the same team that gained the semi-finals of the K.I.A.C. tournament.

After a brief tenure in the Army, Halbert returned to his native Martin where he is in his 17th season as head baseball and basketball coach. His teams have won 379 games and lost 193 on the hardwood in that span.

Campbell, upon graduation, returned to his native Garrett and is in his 15th season at the Floyd county school. His Black Devils are the defending 15th regional champions and, overall, his teams have won 301 games and dropped 158 and have made three trips to the coveted state tournament.

Woods, who will long be remembered as the "little jumper" with the long two-hand, over-head shot, has one of the state's most amazing coaching records in the sport. In eleven seasons at Breathitt county high in Jackson, he has never had a losing season. His clubs have won 20 or more games every season and his teams have represented the 14th region in the state tournament for five consecutive years. Prior to this season, for eight successive years Breathitt county was rated in Kentucky's top ten teams throughout the basketball season. His teams have compiled season records in the won-lost column of 20-9, 20-10, 27-3, 27-3, 28-3, 34-5, 33-6, 32-5, 34-6, 33-6, and the present club has a 21-7 mark. Woods, while in Prestonsburg last Tuesday night, conversing with cronies Halbert and Campbell, said, "This is the least spectacular club I have ever coached but we will give Carr Creek and Hazard something to worry about before any team goes to the state tournament, come March."

Scoring for the Cardinals were: Nolan Hall with seven, Kevin Shannon five, Fred James four, Gary Holbrook two, and Wayne Brown three. Fred James sang a 15-foot field goal in the last minute of play to ice the victory. This dropped the Eagles to last place, Eagles' scoring: Joe Cooley high with seven, Danny Powers and Mike Fannin four each, Terry Deroset three, and Greg Stumbo two.

Special Fishing Dates Slated At Cumberland; Special Rates Are Set

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 22 (Spl.)—"Fishing Unlimited," a special week-end for fishermen, will be held at Lake Cumberland State Park, near Jamestown, on March 20, 21 and 22 through a cooperative arrangement between the State Department of Parks and Wildlife Resources, Parks Commissioner Robert Bell has announced.

A package deal, "Fishing Unlimited" is designed to kick-off the fishing season at Lake Cumberland and to bring together fishermen for a three-day program that not only includes fishing, but lodging, fine meals and fellowship with some of the outstanding fishermen and guides in Kentucky, Bell said.

The Parks Department is offering two nights' lodging, six meals, entertainment and instructional courses on various types of fishing all for $20. This does not include boat and motor rental. Fishermen participating in the week-end events may bring their own boats and motors or may rent a boat and motor.

Commissioner Bell said that well over 100 fishermen can be accommodated for the week-end, which begins with an evening meal at Lure Lodge dining room on Friday, March 20, with three meals Saturday, and breakfast and lunch on Sunday. Box lunches will be available for fishermen who do not plan to return to the lodge for lunch.

Governor's Cups will be presented to fishermen landing the largest black bass, the largest crappie and the largest string of both species. Only those registered at the park will be eligible for these awards.

In addition, Commissioner Bell said, there will be two full evenings of entertainment. On Friday night various methods of fishing will be demonstrated and movies on fishing will be shown. On Sat. (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

James Tackett scored 24 points and Jim Allen added 20 to pace the winners. Fred Setser scored 22 and Jim Setser 21 for Prestonsburg. Mike Schmitt added 11 for the Tigers.

Gasoline Tax Refunds Subject of Reminder By Revenue Department

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 24 (Spl.)—State Revenue Commissioner J. E. Luckett has reminded farmers that all claims for refund of tax paid on agricultural gasoline used in 1963 must be filed with the Revenue Department by March 30.

Farmers possessing refund permits are refunded 90 per cent of the tax paid on gasoline used in unlicensed vehicles strictly for agricultural purposes. Refund permits may be obtained by application using forms furnished by the Department of Revenue, Frankfort. Application must be filed at least 15 days prior to the purchase of gasoline on which a refund is to be claimed.

Refunds may be requested any time during the calendar year in which purchases were made, and within 90 days following the close of the calendar year in which purchases were made, Luckett explained.

Refund gasoline cannot be used in any licensed vehicle, Luckett pointed out, and said any violation of this regulation will force cancellation of the user's refund permit.

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 272 in a Series)

Daughters of Eastern Kentucky Pioneers

Samuel Clark and his wife, Elizabeth Clark, natives of Scott county, Virginia, migrated to Eastern Kentucky in 1818 and became the progenitors of a numerous branch of the Clark family. One son, John (Little John) Clark, married Polly Taylor, of a prominent Wise county, Virginia, family, and followed his parents to Kentucky. Descendants of these pioneer settlers migrated to other sections of Kentucky and other states and contributed substantially to the cultural fabric of their chosen areas.

John and Polly Taylor Clark were the parents of eight sons and daughters: Dr. N. T. Taylor, married Sarah Osborne, and practiced medicine in Morgan, Montgomery and Clark counties; Alexander Clark, married Elizabeth Peery; Mourning, who married Dr. Fairis Sizemore and became the mother of the late Dr. John Sizemore, of Prestonsburg; Tilda, married George Spears; Phoebe, married Bill George; Rosa, married Mark George; Sally, married John Moore; and Josie, married Richard (Dick) McGuire. (We are indebted to Floyd County Superintendent of Schools Charles F. Clark for this genealogical information.)

The First National Bank presents these pictures of our past in recognition of our historic heritage.
