

This Town ... That World

Monday morning, and back to school. Let's face it—we didn't see one youngster who couldn't contain his joy. But, ah! their mothers. It is reported that one followed her brood into the street, salaamed in the direction of the rising sun, salaamed in the direction of the school, then went back into the house and turned the TV on real loud so the unwanted silence wouldn't awaken the baby.

My dear contributors, "adviser" is not spelled with an "o." "Advisory," yes; "advisor," no. Why, I do not know.

It says here that a pedestrian is a man whose son is home from college. I say, he's a man whose son is not home.

And what's a honeymoon but a vacation before going to work for a new boss?

WE SUGGEST A NEW WEEK

This column has fided, from time to time, at the number and ridiculousness of these designated "Weeks" and "Months"—July, for instance, was National Hot Dog Month. Now, I am ready to join the pack by suggesting a new week.

It would apply, so far as I am concerned, to Kentuckians, and Eastern Kentuckians, in particular. It might be called Eye-Opening Week. As I conceive it, this would be a time for Kentuckians to get their eyes really open and to see their state, particularly its natural beauties, as they appear to unsated eyes.

During such a week you and I might get accustomed to the idea of daily looking about and really seeing the beauty around and above us. It might require some of us to lift our eyes from that spot on sidewalk or ground three feet ahead, but that would be good, too.

Kentucky is richly endowed with Nature's gifts—streams and (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

PICK JARVIS DRIVE HEAD

Boy Scout Fund Drive Will Begin Oct 20; 45,000 Boys Served

It was announced Monday by Council Finance Chairman B. F. Reed, of Drift, that Pete Jarvis, of Prestonsburg, will lead the Lonesome Pine Council in its annual finance campaign which will begin on October 20 throughout the 15-county council area.

A budget for 1965 has been adopted in the amount of $66,410 for the purpose of employing additional professional help and other expenses necessary to offer opportunity for Scouting to approximately 45,000 boys in the Lonesome Pine Council area.

"Mr. Jarvis, who is manager of the R. V. May Company here, said that because of the needs for developing youth into dependable citizens who could be trusted to maintain our traditional freedoms, he was happy to render this service as campaign chairman.

Jarvis is the father of a son who is a first class Scout and a daughter who is a Girl Scout. He is a member of the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, of Prestonsburg, and has been interested in youth work for many years. He is a member of the Kiwanis Club and has worked in Scouting as an assistant Scoutmaster and in the finance campaign in 1963 in the Jenny Wiley district. (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

TO DEDICATE NEW COURTHOUSE, SEPT. 12

PROMINENT OFFICIALS TO ATTEND

Special Invitation Issued To Teachers, Children To Attend

The new Floyd county courthouse, now receiving the finishing touches and occupied by all county officials except Jailer Lawrence Hale, will be officially dedicated at 11 a.m. Saturday, September 12, it was announced Tuesday by County Judge Henry Stumbo.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Governor Edward T. Breathitt, Former Governor Bert T. Combs and D. M. Magill, state local finance officer, are expected to take part in the dedicatory exercises. County officials from all counties of the area are being invited to attend.

In preparing for the dedication members of the fiscal court are inviting all the people of this county to attend the event and to inspect the new structure. The courthouse will be open through most of the day to permit the public to tour it, visit the various offices and become acquainted.

Judge Stumbo said the dedication date, a Saturday, will permit teachers and their students to be present. "I especially urge the teachers to bring their pupils here for the day," he said.

The half-million-dollar structure lacks only an air-conditioning system adjustment, painting and finishing work in the third-story section housing the jail and the jailer's quarters, and the sodding of a part of the lawn.

Although first work on razing the old courthouse was done Monday, to convert the courthouse grounds and surrounding area into an urban renewal project, the old jail is not expected to be abandoned before mid-September, Jailer Hale said.

Elder McKinley Moore, Succumbs at McDowell

Elder McKinley Moore, 65, of McDowell, died Monday at home. He had been in ill health for five years but death was sudden and unexpected.

A carpenter by trade, he had served as a minister of the Regular Baptist Church for 36 years. He was a son of John R. and Josephine Moore. His wife, Frances Hall Moore, and one foster daughter, Mrs. Dolly Hall Kendrick, of McDowell, survive. (See Story No. 8, Page 6)

Pennsylvania Churches Send Help By Vanload For Needy

The Rev. Robert Martin (left) is shown with the driver of the Pennsylvania truck as the van was being unloaded at Faith Bible Church, near Martin.

A 20-ton van-load of clothing for distribution to the needy of Floyd and three other Eastern Kentucky counties arrived at Martin Friday from Pennsylvania.

The clothing was unloaded at Faith Bible Church, near Martin, and its distribution will be made under auspices of the Cumberland Mountains Mission headed by Cordell H. Martin, Hindman attorney.

The Rev. Robert Martin, pastor of Faith Bible Church, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Cumberland Mountains Mission, said

Hole-In-One Scored By Louisville Youth At Wiley Park Course

Sixteen-year-old Bruce Hess, of Louisville, played the Jenny Wiley State Park golf course last Wednesday for the first time, and he had a first-time experience there. He shot a hole-in-one on No. 6.

No. 6 is the hole where history was made last year when Arthur Hughes and Joe Wheeler Burchett made golfing history with consecutive holes-in-one. Young Hess' ace was the fifth to be scored there.

The Louisville youth was playing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hess and with Bill Bick and son Joe, of Bethel, Ohio, when he whacked the ball from tee to cup with a 3-iron.

ASC POLLING SCHEDULED

Floyd Communities Set Community Elections; Boundaries Outlined

County and community committees who will administer ASCS programs beginning October 1, will be elected by farmers in September according to an announcement by Harry T. Hill, chairman of the Floyd County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

In order to have the greatest possible participation in the election, farmers will cast ballots for their nominees at a polling place designated in each ASCS Community. September 21 has been set as the date elections will be held and farmers may cast ballots at the designated polling places between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Hill, chairman of the county committee, points out that every effort will be made by the community committees, county committees and farmers to see that the most active farmers, who are best qualified for community committee work and who will be representative of the various sections and type of agriculture in the community, are nominated and elected. The community committees in each community will determine a list of not less than six nominees. Additional nominees may be selected to be placed on voting ballots by petition signed by six or more eligible voters. These additional nominees must be received by the ASCS office not later than August 21. (See Story No. 7, Page 6)

CLASSES SET FOR ADULTS

Various Courses Begin Monday in 4 Centers; Salisbury in Charge

Four of the general education classes under the newly-initiated adult education program will start Monday and four others will begin the next day, it is announced by James Salisbury, supervisor in charge.

Classes in English, mathematics, social studies and science will open Monday at Prestonsburg, Martin, Garrett and McDowell. The classes beginning Tuesday will be taught at Betsy Layne, Maytown, Wayland and Wheelwright.

"This program is designed for adults who have not completed their high school education," Salisbury said. "At the completion of this 18-week course a screening test will be given and those who receive a satisfactory score will be recommended to Pikeville College to take a general education development test. Those who pass this test will receive an equivalency high school diploma."

Courses designed for those who did not complete the fourth grade will be offered in reading, writing and spelling. These classes begin Monday at 12 centers in the county. Four centers will offer homemaking education courses, Salisbury noted. These are at Prestonsburg, Martin, Garrett and Betsy Layne.

Six special interest courses are planned and Ethel Calvin was added this week as instructor in flower arrangement at the Prestonsburg center. These courses will begin as soon as 17 persons are enrolled in each class. Besides flower arrangement, courses will be taught one night weekly for eight consecutive weeks in law for laymen, antiquing, banking, ceramics and investments.

FIRE RAZES 2 BUILDINGS

Paintsville Herald Plant Badly Damaged; Bottled Gas Explodes

One of Paintsville's most destructive fires destroyed last Thursday morning two vacant buildings and badly damaged the Paintsville Herald's plant and building. Unofficial estimates placed the damage at $225,000.

The newspaper office was a shambles, its roof and ceiling caved in and debris cluttering the plant. The full damage to the Herald has not been assessed.

The paper will continue to be published and will not miss an edition, it was said this week. The blaze apparently started in the vacant building formerly occupied by the Big Sandy Grocery Company which was being remodeled. That building and a second, the latter adjoining the newspaper plant, were ruined.

Fire Chief Lee Howard, Jr. said the flames apparently reached bottled gas stored inside one of the vacant structures, both of which are owned by Johnson County Sheriff Ray Preston, the resulting explosion ripping out a brick wall adjoining the newspaper. The gas had been stored inside the Preston building, it was said, for use by workmen who were repairing the roof.

The blast tore a 10-foot hole in the ground, ripped open the brick wall and tossed two firemen 15 feet. Neither of the firemen was hurt. Bricks rained (See Story No. 6, Page 6)

NEW CLARK SCHOOL HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

When the Floyd county schools opened Monday approximately 800 pupils occupied brand-new classrooms and fewer than ever in the county's long history were housed in one-room buildings.

Largest of the new schools, the Charles F. Clark elementary school on Middle Creek, near here, opened with an enrollment of 595. The new six-classroom building at Harold drew approximately 200 pupils.

Attendance figures from most schools were unavailable, Tuesday afternoon, but are expected to be tabulated by Monday.

Opening of the new Clark elementary school was preceded Sunday with open house, which drew upwards of 1,200 persons from various parts of the county.

Hall Named To Head Second Library District

Homer Lee Hall, of McDowell, assumed the duties here of regional librarian August 1, succeeding Robert Wallace, of Prestonsburg, who resigned a few months ago to become librarian at the new Prestonsburg Community College.

Mr. Hall, who was Bookmobile driver-librarian in this county from 1957 to 1961, attended the University of Kentucky this summer, studying library science. He had taught, the last three years, at McDowell high school.

The Third library region, which Mr. Hall heads, is now composed of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Morgan, Martin and Breathitt counties.

The county and regional libraries are expected to move within a month from the Floyd County Board of Education building to the new library building nearby. The new librarian said he considers the new library "one of the greatest and most beneficial improvements made in Floyd county recently. The Floyd County Library Board should be commended for its continued effort in making the new library a reality."

"Any public library," he added, "symbolizes the educational opportunity we have in America, and our new library indicates the degree to which our citizens support and accept the many services made available by the library."

TRIO PLANS NEW FIRM

Hall Named President Of Small-Loan Firm; Capital Is $100,000

The Floyd Home & Farm Finance Company expects to open here within the next month as the third such financial institution in Prestonsburg.

Blaine R. Hall, its president, said this week that its offices will occupy a part of the building now housing the Western Auto Associate Store. The latter business will continue in its present location, but a part of the storeroom will be partitioned off and renovated for the finance company offices.

Incorporators are Mr. Hall, Richard E. Martin and W. W. Burchett. Mr. Martin is vice-president, and Mr. Burchett is a member of the board of directors with the other incorporators and will serve the firm as legal counsel.

Capitalized for $100,000, the company will begin operation with a minimum of $20,000 of paid-in capital. Per share value of its 10,000 shares of common stock is $10.

Work on preparation of offices will begin next Tuesday.

RAPE CHARGE JAILS HALL

Amba Man Arrested On Wife's Complaint; Other Arrests Listed

Junior H. Hall, of Amba, was in jail here this week, charged with the attempted rape of his eight-year-old stepdaughter, and $2,000 bond was asked for his release after he had waived his case to the September grand jury.

The warrant for Hall's arrest, issued by Magistrate Fred Conn, was sworn out by Hall's wife. The warrant was later transferred to quarterly court here. "Send me on now," Judge Stumbo said Hall urged him at the arraignment.

The child involved in the case was taken to the Floyd County Health Department for examination and possible treatment. Her face bore marks of a severe beating, it was said.

Hall, a man of about 35 years, was arrested Sunday, the same day the offense allegedly was committed, and he was brought to jail here by State Detective Chester D. Potter and State Police Sergeant Sword.

Others jailed within the week, charges on which they were booked and names of arresting officers follow:

Steve Shepherd, stealing public property and no operator's license, Deputy Sheriffs Troy Mullins and Marion Martin; Cecil Shepherd, larceny of public property, Sheriff Henry C. Hale and State Detective Chester D. Potter (both men later were booked on separate counts of theft of property); Leo Jarrell and Ray Lafferty, possessing moonshine whiskey; Constable Kenneth Roberts; Johnnie Chatfield, interfering with an officer; Orby Newman, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, State Trooper K. (See Story No. 5, Page 6)

James, Boyd Named To Purgation Board, Effective January 1

Tom James, Democrat, and W. B. Boyd, Republican, both of Prestonsburg, have been appointed by the State Registration and Purgation Board to membership on the Floyd county Registration and Purgation Board, their terms to begin January 1.

A third member is to be named by these two members within 10 days after January 1, and if they are unable to agree the appointment will be made by the state board. The County Clerk acts as clerk of the county board.

The county purgation board may be in session a maximum of 24 days a year, including primary and general election days, and its members are paid $15 for each day of work.

AUXIER WATER PLANS TALKED AT HEARING

A modern water system and a safe and adequate water supply for the town of Auxier were discussed from two angles at a hearing held here Saturday before County Judge Henry Stumbo.

A number of citizens there expressed interest in the formation of a water district which would enable them to get possible federal aid and to borrow additional money for the financing of a filtration plant and a sound water system.

On the other hand, Forrest Music, owner of the present system, pointed out that under a franchise granted by the Public Service Commission he has spent considerable money toward improvement of the system. He plans, he said, to make the water safe for drinking purposes and to install an adequate system.

As now operated, water is pumped from the Big Sandy river and is not usable for drinking purposes. Residents of Auxier use drilled wells for drinking water sources.

If created, the water district would either use water from the Prestonsburg municipal system or would install a purification plant in order to pump water from the river.

The approximately 50 water consumers now at Auxier would be substantially increased with the installation of a modern plant, it was said.

Recognizing Music's investment in the present system, Judge Stumbo set September 10 as the date for him to give an accounting of his expenditures on the plant.

The plant now in use is, basically, the same as the installation made by the North-East Coal Co. 35 or 40 years ago, it was said.

1,061 SPARKLING NEW CLASSROOMS built in a $45.2 million construction-and-equipment program are being opened for the 1964-1965 school year to young Kentuckians in elementary and high schools. Typical of the program is Floyd county's $400,000 Charles F. Clark Elementary School on Middle Creek. A consolidation of 16 schools embracing 21 rooms, the new school, named for the county superintendent, is 4 1/2 miles northwest of Prestonsburg. It contains 18 classrooms, three multi-purpose rooms and three offices.

Word from Cloud 9

Pleasant dreams are best when they cease to be such, and that is what is happening in Floyd county.

Next week—Thursday, September 3—the dream of a college here in this county will no longer belong to the gossamer stuff of which fantasy is made but will become reality as young women and men walk through the doors of the Prestonsburg Community College to begin their high venture into higher education.

Other dreams have also happily ceased to be as they become the real thing, to be seen with the open eye, touched, enjoyed by those who are awake (those who sleep will sleep on). A dream of an enchanting vacation-land became Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park. There were dreams of the romance and drama of the Mountains, and an amphitheatre wherein the story may be told is there, as real as tree and rock. Some glimpsed a highway opening Floyd county onto wider vistas, and these, too, no longer dream.

We, cynically, have sometimes referred to Floyd county and the valley of which it is a part as the Promised Land because we were so freely promised much and so long and consistently denied much. There are crying needs to this hour, and these may exist for many years, but what has been happening before our eyes remind us that we might now more accurately refer to this place which we call home as the Land-of-Dreams-Come-True.

Forgive the rose-colored glasses. Let us down gently if we are pre-empting Cloud 9; we know the ground is hard below. Go along with us in our elation. We are proud of all that has been done, happy that there are those who dream and that there are those who make dreams come true. But of all the good things that have happened to Floyd county—roads, parks, schools, all—none sends us zinging back into the rarified atmosphere as does this college which once was pure dream but is now thrilling reality.

Here lies true opportunity. Opportunity for young minds which now may come to fulfillment, for youth to find itself and to grow, to find the better life, to learn about things and how to do things and how to lead others.

If this college grows, that growth will be marked by progress for Floyd county and the surrounding area. And it will grow and succeed, if we show that we deserve such good things by giving it our full and active, working help, cooperation and support.

Mountain Marksman Startles Shooters At Grand American With Perfect Score Of 200

Hiram Bradley, a native of Knott county who did his first trapshooting only a year ago, startled the clay-target world Sunday by winning the final preliminary event to the 65th Grand American Trapshoot at Vandalia, Ohio. Bradley broke 200 straight at 16 yards and had the only per-

SANITARIAN SUGGESTS PARK REGULATIONS

Improved sanitation measures and stricter enforcement of rules governing water skiers have been recommended by James B. Goble, local health sanitarian, to Lowell L. Baker, manager of Jenny Wiley State Park.

Copies of the recommendations, which were approved by Dr. R. L. Hall, county health officer, were sent to the Commissioner of Parks, the Division of Sanitation and the Division of Local Health.

Recommendations were:
1. That barrels be provided as garbage receptacles at each camp and picnic area.

2. That sanitary pit privies, one for each sex, be constructed at each camping and picnic area.

3. That a garbage pickup run by boat be made each day to gather and dispose of any garbage or trash found at camping and picnic sites.

4. That the authorized park personnel warn those persons who ski outside marked areas to remain within the area where skiing is permitted.

Goble reported that on a routine sanitary control inspection tour by water which he made with Dr. Hall and Mark Lovely, boat dock manager at the park, he found:

1. Garbage and rubbish scattered over a wide area at camp and picnic areas where no barrels had been provided, with several garbage piles spotted on the lake shore, just above the water level.

2. Water skiers skiing outside the designated area, creating an accident hazard both to themselves and others using the lake facilities.

3. Excreta deposited on the ground at campsites and picnic areas where sanitary pit privies have not been provided.

During the annual WHAS Crusade for Children, seven shifts of handicapped children are brought to the giant Memorial Auditorium stage to meet the stars and demonstrate their progress. To avoid tiring them, the younger ones stay but two hours while the older children stay up to four.

Dr. Hall, in an earlier report, described similar conditions, stressing overcrowding, the use by campers and picnickers of almost every available spot along the lake and the resultant danger of lake contamination. He also reported finding evidence of beer-drinking parties at several sites where beer cans, broken bottles, papers and plates were scattered over a wide area.

He suggested that picnicking be discontinued at Stratton Branch and that necessary facilities be provided near the German bridge. Because of the size of the German area, approximately eight acres, he suggested that all camping and picnicking facilities be installed there. Dr. Hall said this will be the best location in all the reservoir area for campers and picnickers, that an excellent beach could be developed there and that even now, on week-ends, a lifeguard is badly needed.

Improvements suggested there include an approved water supply and waste disposal system, bath and shower facilities.

Because driving to reach the German site is hazardous, he recommended that camping be continued for the present at Stratton Branch.

Mr. Frasure is a graduate of Sue Bennett College, London, Kentucky, and is now employed at Lexington, where they will reside. Mrs. Frasure will complete her work at Eastern Kentucky State College in Richmond.

Express Appreciation For Courtesies Here

To Mr. and Mrs. Chaimor H. Frazier, the Drama Association and to all the citizens of Prestonsburg, please accept the humble thanks of the Fayette County Recreation and Parks Board, the production staff, and the complete cast of "Oklahoma." Words would be inadequate to express the real gratitude and appreciation that we all feel towards you people in Prestonsburg. The understanding, cooperation and dedication in helping us to carry out our presentation of the Broadway musical, "Oklahoma," there at Jenny Wiley amphitheater was certainly a treat and a fine experience for all of us and one we'll never forget.

Jenny Wiley State Park is a beautiful resort, and the amphitheater is superb. For the hospitality and support from all the people there who opened their homes to our cast members, to the school officials for transportation and for the ladies who served the delicious meals at the school cafeteria, we will be eternally grateful, and we repeat a sincere "Thank you." For me, personally, I appreciate the opportunity to have met and worked with you and your people on this fine project and will long remember this fine association and look forward to another year there.

SPORTS CHATTER

FRIDAY OPENER

The Prestonsburg high school Black Cats will open their 1964 football season at 8 p.m. Friday on the local field when they meet arch-rival Wheelwright for the Floyd county grid championship.

Ray Brackett's Trojans got the jump on other area schools last Friday as they nipped M. C. Napier, 6-0, at Hazard.

Wheelwright has never beaten Prestonsburg in football but the Left Beaver school is conceded to be the favorite this season.

Bert Dixon has three veteran backs but has an inexperienced line. He will start Lennie Harris, Gary Goble and David Miller, along with junior quarterback Steve Clark, Harris, Miller and Goble have been regulars for the past two seasons.

Sentons, Paul, Burke, Randall Burchett, Joe Howard and Wendell Howell will form the nucleus of the line. They are holdover lettermen.

Wheelwright's returning veterans are backs Richard Carter and Dick Berger and junior full-back Larry Rowe. The returning quarterback is John Holman, as is center Gary Wiskiver, "Bo" Branham returns at one guard position and Bill Blair at one end position.

The game will count in the Class AA, Region 4, District 2 standings and the winner is automatically named Floyd county football champ.

Bruce Howard, former Black Cat and Morehead State College lineman, has been named head football coach at Morgan County high school, replacing Hal Lockhart, who returned to his native West Virginia.

The Francis Stores in Prestonsburg this year will again select the "Black Cat Player of the Week." This is the 13th consecutive year the award has been presented to the outstanding player in Prestonsburg high school's weekly football games. The winning recipient receives an award from the store and his picture with other pertinent information is displayed the following week in the stores' windows.

The award was initiated in 1951 when Doc Ferrell, now a Lexington gasoline distributor, began his coaching tenure here.

Wheelwright Tips M. C. Napier, 6-0, In Football Opener

Hazard, Ky.—Willie Watson's 23-yard touchdown run in the first half was the only score as Wheelwright edged M. C. Napier 6-0 to open the 1964 high school grid season for both teams here last Friday.

Watson set up his own touchdown with an interception in the first quarter. The speedster went for a TD on the play but a clipping penalty brought the ball back to the M. C. Napier 45-yard line. Four plays later Watson went in for the tally. The try for extra point failed.

M. C. Napier reached the Wheelwright 10-yard line twice, but a penalty and stern defensive play halted the drives. M. C. Napier gained 150 yards to Wheelwright's 104. The loser's completed three of 13 passes while Wheelwright made good on three of seven flings.

lakes, woods and rolling fields, tree-studded mountains and far-off, misty, smoky hollows and all the things that the eye would care to see. Perhaps only the stranger to these parts, or the Kentuckian away from home, expatriated by circumstances of occupation, can truly appreciate the beauty of Kentucky countryside, the pleasant atmosphere that pervades a land wherein live friendly, unpretentious people, and the tonic of a climate which is varied enough never to become monotonous.

We could wax plumb lyrical on the subject, but our lyrics are difficult to set to music. So we reprint here what was said a hundred years or more ago by an old preacher as he sought to tell his flock of heaven, and offer it as the highest tribute to Kaintuck. Said he:

"Ah, my honeys, heaven is a Kentucky of a place!"

TWO VIEWS OF THE MATTER

A lawyer is responsible for this one, and so we retell it. A preacher, a doctor and a lawyer were in difficult straits after losing the oars of their small boat in rough water. The waves tossed their tiny craft as if it were a cork, and they were threatened with being swamped or of drifting back out to sea. Finally, the lawyer decided to make a swim of it for the shore and help.

But just as he was ready to jump overboard, the fins of a dozen sharks cut the water ahead of him. "They'll get you—don't jump!" the doctor warned. But the lawyer took the plunge, and the preacher breathed a prayer.

And, lo! the fins of the waiting sharks could be seen as they lined up, leaving a clear passage of several feet for the desperate swimmer to make it safely to shore. "I prayed," said the preacher, "It was a miracle, nothing less!" "Miracle, my eye!" scoffed the doctor. "That was no miracle when those sharks stood back and let him swim by. That was just professional courtesy!"

Betsy Layne Explorer Scouts Third State Group To Attend Moose Lake Wilderness Camp

The third Boy Scout group from Kentucky to go to Moose Lake in northern Minnesota in its many years of service as a wilderness canoe base was a group of Explorers from Post 15, Betsy Layne.

After two days of travel the Post arrived on July 21 at the Charles L. Sommers Wilderness Canoe Base, B.S.A., just two miles south of the Canadian border. On the same day crews checked in from Houston, Texas, Denver, Colorado, and Cincinnati, Ohio, and began making preparations for the 85-mile canoe trip, with its 27 portages, that lay ahead.

The troop from Betsy Layne crossed the Canadian border on July 27 into Ontario where they spent the next nine days traveling by canoe and hiking over wilderness trails northward to McKinzie Lake in Canada, with Mike Smith, a 21-year-old Life Scout from Minnesota, acting as guide. The canoes and heavy packs made the going rough as the Scouts went from one lake portage to another.

As part of the Scout training, each boy in the Explorer Post was required to work to earn the money to cover all expenses of the trip, and back in early winter the project was started. The boys arrived back in Betsy Layne Friday night, August 7, full of enthusiastic reports of some wonderful experiences, although they had to admit there was also a great deal of hard work.

Funeral rites were conducted today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. around the scene without inflicting serious harm. Both fire and water caused damage to the newspaper machinery and stock. The newspaper is published by Mrs. Douglas Galbraith.

A funeral home across the street from the blaze was blistered by the heat and a window was broken. Charles Preston, owner of the funeral home and father of Sheriff Preston, estimated the damage at $2,500.

Fire Chief Howard termed the fire the most destructive experienced in Paintsville in the last 10 years.

FALL WEBWORMS NOW ATTACKING TREES
When you see loosely-woven, dirty white webs covering the foliage at the end of tree branches, you'll know the tree has been attacked by the fall webworm. These webs contain many caterpillars that are pale yellow with black spots. If possible, remove the infected branches, or cut out the webs, and destroy them, recommends R. L. Miller, UK Extension entomologist. Spraying with DDT (25 percent emulsifiable concentrate 2-4 tablespoons per gallon of water) also helps.

District Church Group Holds Ashland Meeting
Members of the Kentucky East district of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will meet at Ashland, Aug. 23, for their third quarterly conference for 1964. The conference will be held in the Ashland Chapel at 1511 13th st. The morning session will begin at 10:30, and the afternoon session at 1:30. The public is invited to attend both sessions of conference.
The conference will be presided over by Alvin C. Chace, mission president of the East-Central States Mission, with headquarters at Louisville.
The Kentucky East district is made up of branches at Ashland, Boldman, Cumberland, Martin, Maysville and Owingsville. Tracy A. Rice, of Russell, is president of the district.
In 1954, 20 children's agencies shared in funds raised by the first WHAS Crusade for Children. In 1953, 46 such organizations received grants.

SUPERHIGHWAYS INCREASE RURAL SECONDARY FUNDS
Kentucky's continuing construction of superhighways has brought about an increase of more than 25 percent in funds for the Rural Secondary road program, Highway Commissioner Henry Ward reported last week.
A survey of the last eight years, Ward said, showed that the two-cent gasoline tax, which pays for the Rural Secondary program, brought in $15,399,740 in 1956-'67. During that same year, 48 miles of interstate highways were open to traffic.
Seven years later, with 234 miles of Interstate open to travel, the program received $20,478,000.
"This experience indicates we can expect still more income for the rural road program in Kentucky as other interstate mileage is opened. Kentucky can well describe interstate highways as feeder roads, feeding needed funds into the construction of rural and secondary roads," Commissioner Ward said.
Also cited by the Kentucky Highway Commissioner was the income received by Kentuckians from out-of-state visitors since the major highway program got underway.
"In 1956, out-of-state visitors contributed $156 million to Kentucky's economy in the purchase of goods and services. Seven years later, the figure had risen to $220 million, an increase of 41 percent," Ward said.
A year-by-year breakdown of completed interstate highways and the contribution to the Rural Secondary program through the two-cent tax:
1956-'57, 48, $15,399,740; 1957-'58, 51, $16,178,259; 1958-'59, 53, $17,103,694; 1959-'60, 69, $17,474,727; 1960-'61, 72, $18,123,097; 1961-'62, 146, $18,181,432; 1962-'63, 178, $19,316,671; 1963-'64, 234, $20,478,000.

NEW TREES NEED WATER
Trees that were set during the last two years need watering now to prevent drought damage, says T. E. Pope, UK Extension horticulturist. Use plenty of water, soaking the ground slowly until the soil is moistened down to the tree roots.
The 1954 WHAS Crusade for Children raised $156,725.92. The 1963 Crusade collected some $299,095.69 for the handicapped children of Kentucky and southern Indiana.

Recall Family History

The lawyers led Squire Will back into the past, had him relate the family legends and tell of remote historical events of the region. He told the story of Jenny Wiley, Harman's Station and Blockhouse Bottom. He said that Indians lived, at one time, at Patrick Swirl.

All of this was obviously of little value as evidence that Nellie Burchett Hokiashee was of Indian blood. The attorneys excused him, asked Reuben Taylor, aged Prestonsburg resident, to testify.

Taylor said he was 79 years old, had lived on Buffalo and Cow Creek. He knew Roy Vaughan well while a young man. He called him Uncle Roy as a matter of respect for his age. The people of the community generally spoke of Roy as being of Indian blood. He hadn't known Tish or Letitia Vaughan, daughter of Roy who had married Thomas Burchett. The Burchetts, who were descendants of Roy Vaughan, had dark complexions, black hair and dark eyes.

Former Magistrate James Clark succeeded Taylor as witness. He was 68 years old, he said, a native of Buffalo Creek, near where Roy Vaughan lived. Clark had married Jeanette Spears, daughter of Lafe and Dolly Burchett Spears. He had lived within two miles of Fred Burchett, father of the claimant to the Indian estate. He knew Wash Burchett and his parents, Thomas and Tish Vaughan Burchett.

He had gone to school with Fred Burchett and "The boys would throw up to and accuse Fred of being an Indian." Clark went on to talk about Tish Burchett, said that the old people of the Buffalo and Johns Creek area always said she was part Indian. She left the area when he was very young. He recalled that when Fred Burchett was accused of being an Indian that he would laugh and agree with them. "He didn't deny it," Clark said. "It didn't make him a bit mad."

Mrs. Clark straightened the Burchett family genealogy out for Brown. She was a daughter of Dolly Burchett Spears and Lafe Spears. Dolly was a sister to Wash Burchett. Other brothers and sisters were Bart, Jack, Hettie, Belle and Lizzie. She was thus a granddaughter of Thomas Burchett and Tish Vaughan Burchett. Tish died in Missouri, Mrs. Clark said.

"I have always been told we had Indian blood in us," Mrs. Clark deposed. "My folks always said we were Indian, pretty much Indian. My mother said we were and that she was the one the Indian blood came through. She had long black hair and was kind of chubby-like woman, wasn't as tall as I am and a little heavier. Her complexion was dark and she had long black hair."

She described her mother's family. "They all had black hair. Uncle Wash was tall and slim. Uncle Bart wasn't as tall but he was blackheaded and so was Aunt Belle. I never knew Aunt Lizzie. She married Jack Osborne and lived in Missouri most of her life. We went out there on a visit but she was dead then. Aunt Belle married an Akers and lives in Sand Springs, Oklahoma. They all had black hair and dark eyes."

Mrs. Clark went back to talk about her grandmother, Mrs. Tish Vaughan Burchett. She said her grandmother had the physical characteristics of an Indian. "She was a little fleshy woman with coal black hair. She used to smoke and I used to light her pipe for her. I was five or six years old when she left here."

She concluded her testimony by answering a question of Brown's. "Your testimony is based on information that has been handed down to you by members of your family long prior to the time that any issue came up about Nellie being of Indian blood?" Brown asked. "Yes, years ago," Mrs. Clark answered. "I wasn't bigger than nothing when it was talked to me about Indian blood being in us as far back as I can remember."

The taking of depositions was adjourned until the afternoon and Howard introduced for the record a certified copy of a deed of division between Thomas Burchett and Letitia Burchett his wife and others, dated August 3, 1868. At the same time he submitted as evidence a copy of an indenture, dated April 24, 1836, in which Grandshire Ayres Vaughan conveys to LeRoy Vaughan, his grandson, a bay horse colt. This was the instrument that carried Nellie Burchett Hokiashee back to within one generation of her Indian forbear, Fair-a-Bee-Lunah, and William Patrick Vaughan.

That afternoon the attorneys swore former County Judge A. L. Davidson who testified that he knew many of the old Vaughans. Old Buren Vaughan was a brother of Roy Vaughan. He hadn't known Roy Vaughan. It had always been his understanding that the Vaughans had Indian blood. Old Buren Vaughan had "kind of reddish or brownish complexion."

Following Davidson's testimony, the taking of depositions was adjourned until two hours later. At 4 p.m. the attorneys and the notary, Elizabeth H. Layne, met at the store of F. M. Crider at German postoffice on Johns Creek. Crider, former teacher and now merchant and postmaster, was steeped in the lore of the Vaughan family. His mother, Elizabeth Vaughan, was a sister of Roy Vaughan. Crider knew Roy when he was a young boy and his uncle was old. He had slept with his uncle many times. Roy lived six miles up Buffalo Creek from the postoffice and came down regularly to stay nights at the home of William Crider and Elizabeth Vaughan Crider.

He knew the Burchett family well, also. He was a small boy when Thomas Burchett and Letitia Vaughan Burchett went to Missouri. Asked if Roy Vaughan, his uncle, had any Indian characteristics, he answered: "Yes, he was one of the trickiest men I ever saw in my life. He would do things through fun and then run off and get away from you. He would start up a racket and after he got a racket started up he would run off."

The incident of the conveyance of the colt by Ayres Vaughan to his grandson Roy must have been of importance in the family for Crider recalled hearing the matter discussed by his parents although it had occurred 108 years before. He didn't know why it had been discussed so often but he had heard them talk about it again and again. The Indian blood in the family was seldom discussed except by his mother, Crider said. She said she was part Indian. Crider also remembered that Andrew Jackson (Jack) Burchett, Fred's uncle, had claimed to be part Indian.

Everett, Missouri. His father, Thomas Burchett, "was an Irishman."

Grace Burchett, wife of Jack, added to the mounting testimony of the Vaughan family veins. She was a woman of education, discussed the tradition intelligently. She was intimately acquainted with Cherokees, and Osages, and had known her mother-in-law, Tish Vaughan Burchett. She had dark, black eyes and high cheek bones. She was a very reserved woman, Mrs. Burchett said, and when she did talk of her great-grandfather, Grandshire Vaughan, she said he couldn't "speak plain English; he talked very broken."

Grace Burchett pointed to one of her sons on the porch as having physical characteristics of an Indian but as a bit of evidence of Indian blood showing pictorially in the Vaughans, she submitted a picture of Letitia Vaughan Burchett and Thomas Burchett, her husband.

Attorney Brown took the proffered picture of Letitia Vaughan Burchett, scanned it closely, noting the dark complexion, the high cheek bones, straight hair and black eyes. "She was Cherokee, alright," he said as he offered the picture to be marked Exhibit A. The litigation dragged on into late 1944. November 10, that year the interested parties appeared in the Osage County Court and produced all of their testimony. Senator Cornett, asked for delay until November 20. On that date the court handed down a formal decree. It found that the heirs of Clarence Hokiashee, Osage Indian, were his child, Priscilla Lynn, one-half interest, and his widow, Nellie Burchett Hokiashee, of Cherokee ancestry, one-half.

Little legal maneuvering was needed after that to finally close the case. The District Court and the Indian Agency agreed soon afterward to accept the findings of the Osage County Court. It had been two centuries plus two years since William Patrick Vaughan, frontier trader, and Fair-a-Bee-Lunah, Cherokee maid, became man and wife in Western North Carolina. Neither litigants, attorneys or any of the descendants knew their names or story when the gavel came down finally and closed the file on the Clarence Hokiashee estate case. The past, however, had whispered for centuries and the voices of old men had become a substantive record at Pawhuska.

Having taken Crider's deposition, the attorneys adjourned till 5 o'clock when they met at the home of J. D. Fraley, a few miles distant. Fraley swore that everybody had always said the Burchetts, Vaughans and even the Criders were of Indian blood. To connect the Criders with the Vaughans he said that a daughter of Roy's, whose name he didn't recall, married John Crider. Brown wanted Fraley to specifically name elderly people who had said the Vaughans were part Indian. Fraley named his father, Powell Fraley, his uncle, Bill Fraley, Henry Taylor and Wes James.

The taking of evidence in Eastern Kentucky ceased with that of Fraley. Center of the legal struggle over the estate now shifted back to Oklahoma.

One year earlier, July, 1943, the deposition of Andrew Jackson Burchett had been taken at his home near Talala, Rogers county, Oklahoma. He was very ill and unable to go to Pawhuska to testify. He said that he was 78 years of age and had resided at Talala for "about 30 years." He was a son of Letitia Vaughan Burchett and Thomas Burchett, was born in Floyd county, Kentucky, May 6, 1869.

Asked if his mother Letitia was of Indian blood, he replied: "Yes sir, Cherokee." He described his mother. She was dark, had dark eyes and hair "as straight as could be." He said his grandfather Roy had the features of an Indian. He added that when the Burchett children went to school some one was sure to call them Indians.

When Jack Burchett moved to Oklahoma the story of his Indian blood became known and friends tried to get him to enroll as a Cherokee. "Fox McKellopp, who was a very wealthy man, tried to take me down there (Tahlequah) and get me enrolled and I wouldn't go. I told him I wouldn't have the darn country; I didn't think it would ever amount to much." Mr. Colville wanted to know how far Prestonsburg was from the North Carolina state line, a matter upon which Burchett had no accurate information. He didn't know for sure that Cherokee Indians had lived in North Carolina but he was convinced that his Indian blood came through Letitia Vaughan Burchett, who, he added, was buried

Recently-Enacted Law To Benefit Children Of Disabled Veterans

With schools opening across Kentucky, the Economic Security Department has completed its second annual project to encourage school attendance.

Economic Security Commissioner Earle V. Powell said service workers from his department have been contacting all families receiving public assistance under the program called Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).

Powell said reminders have also been mailed urging AFDC families "to make sure that your children between the ages of seven and 18 enroll in school on opening day and attend regularly."

State regulations require families receiving assistance under the AFDC program to have their children enrolled in school and attending regularly.

"Our public assistance field and service workers are trying to do something to counteract the tendency for low income families to allow their children to drop out of school, or not enroll at all," Powell said.

The Commissioner pointed to a 1961 study which indicated that the educational level of Kentucky's AFDC parents is lower than the statewide average. Nationwide figures, he added, show that children under the public assistance program have a higher dropout rate and make lower grades than average, although attendance by AFDC children is higher than the all-student average.

Powell said that in addition to counseling, workers have been planning with AFDC families for their winter clothing needs and necessary school expenses in order to avoid school problems in the future.

NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

The City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky will, until the 15th day of September, 1964, at the hour of 7:30 p.m., EST, receive in the office of its City Clerk, in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, sealed bids for the purchase of not less than par or any or all of the herein-after designated blocks of the City's $586,000 "Water, Sewer and Natural Gas System Revenue Bonds," being negotiable bearer, coupon Bonds, denomination $1,000, registrable as to principal only, dated November 1, 1963, maturing, serially November 1 of the years 1965 to 2003, inclusive, bearing interest at such rate or rates as may be established on the basis of competition, averaging not greater than the maximum acceptable figures as hereinafter provided. Delivery to be tendered and must be accepted, on November 3, 1964. Interest from November 1, 1964, will be represented by coupons maturing May 1 and November 1 in each year, beginning May 1, 1965. The maturity and redemption provisions, places of payment, and other details are set forth in the Statement of Terms and Conditions of Bond Sale.

The Bonds are special obligations of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, payable solely from and secured by a lien on and pledge of the gross revenues derived from the operation of the municipal combined and consolidated Water, Sewer and Natural Gas System of said City as added to, extended and improved through application of the proceeds of these Bonds, and Grants from Agencies of the United States Government. The revenues of said System are subject to prior liens and pledges previously made for the security and source of payment of the City's "Water Works Revenue Refunding Bonds," dated August 1, 1944, its "Water and Sewer Revenue Bonds," dated November 1, 1956 (which have been refunded in advance of the earliest permissible redemption date), and its "Water and Sewer Revenue Refunding Bonds," dated November 1, 1962.

Bids may be submitted for the following blocks of Bonds, subject in each instance to a maximum net interest cost as respectively indicated:
(1) All maturities in 1966 through 1973—3-1/2%
(2) All maturities in 1974 through 1978—3-1/2%
(3) All maturities in 1979 through 1983—3-1/2%
(4) All maturities in 1984 through 1988—3-3/4%
(5) All maturities in 1989 through 1993—3-3/4%
(6) All maturities in 1994 through 1998—3-3/4%
(7) All maturities in 1999 through 2003—3-3/4%
(8) The entire issue—3-3/4%

Subject to the foregoing maximum net interest costs, bidders shall stipulate the interest rate or rates for each block of Bonds, or for the entire issue, in multiples of 1/8 or 1/10 of 1%, none to exceed 6%, only one coupon rate per maturity, and no proposal either that interest becoming due on any Bond at any interest payment date be represented by more than one coupon, or that interest on any Bond be otherwise than at a single rate from its date to maturity. Bids for the entire Bond issue will be accorded preference over bids for individual blocks, except where the sum of the bids for all of the individual blocks results in a lower net interest cost for the entire Bond issue. For the purpose of determining the lowest bidder, calculations of net interest cost will exclude the bid of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, hereinafter described.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency has entered into a Loan Agreement with the City pursuant to which it will submit a bid at par and accrued interest at a single interest rate of 3-1/2%, providing bids are not received from other purchasers for the entire issue, or the above designated blocks, on the terms hereinabove indicated. AIRLINES CARRY ANIMALS IN INCREASING NUMBERS

Airlines are now carrying more animals than humans, Don Wharton describes some of the problems that they create for airlines and airports in a September Reader's Digest article, "Up in the Air With the Animal Kingdom."

In the United States, some 15 million laboratory animals travel by air each year. Tropical fish by the millions are air-shipped from the Far East. Air shipments of baby chicks from the United States to Japan are helping the Japanese to move away from their traditional fish diet.

Horse breeders have found air shipments preferable to sea trips for race horses, more than 2,000 of which have been flown across the Atlantic. The cost is higher than that of a sea voyage, but the air trip is shorter and easier on the horse.

Even elephants are joining the airborne animal kingdom. Some airlines always send a hen along with an elephant—the cackling and fluttering of the hen have a calming effect on the big beast.

Since its opening six years ago, the New York "animalport," built and maintained at Kennedy Airport by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has housed 386,000 animals of 126 species. Overnight charges range from $2.50 for a chimpanzee to $7 for a bull. There's even one animal who maintains permanent residence; a pet goat kept to quiet horses when they get restless before a takeoff.

Perhaps the strangest load was one brought in by a pilot some years ago after he had radioed for permission to land immediately, giving as his reason: "Crate load of monkeys loose in the plane." When the big plane glided to a stop on the runway, there was a monkey peering out of each porthole.

"But Why Did You Join The CATHOLIC Church?"

People are often stunned when they see a relative or friend "turn Catholic."

They can understand why someone might change from one non-Catholic faith to another, but to the Catholic religion—how could he do it? How, they wonder, can anyone of non-Catholic origin and background make such a choice when there are so many other faiths to choose from?

Thousands of converts join the world-wide Catholic Church every year. And there is no simple explanation of why they do so. Sometimes they are distinguished people whose conversion makes headlines and who when asked, give an articulate and convincing explanation. But more often these converts are just average people who have been moved by a combination of convictions.

In either case, it involves a difficult and momentous decision—a decision no sensible person would make out of mere curiosity or as a passing fancy. It means, in many cases, the forsaking of long-held views antagonistic to Catholicity... in other words, a radical change of doctrinal beliefs once considered incredible to the prospective convert.

It can be generally said, of course that some converts are attracted to Catholicity by the apostolic origin of the Church... by its world-wide unity of creed and worship... by its sacramental and distinctive form of ritual... by the authority claimed for its head, the Pope, as the Vicar of Christ on earth... by the whole system of truths which it prescribes for its people as a way of life.

mate and specific understanding of why so many people decide to "turn Catholic," let these converts tell you in their own words. A number of them do so in a new pamphlet just off the press, a copy of which we will be happy to send you on request and without charge.

Perhaps you will see in these stories a spiritual situation not unlike your own... and possibly a decision to investigate the claims of the Catholic Church may make sense to you after you learn why these other former non-Catholics decided to make such an inquiry. In any case, you'll be thrilled to see how the grace of God can work in the hearts of men when they seek sincerely for spiritual truth.

Write today for this new pocket-size pamphlet containing such titles as "God Kept Tugging at My Heart"... "I Wanted to Believe"... "From Sinner to Saint"... "My Search for the Real Church"... "My Religious Fulfillment"—and others. They are all interesting personal accounts that will touch your heart, make sense to your reason. Write today... ask for Pamphlet No. KC-27. Nobody will call on you.

BAGWORMS CAUSE MUCH DAMAGE THIS YEAR

Bagworm damage to trees and shrubs has been heavy this year, especially to evergreens. Take steps now to prevent further damage next spring, suggests R. L. Miller, UK Extension entomologist. Picking the spindle-shaped bags by hand and burning them is the best control measure. Or spray the tree thoroughly with diazinon, Toxaphene or malathion; see your county Extension agent for information on rates to use.

CAMPING FAMILIES SPEND TOTAL OF $158 IN STATE

Frankfort, Ky.—How much will that family of campers you meet on the highway spend in Kentucky?

According to a survey by a Louisville research firm—$158.47. At the request of the Kentucky Department of Public Information, Market Research Associates, Louisville, conducted personal interviews with 78 parties of campers chosen at random in two state parks on a recent week-end.

The survey revealed: The average camping party consisted of 4.3 persons, ranging from a low of two to a high of 12 persons.

The campers planned an average stay of 6.4 days, ranging from a low of one day to a high of 21 days.

The average camping party spent $158.47 with local vendors and businessmen, an average of $24.76 per party per day. Each individual camper spent an average of $33.20 in Kentucky during his camping trip.

Eighteen states were represented in this total, with 27 parties, or 35 percent, from Ohio. Kentucky ranked second with 18 groups, or 23 percent, and Indiana third with 10 groups, or 13 percent. The remaining groups of campers were from widely scattered areas and were from as far away as New York, New Jersey, Texas and Colorado.

Their average expenditure of $24.76 per day per camping group varied from a high of $6.44 per day for groceries to 54 cents for personal services (doctors, dentists, barber shops, beauty shops, etc.).

Surprising was the $4.91 per group daily average for fees and admissions to certain park facilities and to neighboring communities' museums, zoos, movies and other attractions. Likewise surprising was the $4.01 daily average per group for gifts, novelties and souvenirs.

Cost of items purchased ranged from a $75 guitar and $45 necklace bought in London to 10c toys. Purchase of drug store and clothing store items were frequently listed.

The survey included campers chosen at random in mid-July at Levi Jackson State Park, near London, and at General Burnside Island State Park at Burnside.

Many campers reported that they made the parks their home base from which to "sightsee all over the nearby country."

In addition to statistics, the survey racked up an observation or two on the trends of the times:

A vast majority of those interviewed said they chose a camping vacation to "get out in the wide open" and to "get away from everything."

A number had brought books to read but many volunteered they were purposely not listening to or reading any news reports.

Interviewers were uncertain how to list at least one reported purchase:

During an interview with a couple from a Southern state, the wife noted the cost of a sweater she had bought as $10. As the interviewers departed, the lady followed a little way and said, "I really paid more for that sweater, but I haven't broken the news to my husband yet."

Later the interviewers saw the husband on the golf course.

"I'm pretty sure my wife paid more than 10 bucks for that sweater," he said. "You know how women are on a trip."

Last year, a record total of 136,022 campers from all 50 states, 12 foreign countries, and the District of Columbia enjoyed Kentucky state park camping sites.

Campers at Mammoth Cave National Park and Cumberland Gap National Park and at privately-owned camping areas added to the total.

This year's prospect is even larger, according to Public Information Commissioner Cattie Lou Miller.

Education Problems May Have Been Solved For Disabled Veterans

About 1,750 totally disabled veterans in Kentucky have been informed by the Veterans Administration that the problem of sending their children to college may have been solved by a recently enacted law.

The new law extends benefits of the Orphans Education Assistance Act to children of living veterans who are totally and permanently disabled from service-connected causes, or were so disabled at the date of death.

Olney B. Owen, manager, Veterans Administration Regional Office, Louisville, explained that originally the orphans training program had applied only to children whose veteran parent had died as a result of military service in war time. Later, it was extended to include children of peacetime veterans who died of injuries or illness incurred in line of duty.

The new law takes in living veterans—at least 88,000 in the nation and an estimated 1,750 in Kentucky—of any wartime service beginning with the Spanish-American War, and during the induction period (peacetime) which began September 16, 1940, and extends to the present day. The same service-connected requirements hold true, he said.

Two stars of the 1955 WHAS Crusade for Children were established top vocalist, Don Cherry and pretty singer on her way up to success, Eydie Gorme.

SHEDDING LEAVES NOW?

Many elm trees, especially the Chinese elm, are shedding their leaves early this year. The reason is that elm leaf beetle larvae damaged the leaves earlier this summer; now the dry weather is causing these leaves to fall. Spraying now is a waste of time—the damage is already done, and the larvae have turned to pupae, which insecticides will not control. R. L. Miller, UK Extension entomologist, notes that, even though this early loss of leaves will not kill the trees, the elms should be sprayed in the spring to prevent further damage next summer.

WHAS' Jim Walton was officially named master of ceremonies of the Crusade for Children in 1955 and has been doing the job ever since.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky

By JOE JORDAN
(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week, Col. Adam R. Johnson was wounded and captured in a fight between his Confederate cavalry and the 48th Kentucky (Union) Infantry regiment near Wallonia, in Trigg county. The wound made him totally blind. Some of his troopers got away, but the next day they were overtaken at Caution, also in Trigg county, were defeated and dispersed. Thus ended Johnson's brief administration as commander of the Confederate States Military District of Southern Kentucky, which he had set up far behind enemy lines.

(In September, Johnson would be promoted brigadier general to rank from June 1. He was then 30 years old. He lived to be 83, and died in 1922.)

Another Confederate force that was operating in Kentucky at that time was one commanded by Col. George M. Jessee. The same day Col. Johnson was wounded, this group was at Jex's Landing in Carroll county, three miles above Ghent on the Ohio River, where it captured sixteen Negro soldiers of the 117th U. S. Infantry regiment.

During the week under review, the Democratic Party's national convention met at Chicago. Two sets of Kentucky delegates appeared—the Democrats and the Union Democrats, chosen at separate state conventions at Louisville. The national organization admitted both sets, giving the delegates half a vote each and advising them to work together in the coming presidential election. After considerable discussion, they came to an agreement. That united all Kentuckians who were opposed to President Lincoln's re-election, including some strong Unionists at one extreme and some ardent Southern sympathizers at the other.

At the Democratic convention, letters were read from two Kentuckians who had been chosen as delegates but could not attend because they had been arrested and were confined at Louisville as political prisoners. They were John W. Leathers, of Covington, and Dr. Joseph R. Buchanan, of Louisville.

A former governor of Kentucky, Charles A. Wickliffe, of Bardstonsville, spoke at the Chicago convention and attracted national attention with his description of conditions in the Commonwealth. He said: "Many of the best and most loyal citizens of Kentucky—among them twenty or thirty ladies—are now imprisoned by the military in Louisville, in damp and dirty cells, with only straw to lie upon, and the coarsest fare, and the newspapers of Louisville are forbidden to make the slightest allusion to this terrible state of affairs. I proclaim it here and now—at the risk of my liberty, perhaps of my life."

The marriage of Miss Sandra Sue Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Wright, Ft. Wayne, Indiana, and Mr. Max Jackson Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moore, also of Ft. Wayne, was solemnized on the afternoon of August 15 at 4 o'clock at the Wayne Street Methodist Church in Ft. Wayne.

For her wedding Miss Wright wore a gown of pure, white bouquet taffeta and Alecon lace. The fitted bodice of taffeta was fashioned with a scooped neckline and below-elbow sleeves. Alecon lace applique enhanced the bodice, and inverted, unpressed pleats formed fullness in the floor-length taffeta skirt which featured Alecon lace applique. A taffeta bow held in place a detachable wattleau train which extended from the back line of empire to a chapel length. Her veil of imported silk flusion was held in place by a small pillbox of taffeta and Alecon lace accented by seed pearls. She carried a white Bible, topped with a single yellow orchid, white stephanotis and ivy streamers. The maid of honor was Miss Patricia Ann Wright, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Miss Paulette Miller and Miss Helen Miller, both of Ft. Wayne. Miss Karen Moore, a cousin of the groom, was flower girl.

Mr. James Schmitt, Ft. Wayne, served the groom as best man. Ushers were Joseph Moore, Douglas Dayton, Pat Mussett and Vernon Bundy. Jack Moore, cousin of the groom, was ring-bearer.

The bride, who is a granddaughter of Mrs. Lora E. Conley of Tram, Kentucky, is a graduate of North Side high school, Ft. Wayne, and is presently employed as secretary-bookkeeper for Franklin Finance Co., Waynedale, Indiana. Majoring in art and drama, she held a four-year scholarship at the Fort Wayne Art College where much of her work has been exhibited. Included in the exhibit are many scenes and sketches resulting from her visits to the Big Sandy River Area of Kentucky. A student of dancing at the Charles Allen Studio, she has appeared as a model and as a singer and dancer on television, was a member of the Ft. Wayne Ballet and was active in the Civic Theatre.

Mr. Moore is a senior at Purdue University, majoring in engineering and is employed by the Grant Warehouse Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside at 7409 Bradbury in Ft. Wayne.

Perspective

BY ROBERT J. HASTINGS

HOW TO BREAK AN EGG

If you hold an egg too tightly, the shell will crumble and you will have a terrible mess in your hand. But if you hold it too lightly, it may drop to the floor and break.

The lowly egg has a message for us: Watch your grip on life — not too tight, not too light!

Take children, for example. Some parents keep such an iron-clad grip on their kids that they never learn to think for themselves. They slowly lose all originality, creativity, or curiosity for living. Other parents adopt a "hands off" attitude, only to see their children stumble and fall for lack of discipline and the security that goes with discipline.

Money is another example. Keep too tight a hold on it and you become a miser. Spend it too freely and you are a profligate. Or take yourself for another example. If you withdraw into a little world all your own, that world may be broken and crushed by your own narrowness. If you release yourself too freely, you may be labeled a do-gooder or an intruder in others' affairs.

The next time you hold an egg in your hand, remember that with too firm a grip, you break it; with too light a grip, you drop it. Life is that way. Watch how you handle it!

The first national star signed for the 1954 WHAS Crusade for Children was Mexican comedian Pedro Gonzalez-Gonzales. Others were Monica Lewis, Bill Hayes, The Metrotones, Don DeFore, Pat O'Brien and Hal LeRoy.

Tree-Planting Award Won by Pike-Co. Team;

Frankfort, Ky.—A Pike county team has won the 1964 Tree Planting Award Contest sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources, Commissioner J. O. Matlick has announced. Floyd county's team was second.

The winning team was made up of five county representatives of co-operating state and federal agencies, Matlick said. They worked together to help 224 landowners in Pike county plant 756,000 trees during this year's spring planting season.

Judging of county entries was based on the amount of teamwork among the participating agencies at the county level, the number of trees planted, number of landowners given on-the-farm assistance in planting, and information and education activities.

The winning team members received Conservation Merit Awards, and an expense-paid trip for two each to the fourth annual Conservation Congress at the Kentucky Hotel, Louisville, October 15-16. They will also receive bronze plaques at the Congress.

Honorable mentions in the contest were won by teams from Grayson, Leslie, Perry, Whitley and Webster counties.

Every recipient of a WHAS Crusade for Children grant must submit a quarterly report to the "Moral Side of the News" panel of ministers, allocators of the funds.

Breathitt Orders State Agencies To Implement Anti-Poverty Program

Kentucky is moving swiftly to implement the new Federal Economic Opportunity (anti-poverty) Act.

Meeting with his cabinet recently, Governor Edward T. Breathitt called on department heads "to use the full force and muscles of your agencies to implement the Act at the very earliest possible moment to insure that Kentucky will receive maximum benefit."

Total dollar benefit to Kentucky is estimated at $20 million, Breathitt said. So far, $6.5 million has been allocated to the state for three of the act's nine programs. The three are:

1. $4.4 million to finance community-action programs in the fields of health, welfare, job training, vocational rehabilitation, housing and home management and adult education. The 10-to-one matching formula will add some $440,000 in local funds.
 2. $1.4 million to help some 3,000 needy graduate and undergraduate college students earn money to continue their education.
 3. $653,000 to teach adult illiterates to read and write. State funds will be added on a nine-to-one matching formula.
- Other programs authorized by the act include:

- A. A Job Corps to provide needy youths ages 12 to 21 with basic education, work experience, and vocational training at special rural conservation camps or urban centers. One of the conservation camps may be located in Kentucky's Cumberland National Forest.
- B. Work-training to help high school students, vocational students, and those who have dropped out of school earn money to continue or resume their education.
- C. A program for low-income rural families, which will provide loans up to $1,500 to improve farm operations and up to $2,500 to finance non-agricultural, income-producing enterprises, and to finance cooperatives organized by low-income families.
- D. Small-business loans up to $25,000 to be made by the Small Business Administration on more liberal terms than are now allowed.
- E. Public work programs for unemployed fathers and adults, similar to the pilot project initiated in nine Eastern Kentucky counties early this year.
- F. A domestic Peace Corps of 5,000 volunteers to work on anti-poverty projects, mainly on the community level.

Governor Breathitt described the new program as "a cooperative undertaking by all levels of government—federal, state and local—to strike at the cause of poverty, not just the consequences. The Act is not a hand-out but a realistic program that will give people a chance to become self-supporting."

"This program," Breathitt added, "will be most helpful in our continuing search for a better life for all Kentuckians. To President Johnson and to the members of the Senate and House who supported the Act, we owe a debt of gratitude because the program strikes at the very heart of so many of Kentucky's problems."

Breathitt announced that Kentucky's Area Program Office, the nation's only state-level agency comparable to Sargent Shriver's Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, will direct and coordinate the anti-poverty programs for Kentucky.

John Whisman, who heads the Area Program Office, immediately began conferring with nine teams consisting of state officials named by Breathitt and representatives of federal and private agencies. Whisman said each team is concentrating on a specific phase of the Economic Opportunity program while all will work on the total program with the Kentucky Development Committee.

Basic information on the entire program will be presented at area meetings throughout the state in September, October and November, Whisman added. The Area Development Councils—multi-county groups dedicated to development on a regional basis—will serve to coordinate information and action in each area, he said.

The anti-poverty programs in Kentucky, Whisman said, could touch some 290,000 families who earn less than $3,000 a year, the general yardstick used by the program's planners.

The act authorizes a total of some $947.5 million. These funds will be appropriated in the budget bill, usually acted on by Congress in September or October, Whisman said. Plans being laid in Kentucky now will enable the state to make use of the new federal money as soon as it is appropriated.

State matching funds are available in the Departments of Education, Economic Security, Agriculture and other state agency budgets, Whisman said.

Junkyard Operators Complying With Law At Steady Pace, Said

Junkyard operators are complying with Kentucky's screening law at a steady pace, according to Highway Commissioner Henry Ward.

Ward said that 27 permits were issued during the period July 24-August 12, bringing to 67 the total number of permits issued since July 1 this year when enforcement of the law was undertaken by the Highway Department's Office of Compliance.

Ward noted that the Office of Compliance issues permits only after junkyard owners have complied with the law by erecting suitable screens.

In addition, Ward said, 82 junkyards submitted applications for permits during July. This upped the total number of applications received by the Department to 371. A plan for screening is submitted with each application and must be approved by the Department before a permit is issued.

Ward also pointed out that the number of junkyards in Kentucky had decreased by 92 during the period June 8-July 31. On June 8 there were 997 junkyards, he said. Between that date and July 31, 242 junkyards ceased operations and 150 were added to the Department's list, thus leaving 905 in operation.

"Almost all the junkyard operators who left the business were those who kept only a nominal number of junk vehicles on their premises and therefore felt it wasn't worth it to pay the $50 permit fee and screen their yards," Ward concluded.

CONFERENCE ON RELIGION, SCHOOLS SET AUGUST 13

A state-wide conference on religion and the schools held in Louisville, August 13 and 14, revealed that for the most part school administrators do not understand the Supreme court's decision on prayer in the classroom.

Paul Oberst, professor of law at the University of Kentucky, told the more than 300 persons attending the conference that the confusion can be traced partly to educators and partly to several legal opinions from the state's attorney general's office.

Oberst said the attorney general's office has issued unclear opinions on prayer and Bible reading in the schools and that lawyers and state legislators have not clearly defined what is legal in the matter of religion and the schools.

Another speaker, Wilbur G. Katz, professor of law at the University of Wisconsin, said the Supreme Court decision prohibits an individual teacher from deciding on his own to conduct prayers in the classroom.

But Samuel A. Alexander, assistant superintendent of public instruction, told the group that a study he made by mailing questionnaires to school superintendents revealed that of Kentucky's 204 school districts, at least 124 of them allow teachers to conduct prayers or read the Bible to their classes at their own discretion.

Only 53 school superintendents said such practices were not allowed in their districts.

Other practices in the realm of religion and the schools revealed by Alexander's survey were:

Only 61 school districts discontinued Bible reading and prayer after the Supreme Court decision of June 17, 1963, which declared unconstitutional those prayers and Bible readings which were required by schools. Kentucky law requires such classroom exercises.

In 23 districts pupils have organized, on a voluntary basis, devotional sessions in which prayer or Bible reading is utilized during school hours.

A total of 178 school districts will continue to hold baccalaureate services for graduating classes, but three districts have discontinued this.

Boards of Education in 131 districts have made attendance at baccalaureate services voluntary, while 38 districts require attendance on the part of graduating students.

A total of 26 districts said they had been under very great pressure from outside groups to continue prayer and Bible reading as a part of the regular school program, while 151 districts said they had been under no such pressure.

A total of 132 districts said they have received no help from their local ministerial association in the solution of the problem created by the Supreme Court decision, but 41 districts said they have received help from their ministerial association.

Superintendents in 170 school districts said they could detect no change in the pupils' attitude toward religion since the court decision, but six superintendents said they could detect a change in attitude.

Dr. Harry M. Sparks, Superintendent of Public Instruction, gave the group a comparative view of religious practices in German and American schools. Dr. Sparks recently returned from a month-long study of West German schools.
