This Town ... That World

THEY ALSO SERVE

Isaac Stratton was a gentleman in the truest sense of the word — God's gentle man. His witness was not a sometime thing or a matter of convenience; he knew whom he believed, and so he set for all who knew him a living example of faith in action. But, much as he meant to go many and however well he served, let us not forget that much of the credit for his greatness of service to God and man belongs to his wife. Without the encouragement of this woman, who remained in the background, without her willingness to join him in sacrifice of many creature comforts and to spare him for the service of others, his work would doubtless have been greatly hampered. In our recognition of human worth, let us not forget the mothers and the wives who share their men with a needy world, accepting for themselves lack of material needs and even the anonymity which so many of us fight to shun.

EXCEPTIONS

The argument has been made that all words which begin with 's' are ugly words. These examples are given to prove the statement: slut, slander, slur, slob, sloth, sloven, and so on.

But there are happy exceptions, we are here to state. For example: Slumber, slatone, sleepy, slender.

SALISBURY JURY HUNT CONTINUES

Murder Trial Stalled On Jury Qualifications; Venue Change Viewed

The Floyd circuit court opened Monday to begin the slow, often exasperating, job of attempting to empanel a jury under the death penalty qualification for the trial of Roy Salisbury, charged with the murder of Mrs. Mallie Denny, one of three persons who were shot to death near Drift.

The Commonwealth by Wednesday morning was nearing the conclusion that such a jury could not be qualified here.

The first attempt at trial of Salisbury was made last month, with veniremen summoned from Floyd county. That failing, the case was continued till Monday, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley directing that the jury this time be summoned from neighboring Martin county.

As of Tuesday afternoon, 133 Martin countians had been examined, and only six had been seated as prospective jurors. Sheriff Henry C. Hale was ordered to summon 200 more to appear here Wednesday.

At 10 a.m. Wednesday, two others had temporarily qualified for jury service. But neither the defense nor the Commonwealth had exercised any challenges. The defense is entitled to 15 challenges; the prosecution to five.

A change of venue may be made on motion of either the defense or the Commonwealth.

In the October attempt to empanel a jury from this county a total of 763 veniremen were called and 370 were examined for jury service. The shift to Martin county for trial jurors was made because officials thought that case had been discussed there less than in any county contiguous to Floyd. The law provides that a jury, if the trial is to be held here, must be from Floyd or some bordering county.

Revered Minister's Friends Plan Erection Of Life-Size Memorial; Committee Urges Contributions

The Rev. Isaac Stratton Memorial Fund, organized last week by friends of the revered minister, was created to finance the purchase of a life-size statue of him. It was announced this week. Solicitation of funds began almost immediately.

Leading the drive for funds are Rev. William Amburgey, Harry Snodgrass, Allie Howard and Rev. Carl Centers.

It is proposed to have a life-size statue of the deceased minister sculptured in Italy from Carrara marble. Rev. Amburgey said. The statue will depict Rev. Stratton standing with a Bible in his uplifted hand. It will be erected in Jones cemetery at Banner. The statue will be provided through the facilities of Sandy Valley Building Stone and Monument Company, of Allen, at no profit to them.

"The fund has been organized in memory of a man who was a faithful servant to all," Rev. Amburgey said. "The money will be used for no other purpose than the purchase of the memorial. Records will be kept and you will be given a receipt for your contribution. Make your contributions to your bank, church or pastor or mail directly to the Rev. Isaac Stratton Memorial Fund, Box 293, Allen, Kentucky."

One duplex unit of the $655,000 low-rent public housing complex being constructed at the "Forks of Beaver," near Martin, is shown as the project nears completion. The housing facilities there are located on a hillside facing on Ky. 80 and overlooking the valley.

TRAIN KILLS MRS. STATON

Auxiliary Woman Victim Early Sunday Morning; Native of Johns Creek

Mrs. Sophia Owens Staton, 68-year-old Auxiliary woman, was almost instantly killed early Sunday morning when she was struck by a train as she walked across the railway tracks near her home.

Mrs. Owens was knocked clear of the tracks, a distance of approximately 50 feet. She was only two steps, at the most, from safety when hit, it was said. Her injuries included a broken neck, fractured skull, crushed chest and broken legs.

Engineer of the train, C. R. Lockwood, said the train was travelling at 32 miles an hour when he applied the emergency brakes. Repeated whistle warnings were sounded, and acquaintances said Mrs. Staton either did not hear the approaching train or "froze" in panic when she saw it.

Other members of the train crew were Russell Kelly, conductor, and R. D. Witt, brakeman.

The victim was a daughter of Ewell and Martha Bowles Owens and was born at what was at the time known as Dewey, a short distance downstream from the site of Dewey Dam. She was a member of the Auxiliary Methodist Church, the Order of Eastern Star and the White Shrine. She leaves a brother, Henry Owens, of Paintsville.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday from the Auxiliary Methodist Church, the Revs. S. C. Honeycutt, Josephus Howard and T. A. Patton officiating. Burial was made in the Owens family cemetery on Johns Creek under direction of the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

GROUP ASKS PROJECTS OK

Planning Association Submits Educational Program To Breathitt

Governor Edward T. Breathitt will be asked today (Thursday) to approve three proposed educational projects in this county for action and implementation under the recently-enacted Economic Opportunity Act.

County Superintendent Charles F. Clark, Paul Gearheart, president of the Floyd County Planning and Development Association, and State Representative W. J. Reynolds, Jr. will submit the proposed projects to the governor. The projects were approved by the full body of the development association here Tuesday evening. (Separate story).

The three proposals envision the broadening of educational advantages in this county for groups not in the regular school system. They are an adult education program, the establishment of 13 mobile kindergarten units and a work-study program to assist needy teen-agers to continue their high school education. The latter program would aid approximately 300 students.

The education committee of the development association, headed by Reynolds, has been studying the expansion of educational needs of the county that cannot be completely met by the board of education. Wayne Ratliff, assistant superintendent of schools, read the committee's suggestions to the regular meeting of the county development group.

Floyd county's last fire was extinguished Tuesday at Brainard but several others had been put out earlier. No estimate was available as to the number of burned-over acres.

It is the five other counties that with Floyd comprise the Big Sandy district that are the hardest hit, according to the Division of Forestry personnel here. A service forester, after the completion of an aerial tour of the counties of Pike, Lawrence, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties, reports that 16 fires are burning at present and have ravaged 4,700 acres. Five fires erupted Tuesday.

Several fires have been going for days in Magoffin and Martin counties, many of them put out earlier but breaking out again almost immediately. Arson is suspected in many Johnson county fires.

Every available man who could be mustered by the Division of Forestry is in the woods seeking to control the fires which are considered the worst in years. All unemployed fathers on various public projects in Johnson, Lawrence, Martin, Pike and Magoffin counties have been integrated into fire fighting crews.

The Division of Forestry here urges that the public refrain from burning any kind of trash or debris outdoors, since high winds are forecast for today (Thursday).

REV. ISAAC STRATTON VICTIM IN 91st YEAR

Death ended last Friday 61 years of unflinching labor for the Rev. Isaac Solomon Stratton, revered Floyd county minister.

He died at the Prestonsburg General hospital at 9:20 a.m. after an illness of three weeks.

Although 90, the Banner man who through his ministries became known as "The Little Shepherd of the Hills" remained active until his last illness. At the time of his death he was pastor of Free Will Baptist Churches at Cow Creek, Sammy Clark Branch at Harold and Buffalo at Endicot.

He became a Christian in 1899 and was ordained as a minister in 1903. Since that time his work in the pulpit, traveling to isolated homes, usually afoot, in all weathers, to minister to the sick and the dying, to comfort the bereaved and conduct the last rites for the dead, had been almost unceasing. Under his leadership from 3 to 15 churches were organized. He preached 3,000 or more funerals, and officiated at more than 3,000 marriages.

A carpenter, the Rev. Stratton made the coffins for many of those whose funerals he preached. During the 1917 flu epidemic, almost the entire population was stricken. Among the sick was the Rev. Stratton. Whereupon survivors buried their dead and waited till he was well and going again for him to preach their funerals.

A few years ago, friends suggested that the people should buy him an automobile to make his travels easier. The preacher declined the offer. "I don't need a car," he said. "This is true—sight of the slight figure walking at a roadside invariably brought a passing motorist to a halt to offer him a ride. And where the road for cars ended he walked.

The son of Allen Monroe and Mary Elizabeth Williams Stratton, he was born February 12, 1874 on Mare Creek, moving at the age of six with his parents to Banner where he resided for the remainder of his life. He was married April 19, 1900, to Sallie May, daughter of D. W. and Susan Milam May, of Means, Montgomery county. To them were born four children: W. N. Stratton, of Ashland; Ballard L. and Johnnie S. Stratton, both deceased, and Emma Katherine Stratton, of Banner. Two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Cecil, West Lake, Ohio, and Mrs. Florida Johnson, Cleveland, Ohio, survive, as do three grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The funeral, which was conducted Monday afternoon from the auditorium of the Allen school, was attended by one of the largest crowds to gather on such an occasion in this county, and among these were many whose relatives the venerable minister had buried, many at whose marriages he had officiated. The last rites were conducted by the Revs. W. M. Amburgey, W. D. Jagers and James Stratton. Burial was made in the Jones cemetery at Banner under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Active pallbearers were Rev. Fred McGinnis, Rev. C. H. Furman, Chester Patton, Braxton Thompson, William Darby, Rev. Abe Vanderpool, J. E. Harris and Larry Goble. Honorary pallbearers were Rev. Carl Centers, Rev. Henry Crider, Sam Cecil, Elmer Rice, Alex Weddington, Mont Hall, Rev. John W. Conley, Bill Foley, Rev. Willie Rice, Rev. Bert Conn, Dock Hall, Rev. Con Campbell, Ben Westfall, Eugene Allen, Frank Crum, Wyatt Martin, Rev. Smiley Johnny Jarvis.

The 60-year-old Hill was county judge of Floyd county for two four-year terms, starting in 1933, then in 1945 was elected circuit judge of the 31st judicial district—a post he held till his defeat last year by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

The appellate judgeship is for an eight-year term, and the office pays a salary of $20,000 a year.

Judge Hill, son of Former County Judge Ed Hill, Sr., of Abbott Creek, now a resident of Mt. Sterling, was educated at Berea College, Bowling Green Business University and the Jefferson School of Law. He is president of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, is a member of the Baptist Church and belongs to the Masonic Order and the Order of Odd Fellows.

His wife is the former Maria Doss, of Canton, Georgia, and they have two sons and two daughters.

Alex Wallen, 63, Dies At Water Gap; Funeral Held At Home Saturday

Alex Wallen, 63, of Water Gap, died Wednesday of last week at home. Death was due to cancer.

Mr. Wallen was a son of John and Minerva Clark Wallen. His wife, Lizzie Lewis Wallen, survives. He was a member of the United Baptist Church.

Surviving sons are Dewey Wallen, Tavis Wallen, Otis Lee Wallen, all of Water Gap. Four surviving sisters are Mrs. Elsie Calhoun, West Prestonsburg, Mrs. May Calhoun, and Mrs. Dick Branham, both of Water Gap, and Mrs. W. M. Shepherd, of Dwale.

Funeral services were held Saturday from the home, the Revs. Wallace Calhoun, Jack DeRossett and Bill Justice officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery under the direction of Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

FIRE RAZES RESIDENCES

Ten Garrett Dwellings Saved by Firefighters; Water Heater Blamed

Three residences were destroyed by fire at Garrett Monday afternoon, and only the work of the Allen Fire Department and Garrett's Civil Defense unit prevented the possible destruction of 10 other dwellings.

The fire started in the home of widowed Pearl Goodman, who is seriously ill in a hospital. The dwelling, it was said, was not occupied at the time, and little if anything was saved. Explosion of a water heater or a gas stove is blamed for the blaze.

The fire spread to the nearby home of Jim Sammons, then crossed the street to that of Junior Hall. Some of the belongings of the Sammons and Hall families were saved. The blaze was discovered around 3 p.m. and was not completely brought under control till two hours later.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department answered the call for help but arrived after the fire was fairly well under control.

The homes destroyed are those which were built by the Elk Horn Coal Corporation in Garrett Hollow when the mining town was founded but which later were sold to various individuals.

Dr. Holbrook Injured In Highway Accident; Thigh, Knee Fractured

Dr. James Holbrook, of the Prestonsburg General hospital staff, was seriously injured, Wednesday night of last week, in the collision of his auto with a truck on new U. S. 23, a short distance outside Paintsville. He is in Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington, receiving treatment for a broken thigh and knee, a fractured rib and a head laceration.

Dr. Holbrook's condition is good, and he is expected to be able to return to his home here in about three weeks. He underwent an operation on his thigh Tuesday, and will soon have knee surgery.

Use of a seat-belt is credited with saving the physician's life as his small sports-model auto was reduced to a mass of wreckage. It was said here that he was driving back to Prestonsburg and was approaching an Adams Construction Company truck in the vicinity of Hardware Charlie's bottled gas plant, between Paintsville and Hager Hill. This report says the truck cut to its left as if to leave the highway, and that Dr. Holbrook responded by cutting his car to his left, but that the truck-driver then swerved back toward his own lane of traffic.

PLAN GROUP IS STUDYING FLOYD ILLS

Ten Areas Researched For Salient Problems, UK Sociologist Speaks

A little-publicized group the Floyd County Planning and Development Association, Inc., headed by Paul Gearheart, of Harold, has been quietly at work for months in this county seeking to define many of the county's problems and to formulate remedies. One of its first definite steps forward is being taken today (Thursday) with the submission of three educational proposals to Governor Breathitt for his approval as required by the federal Economic Opportunity Act. (See separate story.)

Ten committees have been searching problems in as many fields. These are minerals, industry and finance, tourism and recreation, land use, agriculture, health and safety, welfare, education, family living and community services.

Its regular meeting at the courthouse here Tuesday evening was advised by Ralph Ramsey, University of Kentucky rural sociologist, to "chop up your problems, isolate them and solve them."

He said the planning group had an opportunity to get what it wants in many fields as it could meet the planning requirements of top governmental levels.

Ramsey added that "the purpose of planning is to bring about changes the people want." He said that the federal government had technicians in many fields who can be called in and it was the obligation of a planning group to request assistance from governmental technicians.

Several reports, in varying stages of completion, were read by committeemen. C. B. Latta discussed the rough draft of an industry report and among several area problems he mentioned isolation of the area, inadequate transportation, lack of industrial sites of the right kind, lack of a trained labor force, lack of modernization of retail firms and intra-firm cooperation, timber and wood utilization and the inadequate integration of the tourist business and social community.

Latta suggested tentative goals for a five-year period.

The health and safety report was submitted by Earle Compton, of the Health Department, in the temporary absence of Harry Banks, chairman. Compton discussed the need of sewage and garbage disposal. The committee recommended a slower speed than 60 miles per hour by drivers, greater use of guardrails where needed, the creation of passing lanes and more attention to school bus.

UNION WINS WAGE HIKE

Oil Company Grants Two Percent Increase Effective November 4

Employees of the Cities Service Oil Company were granted a 2% wage increase and other benefits under terms of a new wage contract between the Company and Local Union 3-584, it was announced this week. The new contract became effective Nov. 4.

(Cities Service is more commonly known here as the Columbia Fuel Corporation.)

The contract was negotiated without difficulty, Glenn D. Allen, chairman of the contract committee, said.

Under terms of the new pact the following vacation schedule will become effective, Jan. 1:

Two weeks' vacation after one year of continuous service; three weeks after five years; four weeks after 10 years and five weeks after 20 years. This represents an additional vacation week for those employed five or more years.

The labor agreement, as amended, will extend to March 1, 1967, subject to be reopened under notice from either party to the contract on or after Dec. 1, 1965 on the matter of rates of pay and/or hours of work.

The company also extended to Eastern Kentucky employees, subject to Treasury Department approval, a change in its retirement plan. This would provide for a change, effective Jan. 1, 1965, of the early retirement discount formula from 5% to 3% per year.

DEMO HILL REPLACES GOP BIRD ON COURT

When Floyd county's Edward P. Hill takes office next January as a judge of the Court of Appeals the Appellate bench will be occupied completely by Democrats for the first time since 1956.

He will fill the seat vacated by another member of the court from this county—Bert T. Combs, who resigned in 1955 to make his first race for the governorship. Judge Astor Hogg, Democrat, was appointed to fill Combs' place on the bench Hill in the 1955 election, and Judge Hogg then defeated Robert B. Bird, of London, for the remaining year of Combs' term. In 1956, however, Bird, benefiting from the Eisenhower landslide, defeated Judge Hogg for the full eight-year term.

This judicial district has elected three judges—one Democrat and two Republicans—to the Appellate bench who also became governors. The first was Flem D. Sampson, then Simeon S. Willis, and the last was Bert Combs.

(This composition was written by Cindy Smith, sixth grade student in Prestonsburg elementary school in a spelling class assignment.)

After a period of time our family have outgrown our car so that to get in we have to squeeze and sit on each other's laps.

So we get a car that increases our bills otherwise the car that we had before would burst and that would spoil the appearance.

There's always a difference between cars (unless it is the same model). Some have tops that go down. (That's the kind I want. I hate the smell of a hard-top with cigars, ik! mixed with it.) Some have air-conditioners and so on. So, I'd advise you to look carefully before you choose.

The manufacture must be that of splendor. I could conduct it with ease to decide how much gasoline I would buy in a month and how it would behave on the road. (I would suggest you do this in case you have any doubt in the manufacture.)

The result may be good or bad—there's a million cars for sale and you can't look at them all. But you will know the minute you drive in that garage of yours. Why, you may have just made a chapter in motor history.

So I am proud to say I would get a Mustang.

(This composition of Miss Smith's is published by Jack Walters Ford, Inc., agent for Mustangs, with its compliments.) (Adv.)

No Polio In 23 Months In Kentucky, Announced

No polio in Kentucky now for 23 months!

That's the happy record through October, says Dr. Russell E. Teague, state health commissioner.

Two suspects checked recently did not have polio, Dr. Teague added, and another polio suspect checked earlier was found to have tubercular meningitis.

Last year was the first in which Kentucky went a full 12 months of any calendar year without a case of polio. The last case in this state was in November, 1962, according to Dr. Teague.

Kentucky's "perfect record" for 23 months is particularly significant because of a 10-year state average of 434 cases and 26 fatalities per year from 1951 through 1960.

Nationally, the polio record continues pleasingly, too, Dr. Teague said.

The Communicable Disease Center of the U. S. Public Health Service, in Atlanta, Ga., reported only seven paralytic cases in the nation in October, as compared with 66 in the same month last year. Kentucky had four cases in October 1961, and one in October 1962, the two waning years of incidence.

Through October of this year, only 95 cases were reported from all over the nation, 76 of them paralytic. Comparative totals for the nation through the first 10 months for last year were 353 cases with 301 paralytic.

New York and North Carolina have had the most 1964 cases, 10 each. Other leading states of incidence have been Florida with nine, Indiana with six, and Illinois and Texas with five each.

Salk and Sabin oral vaccines have helped to eliminate polio, health officials believe. The Sabin oral variety, a weakened strain of the live virus, is used mostly in Kentucky now.

Dr. Teague said that vaccine still is available in most of Kentucky's 120 counties in clinics sponsored by local medical societies and volunteer organizations in cooperation with county health departments.

Harlan County Voters Approve Library Tax

Frankfort—Harlan county voters approved a library tax of seven cents per $100 assessed property valuation and Calloway county defeated a similar tax of 10 cents in the November 3 balloting.

The tally was 3,519 to 2,833 in Harlan where the tax will provide about $15,000 annually for local library and Bookmobile services.

State Librarian Margaret Willis added that approval of the tax fixes location of a new library region headquarters at the city of Harlan. The region, she said, will open July 1 and will include branch service in the nearby town of Cumberland. Participating counties in the new region have not been named, she said.

Calloway defeated the library vote proposal 3,500 to 1,639.

Green, Nelson, Rowan and Hickman counties are currently circulating petitions to form a library district and levy a small property tax for library services.

Six counties have circulated successful petitions since a new state law went into effect June 1. The petitions require the signatures of qualified voters totaling 51 per cent of the votes cast in the last general election.

REVENUE OF 2 PARKWAYS GREATER THAN ESTIMATED

Kentucky's two new Parkways—the Mountain and the Western—are already doing better than their older cousin, the Kentucky Turnpike, did the first year of its operation. Highway Commissioner Henry Ward announced this week that both the Mountain Parkway and the Western Kentucky Parkway are producing revenues greater than the engineers who planned them estimated they would. This is something that the Kentucky Turnpike did not begin to do until its sixth year of operation. The Mountain Parkway is in its second year. It was opened in January of 1963, and by June revenues had climbed above the average monthly estimate of $38,166 to $42,594. They stayed above the estimate for remainder of the year, reaching a peak of $50,893 in August. This year, the Mountain Parkway, 33 miles longer than in 1963, surpassed the average estimate of $68,583 a month earlier. May collections were $79,952. To date, revenues have stayed above the estimate. The best month has been July, when $95,311 was collected.

planned as part of a system of major routes in Eastern Kentucky that is more than 200 miles long. To date, only a dozen miles of these major routes have been opened to traffic. Even without these essential connecting routes, the Mountain Parkway has produced for 12 out of the 21 months it has been open, revenues exceeding those forecast by the engineers. The Western Kentucky Parkway, the western end of which was deferred until such time as Interstate 24 should be located definitely, stops short of its planned goal of Paducah by some 50 miles. It does not yet reach even to Kentucky Lake, the recreation areas around which were expected to generate a sizable portion of the traffic on this toll facility. Still, the Western Kentucky Parkway already has exceeded the engineers' estimates twice during the first ten months of full toll operations.

At the beginning of 1964, the Western Kentucky Parkway had been open two months and a few days. Toll collections for January totaled $69,152. With the coming of summer, revenues leaped over the average monthly estimate of $162,000 and went to $175,625 in July. They stayed at this level during August, when the total was $174,213. The post-Labor Day dip took revenues down to $137,483.

Although the Kentucky Turnpike is considered one of the nation's healthiest toll roads, and is expected to pay for itself 22 years sooner than originally planned, the early years of its operation did not show much cause for optimism. By contrast, the Parkways are showing their potential much earlier, even though they are handicapped. When the engineers sat down to forecast what could be expected in the way of traffic on these roads, they assumed that certain connecting roads that would tend to increase the flow of traffic on the toll roads would be ready for travel as soon as the Parkways were opened. As it worked out, this has not been true on either the Mountain Parkway or the Western Kentucky Parkway.

The Mountain Parkway, which is 76 miles long, is designed and

The rare volume on pioneer Kentucky families entitled, HISTORIC FAMILIES OF KENTUCKY, by Thomas Marshall Green, has been reprinted by the Regional Publishing Company of Baltimore, a firm specializing in reprinting books on state and local history. His book gives an account of the early history and formation of Kentucky, woven around three great founding families, the McDowells, Logans and Alleens—all related by intermarriage—and their descendants. Family history, as the title implies, occupies the greater part of this book.

Rare Kentucky Volume Republication Slated; Details Early History

These families of Scotch-Irish extraction emigrated to America early in the eighteenth century, settling first in the Valley of Virginia, and later moving into the wilderness of Kentucky. The book is replete with accounts of their hardships and perils, tales of individual accounts of heroism and frequent skirmishes with the Indians. Not content with fighting battles at home, they also took an active part in the French and Indian wars, and fought in both the American Revolution and the War of 1812.

The original edition of this book, which was published in 1839, has long been unobtainable. Respiratory diseases, accounting for more than 170,000 deaths annually, are now the fourth leading cause of death in the U. S., after heart, cancer and strokes. RD deaths were 13.3 percent higher in the 1960-62 period than five years earlier, exceeding the 11.4 percent rate increase for heart disease, the leading cause of death, and the 9.4 percent rate increase for all mortality.

Allocation Is Approved For 3 Airport Runways

Frankfort, Ky.—Governor Edward T. Breathitt has approved an allocation of $40,000 of state money to help pay for paving airport runways at Morehead, Cynthiana and Whitesburg.

Total cost of the three projects will be $272,000, with federal and local governments putting up the remainder of the money. State money will come from the capital construction fund.

Breathitt said, "These airport improvements are another example of efficient cooperation between the state and the federal government to help communities help themselves."

At Morehead, 2,800 feet of the Morehead-Rowan county airport runway will be paved with bituminous concrete at a total cost of $82,000, with the state supplying $15,000; local people, $15,000, and the federal government, $62,000.

Three thousand feet of the Cynthiana airport runway will be paved with bituminous concrete at a total cost of $24,000. The state will supply $12,000, local people $12,000 and the federal government $60,000.

At Whitesburg, 2,550 feet of runway will be paved with bituminous concrete. The $96,000 cost will be divided this way: state, $22,000; local, $22,000, and federal, $52,000.

"The paving of these runways will permit these airports to be all-weather facilities and will greatly increase their value to the communities," Breathitt said.

PERSPECTIVE

By Robert J. Hastings

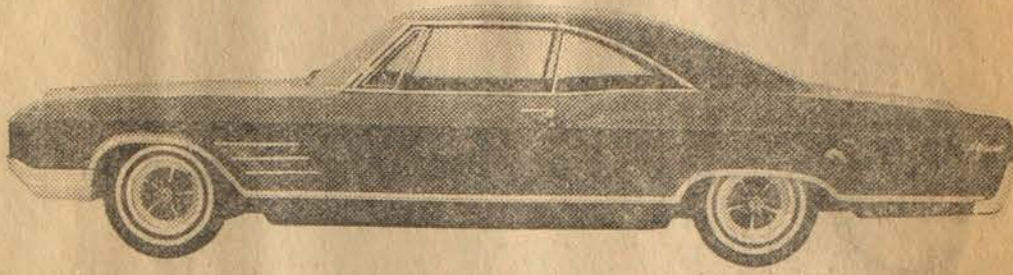

Bernard Baruch celebrated his 94th birthday last August. On that day reporters asked his opinion as to the greatest person of this generation. Mr. Baruch answered, "The fellow that does his job every day." He went on to say that this might be the mother who dresses, feeds, and sends her children off to school each morning. Or the man who sweeps the streets.

The national, state and local elections—with all their fanfare, excitement, and campaigning—are now ended. For weeks we have considered the importance of public office, and have witnessed the publicity and recognition that goes with being elected a president, a governor, a senator, a congressman or other official.

Now that the American people have spoken their choice, maybe it is time to focus on the common everyday folks who are really the mainstay of any community. Few of their names will go down in history, but without them there would be no history to write.

Life has a way of going on regardless of which party is in power. Political fanfare and publicity do not build great nations anyway. Rather it is the rank and file of the people, whose nation is great because they themselves are great in the honest and dependable manner they fulfill the common duties of life.

LONG-TERM DECLINE

A long-term decline in tuberculosis in this country has been halted. Increases in the number of new active cases were reported by 31 U. S. cities (three out of five) or more than 250,000 population during 1963 compared with the previous year. The number of new cases for the country as a whole increased to 54,000 for 1963, versus 53,300 for 1962.

safety. He said that there were approximately 2,500 outdoor privies in Floyd county and that raw sewage entering the streams was contributing to the high incidence of parasite infestation in the people. Mrs. Regina Mayo, former health nurse, commented on the health and safety report with emphasis on intestinal parasite infestation. She noted that "nothing has ever developed from past studies of parasitology in the area." She voices the hope that the recently-enacted anti-poverty legislation would be a vehicle for attacking this situation.

THE LANTERN
This being the possum-huntin' season, we turn to thinking of the old-fashioned lantern, without which no hunter was equipped for the sport. (Ever try to control your temper while negotiating a thicket of young locusts, with the man carrying the lantern leaving you two men behind?) Ever consider how many questions sight of a lantern-light bobbing along in the darkness could evoke? If the light moved along a point or ridge, you could assume it was a hunter or hunters, and you wondered how many. If it came across the fields, you wondered who was sick or where could the neighbor be going at this hour. Of one thing you could almost always be assured—this was no foe approaching, else he would not be carrying a light. They call Florence Nightingale "The Lady with a Lamp," but I believe that what she carried on her mercy rounds was a plain, old-fashioned kerosene-burning lantern.

REPORT ON CONSERVATION RELEASED AT FRANKFORT

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Department of Natural Resources has just released a report summarizing its accomplishments since 1960 — with advancements ranging from the annual Conservation Congress to a stronger law regulating strip mining of coal.

The 20-page report describes in detail such new programs as beautification, the chain-of-lakes project, the forestry camp for prison inmates and the Conservation Caravan, and reviews the expansion of services in forestry, and soil and water resources.

In a letter submitting the report to Governor Edward T. Breathitt, Natural Resources Commissioner J. O. Mathiek said: "You will note that we have labeled this period an 'Era of Progress' — a phrase that we feel is rightfully applied to the greatly expanded services and the launching of new and precedent-setting programs for the orderly development, protection, and wise use of Kentucky's natural resources.

"We appreciate your cooperation, support and guidance in assuring an aggressive continuation of these achievements for building a greater Commonwealth."

The report notes that since 1961 the Conservation Congress has featured nationally-known personalities and other speakers prominent in the field of natural resources. They include Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall; Brooks Hays, former special assistant to President John F. Kennedy, and TV personality John Charles Daly.

The 1964 Legislature approved an administration-backed bill that provides stricter regulation of strip and auger mining of coal and clay. As a result, the report notes, the Division of Strip Mining and Reclamation has been reorganized and expanded to ensure complete compliance with the law.

Emphasizing efforts to enforce the law rigidly, the report pointed out that operators without permits were sued in circuit courts and fined up to $1,000 for violations. In the 1963-1964 fiscal year, 37 bonds were forfeited by operators, yielding $19,550 to the division for restoring 190 acres of disturbed land.

From July 1, 1960, through June 30, 1964, the division issued 662 permits covering 20,350 acres. "The number of permits in Eastern Kentucky was double those in Western Kentucky, but the lower number covered about twice as much acreage."

The report also gives these highlights:

Beautification — The "Make Kentucky A Cleaner, Greener Land" program won two national awards during the four-year period: the National Keep America Beautiful Award for the over-all project; and the Bronze Seal Award from the National Council of State Garden Clubs for the floral clock and capitol grounds improvement and beautification.

After the clean-up campaign started in August, 1960, the Department of Highways placed more than 500 litter barrels along highways and installed some 5,000 anti-littering signs. In less than two years some 200 organizations and 140 communities were participating in the beautification effort.

Forestry — The state's first forestry camp, located in Bell county and completed in late 1962, was built by inmates from LaGrange Reformatory. The camp now houses 44 inmates who are minimum security risks supervised by the State Department of Corrections. The prisoners fight fires, build fire trails, plant tree seedlings, clear away unsightly vegetation, and operate and maintain heavy equipment.

The camp, begun as an experiment in penal reform, has been so successful that a second campsite, in Harlan county, is now in the planning stage.

Other advancements in the Division of Forestry include:

—An intensified inventory of forest resources, to be completed this year, will show timber by acreage, kind and size in each county for the first time. The data will be available to industry both in and out of state, thereby strengthening Kentucky's claim to new wood-using industries and expansion of present facilities.

—The new Bert T. Combs Forestry Building, located at Pineville and named after the former governor, houses forestry operations headquarters for Eastern Kentucky as well as a tourist information center.

—The establishment of a tree nursery near Woodbend in 1960 increased the state's nursery capacity to 50 million seedlings. Selected wards of the Child Welfare Department live at a nearby camp, opened this year, and work in the nursery as part of their rehabilitation.

In the four-year period, the state's organized fire protection system was extended to 42 counties, boosting the total acres of protected forests to 10,287,000 in 92 counties, as compared with 7.8 million acres in 1960.

Kentucky was among five states selected for a federal pilot program for rural fire defense (See Story No. 1, Page 5)

To the 5 out of 10 people who didn't believe this ad... a sporting proposition

Take a no-obligation test drive in a 1965 Ford. Maybe you just couldn't believe the ad (reprinted above) which appeared in this paper a few weeks ago. After all, many consider Rolls-Royce to be one of the world's finest cars. But Ford does ride quieter. The world's leading acoustical experts (Bolt, Beranek and Newman, Inc.) made the tests. The U. S. Auto Club certified the results.

This year's Ford has the strongest body ever . . . a revolutionary new frame that "tunes out" vibrations . . . new ultra soft coil-spring suspensions—all contributing to the new hushed ride. But the ride is only part of what's new.

- New swept-back instrument panel adds five inches extra knee room.
- Transmission tunnel is lower than in competing cars for extra foot room.
- Trunk has more usable space than ever—holds four 2-suiters standing upright.
- New ultra-luxurious LTD series — unmatched by any other car in Ford's class.
- Silent-Flo ventilation (standard on 4-door hardtops) removes stale air, provides fresh air even with all windows closed.
- Exclusive new twin-edge key—works with either side up.
- Hot, but hushed, 289-cu. in. V-8 is standard equipment in XL and LTD models.
- Smooth, thrifty all-new Big Six in other models — the most powerful standard Six offered by any car in Ford's class.
- V-8 options to 425 hp.
- All Ford automatic transmissions have 3 speeds, not 2 as in many competing cars.
- Fully synchronized manual transmissions — you can even shift down to first without clashing gears.

If all this sounds like a lot for one car to offer . . . take a test drive. See why more people are buying Fords than ever before in post-war history.

TWO AREA BALL TEAMS TO REPRESENT REGION

Hazard and Elkhorn City, two area football powers, will represent the Eastern Kentucky region in two high school play-offs Friday.

The Elkhorn City Cougars copped the Class A, Third Region, Second District crown by turning back Catlettsburg, 28-21, for the right to meet the Paris Greyhounds at Paris.

Hazard closed its regular season play by stopping Lynch, 29-7. The Bulldogs had already won the Class AA, Region 4, District 2 title. They will play Everts at Hazard for the regional title.

So both Elkhorn City and Hazard will take 9-1 records into the playoff games. Everts was the only team to beat Hazard during the season and that was by a 19-0 count. Fleming-Neon was the lone conqueror of the Cougars, by a 14-13 margin.

Elkhorn City built up a 23-0 halftime command and held on to win in the final half. Catlettsburg halfback Phillip Caldwell scored two touchdowns in the half and personally gained 177 yards during the game.

Derick Potter, the state's third leading scorer, tallied three extra points. Norman Powell sped 76 yards for a six-pointer, and halfback B. J. Elswick went 96 yards for another.

Paintsville had little trouble with Prestonsburg as the Tigers posted a 33-0 win for a 5-2-2 season.

Senior halfback Leonard Meek ran 69 yards for a first-period marker, and senior end James Tackett took a 40-yard aerial from quarterback Marty Tackas for the other first half score.

Tackas scored once in the third period along with Rex Sublett and Mike Kazee.

Prestonsburg marched to the Paintsville 20-yard line in the first minutes of the game, but fumbled away a potential scoring opportunity.

On the basketball front, Meade Memorial won the four-team Johnson county pre-season tournament by thumping Oil Springs, 93-59, in the finals, Saturday night. Van Lear copped third place with a 52-40 consolation triumph over Flat Gap. In the opening games, Oil Springs bounced Flat Gap, 74-63, to move to the finals and Meade Memorial overpowered Van Lear, 80-34.

Joe Blankenship's Blaine Wildcats won the Eastern Kentucky Conference tournament at Ashland by nipping Hitchens, 77-75, in the finals. Blaine whipped Ashland Holy Family, 95-50, the previous night and Hitchens rolled over Grayson, 85-80.

The McDowell Dare Devils pulled an early season surprise by downing Denzil Halbert's Martin Purple Flash, 92-73, Saturday night on the Martin court. The win was the third in a row for Pete Grigsby's quintet, which nipped Warfield, 84-82, in two extra periods last Wednesday night.

Martin had opened its season a night earlier by overwhelming Betsy Layne, 94-65, while defending regional champion Wayland stopped Betsy Layne Saturday night, 71-56.

Very few games are scheduled in the region Friday, as the majority of the schools left the date open in order to watch the Harlem Globetrotters meet the Washington Generals in the Prestonsburg fieldhouse at 8 p.m.

Saturday night, Prestonsburg's Black Cats will open their season at home against the Ezel Rockets of the 69th district.

TWO STARS—7-foot Bill Garner (Harlem Globetrotters), left, with Maurice Chevalier.

The world-famous Globetrotters will play the Washington Generals at the Prestonsburg high school gym Friday, at 8 p.m.

GLOBETROTTERS HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Eastern Kentucky basketball fans will center their interest on Prestonsburg high school's spacious fieldhouse this Friday night as the world-famous Harlem Globetrotters meet the Washington Generals at 8 o'clock.

On Saturday night, the home-standing Prestonsburg Black Cats open their cage season against the Ezel Rockets of the 69th district. Black Cat Coach Jack F. Wells has three regulars returning from last year's squad that won 14 and lost 11.

Forming the nucleus of Wells' team will be senior Freddie Satter, 5-11 forward, who was the region's second leading scorer last season with a 32.2-point per game average.

Meade Memorial and Martin, tabbed as the teams to beat for the 15th regional title this season, will be the two busiest tournament basketball teams in the mountains this season.

Meade Memorial will play in four tournaments prior to the district in March. They opened over the past week-end by playing in the Johnson county tournament at Oil Springs. They will participate in the Jenny Wiley invitational tournament in Prestonsburg, November 25-28, and also will take part in the Ashland tournament, December 26-30, and the Paintsville invitational, January 13-16.

Wendell Wallen's club won 17 and lost 10 with a junior-laden team last season, and with six-foot-six center, Alvin Ratliff, Ira Butcher, Jack Blevins and six-foot-six sophomore, Dick Price, moving into the lineup, this could be one of the Johnson county school's best clubs.

Ratliff is a superlative ball-handler, agile as a 5-10 guard and is a good inside and outside shooter. He is labeled as the region's best player by almost every coach.

Butcher, a six-foot senior, averaged 15 points a game last season. Blevins had a 12.7 mean, and Price clipped in at a 10.3 rate. Junior six-footer Allen Preston, or Steve Butcher, another junior, will share the other starting role.

Martin, under the able tutelage of veteran Denzil Halbert who is starting his 19th season at the Floyd county school, should have a fine team built around seniors Larry Hall, David Mosley, John Mayo and Stevie Halbert and junior Terry Perkins. Tommy Woods, a 6-5 senior transfer from Betsy Layne, may move into the line-up before the season has progressed far.

Hall, voted the second best player in the area, averaged 21 points in 34 games last season in pacing the Purple Flash to the 58th district championship, where they beat eventual regional winner Wayland.

Hall, son of former McDowell high great Birchell Hall, is a six-foot-three forward with a good shooting eye and is a top-flight rebounder. Halbert, who has a lifetime coaching record of 384 wins and 196 losses, terms Hall as good as any boy he has ever coached and says that "he has the best touch under the basket of any boy ever to play for me at Martin."

Stevie Halbert, son of Coach Halbert, hit for 15 points a game a season ago. He is the team's co-captain along with Hall, and is the offensive play-maker from his guard position.

Aside from Hall and Halbert, Mosley posted an eight-point-per-game average last season. John Mayo six and Terry Perkins 6. Woods, who started for Betsy Layne for two-seasons, is a good, big, rugged center. His play can be the determining factor as to just how tough the Purple Flash will be this season.

Martin, like Meade Memorial, has entered four pre-district tournaments. The first one is the Jenny Wiley tournament in Prestonsburg, then, the following week, the Floyd county pre-season tournament here, the Wheelwright invitational tournament, December 23-26, and the Paintsville affair, January 13-16.

Three of the leading individual high school football scorers are from the Mountain area. Sophomore William Wright, of Whitesburg high, was the state's leader with 145 points in 11 games. Elkhorn City's senior halfback Derek Potter is third with 126 points and Norman Powell, another Elkhorn City senior, is fifth.

David Miller, senior halfback, won the Black Cat Player-of-the-Week award in the final game against Paintsville last Friday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Miller. He is also an outfielder on the baseball team.

In Kentucky last year, 1,338 new active cases of tuberculosis were reported. This means that Kentucky has a case rate of 43.4 per 100,000 population—one of the highest in the nation.

LOOKOUT MAN LIVES ALONE ELEVEN YEARS ON MOUNTAIN

BY HENRY P. SCALF

Eleven years ago Jim Hammond, 62-year-old ex-railroad worker, was given a pair of binoculars and instructed in duties as a forest fire lookout by Forrest Burchett, of this county, and was assigned to a cabin and a 114-foot lookout tower on Corn Cob Mountain in Lawrence county.

Hammond is there yet, completely satisfied with his lonely life. He never leaves his mountain except to buy groceries or on some extraordinary errand. He stays there winter and summer with only the companionship of his dog.

The old Civilian Conservation Corps cabin in which he stayed 11 years fell in ruins this summer, and Burchett, with a crew of unemployed fathers from Floyd county, built another. It is cozy and ample for Hammond's needs.

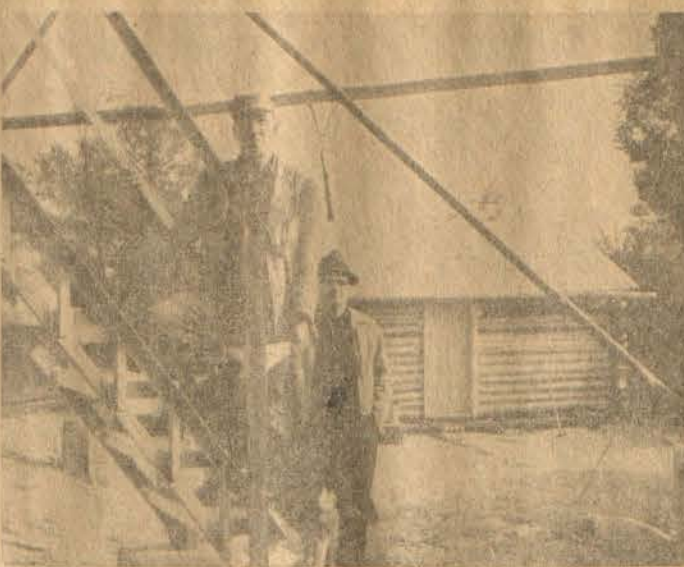

"I've got a good house here now, just what I want," Hammond says, "and if the Forestry Division wants to get rid of me they'll have to run me off."

There are times in the winter when he is snowed under and the wind beats against his cabin on the crest of the high mountain. There are days in the summer when the smoke from area forest fires envelops his station and visibility is practically zero. There are days, too, when the sun is brilliant and the sky as clear as a limpid pool. It is on such days when he can see 15 miles in every direction. North, miles away, is a West Virginia forest fire lookout station on Dragston Creek. In another direction he can see the station tower at Spring Knob in Martin county reflecting the sunlight.

"I like the winter up here and the summers, too," he says. "But the fall is best, especially when the leaves turn every color and the whole country is just like a picture book."

"Just look," he added, pointing and swinging his body around in all directions, "look at the oaks and maples and hickories. Look at that hill yonder on the other side of Richardson. You can't draw a picture like that. Only God can make a picture like that."

Hammond, former logger, railroad worker and farmer, is a native of Big Laurel Fork of Rockcastle Creek, several miles through the mountains from Richardson. He was married several years ago but the union broke up. There were no children.

—Times Photo

Jim Hammond, who lives alone on the summit of Corn Cob Mountain, except for his dog, Speed, starts to climb his 114-foot tower. Forrest Burchett, Floyd county forest ranger who employed Hammond, stands nearby. Hammond's cabin is in the background.

It was just after the separation that Hammond took the job as lookout on Corn Cob Mountain. In 1953, when it seemed every acre of forest in Eastern Kentucky was going to be burned over, he was tapped to help in controlling the raging woodland blazes in Lawrence county. Forrest Burchett, then on assignment at Paintsville with the Big Sandy Unit composed of Johnson, Lawrence and Martin counties, was searching for a good lookout man. He fought fires with Hammond and was impressed by the raw recruit. He offered Hammond the Corn Cob Mountain job.

The first two weeks to Hammond, emotionally disturbed due to his marital rift and the unaccustomed loneliness, was a trying break-in period. After that, the loneliness left him.

"In those first two weeks I thought I couldn't stand it, but now I would rather live here than anywhere else in the world. I like to be by myself. I like my people but when I go to see them, as I do every few years, they seem like strangers, and I hurry back to my mountain."

Loggers built a road up into the mountain and along the ridges this summer, and occasionally he sees a logging truck going down the rough road. A few stray hunters drop in at his cabin and there are periodical visits from Division of Forestry personnel, but, on the whole, it is a lonely existence, broken by few contacts with the outside world. When he wants groceries he descends the mountain and walks three miles to Richardson. Last week he walked seven miles through the hills to a store on Rockcastle Creek to buy stovepipes for his cook stove. He burns wood and coal.

When it is dry in the woodlands Hammond stays all day in a little house atop the 114-foot tower, ranging his binoculars over the hundred square miles of his domain. If he sees smoke, he tries to locate the site, then connects up a little battery-operated radio and calls Paintsville or Prestonsburg.

Besides his collie, Speed, he has a little company at times. Deer wander in and nose around his cabin. Squirrels chatter in the nearby trees, and afar off he can hear the bark of foxes. When the deer are circling his cabin and putting their heads in pans near the house, he sits and watches. They are "nervous as a cat" in the strange surroundings. He thinks they are from Jenny Wiley State Park.

Asked what he thinks about, high up in the tower as he sits there all day, he replies, a little hesitantly:

"Well, it's a bit hard to explain but at times when I'm looking towards West Virginia I can't see them but I know just as well what my people are doing on Rockcastle Creek. If it's spring, they're plowing or planting. If it's wintertime, I know they are housed in. Over on the Big Sandy River I can hear the trains and I know when they stop. People used to ride the passenger trains and I just could in my mind's eye see them getting off and on at Richardson or Louisa.

"I can tell when folks are burning brush in the spring and I know that many of them are plowing and chopping and digging. I get sorry for them, me making it so easy back here on the mountain and them working so hard.

"On Sundays I know what they're doing all over the little creeks down under me. Most of 'em are going to church but sometimes I think in my queer way I may be a little closer to God than them."

Came time to leave and you would think that this man who has not seen another human being for days would linger with goodbyes at the truck, but he didn't. He turned quickly and began to climb up the long series of steps to his house on the tower. Entering the little house he looked out through a window at the vast expanse of forest.

It was his job—maintaining this vigil; it was his world which he scanned—a vast panorama of forestland, laced with every color of the rainbow.

Our Historic Heritage

A Pictorial Review of East Kentucky

(No. 306 in a Series)

Original Home of James Ward, Pioneer

James Ward, pioneer settler on the site of the Martin county seat town of Inez, did not erect a cabin or lean-to as his temporary abode when he arrived on Rockcastle Creek in 1810. He and his wife cut an opening in a giant sycamore and used it as a home until a cabin could be constructed.

A descendant, Grover Ward, drew this idealized picture of his ancestors and their wilderness home. Shown are the necessary pioneer bear trap, an axe and the vitally necessary rifle.

The descendants of this pioneer couple have contributed materially to the economic, social and cultural fabric of our region.

The First National Bank presents these pictures of the regional past in recognition of our historic heritage.

BEVINS, PORTER, WALKER
A letter from Ernest L. Walker, Sr., 113 1/2 Lemoyne Street, Los Angeles, California, contains information on the Walker, Porter and Bevins families. Mr. Walker needs additional information and readers are requested to write him if they have any information he seeks.

The letter is excerpted here: "I am particularly interested in the Bevins family as I am a descendant of the emigrant, Joseph Bevins and his wife, Mary Ann Noblitt. I have in my possession a copy of the GENEALOGY OF JOHN WALKER OF WIGTON, SCOTLAND, of which I am sure in my own mind that I am one. However, my family seems to have been one of the several lines the author was unable to trace.

"I had about given up my efforts to tie in with this family when I was requested to do some research by one who is related to both my wife and myself. While on this search, I ran across some information which seemed to tie in with Wigton, Scotland,

Walkers, as shown by the accompanying sheet.

"I am interested in finding out where great-great grandfather Thomas Bevins, Sr., married Elizabeth Porter. And also the following:

"Was she the daughter of Samuel Porter who migrated to the Big Sandy? Was the Patrick Porter, who settled in Scott county, Virginia, the husband of Susanna Walker?"

"If any of my Bevins kin have information as to the name of father and mother of Mary Ann Noblitt, I would be pleased to exchange information. DOWN THE CENTURIES WITH THE NOBLITTS, a book in our local library, states that one Thomas Noblitt enlisted in French and Indian War in 1756. He was in the Battle of Quebec with General Wolfe. He married Mary King in Pennsylvania, moved to North Carolina and later to Grayson county, Virginia. Does not name any daughters, only five sons.

"An old land grant, dated December 21, 1781, containing 200 acres was recorded in Grayson county in 1796, John Bevins, brother of Thomas Bevins, Sr., has stated he was born in Grayson county, Virginia. If I could find where Joseph and Mary Ann Noblitt Bevins were married their marriage bond might show parents of Mary Ann.

The accompanying sheet referred to by Mr. Walker follows.

"From GENEALOGY OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN WALKER OF WIGTON, SCOTLAND. John Walker, eldest son of John and Katherine Rutherford Walker, born March, 1705, presumably in Scotland, moved with his father and settled near the town of Newry, Ireland; emigrated to America, landing in Maryland, August 2, 1726. Settled in Chester county, Pennsylvania, later moving to Augusta county, Virginia; thence to Rockbridge county, Virginia. Married Ann Houston (or Hudson) March, 1734. From John and his wife Ann are descended the Stuarts, Todds and Prices of Kentucky. He died on Clinch River in 1778. She died in North Carolina.

"Issue of this union were Susanna Walker, married Patrick Porter; Mary Walker, married Andrew Cowen, a Colonial soldier; Jane Walker, married William Cowen; Hetty Walker, married Robert Bell; John Walker, married a Miss Long; Samuel Walker, killed by Indians on Clinch River in Virginia in 1778; Margaret Walker, married John Judy; Ann Walker, married Samuel Cowen; Martha Walker, married Alexander Montgomery. Unfortunately there is no further record of these children, except for a descendant, William, son of John Walker, who married Miss Long.

"From HISTORY OF SCOTT COUNTY, VIRGINIA: First settlement made in 1772 by Patrick Porter, Capt. John Montgomery (Porter's son-in-law), Rawleigh Stallard, Huteson and Samuel, Porter's oldest son.

"Now remembering that Clinch River heads in Tazewell county and flows through Scott county, we have from WILLIAMSON GENEALOGY: Thomas Bevins marries Elizabeth Porter, presumably in Scott county, Virginia, daughter of Samuel Porter.

"From HISTORY OF JOHN SON, COUNTY, KENTUCKY. Patrick Porter marries Sally Bevins, July 9, 1827.

"Mr. Walker quotes from Mitchell Hall's HISTORY OF JOHNSON COUNTY:

"The Porters trace to Samuel Porter, who married a Dameron, and settled on Millers Creek where he had extensive land holdings. Some of his children are James, Walker, John, Logan, a daughter who married a Mr. Burgess and Ruth A. James represented the county in the Kentucky legislature, lived for a time on Miller's Creek, later moving to Kenova. Walker Porter lived in Prestonsburg.

"Still another set of the Porter family was John Porter, Sr., who married Martha Huteson, daughter of George Huteson, of Virginia, who married a Green. This family was related to the Wells family, Richard Wells, born February 11, 1760, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, died March 28, 1838. Married September 29, 1797, to Susannah Huteson. Susanna Huteson Wells was a daughter of Susan Green, whose husband's first name is unknown. Besides Susanna, the children of this couple were Patsy, who married Samuel Porter; Peter; James, never married; John; and Nancy, who married a Powers and remained in Scott county, Virginia, instead of coming to Kentucky as most of the others did."

Mr. Walker adds a note at the end of the accompanying sheet. It follows:

"The Porter, Green, Powers, Huteson, Dingus, Kilgore, Stallard, Alley, Francisco, Vicars, Lawson, Lane, Flannery and Bevins as well as other families represented in the Big Sandy valley intermarried with the Addington and allied families of Scott county, Virginia."

HERRINGTON ROUGH FISH TO GET SHOCK TREATMENT

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 29—A contract for the removal of rough fish, with the exception of catfish, from Herrington Lake has been entered into by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and Lee Jones, Mt. Vernon, Ill., an operator of a barge-like electrode mechanism, Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department, has announced.

The electric mechanism, Clark explains, only shocks the fish, causing them to come to the top of the water for a few minutes after which they revert to a normal status, and has been used successfully in a number of lakes in Ohio. By shocking the fish, as the barge moves over the lake, the fish are picked up by a conveyor and moved into live boxes alongside the barge. The fish are then sorted, with the pan fish and game fish being returned to the water unharmed, while the rough fish are maintained, and sold alive to contracting canners. Fish unsuitable for human consumption are sold to commercial dog food companies. The operation will begin within a few days and may be continued for a period of one year. The operation will be under the supervision of a biologist and a conservation officer at all times.

Bernard Carter, director of the Division of Fisheries, believes this harvest of rough fish will create a better sport fishery in Herrington Lake. More room will be available for game and pan fish with the removal of the undesirable, says Carter, and it is therefore reasonable to believe a greater harvest of desirable fish will result.

Carter pointed out that a shad removal on Herrington Lake a few years ago revived fishing in that lake to its former position and that fishing there has continued generally good for the past few years. The electrode machine, says Carter, will greatly reduce the shad population, which has increased greatly in the past two years.

PORTUGAL BUYING SUGAR

training. The project, started April 1, 1964, will pave the way for placing 27 counties under the organized protection system, possibly within three years.

The Forestry Division now employs 59 trained foresters, an increase of 25 since 1950.

Governor Breathitt called the first statewide forestry conference in February of this year to focus attention on forest resources.

Conservation Caravan—The mobile unit, which vividly illustrates good and bad conservation practices through electronics, was put on the road in September, 1961. More than 165,000 persons have viewed the twin dioramas inside the trailer.

Flood Control and Water Usage—The 1960 Legislature appropriated $1 million to start construction on small lakes impounded by highway fills and conventional dams. In the four-year period, 13 of the lakes were completed; three are under construction and three are in the planning stage.

The Division of Flood Control and Water Usage conceived and launched a master plan designed to free Kentucky of major flooding within 10 years or less. Federal funds totaling $377,961,000 were spent on flood control and navigation projects built by the U. S. Corps of Engineers during the four-year period. Kentucky led the nation in appropriations for flood control, averaging about $70 a year.

Soil and Water Resources—Increased appropriations permitted the Division of Soil and Water Resources to expand its educational, promotional and financial assistance in Kentucky's 121 soil conservation districts. The districts have had the services of eight full-time field representatives, a staff doubling that of 1960.

The 1960 Legislature added $200,000 to the division's $400,000 revolving fund for loans to conservation districts. The loans are used for the purchase of heavy or specialized equipment to establish sound practices on the land.

A significant achievement in April, 1964, was the "Watershed of the year" award to the Mud River Watershed Conservancy District in Western Kentucky. The honor came at the 11th annual National Watershed Congress in Little Rock, Arkansas.

LET'S LOOK IT OVER

BY EDWARD T. BREATHITT

is not to worry about votes, but to do the right thing and the votes will take care of themselves.

I'm convinced that trying to save lives is the right thing. If the program results in saving the life of even one unknown person, then it's a success. If a number of lives are saved, it would be a God-send.

Last year 837 persons were ruthlessly slain on our state's highways. These are the deaths of fathers and mothers; college students and servicemen; the store clerk; the neighbor next door; and little boys and girls who are too young to protect themselves from the dangers of the adult world.

This is an appalling waste of life. Even more appalling has been the failure of many of our public officials and many of our citizens to do something about it. We have become used to the ghastly blood-letting on our highways. We have come to accept highway deaths as inevitable.

Many persons think of traffic safety as the job of public officials only. Let the police do it. Let the legislature do it. Let the courts do it. Anyone but me.

It's not as simple as that. There is an individual responsibility to be assumed. Organizations have a responsibility too. There must be citizen understanding and citizen support because there is always somebody ready to throw a brickbat at a traffic safety program. There are too many selfish interests ready to tear it down. There are too many toes to be stepped on when strict law enforcement is the key to a drive.

Our county judges, our prosecutors, our police officials, cannot stand alone in this drive. They've got to have public support behind them. If a law is unpopular, if a law doesn't have public support, public officials will not press for its enforcement.

We have made one thing crystal clear from the beginning of this campaign. Kentucky is not interested in piling up a long list of convictions and suspensions. Our goal is to slow drivers down and keep them alive. We won't consider the program a real success until traffic slows down to the point where few arrests have to be made.

In this safety campaign we have made an ironic discovery. Apparently there are thousands of drivers who won't heed an appeal to slow down to save their own lives or the lives of their families. But they will slow down to save their licenses.

Presently, the state is working in several areas in an effort to improve our highway safety program. Our Division of Traffic is making a close study of no-passing zones to see what actions we can take to make these points on the road safer. We also are conducting a study of the state's railroad crossings to hopefully curb this type wreck. We plan to prepare a manual for traffic courts and we are considering methods to achieve a uniform traffic ticket at all enforcement levels.

We hope to improve the physical and training standards for school bus drivers because no driver in Kentucky carries a more precious carload. We are considering several uniform markings for farm machinery so that this equipment can be seen quicker. Soon, our action program, whose basis is a study made by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, will get under way.

These are programs, small and big, all designed to save lives on Kentucky's highways. There are many more areas of highway safety we plan to look into, and you will be hearing from us in the months ahead.

At the local level, I would suggest the creation of county committees whose functions would be to educate the public in safety programs, to explore and improve road hazards and to establish local, positive, hard-hitting safety campaigns. Believing that strict law enforcement is the key to our drive, I feel our judges must spearhead the highway safety campaigns in our counties.

But they can't do the job without citizen support. It is up to you people to marshal that support and put it into live-saving action.

"The annual numbers of TB cases reported, which diminished sharply during the 1950's, have been reduced only slowly in the past three years." Thus reported a group of experts to the U. S. Surgeon General. Your Christmas Seal association needs support in the hard battle still ahead to control TB and other respiratory diseases.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky.

"SUBBURGS"

If a theme song had been needed for this column, away back in 1935, when it started, probably "The Old Gray Mare She Ain't What She Used To Be" would have just about prophesied what was to follow. If there is any human institution that has not changed in my seventy-six years, I cannot right now recall what it is. Outward forms have changed, we are always adding new words to our vocabulary, basic things may still be basic; but the outward appearance of just any institution has undergone so many changes that the younger generation needs an explanatory glossary when Grandpap begins to talk.

In the summer of 1964 I interviewed more than seventy people in my folklore study, people who ranged in age from seventeen to ninety-eight years old. Thus I got a pretty good cross section of all the generations that have grown up in the last century. Hosts of similar words and beliefs cross all age lines, but nearly all of them love to be expressed in a new vocabulary to make it appear that the younger ones are far ahead of the quaint old people who lived long before 1900 came around. Rather oddly, my most old-fashioned words and grammar and expressions and remedies were taken down on an electrical tape-recorder, plugged into an outlet in a home or a country store or a community house. Once the plug-in was right by a meat counter, where every sort of modern was lying in its cold place, waiting to be bought by the customers who thronged the store. And, an added attraction, an air-conditioner was keeping the store so comfortable that I wondered whether all the customers had really come to buy their week-end groceries or had come to keep cool on a very hot summer day. But these modern gadgets did not stop the flow of memory, for some of my friends interviewed that day could think back a long way toward the more primitive times. The electric lines into the store merely offered a means of reviewing some of the things that used to be.

These mid-summer recordings brought very forcibly to my mind that what we used to call the country should now be called the suburbs. Even the most snazzy suburbs not too long ago lacked many of the modern things that were everywhere that I set up my recorder. In most homes the TV or the radio had to be turned off while my friends and I talked into a microphone, reliving some ancient weather signs and folk remedies and quaint customs. And, immediately after I had disconnected the recorder, the radio or TV came on again, and the most modest cottage was right in the midst of political conventions or Viet Nam wars or Florida hurri-

Here are three kinds of tigers. We sell two.

(Have you priced a tiger lately?)

The quick ones are ours. The agile ones. That's a Pontiac Le Mans, top left. Fierce. You can get it with 250 hp like most people. Or 285 hp like some. That's a Pontiac GTO, above. Ferocious. Comes complete with 335-hp Trophy V-8. Bucket seats. Hurst floor shifter. Dual exhausts. Heavy-duty springs. Redline tires. Even a real walnut dash. The whole package. Lithe. Lean. Nimble. That other tiger? A puzzled cat. He checked out a "sporty" kind of car, learned it doesn't come with fangs at that stripped-down price. You look around. You'll see.
