

THIRD ATTEMPT SET TO TRY SALISBURY

VENUE MOVE OVERRULED BY CONLEY

Adjacent County Jury Considered by Court; Hall Case Continued

A third attempt will be made at the January Floyd circuit court term to empanel a jury for the trial of Roy Salisbury on a murder charge. As in the two earlier unsuccessful attempts, the Commonwealth will seek to seat a jury willing to inflict the death penalty if the evidence justifies the action.

The decision to keep the trial in this county and to go to an adjacent county for a jury was made Wednesday morning when Circuit Judge Hollie Conley overruled a Commonwealth motion for change of venue.

The motion was not supported by any affidavit, and Judge Conley said he had no choice except to overrule it. The Commonwealth had taken the position that transfer of the case to an adjacent county would be as futile as its attempts to empanel a jury from this or an adjoining county, the Attorney General had advised that a change to a county not adjacent to Floyd.

BRADFORD IN 1964

If John Bradford were landing an account of Thanksgiving today, he might see it down these lines:

"Ye turkie having arrived from ye olde grocery store, and a gudely byrd it be, and my fair wife having prepared same with due diligence and skille, we of mine owne household and our kith and kin seated ourselves at ye table. As I gave thanks for ye bountiful meal, ye sounde of redskins more shrille than ever greeted our ears at olde Plymouth arose, and I started to my feet, others of the men doing likewise, reaching for their weppins.

"Our consternation mounted withal as before our eyes passed a horde of savages pursuing madly a waggon in ye which were a woman and a baby and a man. But ye moment of panic passed when we heard a voice say, 'Meawhilst, back at ye ranch.'

"And my faire ladie cried out, 'You chidder turn off that TV, or I'll have ye lot of you for ye ducking stool!'

AID LEADER DIES SUNDAY

Area Mission Founder Succumbs At Jackson; Native of Virginia

The Rev. John H. Lewis, founder of the Methodist Mountain Mission and Kentucky's Rural Minister of the Year for 1962, died of a heart attack Sunday at his home at Jackson, Kentucky. He was 66.

Thirty-one years ago he founded the church mission when he was pastor of the First Methodist Church at Jackson. The Martin branch of the institution was founded May, 1963.

The missions covered the entire Eastern Kentucky area and part of Tennessee. He first began the work with the Save-The-Children Federation, providing hot lunches for pupils in 35 schools in four counties.

The Mountain Mission, supported by Methodist churches throughout the nation, operates (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Soldier Returned To Floyd From Okinawa To Testify In Roy Salisbury Trial

Depositions of Pvt. Larry Vinton Sexton, who was brought here from Okinawa to appear as a Commonwealth witness in the trial of Roy Salisbury, charged with the slaying of Mrs. Mallie Denney, her husband, Roy Denney, and Thomas Combs, near Drift, were slated to be taken here Wednesday.

Sexton was brought here after his mother and sister had, when questioned by Commonwealth's Attorney Harold Stumbo and State Trooper D. H. Goble, said he had told them of having seen Salisbury following the shotgun slaying of the three, with a cigarette carton from which protruded part of a revolver. Stumbo said the women were not definite about Sexton having told them that Salisbury had told him of the shooting of the Denneys and Combs.

Willard Hicks testified that a man whom he did not know had

350 ATTEND OPEN HOUSE

Upwards of 350 persons attended open house at the new Floyd County Library Sunday afternoon and the dedication of the library at 2:30 p.m.

The new $120,000 facility drew the praise of those who viewed its construction features and appointments.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, the principal speaker, referred to the library as one of the finest he had seen. He congratulated Floyd county upon this and other improvements which have been gained through progressive leadership and cooperation on the part of the people, at the same time contrasting the move forward here with other communities which have lagged behind because of an unwillingness of the people to work together.

Mrs. R. V. May, chairman of the Floyd County Library Board, presided at the dedicatory exercises. She reviewed the ground-work done toward realization of the library structure, introduced guests and the county staff composed of Charles Patton, county librarian, and Roland Jones, bookmobile driver-librarian.

Miss Margaret Willis, Frankfort, director of the Department of Libraries, brought congratulations to the county on the new library and discussed the cooperation afforded by state and federal governments.

The Regional Library staff composed of Mrs. Opal Goodman and Mrs. Marie Vance was introduced by Homer Lee Hall, regional librarian. Mrs. Lloyd Stumbo, library board member, reviewed in verse the history of the library since its founding here. County Superintendent Charles Clark, ex-officio member of the library board, discussed the topic, "Working Together," and Norman Allen, also a board member, spoke on the future of the work. The Rev. Robert Martin gave the invocation, and the benediction was said by the Rev. W. D. Jagers.

Among the guests who came here for the dedication were (See Story No. 4, Page 8)

WORLD EASTERN STAR HEAD, P'BURG WOMAN

For Mrs. Josephine Harkins Browning, native Prestonsburg woman, today is a memorable Thanksgiving Day. Tonight she is being installed at Dallas, Texas as most worthy grand matron of the Eastern Star world.

The Order of Eastern Star, which she now heads, is the world's largest organization having a membership composed of both women and men. It has a membership of 3,000,000.

The pageant preceding Mrs. Browning's installation tonight will be under the direction of Mrs. Jay Willoughby, also a Kentuckian, and all Kentucky members attending the Triennial Assembly at Dallas will participate in the colorful event. Her home chapter, Adah, of Prestonsburg, is being represented by a sizeable delegation.

Named to assist her as most worthy grand patron is Walter L. Fowler, Washington, D. C. They will serve till 1967.

One of the first official acts of the former Prestonsburg woman as head of the world order will be to preside Friday at an instruction brunch in Dallas. Her first official visit will be made Dec. 2 to the state of Arkansas. On December 12 the grand chapter of Kentucky will honor Mrs. Browning and Mr. Fowler with a reception at the Brown hotel in Louisville. Next May 18, she will leave on an official tour which will include Rome, Istanbul, Delhi, Agra, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Manila, Tokyo and Honolulu.

Mrs. Browning's march to Eastern Star world leadership began 21 years ago, and she is the first Kentucky woman to reach the top office in the international organization.

She is a daughter of the late Walter Scott Harkins and Josephine Davidson Harkins, of Prestonsburg, and is the wife of Iley B. Browning, well-known geologist and businessman. They have two sons, Iley Baker Browning, Jr., and Walter Scott Browning.

Initiated into the Order of Eastern Star here soon after her 18th birthday, she has attended every Grand Chapter session since that time, except two; has twice served as grand organizer of Kentucky and as worthy grand matron of Kentucky in 1942-43, during which time the Rob Morris home at LaGrange was restored to stand as a shrine for all the Eastern Star world.

HARM PAINTS FOR SEMINAR

Famed Park Naturalist Attends Artist Meet; Technique Exhibited

Three well-known artists were teachers last week-end at the art seminar held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. The meeting drew 33 casual painters and one professional.

Ray Harm, artist-naturalist for the Kentucky Department of Parks, Sam Sarkisian, Cleveland director of art training for a greeting card company, and George Joseph, illustrator for the Louisville Courier-Journal, demonstrated painting techniques and answered questions from the budding artists in attendance.

After the Friday-night lecture session, the class broke up into "cells" with a teacher as a nucleus of each. Some students dared the chill for short sketching tours. Some remembered parts of flowers or scenes at home, and painted from memory. Others found their subjects on the hillsides and in the green pines seen through the windows of the lodge.

Nobody's question was too simple to be answered in the lively give-and-take between beginners and teachers. A dry brush, Joseph explained, is one "that's wiped off to make a scappy line instead of a wet one." Making sure everyone understood why the doorway was the focal point of a painting, Joseph explained, "This is the focal point because this is where everyone goes in, see?"

Harm, whose bird and other nature paintings are gaining fame, had some practical advice: "It's not too good to paint outdoors for long in a strong light. The sun hitting water-color paper and reflecting into your eyes can be painful.

Harm has another problem in painting flora and fauna. "I don't mean to flatter myself, but the

INSTITUTION ACCREDITED

Prestonsburg Hospital Given Accreditation, Frazier Announces

The Prestonsburg General hospital has been accredited for a period of three years by the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals.

Notice of the accreditation action was given November 16 in a letter to Chalmers H. Frazier, administrator of the hospital, from Dr. Denver M. Vickers, acting director of commission.

Mr. Frazier said this week that the program to give the people of Prestonsburg and Floyd county a fully accredited hospital began about a year ago. The physical plant has been improved by a $50,000 addition and approximately $10,000 worth of new equipment has been added. The staff has been improved by the employment of additional nursing personnel, and a pathologist and dietician have been added.

"Most of the credit," said Frazier, "for meeting the high standards for accreditation, goes to the staff members of the hospital, and I wish to publicly thank them for their wonderful cooperation and conscientious efforts to improve the quality of their services."

Accreditation adds work for doctors and hospitals, and it costs a lot of money—more than half a million dollars annually from organizations comprising the Commission—but, it is explained, the money and effort are expended for one purpose only, and that to benefit the patient.

The individual hospital needs a yardstick with which to measure the success of its various activities, and the Hospital Accreditation Program provides that yardstick. The program sets up carefully designed standards for every area of activity in a hospital, and every hospital in the United States which is accredited meets the same standards of service, whether in a small community or in a metro-

“Because He Gave So Much . . .” FUNDS FOR MEMORIAL TO MINISTER SOUGHT

The Rev. Isaac Stratton Memorial Fund is being created for three purposes, it was pointed out here this week:

1. To pay the hospital bill incurred during the minister's illness; 2. To pay expenses of the funeral; 3. To provide a fitting and permanent memorial to the memory of the minister who spent his long life in the service of the people of this section.

The people are being asked to contribute to the fund "because he gave so much to the people whom he loved so much." Contributions in any amount will be welcomed.

$168,462 JUDGMENT AWARDED SURVIVORS

JUDGE HOLDS U. S. LIABLE FOR TRAGEDY

8-Year-Old Child Adjudged $110,000 In Span Collapse

Survivors of three persons who were killed two years ago in the collapse of a bridge at Knotley Hollow, near Lancer, were given a U. S. district court judgment last Wednesday against the United States which totalled $168,462.25.

The award was made by Federal Judge Mac Swinford, who held that Greeley Stephenson is entitled to recover $30,000 for the death of his wife, Cora; that eight-year-old Deborah Vanhorn recover $75,000 for the death of her father, Phenous Vanhorn and half of $45,000 for the death of her mother, Naomi Vanhorn. The child also was awarded $12,500 for injuries sustained in the bridge tragedy.

The other half of the $45,000 judgment in the death of Mrs. Vanhorn goes to her daughter by a previous marriage, Brenda Crum. Also allowed was $5,922.25 for funeral and hospital expenses.

Mrs. Stephenson and the Vanhorns were killed in July, 1962, when the Knotley Hollow bridge collapsed beneath the weight of their car, plunging auto and occupants into the Big Sandy River. A wire cable supporting the span snapped at an underground anchor.

Judge Swinford commented in delivering his opinion: "When the United States builds something, the people have a right to rely upon it."

T. C. Young, contractor on the bridge which replaced the span destroyed by the 1957 flood, testified that he built the bridge according to U. S. Corps of Engineers plan, that an engineer of the Corps, a Mr. Uland, stood by and saw the cable installed. Uland said he did not recall doing so. He explained that the bridge was a temporary installation. Pressed to say how long was "temporary," he suggested a year. Plaintiffs' counsel then made the point that the public was not warned by the engineer that the bridge could be expected to be safe for only a year.

It was said that use of a "thimble" costing $10.68 on each of the anchor cables would have prevented the tragedy.

The defendants were represented by W. W. Burchett and Joe P. Tackett, of Prestonsburg, and C. Kilmer Combs, of Ashland.

Annual Election Held By College Group

The Alice Lloyd College Chapter of the American Association of University Professors held its annual election of officers, November 4, and the following officers were elected for the current academic year:

Leland R. White (history, social science department), president; Merton Jones (chemistry, physics), vice-president; and Lois Loken (German, English) secretary-treasurer.

In addition to electing officers the meeting discussed tentative and long-range plans as to means of publicizing a professional viewpoint on the area's particular problems in college preparation, possible role of the chapter as an interest group presenting viewpoints to national or state government in behalf of legislation to benefit college teaching, and means of communicating professional viewpoints or outlook to junior college students already considering college teaching as a profession. Problems as to what sort of recommendations to pass on to the state or national level of the AAUP also came up as long-range topics for further study.

The Alice Lloyd chapter of AAUP is now in its third year. It was founded in 1962 by Alice Bliss of the modern language department. At the present time the chapter has 65% of eligible faculty members.

PERSPECTIVE

By Robert J. Hastings

"SELF-MADE" MAN
A person whose reputation and character were a bit on the shady side often boasted, "I'm a self-made man!"

In a limited sense, each of us does deserve the title, "self-made." But there is a danger here, if false pride results.

We can hardly picture the self-confident, arrogant, boastful "self-made" man bowing his head in gratitude on Thanksgiving Day, 1964.

For the ungrateful, "self-made" individuals, we suggest the following questionnaire to study on Thursday, November 26:

- 1. Who gave me life, and provided shelter and food and care when I was a helpless infant?
2. Who gave me this land of opportunity in which to grow to manhood, and who gave me knowledge and training as a child?
3. Who gave me a smile of encouragement when I needed it most, and firm discipline when I started to stray?
4. Who gave me a serum for smallpox, bridges across swift and deep rivers, protective laws against the lawless, and a thousand other blessings we take for granted?
5. Who—on earth and in heaven—will grant me forgiveness for my false pride, so that today I can be truly grateful for the rich heritage of the past, the opportunities of the present, and the hope for tomorrow?

Kentucky has the largest manufacturer of high-grade inlaid hardwood flooring in the U. S., the world's largest manufacturer of maple and cherry furniture, the nation's largest wood packaging firm, the world's largest manufacturer of air filtering and dust control equipment, the South's largest printer of magazines, and the world's largest home appliance manufacturing plant.

Less than four percent of Kentucky's coal reserves have been mined; approximately 119 billion tons remain to be mined.

Over 36,000 cooperators were assisted by SCS in Kentucky in fiscal 1964 in planning and application procedures.

BANK INSTALLS ELECTRONIC BOOKKEEPER

The Bank Josephine is adapting the Age of Science to serve its customer better.

The bank has installed a new electronic bookkeeping machine for its checking account department, replacing four conventional machines.

Purpose of the machine, according to the bank, is to speed service, take the drudgery out of detail work for its employees, and assure time-honored standards of accuracy with far less effort.

"We're proud of this step," declared H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., vice-president, because it marks a milestone for the bank and for our customers. This electronic equipment will help us, to give faster, more satisfactory service.

It does not mean, however, that we're substituting a cold machine for friendly, personal service," he continued. "We're using a product of modern research, but we are not letting science use us."

Manufactured by the National Cash Register Company and called the "Post-Tronic," the new machine performs electronically eight basic bookkeeping functions that formerly had to be done manually.

For example, the machine electronically proves that the operator has selected the proper account card for the specific customer who has made a deposit or written a check.

The machine has built-in safeguards that stop it instantly if the operator happens to make a mistake.

Mr. Fitzpatrick pointed out that banks use a number of tedious and time-consuming clerical procedures to prevent errors. This painstaking detail work will be eliminated by the new "Post-Tronic" machine.

The machine does the work electronically, Mr. Fitzpatrick said.

Customers will receive statement of their accounts on conventional statement forms. The bank's ledger copy is an identical copy that the Post-Tronic produces simultaneously.

Electronics insures the accuracy of both.

The new statements differ from the old only in that they have five black "magnetic memory strips" on the backs.

These "magnetic memory strips" are encoded invisibly with all the figures used in the bookkeeping operation. The "Post-Tronic" reads the figures electronically.

Does all this mean tricky, new procedures for Bank Josephine customers making deposits or writing checks? Not at all, reports Mr. Fitzpatrick. Customers will continue to fill out deposit slips and write checks just as they always have, he said, remembering only to fill in their "electronic code number," the individual account number assigned to all the bank's customers.

That number, personal as a finger print, insures positive identification of all checks and deposits.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky.

GROW WE MUST

In late May, 1964, I made my 31st commencement address and certainly should be forgiven if I resort to an old man's method of telling how things used to be. The first thing I want to say, however, is that this speech, one of 287 given before high school graduating classes, marked the end of a long-established high school, one with 57 years of distinguished history.

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

From Canada, Kentucky, asks: Q. I will be 65 in January, 1965, and plan to retire at the end of this year. When should I file for social security benefits?

A. You should file for your benefits now so that there will not be any delay in receiving your checks after you retire. You will need to submit some proofs when you file your claim.

Man from Martin, writes: Q. I am 66 years old, I have not applied for social security benefits as an am earning $2,000 a year. Should I apply now?

A. Yes Apply for your benefits immediately. There will be some deductions made in your case. However, you will receive some benefits for this year and you may even be due some benefits for last year.

Q. I'm planning ahead for my retirement. Will you accept my social security application before I leave my job in June?

A. We recommend that you file an application as early as three months before your planned retirement. When you come to the office to file this application, bring with you your social security card, proof of your date of birth, and your W-2 form for 1964.

used-clothing stores besides Martin's in Jackson, Vico, Everts, Barboursville and Hazard. Trucks travel throughout the state picking up clothing, household goods, furniture, and other articles from churches and civic organizations.

Staff members then put the items into salable condition. Mr. Lewis said that in addition to providing low-cost items, the mission provided employment for people of the mountains.

The small profits from the stores are used to extend the project and to provide other services for the people of the area. For example, bus trips to other parts of the state have been arranged for children of the area.

Mr. Lewis once explained that one reason for operating the missions as stores was that it gave the mountain people self-confidence and pride to pay even a token price, rather than to receive gifts.

The Kentucky Council of Churches named him the "rural minister of the year" at the 1962 State Fair in Louisville.

Rev. Lewis had also served Methodist churches in Walton, Jenkins and Perryville, Kentucky. He had a bachelor's degree from Asbury College, Wilmore, Kentucky, a master's degree from Emory University, Atlanta, and theological training from the Biblical Seminary, New York, New York.

He was a native of Petersburg, Virginia, and was a member of the board of Bethany Children's Home in Wolfe county.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Joann Henson, Louisville, Mrs. Bonnie Brown, Homestead Air Force Base, Florida, Mrs. Doris Watts, Scottsburg, Indiana, and Mrs. Ruth Austin, Clinton, Illinois; three sisters, Mrs. M. M. Bunn and Mrs. Orain Birdsall, both of Petersburg, Virginia, and Mrs. John Goode, Portsmouth, Virginia, two brothers, Arthur and Edwin Lewis, both of Petersburg, Virginia, and 12 grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Wednesday at the First Methodist Church at Jackson and burial was made in Jackson cemetery.

The largest single industrial bond issue of 50 million dollars was sold by the city of Lewisport in 1963 to finance construction of a rolling mill that will mean initial employment for 1,000 persons.

The marriage of Miss Gloria Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wyatt, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Dennis L. Ousley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville B. Ousley, was solemnized at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 22, at the First Church of God here. The Rev. Coy Rigney officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white satin peau de soie. Swiss lace, trimmed with seed pearls, accented the waist and skirt. A detachable train of silk-faced peau trailed into a point at the back. Her bouffant veil was caught to a crown of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations centered on a white prayer book.

Miss Carolyn Ramey, of Wayland, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a street-length dress of pink satin brocade with matching accessories. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations with pink streamers. Miss Carolyn George and Miss Teresa Turner, of Prestonsburg, were bridesmaids. They were similarly attired, but their colors were blue.

Frank Vaughn, Jr., of Prestonsburg, served as best man. The guests were seated by Mr. James M. Goble and Mr. Thomas Blackburn, of Prestonsburg.

Miss Ann Lafferty sang, "O, Perfect Love," accompanied by Mrs. Carlos Haywood.

100 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Civil War in Kentucky
By JOE JORDAN

One hundred years ago this week, Chief Justice Joshua F. Bullitt of the Kentucky Court of Appeals and six other men, all of whom had been arrested in August by order of Maj. Gen. Stephen G. Burbridge, the Union Army's military governor of Kentucky, arrived at Louisville and revealed that they had been confined in a military prison at Memphis. When they were taken away from Louisville under guard in August, it had been announced that they were being sent by way of Memphis to a place where they would be passed through the lines and released to make their way to Confederate territory.

Bullitt and the other men—John Colgan, John Harris, Thomas Jeffries, H. F. Kalkus, M. J. Paul and John Talbot—had been charged with belonging to a secret political society called the "Sons of Liberty," which the federal government considered subversive. They owed their release to Confederate Maj. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, who upon learning that they were in the Memphis prison offered to exchange for them some Memphis citizens and some U. S. Army engineers he had captured in one of his raids.

George D. Prentice, editor of the Louisville Journal, a strong Union man who was credited with having been as influential as any other man in keeping Kentucky in the Union, left Washington for Richmond, Virginia, to see what he could do for his son, Lt. Col. Clarence J. Prentice, Confederate States Army, under arrest for homicide.

Both of Prentice's sons had gone with the Confederacy. The other, Capt. Courtland Prentice, of Morgan's cavalry, had been killed in battle at Augusta, Kentucky, in 1862. The editor had passes from both sides, to enable him to pass through the lines from one capital to the other. (Lt. Col. Prentice was acquitted on a self-defense plea; he survived the war and returned to Louisville.)

Gov. Thomas E. Bramlette telegraphed President Lincoln, saying: "Lt. Gov. Jacob is at Catlettsburg and Col. Wolford at Covington, both under arrest and, by order of the Secret Inquisition, ordered into the Rebel lines. Will you either order their release at once, or a suspension of the order until you receive my communication of this date?"

Strokes, or cerebro-vascular accidents to the doctor, are a leading cause of death from 25 on and kill some 200,000 Americans a year, says Reader's Digest, but many can be avoided by heeding warning symptoms and taking proper corrective measures.

Nearly 150 Kentucky firms are making and selling for export products ranging from beehives to parachutes, from rubber bands to popcorn, from cheddar cheese to snuff, to every continent.

The cost per unit of producing electric power by burning coal (4.04 mills per kilowatt hour) is lower in Kentucky than in any other state except North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

Last year 63 new manufacturing plants were built in Kentucky and 97 older plants were expanded, providing 7,500 new jobs.

FIRST GRADERS NOW LEARN ECONOMIC FACTS OF LIFE

A new program of instruction devised by Prof. Lawrence Senesh, a Hungarian-born, Purdue University economist, introduces first-, second- and third-graders to the basic concepts taught in college economics courses.

Its success in Elkhart, Ind., Oberlin, Ohio, Seattle, New York City and elsewhere is described by John Kord Lagemann in a December Reader's Digest article, "How Children Learn the Economic Facts of Life."

In the program, called "Our Working World," a first grade teacher asks the children to name all the things they would like to own—big house, cars, spaceships, swimming pools, etc. She then asks them to imagine what would have to happen to make their wishes come true—ore would have to be mined, forests cut down, the country covered with factories. The students are introduced to the starting point of all economic theory—the conflict between unlimited wants and limited resources.

Through stories, games, filmstrips and field trips, children return to this rock-bottom reality: the things they want do not miraculously materialize; they have to be produced. They learn the principal of division of labor and the concept of "comparative advantage." They visit banks, filling stations and other enterprises.

Even 'Immortal' Lincoln Couldn't Carry Kentucky; Floyd Returns Not Reported

One hundred years ago this week Kentuckians casting ballots in the presidential election voted more than a two-to-one against the re-election of President Lincoln, a native of the Commonwealth. Of the other states that were still in the Union, only New Jersey and Delaware joined Kentucky in deciding that their electoral votes should be cast for the Democratic nominee, Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan.

Nine of the state's 110 counties failed to make returns: Breathitt, Calloway, Floyd, Owen, Johnson, Letcher, Perry, Pike and Wolfe. In the 101 counties that did file returns, 69.7 percent of the votes went to McClellan. Soldiers in the 18 Union Army regiments from Kentucky which took votes in the field and mailed in the results were somewhat more opposed to their commander in chief than the civilians at home were; 71.8 percent of them voted against Lincoln.

Kentuckians opposed to a second term for President Lincoln included some of the strongest Union men in the state, men who in 1861 had been influential in keeping Kentucky from seceding and joining the Confederacy.

On the day after the election Gov. Thomas E. Bramlette sent the President a telegram which said: "Gen. John B. Huston, a loyal man and a prominent citizen, was arrested and yesterday started by Gen. Burbridge to be sent beyond our lines by way of Catelettsburg, for no other offense than opposition to your re-election. You are doubtless re-elected, but surely cannot sanction this ostracism of loyal men who honestly opposed you." Lincoln replied that he "could scarcely believe" that Gen. Huston had been arrested for no other offense than opposition to his re-election, but added that he would telegraph Burbridge to release Huston at once.

On the Sunday after the election five men, three of them brothers, were shot to death near Henderson by a Union Army firing squad made up of Negro soldiers. This was said to be in retaliation for the slaying of Union men in the vicinity.

Among Union men who spoke out against what they called "military murders," the killing of men in retaliation for crimes which it was not even charged that they had anything to do with, were Paul R. Shipman, a Louisville newspaper editor, and Lt. Gov. Richard T. Jacob, who before his election had been a colonel of cavalry and had been wounded severely when fighting for the Union. They were both arrested. When Jacob arrived at Louisville under guard, Burbridge ordered him exiled to Confederate territory.

Gov. Bramlette addressed a letter to Lincoln, in which he described Burbridge as being "of

Coal Industry In Big Comeback Due To Mining, Shipping Advances

America's coal industry, hard hit by dieselization of railroads and conversion of home furnaces to oil or gas, is staging a dramatic revival, thanks to advances in mining and shipping, writes James Nathan Miller in a December Reader's Digest article, "King Coal Comes Back."

An example of mining advances is the world's largest mobile land machine, a power shovel with a boom as high as a 20-story building at the Peabody Coal Co. strip-mine at Sinclair, Kentucky. Until this shovel was built coal there was too deep for strip-mining. Operated by one man, it moves twice as much earth each year as the 77 shovels that dug the Panama Canal.

Costs of getting coal to utility steam plants which generate 80 percent of the U. S. electricity have been cut by the use of barges, the building of generating plants near mines and the threat of shipping coal by pipeline. Railroads last year cut their rates for hauling coal as much as 30 percent.

Competition, writes Miller, has shrunk the coal industry "from a fat cat to a lean and rangy one, but its prospects look good." By last year production was back to 459 million tons, and sales are growing fast.

Its place in the rapidly burgeoning electricity-generating business seems fairly secure; it is even planning to break the hold of gas and oil on the huge West Coast utility market in the next couple of years—via pipeline or unit train from the coal seams of Utah across the Mojave Desert to the Los Angeles area. Prospects for more exports to the steel industries of Europe and Japan are excellent. "Next big advance," predicts Miller, "will be the integral train—a long string of cars, permanently coupled together, shuttling endlessly back and forth between one mine and one generating plant."

UK SLATES INTERVIEWS

High School Students Of Regional Counties Asked To Colledge Here

A team representing the visitation program of the University of Kentucky will be at the Prestonsburg Community College at 7:30 p.m., Monday, November 30.

High school students living in Floyd, Elliott, Morgan, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin, Pike and Knott counties who are interested in information about the University of Kentucky are invited to attend. The meeting also will be open to students' parents, U.K. alumni and teachers.

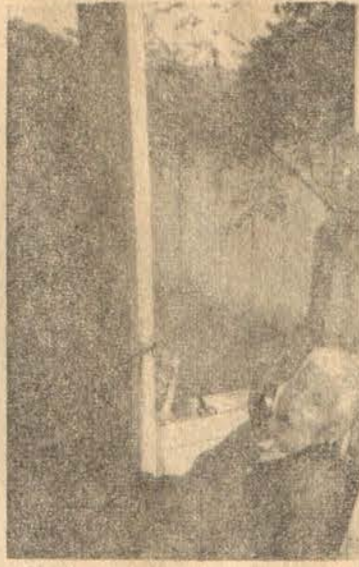

The team will include Jim Ingle, assistant director of School Relations; James Brown, director of Extension Class Programs; Jack Hall, assistant dean of men; Miss Becky Converse, of the registrar's office, and Miss Ann Law Lyons, housing administrator for women.

This meeting is one of 16 which have been scheduled throughout Kentucky this winter and have the purpose of taking the "University Story" to prospective students.

Each of the four teams organized for the tours is composed of leading administrative leaders and faculty members who will make brief talks at each meeting but will give ample time for answering of questions.

An informal social hour is planned after the session here. U. K. visitation teams addressed over 6,000 persons in area meetings during the last academic year.

bugs keep lighting on the flowers I'm painting. I try to squash them in one spot so they won't drag the color off."

Sometimes he includes the bugs in his paintings. Harm said paintings of wildlife are more accurate than photographs because of the difficulty in reproducing color exactly in photographs. "An artist can get up close to a wild columbine and match the color, just as a garage man can match the color in your car."

Harm has another problem he hasn't licked yet. "The chiggers can get fierce."

He said, "I sometimes do 75 drawings before I get one that is right. One always gets it."

An artist can "paint anything he sees," Harm said. "If an artist can see one thing, he can see another. An artist who says he is not a portrait painter, but just a good horse painter, probably isn't a good horse painter."

Asked which of his bird paintings he likes best, Harm said, "The next one." After some basic advice on brushes, perspective, and how to make reds redder and greens greener, Sarkisian demonstrated by painting a portrait of Mrs. Barbara Higmet, a model working at May Lodge.

Students watched with understandable admiration as he deftly turned out a portrait of blonde Mrs. Higmet. "But this isn't the way I usually do it, said Sarkisian. He normally uses many coats of underlay and overlay to produce paintings that last.

"A good portrait painter can always do well," Harm pointed out. "The trouble with birds is, they don't care whether I make it or not. But the ornithologists care—thank goodness for that."

The professional in the student group was Marion Maxon Healy, Covington.

THE TEMPTER

I was resigned to a winter of indoor sports, if any, with fishing and the like relegated to the files of a rather spotty memory. When my preacher showed up Tuesday night with nine quail which he had bagged that afternoon. Now I am casting about for a muzzle-loader in fair condition which might be borrowed.

WE'RE OFF FOR NEW ORLEANS!

A doctor from the Tulane University Medical Center, New Orleans, told the Southern Medical Association at Memphis, a few days ago, that a method of grafting hair onto bald pates has been devised that is 90 percent effective. He explained that it's all very simple, that they simply extract a "clump" of a dozen or so hairs from the sides or the back of your head and, using a local anesthetic, transplant them to the top of the old dome—and presto! soon there's a full thatch. We have in mind several local men who would like to be used as demonstrator models. And I'll guarantee that they'll bring in the business, for any method that will grow hair on those doorknobs will be the sensation of the Space Age.

THE OTHER SIDE—SEE AND HEAR IT!

We, the young and the old, who have been reading for so long now about "Men of Distinction" and their taste for certain brands of whiskey, and who have let ourselves be brainwashed by those who would make it appear that it's smart to be soured and sensible to get soaked—we are invited, and we should accept the opportunity, to hear and see the truth next week. The Floyd County Ministerial Association will state facts, and the films they will offer will not show high-priced actors faking scenes, as they bring the public much-needed information on the dangers of alcoholic beverages. These are men with a message that should be heard and considered.

would be illegal, and so Commonwealth's Attorney Harold Stumbo's motion was not given the support it otherwise would have had.

Judge Conley said that the case will be brought to trial till a jury is qualified and trial is completed. A jury from either Pike or Johnson county is being considered.

The current court session to date has been on the dull side, with few trials held.

The voluntary manslaughter trial of James Hall, who was named on three such counts in the auto deaths of three persons, was continued till January 11.

Woodrow Roy and Roger Lee Shepherd, who had been given one-year terms for grand larceny, were placed under probation for five years. Claude Slone, who was given a two-year term when, refusing advice of counsel, he pleaded guilty to a charge of knowingly receiving stolen property, later was probated. The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company was fined $100 upon conviction of negligently firing woodland, and Curtis Smallwood was acquitted of a liquor possession charge.

Long-distance telephone calls average seven minutes on a normal business day but on Christmas average nine minutes, according to Reader's Digest. U. S. long-distance Christmas calls last year totaled 3.8 million—nearly four times the usual Sunday total.

MOVE TO TOWN

Lexington, Ky.—In the years ahead, rural youth will continue to move to urban areas for the most desirable and best paying jobs, James D. Cowbig, USDA's Economic Research Service, told those attending the recent annual Agricultural Outlook Conference in Washington, D. C.

The purpose of the IFYE program is to promote understanding on a "grassroots" level among the people of the world. Financed mainly by voluntary contributions, the two-way exchange is sponsored by the National 4-H Club Foundation on behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Only Bernard Shaw has earned more than Winston Churchill among English writers. According to the December Reader's Digest, the former Prime Minister earned $100,000 a year as an author when he was out of office. Run down by a taxicab in New York, he sold an account of the accident for $2,500.

Health care for Kentuckians will get a boost from the establishment of six regional health centers throughout the state, each center to serve approximately 20 counties.

One of 4 Junkyards Complying with Law

Approximately one out of every four junkyard dealers in Kentucky have complied with the state's screening law and have been issued permits, Highway Commissioner Henry Ward said a few days ago.

Ward said that as of October 31, 206 of the state's 875 known junkyards had erected suitable screens and had received permits. Forty-one permits were issued during October.

He also pointed out that 52 percent of the junkyard dealers in Kentucky had submitted applications for permits by the end of October. Eleven applications were received during October, upping the total received since the state began enforcement July 1, 1964, to 456.

The Highway Department filed complaints against 17 junkyard operators during October, bringing to 49 the total number filed. Eleven operators complied with the law after complaints were filed against them, and the majority of the other 38 are in various stages of compliance.

MATCHING REQUIREMENTS ELIMINATION IS VIEWED

Efforts to eliminate the U. S. Bureau of the Budget's requirement of local or state matching funds for construction of two reservoirs in the Big Sandy valley apparently have been successful. This is the substance of a recent report by Governor Edward T. Breathitt and Congressman Carl Perkins.

The flood-control projects in question, the Yatesville Reservoir in Lawrence county and the Paint Creek Reservoir in Johnson county, would have required state or local participation of some $3.5 million, Breathitt said.

The Governor wired President Lyndon B. Johnson that the policy suggested by the Bureau "will hinder an adequate flood control program for the Big Sandy valley and will delay many years the construction of these reservoirs, although authorized in the Omnibus Bill during the last session of the Congress."

Steve Wakefield, flood control director in the State Department of Natural Resources, represented Breathitt in a protest meeting with the U. S. Corps of Engineers' division engineer, General Walter P. Leber, in Cincinnati on November 16. Perkins and some 80 Big Sandy valley residents also attended.

Perkins said after the Cincinnati meeting that "I personally thought we won our point. I feel certain that the division engineer will recommend the provision of state or local participation be dropped, especially in view of economic conditions in Eastern Kentucky."

Kentucky's Natural Resources Commissioner J. O. Matlock said the present interim report on the Big Sandy valley will cover all major flood control projects in that area. He is hopeful that the Pond Creek project and the Knox Creek Reservoir, both in Pike county, will be included in the Corps of Engineers' recommendations.

When completed, the report will be sent to various federal and state agencies and returned to the Bureau of the Budget. It would then be included in the Omnibus Flood-Control Bill which goes before Congress next year.

Wakefield said the Omnibus Bill will include Kentucky projects on the Cumberland, Tradewater, Green, Salt, and Licking River systems. Studies for these projects are now under way in the Department of Natural Resources.

One Big Sandy flood-control project, Dewey Dam, has been completed on John's Creek in this county and another, Fishtap Dam, is under construction above Pikeville. Two other projects are under way on the headwaters of the Big Sandy in Virginia, he said.

Kentucky's rate of industrial growth continues to accelerate. Last year $52 million was invested in new plants and expansion of old plants. Already this year over $91 million has been invested in 73 new plants and 111 plant expansions.

A highlight of the Kentucky Development Day at Irvine was breaking ground for a new $750,000 charcoal plant.

University Approves Health and Accident Insurance Program

University of Kentucky trustees last Friday approved a plan for providing accident and sickness insurance for students in its community college system.

At the recommendation of President John W. Oswald, the trustees authorized acceptance of a low bid from Continental Casualty Company on the new program, and gave the go-ahead for University officials to execute necessary agreements to put the plan into effect.

The plan provides a basic coverage of $1,000 for accident or illness for the nine-month school year at a rate of $5 per semester per student. Cost of the insurance will be paid from a portion of the activity fee which is charged all University students. There will be no extra charge to students covered by the insurance plan. Only full-time students in the community colleges are to be included in the program.

President Oswald, in recommending establishment of the insurance program, said its purpose is to give community college students a form of health and accident protection comparable to that provided students on the University's Lexington campus.

Youth Corps Launched In Battle On Poverty

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz last Friday launched the Neighborhood Youth Corps, one of the largest programs in the nation's war against poverty. The Corps will eventually enroll about 150,000 disadvantaged boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 21. It will provide part-time employment in public or private, non-profit institutions to enable students having financial difficulty to stay in school, to enable those who have left school for economic reasons to return, and to provide needed work experience for those permanently out of school and unemployed. The Corps will be a part of the Department of Labor's Manpower Administration. The responsibility for its administration was delegated to the Secretary of Labor by the Office of Economic Opportunity. "The Neighborhood Youth Corps programs," Secretary Wirtz said, "represent one of this nation's most ambitious and positive efforts in the conservation of the talents and development of the skills of our neglected young people. Most young Americans are well off. They go to good schools. They have promising futures. But far too many others have been born on a dead-end street. For these, the unskilled seeking work in a computer age, the children being raised in poverty, the young men and women struggling against slum environments, the economic progress of this nation is a meaningless set of statistics."

Medical Auxiliary Meets At May Lodge; Appeal for Glasses

The dining room at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, was the scene of the recent luncheon meeting of the Johnson-Floyd-Magoffin County Medical Auxiliary. Those present were: Mrs. A. B. Carter, Mrs. R. A. Hall, Mrs. E. E. Archer, Mrs. James W. Archer, and Mrs. Lon C. Hall, all of Paintsville; Mrs. George P. Archer, and Mrs. J. D. Adams, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Lloyd M. Hall, of Salyersville. Mrs. George P. Archer gave a report on the annual meeting of the State Auxiliary in Louisville. Mrs. J. Jack Martin, state president, will be with the local group for a working meeting, April 8. A motion made by Mrs. R. A. Hall to donate $25 to the McDowell House, Danville, was adopted. An appeal was made for old glasses for the eye clinic at Pikeville. Mrs. James W. Archer was instructed to seek the help of local civic organizations in getting donations of glasses prior to the January meeting. There was a discussion about requests for donations of bandages and hospital coats, and Mrs. George P. Archer issued an invitation for the January meeting to be held at her home here so that the Auxiliary could begin sewing on these. Mrs. Carter read an appeal from the Darien Book Aid Plan for donations of magazines, medical journals, and medical books, and asked that any donations be turned in at the January meeting. The December meeting will be a joint meeting with the doctors of the Medical Societies of all three counties. It is to be a dinner meeting on Tuesday, December 29, at the Paintsville Country Club. With camping in Kentucky overcrowding the public facilities, 5,000 new campsites are needed. The Lake Cumberland area has been designated for a pilot campsite project. This is the first step toward encouraging commercial development of these private enterprises.

Outstanding Floyd County Citizens

Many Floyd county citizens have left footprints in the communities in which they resided. Evidence of it lives on in neighborly service, hospitality and devotion to duty as remembered by those who knew them. Shown here, left and center, are Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Howard, and Mrs. Laura Allen Fitzpatrick. Mrs. Louise Howard is the only surviving daughter of the three children of Lewis P. (Tucker) Allen and Manda Prater Allen who lived to adulthood. A brother of Mrs. Howard was the late M. V. Allen, who served a term as Floyd county sheriff, and a sister was Mrs. Fitzpatrick, wife of Elza Fitzpatrick, of Garrett. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick died in the early 1940's, respected citizens of the Baptist Bottom section of Garrett. Dayton Howard was born in Magoffin county, and moved to Floyd county in 1914. He served six years in the Army, earning many commendations for devotion to duty and outstanding performance. In later life he served as postmaster at Northern.

The First National Bank salutes the many outstanding citizens of this county who have contributed so much to make it a better place to live.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

THE VALUE OF NATURE STUDY FOR THE ILL

Many hospitals and clinics now help to cure mentally disturbed patients by having them study and work with flowers, or grow plants in a garden. The study of nature and learning the ways of plant life help the sick in mind and soul to find new interests and often work seeming miracles in curing the mentally ill.

Nature study in the great outdoors is also a good tonic for those who are tired, overworked or sick. A walk among the flowers of fields and woods, listening to the birds, takes the mind off the body, and its aches and pains; it helps to tune the spirit of man with the great creative forces of nature. It is a tonic for the soul, mind and spirit to observe the beauty, order and rhythm of nature.

There is law, order and beauty in the processes of nature, and when the sick or discouraged person gets in tune with these processes, it is a medicine for the spirit. The ever-recurring cycles of nature, the glorious death of nature in the fall, the resurrection of nature every spring, as she comes forth to new life in a glorious garb of beauty—all these are made for the healing and inspiration of man's body and spirit. Man is closest to his God when he is out in the silent cloisters of nature, where he can hear the soft violin solos of the kind in the leaves, or the croon of a thousand insect singers round about him. That is why the poet, William Cullen Bryant, admonished us "to go forth under the open sky and listen to Nature's voice." There is a voice and a language of beauty in nature; there is a soul and a spirit in nature, and she has a message of inspiration and spiritual peace for all.

PLANTS THAT DEVOUR INSECTS

There are many plants that are good insect catchers, and they catch them to eat. These plants use much ingenuity to trap the insects they devour for food. Most of these grow in bogs or swampy regions, where they cannot get the nitrogen they need, so they get nitrogen from the bodies of insects. They help to maintain the balance of insect life and are almost as valuable as birds and toads in helping to control insects pests like flies and mosquitoes.

The most famous of the insect-eating plants is the pitcher plant, which grows in northern bogs; also out west in California and Oregon. The western pitcher plant is called, "The Hooded Cobra" as its appearance is almost as terrifying as a cobra. The plant stands up out of the bogs about three feet high, looking almost precisely like a hooded cobra, with the hood formed by the leaves, and of a reddish color. There is also a pitcher plant down south in Florida and in California which produces pitchers two feet long; these leaf pitchers contain the "death bath," in which the insects drown; then they are dissolved and absorbed by the tissues of the plant.

The pitcher plant really sets a cunning trap to catch the insects. The tops of the pitchers have lids, on the underside of which there are tiny glands which secrete honey to trap the unwary insect. The insect crawls under the lid to feast on the honey, but there are small hairs which prevent its escape, and soon it is exhausted trying to escape and falls into the "death bath." The leaves of the pitcher plants have many grotesque forms, some like the hooded cobra and some with a long neck and head like the soft-shelled turtle. While the plants have a grotesque form, they produce flowers of exquisite beauty. The large blossoms are reddish-pink, or creamy, and look like the blooms of orchids.

Pitcher plants belong to a family of their own, the pitcher plant family (Sarracenaceae); the flowers are borne on separate stalks, usually rising up on long, slender scapes beside the tall, grotesque pitchers. It is said the pitcher plants at a distance look like "raw, red meat," which attracts carrion flies, but instead of finding meat the flies find drowning and dissolution in a "death-bath" at the bottom of one of the tall pitchers.

Other plants which trap insects to eat are the sundews. The leaves of a sundew plant are veritable fly-traps, which secrete a sticky fluid to trap insects. The fluid is sweet and tempts flies or other insects, but when the fly lights on the leaf to suck up the sweet fluid, this presses a "trigger," which gives the signal for the long hairs of the leaf to flip down and hold the insect fast. It is impossible for the insect to escape when these hairs close down on it. It is held there until it is completely dissolved and its contents eaten by the plant. So sensitive are the hairs of the sundew leaf, even a small gnat sets off a sensation that flips the trigger. Even a piece of hair, or a feather, dropped on the trap will set the mechanism to working.

The sundews are fascinating plants; they grow in peaty soil or bogs over much of North America. The foliage is bronzy and the flowers are white. These plants display an intelligence that is amazing; they also show the power to react to a stimulus that almost puts them on the higher plane of life with a nervous system. They are so sensitive they respond to the least stimulus and when one studies their ingenuity and intelligence, one is led to ask, "Can these plants think and feel?"

THIS STORY PROVES YOU CAN'T STOP A TELEPHONE MAN WHEN HE'S GOT A JOB TO DO! In Florida a very special telephone installation had to be made which meant getting telephone lines across an impassable swamp. The installer fastened a fishing line to a telephone line, and the fishing line to an arrow, then shot the arrow across 350 feet of swamp. He went around to the other side of the swamp, pulled the telephone wire across attached to the fishing line, and finished the installation. Which also proves there's an answer to every communications problem and folks at the phone company will find it!

SAYING "THANK YOU" TO FRIENDS AND FAMILY is one way we maintain happy relationships with those we love. In somewhat the same way we express gratitude to God. Thankfulness to God should be a feeling we express all year round. ## FLOYD CENTER LISTED IN HEALTH FACILITIES

Frankfort, Ky. — Construction has been started on three new county health centers and on additions to three others in Kentucky since last December. The six projects cost a total of more than $760,000.

One — the Metcalfe County Health Center at Edmorton, costing $52,547 — has been opened during the year.

Six other county health centers and one addition, costing a total of $474,000, reached the planning stage during the past 12 months, according to Paul A. Hackney, director of hospital and medical facilities for the Kentucky Department of Health.

Governor Edward T. Breathitt said, "I am most pleased to see the continuing construction on these county and city health centers."

"The health and welfare of all Kentuckians — particularly those unable to help themselves is a proper concern of state government. Problems relating to health and welfare demand effective solution, and this is a part of that solution."

The 10 centers and four additions represent a total cost of $1,288,453 and bring to 74 the total of county health centers and additions that have been built in Kentucky with the help of the federal Hill-Burton Act.

State and local funds provided half of the cost with Hill-Burton funds providing the other half.

New health centers on which construction has started in the last year are Lexington-Fayette county, Marion county and Nicholas county.

Additions now under construction are those for Floyd county, Paducah-McCracken county, and Taylor county.

On the drawing board are local health centers for Bullitt, Greenup, Letcher, Madison, Morgan and Trimble counties. An addition also is being planned for Lee county.

"Construction of these new city and county health facilities means that they no longer are being located in dreary out-moded structures, but in modern, well-equipped buildings," Hackney said.

"In addition, these new community health centers have also helped attract better-trained health officers, nurses, sanitarians, administrators, clerks, and health educators.

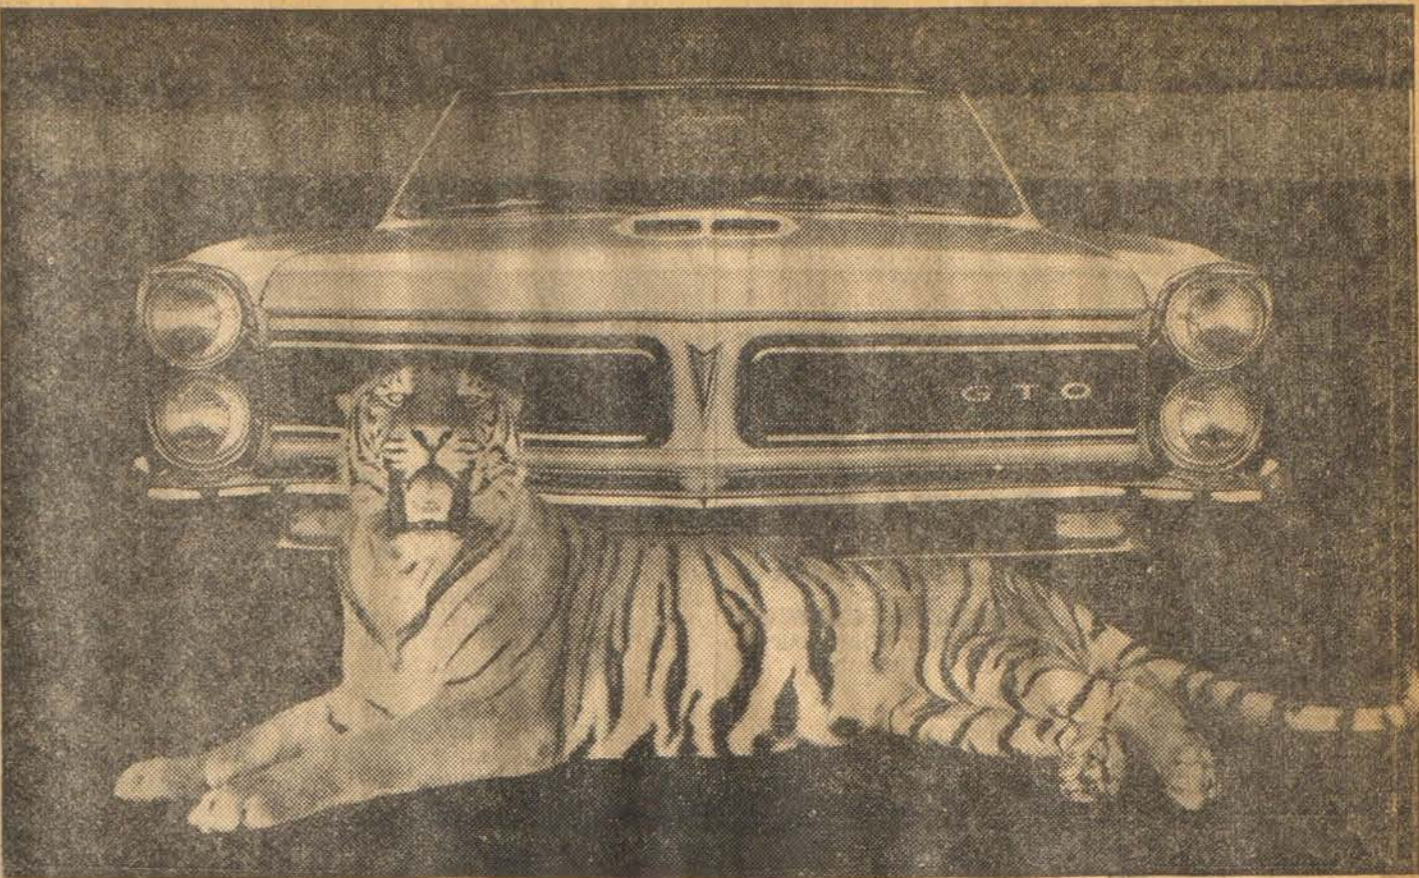

"The local health department gains new stature and prestige in the eyes of the area it serves," he said. "And the ultimate benefit is better health for all communities."

The county health centers usually include examination rooms, a dental and x-ray room, an assembly room, a waiting room, and offices for the health officer — a physician with special public health training — and members of his staff.

The buildings are designed, Hackney said, on the basis of community needs, with the local population a main concern.

Christmas Cards

Father of the American Christmas card industry was German-born Louis Sprang who in 1874 began making cards in Roxbury, Mass. By 1880, according to the Reader's Digest, his presses were turning out five million a year (the biggest U. S. firm now prints that many in a day!). Today, cards come in 50,000 different designs from 300 manufacturers.

Harold School Reports Year's Improvements; Lists Honor Pupils

When school began at Harold for the new school year, there was no bell to ring to let the children know it was time to begin classes. The reason for this was the children had a new modern building, and the bell had yet not been installed. Construction began in early spring to replace the 34-year-old wood structure, which had been heavily damaged by the 1957 and 1963 floods. In 1958 a modern lunchroom and two classrooms were built. This gave more space for classrooms and a better lunch program.

The new building consists of six classrooms, a principal's office, first-aid room, supply room, three rest rooms, and a combination library-music room. Each room is equipped with book shelves, new seats, good lighting facilities and an intercom system.

The P-T.A. bought a new piano at the beginning of the new year. Mrs. Betty Porter is the music teacher for Harold school, alternating with the John M. Stumbo school.

P-T.A. officers elected for this school year are: Ted Stumbo, president; Emmitt Conn, vice-president; Mrs. Norman Sturgill, secretary-treasurer. P-T.A. meets in the music room, the first Monday night of each month at 6:30.

The Harold grade school honor roll for the first nine weeks follows:

Special honors will go to the graduating class of 1957 and to those who were members of the varsity basketball team of that year. It is expected that "old grads" will be arriving for a reception in the lunchroom at the grade school building between the hours of 3 and 5 p.m.

The basketball game of the evening will be with Oil Springs. The varsity game will be preceded by a game between "old-timers" and the 1957 squad.

The attention at halftime in the varsity game will be the crowning of the Homecoming Queen, who will be Debi VanHoose, of the sophomore class. Her attendants will be Dorothy Campbell, Sandra Collins, Billie Mosley, and Gloria Bradley. The Senior class will sponsor a dance to begin immediately upon the close of the game, at approximately 10 p.m.

SPORTS CHATTER

By GORDON MOORE

Martin and Meade Memorial, rated the top teams in the 15th region this basketball season, opened play Wednesday night in the Jenny Wiley invitational tournament in Prestonsburg's spacious fieldhouse.

Denzil Halbert's Purple Flash met the Mullins Tigers at 7 p.m. in the opening session. Both clubs were in the 15th regional tournament on the same floor last season. Martin has rolled to a 4-1 mark thus far in the season while Mullins is 2-1.

Meade Memorial began play in the second game, Wednesday night, against the Betsy Layne Bobcats.

Wendell Wallen's Johnson countians have won all three starts to date and already have won the Johnson county pre-season tournament at Oil Springs.

McDowell's Daredevils, lone conqueror of Martin two weeks ago and favorite in the lower bracket, will tangle with Virgie in the first game at 7 p.m. today (Thursday).

Prestonsburg and Morgan County, both with 2-0 records, see action in the second game Thursday night at 8:45. The invading Blue Devils have the tallest team in the tournament and possibly one of the rangiest in the state as their starters average six-foot-three in height.

The tournament will feature the region's outstanding players, according to a pre-poll of the region's coaches. Meade Memorial's senior Alvin Ratliff, 6-5 inch center, was selected as the region's best player. He has averaged 27 points a game in his team's first three victories.

Martin has versatile senior Larry Hall and playmaker guard Stevie Halbert, who is the son of veteran coach Denzil Halbert. Hall and Hal-bert have hit for nearly 20 points per game in their first five games.

Rickey Hall, junior six-foot-three center, and son of former McDowell mentor Adrian Hall, has paced the Daredevils to six victories in seven starts with a 27.2 per game mean.

Prestonsburg's all-around Freddie Setser has hit for 30 and 29 points in the Black Cats' two victories, and junior Beecher Hale has registered 24 and 23 points. Morgan County's six-foot-seven transfer center, Jess McCarty, has been out of the line-up, suffering from flu. Gary Holbrook, 6-5 junior, has taken up the slack since the absence of McCarty.

Mullins has a veteran team in 6-6 senior center Jack Lockhart, 6-4 junior forward Joey Crum, 6-2 senior forward Jerry Hall and guards Roy Ratliff and Mike Ewers.
