SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1966

This Town ... That World

Wonder if all the snakes still go blind during dog days? And, if the water in the creek is pizen? Oh, boy! The masterpieces of fiction that were created by parents who wanted to keep the young'uns out of the water!

THEN AND NOW

Rufus Reed has an article in this edition of The Times, which, had it been written half a century ago, would have got him branded as a well, a prevaricator. It was about dragon flies. Back then, everybody knew they were Devil's Darning Needles, and that was that, and if'n they stung a-boby they would swell up and die and nothing could save them.

Beautiful, harmless creatures—they are that, in this enlightened age. But back then, when folks still stood a bit in awe of nature, they spoke in half-whispers of how deadly this thing was.

I have perhaps swallowed more Old Wives' Tales, hook, line and sinker, than were good for me. So I grew up in mortal terror of these dragon flies. One of these gave me a particularly terrible time. I recall. It took a sort of liking to me, hovered and darted overhead, several times almost alighting on the flinching shoulder and never quite making it—because I was in flight so wild that it made Bull Run look like a funeral procession.

No kiddin', kids, they are harmless—but don't you put that thing on me!

WARD AVERS STATE READY FOR ACTION

How soon will U.S. 23 construction from the Mountain Parkway up Katy Friend to Allen and the Inez-Prestonsburg road from Lancer up Bull Creek to connect with the new U.S. 23 at Water Gap be begun?

Speaking at the dedication here Saturday of Archer Park, Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward could not give a definite answer to this question, because, he said, the matters of design and cost are being studied by federal officials and not another mile of highway can be authorized till they are settled.

"As for the Department of Highways, we are ready to go," he said. "We already have more miles of highway under construction than any other state involved in this Appalachian Program. We'll have more, if they'll let us alone."

Ward pointed out that Congress authorized $840 million to be spent on a 70-30 matching basis within the next five years. But cost studies now show that the program will cost $1 billion more, and there is no more money available.

He pointed out that some argue for great expressways but that he has contended that a system of two-lane highways, well constructed and reaching more peo-

MUD CREEK WATER PLAN BEING PUSHED

WATER DIST. IS FEASIBLE, CLAIM MADE

Project Planner Says May Cost $1 Million; Local Support Sought

The Highway 979 Area Community Action Council, Inc., which represents the population and grassroots clubs of the Mud Creek section of the county, is mustering its forces to show the feasibility of a water district to serve that area.

Since Governor Breathitt last month proclaimed the Mud Creek section a disaster area, the Council, Appalachian Volunteers, the Big Sandy Community Action Program, County Judge Henry Stumbo and others have been moving toward that end.

Creation of a water district would be a preliminary step toward financing of a central water plant and construction of a water distribution system through the Highway 979 area which includes Mud Creek, its tributaries and the Clear Creek section of the Left Beaver to Hi Hat.

John T. Pritchard, Columbus, O. economist and project planner, who recently toured the area, studied its water problem and mapped the communities involved, told a Council meeting Friday night that the project will cost in the neighborhood of $1,221,000.

His survey showed that there are 1,312 homes in the area, and he said that if 70% of these—roughly, 900—would become customers of the system, it would be "very feasible."

Meeting Here To Study Wildlife Development Extension, Countywide

If sufficient interest is shown, the wildlife development work begun on Middle Creek in a wide-scale community improvement program may be extended, countywide.

A committee will be organized to explore this possibility at a meeting scheduled at the ASCS office here Monday evening, August 22.

Cooperating farmers would be eligible for cost-sharing, with both the Soil Conservation district and SCAS being involved in the development.

ple, should be substituted for the super-highways. Ward said he has a feeling his point of view has gained headway in Washington.

He expressed the belief that all of Kentucky's program will be completed and that U.S. 23 will be completed all the way from Portsmouth, Ohio to the Kentucky-Virginia line.

Ward said that Kentucky is now paying for its vast new highway system with higher revenues—gained without increasing taxes.

The time has come, he said in effect, for "crow-eating" by those who opposed road-bond issues with the argument that they would lead inevitably to higher taxes.

Ward said his own insistence—that the bonds could be paid off without new or expanded taxes—is being proved.

He said the State Department of Revenue has just notified him that road fund income for this year will top last year by $10 million.

"I personally believe that the increase will be closer to $15 million," Ward said. "In any event we now have proof that better roads have a way of generating more travel and thereby a greater return to the state in revenue."

Extension Registration At Community College Set for September 1

The registration for all Extension classes to be given by the University of Kentucky and held at Prestonsburg Community College during the fall semester will be Thursday, September 1, at 7 p.m. Classes will begin on Tuesday, September 6. At present, the University proposes to offer seven extension classes during the fall semester. Full details and schedules will be announced as soon as the complete faculty has been approved.

Wednesday, August 20, will be the final pre-registration for the fall semester. Students, if they plan to attend the fall semester, should register at this time if at all possible. It assures them of a place in their preferred classes and it gives the college time to add new sections and to employ new teachers if they should be needed. Students may still register the following week and the first week of classes, but they run the risk of not being able to get into classes that they desire.

BOARD SETS TAX HEARING For Special Meeting August 20th; Protests Assessment Increase

The Floyd County Board of Education last Saturday scheduled a special meeting for Saturday, August 20, when it will hold a public hearing on its request for an additional 10% in revenues. The hearing will be held at 1:45 p.m.

The board at its meeting last Saturday adopted a resolution opposing the proposed imposition of a blanket 10% increase in real estate assessment and authorized County Superintendent Charles Clark to appear Monday with fiscal court members at the Frankfort hearing on the assessment boost.

At the August 20 special meeting the board of education will also consider bids offered on the construction of an addition to the Prestonsburg elementary school building.

Superintendent Clark was authorized at last week's board meeting to advertise for two mobile units which will be used in taking to rural schools instructional laboratory facilities provided by federal funds. Otherwise, most of the business of the session was devoted to employing teachers, accepting resignations and granting leaves of absence.

Teachers employed: Mavis Flanery, Martin elementary; Earl D. Ousley, Clark elementary; Georgia Layne, Buck's Branch; Patricia Baldwin, Betsy Layne high school; Susie Gray, Prestonsburg elementary; Lois Cain Ball, music, Clark elementary; Ann Ryan Stumbo, Maytown high school; Willie Elliott, Wheelwright high school; Malcolm Hall, Osborne elementary; Loretta Hallworth, Myrtle; Daniel Branson, Prestonsburg high school.

Harry Haywood was employed as football coach at Wheelwright high school, and James Franklin Francis was named basketball coach at the same school. Haywood, a native of Floyd county, has been coaching football in Ohio for the last few years. Francis, who is a resident of Garrett, coached basketball last year at Jenkins high school.

Lexie Allen was employed as assistant director of the Neighborhood Youth Corps program for the 1966-67 school year, and for the entire education staff was re-employed. David B. Leslie was employed as social worker for Title I projects.

Resignations accepted: Flothe Prasure, Melvin elementary; Nancy Ruth Akers, Martin elementary; Dixie Neeley, Clark elementary; Lillian McDonald, Prestonsburg high school; Hershell Flanery, Maytown high; Martha Jane Fitzpatrick, Prestonsburg high.

Leaves of absence were granted to: Ethel Johnson, Allen elementary; Billie Damron, Wheelwright high school; Charlene Sexton, Betsy Layne high; Clara Frazier, Betsy Layne elementary; Mazie Tackett, Spruce Pine.

NEW ENTRANCE to Prestonsburg greeted Gov. Edward T. Breathitt as he toured the state by air, a few days ago, to see public facilities, many of them being built with funds from the $176 million bond issue voted by Kentuckians last fall. In addition to roads and bridges, the Governor took a look at dams, lakes, parks, libraries, office buildings and schools.

PARK SURPRISE GIFT MADE AT DEDICATION

Commissioner of Highways Henry Ward delivered the principal address at the dedication here Saturday afternoon of Archer Park, paid high tribute to Dr. George P. Archer, mayor of Prestonsburg, for whom the park was named—and wound up by announcing that the road into and through the park is to be rebuilt by the state, in part, and given blacktop surfacing throughout.

The announcement came as a surprise to Dr. Archer. "It was one thing I hadn't asked for—yet," he commented.

At the same time, Commissioner Ward announced that the dedication program, Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd county schools, described the park as a "highwater mark." It is a playground for youth that is unique in Eastern Kentucky. He said the achievement "is typical of Floyd county and Prestonsburg which were once described as the Rip Van Winkle of the Big Sandy. But we've ripped away the Rip."

County Judge Henry Stumbo commented that Mayor Archer has done more for the city of Prestonsburg than all the mayors before him—"and," he added, "we've had some good mayors."

THREE TAKEN BY OFFICERS

Intoxicants Found At Three Places; 30 Jailed in Two Days

Three Floyd men have been arrested since last Thursday on liquor charges, and during Friday and Saturday 30 persons were jailed here on a variety of counts.

Paul Joseph was booked on a selling charge and for possession of alcoholic beverages after his arrest here last Thursday by Hunter by Sheriff Lewis and AEC Agent Claude Flanery. A pint of vodka was found in the taxi stand from which he operated when a search was made following his arrest on a selling warrant.

Lark Hunt was arrested on a possession charge Saturday night at Hunter by Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Sheriffs C. B. Hall and Tommy Engle. The officers reported the confiscation of six pints of intoxicants from Hunt's store and another from his home.

Charges of transporting alcoholic beverages and drunk driving were lodged against Donald B. Tackett, who was arrested by Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Milt Hunt Monday at Amba. Lewis said Tackett had a case of beer, two quarts of wine and a small quantity of whiskey in his possession.

Sheriff Lewis was called to Toler Creek Wednesday to investigate the burglary of the store of Henry Keathley. Approximately $50 in cash was taken.

FEAR RABIES IS SPREADING

Dead Fox on Cow Cr. Had Disease; Control Measures Suggested

Laboratory tests showing that a gray fox found dead recently on the highway near the mouth of Cow Creek had rabies gave cause for fear by the Floyd County Health Department this week that the disease has spread into this county from neighboring Knott where a major rabies outbreak was reported last week.

Nine head of cattle have died in the Mousie area of Knott county, and rabid foxes, even bats, are suspected as having transmitted rabies to these animals.

The discovery of the dead fox on Cow Creek was the first known case of rabies among wild animals in this county during the year. A big increase in the number of gray foxes is reported in this and neighboring counties. Residents of the vicinity where the fox was found on Cow Creek said dogs killed it. Now, they are wondering if their dogs will "go mad."

Dr. Russell L. Hall, Floyd county health doctor, said this lone case of a rabid wild animal serves as a warning that there may be, doubtless, are more. He suggested that all pets should be immunized against rabies and that owners of dogs and cats should not play with them or any other pet for the next few weeks if they have not been vaccinated.

He added that if another case (See Story No. 5, Page 8)

FLOYD GROUP HOLDS RAISE UNJUSTIFIED

Revenue Department Agrees To Investigate Before Final Action

Floyd county officials and attorneys argued with the Department of Revenue at Frankfort Monday the injustice of the proposed 10% "blanket raise" on all Floyd county real estate holdings except oil.

The net result was an agreement by Commissioner Luckett that the effective date of the order would be stayed, pending a further check of assessment records. A promise also was made that the Department of Revenue will cooperate fully with the county in an attempt to reach a proper assessment figure.

At one stage in the discussion Floyd officials agreed to take legal steps to enjoin the Department from effecting the raise. An appeal from the assessment increase, if it is finally invoked, was approved.

County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill acted as spokesman for the official group attending the hearing. Arguments against the raise were also voiced by other officials and by J. W. Howard, Burl W. Spurlock and Paul C. Combs, attorneys.

NO WONDER SATURDAY NIGHT WAS OFTEN ENOUGH!
Fifty years ago, it really wasn't much fun to take a bath... especially when you had to chop wood and heat the water on the old cookstove. But, thanks to low-cost electricity, today's bath-time is anytime. An electric water heater is just one of dozens of electric appliances that have made household chores easier, safer, and more convenient.

IT'S HARD TO KEEP COOL

When the Court of Appeals directed that a full assessment of property at cash value be introduced to Kentucky, to take the place of the annual lying contest indulged in, if not enjoyed, by property-owners, The Times was pleased and said so.

But, now that the assessment not only is full but running over, and since 100% assessment has for many taxpayers become 110%, we are as unhappy about the whole mess as we were pleased.

The Court of Appeals said nothing about assessment of any property-owner beyond a fair cash value. Any taxpayer who has his property assessed at full value and who suffers from a state-imposed blanket raise is paying more than the law or the courts have ever required.

We hope it is more than the law and the courts will permit.

And while the Constitution is being "tracked," perhaps somebody will dig up that section which calls for equality of assessment between taxpayer and taxpayer. If they ever get around to requiring tax commissioners to undertake that superhuman task, of establishing truly equalized assessments, it may be that everybody will throw up their hands and call the game off.

The Times sympathizes with those who have the tax job to do: cool consideration of their problems demands that. But the fact is, what with the heat and assessments rising beyond 100%, it's seldom that we're cool, these days.

WHAT OTHER NAME?

Some day not too far ahead, we hope to do a feature on the gentle art of "scrounging."

It will have to do with the building of Archer Park here—it will be a story of continuing close shaves with failure, of making the most of the junk-heap, of begging, wheedling, borrowing; of ingenuity, called upon, responding to stave off failure when materials and money were needed and when both were lacking.

One citizen remarked that if we could get down on paper all the arts and wiles and devices Mayor George P. Archer has employed in getting past a multitude of obstacles, the Army would adopt it as a handbook for supply sergeants.

The man had a dream, and, unlike so many, he did something about it. He has had a lot of help, but that doesn't count as begging to be let in on a hard job; his enthusiasm and will to see the job through naturally attracted the interest, and perhaps the sympathy, of others.

Many people deserve much credit for this park, which, it is apparent even now, will one day distinguish Prestonsburg. But when all the credits are in and all the contributions are added up, you still will come up with this one conclusion which we already have reached—no other name would fit Archer Park.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED
DRAGONFLIES

If you want the mosquitoes cleaned up along the streams and ponds, turn a swarm of dragonflies loose on them and they'll do a better job than insecticides. Mosquitoes quickly develop immunity to sprays but they cannot escape the greedy jaws of the big mosquito hawk, as these streamlined ships of the air are called. They catch their insects while flying and their forelegs are held like a trap for seizing and holding the insects.

Dragonflies are such greedy eaters they often devour insects so fast their jaws get clogged up and they have to stop to catch up on their chewing.

The big green darner, largest of the eastern dragonflies, is also called "Devil's Darning Needle," and "Snake Doctor." These are beautiful, streamlined insects with long, gauzy wings. When they alight, they hold their wings extended straight out like a biplane. They are swift flyers and have been clocked at 60 miles per hour. Few insects can escape their vision, as they have large compound eyes. Each of the big eyes contains about 30,000 small eyes and these enable the dragonfly to spot its prey in all directions.

The long, slender needlelike abdomen gives the big darners the common name of "Devil's Darning Needles." Down south, it is believed these insects will sew up the ears of a schoolboy caught skipping classes. They are also called snake doctors, because they are often seen hovering around the heads of snakes in swamps and other places, and some say they are feeding medicine to the sick snake. In reality they are playing the part of a valet to the snake, by capturing the flies and other insects that pester the reptile. They perform the same service for snakes that the cowbirds do for cattle.

One of the most interesting sights is to watch a big female darner laying her eggs in a brook. I had the rare privilege of watching one for several minutes. She was carrying out an egg-laying dance, shooting up and down with the speed and rhythm of a pile-driver. It was a beautiful dance. She held her slender body in a vertical position and each time she shot down, she plunged her ovipositor in the water and laid eggs. She kept up this egg-laying ritual until she must have deposited many hundreds of eggs in the running water.

The eggs hatch out creatures that are truly masked monsters. They have none of the streamlined beauty of the adult dragonfly. They have a long, jointed lower lip, which they wear over the face like a mask when not using it to capture prey. The lip shoots out much like the tongue of a toad to snare any small water creature that comes near. These nymphs can shoot through the water by jet propulsion and are fast on a headlong dive. They eat mosquito wrigglers by the millions, and in turn are eaten by fish and herons.

The dragonfly nymph spends about two years in the water, during which period it molts a number of times. It breathes water by means of its lower intestine, which serves as a gill. When fully matured, the nymph crawls out of the water and splits its skin down the back. Then it comes out a beautiful, streamlined dragonfly with gauzy wings and greedy jaws. The discarded skin of the nymph is left clinging like a ghost to the stem of some water plant.

The adult dragonfly is one of the most remarkable and useful of all insects. Aside from the praying mantis, it is perhaps nature's most efficient destroyer of insect pests. It devours mosquitoes by the multiplied thousands, also gnats, midges, flies, bugs, beetles. Almost any insect that flies is fair game for the adult dragonfly.

Another common dragonfly of our region is called the Ten-Spot, which has 10 dark brown spots (Continued on Page 6)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

EDITOR, The Times:
THE IMMEDIATE SOLUTION,
NOT THE ONLY SOLUTION

Two weeks ago, an article was written in The Floyd County Times by Dr. Hall, of the county health department, stating that, because someone reminded the people of Mud Creek that they had a drought, this year they were trying to do something about it. It seems to indicate that because people have put up with these deplorable water conditions before and managed, they should continue to do so.

First, I'd like to say that the people were not reminded of the drought by anyone. Try packing water three miles up a hill and then see if someone has to tell you you're short of water.

Second, I think the people should be commended for their efforts to help themselves, not condemned. It was the local people who continually asked, "What can we do to get more water?"

Third, the article states that the result of all the meetings with the officials was that a geologist was employed and plans were made to drill deep wells. The conclusion is drawn that this is a spur-of-the-moment, but not the right, decision. Now I'd like to ask a question. What is a spur-of-the-moment decision? Several weeks' work and planning and discussing with officials went into the decision. Nick Johnson, the state sanitation engineer, was consulted and he personally visited the Mud Creek area and praised the people for their work.

Fourth, although Dr. Hall seems to conclude that this is not a correct decision, what he doesn't seem to know, or at least leaves no impression that he knows, is what the real decision was.

On the advice and counsel of both Mr. Johnson and state geologists who were in Mud Creek, it was decided to hire an engineer for a two-week project to locate strategic places for emergency wells to alleviate the immediate problem. Then plans were made to see the Governor to see if the area could be declared a disaster area because of the serious situation. The Governor has since been visited by Mud Creek people and has indeed declared the area an emergency area due to the water shortage, which seems again to indicate that this isn't just some small water shortage which the people have been reminded is a drought.

The long-range plans are to put in a water system for the twelve communities on Mud Creek so that this will not be a continuing problem. It seems to me that all these plans and insights are not spur-of-the-moment decisions.

The water system which the people are working hard for would have many advantages. The first and biggest would be pure and safe drinking water. Dr. Hall states that in two of the communities the results of water testing are: one has 25% pure wells and the other 8%. We should have, and we are striving for, 100% pure water and the answer seems to be in a water system which would be for everyone, whether they move in or out. People move in and out of cities and water is always available. Why should the people of Mud Creek be any less fortunate?

The rate of illness in this area is extremely high—TB, typhoid, etc., which are nearly eradicated in other sections of the country, are still grave problems here. This is unfair to the people of the community. They are no less American than anyone else, and their sons fight for the U.S. just as hard as anyone else—why can't the U.S. fight for them? If the cost is phenomenal—more than all the wars we ever fought—well, why shouldn't we pay it, anyway? I certainly would much rather have my tax money spent for the betterment of my fellowman than to shoot him! Furthermore, with the present situation we could be on the brink of an epidemic of disease. Then what would be the cost? It seems to me that an ounce of prevention is worth more than a pound of cure.

In addition to the great benefits to health a water and sanitation project (the two go hand in hand and are being worked on together) would bring, they would help in several other ways.

It would help to bring industry into the area (industry can't locate without water). This would create jobs for the people of Mud Creek and the unemployment would not be so high. The people would not be forced to leave the homes they love to move to the city in order to support a family. Another advantage is that with a water system into a fire department could be established. At this time the people have no fire protection. The possibilities and advantages are endless.

in Appalachia."—Ashland Sunday Independent, July 24, 1966). We do not set ourselves up as authorities on anything—we are doing our best to do our job. Our motto is, "We help others to help themselves." We work very hard to please and we want very much to cooperate. The local agencies could help us considerably and I believe we could help them if we could only cooperate. Why is it so hard to get along with each other? We love the people we are living and working with as much as anyone and are just as interested in their welfare. Can't we all work together for the good of all? They say, "Two heads are better than one." I believe that by really working together we could accomplish twice the amount that we each do independently.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

We all know how hard it is to catch bass in August, but Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield magazine has come up with a unique method of fishing a familiar old lure. He claims it works, but let him tell the story.

"I got to thinking of the hookless, minnow-shaped decoys used in spearing pike through the ice. I'd never owned or used one. But I got a bright idea—I occasionally do.

"I couldn't find an ice-fishing decoy locally, for I'm fishing in southern Mississippi. The nearest I could come to a spearing decoy was a large bass-size, minnow-type wooden plug, natural-pike-scale finish. I weighted it by drilling several holes in the bottom, putting a big buckshot in each and smoothing wood putty over that.

"I removed the eye for the line and tied a string around near the middle to find the point of balance.

When I'd found the best point, I made a mark under the knot and, when I got home, put a small screw eye there. What I had, of course, was purely a jigging plug, not suitable for casting or trolling.

"Next time out, I tried it in deep water. There was barely breeze enough to drift my boat slowly. I first experimented with it near the surface to see how often and how hard to flip the rod tip. I decided that the best trick was to work it very gently, with pauses, for quite a while, to make it look like a lazy, sleepy minnow; then give a fairly hard yank to make it dart fast, as if it had just seen a big fish eyeing it and were trying to escape. If there really should be a big fish watching, I figured he'd sort of react, "Oh, no, you don't!" Gulp! (That's what scientists call Pure Reason, but between the two of us it seldom does any good in fishing.)

"I then just drifted along, letting it sink often until slack line showed me it had touched bottom, then raising it a trifle and working it thus. The average depth along there was maybe 20 or 25 feet; I didn't measure. I made the nicest catch I'd made in a long time, not so much for numbers as for large average size. I generally prefer surface fishing as giving me most sport, but every bass fisherman of experience knows that it isn't the way to get many big ones—you get those fishing near the bottom in rather deep water.

"As far as I know, this method of jigging with plugs has never been described in print before—but if I tried to read a tenth of what's printed about fishing I'd never get to either fish or write. However, by coincidence, only yesterday I received a letter from a leading lure company telling me it's thinking of advertising a jig-plug (as I'd call it) in next year's catalog and asking me what I thought of the idea. Naturally, I thought it a good one."

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the Prestonsburg Community College, spoke on what the park will mean to the college and commended Dr. Archer for "the drive and ingenuity" he has shown in making the facility a reality. He listed swimming, tennis, track and baseball as sports the college teams will have a part in at the park.

Marvin Music, former associate of Mr. Ward on the Kentucky Park Commission, introduced the highway commissioner. He reminded the gathering that whatever he said had no political implications, and concluded by hailing Ward as the next Governor of Kentucky.

Describing himself as "a young, naive, innocent individual," Ward in high good humor professed deep shock at the introduction.

Responding to the round of compliments paid him for his achievement, Dr. Archer said his interest in the project began with his work as a doctor, that when he examined children and found them pale from lack of sunshine and undeveloped for want of proper physical exercise he felt that something should be done for their well-being.

"What I've done—I should say, what Curtis (Clark) and I have done—has been a joy to me," he added. He gave full credit to many—to the City Council, the Park Board, civic groups, others. "I make no attempt to list all from whom I've begged, rowed, bummed and stolen," he remarked.

He mentioned the shut-in who, after reading of the park venture in The Floyd County Times, sent him $5. "I hope," he said, "she can be brought to this park sometime when it is full of children and can see them at play."

Dr. Archer explained that he invited Commissioner Ward to speak at the dedication, "because Henry Ward is the father of the parks system in Kentucky. I have found him to be firm, one of the most capable men I've ever known, and utterly honest. That man I can follow to the limit."

A LOOK AT THE PROPOSED NEW STATE CONSTITUTION

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part of the explanation of the new judicial system in Kentucky as proposed in the new constitution. It deals with how judges are selected, and how they are removed.)
By ALBERT E. DIX

When the so-called Missouri Plan for the selection of judges was presented to the Constitutional Revision Assembly there were many doubts as to its workability in Kentucky. Yet it is in operation in whole or in part in 20 states.

It is a major departure from the traditional method of election, one man against the other. It was the subject of much debate, some compromises. Unlike other sections of the new constitution it is specific in outlining the method of determining who shall sit on the judicial benches of Kentucky.

At the lowest level in the four-level system, the new constitution provides all district court judges shall be elected.

Some Circuit judges are selected by election and some by appointment. In a circuit court district of less than 50,000 population, judges are elected. However, the voters in those districts have the option of rejecting the election plan in favor of the appointment plan which applies to Court of Appeals and Supreme Court judges. In circuit court districts of more than 50,000 population the judge is selected through the appointive system. But again the people have the right, by vote, to return his selection to the normal election system. The same option is open to the people pertaining to the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

For selecting circuit court judges, the local bar association picks three men, the Governor selects three citizens, and making the seventh member of a 7-man committee is the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. This group prepares a list of three men who are eligible to pick one within 60 days after he gets the list. If he falls the Chief Justice selects the man. The appointee serves three years, a more or less probationary period. At the next election following three years of service, he must run for office, not against another man, but on the basis of his record. The people are asked to decide, "do you want him to continue, or not?"

If the people say, "yes, we want him back," the judge serves eight years in addition to the three-year probationary period. If the voters say "no, we don't want him back," the committee selection process starts all over again.

The present circuit court judges, should the new draft be approved, will be "grandfathered" into their new benches. When their terms expire, they shall be up for the "yes, we want you to continue," or "no, we don't want you back," vote.

The same thing applies to the Supreme Court. The present Court of Appeals judges become Supreme Court judges, serving until the end of their present terms, and then going before the electorate on a "yes" or "no" return-type of ballot.

Should the new constitution be adopted, present judges with less than three years remaining in their terms will have their terms extended so they will serve three years. This is their probationary period, so to speak.

If a vacancy occurs on the Supreme Court, the procedure involving the selection committee is followed. The lawyers of the District select three members, the Governor appoints three citizens (not lawyers), and the Chief Justice adds himself to the six to form a statewide selection committee. It creates a list of three possible appointees and sends it to the Governor who must pick one to fill the vacancy.

When it comes to selecting judges for the new, second-level appointment. The Governor must Court of Appeals, the state must start from scratch.

The state-wide selection committee which nominates judges for the Supreme Court will submit to the Governor nine lists of three names, one list for each of the positions on the Court of Appeals. For these nine seats the Governor will pick one name from each of the nine lists of three.

Each judge will serve three years, the probationary period, then stand for reelection on his record. If returned he serves an additional eight years. It is possible, barely, under this system, to have the same nine judges running for reelection eleven years after the new document is adopted. But the Revision Assembly believed death, retirement and resignation in that stretch of time will begin a period of staggered terms.

The pay of judges has been changed. All will receive their checks from the Treasury of the Commonwealth. Presently some judges are paid out of local funds. District judge terms will be for four years, the other three for eight years.

The doctrine of the so-called "rubber dollar" which arose out of the old constitution is gone. There is no provision fixing definite salary limits. The new document says judges shall receive "adequate compensation to be fixed by law."

In section 27 of the new document, the Supreme Court is given the power to name special judges to perform temporary services. It allows for the temporary filling of vacancies and the transfer of judges from one area to another when the work load makes it necessary.

A major adjunct to the new document is the method for retirement and removal of judges. Under the present constitution the only way to get rid of a judge is to impeach him.

But the draft proposes the machinery to do it differently. After notice and a hearing any judge may be retired for disability or cause. His hearing is conducted by a Commission composed of a Supreme Court judge, a Court of Appeals judge, circuit judge and district judge, a member of the bar, and two persons not members of the bench or bar appointed by the Governor.

It is a standing commission, serving for four years, and whose actions are subject to judicial review. It can issue reports on the condition and business of the courts, open an office, appoint a director and hire employees.

One of the arguments against the adoption of the Missouri Plan of selecting judges is that it has a tendency to perpetuate men in office. The Commission is, in part, the answer to that criticism. It has worked successfully in California.

There is little question the revision of Kentucky's judicial system is a major change. To soften the blow at the local level, the Revision Assembly wrote Section 29 which says, basically, all quarterly courts, justices' courts (J.P.'s) county court and police courts will continue in existence until the end of the term of the judge serving it, and then continue for an additional term.

In Franklin county, it would mean county court would not be abolished until 1974 if the new constitution were adopted this Fall.

The Revision Assembly felt county judges would have more work to do as the population of the state grows. His position as chief executive head of the county is demanding more and more of his time. In providing that his former judicial functions be performed by the district judge, the Revision Assembly felt it was not taking anything away from him but trying to put him in a position where he would have the time to do the job in the area where he is best qualified.

The marriage of Miss Jayne Martin Combs and Clarence A. Stephens was solemnized at 7:30 p.m. July 1 at the Nicholasville Presbyterian Church.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shelby Combs, of Nicholasville, and Mr. Stephens is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie C. Stephens, of Jessamine county.

The Rev. George Fletcher officiated at the double-ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Lee Wigginton. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. William Woods, organist, and Glen Perkins, vocalist.

A full cathedral train fell from the shoulders of a coat applied with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her veil, which extended the full length of the train, was held by a lace pillbox clustered with seed pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and white frosted grapes.

Miss Bobbie Holcomb, of Nicholasville, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of white organza with elbow-length puff sleeves and scoop neckline. A band of white velvet detailed the empire waistline. Her headpiece of white organza leaves was accented with clusters of frosted gold grapes and stephanotis and she carried a bouquet of gardenias, gold grapes and ivy.

In identical costumes were the bridesmaids, Miss Sharon Stumbo, Prestonsburg, aunt of the bride; Miss Peggi Stephens, sister of the groom, Miss Linda Holcomb, and Mrs. Billy Sue Jones, all of Nicholasville.

Dragonflies are insects of ancient lineage. They flourished during The Coal Age, when insects were abundant in the steaming swamps of lush vegetation, such as giant club mosses, tree ferns, scouring rushes and horse tails. These prehistoric dragonflies were veritable monsters, with a wing spread of two feet.

TWO PEACE CORPS TRAINEES FOR LATER SERVICE IN INDIA VISIT IN FLOYD FARM HOMES

BY HUBERT E. BALL
Chairman, Floyd County Extension Service

Since June 25, approximately 75 college juniors from universities all over the United States have been training at the University of Kentucky for the eventual assignment in India. They are part of the Peace Corps Advance Training Program which divides the training period into two summers before and after the trainees' senior year at college. Upon completion of training in the summer of 1967, the trainees will be assigned to rural communities in Northern India, which is a region of small farms.

Many of the trainees were born and reared in large cities and so have had little experience in rural living and farming. As these young people will be Peace Corps workers in rural India, farm families in Northeastern and Eastern Kentucky are cooperating with the University of Kentucky and the County Extension Agents in providing the very important field training experiences. The trainees are being placed in 12 counties to live with a farm family from Monday, August 8, through August 20.

The participating counties and the number of trainees they will host are: Floyd, 2; Johnson, 5; Magoffin, 3; Martin, 5; Pike, 8.

The two trainees assigned to Floyd county will be residing with Mr. and Mrs. Billy Merritt, of Bonanza, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Laferty, Sr., of Cliff. The trainees will assist with the chores of the home and operations of the farm.

While visiting in the region each trainee will seek as much understanding as possible about the host community.

Long Illness Claims Mrs. Alice Hall Hale At Hospital, Saturday

Mrs. Alice Hall Hale, 63 years old, of Prestonsburg, died Saturday at the Prestonsburg General Hospital of an illness of seven years.

Wayne, Indiana, Mrs. Cora Epperson, Covington, Ohio, Mrs. Virginia Bolin, Piqua, Ohio, Mrs. Ocie Webb, Brainard, Mrs. Ruth Hackworth, of Risner, and four brothers, Eugene Hall, of Portsmouth, Ohio, Cletis, Charles and William Hall, all of Piqua, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted from the residence Monday at 10 a.m., the Revs. Millard Blanton, Wallace Calhoun and Paris Music officiating. Burial was made in the Bill Webb cemetery at Bonanza under the direction of Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

VISITS HERE

Mr. and Mrs. James Rosco, of Detroit, Michigan, visited Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Mann last week.

This will give each trainee an opportunity to do some community analysis and to become better prepared for their future assignments.

Since the Peace Corps trainees are only visiting in the farm homes and communities, they will not become involved in any type of project and are not to be affiliated or mistaken for Appalachia Volunteers of VISTA.

In addition to their exposure to agricultural methods this summer, the trainees will receive at the University of Kentucky intensive training in the Indian language (Hindi-Urdu), as well as studies in the culture and politics of India.

LAND RECLAIMED

The National Coal Association's news-letter reports that the big shovels bit into a new coal seam last week under only 25 feet of cover—a high grade of lignite, and it within only a mile of a major coal-burning plant. But the product of this new field will never be mined. It was found at Fourteenth St. and Thomas Circle, N.W., in the heart of Washington, D. C. The damage the shovels did to the land will be backfilled, or whatever you call it, with a new office building.

MR. ANON

Somebody wanted to know the name of this architect the state is supposed to have working his fingers to the bone on plans for that Jenny Wiley State Park swimming pool. I don't know. Wouldn't swear anybody knows.

That deafening silence comes from Frankfort getting ready to crack down on all and sundry and so keep that coal dust out of Dewey Lake.

SOUNDS WORTHWHILE

What would a factory employing 400 persons mean to Prestonsburg and Floyd county? The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce tells what 100 new factory workers bring to a town: 359 more people, 91 more school children, $710,000 more personal income every year; 100 more households, $229,000 more in bank deposits, 3 more retail establishments, 97 more passenger cars registered, 65 more employed in non-manufacturing, $331,000 more in retail sales per year. Multiply those figures by 4, and you get the picture.

THE CAREFUL MARKSMAN

Henry Music didn't want to tell me a whopper, so he handed it to me in print. It has to do with the baseball manager who was back in the hills, doing a bit of squirrel-hunting, and along comes this boy—all six feet of him, and skinny as a rail. In his right hand, their tails clutched in his huge fist, he carried a passel of squirrels.

Just as the baseball man was about to speak, the boy cocked an ear, reached down and hefted an egg-size rock and whizzed it into the top of a towering hickory. There was a dull thud, and a squirrel thumped the ground. "That was the greatest throw I ever saw!" exclaimed the man. "Son, you're a fantastic left-hander."

"I ain't natural left-handed," said the boy. "How come I just saw you make that throw with your left?" "I ain't left-handed." "Then," the man wanted to know, "why don't you use your right?" "The boy stooped for his squirrel. "Tears 'em up too bad."

RETURN HOME

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hewlett returned home last week from Columbus, Ohio, where they visited their son, Don Hewlett, and family. They were accompanied home by their granddaughters, Sandy and Connie Hewlett.

Winfield Hazelett has been promoted to supervisory engineer at United Fuel Gas Company's Boldman Compressor Station near Boldman, according to H. O. Grady, southern division superintendent.

Mr. Hazelett succeeds Kenneth Burroughs, who is the new supervisory engineer at the company's Cobb compressor, near Charleston, West Virginia. Mr. Hazelett had been assistant supervisory engineer at Beaver Creek compressor, which is approximately four miles southwest of Martin on Ky. 80.

Employed by the company in 1948, Mr. Hazelett has worked at various stations as oiler, field clerk and assistant supervisory engineer. He is a graduate of Guyan Valley high school, Branchland, West Virginia, and has completed an International Correspondence School course in mechanical engineering.

He has been active in the Lions Club, Boy Scouts of America, Parent-Teacher Association and volunteer fire departments. His wife is the former Zelma Ramey, of Branchland, and they have three children.

The Highway 979 Area Council reported that 80% of those contacted as of this week had indicated their desire to be connected to the system.

But, it was pointed out, a vital part of the series of moves toward formation of a water district and financing of the big project will be a financial commitment on the part of those desiring water service. Council members from each community in the section to be affected will be calling on those who have indicated they would be customers and will be asking a down payment on the $25 meter charge for each household or business to be served, plus a commitment to make monthly payments until the full meter charge is paid.

Money thus deposited would be refunded to contributing homeowners if the water district is not formed.

"It is very important that the people wanting water pay a portion of the tap-on fee to show good faith and in this way insure speedy action by federal agencies," a Council spokesman said.

A federal grant of 50 to 60% is envisioned, and the fact that Mud Creek has been declared a disaster area may reduce the local contribution to a minimum, it is held.

Burden of their arguments was that:

1. A blanket raise in assessments serves only to increase inequities already existing.

2. The Court of Appeals order called only for 100% cash value assessment; many taxpayers have listed their holding at this level, and a blanket raise would bring them to 110% assessment, or more, for which there is neither constitutional provision or judicial mandate.

3. The Department of Revenue arrived at the value of Floyd county real estate by haphazard and scanty sampling of prices paid in real estate transactions within the last two years. It was shown that although there have been about 15,000 real estate transactions in this county in that time, the Department sampled only 59 of these, and most of these were purchases of property in subdivisions or for speculative purposes.

4. Another section of the Kentucky Constitution which has not been considered in the tax matter provides for equalization of assessments, and a blanket raise makes assessments more unequal. This section, it was claimed, stands unrepaled and as effective as the section which requires full assessment.

The Department countered with the argument that its task was to carry out the ruling of the Appellate Court, that Kentucky law requires it only to equalize assessments between county and county, and that equalization between individual taxpayers is the task of the counties themselves.

Its spokesmen said that an assessment which is 92% of full value is acceptable, and pointed out that Floyd county's is about 80%.

Officials appearing at the hearing in Frankfort included County Judge Henry Stumbo, County Attorney Sturgill, Magistrates Bill Wells, Zeb Ousley and Dewey Roberts, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo, Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett, County Superintendent Charles Clark and Jailer Lawrence Hale.

of rabies is discovered the health department will move to have a quarantine established on all animals from Cow Creek to the Knott county line and downriver to the Floyd-Johnson line.

"The health department," he said, "has previously mentioned the need of a fulltime dog warden and of a dog pound. It appears now that this need will be more acute before it is filled."

The health doctor advised persons who may kill a fox or animal not to shoot it in the head, since a head shot would destroy the animal's brain and thus forestall any test for rabies.

Are there really any sound reasons for buying a Chevrolet in August?

During August, it's as easy to own a Bel Air 4-Door Sedan as getting in the car.

Wait till you see how sporty you look sitting in your Impala Super Sport.

In a word: Six

1. Have you ever known the instant delight of selecting a new Impala Super Sport in the color you want, slipping into its Strato-bucket seats, and driving it home from the showroom the same day? Now's your chance. Your Chevrolet dealer has a big choice of models on hand with small August price tags.
2. More than likely, your present car will never be worth as much in trade as it is right now. Money—another good reason to buy a Chevrolet this month.
3. Read those articles about when to buy a new car and they'll tell you that August is one of the best months. And your Chevrolet dealer is ready to show you why... with buys that are better than ever.
4. If you think winter's tough on an old car, believe us, so is summer. There's added strain on the engine because of vacation driving. Greater tire wear. The cooling system has to work extra hard. A new Chevrolet can save you a lot of trouble.
5. You do a lot of driving for pleasure so why not ride on Chevrolet's Full Coil suspension. Let your feet feel that deep-twist Chevrolet carpeting. August is to enjoy.
6. Make your summer driving safer driving by taking advantage of the eight standard safety features built into every new Chevrolet. If your present car doesn't have seat belts, back-up lights, outside rearview mirror, padded instrument panel, look into a new Chevrolet.

25 IN MIDDLE CREEK PROJECT PREPARING TO SOW 552 ACRES OF PASTURELAND THIS FALL

BY WALLACE COFFEY

Soil Conservationist

Twenty-five farmers in the Middle Creek Soil and Water Conservation Development Project, cooperators of the Floyd County Soil Conservation district, are now working to plant 552 acres of pasture land this fall.

Of the 552 acres of pasture planned, 308 acres will be renovated and re-established, including some land clearing, liming, fertilization and re-seeding. Two hundred forty-four acres of new pasture will be planted, including fertilization and liming the fields to aid in the development of high quality pasture.

Farmers who have already started work on clearing and getting ready for early seeding of pasture this fall are Charley Hackworth, Charley Arnett, Troy Hackworth, Elzie Calhoun, Hobert Younce, Edgar Hale, Arthur Whitaker and Joe Edd Stone.

Most of these pastures will include a mixture of Ky. 31 Fescue, Korean Lespedeza and White Dutch Clover.

To protect these pastures from overgrazing and forests from damage by livestock, 33,621 feet of fencing is planned for these farms.

These 25 farmers are some of the landowners who have developed farm plans with the Floyd County Soil Conservation District and are now working to develop those plans which will provide an opportunity for the landowners to provide more grazing for their livestock during the year and thereby increase their income.

Noting a short supply of trained personnel, State Education Department officials say 300 new instructors will be needed by 1968 in Kentucky's growing vocational school system.

Frankfort, Ky.—Governor Edward T. Breathitt has named Albert B. Harris, Louisville, to the State Council on Public Higher Education to replace Woodford R. Porter, who resigned.

CARD OF THANKS

We gratefully acknowledge every kindness extended to us by friends and relatives upon the passing of our husband and father, Perry Hall. We especially thank the Rev. Moses Kitchen for his comforting words and the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home for its efficient services.

MISSION BOARD TO HOLD CONFERENCE IN LETCHER

This week-end, the Cumberland Mountain Mission, Inc., will hold its first Bible conference at the Camp Branch Bible Church on Sand Lick, in Letcher county.

It was around 1955 that Cordell Martin, of Hindman, former Knott county attorney and former member of the state legislature, suggested to the Rev. Robert Martin, of Martin, that a mission board be formed to aid mountaineers who were qualified and talented in their desire to do christian work. Four years later, this plan became a reality in the formation of an independent mission board. At this time the three directors are: Cordell Martin, president; Earl Moore, treasurer, Lackey business man, and Rev. Robert Martin, of The Bible Broadcast and a Floyd county minister.

This work was organized for one specific purpose—to aid the qualified mountaineer who desired to be in Christian service and who yet, because of lack of full support, had to do secular work to support his family. Such people, the new board felt, needed a group with whom they could fellowship and go to for advice and assistance and with whom problems and projects could be discussed. Some of the members are fulltime workers, supported by the donations of out-of-state churches. Some are not in fulltime work, but these devote their week-ends and after-work hours to further the cause of Christ. One such worker has a Children's Church in Magoffin county on Saturdays. Her husband, Rev. Garland Risner, keeps a church open and a work going on his week-ends. Others are doing the same in six counties.

The CMM, Inc. has for a number of years had a Christmas basket project in which needy families have been given generous supplies of food for the holiday season. In this county, Rev. Martin heads the project. There is the wheel chair project which aids invalids and cripples to have a wheel chair if one is available. Several members of the board are heard on radio stations in Kentucky and elsewhere. Another project, just launched, will be the Bible conference. In 1964, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Clay, of Camp Branch, gave the mission more than 15 acres of land and a church building, with the understanding that a Bible conference and camp work would be developed. As funds come in this project will be developed to meet the request of the donors of the land. One of the most important ministers of the Mission Board is the Wings for Christ airplane ministry of the Rev. Donald Grinar, of Letcher county. Rev. Grinar will participate in the Bible conference. To date, Don Grinar and his wife have dropped Gospel tracts and literature over several of the mountain states. Rev. Grinar hopes to be able soon to enlarge his plane ministry by the purchase of an all-metal plane, a four-seater. With this he will be able to fly ministers to important engagements and to visit the dying. He will be able to take desperately ill persons to hospitals and doctors—all for only the price of the gasoline. He has, of course, a pilot's license and is a fine pilot. The churches in the East who keep this ministry alive are proud of their airplane missionary in Eastern Kentucky.

A Caravan of Cars to leave the church of the Rev. Martin at Martin, August 14 at 11:30 a.m. The caravan will drive to the Camp Branch Bible Church to attend the dedication ceremony of the Conference grounds. At this service Dr. Donald Howard, president of Calvary College, Letcher, Kentucky, will speak. Cordell Martin, who was responsible for Calvary College coming into being, will preside. Those who wish to join the Caravan of Cars are invited to bring their car, full of people, and drive over with the others. All who can attend the other meetings are urged to do so. An announcement elsewhere in The Times gives dates, hours and speakers.

The Mission is supported entirely by donations from those interested in the spread of fundamental Christianity. All gifts are tax deductible. Earl Moore, of Lackey, Kentucky, is the treasurer. CMM hopes to see the day arrive when mountaineers will support in full those workers and works that benefit the mountaineer and not owe their spiritual help, comfort and even many physical blessings, humbly speaking, to unknown out-of-state persons. Any person desiring information may write Rev. Robert Martin, at Martin.

DINWOOD

Brigadier General Henry T. Layne, of Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, was visiting his mother, Alma Dingus, his sister, Marcella Ward, and family, friends and relatives on his way to a new assignment recently.

Bobby Ward has been a patient in the C. & O. hospital, Huntington, West Virginia, but is now home and doing very well. He will return to the hospital soon for more treatment.

Mrs. Louise McGlothlin, of St. Mary's, Ohio, was visiting her uncle, N. O. Allen, here Saturday.

Billie Jean Ward and daughter were visiting relatives Sunday. Her daughter Teresa will attend school in Paintsville this year.

COUNTY JUDGES SUPPORT CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION

Lexington, Ky. — Twenty-one Kentucky county judges have organized to support constitutional revision, with Republican Judge Joe Johnson of Fayette county and Democratic Judge James Gillenwater of Barren county as cochairmen.

Kentuckians for a Better Constitution, the statewide group spearheading the revision campaign, announced the judges' action yesterday.

The proposed new constitution will be voted on Nov. 8. The judges committee said it gives county government "wide authority to enact local legislation without restrictive influences by state government."

TOURISM IN KENTUCKY SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Kentucky, into which pioneers poured in covered wagons to explore and conquer the wilderness, is being re-discovered and re-explored by the modern pioneer with automobile, trailer and tent.

Nearly 15.5 million travelers relaxed in Kentucky's 33 state parks and shrines in 1965, and 2.2 million more travelers stopped in the five national parks and recreation areas. The tourist population in Kentucky adds up to nearly six times the resident population.

"Take off for a Kentucky vacation" is the state's 1966 tourist motto, and droves of Americans are doing just that. Tourism in the state is up. It's up in the Eastern Highlands region as high as the mountains, and across the state it's as big as the lakes in the Western Waterland. Here are some 1966 mid-season samplings.

Natural Bridge State Park shows a whopping 50% visitation increase. Levi Jackson Wilderness Road State Park's tourist popularity has shot up 30 points.

Pine Mountain State Park, Kentucky's oldest, has a visitor increase of 20%, while one of the newest, Jenny Wiley State Park, shows a 13% increase.

Western Kentucky, long a tourist mecca, is packing them in. Kenlake State Park had a whopping 55% increase in June of this year. Kentucky Dam Village State Park had 612,000 June visitors, greater than the population of any city in the state. It's up 17% over last June.

The federally operated areas offer a repeat story. Cumberland Gap National Historical Park is running 50% ahead of last year and Mammoth Cave National Park has a six month 42% visitor increase. A record 7,103 explored the cave on July 3.

Land Between the Lakes National Recreation Area has a 300% increase over the first part of 1965. Established Rushing Creek is up 50%, while newly opened Hillman Ferry area and a dozen informal day-use areas add to the tremendous growth.

Feature attractions at four state parks are amphitheater productions. Kenlake's and Jenny Wiley's musical variety shows have had an excellent turn-out. "The Stephen Foster Story" at My Old Kentucky

Home State Park set a one-day record for its eight-year existence with 1,193 in attendance July 4. Over-all attendance is up 50%. In their first five weeks this season they counted 2,708 out-of-state cars from 46 states and a dozen foreign countries. "The Legend of Daniel Boone," new outdoor drama at Old Fort Harrod State Park is having a good house with some nightly sell-outs.

Chambers of Commerce from Middlesboro in the east to Paducah in the west, and Bowling Green in the center, report excellent business with increases over last year. Tourism affects the community in increased sales in all types of business, but particularly in service related business. Building permits to add to existing motels or to build new ones are on the rise.

Some idea of the magnitude and importance of Kentucky's travel business can be gained from 1965's statistics reported by Dr. Lewis Copeland, travel-economist at the University of Tennessee. He says that travelers in Kentucky during 1965 spent $378 million. $260 million of that came from out-of-state. Kentucky collected $22 million in direct taxes from these visitors. The money spent in Kentucky by out-of-state travelers actually added $86 million to the personal incomes of Kentuckians, 22,565 of whose jobs were directly attributable to this source.

It's estimated that the occupants of every car that comes into Kentucky spend $20 in the state before they leave. And it's also calculated that money circulates within a community eight times after its initial spending. In Kentucky that means 3% sales tax accrues to the state on each transaction. So the car visitors, spending $20 within our borders, means around $4.80 in revenue to the Commonwealth.

Anyway you look at it, tourism is big business and healthy business for Kentucky.

WHEN THINGS ARE SHAKY . . .

When the stock market has the jitters because of inflation, war, the value of the British pound or for other reasons we ordinary folk know little about, there remain some things which stand fast.

Count among these the land and a home. A well-built home carries with it a built-in security that not only stands against the onslaught of the years but also holds firm against those circumstances which shake the confidence of those who invest in less lasting things.

EARLY SQUIRREL SEASON TO OPEN THIS SATURDAY

One of the earliest squirrel hunting seasons in recent years will open Saturday, and it should be a good one. Surveys indicate a bumper crop of squirrel in all sections of the state. Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, said.

The increased number of squirrels, both the fox and the grey, is a result of better-than-average woods mast crops for the past three years, during which the squirrel population flourished, biologists of the Department point out. Increased numbers of squirrel follow good mast crops and with plenty of food for the past three-year period, the squirrel population has shown a great increase. However, biologists explain, the mast crop for this coming winter may be lean, due to the late spring freezes, and many squirrels may die of starvation. It was for this reason that the season was moved up by about two weeks—to allow hunters to harvest more of the squirrels that would, perhaps, fall victim to starvation conditions predicted for the winter months.

Again this year the hunters will literally have two shots at the squirrels as the seasons have been split. The first phase continues from August 13 through October 31. The second phase opens on December 1 and continues through December 31. The bag limits, governed by statutes, must remain at six per day with a possession limit of 12 after two or more days of hunting.

The use of all breech-loading rifles of .243 caliber and above and shotguns with slugs or buckshot is prohibited at any time or any place for the taking of squirrel. However, squirrels may be taken with any type of muzzle-loading weapon.

The Dewey Lake game refuge will be open through the regular squirrel season.
