

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY 41653

SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1967

This Town . . . That World

I would be wondering what became of Indian Summer if Summer itself hadn't got away so quickly.

IN THE MINORITY

The Kentucky Bowhunters Association is a bit peeved by that $14.75 fee Kentucky charges. Their main weakness is the same as their red predecessors who were forced to lay down their bows — they're in the minority. Somebody said there was, once upon a time, a politician who took up the cudgel for Lo, the poor Indian — and they carted him off to the booby hatch.

THE OLDER I GET . . .

Edgar Stephens reports that while browsing through some of the old marriage records at the courthouse this week he came upon evidence of literary genius. It was scribbled on the marriage bond of John Dameron and Nancy Branham, who were married on Jan. 19, 1821, and it reads: "When I was young and had no wit and now I am old and have nun yet nor never shall till the day I dye, for the older I git more fool am I."

CHANGES FOR THE BETTER

Times do change, and, moss-back though I am, I'm sometimes glad of it. I recall some of the elections held when I first came to Prestonsburg. Many of the ballot-boxes were brought in from the precincts by men on horseback, and there usually was some question if some would make it. The voting ended at the precincts at the usual time, but sometimes it continued elsewhere through the night. There was no such thing as a Comparative Signature Book, and about the only mistake the boys who attended to such matters could make was to have more ballots in the box than were in the ballot-book, to begin with. And then, when the boxes were all present and accounted for, began that long, slow count, that long, nerve-racking vigil by those guarding.

2 BUILDINGS SEEN IN '68

Bid Date Tentatively Set Next March 15th On College Structures

Addition of two permanent structures to the Prestonsburg Community College as a part of long-range campus development will be begun early next year, with a contract-letting date tentatively set for March 15.

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, said final plans for a student center and a physical science building are now being drawn. He added that the expansion program is on schedule.

The student center will have an area of 12,000 square feet; the physical science structure, 28,000 square feet.

Dr. Campbell was not certain that a decision has been reached on the materials to be used in the two buildings.

Work on three prefabricated steel structures on the campus has been completed. These will serve, temporarily, while permanent buildings are being raised.

RIVAL CAMPS LIST COLLEGE POLL TABS

Camps of the two major gubernatorial candidates have attached enough importance to college polls to publicize the strength they have shown in these educational centers.

Each claimed collegiate poll victories, but the results in one were disputed.

The Nunn camp claimed 73% of the 1,200 votes cast Oct. 18 at Murray State University. Ward headquarters later announced that a poll conducted there by students not affiliated with the Young Democratic or Young Republican clubs gave the Democratic candidate 418 votes to 218 for Nunn.

Otherwise, the poll picture, as reported by the rival headquarters, is this:

University of Kentucky, 1-143 for Ward, 553 for Nunn.

Georgetown College, 427 for Nunn, 155 for Ward.

FLOYD READY TO BEGIN TV IN SCHOOLS

Educational Program Scheduled for Start With 1968 Session

Floyd county is one of the state's 113 school districts which will be ready to tune in the Educational Television Network when it goes into operation next fall, County Supt. Charles Clark said this week.

But, he emphasized, that does not mean that every classroom, or even every school, will have ETV from the outset of the statewide program. There's a lot of work to be done and costly equipment to be bought before the program will be completely in effect.

Supt. Clark's statement followed the report issued by Don C. Bale, state assistant superintendent of instruction, to the effect that 70 percent of Kentucky's 199 school districts will be ready and waiting for ETV when the network goes on the air next fall.

"We are ready to start; we think we are ahead of most Eastern Kentucky counties in preparing for ETV — and we're not going to fall behind," Clark said.

AREA NEEDS ARE TALKED

Asst. Commerce Sec'y Heads May Lodge Talk; Kenwood Gets $127,000

U. S. and state representatives met at May Lodge Tuesday evening with Floyd and Johnson county business and civic leaders while on an Eastern Kentucky fact-finding mission.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation by Ross Davis, Washington, D. C. assistant secretary of Commerce, of a $127,000 check to Trigg Dorton, of Paintsville, for completion of preparation of the Kenwood site. The check brought to almost $500,000 the total of EDA and local funds spent on the site preparation.

In an informal discussion with local leaders, Assistant Secretary Davis and others of his party sought to learn how the federal government may help the area in relation to plant sites, water development, housing and similar projects.

The meeting was arranged by Burl Spurlock, of Prestonsburg. With Mr. Davis were William Davis, of the Huntington regional office, Economic Development Administration; Dr. Robert Rauner, Washington, D. C., deputy assistant of planning, U. S. Department of Commerce; Hillard Smith, of Hindman, field representative, U. S. Department of Commerce, and Herman Wheeler, Paintsville, of the Kentucky Department of Commerce.

Others attending the meeting included Mr. Spurlock, Dr. George P. Archer, Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., John T. Hill and Homer D. Neeley, all of Prestonsburg; Jack Branham, Martin; Mayor J. B. Wells and Trigg Dorton, Paintsville.

WALLEN ELECTED AIK BOARD MEMBER FOR 3-YEAR TERM

W. W. Wallen, of Prestonsburg, vice-president and general manager of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, has been elected to the board of directors of Associated Industries of Kentucky, it was announced in Louisville this week.

Mr. Wallen and 11 other new directors of AIK will be installed next week for three-year terms. The board is composed, in all, of 36 industrial leaders.

Wallen began work with Kentucky West Virginia in 1938, with the company's land department. He was educated in the Hindman schools and at Bryant & Stratton Business School, Louisville. He served with the U. S. Navy in World War II, is a member of Zebulon Masonic lodge here, the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club and the American Society of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. He is a past president of the Kentucky Oil & Gas Association.

SEMINAR SET BY OFFICIALS

Solid Waste Disposal Topic of Discussion At Nov. 14 Meeting

County and city officials in a nine-county area of Eastern Kentucky have been invited to a one-day seminar on solid waste disposal Tuesday, Nov. 14, at Jenny Wiley State Park.

The purpose of the seminar, sponsored by the State Department of Health, is to acquaint county and municipal officials and public works personnel with the sanitary landfill method of garbage and refuse disposal. State Health Commissioner Russell E. Teague, M.D., described solid waste disposal as the No. 1 public works problem today.

Most Kentuckians throw away approximately four and a half pounds of garbage and refuse a day. Modern packaging methods have contributed the plastic container, the aluminum can, glass "no return" bottles and metal foil and paper wrappings by the ton to the family garbage can. Many of these materials will not rot and disappear. Some will not even burn. Their disposal is becoming more difficult and more hazardous to health and welfare, Dr. Teague stated.

According to C. C. Iglehart, Jr., director of the Department of Health's Solid Waste Program, a municipality is responsible to its citizens for proper collection and disposal of solid waste. County officials, concerned with larger populations, must seriously consider the problem of refuse generation and the conditions it causes when there are no disposal sites available for the general public.

The seminar will begin with registration from 8:30 to 9 a.m. Talks on the objectives of the

SHOT FATAL TO MAN, 86

Coroner's Jury Holds Betsy Layne Resident Died by His Own Hand

A jury empanelled by Coroner James J. Carter held that the death last Thursday of 86-year-old Columbus Henry (Pid) Lynch at Betsy Layne resulted from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

A bullet from a .22-caliber rifle had entered Mr. Lynch's chest. He died almost instantly. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Marjorie Lynch, said she was in the kitchen of the home when she heard the shot, and immediately ran to the bedroom where she found him dying.

The victim was a son of Rhodes and Becky Blackburn Lynch. He had been a member of the Church of Christ for 50 years. His wife, Mrs. Belle Lynch, preceded him in death. Survivors include two sons, Arvid Lynch, of Betsy Layne, and Charles Lynch, of Harold; a brother, Will Lynch, of Betsy Layne; two sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Allen, Betsy Layne, and Mrs. Emma Fife, Dayton, Ohio; 11 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday from the Betsy Layne Church of Christ, and burial was made in the family cemetery at Mossy Bottom under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

LOCAL RACES ADD ZEST TO NEXT WEEK'S ELECTION

Statewide, the sound and the fury rise around the race for the office of governor, but in at least two communities of this county races for city council are doing their part to interest the voters for next Tuesday's showdown.

Prestonsburg, Martin and Wheelwright will have their city elections, but candidates in these three places are unopposed. In Allen and Wayland, however, it's a different matter, with two tickets in each locking horns. Singularly enough, the town of Martin passed up the chance for a hot political fight this time, with E. P. "Pete" Griesby unopposed for mayor and with only one ticket seeking council posts.

All these matters, from top to bottom, will be settled in voting which will begin at 6 a.m. and end at 6 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The opposing tickets for council at Wayland:

Pick and Shovel Ticket—Gordon Crowder, H. H. Craft, Clyde Lee, Cecil Johnson, Jimmy Hall.

Open Book Ticket—Hovert Webb, Virgil Combs, Jimmie Castle, Walter Jones, James E. Burge.

The lineup at Allen:

New Broom Ticket — Bennie Lafferty, Obie Crisp, Walter Frazier, J. W. Kinzer, Forest W. Westfall.

Progressive Party — Vernon Porter, Joe Wallen, George Hall, Jr., James Webb, Jr., Thomas E. Porter.

Unopposed council tickets are: Prestonsburg (Community Development Party) — Paul Phillip

If Vote-Registration Total Correct, Less Than 16,000 In County Below Age 18

More than half the total population of Floyd county is eligible to vote, according to voter-registration figures released by County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson.

The county at the last census had 41,642 residents. Listed as eligible to vote are 25,790.

Interest in the current gubernatorial campaign is near that of four years ago when Edward T. Breathitt defeated Louie B. Nunn, if the number of applications for absentee ballots is a reliable index. In 1963, 149 applied for ballots; this year, the total is 148. In the 1963 election Breathitt polled 9,473 votes in this county to 3,679 for Nunn.

County Clerk Robinson said that newly created Head of Mud voting precinct has 337 voters registered. These were formerly in the Antioch precinct, which still has a total of 521 voters.

GAS SERVICE SUIT ENDED

Agreed Order Gives United Utilities Sale Of Gas in Allen Area

Rights to natural gas service in the Town of Allen, New Allen and Dvale were settled Monday by agreed order in circuit court here.

The defendants, Cities Service Oil Company and Columbian Fuel Corp., agreed not to provide gas service to J. W. Kinzer, who was named a defendant in the suit filed by United Utilities of Kentucky, or to any other applicant residing in the three towns where United Utilities lines are located.

This agreement, the order specified, is to be effective until the two defendant firms are ordered to do so by the Public Service Commission or a court of competent jurisdiction enters an order directing that such service be afforded.

John Allen, vice-president of United Utilities, contended that his company has exclusive rights to gas service in the area in question and that the company has been serving customers there for a period of several years.

DEERSLAYER FINED $180 FOR ILLEGAL KILL, BUT COULD HAVE PAID MORE

A Floyd county man last week paid $180 for about 70 pounds of venison — and didn't get to eat it.

At that, he could have fared worse. He could have been fined a total of $1,280 for that deer. For, by his own admission, he killed it out of season, had no hunting license or deer tag, and that constitutes three separate offenses.

The deer was killed on Wilson Creek last Wednesday. The next day, Bennie D. Ousley was arrested by Conservation Officers Dalton Ray Conley and Don Mead. Ousley entered a plea of guilty in County Judge Henry Stumbo's court, was fined $114 for killing the deer out of season, $33

WORK AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Aides To Make Visits As Part of Training For Health Program

The Floyd County Comprehensive Health Program is moving ahead satisfactorily — in fact, it is ahead of the anticipated date of actually starting to give service to the residents of the county, Dr. R. L. Hall, medical director, said this week.

A number of community health aides have been hired and are now undergoing an intensive training program. The community aides, upon completion of their classroom training, will be visiting homes to explain the program and to get acquainted with the families in their area. These visits will be a continuation of their training and so they Nathan Bolen, of David, was fined $33 last week when he failed to appear for trial on a charge of fishing without license. Conservation Officer Conley said he has since chased Bolen twice without catching up with him. He added that another charge, possession of an undersize bass, awaits Bolen when he is captured.

SCHOOL LOOT CASE PROBED

Fingerprints Found But No Arrest Made; Halloween Is Quiet

Identity of the persons who created damage ranging between $500 and $700 at the new Clark elementary school on Middle Creek, near here, last week is still being sought.

Fingerprints were photographed from one piece of glass at the school, but this lead has not been fully developed.

Halloween pranksters did possibly less damage this year than in years. In Prestonsburg a 9 o'clock curfew, banning of masks for all past 12 years of age and restricting Tick-Tack activities to Monday night only kept the situation unusually quiet. At Emma a road was obstructed and four were arrested. Otherwise, there was little to report.

Among those jailed within the week were: William Henry McCoy, driving while drinking, by State Trooper M. A. Angel; Malcolm Lewis, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Tommy Engle and Silas DeRossett; Johnny Joe Marrs, reckless use of a deadly weapon, booked by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis, Deputy Sheriff Hunter and Mar-

MUD CREEK TO FILE FOR AID IN 2 WEEKS

John T. Hill, engineer for the Mud Creek Water District, said Monday the district will submit its application for construction grant and loan to the Economic Development Administration in about two weeks.

Engineers estimate the water system will cost $1.4 million.

The project will involve the laying of 67 miles of water mains, plus laterals, and the construction of two 150,000-gallon storage tanks. The district plans to enter into a contract with the City of Pikeville for the purchase of water from the municipal system there.

Consideration of plans for its own water plant was dropped when it was found that this would add about $300,000 to cost of the overall job.

The proposed system would serve from the intersection of the Big Mud and Little Mud Creeks roads up both these valleys, also Toler and Branham's Creeks and practically all the smaller tributaries of these streams.

The system, it is proposed, would serve about 900 customers. The engineer stressed the importance of residents of the section making their $3 tap-on fee deposits at once.

NATURE TRAILS By Rufus M. Reed

A scientist recently stated the earthworm is of greater functional use as soil-makers than man. They build up the soil but man depletes it. They are the best soil-builders known. Charles Darwin, the naturalist, who made an extensive study of earthworms, claimed they could build one and one-fifth inches of soil within 10 years. It takes the leaf mold and other decayed matter of the forest about 400 years to build an inch of soil. Each year earthworms add about 10 tons of soil to each acre.

We are too prone to look upon earthworms as low and insignificant, and the only use we have for them is to snare them on a barbed hook and let the fish swallow the wriggling half of one. But without earthworms and their work as plowmen and soil-mixers, this earth would be come a dead and barren ball. They work from the top down to a depth of about six feet, making tunnels in the soil, letting the air and moisture in; they also fertilize the soil; at night they come to the surface to hunt for pieces of leaves, dead plant matter, or other organic materials, which they drag down into their burrows. In eating all such food, they also swallow much soil, which they enrich with nitrogen, enzymes and calcium. They then return to the surface to discharge this enriched soil in the form of "castings," which add the 10 tons or so per year. They keep the soil porous, fertile and aerated. Where there are no earthworms to do their important work, the soil becomes tight, no air can circulate through it and plants can't grow.

We seldom see the good work of these industrious "soil farmers," as they seldom come out on top of the ground for any length of time. They cannot long endure strong sunlight or cold air and will soon die in heat or dry, cold air. Their bodies are always moist and slimy, so they must have a damp place in which to live. That is why they are often found where dish water or coffee grounds have been thrown out. Some persons say they like to stay under or about a heap of stale coffee grounds and soon get fat on them. We can seldom find any earthworms in hard, dry soils.

Earthworms are also called fishworms as they are the choice bait of the anglers who like to sit quietly on the bank of some stream and angle for catfish or (See Story No. 1, Page 5)

KENTUCKY FOREST FIRE LAWS

From October 1 until December 15 and from March 1 until May 15 it is illegal to burn any open fire within 150 feet of any woodland. If burning is done more than 150 feet from the woodland, but capable of spreading to the woodland through grass or other flammable material, it is still a violation of the Kentucky Forest Fire Laws.

If burning must be done, it is permissible between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and 12 midnight, providing all reasonable precautions are taken. Reasonable precaution shall consist of cutting and piling flammable material and clearing around the flammable material to prevent spread of fire to woodland. The fire must be extinguished at 12 midnight.

The largest violators of these laws are the debris burners. They have no intention of doing any harm to the woodlands by causing a forest fire to spread from their innocent debris burning. When they have something to burn during the Fall Fire Season, they should always be aware of the weather conditions and the dryness of the soil. Fires can spread after 4:30 p.m. if the condition is very windy or dry. What should a person do if he is confused on when to do his burning? He should contact his local Forestry Guard and seek information that would save or prevent a forest fire.

Violators when convicted are subject to both fines and imprisonment. Violators are also responsible for the damage caused by a forest fire and also cost of suppression of the fire.

Division of Forestry employees will be patrolling the area to apprehend violators. Citations will be issued to individuals violating the Kentucky Forest Fire Laws.

Some notions about clothes dryers are all wet!

They may all look alike. But, there's an enormous difference in clothes dryers. PRICE? Electric dryers cost less to buy... as much as $40 less than the flame-type. DEPENDABILITY? With fewer moving parts and no pilot light, there's less to go wrong. CLEAN DRYING? There's no dirt, no by-products of combustion, no fumes. PLACEMENT? Install a flameless dryer anywhere with one electrical connection. OPERATING COST? Families in this area pay an average of about $1 a month for electric clothes drying. VERSATILITY? Modern electric dryers are flamelessly safe for today's miracle fabrics... yet dry heavy things fast. VALUE? It's America's favorite dryer, preferred by women two to one over flame-type drying. You can move up to electric drying at the lowest cost ever right now, by taking advantage of special money-saving wiring certificates available to our customers. RAY HARM SAYS BUCKHORN CAN SUPPLY WATER NEEDS

Kentucky artist-naturalist Ray Harm, who recently joined the fight to prevent flooding of the Red River Gorge behind a dam, has taken his protests to state and federal officials.

Harm said last week that only a technical classification on paper keeps the existing Buckhorn Reservoir from doing just what the proposed Red River Dam in Powell county would accomplish.

He said the Buckhorn Reservoir, on the middle fork of the Kentucky River, could be used to provide water supply for Lexington, Frankfort and other Central Kentucky cities if it were reclassified to permit that use. It is presently classified only for flood control and recreation.

Only a congressional reauthorization is needed, the artist said, for the dam to be also used to supply water.

Harm said he has discussed the matter with U. S. Rep. John Watts, D-KY., and other officials, repeating the alternate proposals that have been made by the conservationist Sierra Club to save the gorge.

"Nowhere in the entire Eastern United States is there a canyon to compare with the Red River Gorge," Harm said. He said the gorge, with its more than 30 natural bridges, is perhaps the outstanding beauty spot in the eastern part of the country—"the most unique area in the Eastern United States."

"It's almost a crime to impound this gorge," he said. "I can't see this go down without a fight."

Justice Douglas, of the U. S. Supreme Court, and his wife plan a hike through the gorge soon and this will give the fight against the dam national prominence.

No, I am not "agin" some changes.

It may be that Bert Combs as governor never did a finer thing than when he took the bull by the horns (which was a regular exercise for him) and jammed through the legislation which supplanted those old paper ballots and those so-vulnerable ballot boxes with voting machines. The machines aren't perfect, but the old method was perfectly terrible.

IN THE MAIL

Occasionally, subscribers take time to accompany their renewal checks with a friendly note. Such came this week from Crawford Sturgill, longtime Manton resident who now lives at Louisa. He wrote:

"Sir, I would like to tell you that I have now been reading your paper for 36 years and like it as much today as I did then, even enjoy it better."

And another note from Mrs. L. P. Babb, the former Wanda Scott Stephens, of Dallas, Texas, recalling well-loved names and places.

I decline to print another note received in the same mail. It wasn't—well, complimentary.

HEARTBREAK: a word which long held an allure for me; tragic, poignant, expressive of suffering and courage, perhaps of love and loss, struggle and defeat. But then that old debbil-serpent slithered into by etymological Eden—psorsiasis came along.

Some Magistrates Are Illegally Paid, Says Report by LRC

Magistrates in justice of the peace courts in 17 Kentucky counties apparently paid themselves salaries illegally last fiscal year, a Legislative Research Commission (LRC) report says. The report, released last week, said magistrates in the counties, which were not named, received salaries for performing judicial duties, yet no convictions were reported in justice of the peace courts in those counties.

State law allows fiscal courts to vote salaries for magistrates for "actual performance of judicial duties." Except for those few counties having a commission form of government, magistrates serve on fiscal courts.

Magistrates who perform no judicial duties are entitled only to a maximum of $15 a day for meetings of fiscal court, a legislative body.

The LRC report said magistrates in six of the counties paid themselves per diem for fiscal court sessions as well as salaries.

PIKE MAY NOT LOSE AID DUE TO TEACHER STRIKE

A state education official said recently that Pike county schools will not lose state-aid funds this year as a result of the teacher strike provided the lost days are made up before the fiscal year ends June 30.

Dr. Sidney Simandle, director of teacher education and certification, speaking for State Supt. Dr. Harry Sparks at a new seminar sponsored by Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, was asked if the strikes by Pike teachers and bus drivers would affect state grants to the school system.

State-aid funds are allotted to local school districts under the Minimum Foundation Program formula on the basis of average daily attendance during a mandatory 185-day school year.

Simandle said the teacher strike, which lasted two weeks and two days, will have no effect on the Pike county allotment if the lost school days are made up before June 30 by extending the school term, or by holding classes on Saturdays.

Pike schools will lose some state-aid funds, however, as a result of the strike of school-bus drivers, Simandle said, because this has kept some enrolled students from attending when teachers resumed classes.

Just how much in dollars is involved will not be known until the school foundation formula is applied to all school districts.

Meanwhile, the Kentucky High School Athletic Association has lifted its ban on Pike county schools' football games.

Commissioner Ted Sanford said the games would have been canceled had teachers there remained on strike, but their return to their classrooms made the football ban unnecessary.

McDowell, Prestonsburg and Osborne elementary—have TV conduits. Television sets can be plugged in, at any time, at these schools, but there remains other work before a picture can be received. TV tower equipment must be added and the signal "piped in" by community systems serving in areas where the schools are located. Many of the community systems already have told Clark this will be done, and Flanery & Dings TV Service here have promised free installation locally.

Homes as well as classrooms will be able to receive the ETV broadcasts where such installations are made.

Floyd county's school system has almost 500 classrooms, and this number emphasizes the great cost that will be involved in placing a television set in each of these, the superintendent said. He expressed the view that TV in every classroom will not be realized for several years.

The Floyd school system, Clark said, has had educational television in its planning since 18 months ago when Harry James Wallace, assistant director of Title I funds for the system, was assigned to that phase of the county planning. The Division of Buildings and Grounds, State Department of Education, has added specifications for TV conduits to the plans for every new school structure, but administrators of Title I funds have advised counties to proceed gradually into the full TV program.

Title I funds will be sought to bear the major part of the cost the Floyd system will incur in making educational TV effective. In a report made at a special ETV training session held for his department's field personnel, Bale said a recent poll of school districts showed 113 districts will definitely tune in the network when it begins broadcasting next fall. Another 53 districts, he said, indicated they did not now have funds for TV reception equipment but would be interested in receiving ETV as soon as they could equip for it. Of the 175 replies he has received to date, Bale said, only nine contained "no" answers.

"For something that isn't even operating yet," Bale said, "this is a fantastic commitment. It represents a substantial vote of confidence and belief in the value of the network as a teaching tool."

Bale said that more than 50 Kentucky counties now use television in classrooms in one form or another, receiving it from Indiana, Tennessee, Jefferson county's Channel 15 or the airplane-based MPATI (Midwest Program for Airborne Television Instruction). Some schools, he said, use commercial programs to supplement and enrich school district curriculums.

Bale said other points revealed by the ETV survey were:

1. Fourth grade science television programs will be the ones most used of any subject televised during the 1968-'69 school year.

2. 90 percent said they would be interested in having their teachers involved in the planning and selection of television courses.

3. 80 percent asked for state technical assistance in teacher ETV training preparation of television equipment bids and program presentation.

Charles B. Klasek, network education director and coordinator of the planning session, said his office and the Department of Education have invited 90 Kentucky teachers to serve as television curriculum developers. Klasek said the teachers would be split into 13 groups—one for each major elementary and secondary education subject area—and asked to first view and then choose programs best suited for Kentucky classrooms. Curriculum committee members may also edit and re-write lesson outlines which accompany the programs, Klasek said, to fit their contents into Kentucky curriculum standards.

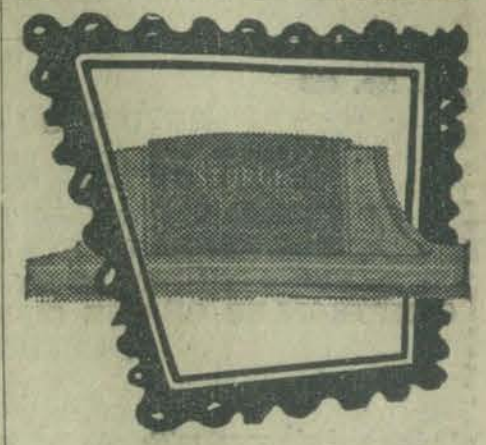

The committee meetings are scheduled to begin in early December, Klasek said.

sources had their qualms about the idea. They pointed out that the cheap, attractive dollar-a-day license for non-residents would do two things:

1. It would arouse resentment among Kentucky residents who pay $4.25 a year to fish and have no opportunity to buy a short-term license.

2. Proposing a new type of license to the General Assembly could open the door to possible downward revision of the license rate generally.

League officials have agreed with this thinking, it is reported, and a cheap non-resident permit is not in sight.

rock bass. But anglers could save the lives of many fishworms if they would break their bodies near the middle, use the tail end for bait and discard the head end. The earthworm will then live and grow a new tail end.

We need more earthworms to help build up our soils. They are the most interesting animals one might wish to study. They are true, segmented worms and they are blind. But certain groups of cells on their bodies are sensitive to light rays; so they can probably distinguish between daylight and darkness. All earthworms have 10 hearts and they are all hermaphrodites. Each has a full set of both male and female organs. Many earthworms have a beautiful color; some are deep pink, some light red and others flesh-colored. Some have patches of blue on their bodies. Some are large and fat, depending upon the type of soil in which they live. Others are long and slender. Each earthworm has a double row of bristles, two rows underneath the body and a row along either side. These help it to pull itself along through the soil by giving it more traction for digging burrows. If the earthworm runs up against a hard layer of soil through which it cannot go easily, it will eat a hole through the hard earth, enriching the soil by chemicals in its own body.

Earthworms belong to a group of segmented worms called annelids. We often see them wriggling around on top of the ground after a heavy rain. The rain shuts off the air down below the surface, floods their burrows and forces them to the surface. But if they cannot soon get back underground, they will die from exposure to the elements. Earthworms are seriously threatened in many regions by the wholesale and indiscriminate use of poison sprays. Where the soil is saturated with poisonous chemicals the earthworms die by the millions. So man gets rid of the pests above ground but destroys the valuable creatures underground.

We need to protect earthworms more and this can be done by stopping the pollution of the soil with dangerous materials such as acid mine water, oils leaking on the ground from wells and the use of highly toxic sprays, which may seep into the soil and pollute it.

KY. EMERGES AS LEADER IN MENTAL HEALTH WORK

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky has emerged as a national leader in the establishment of regional comprehensive mental health centers, reports the State Department of Mental Health.

Almost $2 million in federal funds have been received for 12 centers, now in operation, and applications are pending for five more. Approval would bring the total number of regional centers to 17, covering all but 26 counties.

The Commonwealth has received recognition in the national publication, "Psychiatric News," as the state which received the most federal staffing grants in the nation during the past fiscal year.

The centers make possible for the first time close-to-home care and treatment for the emotionally disturbed, the mentally ill, and the mentally retarded in an area including two-thirds of the state's population, the department reports.

The federal grants provide 75 percent of the initial cost of new services on a declining scale. Federal funds are matched by local and state appropriations. To date, Kentucky's investment has yielded a return of approximately four federal dollars to every state dollar, says the Department.

Kentucky Coal Output Record High In '66; Was 3rd Safest Year

Kentucky coal production reached an all-time high in 1966 while the coal industry had its third safest year in history, according to the State Department of Mines and Minerals.

In a special report to Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, the department said coal production totaled 93,240,675 tons last year. This was 6.5 percent more than the 1965 total of 87,207,039 tons.

Fatal mining accidents during 1966 totaled 40, one more than in 1965 and seven more than in 1963, which was the safest year in Kentucky's history, the report said.

(Items taken from files of The Floyd County Times of 30 and 20 years ago.)

Thirty Years Ago

(October 28, 1937)

One of the largest judgments for damages ever rendered by a Floyd circuit court jury was handed down here Wednesday morning when damages in the amount of $20,000 were assessed in the case of W. P. Hays, administrator of the estate of his son, Audry Hayes, vs. the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company. Audry Hayes was killed by a passenger train near Clear Creek two years ago. Max Crowley, of St. Paul, Minn., suffered a gunshot wound in the head when his auto came under pistol fire as he tried to leave a Betsy Layne restaurant, in another shooting incident on the county's roads this week, a car being driven by Dr. J. E. Allen, of Langley, was fired upon and struck by three bullets. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Harmon, of Wayland, were injured Monday afternoon when their automobile collided with a State Highway Department truck near Stanton. Rufus Chaffins, 33, Garrett miner, suffered serious head and chest injuries Monday night in a slatefall at mine 27 at Garrett. The Club Rustique, owned by Frank Layne, will make its formal opening Friday night. Music for the occasion will be by Jimmy Raschel and his 14-piece orchestra with famed vocalist, George "Lazy Bones" Bacon. Morris Bland, former Betsy Layne man, was shot and killed at Paintsville, Saturday night. Luther Harris, of Brandy Keg, and Eddie Lee Derossett, of Little Paint, were injured this week when the car in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a truck parked on Mayo Trail here. Married: Miss Carolyn Loraine Rogers, of Frankfort, Ky., and the Rev. George Walker Redding, of Prestonsburg, Wednesday at Frankfort. There died: Mrs. Irwin Hicks, 30, of Garrett, Monday; Beverly Porter, 44, at home at Dewey, Saturday; Mrs. Mary Lafferty Jarrell, 68, at the home at Martin of her stepson, W. G. Jarrell; James Tussey, 75, of Martin, last Thursday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. R. Taylor.

Dedication of Garrett's 14-room school building, which gives that town the widest school facilities of any town in the county, will be made Friday evening at 8 o'clock, it was announced by Curtis Owens, Garrett school principal. The grand jury, during its three-day session this week, returned seven indictments for murder and 31 for lesser offenses. Construction of a building to house two auto agencies—that of Mayor A. C. Carter's Oldsmobile, Buick and Pontiac dealership, and that of Valley Chevrolet Sales, owned by B. H. Cox, of Paintsville, will be begun soon on the site here of the old building, which was destroyed by fire. The Rev. H. L. Hoffman delivered his first sermon here Sunday as the new pastor of the M. E. Church, South. The former pastor, Rev. H. F. King, has been transferred to a Covington church. The new addition to the Stumbo Memorial hospital at Lackey, costing an estimated $40,000, will be completed within the next 30 days, Dr. Walk Stumbo said this week. Green Allen, CCC certifying agent, this week announced that 146 Floyd county boys had been accepted for CCC work. There died: Mrs. Ballard Martin, 56, at home at Eastern, Friday; Dave Perry, 74, last Thursday at home at West Prestonsburg.

TAKE THE CAR, OFFICER. BUT LEAVE MY WIFE

Asheville, N. C. — Policeman Carl Hoglen stopped Daniel Lansford for a loud muffler. Lansford had no driver's license and no insurance, so Hoglen said he would impound the car. "But my wife's in the trunk," Lansford wailed.

It turned out that Mr. and Mrs. Lansford had disagreed over something and she had vacated the front seat in favor of the trunk.

CATS GET 9th WIN-- PAINTSVILLE NEXT

With nine victories under their collective belt after last Friday night's defeat of Louisa, the Prestonsburg Black Cats go out Friday night after the Big One—a win over Paintsville.

The Prestonsburg-Paintsville football rivalry is perhaps the oldest in Eastern Kentucky, and both teams always point for their annual encounter. This year's game will be played on the Prestonsburg field.

At Louisa the Cats had an easy time of it, with the outcome never in doubt after Mark Miller, on the very first offensive play of the game for his team, passed to Terry DeRossett for a touchdown.

The game ended, 59-0, with Prestonsburg reserves seeing considerable action. At halftime the score was, Prestonsburg 31, Louisa 0. During the game Terry DeRossett scored three markers, and Mark Miller, Mike Castle and Darrell Leslie had two each.

Williams-Bingham Wedding Solemnized At Ann Arbor, Mich.

Miss Barbara Jean Williams, of Ann Arbor, Mich., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Williams, Chelsea, Mich., and Dan E. Bingham, of Ypsilanti, Mich., son of Mrs. Alex Bingham and the late Mr. Bingham, of Prestonsburg, were united Saturday evening, Oct. 14 in a double-ring ceremony at Zion Lutheran Church in Ann Arbor by the Rev. Fred Holtfreter.

The bride wore a modified cage of white chantilly lace over white silk taffeta which featured a high square neckline in front with a deeper square in back. An empire waistline was accented with a center Dior bow and an attached self chapel train. A band of white roses held her veil of silk illusion.

Mrs. Thomas A. Knaggs, of Oscoda, Mich., attended her sister as matron of honor and Jim C. Bingham, of Ypsilanti, was his brother's best man. Guests were seated by Helge Johanson and Steve Boles, both of Ypsilanti.

The wedding reception was held in the Stollhorn Room in the church social hall.

After a week's honeymoon the couple will make their home at 2043 Jackson Ave., Ann Arbor.

SPORTS AFIELD
By TED KESTING

Billy Burns, of Kentucky, has been fishing for bass for 50 years—and there is possibly no angler around who has a deadlier method of seducing them. A proof of its effectiveness is his record string of 10 smallmouth bass that totaled 55 pounds. Billy calls his chosen technique "swimming a pork jig."

As the "bones" of the lure, Billy uses a weedless lead-head jig on a size 3/0 light-wire single hook. The best jig sizes, he has decided, are the 1/4- and 1/2-ounce models.

The pork trailer Billy uses is the kind called an "eel," with about a quarter inch of fat attached. This gives it weight, body and a more natural undulation. His choice is the three-to-four-inch length.

Billy insists the rod action must be light to allow you to feel the pork jig swimming. The rods he uses most, in both spinning and casting models, are 6 1/2 feet long and have an even bend from butt to tip.

Equally important is how Billy holds the rod. His left hand lightly encases the rod's fore-grip ahead of the reel in a manner that can be described as gentle, almost loose—certainly not a "gripping" of the rod in any sense.

"This soft hold gives me a more sensitive feel of my pork jig," Bill explains. "I have tried holding my rod by the handle, but just did not have the sensitivity bottom fishing requires."

"The pork jig is a 'nothing' lure" he says, "and you have to make it live and breathe. You must manipulate your rod tip ever so slightly, just enough to cause the hair to pulsate and the pork tail to move as if imparting a swimming motion to the lure."

"The whole idea is to keep the lure swimming continuously on a level keel, whether you are following a shoreline down or coming up one."

Billy chooses a fine-wire hook, mainly because it has a sharper point than one of heavy wire. And he believes either a bass is on or it isn't and all the snatching and jerking to set a hook is wasted energy.

When he feels a bass pick up the lure, he quickly lifts his rod tip, reels rapidly a few times to put tension on the line and then simply lets the fish play itself out. And although he loses some fish, he believes he would have lost them even if he'd tried to drive the barb home.

As Billy sums it up: "I have landed a great many fish with the fine-wire hook just barely sticking in the fish's lip. Had I set the hook, chances are I would have pulled out the hook and lost the fish. I'm just a fish holder, not a hook setter."

There is bound to be controversy on this point, observes Homer Circle, Special Features Editor of Sports Afield Magazine. Most other bass experts are strong proponents of setting the hook. But whether you're a holder or a setter, you have to agree that here is an angling technique just as delicate as fishing nymphs with a fly rod.

Further, one must admit when a man and his lure take more than thousands of anglers take in a lifetime, there must be something in his method.

NUCLEAR REACTOR, COAL CONVERSION AID ASKED

Frankfort, Ky.—Bids to attract an advanced nuclear reactor and a coal conversion facility to Kentucky were part of a $2 million budget request made Monday by the State Science and Technology Commission.

Commission Chairman James N. Neel, Ashland, Ky., said the $600,000 being sought to help bring in a nuclear "fast breeder" test loop could lead to a $70 million fast breeder reactor demonstration facility.

Fast breeder reactors, which produce more fuel than they consume, probably will constitute a $95 billion annual market when developed, Neel said. He added that the commission's goal was to get 10 percent of that business for Kentucky.

One-half of the $2 million budget request for the biennium was to help attract the advanced coal conversion facility, which would increase the marketability of Kentucky coal having a high sulphur content.

Investment for the first such refinery could come to $350 to $500 million and would mean 4,000 additional jobs in that facility alone, Neel said. Jobs in peripheral industries could swell the total to 7,000, he added.

Western Kentucky was mentioned as the most probable site for the plant because that area had larger reserves of high sulphur coal than Eastern Kentucky and it would be cheaper to mine. The reserves in the western coal field were put at 18 billion tons, compared with 16 billion tons in Eastern Kentucky.

Bans against high sulphur coal are being enacted by more and more cities, in a battle against air pollution.

The commission proposed that the nuclear fast breeder test loop be built at the University of Kentucky, in cooperation with the Atomic Energy Commission and a major power reactor manufacturer, Neel said. Several manufacturers already had begun.

The recommendations came in the first annual report the commission made to Gov. Edward T. Breathitt and the General Assembly.

Summer Job Tests For Students Set

Daryl Ratliff, district manager, Social Security Administration, issued a reminder this week to students who will be interested in employment next summer.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission issued Announcement No. 414, covering the summer employment examinations. The test will be given in Paintsville and Pikeville on Dec. 9, Jan. 13, Feb. 10, and March 9.

Persons making a qualifying score will have their names listed on a roster maintained by the Civil Service Commission. From this list all federal agencies will do their recruiting for short-term, non-career jobs in 1968. Weekly salaries will be from $69 to $92, depending on the candidate's education and previous work experience.

To receive maximum consideration, applications must be made early. Some agencies may begin making selections shortly after Jan. 1, Ratliff said.

Applications may be obtained at most federal and main post-offices. In 1967 more than 31,000 students obtained summer employment within the federal service.

A RECORD OF SERVICE AND PROGRESS

On the basis of what he has done, not on the basis of what his opponent says he has not done, State Representative W. J. Reynolds has been endorsed by three outstanding groups:

1. The Legislative Research Commission.
2. Labor.
3. Education.

Representative Reynolds' record is one of performance. We all know that, four years ago, what is now the Prestonsburg Community College was a cow pasture. Today, upwards of 2,000 of your children have received training at that college.

Need anybody be reminded that Bill Reynolds was a moving force, in Frankfort and on the local scene, as he worked with the Democratic administration and with local leaders to get that college established? He supported and worked for $2 million in funds for this institution.

The Democratic administrations of the last eight years have made progress which the timid and the uncaring wrote off as impossible. Bill Reynolds has had a very real part in this progress.

Not only the college here has been established, but teachers salaries have been increased, the funds allocated to education in general are greater than at any time in Kentucky history.

The strongest strip-mining bill in the United States was passed by the last session of the Democratic Legislature.

The Rural Road Fund has been increased by $320,000 in the last four years. These roads have been blacktopped:

KY 7 (Salt Lick), Steeles Creek, Brush Creek, Middle Creek, Abbott, Bull Creek, Buck's Branch-Spurlock.

Bill Reynolds has not merely joined the fight for all these but has been a leader in the fight. He has strongly supported Soil Conservation measures and Dewey Lake improvements, as members of the county's fish and game clubs know.

These are some of the things Representative Reynolds has fought for and won—all for the benefit of the people of Floyd county.

If he is elected, he will continue to work for the betterment of the county and its people.

In the closing days of this campaign you may expect desperate tactics from desperate candidates. Bill Reynolds and the Democratic ticket are willing to depend upon the good commonsense of the people and upon their judgment.

ROAD DRAWS MOUNTAINS NEARER THE BLUE GRASS

Hazard, Ky. — The mountains were drawn 30 minutes closer to the Bluegrass by highway Friday when the relocated and modernized KY 15 between Combs, near Hazard, to Haddix, near Jackson, was opened to travel.

The trip from Hazard to Jackson will be made an easy half-hour cruise over the new 26 miles that cut through rugged hollows. An hour was "good time" over the sharply curving old 45 miles.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, Highway Commissioner Mitchell W. Tinder and former Gov. Bert T. Combs, now a federal judge, met with 12 or more other highly placed officials for the dedication near Hazard.

Deep cuts and high fills push the new route through the high mountains on a line as nearly straight as possible. The necessary curves are gentle in contour and sloped for moderately high speeds.

The invitation to speed is such, indeed, that the new stretch may become one of Kentucky's more dangerous stretches of highway. Four persons have died in automobile accidents on it during the first few days it has been opened to limited traffic.

This consideration notwithstanding, the route will be an important time-saver for the traveling public in Kentucky. Using its linkup with the Mountain Parkway at Campton via Jackson, the trip from Lexington to Hazard that required four hours five years ago now will require only about 1 1/2 hours.

Eventually, the relocated KY 15 will extend another 30 miles to Whitesburg, near the Virginia line.

The dedication was held about two miles north of Hazard after a luncheon at the Hazard Veterans of Foreign Wars Club. Hazard Mayor Willie Dawahare presided at the luncheon and the dedication.

Those recognized at the ceremonies included Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield; U. S. Rep. Carl Perkins; Joseph Fleming, federal co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission; John Whisman, Kentucky's representative on the commission; Robert Johnson, division engineer of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads; and Bert Knight, district state highway engineer.

Given special recognition were nine former state highway commissioners and representatives of the 10 firms that built the road under expedited conditions.

Dedication speakers were Breathitt and Tinder, with remarks by Dawahare and Combs.

BIG SANDY SUBSTATION TO BE NAMED FOR BAKER

The board of directors of Kentucky Power Company has named the substation to be built at Big Sandy Plant the Baker Station in honor of F. M. Baker, Kentucky Power's executive vice-president.

The new Baker Station will be an important part of a giant extra-high-voltage electric transmission network capable of carrying more energy than any other such network in the world.

The 765,000-volt network will extend 1,050 miles in parts of five states served by the American Electric Power System, composed of seven operating electric companies, including Kentucky Power.

Baker, a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology with a BS degree in electrical engineering, started his utility career in 1931 in the Pikeville Division, rising to division manager in 1947. In 1956 he was promoted to assistant general manager and to vice-president and general manager in 1957. He was elected to the AEP Service Corporation Board in 1964 and named to the newly created position of executive vice-president in April of this year.

Baker Station will be a focal point in the giant transmission system. A direct tie will be made to the northeast with Ohio Power's Kammer Plant; to the southeast to Appalachian Power's Saltville Station, and to the north to the Don Marquis Station, which will interconnect with the existing 345,000-volt network of Ohio Valley Electric Corporation, an affiliated utility.

The size of the new transmission network is evident by the fact that a 765,000-volt line is capable of transmitting 30 times as much power as a 138,000-volt line, a typical transmission line in service throughout the nation.

Clark Is Speaker As Club Entertains Its 'Daughter' Clubs

Wayland.—The Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club played host to its daughter clubs last Monday evening, serving a turkey dinner in the Garrett Junior clubs.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Floyd County School Superintendent Charles Clark, who gave a report on his recent trip to Scandinavia.

Describing the people who live in the Scandinavian countries of Norway, Sweden, and Denmark, Mr. Clark said, "They are sedate, clean, honest, and have a high regard for their own institutions. They also believe that America leads the world, even though their favorite pastime is talking about America, and not always favorably. There is no apparent unemployment and no illiteracy, and no one criticizes the king or his family."

"In education," continued Mr. Clark, "they are about where we were thirty years ago. Every child is being pushed through exactly the same keyhole." He said, however, there is much competition to excel in school in order to be favorably considered for the institutions of higher learning, since it is as easy to obtain an education there as in America.

Attending, besides the speaker, were one guest, Mrs. Hollie Conley, Langley; five from the Hindman Junior club; two from Wheelwright; 14 from Drift; and 24 from the Wayland club, including one new member, Mrs. Shelby Draughn, Garrett art teacher, whose paintings and those of her students were on display in the luncheon room.

Six door prizes were awarded.

The other, amounting to $105,160, was issued to the Collins Construction Company, Hindman, for a State Police barracks, Post No. 13, Hazard. This project is to be completed in seven months.

SAFETY MEASURE OBSERVED

As a precaution against fire destroying their log cabins, many Kentucky settlers built their log chimneys so that if they did catch fire a pull on a key log could collapse the burning chimney.

It's Time for a Change... AND THERE ARE MANY REASONS WHY

I would like to see Democrats and Republicans join to bring about the much-needed change for the benefit of our country. We are AMERICANS FIRST and we must join hands to get our country on proper course and keep it that way.

With the golden opportunity that we have November 7th, which our forefathers secured for us and handed down to us, which has been preserved by the noble generations down to the present time, we can go to the polls and select a team for our state which will get it on proper course, and in the coming year select a team that will get our country on proper course.

But, if you want to see more of what has been going on for the past several years, vote for it. As for me, I am terribly concerned about the course our country is going. We cannot last indefinitely under the present trend.

If you want lawlessness, fighting in the streets and burning of our cities and towns, vote for it. If you want billions of dollars and our natural resources given away to the foreign lands, vote for it. If you want our fine, young men, the cream of America, to give their lives in a jungle 10,000 miles from home, vote for it. If you want hatred throughout the world toward America, vote for it. If you want inflation, where it takes three to five dollars to do what one good, sound dollar does in normal times, vote for it.

These are some of the major things that are eating at the core of our country, which is indeed very dangerous, and if continued will get us down to where we cannot resist a major war. We must do something about it by putting in a new team that will turn us from this course. They can stop the waste and strife in the country right soon and can find a just peace in Asia, and get our boys out of that jungle and bring them home.

We must get men in office who are smart enough to evade or keep us out of traps like Vietnam, squandering our resources, and, most precious of all, the lives of our fine young men. We are in this fight and must see it through. Even so, I am opposed to the blunders of any leaders letting us fall into these traps. I am also opposed to any leaders letting riots, fighting and looting go on in our streets. If people can't seek what they want in a peaceful manner, they need to be put in concentration camps or prisons.

The squandering of the taxpayers' money must be stopped. It is making slaves out of half the people to keep up and pay for all the waste, and throwing our money down ratholes throughout our country and the rest of the world. We must vote to stop it. If new ones we put in don't stop it, we'll throw them out and find some that will. Why have big incomes, if taxes take half of it and inflationary prices take the other half? We would be much better off with a sound dollar in normal, peaceful times; we would pay less for our needs and less taxes and have some for a rainy day. Having peace is a wonderful thing—must we always be in war to have progress? Deliver me from that, I don't want blood money prosperity.

Speaking of Vietnam, we are in it, we must find a justified way out, either by fighting our way out or negotiating our way out, or both, and we must find leaders who can, as I have just said, avoid these terrible traps.

I, or any one else in our country, would have freely gone south to wipe out the Communist bastion in Cuba; we would have had a real reason. No, no, our leaders let the stinkin' Communist get a foothold in our Western Hemisphere, right at our doorstep, just 90 miles from our shores, and they have destructive missiles pointed right at our belly, awaiting the opportune time to fire them, at the same time building up even stronger forces against us. No, we had to go ten thousand miles from home, right on China's doorstep and start a fight, saying China had expansion aims. We could have let China have Vietnam, as Vietnam can't even organize a government of their own without turmoil, even with all the help our great Uncle can give them. What will they do as soon as we leave? They'll do what they've done for the past four thousand years—be governed or influenced by China. Our billions in money and resources, and, most precious of all, our fighting men, will be lost. One could go on and on writing about our predicament. We all know it. We must find men with new and different thought and management to bring us out of the mess we are in, not only abroad, but at home.

We need to regain some of our freedoms at home as well as fighting for freedom abroad.

We need to have the right to associate with whom we wish, trade with whom we wish. I do not advocate doing any wrong to any people, black, white, brown, red or whatever they may be. I just do not believe in any race imposing their will upon another to extremes, just because the government of the people, by the people and for the people tries to help them to higher standards of living. I believe every one is entitled to a higher standard of living, but by gaining it doesn't mean they must impose their will on the private lives of other citizens of the country, just because the government is helping them. There should be limitations. As far as mixed race is concerned, let nature take it's course. I believe our millions of people will be decent enough to stay on their side of the line. Of course, we will have exceptions. I am more shocked to see these exceptions of racial intermarriage than I am to have lived to see a man-made vehicle go around the earth every hour and a half, or even land on another planet, or land a man on the moon. The right we will in time work out among ourselves, by being calm and on the right course.

I need not have to say all these things about our problems; every one knows what we have gone through, and what course we are now on. I just ask that we join hands to make a change. IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE!

We must cast our vote with the welfare of our country in mind; we must change the course we are in. Let's start by electing Mr. Nunn and his ticket for our state government, and let's not forget to elect a new ticket for our national government in the new year. Let's not be too forgetful of the turmoil our country has gone through and is going through. IT IS TIME FOR A CHANGE.

LET'S JOIN UP AND CHANGE IT. THINK AMERICAN, VOTE AMERICAN, VOTE FOR A CHANGE IN THE COURSE OF OUR COUNTRY. VOTE REPUBLICAN--THEN, IF THEY DON'T DO A BETTER JOB, WE'LL THROW 'EM OUT AND FIND BETTER ONES THAT WILL.

CHARLES M. McCOY

Dr. Clinton Promoted

Dr. Raymond O. Clinton, director of research administration at the Sterling-Winthrop Research Institute, Rensselaer, Ind., has been named assistant to J. Mark Hiebert, chairman of the board of Sterling Drug, Inc., of which the institute is a division.

He is married to the former Leslie Wallen, of Prestonsburg. Her mother, Mrs. W. S. Wallen, and sister, Mrs. Sylvia Hall, reside at Banner.

Dr. Clinton, who assumed his new duties on Sept. 5, is located at Sterling's world headquarters, 90 Park Ave., New York City.

He holds more than 70 patents on discoveries resulting from his chemical research. He is the author or co-author of some 50 scientific papers dealing with the chemistry of steroid hormones, plant pigments, antitubercular agents, local anesthetics and antiviral agents.

Dr. Clinton has been associated with the Sterling-Winthrop Research Institute and Winthrop Laboratories, another Sterling unit, since 1943. He was named a research chemist on the Institute's staff in 1947, one year after it was established. In 1949 he was made an associate member of the chemistry division, and a full member in 1953. He was promoted to head of a synthetic organic chemistry section in 1956, serving in that capacity until his appointment in 1960 as director of research administration.

Dr. Clinton received his B.S. degree from the California Institute of Technology, and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of California at Los Angeles.

Attack On Gobs
To Be Made in Clay

Frankfort, Ky.—A burning gob pile near Manchester in Clay county will be the first target in a demonstration project to study procedures for extinguishing and controlling fires in mining refuse dumps.

The gob pile is in an area owned by the Shamrock Coal Co., of Knoxville, Tennessee.

Noxious smoke and fumes from burning gob piles have brought many complaints from residents in certain areas of Eastern and Western Kentucky.

Harold Hodges, director of the state air pollution control program, said control of the Clay county gob pile will demonstrate the effectiveness of the proposed new method, which he did not describe.

If it works, he said, it will provide relief from this air-pollution source for some 2,000 people living under "continuous assault."

What leading Republicans say about Louie Nunn

Republican Candidate-for-Lieutenant-Governor Thomas B. Ratliff, at Louisville, April 18, 1967:

"The Nunn campaign is one of the worst campaigns of religious bigotry, racial prejudice and downright muck-raking in the history of our state."

Republican Candidate-for-AttorneyGeneral Lester H. Burns, Jr., at Louisville, April 20, 1967:

"He (Nunn) is a liar. He (Nunn) is not a good Republican and can't win in November. They (the Nunn) have been running throughout the mountains with a campaign based upon religious bigotry."

United States Congressman Tim Lee Carter, at Washington, D. C., May 17, 1967: "In the present Republican Primary, I have attempted to remain neutral. However, the ugly ideas of racial, religious bigotry and mud slinging are being exploited throughout my district and the State of Kentucky. To those ideas I am unalterably opposed. I am endorsing Marlow W. Cook in this Primary."

United States Senator John Sherman Cooper, at Washington, D. C., May 20, 1967: Louie Nunn's campaign "whether with his approval or without his denunciation, has the purpose of stirring up religious prejudice. Whatever the immediate advantage may be, such a practice is against our free system of government."

United States Senator George Murphy, at Covington, October 8, 1967: "Anybody who does something like that . . . (bring out a religious issue) . . . I don't want his vote. That was a mistake. No one should have to resort to that kind of nonsense."

What leading Republicans say
about Henry Ward

United States Senator Thruston B. Morton, at Louisville, November 1, 1962: "Highway Commissioner Ward has done a good job, and I support him."

Jefferson County Judge Marlow Cook, at Campbellsville, February 2, 1967: "Our parks system is a real good one, and you have to give credit where credit is due."

Candidate-for-Governor Louie Nunn, in Louisville, November 4, 1963: "I give credit where credit is due. If Mr. Ward has done a good job, he deserves full credit for what he has done."

Candidate-for-Governor Louie Nunn, at Frankfort, November 23, 1966: ". . . we cannot deny that some progress has been made in road building and parks."

Senator John Sherman Cooper's brother, Don Cooper, has contributed $525 to the Ward campaign and is actively campaigning for the election of Henry Ward as Governor.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

FOGIES

With so many things being said about fads in dress and hair, I have reviewed some of my long years and have come up with a definition: "An old fogy is an aging new fogy." The same impulse, apparently, that prompts a wild young chap to overstep the conservative bounds of his time prompts him to cling to his own way of doing things after they have ceased to be just the thing. My mother, in her older, philosophical days, gave me this notion. She, too, was interested in the changing manners of people and had observed, in her long life, that faddists are likely to remain faddists to the end of the chapter. Some antiquated fellow who would come to see us on the strength of being a sixth cousin would look to us youngsters like something out of the poorhouse. He was not necessarily poor, but he had gone to seed in his way of dressing and felt that humanity was going downhill fast. But Mother said he "rushed the style" in their younger days and was never satisfied to dress approximately like anybody else; he must look different.

Wouldn't it shock some of our English-sheepdog friends if they could see themselves forty or fifty years from now as museum pieces? Photography has been a great corrector of notions, especially as to the looks of people at certain times of history. I hope that all the wildest dressers of our time will have many pictures taken and that these same exhibits will be kept faithfully somewhere to refute the old-men attitudes of these youngsters, say in 2020. If there is any funnier book in existence than an old family album, I have yet to see it. Only a person with historical research in mind could turn through such a comedy book without hilarious laughter. If you want to see what was actually worn in those days, how hair was fixed, and how easy or stiff the victims of photography looked, then an old picture album is great. But imagine Father with that shaving-brush beard on the tip of his chin. And look at Mother, short and plump when we knew her, attired in clothes that would have graced a ballet dancer. And the brave old Confederate in the stiff picture that makes him look like a boy whose voice has barely changed, whose beard is yet to appear. He certainly cannot be the bearded, roly-poly ancient gentleman whom we always pictured, as so many people do, as the same fellow in appearance in far-away times. Some of my literary friends somehow resent any picture of Longfellow except the one where he is a white-whiskered, kind-faced old gentleman, a sort of incarnation of whole generations of kindly college professors and neighborhood heroes.

Biographies of such men as Longfellow have a way of telling how the poet was not always the kindly-eyed old gentleman whom we revere. It took some unusual courage to face a life as a poet and foreign-language teacher a century and a third ago. Born into a prominent family where making money was expected to be a portion of a normal life, he had to face opposition; imagine a New Englander wanting to be a poet. And his professional life was not all roses, as older lives of the poet seemed to indicate. He had to explore new ground and even wrote his own textbooks. He had to face almost solid opposition from the old classicists; what was literature by the side of Greek and Latin? I have enjoyed seeing early portraits of Longfellow and finding in them a human being something like us later college teachers, not an ethereal wordmaker who lived apart and felt superior to just plain people. I sometimes feel like saying ugly words about the distortion of literature by some of my early teachers. To them a poet was hardly of earthy stuff; he sat, as in Longfellow's case, behind his bushy white beard and looked with tender amusement at the pretty world of which he had become a god. Look out, young fellow, that funny hair may entangle you yet. Don't imagine that you are the first dare-devil to sprout hair or whiskers. For further details, consult Grandma's old family album.

Heating Equipment Should Be Checked, Dr. Hall Recommends

With winter coming on, it is time to check heating units to assure proper combustion of the fuels and proper operation of the equipment, Dr. Russell L. Hall, Floyd county health officer, warns. Incomplete combustion and improper ventilation of heating units which burn oil, coal or gas (propane, natural or manufactured) may produce concentrations of carbon monoxide which could result in chronic or acute poisoning of the occupants of the building, he said.

Insufficient air for proper combustion and lack of provisions for additional air entering the flues after the combustion chamber are some of the main causes for carbon monoxide poisoning. Dirty flue piping and chimneys and faulty drafts cause restrictions to air flow and may force the gaseous products of combustion to escape into the buildings through leaks and poor joint connections in the piping.

Accidental death resulting from carbon monoxide poisoning, Dr. Hall said, may be reduced or eliminated by properly designed and installed equipment and periodic cleaning and adjusting of the equipment by a qualified service man.

If a person is overcome by carbon monoxide, open the doors and windows wide, remove victim to fresh air, and call a physician. If the victim is not breathing, apply artificial respiration (mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing) or use an inhalator immediately and continue until natural breathing is restored. Dr. Hall said pamphlets on rescue breathing were available at the Floyd County Health Department and urged all members of a family to learn the very simple technique required to save a life.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

THE TRAGEDY OF THE FLICKERS

The flickers, or "yellow hammers," as some call them, are our only woodpeckers with brown backs; the others are mostly black and white, or "dommer-backed." The flickers have golden yellow on their under-wings and are also known as "gold-shafted flickers." These birds suffer great tragedies in the loss of their young ones from violent windstorms. This is mainly because they build their nests in dead trees which are often blown over by high winds. Their preference for building nests in holes high in dead trees has given them the common name of "High-Jole Bird."

The flicker has more common names than any other bird of America; it is said to have more than 125 different names, which may differ from locality to locality. It is the state bird of Alabama.

One of the most touching scenes I have ever witnessed was that of a mother flicker searching for her nest of little ones after the dead tree had been blown over and her young destroyed. It happened many years ago when I was in my teens but I never could forget the manifest grief of the mother bird over the loss of her little ones.

My father owned a large mountain farm, which had deep coves of land with soil rich in humus. We cleared out large fields, which we called "newground," in which we grew the corn and other crops we needed. Father always loved the flickers and would leave all the dead snags and old trees standing in or about the fields for them to build their nests in every year. He knew they were valuable birds to have around our fields and he called them, "my yaller hammers." We children called them "our yarrup birds," as they would often greet us with loud calls of "yarrup." When we rested from our work in the fields we watched the flickers feeding their young in the nest high up in a hole of the old oak snag standing near the middle of the field. They would make hundreds of round trips daily, searching the cultivated ground for grubs, larvae, ants, beetles and earthworms. They liked to find the big white juicy grubs to feed their little ones.

DARBY AGREES NO JOKERS

AND APPEALS TO THE DEMOCRATS

I have never accused our Representative of introducing "Jokers." No, sir—H.B. 32—granting himself $150.00 each month (tax free) is no joker. It's a ROBBER. It will take a million dollars out of every Governors budget for nothing.

H.B. 11—Increasing taxes another 10% this year is no "Joker." No, sir, it's the slow and steady eating away at the very basis of our society, the family home and the small landowner.

It was no "Joker" when our Representative voted to kill the "Widow Combs Bill." It was GREED and I'm proud to say both Breathitt and Ward share my view here.

Our Representative wasn't "joking" when he failed to vote more than 150 times. No, sir, it was indifference and unconcern.

He isn't joking now when he urges you to ignore his record and vote the Straight Democrat Ticket. No, sir, he knows that's his only chance for a third term.

I'm not joking either when I urge you to vote as your conscience dictates, with only the public good in mind. I would like to be your Representative, regardless of whom you choose as Governor. I think with all humility that I can do a fair job and will do my very best.

Your friend,

The Maytown school has planned a four-day program. Doors of the school will be open to parents who wish to observe their children being taught. Attention will be focussed on questions growing out of the general theme, "How Good Are Your Schools?"—for instance: How good are they at shaping the character of youth? at providing learning opportunities? at meeting the challenge of change? at enriching quality teaching? at enriching human life?

The Education week observance will begin at 9:30 a.m. Sunday when the Rev. Leonard Sumner, pastor of the Martin Methodist Church, will speak on the topic, "Shaping the Character of Youth." Scheduled events for succeeding days of the week, as announced by Shirley Stewart and Elsie Allen, co-chairmen of the Maytown American Education Week Committee:

Morehead Professor To Act As Consultant To Science Supervisors

Dr. Clayton Jackson, professor of science education at Morehead State University, has been invited to serve as a consultant to the National Science Supervisors Association at its meeting Nov. 19-20 in Atlanta, Georgia.

Dr. Jackson will assist the association with the development of a revolutionary new approach to teaching science in the elementary school. Last summer he served as director of an eight-week special project in Pre-College Science Education on the Morehead campus, the first of its kind ever conducted in the United States.

Forty-five Eastern Kentucky elementary teachers and principals participated in the project and currently are teaching the new process in their schools, most of which are located in Floyd county.

The project is sponsored by the National Science Foundation, and similar programs have been approved for the summers of 1968 and 1969 at Morehead State University.

The revolutionary new process, centered around the child and the use of his head and hands, was developed by the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Science Foundation.

Ky. College Students Have Received Loans Totaling $3½ Million

Frankfort, Ky. — Some 5,200 Kentucky college students have received loans averaging $666 under the Kentucky Guaranteed Student Loan Program. The total loaned approaches $3½ million.

Billy F. Hunt, executive secretary of the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority, who announced the figures, said $647,000 is still available for loans this year from more than $4 million made available under the program.

Of the total loans to date, Hunt said, 4,739 have gone to students attending Kentucky colleges and universities and 481 loans have gone to Kentucky students enrolled in out-of-state schools.

Since the program became available to students in vocational schools last June, Hunt said, 156 loans averaging $808 each have been granted.

The loans are obtained through local banks and repayment is guaranteed through the state loan program. The loans do not have to be repaid until after the student leaves school.
