Clark-Co. Refuses Trial of Salisbury

Defendant's Return Here Is Directed

Other Counties Cited As More Convenient For Venue Change

Roy Salisbury, accused slayer of three persons, will not go to trial in Clark county, after all. Instead, he will be returned from the Clark county jail to the county jail here while further exploration of a change of venue for the case is made.

The case was remanded to the Floyd circuit court Monday by Clark Circuit Judge James Chenault when the defendant and his attorney, Burnis Martin, renewed their objections to the change of venue ordered by Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

Judge Chenault noted that both the plaintiff (the Commonwealth) and the defendant agreed that a change of venue of the case from Floyd to Clark county is improper for the reason that Clark is not the most convenient county to Floyd in which a fair trial can be had by both sides. It also was pointed out in Chenault's order that there are several counties between Floyd and Clark by direct route, and that many counties are more convenient and nearer to Floyd county than Clark.

Circuit Judge Conley said he will set down the case for hearing on another venue change proposal.

Hang onto those five-cent stamps. A one-cent stamp added will get your letter there, maybe. Unless a one-cent stamp goes the way of the penny postal card — jumps to a nickel . . . I don't want anybody to offer me a penny for my thoughts.

It would be interesting to be around, 40 or 50 years hence, and hear our grandchildren lie about the winter of '68 . . . On second thought, I've decided I've heard all I want of your "old-fashioned winters."

I don't have to read the weather forecasts, any more. If I hear a youngster agonizing, I know the forecast is fair, which means school will begin; if it's a wall from his mother, I begin bracing for the storm.

If I knew something to write, I could have had this column finished. And already I've been staring hard at nothing for half an hour.

Bob Harlowe has gallantly offered a hand with the job by sending me the one about the little boy asking his father if Noah had a wife.

"Sure, Noah had a wife," his old man assured him. "Name was Joan of Arc. Now, don't be asking me silly questions."

J. F. HOWELL LEAVES BANK

Former Floyd Man Resigns at Jackson; Brother Is Successor

Jerry F. Howell, former Price merchant and State Representative and Senator from this county, resigned, effective Dec. 31, from the Citizens Bank, Jackson, Ky., where he was executive vice-president, cashier, secretary and member of the board of directors.

His work at the bank has been assumed by his brother, Jeff D. Howell.

Mr. Howell has been with the bank since its organization five years ago. He also has been active in civic and business circles, serving as treasurer of the Breathitt County Board of Education; vice-president, director and finance officer of the Middle Kentucky River Area Development Council; vice-president of the Jackson Kiwanis Club, and vice-chairman of the Jackson-Breathitt County Airport Board.

He is president of the International Publishing Co., publishers of The Jackson Times and The Beatyville Enterprise and is part-owner of Radio Station WEGK at Jackson.

Howell gave health considerations as the reason for his resignation.

SCHOOLS YET ON VACATION

Snow, Road Hazards Cause Opening Delay; Businesses Affected

Floyd county schools remained closed this week as snow held its own for a second full week and most roads, particularly those in rural sections, remained too dangerous for bus travel. The Christmas vacation for schools was originally scheduled to end, January 2.

Meanwhile, circuit court here was forced to recess Tuesday, and at least one plant, Kentucky Appalachian Industries at West Prestonsburg, closed for a day. Mining and other businesses also suffered from the weather and road conditions.

Five persons were killed in a two-car collision at Buckingham last Saturday, but highway mishaps otherwise were few.

A flock of injuries beset pedestrians Tuesday when four women were admitted to the Prestonsburg General hospital for treatment of injuries suffered in falls. They are: Mrs. Bev Burchett, leg fracture in fall at her home on Bull Creek; Miss Elizabeth Harris, broken wrist, near Emma; Mrs. Flea Blanton, head injury here; Mrs. Belle Jones, broken wrist at home at Banner.

Board Hires Clark For a Third Term

The Floyd County Board of Education at its Saturday meeting renewed the contracts of County Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark and Assistant Superintendent Wayne Ratliff for the four-year term beginning next July 1.

The contract provides for Supt. Clark's third four-year term in office.

At the same time Clem Martin was re-employed as director of instruction for a period of four years. Mr. Martin previously held the post on a teacher tenure status.

Commenting on the action of the board in renewal of his contract, Clark said:

"I do feel that the new four-year contract voted unanimously by the board demonstrates faith in the present leadership of our school system. The present school system has made great progress in the last seven and a half years in upgrading educational opportunities for all our young people. Much more must be done in the future to insure them the best chance for a quality education to be found in this section of our state. We accept the great challenge and look to the future with much hope."

Purchase of a 70 by 23-foot strip of land from the Mrs. B. L. Sturgill heirs here was voted, to "square up" the Prestonsburg elementary school grounds. The purchase price was $2,000.

Contract with the Mayo State Vocational School for training of Floyd county students at the Garth Vocational School was renewed, the cost per student to be $200 a year. The board granted the Pres-tonsburg Gas & Water System right-of-way over the Clark elementary school grounds on Middle Creek for a water line. The city water service is being extended to a residential development near the school but may be extended farther upstream later.

Teachers employed: Mary Belle Caudill, to teach the exceptional children class at Martin, filling the vacancy created by the resignation of Margie Long; Nora Martin, as substitute teacher; Bennie Stone as a temporary replacement for Amy Lee Turner at McDowell high school.

Alex Banks, 92 years old, well-known Water Gap man, passed away last Wednesday at the Prestonsburg General hospital. He had been in failing health for some time.

A retired farmer, he was born Feb. 16, 1875 at Water Gap, the son of Jim and Elizabeth Scutfield Banks. He was married to the late Lou Branham.

Surviving is a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Garrett, of Water Gap. Funeral rites were held Saturday at 1 p.m. at the United Baptist Church at Water Gap, the Revs. Wallace Calhoun and Jack Derossert officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Water Gap under the direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

NOT FROM DAVID

The Ray Stambaugh mentioned recently in The Times as having been fined is not the man of the same name who resides at David.

The M. Robert Regan Chapel, at the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad building here was dedicated, December 28.

The chapel, conceived by two squad members, Dennis Henry and James Goble to honor the Rev. M. Robert Regan, retired Prestonsburg minister who has served the squad as its chaplain since its beginning, was constructed by members of the organization under the direction of Andrew J. Goble.

SNOW HALTS COURT TERM

Recess Called Tuesday After Action Slowed; Grand Jury To Return

The Floyd circuit court fought snow and icy roads through last week and contrived to remain in session Monday, but snow that night forced a recess Tuesday and Wednesday.

The grand jury convened for three days last week but finally gave up, noting there was nothing to do. It will return here, January 24.

Monday was the first day of the term for criminal work. Last week was devoted almost exclusively to the hearing of civil cases. Two liquor convictions resulted from Monday's session when both defendants entered pleas of guilty. Walker Newsome was fined $50 and jailed for 30 days, and Raleigh Barnett drew a $20 fine and a 30-day jail term.

Several cases were dismissed because the defendants have not been found. Commonwealth's Attorney Harold Stumbo said some cases were dismissed because they had been on the docket for as long as three years without action. He added that if prosecuting witnesses are interested, these cases will be reinstated when the defendants are located and placed in the jurisdiction of the court.

Cases dismissed because defendants have not been found: Lawrence Noble, William Lee Childers and Delvin Caudill, grand larceny; William W. Fleming, obtaining money under false pretense; Paul Rowe, Don Beane, Bobby Stone and Joe T. Bowles, destroying public property; Joe Hopkins, reckless use of a deadly weapon.

Other cases dismissed: Raymond Hicks, child desertion; Luster Prater, knowingly receiving stolen property; Bruce Johnson, removing mortgaged property; Rayus Gearheart, non-support; Mary Stone, child desertion; Franklin Delano Horne, robbery; Hubert Draughn, resisting arrest and reckless driving (defendant is in the Army); Fred Collins, possession of alcoholic beverages, filed away subject to redocket.

Rural Road Program Go Ahead Ordered

Highway Department engineers have been directed to move ahead with the state's rural road programs for the coming year, Highway Commissioner William B. Hazelrigg announced this week.

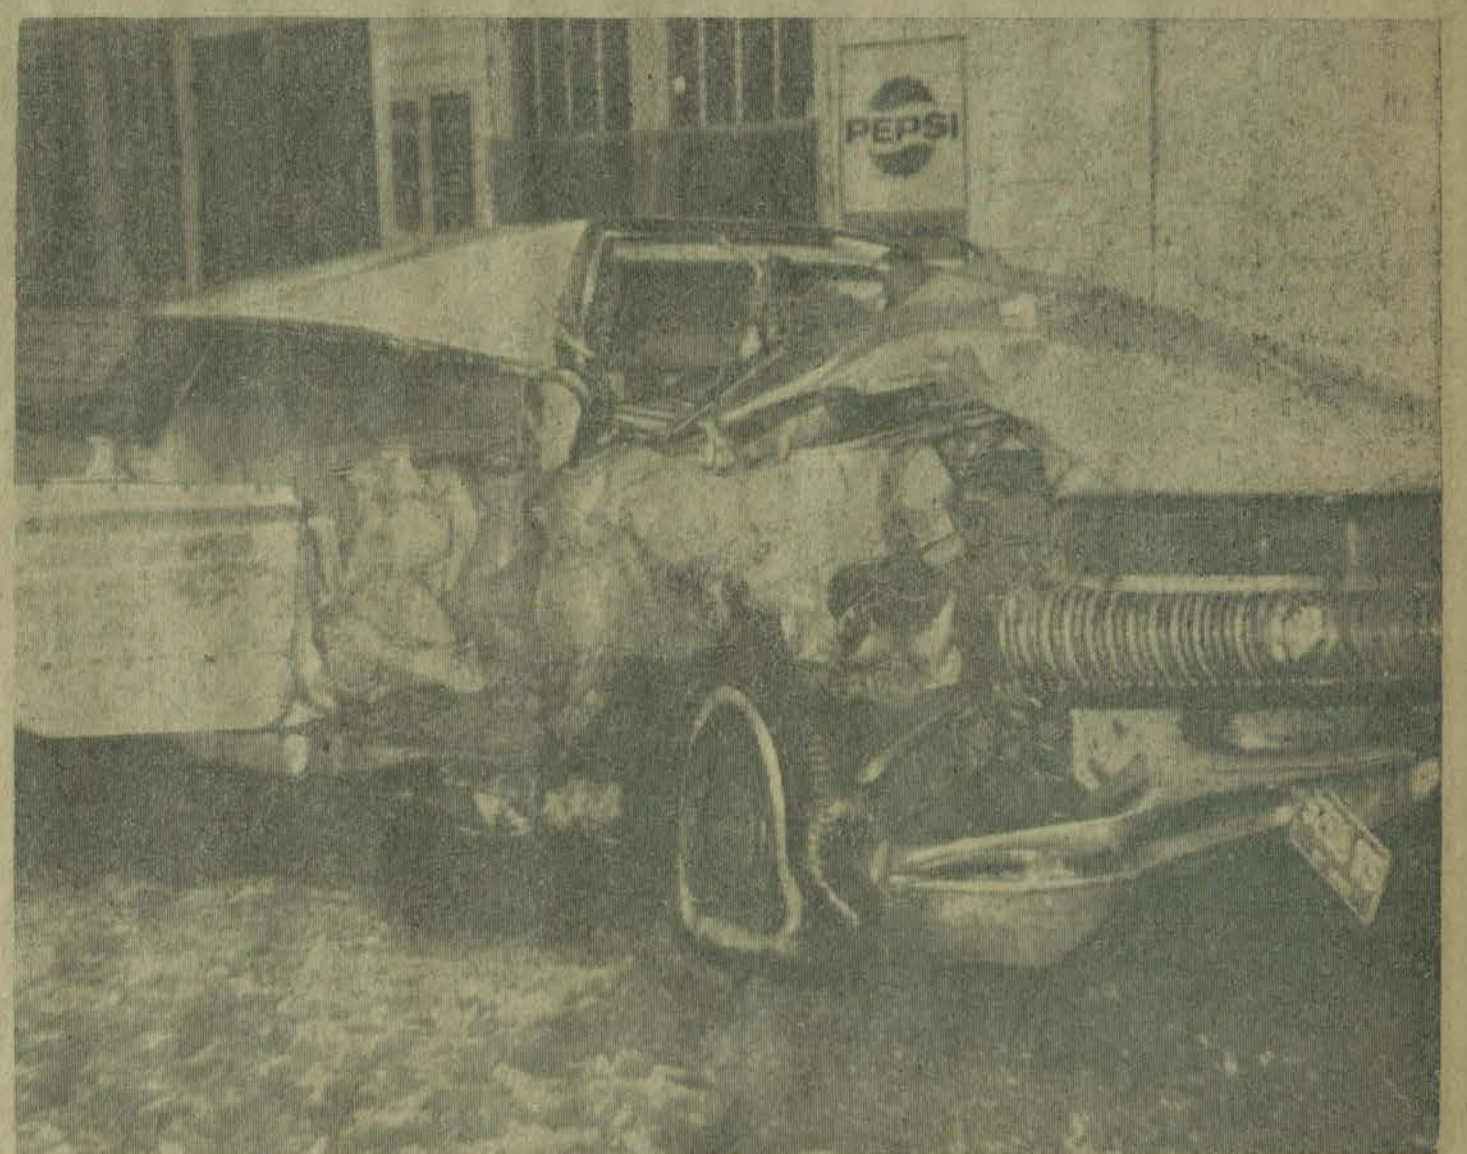

Representatives of the Department's 12 district offices are arranging to meet with fiscal courts in the several counties to receive local recommendations and priorities. Public announcements of exact times and dates are to be made in each community so that all persons who are interested in the two rural programs may attend the meetings.

One of these programs, known as County Aid, is designed to help counties maintain and improve some 41,000 miles of roads for which they are responsible. By act of the legislature, $10 million is appropriated each year for this program. Development of this year's programs, Hazelrigg said, will proceed on this basis. Should the legislature decide to put more money into County Aid, the programs can be expanded later, he added.

Primary emphasis under the other program, Rural Secondary, is to be placed on maintenance of roads in this system. Hazelrigg said remaining funds would be available for improvement of these 9,800 miles of roads, for which the Highway Department is responsible.

Funds for both state rural programs are allocated among the counties by the same formula: one-fifth is distributed in equal shares among the 120 counties; one-fifth is distributed (See Story No. 6, Page 3)

LOOTERS GET $2,100 HAUL

Hueysville Hardware, Two Firms Here Hit; Dogs Are Poisoned

The B & C Hardware at Hueysville was looted last week of an estimated $1,500 worth of tools, watches and clocks, it was reported here this week.

Entrance was effected by breaking a window. No arrest has been made. The store is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Will Boggs, of Garrett.

Two Prestonsburg businesses were broken into over the week, with one, Lloyd's Hardware, losing $600 in cash. Two buildings of the R. V. May Company on South Lake Drive here were entered Saturday night but apparently nothing was taken. The safe of the hardware firm was ruined as its door was broken open in the search for money. Lloyd Crum, owner of the store, said other contents of the store were not disturbed.

An organized gang of thieves is suspected in the various breaks. A series of depredations have been reported from Hueysville and vicinity where seven dogs have been poisoned within the last few days. Earlier, a window of the home of Ellis Gearheart was blasted by shotgun fire.

Goble's Hip Broken In Drift Rockfall

Frankie Goble, of Prestonsburg, is a patient in Good Samaritan hospital, Lexington, after suffering a broken and dislocated hip in a rockfall Dec. 28 in the Stone Coal Mining Company mine at Drift where he was doing engineering work for the Floyd County Mining Engineering Company.

Vernon Powers, who was working with him, said Goble's transit perhaps saved him from more serious injury as the rock hit the transit and was broken.

DOCK LEASES MAY STAND

Gable Doubts State Can Break Contracts Made by Breathitt

Parks Commissioner Robert Gable last week said it appears doubtful that the state can break the leases made in closing days of the Breathitt administration to private individuals for the operation of three state park boat docks.

One of the three docks is at Jenny Wiley State Park, which was leased to Paul Martin, of Prestonsburg. The other two are Lake Cumberland's and Rough River's. The Lake Cumberland dock was leased to Fred Gordon, of Frankfort; the Rough River dock, to James R. Camp, also of Frankfort.

All three leases are for a period of 17 years. Gable said the lease terms are standard for the parks system, with the lessors paying the state 12 percent of gross revenues in most cases. It was said here, shortly after the lease was executed, that Martin will be required to pay 50 percent of the income from rental of metal-covered docking space at Jenny Wiley.

"It offends my sensibilities," Gable said, "that, 11 days before the end of an administration, all of a sudden it was found to be in the best interest of the state to lease these boat docks."

If the leases stand, Dewey Lake will have two privately operated docks. The second is operated at (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Crash Ranks Next to 1958 Bus Tragedy

Lone Survivor Tells Of Efforts To Avoid Buckingham Collision

Five Floyd countians died Saturday afternoon when two automobiles collided on KY 122, near Buckingham, in a wreck which, next to the school bus tragedy of 1958, was the worst in Floyd highway history.

Of six men in the two autos, only one, Bill Little, Jr., driver of the 1959 Pontiac which figured in the tragedy, survives. The dead are:

Darrell Wayne Colter, 17, of Allen, driver of the second car, a 1960 Buick.

His stepfather, Paul Keene, Jr., 31, also of Allen.

Freeman Little, 29, Bevinville.

Chester D. Osborne, 20, of Hi Hat.

Harlos Newsome, 19, also of Hi Hat.

Colter, Osborne and Keene died almost instantly. State Trooper Richard Ray, who investigated the tragedy, said Newsome died, en route to the McDowell Regional hospital, and Little expired a few minutes after reaching the same hospital.

The lone survivor of the wreck said he saw the other car approaching at high speed and that as it skidded across the highway, meanwhile bearing down on him, he braked his car almost to a stop and pulled as far toward the edge of the road as possible.

He and his brother were the only occupants of his auto. He is recovering from injuries which include a broken leg and lacerations.

Johnny Hall, of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home, who was returning to Martin from farther up Left Beaver Creek, arrived at the scene within minutes after the crash. He said none of the six men was thrown clear of the wreckage.

Deaths of the five were attributed to broken necks. All five also suffered head and internal injuries.

'Aunt' Ellen Puffed Hard But 2 Candles Yet Burned

"Aunt" Ellen Mosley sits before her birthday cake which is studded with 102 candles.

"Aunt" Ellen Mosley failed in her attempt Sunday at her birthday party to blow out all the candles on her birthday cake—two were left burning—but, at that, she did a remarkable job of it.

For there were 102 candles on that cake.

The birthday observance with members of her family and friends at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. J. Centers, of Allen, was the climax of a busy day. She rose at her usual 5:30 a.m., made up her bed and helped her daughter with light housework during the morning.

The sprightly 102-year-old was born Jan. 8, 1866, near Lackey, the daughter of John Wicker. After her family moved to Knott county, she was married to Andrew Jackson Mosley in 1881 at the age of 16. Mr. Mosley died in 1950. Two years ago, on her 100th birthday anniversary, two events marked the day:

1. She received greetings from President Johnson. At that time she was at the home in McGuffey, O. of her son Robert, who has since died.

2. She stood flat-footed and touched the floor with her fingertips, to the mortification of her 19-year-old grandson who failed in a similar attempt.

Mrs. Mosley has done her share of hard work, and is living proof that honest work does not shorten anybody's life. She is the mother of 14 children, only three of whom are yet living; has "kept house" without many of the conveniences now enjoyed, and seldom if ever called on anybody for help in gardening, doing washings, house-cleaning and other chores.

She lived alone, except at night, till last year when she fainted while pulling weeds in her garden. She has fallen three times in the last year but still insists on walking without a cane.

Aunt Ellen still likes to travel, through her eyesight and hearing are failing. Her mind is alert and her recollections of "the old days" are varied and interesting. She has been a member of the Regular Baptist Church for 65 years.

Her surviving children, in addition to Mrs. Centers, with whom she is now residing, are Mrs. Watt Conley, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Minnie Hays, of Ashland. She has 46 grandchildren, 61 great-grandchildren and—as best she can count them—50 great-great-grandchildren.

STUDENTS ADD TO OBSERVANCE
The students of St. Juliana School, added their bit to the Christmas celebration in Martin.

Grades one through four presented a playlet, "Davy's Gift to the Christ-Child." Little Micah Crisp stole the show as Davy who wouldn't give his toy to anybody but Jesus. However, when another small boy cried because he received no gift, Davy gives him his own new toy. An angel comes to tell him that by giving it to the other boy he really gave it to Christ.

The upper grades gave an original skit, "Christmas Spirit," in which the players represented wealth, fame, and pleasure as barriers to the true Christmas spirit unless used in the right way. Steven Preflatish, the columnist, unified the acts by provoking each group to decide for or against the Christmas spirit.

Why Not Get Realistic About The Highway Carnage?

The ordinary citizen reads the highway death toll figures and is aghast. Safety councils and others issue warnings, concoct catchy slogans. We are told to "Drive Defensively" and are reminded that "The Life You Lose May Be Your Own," and all this is, of itself, of value.

But most of it is pure fabian tactics, a refusal to admit the ugly truth and get down to cases. If it were not, more would be said and done about the drinking driver and the sheer speed alcohol generates through the foot on the gas pedal.

The Kentucky Legislature now has an opportunity to do something on its own in the matter. A few other states have enacted legislation requiring drivers to agree to undergo tests to determine if they are drinking and, if so, how much. Kentucky itself has on its statute books a motor vehicle inspection law which should stand but which already is under attack.

These are matters which get down reasonably close to the causes of the nation's highway carnage. There are others, but these will do for a starter while we are dreaming up new slogans and advice.

In Great Britain over the recent holidays a striking example of the effectiveness of stricter laws against drinking drivers was established. The new "breathalyzer" test was made compulsory. Motorists were required to submit to roadside tests if they were involved in an accident or traffic violation or if they showed signs of unsteady driving. If they failed that test, they were required to submit to the blood or urine test. And if an alcoholic content was found in the blood that was above a fixed maximum, the motorist was prosecuted. The penalty was automatic suspension of the driver's license for a year, plus a fine of $240 or four months' imprisonment, or both.

The result of this hard-boiled action was a dramatic drop in traffic accidents over the five-day holiday period. Highway deaths fell throughout Britain by 40 percent—to 93 deaths, as compared with 158 for the same period in 1966. The number of accidents of all kinds dropped 25 percent; traffic injuries showed a drop of nearly 30 percent.

While this lifesaving effort was going on in Britain, the United States was having increases in the number of deaths, injuries, wrecks and the whole bloody category of highway incidents. In three days during the holidays this nation's highway deaths rose from last year's 600 to 684.

This state should keep on its statute books any law that holds out a hope of making motor vehicles safer; it should get onto its books a law (and enforce that law) that would make the man or woman behind the wheel less dangerous.

FORMER P'BURG YOUTH, INCURABLY ILL, IS KEPT ALIVE ON COSTLY OXYGEN

Eighteen-year-old Wayne Hughes, son of Mrs. Florine Daniel Hughes, former Prestonsburg woman, is living on bought, not borrowed time.

He has an incurable heart defect which is congenital. He has undergone two heart operations. Another would be fatal, his doctor says.

So the youngster is at his mother's home in Paintsville, kept alive by oxygen. He may have only a few months to live, but without the daily supply of oxygen even those few months would be denied him.

Oxygen is costly, and his mother, who has five other children, doesn't have the money to pay for it. Even though the supplier, the R. V. May Co., Prestonsburg, has cut the cost in half, each bottle costs about $4, and almost a bottle and a half a day is needed.

No public aid program is set up to bear this expense. Only the help of individuals, civic groups and business firms offer the young man hope from day to day. Last week, The Paintsville Herald joined the move to help the stricken youth by asking those who would help to send their contributions to the Wayne Hughes Fund, care of that newspaper, or to Mrs. Hughes at 380 Southland, Paintsville.

A month's supply of oxygen on which young Hughes' life so heavily depends costs about $180.

11 MAJOR IMPOUNDMENTS

There are 11 major impoundments in Kentucky, 41 state-owned lakes, a multitude of well-stocked farm ponds, and more than 13,000 miles of fishable rivers and streams. More than 200 species of fish are currently identified in the state.

I heard, or read, another along the same lines. One little girl asked another why her grandmother was reading the Bible so much.

"I think she's studying for her finals," was the reply.

JEREMIAH

You know, when it's too cold to hunt or fish or even just walk the hills or saunter about and busy yourself with things that perhaps are none of your business, anyway, grist for the old mill just naturally runs low. You're so busy watching your step on icy streets that all you can do is keep the head down when you need to be looking up.

Of late, I haven't tried enough to be frustrated by my usual failures. Haven't been lost in two weeks. Haven't returned, empty-handed, from a fishing trip. The only thing I can offer on the subject of fishing is the following found this week in a crowded desk-drawer:

ODE TO TRADEMARKS

O! Lazy Ike, he swam and swam, He's slick as a Shiner Minner, And Helin Flatfish, she's a Vamp That eyes a Shanghai Spinner.

No Silver Spoon in his mouth, The Sonic barely grunts As Crazy Crawler, Mirrorlure Pursue the River Runners.

Ah, 'twas a crazy day! Not from the skies so sombre But up from dark depths below Arose the diving Bomber.

NECROLOGY

Has it been that long? Russell "Buck" Layne says it has been 33 years since he began compiling for The Times a year's-end list of Prestonsburg citizens who had died during the preceding 12 months. His list for 1967 (with name, age and date of death of each) follows:

Fire Chief Retires, Voices Appreciation

Henry Gray, who retired as chief of the Prestonsburg fire department Jan. 1, this week expressed his appreciation to the City Council, volunteer firemen and citizens of Prestonsburg for their support and cooperation during the seven and a half years he has held the post.

Johnny Perry was named fire chief to fill the vacancy created by Gray's resignation. He has served with the fire department for some time.

'68 Is Year of Kentucky Educational TV

Hailed by educators throughout the country as a model plan for statewide educational television, Kentucky's ETV network may well prove to be one of the most significant milestones in the history of Kentucky education, says Dr. Paul Owen, director of media services at the University of Kentucky.

Kentucky's first educational television network will be inaugurated in 1968.

"Educational television in Kentucky is arriving at a time when national resources for adult programming are truly significant," Dr. Owen adds.

He says Kentucky viewers will be able to choose programs which not only are based on the rich cultural and intellectual resources of the Commonwealth, "but new and exciting TV fare from both national and international sources."

Kentucky's ETV Authority is well along in the construction of a Lexington production center—a two-studio, 35,000 square foot building—plus 12 transmitter sites and seven regional studios throughout the state. Six are based on state university campuses.

O. Leonard Press, executive director of the Authority, said only one transmitter site—that serving the Covington area—is not in some stage of development. "However, the deed for the Covington site has been obtained and a contract will be let around March 1," he said.

Transmitter site will be located in Ashland, WKAS—25; Pikeville, WPKI—22; Hazard, WKHA—35; Morehead, WKMR—38; Somerset, WKSO—29; Lexington, WKLE—46; Owenton, WKON—52; Covington, WCVN—54; Elizabethtown, WKEZ—23; Bowling Green, WKGB—53; Madisonville, WKMA—35; and Murray, WKMU—21.

Dr. Owen, who is supervising the building of a television studio for the University, stressed that ETV in Kentucky and UK's closed circuit station would in no way compete against one another.

UK's television production center, which will be located in the Taylor Education Building, is designed to assist the faculty in their organization and presentation of college courses as well as bring more closely together the University's 12 community colleges through common lectures, speakers, and special events," Dr. Owen said.

The state ETV network, he added, will focus on the primary and secondary school levels, providing a broader scope of information for all the public schools.

Press, who is credited with setting up the original plans for the state-wide network and drafting much of the enabling legislation, marks the beginning of Kentucky's ETV in 1951 when a group of Louisville educators appeared before a Congressional Committee to urge that television channels for education be reserved.

Channel 15, as the seventh regional studio that will work with the network when broadcasting begins in the fall, was reserved for Louisville in 1953, but it was five years before the project could be termed "successful."

Press noted that "once Jefferson County began broadcasting its instructional programs over Channel 15, neighboring counties joined it to form the Kentuckiana ETV Council."

He said that the rest of the way to the Kentucky ETV Network, the 8 1/2 million dollar bond sale this fall, the cornerstone laying and construction of the network center at Lexington, the completion of the studio at Richmond, and the signing of the largest broadcast equipment order in RCA's history just last September," all are too recent to require reporting anew.

"While we may have been late getting to the launching pad with ETV, no state has developed near the thrust that Kentucky has—in either reach or performance potential."

Charles B. Klasek, educational director for the Authority, stressed that "instructional television in Kentucky will never replace the classroom teacher, but it will provide him with another—and dynamic—tool to assist in the teaching-learning process."

During the 1968-69 school year, most of the material used in the instructional series will be leased from other educational agencies in the country. Only three series of a proposed 21 will be produced in Kentucky. They are seventh grade Kentucky history, fourth grade social studies, and third grade social studies.

Klasek said 18 teacher committees have been formed, representing 90 school districts in the state, to work with the State Department of Education and the Authority. They will review available series from other states and select the ones which best fit the curriculum needs of Kentucky schools.

"The initial directive of the ETV Authority," he added, "included plans for seven series at the primary level, eight at the intermediate level,

Nature Trails By RUFUS M. REED

I call the handsome mourning dove the "blues singer of nature." It seems to me the bird has a deep, hollow-sounding music box in its throat. It produces the hollow, mournful effect by a skillful blending of the double vowel sound of o with the consonants, c and h. The introductory notes, "oo-ah," set the pace for the melancholy mood of the song. This sound is followed by three mournful coos. It is a song that fits the mood of the lovelorn.

The mourning dove is a song bird and should not be classed as a game bird to be shot. It is still on the list of game birds and there is an open season on these doves in many states. The wholesale slaughter of these fine birds has made them scarce in some regions. I used to hear as many as a dozen doves cooing each spring; the last two or three springs I have heard only two or three.

The worst feature about shooting doves as game birds is the destruction of their young. For every parent dove shot or perhaps crippled or blinded, there are often nestlings that die from starvation. The mourning dove rears young from about May until September, and is usually feeding little ones during the hunting season. Isn't it about time we placed the mourning dove on the list of song birds? Some states have already done this and I hope more will follow suit.

The mourning dove is too fine a bird and too valuable to be subjected to wholesale slaughter by hunters. I don't believe I could have a heart mean enough to shoot a mourning dove; I'm sure I'd feel my conscience condemning me afterwards. The characteristics of this bird are peace and gentleness. It is somewhat retiring and shy, never aggressive and never meddles with the affairs of other birds. It is the only bird left that reminds us of the famous passenger pigeons, which have been extinct since 1914. It is the only dove that has a long, sharp-pointed tail edged with white. The tail is shaped like a very acute triangle, with the apex forming the pointed end. The tail of this dove has fourteen feathers, which make a whistling sound in flight.

The mourning dove is sleek, handsome, streamlined, with a neck forming a long graceful curve and the head is perfectly rounded. The head is brown and there is a small round spot of dark blue behind the eyes, just under the ear. The back is grayish brown, the wings bluish-gray, the feet and legs are red. Its length is about 12 inches, and it is smaller than the extinct passenger pigeons.

In Bible times this dove was known as the "turtle dove." It was the bird Noah sent out to see if the flood had receded; it made a report by bringing back a green leaf in its bill.

From ancient times the mourning dove has been regarded as a symbol of peace.

The bill and feet of this dove are so weak it cannot build a snug, secure nest like other birds. It simply gathers together a lot of twigs and makes a sort of flat nest in the forks of a tree, usually in a pine if one is handy. The female lays only two white eggs at each nesting. The mother feeds the young on pre-digested pigeon's milk, which they take from her crop.

The food of the mourning dove consists almost entirely of weed seeds, grains, wild berries and grasshoppers. These doves are devoted mates, tender and affectionate. No better bird could have been chosen as a symbol of peace. Christ spoke of the dove as a "harmless bird."

The mourning dove is highly valuable to the farmer for its good work in devouring seeds of obnoxious weeds and grasshoppers. It deserves the best protection and should be placed permanently on the list of song birds.

GOVERNOR BREATHITT . . .

(An editorial in The Kentucky Labor News)

Governor Breathitt, his wife Frances, his four children, have been a credit to Kentucky. After four years of constant scrutiny, the public found them to be a wholesome, well-mannered, charming family. We had many times the opportunity to watch "Ned" perform his role as chief executive of the Bluegrass State. He was calm under fire, and at all times a gentleman.

As a lawyer from Hopkinsville, he brought to the state house a paltry knowledge of labor problems, but he was not a slow learner! We felt that he trusted too much and too long the "handout" group that swarms in Frankfort around every new governor! And, we felt that Ned sometimes agreed with callers when he should have been more reticent, but these are understandable qualities to be found in a man who places great importance in being liked, personally, by his constituents.

We felt that somewhere about mid-term Ned Breathitt saw his tremendous obligation in its proper perspective and found his own judgment superior to that of some who advised him . . .

During his 1964 Legislature we were sorely disappointed. Many good labor measures were "dead on arrival" but a workmen's compensation bill did provide unlimited medical benefits which we had sought for years. Weekly benefits increased, and were tied to an escalator formula with average weekly earnings in Kentucky. The governor vetoed a 25c cut in the minimum wage law. The 1966 Legislature was better. A civil rights bill passed. An equal pay for women bill passed. Men were included in the minimum wage law. An improved garnishment bill passed. Unemployment benefits increased $5 a week. Our Distillery Workers rejoiced as the whiskey production tax was repealed!

His industrial development program brought tens of thousands of new job opportunities to Kentucky, and trade union membership is highest in history.

No anti-labor legislation passed during the administration of Governor Breathitt. The "right-to-work" bunch never came out of the woodwork.

Representatives of labor were appointed to many important commissions.

Men from the ranks of labor held important jobs in the Labor Department, and industrial safety was given increased interest.

We had our disappointments, but the tally board will show that the AFL-CIO support for Governor Breathitt was not misplaced.

Governor Breathitt was good for Kentucky, and therefore, good for the working man . . .

How Birth Certificates Procured Told By Dept.

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Department of Health believes that every Kentuckian should know how to obtain a copy of his birth certificate.

Persons born in Kentucky should apply to the Department's Office of Vital Statistics at Frankfort.

If your birth is not recorded and you are older than 18, you must submit affidavits and documentary evidence verifying the date and place of your birth.

You will need affidavits from two persons who are at least 10 years older than you, persons who remember when and where you were born. One affidavit must be from a relative and one from a non-relative.

In addition, you must submit one of documentary evidence.

Older citizens who cannot find friends or relatives 10 years older than they are may substitute an item of documentary evidence for each of the affidavits. Acceptable documentary evidence would include record of birth in a family Bible, a baptismal or school census record, a marriage license application, an insurance policy, or physician's office record.

The Department says people 18 and under without birth certificates are a minor problem. Some babies are born at home and their births are not always properly registered, according to the Department.

The agency says that for a child up to seven years old whose birth was not recorded, a birth certificate will be accepted for registration if it contains the bona fide signature of the attending physician or midwife.

For a person of 7-17 years, documentary evidence of birth need only be dated three years prior to the filing date. A school census record, plus affidavits of a relative and a non-relative would be sufficient to obtain the birth certificate.

With every application for a birth certificate, a fee of $2 should be enclosed to cover the cost of issuing a certified copy of the certificate or a search of the files if no record is found.

TIDBITS

Of Kentucky Folklore
By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

To us who live in towns and cities the news of something that has happened to a fellow-citizen makes some impression, but there are so many impressions that our nerves get somewhat accustomed to them. In the country of my childhood and yours, neighborhood happenings, for better or worse, somehow became a part of all our lives. Events that happened when I was very small, too small to remember, were reviewed so many times in my presence that I could have sworn that I actually witnessed them. I must have been basely three when the five men drowned in what is now Kentucky Lake, while they were drawing a long seine one night. Those deaths cut into many families in Fidelity neighborhood. The two men who survived the tragedy were reluctant to talk, but everybody remembered the exact words and passed them on to the ones of us who were not privileged to hear the original accounts.

So vividly were events of the Civil War described in my presence that I used to feel that I could draw a picture of Shiloh or Fort Donelson or other great battles in our general area. Somehow the rather inconsequential participants in those world events did not look the part of heroes, but they acquired a small halo, at least. Probably they were envied more than any other men whom we knew.

However, the neighborhood memory was not concerned wholly with tragic events. As most primitive areas, Fidelity enjoyed its jokes, especially good-humored ones that bobbed up in every generation. Scaring the younger people was almost standardized. What is a neighborhood without a few haunted houses or other mysterious places? And good jokers took advantage of the natural fear of such places and helped perpetuate the hair-raising groans and other noises associated with "haunted" places.

When a thing happened, it seemed to happen for everybody. When one of the girls eloped with a man a good deal older than she, we all shared in the humor when the girl's mother, very theatrically, begged a neighbor to pursue the eloping couple and shoot both of them. One tenant on a neighborhood farm declared that he would have enjoyed being in on this joke, for he would have ridden his horse hard after the couple as they tried to get across the Tennessee state line, he would have fired both barrels of his shotgun, and would have returned triumphantly to the frantic mother and told her that he had obeyed orders. I do not recall which event offered more neighborhood talk, the elopement or the subsequent sensational divorce. Both events were a part of our neighborhood life.

Cynicism was no common part of Fidelity life. We laughed at our crude practical jokes, we got pretty hot in political campaigns, we occasionally warmed up in the country store when religious dogmas came up (and they often forgotten ETAOIN ET K&M... did), but somehow all this seemed forgotten when trouble came along. I have known many a family that was ever so much better after a fire that consumed everything except the clothes the family had on; neighborhood generosity made up for what had been lost and more. In general, there was a commendable tolerance, even though an outsider might have thought otherwise if he had heard only the endless political and religious arguments that almost came to blows. And, the beauty of all this, a strange mixture of desirable and undesirable human characteristics, was that my Fidelity was a fair sample of a whole era, a whole civilization, a period between the Civil War and World War I that was as distinctive as any period raved about by orators or written about lavishly by historians.

Nunn Not To Submit Budget Till February

FRANKFORT — Governor Louis B. Nunn highlighted the first week of Kentucky's 1963 General Assembly with the announcement he would not have his biennial executive budget ready for presentation until late February.

He did this in his State-of-the-Commonwealth address to a joint session of the House and the Senate after painting a bleak but realistic picture of the State's economy.

He referred to the fact that former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt reduced state spending by $24 million because revenues were failing to meet budget expectations. He said that on Dec. 12 the State's bonded debt was tremendous.

Nunn told the legislators that "the development, discussion and enactment of a sound financial plan for State government is our priority business."

Kentucky's new Republican governor told members of the General Assembly, which has Democratic majorities in both houses, that he was delaying his budget presentation for various reasons, including his effort to effect economies in government.

Nunn added: "I deeply feel that it is time for us in Kentucky to meet our responsibility and let each of our fellow Kentuckians feel no doubt that we will act in a sensible and responsible manner."

"We have much work to do. Our business is big business and cannot be dealt with easily or lightly or in a partisan manner. We have a joint responsibility which we must jointly discharge."

The governor, at his suggestion, met with legislative leaders of both parties for the purpose, the governor said, "of jointly determining how we can make the best of our time between now and introduction of the budget."

With Lieut. Gov. Wendell H. Ford, a Democrat, presiding in the Senate, and Speaker Julian N. Carroll, Paducah, also a Democrat, presiding in the House, both branches of

Wheelwright Council, Inducted December 30, Has Special Meeting

The new Wheelwright City Council was sworn in by County Judge Henry Stumbo, on Dec. 30. Members taking the oath of office were Oscar B. Smith, Rev. James Casey, Dr. J. L. Patterson and Vern M. Bailey. Also taking the oath was Fred Salisbury, appointed to fill the vacancy of J. T. Anglin, who has moved from this community.

Dr. J. L. Patterson, serving his second term on the City Council, was elected mayor by the board members.

The new city council held its first meeting Jan. 5 in the city hall. This special meeting was called to discuss, particularly, the parking situation and the cleaning of the streets. It was decided that the parking regulations would be strictly enforced, allowing no parking on the west side of the street except in the parking areas. The loading zones are to be kept free at all times except for trucks unloading. No double parking will be permitted.

The regular meeting is the third Friday of every month at 8:30 p.m., at the city hall.

A spokesman of the board said that it hopes, with the cooperation of the citizens, to be able to correct many of the undesirable conditions that now exist and make Wheelwright a better community.

The final year in the University of Kentucky School of Architecture allows each student to expand his interests in preparation for a technical internship.

McDowell, Maytown Resume Net Feuding At Maytown Tonight

McDowell, Ky.—Tonight (Thursday) the McDowell Daredevils invade Maytown for the fourth meeting of these two teams this season.

For the first three games the Daredevils held a two to one edge on the Wildcats. The Daredevils' sole defeat by Maytown came at Wheelwright during the Wheelwright Invitational where the Devils lost by one point. The Daredevils reversed things on the Wildcats during the Floyd County Pre-Season Tournament when they defeated Maytown in the finals by one point. The third game between these two clubs was played at McDowell and was a very convincing Daredevil win.

Thursday night's game is a conference game. McDowell has dominated the conference during the past three years and is out after it again this year. The standings of the conference at the moment have Maytown on top, 5-0, with McDowell right behind, 3-0, and Prestonsburg, 1-0. Thursday night's game sets the stage for the conference championship because a loss for either team could well be the only loss it will suffer in the conference and the winner could easily go undefeated in conference play.

College Enrollment Up For Fall Term By 5.7%

Frankfort, Ky. — Enrollment in Kentucky colleges and universities measured up to the national average in the 1967 fall term with a 5.7 percent increase.

Enrollment however failed to make as large a gain in Kentucky as it did a year ago when it increased by 10.7 percent.

This indicates a leveling-off, at least temporarily, according to Ted C. Gilbert, executive director of the Kentucky Council on Public Higher Education, who recently released the figures.

Gilbert reported enrollment in the state's 32 accredited public and private institutions at 85,558 as compared with 80,917 a year ago.

He attributed the leveling-off to a slow down in college-age population, college-age males serving in the armed forces, continued increase in tuition and living cost, and a decrease in non-resident students.

But Kentucky colleges can expect continued increases in enrollment with probably another big boost yet to come, Gilbert said.

He noted that the state's birth rate in 1957 was among the highest of any one year and this is yet to show up on campuses. Also, he said returning veterans of the Vietnam War are expected to increase college enrollment.

The greatest loss in enrollment was in freshmen and sophomores, according to Gilbert. He said freshmen registered only a slight increase while the sophomores lost 931.

He said juniors and seniors again registered large increases at 17.6 and 17.9 percent respectively.

He cited a substantial increase at the graduate level, which rose 12.5 percent compared with 20 percent a year ago.

The six state-supported colleges and universities and the two municipal institutions — the University of Louisville and Paducah Junior College — again made the largest gains. They enrolled 7.2 percent over the 1966 fall term while the private colleges increased their enrollments by only 1.9 percent, according to Gilbert.

Edgar Preston, 68, Passes Away Friday

Edgar Preston, 68-year-old retired Thealka miner, brother of Mrs. Arnetta Mosley and Mrs. Gertrude Meadows, both of Wayland, died Friday morning in a Paintsville hospital following a long illness.

A member of the Free Will Baptist Church, he was born Aug. 13, 1899, in Johnson county, a son of the late Charles and Louella Daniel Preston. His wife, Mrs. Fanny Robinson Preston, died in November, 1966.

Surviving, besides his sisters, are a daughter, Mrs. Lucille Spradlin, of Thealka, and a brother, Thomas Preston, of Tutor Key. He also leaves three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Sunday at 11 a.m. from the Thealka Free Will Baptist Church, the Rev. Kermit Preston officiating. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Turner Branch under the direction of the Paintsville Funeral Home.

Backward and Forward

January is a time for taking account of things.

Business men take inventory. Individuals look backward on the year that has passed—with some pleasure, and some regret—and look to the year ahead . . . with hope, perhaps with some degree of foreboding.

The month itself is aptly named—for the Roman goddess Janus who was represented as looking both backward and forward.

Let us look forward to building a better Floyd county. We start on that job with ourselves, in our homes.

The trend is clear!

More than 3 million American homes are heated electrically. The Federal Power Commission forecasts 19 million families will convert to or build electrically heated homes within just 12 years! Why?

Ben Franklin's stoves sold like hotcakes because they were more efficient than an open fire. The pot bellied stove was replaced by central heating systems. Today's big home-heating trend is another vast improvement . . . flameless electric . . . because it offers such a wide choice of systems and so many more advantages that it makes other methods of heating seem clumsy and old-fashioned. More convenient, more comfortable, more versatile, electric heat gives you more for your money. And you can enjoy it now, in your present house. Any home can be converted to clean electric heat, easily and economically. Let us prove it. Call us . . . or mail this coupon.

10 CONVENTIONS

Kentuckians held 10 conventions before adopting a constitution. The first met in Danville on Dec. 27, 1794, for the purpose of discussing local protection for Kentuckians from Indian raids. Delegates were instructed to petition Virginia for permission to join the Confederation of States. Samuel McDowell and Thomas Todd were elected president and secretary. They held these positions throughout the nine conventions which were to follow.

IN MEMORY

In Memory of my husband, Fair Bentley, who passed away, Jan. 3, 1966:

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall:
You had a kind word for each
And died, loved by all.
There is a vacant place in my home
Which never can be filled;
Others may forget you, dear,
But this I never will.
We miss you now,
Our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more.
But, dear, while I sit here all alone
I hope some day to meet you
Around the great white throne.

Dear Floyd Federal Customer:

The end of each year marks a most welcome occasion to report to you about the progress made during the past twelve months by Floyd Federal Savings and Loan Association. It also gives us a chance to look ahead to the coming year.

At the end of 1967 our total savings balances stood at $6,917,672.16, an increase of $894,320.24 or 14.8% for the year. Dividends paid to our customers during 1967 amounted to a record $286,277.13. Due to the increasing cost of living our operating expenses naturally increased but even with this and the payment of a record dividend, your association was able to substantially increase its reserves and the total reserves now amount to $255,007.10.

During 1967 Floyd Federal channelled $998,231.88 into mortgage loans and the mortgage loans on our books now total $6,188,025.02. During the year the mortgage funds we invested made possible the construction of many new modern homes in Eastern Kentucky as well as the purchase of other homes on terms people of modest means could afford.

All things considered, 1968 may well prove to be another good year for your association. There is a possibility, of course, that we may experience another round of "tight money" such as was so much in evidence during 1966. However, we feel confident that your association will be able to face whatever comes along in the economy and that we will again be able to take care of the financial needs of nearly all of the applicants who qualify for home loans.

We want to thank you for giving us the privilege of serving you and your family during the past year, and we sincerely hope we serve you even better during 1968.

Cordially,

Introducing 127 changes.

(Test drive a few dozen.)

The changes we're talking about aren't exactly what you'd call glaring changes.

With one huge exception—the Station Wagon (it's so noticeably changed you can't help but notice it).

Practically everything about it is different. From windshield (which is 27% larger) to interior (which has gotten very cushy) to the rear engine (which has been enlarged to 1600 cc).

But as far as our little sedan goes, it still looks like a bug of old.

And our big sedan, the Squareback, still looks like a Squareback. Ditto for the Fastback.

Then there's the Karmann Ghia—still the beauty of the bunch.

But they're all more formidable VW's than ever. That's the big change.

Bumpers have been beefed up. Interiors have been softened up. Signal lights and tail lights are easier to see from all sides.

The '68s also have improvements that make them neater cars.

Things like flatter door handles and window knobs. Larger wipers and better windshield washers. Dozens of little things. The kind that probably won't bowl you over until you've had a VW for a while.

So instead of running in for a quick peek at the '68s, plan to take your time. Pick one out in your size and take it for a test drive. Give yourself a fair chance to be carried away.
