Area Group Names Mills As Director

Area Office Opening Set At College

Council's Directors Ask Span Be Built To Shoe Plant Site

The board of directors of the Big Sandy Area Development Council voted Monday evening in a two-hour session at the Paintsville Country Club to employ Troy Mills, a native of Martin county, to fill the $13,200-a-year post of staff director of the five-county Big Sandy Development District.

Dr. George P. Archer, Council chairman, said Mills' assistant and clerical help will be employed at a meeting scheduled next Thursday.

The development district office, which will be located at the Prestonsburg Community College, will open March 4. A federal grant of $58,000 was made recently to finance operation of the office.

The council directors, on motion of Dr. Archer, adopted a resolution urging Governor Nunn to expedite construction of the bridge across the Big Sandy at Lancer as an access to the U. S. Shoe Company plant now nearing completion.

In a session following the board meeting, the council itself voted a resolution asking four-lane construction of US 23 throughout Kentucky.

This Town . . . That World

THE GAS ATTACK

Flying saucers, the Russians are saying, are nothing more than a 14-k. capitalist plot. Any time the United States wants to get the minds of its peasants off our troubles, they trot out a new Flying Saucer yarn, so they say. And any time the Kremlin wants to stop Ivan from salting up his vodka, which is most of the time, they heave a couple of thousand words into orbit against the United States.

NAMES REQUIRED

If the writers of two letters to the editor which we have at hand will sign their names to their letters, we'll see that they are printed. Only signed letters are acceptable, regardless of their merit.

TOO REAL AND EARNEST?

"Doesn't anything funny happen in your life, any more?" a reader inquires.

I hesitate to make forthright reply, because it may be that I'm getting into as many ridiculous fixes as ever but fail to think them funny. The last such situation was when I was shanghaied into the choir at our church, one Sunday morning. I thought to do a piece about that but hesitated to drag the church into this column. I had considered reporting that a couple of fellows near me were singing in such fashion as to lead me off, cross-country-like, following a bass, one moment, and a tenor the next. But I don't want to get involved in the matter. Musicians are temperamental, they say.

Come fishing time, and I should get out enough to hook myself in the seat of the pants with a back-cast, or something of that nature, or it may be that I'll get lost.

Who was it said, "Get lost!"? (See Story No. 3, Page 6)

P'burg College Slates Founders Day Program

Founders Day, to commemorate the founding of the University of Kentucky, will be held at Prestonsburg Community College next Wednesday.

Dr. William Hayes, president of Alice Lloyd College, will be the speaker at the academic convocation at 10 a.m. Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of Prestonsburg Community College, the college advisory board, the community's ministers and all

Park Commission Seeks Furnishings For 2 Apartments

Contributions of used household items were sought this week by the Prestonsburg Park Commission to furnish two apartments which have been completed at Archer Park here.

Rent of the apartments, when furnished, will enable the commission to make further improvements at the park. Rugs, carpeting, draperies, dishes—numerous items are needed. A stove and a refrigerator for each apartment have already been made available.

If persons wishing to make a contribution will call Mrs. James D. Adams (836-6119), a truck will pick up articles offered.

4 TRUCKERS CITED HERE

Tag Absence Listed As Cause for Action; Trials of 14 Continued

Four drivers of trucks hauling coal over KY 114 were cited by Division of Motor Transportation representatives here last week.

They included Willie Hale, Wheelersburg, Ky., of the P. & H. Trucking Co., charged with operating without a Kentucky cab card and without tags on his vehicle; and George Taylor, Jimmie Lee Ratliff and Darrell Francis McKenzie, of the Donna Trucking Co., who allegedly had no cab cards.

The trucking firms have been hauling coal for the Terry Elkhorn Mining Corp., of Prestonsburg, which has a Daniels Creek operation.

Terry Elkhorn, its president, Charles E. Hovatter, and a dozen truck drivers have been charged by the Johnson county grand jury of damaging the road from Daniels Creek to Van Lear, and their trials were continued from last Thursday till March 14. The cases were continued, Commonwealth's Attorney Jack L. Lewis said, because warrants had not been served on all the defendants.

FIELD OFFICE OPENS HERE

To Serve 40 Counties In Promoting Medical Self-Help in Schools

Temporary field headquarters to serve a 40-county area in the federal program of medical self-help training in time of national emergency have been set up in the Floyd County Health Department here. It was announced this week by Willis Hall, program director.

Opening of the office is a step toward intensifying the drive to place the program in all Eastern Kentucky high schools. The 40 counties to be served by the office comprise the eastern one-third of the state.

More than 15,000 students in 115 high schools already are in training. Hall said, Full participation of all high schools is the goal for next year.

About 170,000 students, 85 percent of whom are from high schools, have been trained in Kentucky, and the state ranks 10th in the national program. The Eastern Kentucky leader in the program is Boyd county, where 5,000 will have been trained by the end of this year.

Tackett, principal; Mrs. Frankie S. Best, art teacher; Mrs. Jimmy Joe DeRosset, PTA secretary, and Ray Howard, member of the board of education. The elementary PTA also has purchased a kiln for the school's Art department. The Parent-Teacher Association at its Feb. 13 meeting voted the purchase of casters for the music room piano and risers for student use during performances. Supt. Clark was the speaker at the meeting, discussing the new addition being completed for the school. Inspection of the addition followed.

Salisbury To Get Trial Continuance

John Y. Brown, Lexington attorney, this week filed motion and affidavit for continuance of Roy Salisbury's trial till the May term of the Morgan circuit court, and Circuit Judge W. Major Gardner indicated he will grant the continuance.

Brown set out in his affidavit that he has only recently been employed as defense counsel and needs time to procure records of psychiatric tests which, he claims, support his contention that the defendant is of unsound mind. His statement points out that during the time Salisbury was in "Death Row" at Eddyville prison, the prisoner was examined by various doctors and that they, "without exception, found defendant to be of unsound mind."

Roy Salisbury was back in jail here last week after a brief stay in yet another prison.

He was taken last Feb. 9 to the Morgan county jail at West Liberty to be held there till his trial begins there Feb. 26 on charge of venue from the Floyd circuit court. But his return here for safekeeping was ordered by Circuit Judge W. Major Gardner, of the Morgan court, after it was held the Morgan county jail is inadequate for security purposes. He was returned here, last Tuesday.

FLOYD DRIVE HEAD NAMED

Anderson Announces Floyd Chapter Plans For March Campaign

The Floyd County Chapter, American Red Cross, will on March 4 launch its month-long campaign for funds to finance its programs of service in the 1968-69 fiscal year.

President Johnson has proclaimed March as Red Cross Month nationwide.

Chairman of the Red Cross drive in Floyd county will be Glenn S. Anderson, Jr., Prestonsburg insurance man.

Quota for the campaign will be $6,000—an increase of $300 over last year. Mr. Anderson explained:

(See Story No. 6, Page 6)

What will be done with the prisoner during his trial, at night and other times when imprisonment is required, was not announced, although he will probably be kept under guard at West Liberty.

Salisbury will be given trial for the second time on a murder charge in the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Mallie T. Denney, one of three persons he is accused of killing near Drift. Commonwealth's Attorney Harold Stumbo, who prosecuted the defendant in the trial held here, in which a jury of Pike counties voted Salisbury the death penalty, has been delegated by Attorney General John Breckinridge to assist in prosecution of the case at West Liberty.

Sanitation Report Hits Five Schools

Five of seven Floyd county schools inspected within recent weeks have sub-standard sanitation facilities and maintenance, a report made by J. Clifford Todd, epidemiologist, State Board of Health, says.

Only Prestonsburg and Clark elementary schools meet minimum standards, according to the report. Other elementary schools inspected were Prater Creek, Allen, Martin and Banner. Also included in the study was Prestonsburg high school.

The survey apparently was coincident with a study made to determine the incidence of hepatitis in the county. The spread of the disease has not increased since the opening of schools, and there is no definite pattern of outbreaks, it was indicated. Hepatitis has appeared at scattered spots over the county. The greatest number of cases was reported at Wheelwright, which has had five.

All schools in the county are soon to be inspected, it was indicated.

Todd's report said no soap

WOMAN HIT, SON ESCAPES

In Train-Auto Crash At Allen Crossing Monday Afternoon

Mrs. Linda Sue Halbert, 23, wife of John Halbert, of Allen, is in fair condition at Central Baptist hospital, suffering from injuries sustained Monday afternoon when her auto was struck by a freight train at a crossing near her home.

Mrs. Halbert's leg and pelvis were broken, and she also suffered a head injury but there was no concussion, neighbors said they were told after she had been taken to the Lexington hospital.

Her six-year-old son, Mark, escaped injury. He apparently leaped from the car as the train bore down on him and his mother.

The auto, badly smashed, was dragged about 80 feet along the tracks, but Mrs. Halbert was thrown from the vehicle near the point of impact. The collision occurred at a private crossing which leads to the Halbert home, between Allen and Banner.

Mrs. Halbert was transferred to Central Baptist from the Prestonsburg General hospital.

New Industry May Occupy Kenwood Site in Johnson

The first indication that the site originally prepared for Kenwood Products, Inc. may be made available to some other firm came last week.

Kenwood directors at their meeting Friday took no definite action but were said to be awaiting a proposal from a South Carolina manufacturing firm.

Resignation of Robert H. Sloat from his $18,000-a-year post as president of Kenwood was accepted, and he was named to the board of directors. Sloat will be associated later with a Cincinnati firm.

The 85-acre tract planned by Kenwood as a giant wood utilization plant has also attracted the attention of other manufacturing firms. One of these is the automotive parts company which last Saturday conducted a labor survey to determine if the labor force in this area is sufficient to staff a plant employing from 500 to 700 persons.

The survey resulted in more than 1,000 applications being filed in a four-hour period by potential employees.

Kenwood drew heavy support from both federal and state governments. The former through EDA made $335,000 in grants for site development, and a bridge connecting the site with new US 23 was built during the administration of Governor Breathitt.

Prayer Breakfast Plan Told by Kiwanis Group

The Rev. William M. Pope, chairman of the Support of Churches Committee of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, this week announced plans for a Laymen's Spiritual Guidance Breakfast to be held twice monthly. This organization is a community-wide interdenominational Christian fellowship and will meet, the first and third Friday of each month, beginning Friday, March 1, at 7 a.m. at Penny's Drive-In.

The group will be composed essentially of laymen, who will conduct the devotional and prayer. All men of the community, particularly local businessmen, are invited to attend. The meetings will be of 45 minutes duration, including breakfast and program.

This organization is patterned after similar laymen's gatherings held in other Kentucky cities and towns. All local ministers are urged to join.

The Kiwanis Club is encouraging this breakfast meeting as a means of furthering some of its 1968 objectives, which include building spiritual and moral values by personal example, the safeguarding of our heritage of freedom, and demanding respect for law and order.

HEART CLINIC SET MAR. 12

Five-County Area Indigents To Get Tests on Referral

A one-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held at the Floyd County Health Department here Tuesday, March 12.

Physicians from the departments of Pediatrics and Medicine at the University of Kentucky Medical Center will conduct the clinic.

Co-sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association and the state and county health departments, this clinic provides a diagnostic service for the patient along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also provides an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State Department of Health. Clinic personnel as well as space and equipment will be provided by the Floyd County Health Department as well as the State Health Department and the Kentucky Heart Association.

Only those patients who have been referred by a physician and have a written referral will be admitted to the clinic. Counties in this clinic area are Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike.

John Perry, Prestonsburg fire chief, said departments of Wayland, Left Beaver, Wheelwright, Betsy Layne, Martin, Allen, Paintsville, West Liberty, Salversville and Inez have been invited.

Man Saved by Walters Mourns Loss of Friend

An elderly native of Germany was one of those who mourned the recent death of Wyman Walters, of Emma—and few had better reason to do so.

For the German, 70-year-old Robert W. Neugebauer, says Walters twice saved his life. Now a resident of Montreal, Canada, Neugebauer came to Emma for his friend's funeral, and there he spoke brokenly of what the Floyd countian had done for him. The two met in a Japanese prison camp—Walters, a signalman first class, U. S. Navy, taken prisoner with the fall of Corregidor; Neugebauer, a German civilian who had fled Nazi Germany.

Germans were the enemies of Americans in those days, too, but in Neugebauer the Floyd countian saw a human being in need. The torture of a 30-kilometer march, inhuman beatings, lack of food—these had taken their toll, and only the strongest survived. Neugebauer was literally starving to death, and Walters contrived to get part of his meagre rations to him.

On his return home in the summer of 1945 after having been a prisoner since May, 1942, Walters told how it happened, although at the time he did not mention the help he afforded his fellow-prisoner. Beri-beri afflicted a large percentage of the undernourished prisoners. "We had a Jap doctor," Walters recalled, "who seemed to me to be a bit crazy. He would test us by jabbing pins in our legs. According to his theory, if we felt no pain we had beri-beri. I have had the blood run down my legs and 'till I'd swear I couldn't feel any pain. That way, I got Vitamin B-1 shots for beri-beri."

And that made it possible for him to share his rations with Neugebauer and still escape the dreaded results of malnutrition. Of the second incident when the Floyd countian saved his (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

Leadership, Plus Cooperation, Get Things Done

When you get around to congratulating a community such as Prestonsburg on a program of progress of such dimensions and success that it wins All-Kentucky City honors, you must consider just about everybody.

First of all, of course, those leaders, without whose ability and initiative the ball would never have started rolling, must be recognized. Colleges, parks, highways, paved streets, sewage disposal plants, major parking facilities, public buildings, industrial plants and other improvements are not like Topsy—they don't just happen.

Then there are the ordinary citizens who should share in receiving credit for many of the improvements which have distinguished the community. These are not mere followers; they help pay the bill.

Prestonsburg is not alone as an example of leadership and community cooperation. Others have dared in other communities to break with the status quo and dare the scoffers and the ever-present chance of failure.

Floyd county still has many needs, but it is on its way. Local successes such as the instances cited encourage its people to believe that many of these needs will be met.

Two Top Fives in Same Tourney Bracket Here

The luck of the draw may have taken some of the suspense out of the upcoming 58th district basketball tournament.

When play begins next Wednesday night at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse the district's two top teams will be in the same bracket. If they win their first-round engagements Wednesday night, they'll be back to fight it out between themselves in the upper bracket semi-finals, Friday night.

Born at Beaver, he was a son of Jessie and Ranie Newsome Hamilton. His wife, Mrs. Mary Blankenship Hamilton, survives. Canvass for Funds Slated Next Sunday

Next Sunday is Heart Sunday, and the day will be marked in Prestonsburg by a house-to-house canvass for Heart Fund contributions. Local ministers are being asked to announce to their congregations Sunday morning that the work of solicitation will be done that afternoon.

Mrs. Jane R. Combs, county Heart Fund chairman, said the drive for funds elsewhere in the county is being conducted by community chairmen.

(Items taken from files of The Floyd County Times of 30 and 20 years ago.)

Thirty Years Ago (January 20, 1938)

Alleged irregularities at the August primary and the November election resulted this week in the grand jury returning six indictments naming Floyd county poll officials and a precinct worker on counts including the voting of voters not present at the polls, intimidating voters and electioneering in the voting house. Spinal meningitis outnumbered all other communicable diseases which required field visits of the Floyd county health department last year, the report released this week by Dr. Marvin Ransdell, department director.

Twenty Years Ago (January 22, 1948)

As the Floyd circuit court turned to its major criminal docket, three Floyd county men have been convicted within the week in murder trials, a fourth was convicted of voluntary manslaughter and two others drew pen terms for breaking and entering. Two Floyd countians were killed in mine accidents this week. Bill Jones, 54, of Hueysville, died a short time after being crushed, Monday noon, by a slate-fall in the Diamond Elkhorn Coal Company mine near Hueysville. At Wayland Wednesday afternoon, Joe Wicker, 31, of Garrett, was killed when he was caught between the mine roof and the motor he was operating.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D. WHAT IS FUNNY?

Most of my life I have enjoyed watching my fellow human beings to see what amuses them most. In spite of education, travel, modern conveniences, humanity is still pretty folkish in its sense of humor.

There has been a tendency to use a foreigner in many folk tales to show dumbness or unexpected humor. Thousands of early jokes in America concerned Irishmen, probably because the original tellers of these age-old tales localized them to fit the Irish shantymen when our railroads were being built, our canals dug.

Though we do not laugh at ourselves to laugh at disaster as our ancestors did, sometimes our veneer of culture peels off, and we are the primitive folk we used to be. No longer is it a custom to keep around for entertainment purposes such unfortunate persons as dwarfs, idiots, deformed persons, and the insane. But it is a rare person whom I have known who did not get a smile, at least, because of the remarks or antics of some person who was hardly up to the standard of intelligence of the neighborhood.

Polk yarns love to dwell on the wisdom of children. Social demands often shield a person suspected of being a witch, but a child, as well as a cow can penetrate the false appearance. Children's remarks about the dignified and elderly are often among our best sources of humor. There is no evil intended by such remarks; children as such are rarely catty; they just speak out. And folk tales are full of such remarks, often directed against the higher ups and the older people.

Perhaps the person who appears most often in folk tales is the younger brother who is supposed to be a weakling or even a half-wit. Nearly always he answers the mysterious 64-dollar question or kills the giant or bridges the chasm and marries the princess. His straightforward sayings are full of a kind of wry humor that shows that he is basically a genius, not a half-wit. There has been a tendency to use a foreigner in many folk tales to show dumbness or unexpected humor. Thousands of early jokes in America concerned Irishmen, probably because the original tellers of these age-old tales localized them to fit the Irish shantymen when our railroads were being built, our canals dug.

I Say What I Think

By S. C. VAN CURON

Frankfort, Ky.—The controversial professional negotiation measure that would give local teacher associations the right to have a voice in formulation of school policy that affects the professional staff and the children they teach is expected to be introduced soon.

The bill is sponsored by the Kentucky Education Association and by most local school district associations in the state. Louisville, Paducah and some six or eight others already have some form of professional negotiation.

Purpose of the act, the prologue says, "is to improve the quality of education within school systems through guaranteeing the right of professional negotiation with boards of education."

The proposal is being opposed by the Kentucky School Boards Association and the majority of the Kentucky Superintendents Association, and it is this strong opposition that has kindled flames in the controversy.

Most seasoned legislative observers readily admit that school legislation, and particularly the amount of funds appropriated by the state to public education, always draws top interest during a session.

Certified personnel would have the right to make recommendations to the board in selecting the curriculum, text books, disciplinary regulations, and negotiate on salaries with the board.

If these two groups could not agree and reach an impasse, the proposed legislation provides that the school superintendent would appoint an advisor to study the matter and make recommendations to get the two groups together. In the final analysis, if they still failed to agree, a three-man mediation board would be appointed, one by the professional group, one by the school board and the third selected by these two.

The School Board Association argues the system would not work if the certified personnel had a voice in establishing policy, and this is a right of the board only.

What none of those involved have said is that the entire structure of public education law needs to be revised. The last time this was done was in the late 1930's and what revision has happened since then has been a patchwork.

In truth, the local school board has little authority on its own. Most action they take must be recommended by the school superintendent. They can disapprove his recommendations and stall him in certain matters, but they can initiate little action on their own without persuading him to be on their side.

Recommendations of textbook committees made by teachers who use the books in class are not always carried out through the superintendent's office that must approve and order the books.

The professional negotiation bill is going to be one that will be bitterly fought by both sides as it moves through the General Assembly.

Another school bill that has drawn opposition from the professional educators is one introduced by Rep. Lee Lawson, R.-Hebron. It would repeal the three permissive taxes, from which local school boards may choose one, that were proved in 1965.

About 20 school district in the state have levied the three percent tax on utility bills and about five of these issued revenue bonds although the tax has never had a test in the Court of Appeals. The State Department of Education will not approve a revenue bond based on this tax alone.

School legislation is going to compete with other legislation for the top spot this session.

GAY HARBINGERS OF SPRING

What a rare pleasure it is to walk out in the barren, brown-leaved woods of early March and find pretty, little flowers peeping up out of the old winter leaves, nodding and smiling as if to say, "Hello, spring is just around the corner."

When we view these bold, little harbingers of spring, our hearts are made to rejoice, because we know they have won the victory over winter death. They bring us the glad tidings of another spring.

Among the beautiful early spring flowers, I choose to write about the following:

1. The hepaticas, or liverleaf. The hepaticas are the first of all our woodland wild flowers to bloom. I usually find them pushing up a hairy flower scape with a bloom bud in the first week of March. Once I found hepaticas in bloom on the last day of February. Look for these dainty, little flowers on the north-facing slopes, in rich, moist soil of open woods; sometimes they grow on bluffs or on old sandstone cliffs, often around beeches or about old stumps. They are colorful little flowers and are found in delicate shades of purple, pink, white and blue. They hold onto their old winter leaves until spring, and these are crimsoned from the cold.

The flower scape and the bloom buds are covered with fine, silky hairs, as a protection against the cold. The leaf has three lobes like the liver—hence the name, liverleaf.

Hepaticas can be transplanted and make a pretty plant for the wild flower or rock garden. The flowers have no corollas, but their beauty lies in the petal-like sepals, which number from five to 10. Pretty, little spring azure butterflies often visit the fragrant blooms of hepatica.

2. Bloodroot, or puccoon. Bloodroot is the most popular and best-loved of all the early harbingers of spring, and comes out in bloom only a few days later than the hepaticas. My earliest date for finding bloodroot in bloom is March 16. The petals are sheer glossy white, delicate and very fragile, so much so they cannot be handled or moved, and often drop off in the brisk spring winds, to lie on the earth like the late snowflakes of March.

Bloodroot, a member of the poppy family, has bright red juice in the roots and stems. The Indians used this to dye their robes and blankets, also for war paint. The roots are reputed to have medicinal value and were once widely used to make cough medicine, considered valuable as an expectorant.

I used to hear older people call bloodroot a good "cow tonic." I've seen them cut the root into small pieces, put these in rubbins of corn and feed them to the cows. The root stimulates the digestive organs and is a valuable tonic.

The flowers of bloodroot are large and showy. I have seen big patches of them with their white blooms gleaming against the drab background of old winter leaves, adding white splendor to barren March woods. The organs of the flowers, stamens and pistils, are grouped in a yellow center and add a touch of gold to the beauty of the flower.

When the flower stem pushes up with its bloom bud, it keeps the new leaf tightly folded around it, as a shield against cold spring winds.

The leaves of bloodroot are almost as beautiful as the flower. They are kidney-shaped, deeply lobed, with seven to nine lobes; the leaf is bright-green above, silvery beneath, and may grow eight to 10 inches wide.

3. The anemone, or windflower. This dainty wild flower is a companion of bloodroot, appearing in bloom about the same time, and in about the same habitat. The anemones are called "wind-flowers," as they are formed at the top of a very slender stem, which nods and sways in every small wind. These flowers were immortalized by Bryant in his poem, "The Death of the Flowers," when he wrote:

"The windflower and the violet, They perished long ago."

The flowers of rue anemone are formed in clusters at the top of the slender stem and are mostly white; some come out in a delicate shade of pink, and are truly beautiful. The beauty of the flower lies in the petal-like sepals, which number from five to 10. The leaves are shaped like those of meadow-rue, hence the name, rue anemone.

'WHATSOEVER THINGS'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

I wish to share with you this week some information on two men who have had the greatest influence on the world in which we live.

The first man was born of Jewish parents. Later his parents embraced Christianity. He was brought up with a good formal education and earned a doctor's degree from a university.

Despite his very good formal education, he spent most of his life in poverty. During his entire life he had only one close friend, a prolific writer and a man of strong beliefs. He was twice driven from his country because of his expressed views. He changed very little of society while he was alive, but since his death his followers have shaped nearly half the world.

The other man I wish to share some information on was also born of Jewish parents. His parents later embraced Christianity, too. He had no formal education and had to learn a trade that his father taught him. He, too, spent a good share of his life living in poverty. He had very few close friends and the few he had deserted him when he needed their friendship most.

They tried to share his views with him but sometimes found it was hard to do when there were some who continually called him a fool. Although he was never driven forcefully

A CHEERFUL LIAR

Through years of remembering oddities of character and happening and putting them down so that they can be saved I have acquired a sort of local reputation as a cheerful liar. No one accuses me of being malicious in my tall tales, but I can see that many of the younger ones who listen to me are mildly skeptical and would question my accuracy if they were not so well bred. Rather oddly, my best yarns are the best authenticated, since many of them were written down in my diary or other temporary fashion at the time they occurred. That, however, does not make much difference with my average critic, for all of it sounds like fiction to him. As I have said before in this column, the best way to acquire a reputation for being a cheerful liar is to remember accurately and refuse to change the actual facts in order to make literary capital of them.

Though this article will not appear until spring time, it is being written in the midst of the worst winter weather we have had in many years, among the worst spells of my entire life. We have had several below-zero nights, one as low as 11 degrees below. Within eight days we have had seventeen inches of snow, most of which is still here. It has been two whole weeks since we have had the ground clear of snow. And yet, right in the midst of this very snow, people who are not so old as I are talking about the great winters people had in earlier times. One old man actually remembers the big snow that came two years before I was born and can tell about it interestingly, but most of the wild stories about winter have come from younger people who dare not distrust Pop's or Grandpop's word. And yet, with accurate records of snows reaching back to 1905, I have to admit that only the winter of 1917-'18 has exceeded the snowiness of this one, and only two or three within my memory, including the bad 1899 winter, have brought lower temperatures. When I say these things to my younger students, I am sure that they mentally take exception and go on just knowing that our weather is heading down hill toward ever warmer winters.

Just recently a well-advertised book has prophesied that we will be a hairless and toothless race within a few generations, judging by our present tendencies. Many of my friends, young and old, have swallowed this book, hook, line and sinker. Few have investigated to see how little mankind has changed anatomically and physiologically within the reaches of history and archaeology. It looks as if the acquired-characteristics school is rising up again, unconvinced by all the millions of proofs that have been brought forth to condemn it. Again I have difficulty in getting a hearing for plain common sense and limited observation; people seem determined to swallow whatever nonsensical pseudo-science seems that most attractive. If I were a betting man, I would be willing to wager a month's salary that we are likely to have a full quota of teeth for many generations yet, in spite of tooth-paste advertisements. And while some men are losing their hair, I find that mine seems driven in the clenched like nails on a roof. And I do not use anybody's hair tonic, either.

And there is that myth about the advanced age attained by our ancestors. I suppose that all the very long-lived ones must have died too poor for tombstones, for only a very rare tombstone reveals an unusual age. Hardly a day goes by that a state paper or our local ones does not carry an account of a golden-wedding celebration; positively I never heard of any such except once in my own youth, and I certainly would have heard through our elaborate grapevine news machine. I scan the "Deaths and Funerals" notices often and am surprised to see how many of the people who have died have lived past eighty, frequently past ninety. In my childhood I knew only one person who lived to be ninety and very few who became as old as eighty. Again I can prove my point by taking you to Fidelity Graveyard or to any number of public and private cemeteries in my area or yours.

Marshall Frosh Down PCC Spartans, 125-77

Prestonsburg Community College took the long step into "big-time" basketball last Saturday in Huntington, W. Va., but the Marshall University freshmen handled the invading Spartans with ease. Led by former Kentucky All-Staters Blaine Henry and Bernard Bradshaw, the Marshall Thundering Herd trampled the Spartans, 125-77.

Marshall never trailed and often held as much as a 30-point advantage in the first half. Henry scored 29 points in the game, but individual scoring honors went to Prestonsburg's Beecher Hale. The 6-4 sophomore tossed in 34 points. Ernie Collins added 24 for the Spartans, now 6-1. The Little Green is now 11-2.

Marshall held a commanding 83-26 edge in rebounds, an advantage that tells the story of the game. Prestonsburg was repeatedly forced to take bad shots. Marshall grabbed the rebound, and scored easily on the ensuing fast break.

The activities of the Society will be open to any student interested in the study of law. Students will be admitted to membership in the Society, however, only after they have demonstrated a continuing interest in the profession of law, as well as a high academic standing.

Prestonsburg begins a three-day, two-game road trip this Thursday as they travel to Elizabethtown to take on Elizabethtown Community College Thursday night, then go to Henderson on a Saturday night encounter with Henderson Community College.

David Store Disqualified From Food Stamp Program

Atlanta, Ga. — A David, Ky., food store has been disqualified from taking part in the food stamp program by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service.

The store, Shepherd's Grocery, and its owner, Mrs. Rebecca Shepherd, have been disqualified from the program for a six-month period, effective February 10.

The disqualification was the result of a complaint by the Consumer and Marketing Service that charged Shepherd's Grocery with selling ineligible items, giving cash as change in coupon transactions and exchanging cash for food coupons at a discount.

Mrs. Shepherd may apply for reinstatement of her store in the food stamp program after the six-month disqualification period is over. If approved, she will be issued a new authorization card and number.

Food stamp officials point out that disqualification does not preclude further action to collect claims under food stamp program regulations or possible prosecution under any criminal or other applicable statute.

The Consumer and Marketing Service continually reviews program activities in all food stamp program areas. Investigations are made periodically to insure compliance with program regulations.

Telephone Talk

By BILL GIBSON

Your Telephone Manager

DIAL "DUCK, DUCK" . . . After much deliberation, Alaska's Sitka Telephone Company finally solved the problem of building a telephone dial for people who can't read.

For their Kaguyak Indian customers, the company dropped the traditional numbers from the dial . . . and replaced them with animal pictures.

To reach a friend in the next igloo? Dial three ducks, two polar bears, a seal, and a mackerel.

LET'S SEE, THAT WAS 3 DUCKS, 2 POLAR BEARS, A SEAL AND A MACKEREL . . .

CHILDREN THROUGHOUT THE SOUTHEAST are learning about the telephone in their classrooms. In addition to regular Bell System teaching aids, Southern Bell school representatives in some locations arrange for classroom visits by telephone installers.

The installer brings his truck and equipment to the school for appropriate indoor or outdoor talks and demonstrations. He discusses the importance of communications and courtesy; displays his truck, tools and supplies; and shows how he climbs poles, installs telephones, and performs many other daily operations vital to the community. Safety gets special emphasis.

Telephone installers are expected to make more than a thousand visits to Southeastern classrooms this year.

SPEAKING OF INSTALLERS, we heard about one who had just finished putting an extension phone in the basement of a business establishment. As he climbed the stairs to the street floor, he met the owner of the business being marched downstairs by two men with guns. The installer was invited to march back down, too.

Leaving the owner and installer handcuffed, the thieves started back upstairs with the stolen cash. But they didn't get far. The installer calmly pointed to where he had put the phone, and the owner lost no time in calling the police.

Season for Jig Fishing Just 'Round the Corner

Frankfort, Ky. (Sp.)—The jig fishing season is now at hand, with muddy to murky water conditions in many major and state-owned lakes, according to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Reports show that big bass, limit strings of them, may be harvested from the impounded waters of the Commonwealth.

Fishing authorities of the Department point out that this technique of taking bass was perfected on Kentucky's first major impoundment, Lake Herrington, about the mid-20's.

Over the last 40 years the art of jig fishing has been refined. As an example, in the beginning, it was the cane pole, heavy line, big hook, large cork and a gob of nightcrawler fished from the bank as anglers silently walked from spot to spot and fished likely-fishing spots.

Today's fishermen do their jiggling by sculling a boat close to the bank and fishing over stumps, fallen treetops, submerged logs, weed beds and similar places of hiding for black bass.

Even though the cane pole is still widely used, many fishermen choose the fiberglass variety. Instead of a regular line, monofilament is widely used. The hook, cork and sinker combination has changed very little over the years with the exception that possibly stronger steel hooks are now available and a variety of cork shapes and sizes are now available.

Another big change in jig fishing techniques is the range of bait. Even though the nightcrawler is still the most widely used, large minnows, eels, crayfish, salamanders, plastic nightcrawlers and even pork rind eels now garnish the hooks of some jig fishermen.

Jig fishing opportunities are afforded as soon as the waters begin to muddy up from the late winter and early spring rains. This season will continue until the waters are again clear. At times jiggling may continue well into May.

Some tips for the novice jig fisherman: Be exceptionally quiet as the boat is being sculled along the bank; keep the hook needle sharp; use line or monofilament at least 40-pound test. If this is a first attempt, go with a skilled jig fisherman for the final brush-ups. Be sure to have a 1968 fishing license. Daily limits on black bass are 10 with a possession limit of 20 after two or more days of fishing. Check local lake fishing regulations for size limits.

Fishing Timetable

Fish may bite every day in Kentucky, but if you are looking for a particular species, then there's a "best time" for that fish. Hence, this calendar:

Jiggling (black bass), January through April in all lakes.

Walleye, closed season in February and March; best months, April and November.

Sucker and buffalo, February and March in most small streams.

White bass, April, especially in Dale Hollow, Cumberland, Herrington, Dewey.

Crappie, April and May, everywhere.

Jump fishing, May, July, October, everywhere.

Best for casting, April, May and October, everywhere.

Tops for bluegill, May and June, especially in farm ponds.

Musky, March, April, October, November in Green, Barren, Kinniconick and Tygart.

Sauger run, October and November below Kentucky Lake dam.

Rainbow trout, year 'round.

Hoover Is Named Dr. Johns' Assistant

Pikeville, Ky.—Dr. Thomas H. Johns, president of Pikeville College, has announced the appointment of Howard Hoover, present dean of students, to the newly created position of assistant to the president.
Dr. Johns indicated that in this position Mr. Hoover would be able to ease some of the burden of administrative details carried by the president. Mr. Hoover will continue his work with admissions and recruitment, vocational guidance and placement, but will also assume duties for alumni and church relations.

Hoover, a native of Illinois, received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Illinois State University.

Coming to Pikeville College in 1956, Hoover served as a member of the faculty until his appointment as Dean of Students in 1957.

Always an active churchman, Hoover was ordained an elder in 1949 and is now an active elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Pikeville. He has served as a member of several committees of Ebenezer Presbyterian and is currently serving as Moderator of the Upper Big Sandy Larger Parish and Vice-Moderator of the Synod of Kentucky. As a commissioned lay minister he has frequently filled pulpits of churches in the area.

Visiting Scientists Are Available, Free To Ky. High Schools

Kentucky high school students have the opportunity to meet professional scientists, mathematicians and engineers through the Visiting Scientists Program, a free service to all high schools in Kentucky.

Sponsored by the Kentucky Academy of Science and directed by Dr. Roger W. Barbour, associate professor of zoology at the University of Kentucky, the program is designed to provide professionals in the fields of biology, chemistry, engineering, experimental psychology, geology, mathematics, and physics to high schools.

The scientists lecture and discuss career opportunities with students as well as enlighten teachers and school administrators on the newest developments in curricula and the use of laboratory instruments.

"A visiting scientist is a specialist in a natural or physical science, a mathematician or an engineer," Dr. Barbour said. "Most scientists will be members of faculties of universities and the senior colleges in Kentucky, staffs of governmental agencies, or staffs of industrial organizations."

A school may request more than one visiting scientist — for different days or the same day. Dr. Barbour explained that such requests should be mailed to his office at least three weeks in advance of the expected visit.

I Say What I Think

By S. C. VAN CURON

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Louie B. Nunn is likely to surprise some legislators by giving them his budget message ahead of his Feb. 15 target date set earlier.

There also may be some surprises to be found in his budget in the health and welfare field, a source close to the governor said, and welfare recipients are likely to be pleased with what they hear.

Newsmen have been speculating for some time about what increase will be needed in the $2 billion plus budget for the next biennium, and they haven't been far wrong since the confidential source indicated the governor will ask from $180 to $200 million boost in funds over the last budget.

When he outlines the budget needs, expected Tuesday night, he will give the legislators two possible programs for obtaining the additional funds. It will be up to them to decide the route they want to go, but getting the most favorable reaction in legislative halls now is a boost in the sales tax, hiking it two cents for a total of five.

Revenue Commissioner James E. Luckett said last week each additional cent boost in the sales tax will produce about $47 million annually. Two cents would produce $94 million a year or $188 million for the two-year budget period. The source indicated this would be sufficient if legislators choose to go this route instead of nibbling a bit here and there to gather up the necessary money. Luckett had outlined several sources last week, but the alternate tax package Nunn may offer legislators was not revealed.

Reason legislators and the governor may favor the sales tax route is there will be no additional expense in collecting as there could be on other sources. The machinery is already established.

State agencies, in their budget requests to the governor have asked for about $450 million above the last biennium, but asking and getting are two different things. It is understood that education, the Minimum Foundation Fund, will come closer to being funded than it ever was before, the confidant revealed.

The governor apparently feels the two cent boost in sales tax will hurt the least and be easier to collect. Another advantage is the funds come in monthly and steadily. The tourist also produces a lot of this for the state. Tourist business amounts to about $26 million a year.

There are arguments that the sales tax hurts welfare recipients, but the surprise revealed here is that the governor expects to increase welfare checks to help them meet this cost. In past years when Federal Social Security money was provided the state for its welfare payments, the state has not raised payments to the people, and held back state funds for other uses.

About 85 percent of the state's general fund budget goes to health, education, and welfare, and these are the ones going to benefit as Nunn had promised in his campaign.

There probably will be an emergency clause attached to the revenue measure this year to provide emergency funds to run from April through June. The new fiscal year begins July 1. Unless this is done, old age assistance, aid to dependent children, medicare and other programs would be stopped. Revenue is not coming up to the estimate, Gov. Edward T. Breathitt's $24.1 million cutback would eliminate these checks to the needy, and Nunn's only method is the emergency clause to meet state responsibility to these people.

Nunn Proclaims 'Appreciation Week' Honoring Industry

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Louie B. Nunn today signed a proclamation setting April 22-27 as "Industry Appreciation Week" in Kentucky.

In the proclamation, Nunn noted that "Manufacturing is one of the most important segments of Kentucky's growing economy and last year reached an all-time high of more than 230,000 jobs and a total payroll well over $1 billion."

The proclamation adds that "It is fitting and proper for the people of Kentucky to set aside a period in which to express gratitude to members of our industrial family and to call attention to the many benefits which have accrued from industrial expansion in every area of the state."

Nunn asked "all citizens, civic groups, and public officials, state and local, to participate in the recognition of the vital role industry is playing in building a better Kentucky."

DOLLARS AND SENSE TALK ABOUT ELECTRIC HEATING FROM FOLKS WHO NOW HAVE IT.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Newsome of Grethel, Kentucky, installed electric baseboard heat in their new 8-room home. Their average monthly electric bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $26.55. Recently, Mr. and Mrs. Newsome were asked the following questions about their heat:

- Q: Does total electric living with flameless heating cost any more than you were paying in your previous home for both fuel and electricity?
- A: You really can't compare the two houses. But if electricity costs more, it certainly isn't much more.
- Q: Do you think the difference in cost is worth it?
- A: Yes, because of the cleanliness and comfort of electric heat. The house is never too hot or too cold. We can't tell what the outside temperature is. We wash or dry-clean drapes very seldom, where with gas heat we did so frequently. The time saved from constant cleaning is worth a great deal to my wife.
- Q: Why did you choose baseboard units over other types of electric heat?
- A: Thermostats in each room are a great convenience.

Like the Newsomes, you can modernize your home with flameless heat. A Reddy Kilowatt Recommended Dealer or Kentucky Power Company will help you select the type heating that best suits your home and your preference.

No Guesswork on costs

Your dealer or Kentucky Power will accurately figure your monthly electric cost in advance. Then, compare for yourself the cost of safe, cleaner, more comfortable electric heating with what you are presently paying for fuel and electricity.

Letters to the Editor

HELICOPTER MIGHT HAVE HELPED

EDITOR, The Times:

I experienced a most unusual event one afternoon last week. While shopping on Court Street, I had left my car in a street-side parking area. Upon returning to the car from one of the stores, I noticed that traffic had backed up from the Francis store to Lake Drive as well as a couple of blocks on either side of the intervening intersection. People were out of their cars and milling in the street.

Upon inquiring into the nature of the situation, I learned that a lady had opened her door into the path of a passing car, stripping a piece of chrome from the door of the latter. In an attempt to solve the situation, which by this time had caused a traffic jam through the entire town (the public school had just dismissed students), I asked the lady in the middle of the street to please pull into an adjacent parking place and let the traffic pass. The response I received was that I could get a helicopter if I wanted to leave; she was staying right there until the police arrived. (The police could not drive to the location and were sometime later in appearing). By this time people were blowing their horns, cursing, talking about appointments they were late for, etc. I was personally in no hurry, but rather interested in simply observing the situation.

During this time I wondered how an individual becomes so self-interested that the needs of his fellow-citizens are completely unnoticed. Fortunately there was no real emergency, to my knowledge. Had an ambulance attempted to reach the hospital, it would have been completely impossible (without that helicopter); and, in such a hypothetical situation, a person could die waiting to go two blocks to an emergency room.

Ironically, in my studying, I found an article originally published in the Journal of Abnormal and Social Psychology. It is commonly acknowledged that cooperation is necessary for the common good of the group. However, sometimes a conflict arises between the needs of the group and the needs of the individual, such as when people crowd the exits of a theater when fire breaks out. At this moment, cooperation ceases. Individuals recognize a threat to themselves or a loss of reward if they abandon their self-interests. (In this case, one lady was afraid she would lose insurance benefits if she moved her car). If the situation continues, non-adaptive behavior results. (People began trying to manipulate their way out of the situation. This would have occurred increasingly, with a probability of more accidents, had the police not arrived when they did.)

Communication breaks down, causing whatever cooperation had existed to die as well. Action becomes continually self-oriented until the situation is completely out of hand. (As I mentioned earlier, people were already blowing horns, cursing, complaining, etc.)

In conclusion, I am not necessarily criticizing either of the ladies at fault. I'm sure others might have reacted in that manner. If the law states cars can't be moved, the law should be changed. Had this been a 70 m.p.h. thruway, many accidents would have occurred because people could not stop for the cars that were backing up from the accident; and, as we know, this occasionally happens. If the law permits the moving of cars to allow the passage of others not involved, the people should be informed. Situations such as the one I have described should never occur. Hopefully, many people who were present will not follow the example if they themselves are ever in such a predicament. Let's think about the other person just a little, even if our society doesn't reward us for it.

OUT-OF-STATE TOURISTS SPENT $316 MILLION IN '67

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Louie B. Nunn says vacationers and other travelers from out-of-state spent $316 million more in 1967—$21 million more than in 1966.

Nunn emphasized the economic importance of the tourist and travel industry to the Bluegrass State in a speech before the recent Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism at Louisville.

He quoted figures from the 1967 Copeland Report, a survey of Kentucky's travel industry made each year by Tennessee economist Dr. Lewis C. Copeland, a specialist in travel statistics.

According to the report, Nunn said, $26 million of the revenue from vacationers went directly into the State treasury in taxes. An additional $54 million in taxes was collected by Kentucky counties and municipalities.

Nunn said the travel industry provided jobs for 24,000 Kentuckians. "Every state effort will be made to encourage and increase this flow of money," he added.

Nunn was the luncheon speaker at the conference, which was a work session for members of Kentucky's travel and vacation industry. Public Information Commissioner W. James Host, chairman of the conference, opened the all-day program which focused on "the New Look in Kentucky." Also on the program were Paul W. Grubbs, commissioner of Commerce; Robert E. Gable, commissioner of Parks, and William B. Hazelrigg, commissioner of Highways.

MISS COLLINS, MR. GRISSOM ARE WED AT WHEELWRIGHT

Miss Elizabeth Sharon Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Herold Collins, Sr., of Wheelwright, and Robert Hamilton Grissom II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry H. Grissom, Lexington, were married at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Jan. 27, at the Wheelwright Methodist Church.

The Rev. Richard Sweet officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A program of music was presented by Mrs. Richard Sweet, Prestonsburg, organist, Miss Judy Cable, Richmond, and Mr. David Stivers, Dayton, Ohio, soloists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight delustered satin designed with an oval neckline and tiered lace sleeves encrusted with loop pearls and crystals. Appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace accented the empire bodice and A-line skirt. The detachable fan-shaped train was chapel-length. Her bouffant tiered illusion veil was held by an open crown lace toque embroidered with pearls and crystals.

Mrs. Ellsworth Collins, Jr., Louisville, sister-in-law of the bride, was the matron of honor. She wore an empire gown of lime silk tulle with scoop neckline and brief sleeves. The A-line floor length skirt featured a full inset back panel. Her head-dress was a matching circular veil caught to a satin bow.

The other attendants wore identical gowns. The bridesmaids were Miss Charlotte Smith, Kingsport, Tenn., Miss Caroline Thomas, Wheelwright, and Miss Becky Weichand, Covington.

Terry H. Grissom, father of the groom, served as best man. The guests were seated by William Jones, Richmond, Richard Judson, Bardonia, and Ellsworth Collins, Jr., Louisville, brother of the bride.

The reception was held in Wheelwright Community Hall. After a short wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Richmond.

The bride is a graduate of Wheelwright high school and presently is a senior at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond. The groom is a graduate of Lafayette high school, Lexington, and is also a senior at Eastern Kentucky University.

McDOWELL WINS ITS 25th VICTORY OF THE SEASON

(Delayed from last week)

McDowell, Ky.—Friday night, the Wheelwright Trojans visited McDowell to play the Daredevils, whose 23-4 record made them the winningest team around. The Trojans led the Daredevils, 12-9, at the first quarter and 31-29 at the half. The second half saw the Daredevils come out with a pressing style of defense and a fast-breaking offense. The Daredevils took the lead early in the third quarter and steadily pulled away to their 24th win of the season by a score of 91-65.

The Daredevils were led in scoring by seniors Tom Martin and Stan Ward. Martin pumped in 33 points and Ward added 20 more to the Daredevils' effort. The Daredevil defense remained tough. This tough defense was led by the Daredevils' ace defensive guard, Barry Hall, who had 10 assists and forced many turnovers by the pressure he brought to bear on the opposing guards. Stan Ward was the leading rebounder of the night with 17.

Saturday night, the Daredevils overwhelmed the Mullins Tigers by a score of 105-66. The Daredevils placed five men in double figures. Senior Tom Martin scorched the nets for 35 points and Stan Ward, the Daredevils' center, added 20 points. Seniors Barry Hall and Jerry Moore added 11 points to the Daredevils' 25th win against only four losses. Both wins came in the absence of the Daredevil's No. 2 scorer, Sam Adams, who was out with flu.

Look Beyond Price Tag In Evaluating Services, Says So. States Speaker

Farmers were urged here last Wednesday by one of the executives of Southern States Cooperative to look beyond the "price tag" in evaluating the services of their cooperative.

John Feland, Richmond, Va., director of petroleum services for the cooperative, was the principal speaker at the regional board meeting here.

Feland pointed out to the session how cooperatives have helped and are helping farmers in the market place whether they are members or not.

Edgar L. Moore, the cooperative's regional manager headquartered at Huntington, W. Va., reported to the session that Southern States Cooperative's dollar volume for the first six months of the current fiscal year was running slightly behind the same period of the previous year. Dollar volume totalled $46.7 million as compared to $47.9 million the previous year. This decrease was attributable to lower price levels of feeds, and of eggs marketed for members. Net savings for the first six months stood at $1,024,000, down about $300,000 from the previous year.

James L. Campbell, of Harrodsburg, a director of the cooperative, presided at the session. Receiving special recognition at the session was Gary L. Frasure, of this county.

Attending the session from this area were Kenneth Meade, manager of Prestonsburg Farm & Home Store, local Southern States retail outlet, and board members, Theodore Warrick, James Shepherd, Less Wallen, John Wallen, and Ezra James.

Greenhouse Complex Could Create 21 Jobs For Wolfe-Co., Report

A greenhouse production and marketing complex at Hazel Green, Ky., could create 21 full-time jobs in the processing of tomatoes and increase the income of cooperating farmers in the area, according to a federally sponsored report released last week.

The report was prepared for the Economic Development Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce, by Agri Research, Inc., a consulting firm with offices in Manhattan, Kansas. The study was requested by the Wolfe County Improvement Association, Inc.

An investment of $400,000 would be required to develop a central greenhouse complex with 5½ acres under cover, the report states. In addition to the 21 full-time workers, this facility would require five part-time employees and would have an annual payroll of $100,000, according to the report.

The central complex, which would provide packing as well as marketing services, could be expected to generate the development of 12,000-square-foot family greenhouse units with an estimated investment of $135,000, the report states.

$10,000 Reward Posted In Dr. White Slaying

A $10,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the death of Dr. David Cody White, 42, Frankfort, Ky. dentist, formerly of Pikeville.

The body of Dr. White, with a bullet wound in the back of his head, was found about 10 a.m. on June 2, 1936 at a scenic overlook on Slade Mountain in Powell county.

Dr. White had been missing from Frankfort since about 2 p.m. on the preceding day. A Powell county coroner's jury ruled that he had been killed by "a person or persons unknown."
