Rabid Opossum Found In Floyd Thought First Of Species Affected

The fear that hydrophobia may be so widespread among wild animals in this county that an imminent danger to the public health has developed was expressed this week by Dr. Russell L. Hall, county health doctor.

This fear was intensified when a report was received Monday from the state Department of Health laboratories that an opossum killed in the Maytown vicinity was rabid. Dr. Hall said a search of records failed to disclose that this species had ever before been affected by rabies in Kentucky.

"If rabies has spread to this animal, which has generally been omitted from the list of possible victims, we wonder if all wild animals aren't threatened," Dr. Hall commented.

He said he will seek a meeting with fish and game club officers and members to discuss means of meeting the situation. Humans and domestic animals such as dogs, cats, cows, horses, would be imperiled by rabid wild animals, he pointed out.

The rabid opossum was brought to the home of Kedic Blevins, of Wilson Creek, near Maytown, by the family dog. Children of the family are to take anti-rabies treatment.

Three foxes found to be rabid through laboratory tests have been reported in recent weeks. Four Pyramid youths have taken anti-rabies "shots" after the red fox they had skinned was declared rabid. Two sons of Delbert Ison, of Martin, are receiving treatment after handling a fox later found to be rabid. A fox found dead in the barn of Paul Spencer at Maytown was a victim of hydrophobia.

A quarantine of dogs has been declared in the Maytown and Pyramid areas. The heavy population of stray dogs is causing health officials concern.

Last year, the first evidence of rabies in bats was discovered in this county.

Students At PCC Are Doing Better

Students attending the Prestonsburg Community College rated higher in grade point average for the fall semester than its predecessor class, according to PCC's director, Dr. Henry A. Campbell.

"The number of students placed on academic suspension was considerably lower for the 1967 fall semester than the years since the college first opened," Dr. Campbell said. The percentage of students on academic probation is 28 per cent, he added. Those on academic suspension totaled three per cent.

This Town . . . That World

If the groundhog didn't see his shadow, the other day, maybe it was a ghost. Something's gotta account for this weather.

Only three weeks more and spring will have officially sprung. I'm so tired of winter that I'd go out of my way to catch a real good case of spring fever.

TEN YEARS AGO

Ten years ago yesterday, Floyd county was visited by tragedy such as it has never before or since known. At least two daily newspapers have marked this tenth anniversary of the Floyd county bus tragedy with feature articles. We have not done so, although we have known these other newspapers had the story in the mill. Perhaps we should have, we do not know; but the truth is, the weeks we spent with this chilling event left us unwilling to take it up again.

Has it been only 10 years? More than one person has told us this week that it seems twenty. Perhaps it's because we have unconsciously tried to withdraw from memories that burn.

AUTO CRASH SUITS FILED

Total of $120,500 Damages Are Asked By Four Plaintiffs

Three damage suits, all growing out of auto wrecks, have been filed in circuit court here within the week, with a total of $120,500 in judgments sought.

Heaviest damages, $100,000, were asked in the action filed by Barbara Clifton, a minor, suing in and by the name of her statutory guardian, Hazel Clifton. Defendants named are Larry Millard Hopson, Elmer Spradlin and Solomon Worth McGuire. It is contended that negligent operation of his vehicle by Hopson caused his vehicle to collide with another owned by Spradlin and driven by McGuire. Miss Clifton was a passenger in the Spradlin car at the time of the collision. As an alternative, negligence also was laid to McGuire.

Donna Hall and Denzil Ray Hall, of Grethel, ask $10,000 damages for injuries the girl suffered and $500 for auto damage in a collision at the entrance to the Prestonsburg Community College grounds last Oct. 27. Defendants in the action are Hamlin Beverage Company and Willis H. Hamilton.

In the third suit Mary Hall, of Lancer, asks $10,000 damages of M. O. Alley for injuries suffered when defendant's car allegedly ran into her vehicle, February 22.

Community progress and remaining problems will be discussed at the meeting, and an entertainment program also will be offered. The music program will feature Eileen Bitman and John Mochnick, of the Prestonsburg Community College.

A color television set will also be given away by the Jenny Wiley Drama Association. Mountain Educator Hails Value of College Here

Dr. William Hayes, president of Alice Lloyd College, a school dedicated to the education of mountain youth, spoke here Wednesday of the rewards of such endeavor and pointed to the Prestonsburg Community College as an important factor in bringing education to people.

The occasion was the special Founders Day convocation held at Prestonsburg Community College to commemorate the founding of its parent institution, the University of Kentucky.

"Our young people have a great potential," Dr. Hayes said, pointing out that if there is a college in a given area it is more likely that young people of the area will further their education. "That," he added, "is why community colleges are so important."

Commenting on the rapid development of the college here, Dr. Hayes said, "We are fortunate in having Dr. Campbell with us as its director. The convocation began with the procession of the faculty and advisory board members. Greetings and introduction of the speaker were given by Academic Dean Joseph Jeffries. The Prestonsburg college band, directed by Gus Kalos, rendered the Professional, and the University Choristers, conducted by John Mochnick, sang.

The Founders Day queen will be named from a field of six candidates at the Founders Day ball to be held Friday evening under auspices of the Student Council.

Troubles of Betsy Layne Hi School Aired in Two-Day Hearing This Week

A public hearing conducted by County Judge Henry Stumbo into a reported incident at Betsy Layne high school and conditions in general at the school ended Wednesday afternoon on the second day of the probe.

Judge Stumbo announced he will make a report of his findings at 1 p.m. Friday.

The hearing followed days of community uproar after a 15-year-old sophomore girl had been reported sexually mistreated by other girls on the afternoon of Feb. 14, in a basement girls' restroom of the school. Mass meetings followed. Picketing at the school was watched by state troopers as a precautionary measure.

Between 20 and 30 students, teachers and patrons of the school were questioned here. Earlier, the girl who had reportedly been attacked had signed an affidavit before County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill, saying she had not been harmed.

At the hearing, which began Tuesday afternoon, Judge Stumbo warned news media against taking photos or using names of juveniles. He pointed out to a gathering which filled the circuit courtroom that the hearing was being held "to try to learn the facts about what happened. We want the truth. When I make my report, I will let the chips fall where they may."

He added that the hearing would dig not only into the alleged act against the girl but also into reports of drinking and the use of narcotics at the school.

The girl reported to have been attacked said that she and five other girls were in the restroom, about 2 p.m., and that their conversation turned to sex and boys.

One announced, "We're not going to class—we're going to stay here and rape Maxella," she testified. One of the girls advanced toward her with a commode plunger, then put it down. They started playing again, she said, and the plunger was again produced but was set down when somebody remarked it would hurt her. She was later thrown to the floor and was held. She said nothing was done to her while she was on the floor but that one of the girls attempted to touch her with a pop bottle. She rose, this testimony continued, went to another corner of the room where two held her and another advanced toward her with the bottle. "I kept her knocked off," she added.

She said her clothing was not removed. The incident, she said, was regarded by her at first as play but she said she later learned the girls "meant it" when she was told that they had bragged about it.

She said she had never seen any immoral acts at the school on the part of anybody and that she had no knowledge of a sex club that had been reported. Reminded of rumors of drinking and selling of narcotics, perhaps LSD, she said she had never heard of such matters "till this came up."

Recalled Wednesday, the girl said she was touched on the abdomen by the bottle but was not injured. She said she had lost 8 or 10 pounds since the incident and would not return to school. Her mother testified her daughter had lost perhaps 20 pounds in weight.

The girls directly involved in the incident concurred in saying that the talk ran to boys and sex and that they "began picking at one another." All said the girl was not sexually molested or harmed, that they began wrestling around. Some said nobody was thrown to the floor; one said she fell, another that they tripped and fell together.

One of the girls said that next day she combed the hair of the girl who reportedly had been offended and that the girl at that time wasn't "mad" about the incident.

All contended no harm was intended and that no harm was done.

Among the girls called to testify as participants in the restroom gathering were Linda Carol Blankenship, 18, Teaberry; Judy Gross, 19, Harold; Judy Cline, 18, Stanville, and a 15-year-old girl. The 15-year-old said nobody used, or meant to use, either the plunger or bottle.

Rita Stumbo, 18, a senior who said she has dropped out of school since the incident, said the girl was screaming and that one of the girls had told her the bottle was used. She said she told her mother, who called D. W. Howard, principal. Mrs. Gilda Boyd, who sat during the hearing with Attorney Joe Hobson, representative of some of the parents, testified she was not sexually molested or harmed, that they began wrestling around. Some said nobody

LATTA ASKS TAX VIEWS

Finance Bill Vote Expected Soon; Heads Merit System Probe

State Senator Clifford B. Latta this week joined State Representative W. J. Reynolds in an attempt to sound the sentiment of the people he represents toward the tax increases asked by Governor Nunn to finance his $2.5 million budget.

The budget was approved by the Senate committee Tuesday and could reach a vote next week. The bill to finance the budget asks an increase of the sales tax from three percent to five percent and the auto license fee from $5 to $12.50.

The budget, Latta pointed out, calls for increased appropriations to education, mental health and welfare programs, all of which he described as essential. Earlier, Representative Reynolds asked for comment on the tax increases. He said his mail has been heavy, with most of the comment opposing the sales tax raise. Lieutenant Governor Ford made a similar report.

Senator Latta is chairman of the Senate sub-committee to investigate the Merit System, seeking to determine if the spirit of the law is being observed. "I propose," he wrote constituents, "at the earliest possible date to introduce a bill to authorize the Personnel Board to appoint hearing examiners in order to expedite the appeals of discharged workers."

3 EDUCATORS AT HEARINGS

Perkins Cites Need For Education Aid To East Kentucky

Three Kentucky college and university presidents will testify before a House education subcommittee in Washington this week at the invitation of Representative Carl D. Perkins.

They are Dr. John Oswald, president of the University of Kentucky; Dr. Thomas Johns, president of Pikeville College, and Dr. Robert R. Martin, president of Eastern Kentucky University.

Perkins invited them, along with Dr. Adron Doran, president of Morehead State University, to give their views on the Higher Education Amendments of 1968, one of the major education bills before Congress this year. Dr. Doran was unable to accept because of other commitments.

The Kentucky Congressman said that the higher education measure has special significance to his home state. "The future strength and economic health of this state," he said, "depend on the quality of our education system." (See Story No. 2, Page 5)

PLANT FIRE LOSS LIGHT

Factory Operation In New Structure Reduces Damage

Minor damage resulted from a blaze which broke out Saturday afternoon in the basement of the old building used at Auxier by the Princess Manufacturing Company.

Because transfer of operations to the company's new building there had almost been completed, the fire caused no interruption of work. The Prestonsburg fire department was called, and firemen said the blaze apparently was a result of defective wiring.

W. L. Wells, president of the company, said the damage was restricted to some materials stored in the basement and to some damage to the building itself.

Princess Manufacturing operations are now centered in its recently completed pre-fabricated steel structure which has a working area of (See Story No. 5, Page 3)

Court Voids Judgment After Perjury Admitted

$26,000 damage judgment awarded in the Floyd circuit court was reversed last Friday by the Court of Appeals on the grounds that a witness committed perjury in the lower court trial of the case.

The damages were awarded in the highway accident death of John H. Greene, near Wayland. His widow, Naoma Allen Greene, as administratrix of his estate, sued Ellis Duncil and Larry Bentley.

During the trial here a witness testified that he saw the truck driven by Bentley cross to the wrong side of the road and hit the auto driven by Greene.

Three months later, Duncil and Bentley filed an affidavit signed by the same witness in which he swore he was not present at the time of the collision and had testified falsely.

But the trial judge refused to set aside the judgment, holding that the jury could have arrived at the same verdict on other evidence presented at the trial.

"This," wrote Appellate Commissioner C. J. Waddill, "was an abuse of discretion. The false testimony was such that it might reasonably be expected to influence the jury. The administratrix had personal knowledge as to whether she hired this witness and she did not deny complicity..."

Kenwood Directors Study Proposal by New Group

Directors of Kenwood Products, Inc. are meeting this afternoon to consider the proposal of a South Carolina group to enter upon industrial development of Kenwood's site, in Johnson county.

If the proposal is accepted, as is expected, a new corporation would be formed and Phase I of the development would be installation and operation of a flake wood plant.

Also being considered is the interest of an automotive parts manufacturer in a proposal of the site, it was said by Otis Cooley, of Prestonsburg, a member of Kenwood's board of directors.

The South Carolina group, headed by Roy C. McCall, Jr., Easley, S. C., made its proposal to the Kenwood directors after a four-week study of the situation involving what was originally conceived as a mammoth woodworking enterprise. Kenwood has more than 80 acres of land, the site is prepared and a bridge has been built by the state across the Big Sandy to it. But it was stuck on the hardrock of financing. To get an Economic Development Administration loan of $3½ million needed for further development, Kenwood needed $500,000 in participating funds. Efforts to raise that amount failed.

The South Carolina group proposes to invest up to $500,000 that would provide owner equity, on these conditions:

1. A new corporation to be formed with the prime purpose of ownership, operation and general management of the project and related facilities.
2. The new corporation to buy the site from Kenwood and/or the Big Sandy Industrial Foundation for $420,000.
3. All commitments for the bridge and water line to be consummated.
4. A new and revised application to be submitted to E.D.A., anticipating a multi-

Chamber Will Survey Needs of Ky. Industry

The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce this week sent letters to all members asking their help in a statewide survey of industrial needs in Kentucky. The survey will be made in April.

Chamber president Mark B. Davis, Louisville, said the survey is planned in connection with a request by Commerce Commissioner Paul Grubbs.

It will be under the auspices of the chamber's industrial development committee, headed by William H. Neal, Owensboro.

The plan, developed by the industrial development committee at a recent meeting, will involve industry leaders throughout the state. The leaders are requested to volunteer two days of their time during the week of April 15 to call on at least four Kentucky companies to discuss the needs of industry as viewed by the executives. The surveyors will work in two-man teams.

Davis said more than "80 percent of all new jobs are created by the expansion of our present industries. Therefore, it behooves us to visit with existing industry and attempt in every possible way to help them continue to grow."

After tabulation, a report will be made to Gov. Louie B. Nunn at the annual Industry Appreciation luncheon.

it was not as bad as reported. She accused the principal of drinking and said she had heard of LSD being used but did not know of such use, personally.

Mrs. Janelle Clark said she accompanied Mrs. Boyd to the school, that there had been a lot of gossip and that the incident was blown out of proper proportions.

Mrs. Aretta Brooks, a teacher in the school, described discipline as bad, said that she whipped a boy for drinking on Tuesday of this week, and she gave the names of two other boys who had been drinking. She said she told Mr. Howard what some girls and mothers had told her about what had "gone on" and that Mr. Howard seemed to be amused.

Donna Trimble, another teacher at the school, said Miss Stumbo and her mother told her of the incident and that she reported what she had heard to Mr. Howard. She said Howard told her he appreciated her reporting the matter to him, adding that he would let the older teachers handle it. She quoted the girl who was the central figure in the case as telling her on Thursday, day after the restroom incident, that the girls were just playing. She said she had taught at Betsy Layne three years and had never smelled alcohol on any student or member of the faculty.

Mr. Howard himself said drinks which were presumed to be soft drinks were brought into the school. He added that he did not have time to investigate every such drink. He said eight teachers were absent from school because of illness on the day of the incident and that he was checking absentees, the next day, when he learned about the matter. Howard said he was disturbed because the women had taken the girl out of school without permission and had taken the problem to Superintendent Charles Clark rather than to him.

Howard announced that he is retiring at the end of the current school year.

Apparently, the principal is a target of many in the school area. Wednesday morning, Attorney Hobson asked County Superintendent Clark if a large number of people at Betsy Layne haven't been trying to get Howard out of the school. Clark admitted that they had.

Jack Branham, Betsy Layne and Martin insurance man, was called to testify, Wednesday afternoon. He spoke of his desire to see the "gloom lifted from our community," and expressed the opinion that nobody had been harmed except that the girls had acted unbecomingly. He remarked that discipline at the school is not what it should be.

Said Branham: "I have openly opposed Mr. Howard for 20 years, but in this case I would be one to defend him."

Mrs. Beecher Hardwick, a substitute teacher who was assigned to investigate the case, on the day after the incident reportedly occurred, said the girls involved confessed teasing the other girl and admitted it was wrong. She said the offended girl told her they "had just been playing."

"We were investigating the case, and the public moved in," she said.

Alice Williams, another teacher assisting in the investigation, said the girl told her nothing bad had happened.

Others heard during the investigation included Thaddeus Blackburn, janitor at the school, Mrs. Frankie Clark, Garrel Compton, Buster Epling, Jane Layne, Leonard Conn, a bus driver until last Monday, Ethel Trick.

Commenting on the case, County Supt. Clark said he agreed with one of the girls who testified at the inquiry. Clark said she was asked if she knew of anything wrong with her school or community, and she replied: "Yes. There's too much gossip in it."

Letters

To the Editor

A GIFT A MONTH ASKED
EDITOR, The Times:

I am enclosing a list that I received from the state hospital in Frankfort, to see if any one would like to help them out. I am already doing so, and it's such a wonderful thing to do and costs so little, and means so much to those who cannot help themselves. They cannot make recompense to you, which makes the blessing even greater.

I now have a large box of clothing packed, ready to go to the postoffice, but I have to wait until I have a chance and then call a cab to take it for me, and I take every article of clothing that any one has to give and I pack it and mail it to somebody. The one I now have is going to Frankfort. I would like to appeal to my friends and neighbors and family to join me in a monthly program of one little item a month. I'll even be willing to pack and mail them myself, if some one will help get them.

There's things we can send that wouldn't cost over 30 or 40 cents; and, once a month, any one can do that and never miss it. I'm also asking every one to organize in their neighborhood, or Christian groups. If every one will pitch in for this very worthy cause, that shortage could be met in a short time.

If any one wishes to bring or send items to me, I'll be happy to get them out just as soon as I can.

MRS. LUCILLE MONTGOMERY
22 E. Burchett St.
Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653

E'Town, Henderson Fives Fall to P'burg Spartans

The Spartans of Prestonsburg Community College ran their season record to 8-1 last week with victories over Elizabethtown and Henderson Community Colleges.

Prestonsburg overcame the rigors of a 250-mile trip to pull away from E-town Community College in the second half of the game played Thursday to crush the host team, 87-64. Beecher Hale, the Spartans' leading scorer in both encounters and for the season, poured in 31 points to lead an attack that never really got going. Prestonsburg committed 18 turnovers, missed countless layups, and were sorely troubled by a grabby E-town zone defense.

Elizabethtown jumped out to a quick 8-0 lead before the Spartans found the range and tied the score at 14-14 with 10:59 remaining in the first half. Then, at 15:09 of the second half, E-town managed to pull even, 41-41. But Prestonsburg quickly regained their momentum and ran away with the game in the final seven minutes.

The contest was highlighted by a spectacular 75-foot shot by E-town's Ron Stith that found the mark as the buzzer sounded to end the first half.

Prestonsburg (87)—B. Hale 31, Collins 17, Mayo 14, Conn 10, Kretzer 5, Clark 5, J. Hale 2, Jenkins 2, Billiter 1.

Elizabethtown (64)—Williams 19, Weathers 12, Brown 8, Noble 7, Mulligan 5, Stith 4, Hilton 3, Heaton 3, Spalding 2, Kabalaen 2.

The Spartans got a 39-point performance from Beecher Hale, 24 from Collins, and a steady 26-point and 16-rebound outing from forward Roy Conn, to cap the four-day, two-game trip by bombing Henderson Community College, 99-81. The hard-fought contest, played at Henderson Holy Name high school, was decided in the final minutes when Prestonsburg outran a Henderson pressing defense to hand the host team its third loss against six wins.

ALICE LLOYD GRADUATE EXHIBITS HIS PAINTINGS

Pippa Passes, Ky.—A school boy hobby of drawing cars has evolved into a promising career in art for Knott county resident Golden Glenn Hale, who is having his first public exhibit this week at Alice Lloyd College.

Hale, a graduate of Alice Lloyd and presently a junior at Morehead State University, is featuring 14 oil paintings and charcoal drawings at the exhibit in the college's Barrat Library.

The exhibit includes two portraits, which the young artist says he prefers painting, and four scenes of stripmining, sketched near his home at Pine-top. Hale said the stripmining pictures are examples of the social comment an artist can make on his environment. He said he hopes through art to call attention to other problems of the Appalachian region.

Hale is a graduate of Carr Creek high school and is the son of Mrs. Polly Ann Blair, of Pine-top. His work will be on display until March 8.

conomic prosperity of our Eastern Kentucky area will depend in large part upon how well we provide college and advanced training opportunities for our young people.

"I think it is essential that a source of financing a college or technical education be placed in the reach of every child," he said.

Perkins said the higher education measure will greatly strengthen and improve existing student loan programs. He has had a leading role in writing all existing student aid legislation enacted during recent years.

Congressman Perkins, who is chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, is one of the leading exponents of education legislation in the Congress. Last year he piloted the important elementary and secondary education amendments through the House. He has been a prime contributor to education legislation during his 19 years in the House.

Presidents Oswald, Johns and Martin will appear today (Thursday) before the Special Subcommittee on Education which is holding the first round of hearings on the higher education bill.

The measure also contains extensions and expansions of these programs: Assistance to developing institutions; the college work-study program; college library assistance; education professions development; equipment and materials for higher education; guidance, counseling and testing programs under the National Defense Education Act, and others.

Chairman Perkins said he hopes to have committee work on the bill completed within the next few weeks and that it can be taken to the House floor in the early spring.

whatever to set himself down to write, the matter of antecedents, the plain business of making it clear which he or him was referred to, has plagued writers. Wodehouse writes one priceless paragraph which emphasizes the awkwardness of writers in their attempts to get this matter straight.

It concerns this character Stiffy and his regret of a letter he has in an unguarded moment posted to the Earl of Wivelscombe, (who happened to be none other than the sire of that certain girl Stiffy wanted to marry. Here's Wodehouse on antecedents:

"Yes, that was the position. He, Stiffy, had written him, Wivelscombe, a letter which would make him, Wivelscombe, reject him, Stiffy, as a suitor for his daughter's hand even if he, Stiffy, had all the money in the world and proposed to hand it over to him, Wivelscombe, as a personal present. Pretty rotten for him, Stiffy, you will admit."

CALENDAR QUIRK
Today, Thursday, Feb. 29, the fifth weekly edition of The Floyd County Times (and a lot of other newspapers) is being published in this, the shortest month of the year. The five issues of the paper happened because February came in on Thursday and went out on the same day. This is the first time in more than 40 years this has happened, and we venture the guess it'll be so long before it happens again that most of us will not be concerned about the matter.

SNYDER HAS A GOOD IDEA

Congressman Gene Snyder, of Louisville, has a sound idea for federal legislation which would remove the valid objection that a severance tax on coal and other minerals, or natural resources, would be unfair if it did not apply to all states from which such resources are extracted.

Snyder's proposed bill would set a federal tax on these resources, and that tax could be avoided by any state through tax legislation of its own on the products.

Certainly it would be unfair to Kentucky industry if a severance tax were levied in this state while competing states had none. Snyder's bill apparently is the answer.

But when, and if, a severance tax law is enacted, it should not be designed to enrich the state treasury. Most of the revenues such legislation would yield should go to the counties from which the resources are taken. They do not belong in the state's general fund for expenditure in counties which have lost no such resources.

The Times does not advocate such a tax to burden coal operators and others. But it holds that, if made general to these industries, the tax would not be harmful to industry. And it would take those counties which are rich in natural resources off the so-called pauper list.

'WHATSOEVER THINGS'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

Not long before the turn of the century there was a young science teacher up in Ohio who suggested to a bishop that one day man might be able to fly.

The bishop's reply to the suggestion went something like this: "Rank heresy!"

Well, we all know that man did fly and "rank heresy" became reality.

Then there was the young man who was termed an "addled boy" by his teacher and called a dunce. He attended school for three months in the public school at Port Huron, Michigan. At the age of 12 he became a railroad newsboy and after he was 15 he earned his living as a telegraph operator in various cities. But he did not spend all his time operating the telegraph. No, sir. In his spare time he experimented.

In the year 1868 he took out his first patent, for an electrical vote recorder. This seemed to spur him on even more and he kept working and kept inventing. Finally, he set out to do what countless others before him had failed to do—to invent an incandescent lamp. People laughed at the young man. Called him a fool. Said he was stupid even to try. Said better minds than his had failed. But he tried. He tried hard and long. He failed to achieve his dreams after hundreds of failures. But he kept trying.

On October 21, 1879, after he had spent more than $40,000 in fruitless experiments, he succeeded. He made a lamp in which a loop of carbonized cotton thread glowed in a vacuum for more than 40 hours. The world had its first electric light.

You will find cases like this throughout history. Things coming to pass that couldn't, I mean. A machine that will fly, a light bulb, a radio, even a television were once impossibilities. Shall we apply this to the higher laws of life, also?

Back nearly two thousand years ago now there was a fellow named Peter who sent some advice to some followers of the Galilean Carpenter. People were laughing at these people and making fun of their new way of life. They wanted to know how to put this ridicule and shame down. How to stop it. Peter wrote: "... by your good conduct you should put ignorance and stupidity to silence." What Peter was saying, you see, is that all you have to do is to live it and then there will be no argument.

People today are still saying the way of the Carpenter won't work. And a good thing Bishop Wright's two sons—Wilbur and Orville—didn't hear their father. They were busy in the barn—building a heresy.

Tidbits

Of Kentucky Folklore
By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.
My Own "Deserted Village"

Many times in this column I have spoken of changes that have made former prosperous villages all but disappear. Today I want to pay my respects to an actual village, by name. On February 15, 1955, the postoffice at Moscow, Kentucky, was closed. That marked the end of a whole era in the Jackson Purchase. Stamp enthusiasts all over America kept the postmistress at the small village very busy the last few days of the existence of the postoffice, for they wanted genuine postmarks of a postoffice that was closing. Though there are a few houses left in what used to be a good-sized village, the town itself really died several years ago, after a number of disasters.

When I first knew the village, in 1908, when I became the principal of the two-room school there, it was genuinely prosperous. It had a flour mill that was known all over that end of the state. There were two very large stores—almost department stores—a bank, a Masonic lodge second in importance only to Paducah of the lodges in the Purchase, two churches, a railroad depot, several smaller stores, an undertaking establishment, and just about everything else that a village could need. Around the village lies some of the best farm land in the world; some of the well-to-do farmers had their homes in the village itself, to be near the busy life of the time. In the fall hundreds of dressed turkeys were shipped from the local railroad station; some of the small boys of my school could make more money dressing turkeys than I was making as their teacher.

A number of things happened to cause the death of the village. Some of the area occupied by it was subject to overflow from backwaters from the Mississippi when it got especially high, as in 1913 and 1927. Several disastrous fires almost ruined the central part of the village. The rise of the great manufacturing centers around the Great Lakes drew away many workmen. But the one thing that gave the final stab was the automobile. The old road to Clinton ran through Bayou du Chien bottom and was muddy in winter and dusty in summer. It would have cost a great sum of money to build a fill above high-water levels when the Mississippi really shows its force. Therefore, the state highway department built the road on the other side of the stream, completely missing the village. Only a dead-end road connects with Ky. 127. The last time I drove into the village, I almost mired up in front of my former boarding place, even though it was late August, not mid-winter. The houses that I had known had so disappeared that I could hardly find my way around. Only weeds and bushes and a few burned timbers marked the site of some of the large stores I had known. I came away feeling that I had attended my own funeral.

The passing of Moscow as a thriving village is more than a news item in a Paducah paper. It epitomizes the whole era in which some of us have lived. New lines of travel, newer forms of transportation, new interests, the wiping out of former barriers—how many things we could think of that the passing of the village suggests. There had been a self-sufficiency in the village and many more like it. Just about everything that mankind needed was there: home, school, stores, churches, small factories to supplement what could be made at home. The railroad brought in the few other things that were part of civilization: mail, manufactured articles, building materials, coal; it also took away surplus products: turkeys, corn, flour, wheat. There was a village feeling about the place, too, probably not so unified as a village in New England, but a something that identified every person with his village. It was a small world, of course, but for many a generation it worked, until modern ways wiped out village boundaries and made former bounds seem useless or even silly. In paying my respects to my former place of residence, away back in 1908-1910, I am not merely being personal, I am trying to place the passing of this village in the stern, unfeeling passage of human history.

Legislative Roundup

Gov. Nunn's $2.5 Million Budget Under Study

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Legislature began the last third of its 1968 regular session last week with hearings on Gov. Louie B. Nunn's proposed $2.5 million, two-year state-spending budget, and the methods of financing it.

It also faced a midweek warning from the Federal Highway Safety Bureau that any substitute for the state's 1966 motor vehicle inspection law will have to be as good as the original to forestall a possible $10 million loss in federal highway aid. (The Division of Motor Vehicle Inspection last week reduced the inspection fee from $2.50 to $2 and relaxed some of its standards.)

House Bill 39, which would exempt Kentucky from daylight savings time between the last Sunday in April and the last Sunday in October remained bottled up in the Senate's State Government Committee.

Gov. Nunn's budget and tax bills were introduced in the House as separate packages, February 19.

The Governor's tax program centers upon a proposed sales tax increase from 3 to 5 percent, an increase in auto license fees from $5 to $12.50, and a lid on the amount of federal tax that can be deducted from a state tax return.

The bills were introduced by House party leaders Don Ball (R-Lexington) and Fred Morgan (D-Paducah) but at the same session, Morgan introduced a bill of his own featuring a 1 percent boost in the sales tax accompanied by a boost in taxes in other areas.

Receipt by Gov. Nunn Feb. 21 of a telegram concerning the motor vehicle inspection law and proposals to modify it from Dr. William Haddon, Jr., director of the federal bureau, prompted Sen. William L. Sullivan (D-Henderson) to postpone action on his Senate Bill 252.

Sullivan's bill would replace the existing law requiring compulsory annual motor vehicle inspection with a requirement that vehicles pass inspection only if they are sold, plus authorization for random vehicle inspections by State Police.

Haddon said "any possible alternatives to mandatory annual motor vehicle inspection would have to be approved specifically (by) the Secretary of transportation and there is no assurance whatsoever that any of the alternatives now being suggested would be acceptable to him."

A recommendation against passage by the Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee is believed by some members of that committee to have killed Senate Bill 149 which would have amended Kentucky's tough strip mine law by giving strip-mine operators a larger voice in regulating the industry.

The committee's action means that the bill, co-sponsored by Sen. C. Gibson Downing, (D-Lexington) and Sen. James Brock (R-Farlan), would have to get a Constitutional majority of 20 votes in the Senate to receive the first of the required three readings leading to passage.

Passed by the House and sent to the Senate HB 110 would limit the number of non-Kentucky students attending state-supported universities after 1972 to 15 percent of the student bodies. Tuition for out-of-state students would be at least $600 higher.

The Senate and the House both have now approved a measure permitting the State to give financial support to the University of Louisville for general purposes, instead of only for its dental and medical schools.

With this accomplished, Woodrow M. Stickler, acting president of the U. of L., announced the university will try to get through this session of the Legislature a bill to permit its affiliation with the University of Kentucky.

House Bill 392, introduced Feb. 19, would provide for the payment of raises totalling $416,000 a year to Kentucky's seven Court of Appeals judges, four Court of Appeals Commissioners and 70 Circuit Court judges.

The appellate judges would be raised from $20,000 to $26,000 annually, the commissioners from $17,500 to $22,500, and the circuit judges from $12,500 to $17,500.

Co-sponsored by Reps. Fred Morgan (D-Paducah), majority leader, and Don Ball, (R-Lexington), minority leader, HB 392 would implement judiciary pay increases proposed in the executive budget.

The Senate recalled from the House a bill that it had passed the day before to ban the sale and installation of unvented gas heaters in residences, trailers, warehouses or boats.

Purpose was to amend SB 31 to allow the sale of such heaters for curing tobacco. With this done, the bill was returned to the House.

The House passed and sent to the Senate Feb. 16 HB 160, sponsored by Rep. Marge Cruse (R-Louisville) which would prohibit the distribution of trading stamps by retailers of gasoline.

In an effort to wipe off the statute books some 23 minor criminal laws which are outdated or difficult to enforce House party leaders Ball and Morgan introduced HB 412.

It would provide for elimination of laws such as those which make it an offense to try to poison a honeybee, to slip a streetcar transfer on the sly to someone not entitled to it, or to graze livestock on Capitol grounds.

IN MEMORIAM

In remembrance of our son, James Thomas Ousley, who at the age of 15 years, 2 months, 5 days was drowned Feb. 28, 1958 in the school bus tragedy, near Lancer, Ky. Although it has been 10 years ago, to us it has been only a few days. Never a day goes by that we do not think of him or wonder just what did cause the accident. But we are trusting in the good Lord that we will meet again where there will be no hartaches, no separations.

The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh; Blessed be the name of the Lord.

Department of Interior Secretary Stewart Udall and 300 conservation-minded Kentuckians in Louisville recently that the cause of conservation "will continue to be advanced in the years ahead" as it was under the Breathitt administration. The Conservation Service Award of the Interior Department and an award from Outdoor Life magazine were presented Ex-Governor Breathitt at a rally sponsored by the Jefferson County Sportsmen's Club and the League of Kentucky Sportsmen.

"A great deal has been done—and remains to be done—concerning land conservation in our state. Yet I know that Governor Breathitt and I concur in the bipartisan opinion that we Kentuckians have much to be proud of by way of natural resources and beautiful landscape," Nunn said.

Nunn told Breathitt that "your greatest award is the thanks of the people of the Commonwealth of Kentucky that you served with distinction."

Udall presented former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt the Conservation Service Award.

beauty and enjoyment for native Kentuckians and for many thousands of visitors who vacation here each year," Nunn said.

Nunn assailed a Life magazine article on strip mining in Kentucky as being "one-sided" and "distorted."

It failed, he said, to mention the fact that while state strip miners disturbed 12,000 acres of land, they reclaimed 14,000.

Nunn said Life also failed to adequately report that "in the past 20 years the Kentucky Reclamation Association has planted over 25 million trees and more than 700,000 game food and cover plants, and that during the past decade K. R. A. has released over 6,000 game birds and 340,000 fish on strip mined land, lakes and ponds in the state."

Udall joined Nunn in setting the record straight, calling the state's regulation of strip mining the "greatest highpoint" of Kentucky's distinguished conservation record.

Noting that many of those attending the rally had helped in obtaining conservation legislation, Breathitt urged them to give the same support to Nunn, reminding them that "eternal vigilance is the price of conservation."

Last year, entrance test scores of University of Kentucky freshmen equaled or exceeded those of freshmen at major out-of-state universities and colleges which have attracted a number of Kentucky's better students in the past.

Dean Paul Nagel of the University of Kentucky College of Arts and Sciences recently said: "Any ordinary high school graduate who is serious about getting an education and is willing to study can succeed at the University."

Scout Deskins Finishes Report To The Nation

Eagle Scout Deskins with Governor Nunn as Report to the Governor was made.

Eagle Scout Steven Terry Deskins completed his series of reports during the annual Boy Scouts of America 1968 "Report to the Nation" during Boy Scout Week.

Scout Terry Deskins is the son of Paul E. Deskins and Rita Thornbury Deskins, of Pikeville. His father is president of a car sales firm, and Mrs. Deskins is active in the Cub Scout program. Terry is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Thornbury, of Pikeville. Mr. Thornbury is part-owner of Dean Walters Ford, Inc., of Prestonsburg, and is vice-president and sales manager of the company.

Terry represented Region 4—the states of Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and parts of Virginia and Tennessee.

Scout Deskins and his group arrived in Washington, D. C. on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 6. They began their series of personal written and oral reports on Scouting's 1967 achievements to high government officials, business, religious and industrial leaders.

Wednesday morning, Feb. 7, the annual Congressional Breakfast was held in the banquet room of the Rayburn Building. Vice-President Humphrey, who is an ex-Scoutmaster, accepted a report on the non-Scout camping program.

After the breakfast, Terry visited the office of Congressman Carl D. Perkins, of the Seventh Kentucky district. During their visit they cut a tape which Congressman Perkins sent to Eastern Kentucky radio stations. Terry also visited Senator John Sherman Cooper in his office.

Some of the "highlights" of the Washington Report included the major report given to President Lyndon B. Johnson and the presentation of an honorary Cub Scout membership card for his grandson, Patrick Lyndon Nugent.

President Johnson presented the Scouts to the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Harold Wilson. The Prime Minister is a King Scout, which is the equal of an Eagle Scout in America. He greeted the reporting Scouts with the traditional left-handed Scout handshake.

Young Deskins personally presented the report to the Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, John H. Gardner; to Sargent Shriver, head of the Office of Economic Opportunity; and to Chief Forester J. C. McClellan, of American Forest Products Industries, Inc. Reports were also given to Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the Deputy Director of NASA and numerous other high government officials.

Terry attended the annual report to the Governor of Kentucky on Feb. 13 and gave the "Presentation of the National Report" to Governor Nunn. Before the luncheon report, an informal reception was held by the Governor and Mrs. Nunn.

Eagle Scout Deskins spoke on some of the "highlights" of his recent trip to Washington and presented Governor Nunn with a leather bound copy of the report which he presented to President Johnson. On behalf of Region 4, he presented Governor Nunn a series of Scout books covering all phases of Scouting from the Cub Program through the Explorer Program.

Though his day was heavily scheduled, Governor Nunn took time to speak to the nine participating Scouts and guests. He praised Scouting in Kentucky and emphasized the importance of boys being taught respect and good citizenship.

JENNY WILEY TOTALS TOLD
Gable Report Places A Total Attendance Of 861,575 in 1967

Attendance at Jenny Wiley State Park totaled 861,575 during 1967, according to State Parks Commissioner Robert E. Gable.

Gable reported that total attendance for the year at Kentucky's 35 state parks and shrines was 18.7 million—an all-time record high for visitations. And, it reflects a 16 percent increase over 1966 attendance figures, he added.

Total revenues during fiscal 1967 also increased. Gable reported that gross revenues derived by the Parks Department from all sources of income for the 12-month period which ended last June 30 were up 6.9 percent from the previous fiscal year.

The Parks Department, said Gable, is "gearing for another record-setting year as the 1968 vacation season draws near."

Speaking recently at the Governor's Conference on Travel and Tourism (Feb. 6) in Louisville, Gable stated that "our parks are continually expanding." He pointed out, however, that the needs of Kentucky's rapidly growing tourist industry cannot be and should not be met by the parks system alone.

"The Kentucky parks have never intended to take care of the total tourist industry demand—and we are not about to start now."

"Among our primary objectives," said Gable, "are the encouragement and stimulation of the tourist industry in Kentucky and recreational development centered on the natural and historical resources of the Commonwealth. But we also, and I say this emphatically, encourage private investment by leading the way in providing high quality tourist facilities. It is our aim to provide the seed money from which private industry can grow."

Gable urged private enterprise to fill the demand for more and better accommodations for the traveler who is looking to Kentucky as his vacation objective.

Gov. Louie B. Nunn announced at the conference that out-of-state spending by travelers who visited Kentucky in 1967 totaled $316 million—an increase of $21 million from 1966.

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS M. REED

THE FLOWER OF HOPE A little, wild flower found by the Pilgrim fathers early in the spring of 1621 may well have changed the destiny of the New England colonies. The Pilgrims had landed on the bleak, rock-bound coast of Plymouth, on Dec. 21, 1620; they had come to the New World—the wilderness that was destined to become the United States of America—seeking religious freedom. But tragedy stalked them from the time of landing. They built rude cabins along the coast and established their winter colony. But this was a strange and hostile land to them and their colony was beset with disasters of many kinds. It was a winter of severe cold, and there was lack of food.

Whatsoever Things' By DONALD E. WILDMON

Not long before the turn of the century there was a young seaman each year in Ohio who suggested to a bishop that one day man might be able to fly. The bishop's reply to the suggestion went something like this: "Rank heresy!" Well, we all know that man did fly and "rank heresy" became reality. Then there was the young man who was termed an "addled boy" by his teacher and called a dunce. He attended school for three months in the public school at Por Huron, Michigan. A age of 12 he became a railroad newsboy and after he was 15 he earned his living as a telegraph operator in various cities. But he did not spend all his time operating the telegraph. No, sir. In his spare time he experimented.

In the year 1868 he took out his first patent, for an electrical vote recorder. This seemed to spur him on even more and he kept working and kept inventing. Finally, he set out to do what countless others before him had failed to do—to invent an incandescent lamp. People laughed at the young man. Called him a fool. Said he was stupid even a try. Said biter minds than his had failed. But he tried. He tried hard and long. He failed to achieve his dreams after hundreds of failures. But he kept trying.

On October 21, 1879, after he had spent more than $40,000 in fruitless experiments, he succeeded. He made a lamp in which a loop of carbonized cotton thread glowed in a vacuum for more than 40 hours. The world had its first electric light. Lou will find cases like this throughout history. Things coming to pass that couldn't, I mean. A machine that will fly, a light bulb, radio, even a television were once impossibilities. Shall we apply his o the higher laws of life, also?

KENTUCKY EXEMPTED

Amendments enacted last year to the social security law require that federally financed programs for needy children be organized under one agency in all states except Kentucky and Illinois. The reason they—the only states with separate cabinet departments of child welfare—are exempt is that they "found a better way to get their services to needy children," according to the law.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Not According To Grandpap

On the night of Dec. 31, 1967, the temperature in Bowling Green was only six degrees above zero, the lowest figure for that night since the Weather Bureau was organized. Then came some snow that limited the gadding about of old fellows like me. How I would like to be in the hinterlands today, visiting country stores and calling on older citizens, and talking about the weather. My main purpose would be to ask about memories of much colder weather on New Year's Eve, for I am sure I could turn up enough to make the Weather Bureau get red in the face. "Why, Grandpap said," and then I would be treated to weather from memory rather than from records.

It just happens that I am in the Grandpap age, but I would have to listen and get all the memories I could. I was around in 1900, when the nearest cold New Year's Eve to the one in 1967 arrived. And I would have to agree with the Weather Bureau rather than with Grandpap, much as I revere the old man's usually good memory. To be exact, I was already twelve years old in 1900 and had begun to record all sorts of weather. Unfortunately, I can't lay my hands on some of those early treasures, but, with 1905 I started a diary, which still survives. It is stuffed full of weather, no matter what else seemed important enough for me to set down laboriously with the 90c fountain pen that I had bought by answering an ad in some pulp magazine that came to our house. A little later in January, 1900, we had some really cold weather, and one of the few thermometers in our whole region broke. "busted," according to local stories. Just how cold it had to be to cause this invasion of science and its instruments I cannot guess, since I do not know how pure was the "juice" in the thermometer.

But, in taking issues with the memories of old people, I am slightly sad, for when thermometers and rain gauges and such came along, they undermined Grandpap and his memories. Weather would ultimately become something that could be measured and could be found in a book, printed out in bold figures. For a long time, and that time may not be entirely over, the younger generations were divided between a reverence for Grandpap and a beginning reverence for facts that could be proved and referred to. It was hard on the younger ones when they came up with some factual thing, and I ought to know, for I was one of the young fellows that might be dangerous because they did not accept Grandpap's memories just because Grandpap was a good old man.

Folklore and fact have thus battled since the earliest times. Even though we so-called intellectuals like to think that we are free from superstitious reverence for older times and places, I would hate to face a typical audience of people who, like me, have lived past the Biblical three score and ten and try to dislodge such ideas as the weather and even Grandpap's traditional attitudes toward memories of it. For more than a half century I have casually set down data about our birds and when and how many are to be found here. But I can think of dozens of places where I could not get a hearing right now if I questioned some traditional beliefs about birds. Rarely does a six-months period go by, even now, when I am not questioned about my saying that robins and bluebirds stay here all the time. Most of the people I know are a bit too polite to dispute openly about these birds as a sign of spring, but they can also give some knowing looks, for I am running squarely against what Miss Mary taught in the grades, and Miss Mary, bless her soul, was a great teacher and a good woman. I am afraid that being a great teacher and also being a good citizen will have little to do with the presence of bluebirds and robins in all the months of the year. And, in the same way, it will not be quite fair to the weather and the Weather Bureau to question its accurate records and prefer, instead, the hazy memories of some good old Grandpap.

HISTORICAL SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, steeped in Abraham Lincoln history, is one of the oldest towns in Kentucky. Ten years before Kentucky was admitted to the Union, the first Lincoln settled about five miles from the site of the town. Lincoln Homestead State Park is on the original Lincoln land where Thomas Lincoln, father of the President, was reared and lived until he was 25. The homestead cabin in the park stands on the spot where the original cabin stood. The Berry House at the park is the actual building in which Nancy Hanks lived during her courtship with Thomas Lincoln.

Browne-Tackett Vows Exchanged on Nov. 22

The marriage of Miss Benay Elizabeth Browne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gottehrer, of New York City, and Mr. Jack Allen Tackett, was solemnized Thanksgiving eve, Nov. 22, 1967, at 7 o'clock in St. Mary's Church, Woodside, Long Island.

The Rev. Kenneth E. Kiernan officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar arranged with greenery and chrysanthemums. Traditional wedding music and the bride's favorite selection were played and sung.

The bride, escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of nylon organza, fashioned with a scalloped lace neckline and long sleeves. The bodice, front hemline, and chapel train were enriched with seed beading applique. From her single, full-bloomed mesh rose headpiece, a single-tier veil extended. Her only jewelry was a single strand of heirloom pearls belonging to her grandmother. She carried a bouquet of cascading white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Lois Finkel served her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Cathy Wallace and Miss Mary Poffat, all of New York.

The honor attendants wore identical floor-length gowns of avocado green crepe and matching headpieces of bouffant type veils of nylon illusion held by bows. Their bouquets were a fall arrangement of yellow and brown chrysanthemums, oak leaves and yellow ribbon in wicker baskets.

Martin Flanagan served as best man, and ushers were Frank and Jimmy Gunley, all of New York City.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a soft gray "cage" cocktail-length nylon dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was pink cymbidiums.

The reception was held in the Emerald Room of the Queen's Terrace, Queens, Long Island. Mrs. Tackett is employed as secretary for Chemical Bank New York Trust Company on Wall Street. Mr. Tackett is employed with IBM Eastern regional headquarters as a computer operator. They are making their home in Flushing, Long Island.

Mr. Tackett is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bull Allen, of Allen, Ky., and is the great-grandson of the late Mrs. Lode Sublett, of Paintsville.

View from the Classroom... State Teachers List Helps and Hindrances

Louisville, Ky.—What things help Kentucky's classroom teachers do the best work of which they are capable? And what things in their teaching situation discourage or hinder them most?

For the answers to these two questions the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) research division surveyed one out of every 12 classroom teachers in the state.

Their surprisingly frank replies appear in a new KEA research report entitled, "The View from the Classroom... What Kentucky Teachers Think of Their Schools, Communities, and Profession."

What spurs Kentucky teachers to do their best work? Men teachers most frequently say, "Seeing students learn and succeed; student desire to acquire knowledge; needs of children." In second place the men list "cooperation of principal and fellow teachers; helpful co-workers."

Women teachers cite the same factors but they reverse the order of rank, giving much greater weight to cooperation of their principals and fellow-teachers.

On the discouraging side, the men teachers say their biggest complaint is "inadequate salaries; lack of summer employment."

"I am discouraged because I cannot provide adequately for my family at my present salary," one man wrote. Another asked, "What kind of job can I do in supporting my wife and child on the earnings I am receiving? I have to coach and moonlight on the side in order to have a few extra cloths and automobile for my family... I have never had a vacation with my family because I must work the entire summer vacation to keep the necessary bills paid. I tried going to summer school to work on my master's degree but found that I could not afford to give up my summer employment and take on the extra expense."

Women teachers say "lack of equipment and supplies" keeps them from doing their best teaching. The same item gets the second highest listing by men teachers.

Women teachers cite as their second greatest hindrance "lack of support on the part of parents and community; interference by parents," which men teachers put in third place.

Third on the women's list of discouragements is "poor facilities (school plant)" but running a close fourth is "poor working conditions; low morale; school atmosphere; no planning period; supervision of pupils at lunch period; not free to teach as I wish."

Many teachers set down a number of responses to each question, such as the woman who said she was discouraged because of "money, supplies, equipment in classroom, and low salary—high cost of education."

"I am considered no different from common labor," she continued, "and yet I spend my money for an education and get paid less and the cost of living going up and my paycheck going down. The classroom teacher has very little voice in important decisions or plans for her job. She is told what to do, how to do, and told the public is looking at her—be leaders and kind, etc. Given too many jobs to do other than teach."

In the introduction to the report KEA research-and-information director Charles Whaley notes that the job of today's classroom teacher has been characterized as "unmanageable."

"So many things—many of them unrelated to the actual teaching function—are demanded of the teacher that frustration frequently outweighs the sense of professional accomplishment," Whaley writes.

"Too often an additional toll is taken by other crippling conditions—overcrowded classrooms, inadequate equipment and instructional materials, rigorous schedules that allow no time for planning lessons or for rest breaks, parents and communities that attach little or no value to education or the heavy responsibility placed on teachers.

"Yet despite the almost overpowering handicaps and frustrations, including low pay for work that demands high-quality performance and preparation, teachers persevere and frequently triumph.

"The thing that bolsters them even in the most trying circumstances is their sense of fulfillment in helping children learn and lead useful, successful lives. They are dedicated to the children. And this very dedication is at the root of today's teacher demands for improved salaries, better working conditions, and a voice in what happens in education." "The View from the Classroom" is available for $1 from the KEA research division, 101 West Walnut Street, Louisville, Kentucky 40202. It is the second KEA research report to be drawn from a cooperative project of the National Education Association (NEA), the KEA, and five other state education associations. The first report, entitled "The Kentucky Public-School Teacher, 1966" and published in July, 1967, provided a personal, professional, social, and economic profile of Kentucky's classroom teachers.

'Show-Me' Family Gets Bid to Free Vacation

Frankfort—A family from the show-me state of Missouri will be shown, if they accept Governor Louie B. Nunn's invitation to a free vacation in Kentucky this summer.

And the J. M. Kemp family, of Republic, Mo., can thank a national magazine for the invitation. Nunn told a group of conservationists gathered in Louisville to honor former Kentucky Governor Edward T. Breathitt for his achievements in controlling strip mining that Kemp had written him:

"My family and I had intended to vacation in the Cumberland Mountains region of Kentucky this summer. However, after reading the Jan. 13 issue of Life magazine, I seriously doubt if we will be there."

Life carried an article on what it described as "the ravages of strip mining on the Kentucky countryside." Kemp said in his letter, "I have no intention of driving 700 miles to see a landscape destroyed forever by a few fast-buck operators. I fail to see how you and your legislature can tolerate it."

Disturbed by the letter, Nunn said he invited the Kemps to visit Kentucky this summer "to see for yourself" that the state is carrying out extensive reclamation of stripped land.

Nunn said he wrote Kemp that "Kentucky is not as Life would have you believe. Although the Life article does present certain facts on Kentucky strip mine reclamation, the total picture it presented was that of the destructive exception rather than the constructive rule of the case."

Nunn wrote that he is extending his "personal invitation to visit our state this summer as our guest, all expenses paid." He urged Kemp to "take advantage of this opportunity to see the other side of our scenic Kentucky story..."

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Micah B. Spradlin, who would have been seven years old, March 1:

At the foot of a beautiful Kentucky mountain, Beneath the tall, lonesome pines, In a grave so small and tiny Lies that little man of mine. The flowers bloom all around him,

Birds sing their sweetest song; I can hardly wait to join him, I hope it won't be long. Millions of tears have fallen Since the Lord took him away. Oh, how I remember That sad September day, I have asked that God through prayer

Would let my little son know That he was so precious to us. It broke our hearts when he had to go. The heaven seems so far away, The golden stairs so hard to climb. But, one thing we know: When we reach the top, There, waiting, with a perfect body and a beautiful smile— That little man of mine.

Sadly missed by your family, MR. and MRS. WILLIAM SPRADLIN and CHILDREN South Bend, Indiana.

I Say What I Think

By S. C. VAN CURON

Frankfort, Ky. — You can bet that 138 members of the General Assembly were busy last weekend taking political soundings on taxpayer reaction to Governor Nunn's proposal to raise the sales tax to five cents and up the price of auto license tags to $12.50.

And you can bet, too, that they are finding little reluctance on the part of the public to make its views known to its men in Frankfort.

For to say that Nunn's recommendations have stirred the Bluegrass is to say the least. His is the largest tax package ever proposed in Kentucky, coming to almost $250 million over the two years of the budget, plus the last three months of this fiscal year for which the governor has requested money to keep welfare and health programs going until July 1.

If he can get the sales tax hike—and a similar hike of two cents in the present three percent auto use tax—through the General Assembly as an emergency measure, the state can start to collect the increased revenue in April. The administration has estimated it can collect an additional $12 million for the General Fund this fiscal year in this way, along with $2 million more for the Road Fund.

But the governor's $2.47 billion budget is in for some rough sledding during the coming weeks.

Nunn hardly had gotten out of the door of the House chamber after presenting his revenue proposals before the two parties opened fire on each other.

First, a Nunn stalwart in the House, Minority Leader Don Ball, of Lexington, tried to introduce the governor's budget package as a single bill involving both money-raising and spending provisions.

When House Speaker Julian Carroll ruled the bill was not admissible because it involved two subjects—revenue and appropriations—the House upheld Carroll's ruling on strictly a party-line vote of 53-38. The governor thus was put in the position of bowing to the Democrats on a technicality or not submitting a revenue measure at all.

And the Democrats poured on even more coal when Rep. Terry McBrayer, speaker pro tem, was allowed to introduce a bill that would require a gubernatorial candidate in a primary election to swear that if nominated he will make no promises not to raise taxes. When you consider that a like bill already had been killed in the Senate three weeks earlier, it becomes even more apparent how much trouble the Democrats were going to in order to bring attention to Nunn's campaign pledges of no additional taxation.

But, all this was politics. "If you can't stand the heat get out of the kitchen," Harry Truman once said.

And Nunn has placed himself squarely in front of the hot oven of asking for more money to help the state meet the increased demands being placed on its services.

Where he likely will encounter the most heat is on his decision to raise this money in just two ways—an increase of 67 percent in the state sales tax and a raise of 150 percent in auto registration fees.

He took this course for several reasons. There will be no increased costs of collection, because the machinery already is there. This would not be so had he chosen to institute new forms of taxation.

And as he said in his budget message: "The gasoline tax, the corporate tax, the individual income tax in Kentucky are comparable with other states."

Get the true facts on Electric heating from people who have it in their homes

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sheets of West Liberty, Kentucky, say, "Our home is big . . . 3,328 sq. ft. But our electric bill isn't. For heating and all other uses of electricity we pay just $36.57 a month. We don't believe that's any more than we used to pay for natural gas and electricity. We had expected to pay more for the cleanliness and safety of electric heat. Instead, the cost is just about the same."

Mr. and Mrs. Beecher Arnett of Dixie Addition, Salyersville, Kentucky, say, "Our house is large — 7-rooms, 3-baths. But our average monthly electric bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $29.72. As far as we're concerned, electric heat can't be beat. Even in the coldest weather, the floors are always warm. And clean, it's so clean!"

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Hinkle of Walnut St., Pauley Addition, Pikeville, Kentucky, say, "With electric heat our average monthly electric bill is less than what we paid in our old home for fuel and electricity combined. Even though we rented our old house, we painted it because the walls got so dirty. Our average monthly electric bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $25.01."

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hankins of Black Gem, Kentucky, say, "Our average monthly electric bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $26.88. That's about 85¢ a month more than our old heat plus our old electric bill. But electric heat is more than worth the slight difference. With our old furnace we washed our drapes and painted almost every year. We figure we will paint once every 5 years now."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Newsome of Grethel, Kentucky, say, "For our 8-room home the average monthly electric bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $26.55. The house is never too hot or too cold. We wash or dry-clean drapes very seldom where with gas heat we did so frequently. The time saved from constant cleaning is worth a great deal to my wife."

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Parks of No. 2 Bottom, Burdine, Kentucky, say, "We converted our 8-room home to electric heat. Now our average monthly electric bill for heating and all other uses of electricity is just $22.32. That's $2.68 a month less than we used to pay for coal heat and electricity. We've never known a heating system as clean as electricity. We wouldn't go back to hauling ashes and constant cleaning for anything."

If you've heard some of the guesses and "hear tells" about electric heat, you'll welcome the straight unvarnished "Dollars and Sense" facts . . . facts from folks with electric heat in their homes. Read what they say. And remember, they are just a few of the thousands of people in Kentucky Power territory who enthusiastically endorse electric heat.
