This Town . . . That World

WEATHER FORECAST

A severe storm, with much wind, rain and perhaps snow, will move in from the Tennessee valley over the week-end. Joe Piffsk will be fishing in that area, unless his plans were born under a dark cloud, too.

ANOTHER KIND OF ACCIDENT

Our little yarn this week about two of our barbers of other years recalls an anecdote which may have appeared in this column, some years back. It's the one told by the late Ham Walden, himself a barber at one time.

Ham often told of the customer who submitted his future to his hands by reclining in his chair for a shave. The man's face was badly scarred, and Ham carefully shaved around each scar. The job finally completed, Ham added the lotion and face powder and, to make conversation, inquired, "My friend, have I ever shaved you before?"

"No," replied the other, "I got those scars in a sawmill accident."

HOUSE SALES UNDER STUDY

But No Buildings Yet Sold at David; Recovery Job Begins

Princess Coals is not selling residences and other buildings owned by its Princess Elkhorn Division at David, as reported here, but is exploring the possibility of taking such action.

Some of the homes here were purchased, a few years ago, by employees of the company, William H. Sutherland, manager of the company's properties there, said.

Mr. Sutherland said that a sizeable number of the workers at David have found mine employment elsewhere. The only activity there at present is the work of recovering equipment from the now-idle mines.

Former Floyd Man's Brother Slain, Killer Sought in Breathitt

State and Breathitt county officers last week continued their investigation of the knife-slaying of a 73-year-old Breathitt cousin who was a brother of Alto Lovely, former resident of Hueysville.

The manhunt began with the April 4 murder-robbery of Ed Lovely in the Keck community.

Lovely was almost decapitated by his unknown assailant, and his body bore numerous knife wounds. Breathitt county officials said Lovely apparently was killed while trying to fight off the attack.

It was said that he had cashed a check on the day previous (See Story No. 5, Page 2)

TWO MURDER TRIALS SET NEXT WEEK

Hearing for Woman In Husband's Slaying Scheduled April 26

The two murder cases docketed for the current term of circuit court will probably be brought to trial next week, court officials said Wednesday.

Trial of Granville Crittendon, Chicagoan who is accused in the death of his wife while they were en route from Chicago to this county, is set for trial next Tuesday. An earlier trial of the case was continued when the defendant pleaded that he was unable to employ an attorney. Marshall Davidson was designated to represent Crittendon, and the case was continued till this month, giving the new counsel time to prepare his case.

The second murder trial is that of Mary Lou Flannery, who is charged with the revolver slaying at Martin of her ex-husband, Merlin Flannery. Mrs. Flannery was indicted at the current court term and an early trial was set because she has been unable to execute $15,000 bond. Her trial is docketed for Friday of next week.

In recent court action these defendants were fined or imprisoned:

Willie Mitchell, drunkenness, $100 fine by jury; Junior Joseph, possessing intoxicants for the purpose of sale, plea of guilty, $100 fine and 30 days in jail; L. P. Montgomery, plea of guilty to a charge of petit larceny, 30 days in jail; Albert Salyers, reckless use of a deadly weapon, $50 fine; Denver Coburn, plea of guilty to a breaking and entering charge, two years in the state reformatory; Berlin Jacobs, petit larceny, plea of guilty, one year in jail.

500 May Participate In Mountain Dew Fest

Prestonsburg Community College will stage its second annual Mountain Dew Festival, beginning next Thursday and continuing through Saturday, and upwards of 500 students from a dozen junior colleges are expected to participate in the event.

Colleges expected to send student-delegations are Alice Lloyd, University of Kentucky Technical Institute at Lexington, U. K. Technical School at Quicksand, the Logan and Williamson (W. Va.) branches of Marshall University, and the UK community colleges at Ashland, Covington, Cumberland, Elizabethtown, Somerset and Henderson.

After registration next Thursday, the "Directors' Trot" for trophies in first, second and third places. This event will feature directors of the various colleges.

Following the "trot," the semi-finals of the festival basketball meet gets under way at the Prestonsburg fieldhouse, with Ashland vs. Henderson and Prestonsburg vs. Southeast.

By helping the 49 counties in the Appalachian region of Kentucky, we will be helping all of Kentucky. We plan to take the jobs to Eastern Kentucky, not to train the people for jobs in Cincinnati, Dayton, Detroit, and other out-of-state areas."

The recent appointment of Clifford A. Gordon as Eastern Kentucky industrial specialist for the Kentucky Department of Commerce was the first step by state government to ease the unemployment problem in the region, Nunn added.

The two-day tour of Eastern Kentucky left Frankfort Wednesday, visiting Jackson, Hazard, Pikeville, Prestonsburg, Paintsville and Owingsville, with some intermediate stops. It will return to Frankfort tonight.

In addition to Commissioner Grubbs and key members of his staff, the entourage included representatives of the Governor's office, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, the Associated Industries of Kentucky, other state government agencies and members of the press.

Death of Animal, Result of Rabies

Although the incidence of rabies has decreased in recent weeks, the health department reported this week that a cow owned by Denver Shepherd, of David, has been declared rabid. The animal, died a week after its purchase in Magoffin county, and the head was sent Tuesday of last week, to a laboratory.

Use of the milk produced by the cow presents no threat of rabies, it was said at the health department, but persons handling the cow may need anti-rabies treatment.

Spring Brings Opening For Park Attractions

A hint of chill may remain in the air but Jenny Wiley State Park is gradually opening to its usual big tourist season.

The park golf course and boat dock already are open, May Lodge has never closed, and two major attractions are soon to be in operation.

The sky lift at the park will begin its second season on May 11, and the Jenny Wiley Riding Stables will open, Saturday of this week.

Ed Music, president of the Mountain Parkway Sky lift at Jenny Wiley State Park, also heads the firm which has completed a sky lift at Natural Bridge State Park, near State. The lift there will begin operation, May 1.

ENGINE COST $1¼ MILLION

Two Giant Engines At Dwale Station To Do Work of 6

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company is installing at its Dwale compressor station two powerful, late-type engines which will take the place of six in use there since the early 1940's.

Total cost of the installation will involve the expenditure of about $1,250,000. W. W. Wallen, vice-president in charge of operations, said. The new machinery is being installed by a West Virginia contractor, and is scheduled to be in operation this summer.

The six engines being replaced have been in operation since the Dwale station was activated, almost 30 years ago, and are so old that parts are no longer manufactured for their repair.

WELLS DIES IN VIETNAM

19-Year-Old Soldier's Second Wound Fatal, Relatives Here Told

The long siege of Khe Sanh has claimed the life of Sp/4 John C. Wells, member of a former Floyd county family.

The 19-year-old soldier, son of Claude Wells, of Wayne, Mich., died March 22, 10 days after suffering shrapnel wounds from enemy mortar fire.

It was the second time he had been wounded while on duty in Vietnam. During the Tek offensive in January he was wounded by grenade fragments but recovered and returned to join the garrison at Khe Sanh. He had been named for the Bronze Star, Silver Star and Distinguished Service Cross. He was scheduled for return to civilian life in July after three overseas tours of duty.

The youthful soldier, a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wells, of Lenoir, was a member of the United Presbyterian Church at Dearborn. He is survived by his parents and one brother, David L. Wells, also of the U. S. Army.

His body was returned to Dearborn, and funeral rites were conducted April 8, with burial in Cadillac Memorial cemetery at Garden City, Michigan.

Four Booked Here On Driving Offenses

Lewis and Deputy Sheriff John Reed; Bob E. Fields, fishing without license, by Conservation Officer Dalton R. Conley; Adron Burchett, drunk driving and driving without license, booked by State Troopers Ray and Phipps.

MARCH ROAD PACTS CITED

US 23 Right-of-Way Being Bought in Pike; New Contracts Let Seventeen million dollars in highway construction contracts were awarded during March, Kentucky Highway Commissioner William B. Hazelrigg announced last week at Frankfort.

This figure compares with $30 million in contracts awarded during the first two months of this year.

Commissioner Hazelrigg said Appalachian road projects led the awarded contracts in March with $7,636,754, while Interstate highway contracts were second, composing two-fifths of the month's total.

(Appalachian funds are being used in US 23 construction between Paintsville and Louisa, but no contract on this route in Floyd county is planned this year. A Pike county sector of the highway apparently is moving toward advertising for bids, since right-of-way is being bought from the State Highway Department's garage downriver to Cowpen.)

"The number of awarded contracts will increase," Commissioner Hazelrigg said, "as the highway construction and repair season gets into full swing."

Contract awards for all of 1968 are expected to reach a total of $185 million, the Commissioner said.

ASCS Program Brings Hard Cash to County

In addition to benefits accruing to farms through practices which it sponsors, the Floyd County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) brought a total of $164,845.99 into the county last year.

Of this total, says the ASCS report for the year, $141,039.18 was paid to farmers, mainly in cost-sharing on farm practices, diversion of land from feed grain production and cooperation in the special conservation program initiated on Middle Creek. Administrative salaries and other expenses of the office were $23,806.81.

One hundred seventy-six farmers participated last year in the ASCS program. Eighty-five of these qualified under the low-income provision for 80 percent benefits in cost-sharing on projects, while the remainder shared 50 percent of the cost. Cost-sharing earned by farmers amounted to $16,832.

The biggest cash payments went to farmers participating in the feed grain program. In 1967 1,180 acres of land on 238 farms were diverted, and 53 acres of corn were planted. These farmers received $54,192 in diversion payments and $1,039 in price support of the acreage planted in corn.

In the Middle Creek watershed program 40 landowners have contracted to make improve-

Meeting for Plumbers Scheduled April 24

The Floyd County Health Department announced this week that a meeting of plumbers and plumbing contractors will be held at 7 p.m. April 24 at the health department here.

Attendance at this meeting is important, it is pointed out, since it will involve qualifying for state plumber's license.

NEW VOTERS FAVOR DEMS

But 49 Democrats Jump Party Traces; Registration Ends

Although the registration of new voters in this county has run better than 3 to 1 for the Democratic party this year, Republicans are taking some comfort in the figures dealing with party changes made by voters.

With the closing of the voter registration books on March 30, 693 new voters had registered Democratic as compared with 186 new Republicans and two independents.

But, according to figures released this week by County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson, 49 voters changed from Democratic to Republican registration. Only one Republican changed his affiliation to Democratic.

Wayland precinct had the greatest number of new registrants, 43, followed by Hi Hat's 37 and 35 at Jacks Creek. Transfers to other voting precincts were made by 180 voters.

The registration books will remain closed till five days after the May primary. Absentee ballot applications for the May primary are now being accepted and will be received till May 9, County Clerk Robinson said.

Busy Plant Until Spring Of '69 Seen

Report To Public Sales Last Year Were $1,525,555

Kentucky Appalachian Industries, Inc., the "home-grown product" which is the pioneer among Floyd county manufacturing plants, told a story of progress last week through newspaper advertising and at a dinner at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, last Thursday evening.

With sales of $1,525,555 last year KAI had a gross profit for the year of $93,656. L. E. Danielson, vice-president and general manager, said KAI now is working on a tent contract for the armed forces which will keep the West Prestonsburg plant working till the spring of 1969.

Beginning its operation here in October, 1965, KAI has paid approximately $850,000 in salaries and wages; trained almost 300 persons who were paid an additional $60,000 in wages while training; spent more than $300,000 for equipment and services in this area; invested more than $800,000 in equipment, machinery and material here; manufactured more than 270,000 items of military equipment.

Mr. Danielson pointed out that the $70,000 which KAI has paid in federal, state and local taxes would cover the education of 200 Floyd county children for one year.

The plant is working 250 and expects to enlarge its payroll. Since its beginning the plant has been twice enlarged till it now has 30,000 square feet of working space. About 40 persons, including (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

Ministerial Group Host to Officials Here Last Friday

Members of the Floyd County Ministerial Association entertained city and county officials at a breakfast last Friday at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church annex as a prelude to the Bible distribution work to be done in the county as a part of the Evangelism-in-Depth program.

The New Testament version, "Good News for Modern Man," will go into thousands of Floyd homes, officials were told.

Guests of the ministerial group were County Judge Henry Stumbo, Mayor George P. Archer, County Attorney Barkley J. Strugill, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo, Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett, Trial Commissioner Glenn C. Burchett and Magistrate Dewey Roberts.

Task-Force Seeks Area Plant Sites

Jobs, not handouts, motivated the task-force type, industrial-site tour which visited Prestonsburg and other places Wednesday and today.

The touring party arrived here this morning (Thursday) and, accompanied by Prestonsburg business and civic representatives, inspected a potential industrial site near Cliff.

Commissioner Paul W. Grubbs, of the Kentucky Department of Commerce, planned the two-day tour "for a complete survey and re-evaluation of all plant sites, both actual and potential, in Eastern Kentucky."

"We cannot have jobs in the area without more industry. We cannot have more industry without more plant sites, and for the most part, the present sites available in Eastern Kentucky need a considerable amount of attention in terms of access, grading, and utilities," Grubbs said.

The cost of developing these sites, in addition to uncovering other potential sites, was an objective of the tour.

Gov. Nunn said, "Eastern Kentuckians have an acute need for

'Once Over . . . Light'

Reminiscent of a day when a barber was one who expertly wielded the old-fashioned "straight" razor as well as clippers and scissors is this photo made in a barber shop at Drift, almost 30 years ago.

The two barbers, the late Finley Roberts, of Martin (at left), and John M. Bentley, then of McDowell, now of Columbus, Ohio, worked together, starting in the Lawrence Keathley building at Martin in 1921 and later teaming up at Weeksbury, Portsmouth, Ohio, McDowell and Wheelwright Junction. Roberts and Bentley also worked in Prestonsburg but not in the same shop.

The change in the barbering craft is emphasized by the fact that many barbers no longer include shaving in their services, while others use safety razors. And the business of honing or "stropping" a razor is on the way to becoming a lost art. P.S. Names of the "victims" in the picture were not supplied.

TIMES WANT ADS PAY— TRY THEM TODAY!

We humans can pull some good ones, sometimes. Up in Paterson, N. J., recently the call went out: "Car Four, where are you?" called the police radio dispatcher. "We're in Cedar Lawn Cemetery," came the reply. "We're locked in." The two embarrassed Paterson police officers told the dispatcher they went to make their nightly patrol of the cemetery when the gatekeeper unknowingly locked them in. Another patrol car found the gatekeeper and let them out.

Then there was the pilot who was flying his small, two-engine plane and decided to land at Logan International Airport, up Boston way. Spectators watched as Manning Jobs, 40, brought the plane down for a perfect landing. Perfect, that is, except for one thing—the wheels were not down. When the plane skidded to a stop after the belly landing airport officials rushed to it and asked Jobs what had happened. "I just forgot to lower the gear," he replied.

But that's not all. There was the newspaper in Parsons, Pa., which pulled this blooper: "Saturday Morning 10:30 a.m.—Easter Matinee—Every Child Laying An Egg In the Door Man's Hand Will Be Admitted Free."

Or take the headline from an Austin, Texas paper: "Jury Gets Drunk Driving Case Here."

The Idaho Statesman once ran the following story: "After Governor Baldrige watched the lion perform, he was taken to Main Street and fed 25 pounds of ray meat in front of the Fox Theater."

Well, it is the mistakes that we make that often put a little zest into life. That is, unless they are serious mistakes. Then they aren't a laughing matter. There was a young man named Mark who made a mistake once. He had decided on his life's work and had given himself in service to others. One day he decided, for a reason never known, to quit what he was doing. He was working with a partner named Paul and when he quit it broke Paul's heart.

We don't know what happened to Mark for the next few years. But we do know that he changed his mind and went back to his old work with Paul again. Paul was writing to another friend of theirs named Timothy, years later, and he told Timothy to "get Mark and bring him with you; for he is very useful."

We humans make lots of mistakes. But we make our most expensive mistake when we fail to try to correct our mistakes. Oh, to be sure, some of them we cannot undo any more than we can turn back the pages of history. But we can still make amends for them. "To err is human," said the poet. And it is. But it is also human to correct our errors.

A fellow named Peter made a mistake once by deserting his friend in an hour of need. But he corrected it. I would imagine there are some mistakes we need to correct right now. Don't you?

Because We Believe...

we know how important your faith is to you when death comes to a loved one. We strive to comfort you in your loss with a beautiful, reverent funeral service that is in the tradition of that faith.

THE CLUB'S MOST AMBITIOUS fund-raising project was its third annual Christmas bazaar and tour of homes. With funds raised, the group paid its $200 annual pledge to the pool at Archer Park, bought several large waste cans for part of the park's playground; spent $72.60 for Christmas bags of transportation to service men in Vietnam; contributed $100 to the Mental Health Center and $75 to the Rescue Squad chapel. In addition, the club gave two $150 scholarships to Prestonsburg Community College and sponsored a girl at Kentucky Village, as well as donating to Kentucky Federation statewide programs such as Care and the Veterans hospital fund.

Work that cannot be measured in dollars and cents alone includes members' work with health clinics at the Floyd County Health Department, helping with collection for charitable drives, and sponsoring the Heart Fund Drive, of which Mrs. Stanley Combs, incoming president, acted as chairman. The total collected this year is approximately five times that of last year.

The club won nine ribbons at the Seventh district contest in September with a first prize for its yearbook; won three ribbons in the spring contest at Pikeville with a first in student art, seconds in student sewing and in adult art. Members have exhibited crafts at the Floyd County Fair, and will be cooperating in exhibits at the library during National Library Week this month.

During the holiday season, the club sponsored a float in the Snow Queen parade and Mrs. Fairchild acted as judge for the Snow Queen competition. Members again decorated the Christmas tree in the library, and held the Christmas lighting contest. The club is again sponsoring a contestant in the Miss Floyd County Pageant.

The organization and its members have held four teas during the past year—one at the college during the Folk Festival; a membership tea in September, a Christmas tea, and on Sunday, April 21, will act as hostess to a tea at the library.

Fairchild, president, conducted a business session. It was reported that the Park Commission has offered space to the club for an arts and crafts club-room.

Mrs. J. H. Keenon announced a rummage sale for May 2, 3 and 4 to be held next door to Leta's Style Shop. The members voted on new officers for the coming year. Mrs. Stanley Combs was selected as the new president and will be installed along with the other officers at the May meeting.

Sunday, April 21, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m., the new executive board of the club will give a tea at the Floyd County Library. The tea is given as part of the General Federated Woman's Club program to commemorate National Library Week. The public is invited to attend.

Big Sandy Towns Get E.D.A. Grants

Approval of an $88,000 grant and an $88,000 loan to help Paintsville, Kentucky, extend water facilities to an industrial park where a new firm is expected to provide 150 jobs, was announced last week by the Economic Development Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce. At the same time EDA approved $125,000 to help Pikeville coordinate federal, state and local programs.

The funds were requested by the city of Paintsville on the basis of a claim that the Continental Conveyor and Equipment Company will locate in the 30-acre park, which is being developed at nearby Theima.

The firm expects to employ about 150 workers initially and says it could increase employment to 250 within three years. Company officials say that many of the jobs will be filled by the hard-core unemployed, underemployed and members of minority groups.

Total cost of the project will be $175,000. The EDA loan will run for 10 years and will bear an annual interest rate of 4/4 percent. Completion is expected by the city in about six months.

The funds for Pikeville are to make possible the first-year planning for its participation in the Model Cities Program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The community will provide $4,000 in facilities to complete the $129,000 project cost.

The technical assistance will be carried out by a consultant to be selected by EDA. It will entail preparation of a comprehensive economic development plan with recommendations for land use and the development of needed public facilities and transportation. It will include suggestions for short and long-range financing.

The project also will involve an analysis of present and proposed projects in the area to identify expected expenditures of the various agencies. It also will coordinate the plans of participating agencies and recommend any necessary changes to assure a cooperative approach to solving the area's social and economic problems.

Nature Trails

By RUFUS M. REED

EXOTIC WILD FLOWERS

DUTCHMAN'S BREECHES, wild turkeys—hence, the names. This wild flower is said to be found in every county of West Virginia, and in most of the Eastern section of Kentucky. It was one of the favorites of the Indians, who knew nature perhaps better than we do and depended upon it for their sustenance, medicines and love charms. Indian braves used the plants of Dutchman's Breeches to woo their lady loves. The brave would present the maiden of his choice one of the flowers with its lacy foliage and if she accepted it, they sealed their vow with a handclasp.

If you go into rich, moist, north-facing woods, along about the first week of April, you'll be sure to find a colony of Dutchman's Breeches. The plants come up in the leafless spring woods and put out finely dissected leaves that soon cover the earth like green lace and lend a real touch of spring to a barren landscape. The plants send up a long, curving stem on which a row of flowers are formed like baggy pants hanging on the line, with the legs turned up, the waist down. The blooms have two legs (spurs) and the lower part of the flower is washed with yellow. These spurs are made to hold the sweet nectar, which only the queen bumblebee of spring can get by sticking her long tongue down deep into the spurs to drink the nectar.

The white, two-spurred flowers are showy against the drab background of brown winter leaves. The flowers have four petals, two of which form the double-spurred nectar sacs; the other two close over the stigma to protect it against the cold spring winds. Dutchman's Breeches belong to the Fumitory Family, which contains plants with finely dissected leaves and watery juice. They are noted for coming up very early in the spring. After a brief blooming spell, they die out when the weather gets hot and dry.

SQUIRREL, OR TURKEY, CORN. A constant companion of Dutchman's Breeches is a similar flower known as Squirrel Corn. It has white flowers but these do not have spur sacs; they are rounded at the top and shaped like a heart. The plant is also called, "Wild Bleeding Heart." The white flowers are faintly flushed with purple and have the fragrance of hyacinths. On the roots are small tuber-like grains of yellow Indian corn. These grow in clusters and are the choice food of squirrels and wild turkeys—hence, the names. Squirrel Corn is a lovely, delicate little flower, and with Dutchman's Breeches forms large colonies of several acres in size, completely covering the earth. The leaves are bluish-green and finely dissected into numerous small segments. The white flowers are formed on a slender scape and nod over from near the top.

YELLOW ADDER'S TONGUE. This beautiful, little lily is often called, "Fawn Lily," and "Eastern Trout Lily." About the first week of April, and sometimes in late March, the Yellow Adder's tongue begins to push up its beautiful, mottled leaves and these soon carpet the earth. I have seen them covering the earth for miles along the banks of Miller's Creek, Mingo county. The flowers are like pretty yellow bells nodding over at the top of a slender scape; they seem to be ringing out the joys of another spring. The lemon yellow flowers are showy in barren spring woods; each has six divisions, and is lemon-yellow inside, fawn-colored outside. The leaves appear in pairs from deep underground, scaly bulbs—so deep underground it is almost impossible to dig them out without injuring the plant. The leaves are dark green and speckled like brook trout.

Yellow Adder's tongue is common throughout Eastern Kentucky, and is found along the banks of brooks and moist hillsides, near streams. It is one of our most exotic spring wild flowers, but whoever gave it the name of "Dogtooth Violet," was surely careless with his botany.

Stocking Program In Kentucky Lakes Includes Rockfish

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has been continuing its project of stocking some of Kentucky's lakes with the salt water cousin of the white bass, the striped or rockfish.

Kentucky Lake, Lake Cumberland and Herrington Lake are the lakes stocked with this ocean-going striped bass which attains great weight, the largest caught in fresh waters weighing 66 pounds.

(Editor's note: Dewey Lake also was stocked with strippers, according to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.)

The project was begun in 1957 and has been increased steadily until in 1966, 3,100,000 baby rockfish were stocked. A half-million fry were stocked in 1967, and the same number are scheduled for 1968.

Although few traces of actual reproduction have been witnessed, rockfish eggs have been found and positively identified.

Rockfish have been caught weighing 34½ pounds in Lake Cumberland and several ranging from 14 to 27 pounds in Kentucky Lake.

The fry and adult rockfish for stocking in Kentucky have been collected in South Carolina.

Delegates elected to represent the five educational districts of the county at K. E. A. and E. K. E. A. are:

District 1—Danny Branson and Patricia Branson; Dist. 2—Phillip Dingus and Jack Hutchinson; Dist. 3—Elmer Martin and O. E. Stanley; Dist. 4—Winnie B. Johnson and Phillip Chaffins; Dist. 5—Lowell Conley and Pauline Conley.

Mr. Stanley automatically became a delegate as the result of an amendment to the association by-laws which provided for the new president hereafter to be one of the two delegates from his district. Another amendment assesses teachers $4 each instead of $2 to support association activities.

Each educational district of the county held separate business meetings. Reports and election of officers were held Friday morning.

At the afternoon session Dr. Crayton Jackson, of the Morehead University science department, spoke, giving a complimentary review of the unusual science program being carried out in this county for elementary pupils.

Stal, Mountain Mental Health Services; Wayne Ratliff, assistant superintendent of schools, Sick Leave; Clem Martin, Programs and Needs in Our School System; Frances Turner, The Linguistic Approach in Communicative Arts; Lawrence E. NEW DEVELOPMENT OFFICE REGARDED AS 'TASK FORCE'

Frankfort, Ky.—Area development is no longer the singular function of what formerly was the Governor's Office for Area Development.

Now known as the Kentucky Program Development Office, it is being reorganized and its concepts broadened to properly and orderly develop the economic needs of Kentucky, according to its new director, Frank Groschelle.

Though the office essentially is the state's arm for obtaining and implementing some 250 economic and social federal measures at the local level, Groschelle is extending the office's functions to other areas as well.

He sees the office as a "task force," and coordinator for mustering the "fragments of community development."

He says the office attempts to achieve this goal in part by bringing together all developmental resources in the state, such as the University of Kentucky Extension Service and public and private utilities, to solve community problems.

Groschelle has reorganized the office into five divisions and brought under it some developmental agencies which formerly functioned separately. One of these is the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO). Another is Urban Housing and Development and its various divisions, which formerly was attached to the State Department of Commerce.

In addition to OEO, other divisions are (1) State Planning, (2) Community Planning and Development, (3) Area Development, and (4) Development Information.

"Through these divisions," Groschelle said, "Kentucky is taking the initiative to provide local communities with technical assistance and necessary information for participation in federal economic and social programs."

He said the purpose of his office is to improve local economic climate through job training, better housing, new utilities and other facilities which are necessary for community growth.

Groschelle, a native of Somerset, was appointed to his post several weeks ago by Gov. Louie B. Nunn, who also named him his special assistant. He held a similar post with the state of Ohio for five years prior to being named to his present post.

During this period, he also was the Governor's representative to the Appalachian Regional Commission, director of the Economic Development Administration, executive director of the Inter-Departmental Development Committee, executive secretary of the Water and Sewer Rotary Commission and vice-president of the Ohio Planning Council.

Inspection Eased For Daytime Drivers, Shirley Announces

Frankfort, Ky.—Special stickers are available qualifying vehicles operated only in daylight hours for a less rigid inspection of lights under the state motor vehicle inspection program, it has been reminded.

Although the stickers have been available for some time, the general public doesn't seem to be aware of them, Motor Vehicle Inspection Director Robert Shirley said.

The special sticker, known as the daylight sticker, is "available on request" at all inspection stations, Shirley said. "But you have to request them."

The sticker exempts qualifying vehicles, such as many farm trucks and other trucks driven in the daytime only, from the "special lighting" provision in the inspection law. Among other things, the provision calls for marker lights for both the cab and bed of trucks operated at night.

Shirley also reminded, camping trailers are subject to inspection, although many motorists think they are exempted from the program. "Those trailers have lights and brakes," Shirley said.

He reports the program is "picking up steam" again following a lull when the Legislature was in session and many motorists awaited the outcome of an attempt to repeal the inspection law. "Sticker orders have been tremendous," Shirley said.

The 1966 inspection law became compulsory March 1 but motorists scheduled for inspection last month—those with license plates ending in the numeral three—were allowed to join the April group—those with plates ending with the numeral four—and have until midnight April 30 to have their vehicles inspected.

Floyd County Library Plans Varied Program For Library Week

Through the period, April 21-27, the Floyd County Library and community libraries throughout the United States will celebrate the 11th National Library Week—a concerted, nationwide effort to focus attention on the importance of reading and libraries in our national life.

This year's theme, "Be All You Can Be, Read," illustrates the importance placed on reading, and the overwhelming response to past observances of National Library Week offers concrete evidence that people everywhere in America are concerned about the quality of the nation's intellectual life.

The Floyd County Library has planned numerous activities during Library Week, including an art exhibit, works of handicraft, poetry reading, a fashion show, folk singing and dancing, and an antique exhibit. Next week, the date and time of each activity will be announced.

Search for Disabled Eligible for Benefits Extends to County

The Pikeville social security office began the search this week for several disabled people in Floyd county. These disabled people are part of an estimated 165,000, nationwide, who can become entitled to monthly disability payments because of recent changes in the social security law.

These changes provide for reduced monthly payments to a severely disabled widow as early as age 50. The disability may have begun before her husband's death, or within seven years after. Under the same conditions, a disabled widower is eligible, but in addition he must have been dependent on his wife for his support.

About 100,000 of the people newly eligible for benefits under the recent changes in the law are young disabled workers who did not have sufficient work credits under the old requirement. Under the new provisions, a worker who became disabled before age 31 needs work credits for half of the time from age 21 to the time his disability began, with a minimum work requirement of one and one-half years.

Some of the newly eligible individuals will be reached through contacts with local public and private agencies, but more will learn of their eligibility through news articles, radio and TV announcements or by word of mouth.

The staff of the social security district office is ready to accept applications for these benefits. Persons wishing additional information or assistance may call 422-2177 or visit the office at Second and Division Streets in Pikeville, Kentucky.

Estimated 500 Watch Work at Garth Center

Hite, Ky. — Visitors Day, observed recently at the Garth Extension Center, brought together students, high school principals, guidance counselors, parents and representatives of business.

Visitors moved from shop to shop, seeing students at work, machinery in operation, and students explaining projects to which they were assigned.

The focal point in Ezra Mitchell's section of the electric shop was the five-room model house used for home-wiring. Students explained to visitors the installation of the complete lighting, chimes and bell circuits. Other projects of interest included remote control lighting, motor-winding and rebuilding, motor generator sets and bell and signal circuits.

James Montgomery's section of the electric shop showed tube-testers and electronic test equipment. His students had a telephone in working order which they permitted visitors to use. A student-built radio with ear-phones was in use, receiving a local radio station broadcast.

The machine shop with Frank Sammons as instructor and the different machines consisting of the shaper, grinder, milling machines, lathes and other pieces of equipment attracted much attention. As many as 150 persons were watching the students operate the equipment at one time. In this shop, many projects were on display consisting of such items as gears and tools made by the students.

The auto mechanics shop could be recognized by the smell of fuel, the roar of the starting engines and the display of automobile parts. The students started the engines and tuned them in the presence of the visitors under the supervision of Lonzo Lafayette, their instructor.

The whine of a circular saw, the crackling sound of the new-planed wood was evidence of action at another station along the line of the tour. George Barker's carpenter students, who were building some book shelves for the shops, demonstrated their skill. Mothers of students appreciated the cabinets they saw in the process of being built.

Completion of the visit in the carpenter shop marked a change in the tour from the industrial hum to the relative quietness of the drafting room. Students' drawings were on display, and visitors watched students in the process of making drawings, using drafting equipment similar to that which could be found in an industrial drafting shop. Printing and development equipment was located in the back of the room. Using this equipment, tracings can be turned into prints.

More than 500 visitors were present for the open house activity. Interest of the visitors was revealed by some of their comments.

It's a bird. It's a plane.
It's a Volkswagen?

That little plane up high in the sky is run by the same engine that runs our little car back down on the ground.

It belongs to Bob Ladd of Deer Park, N.Y. And Bob belongs to a growing number of enthusiasts who happen to think there's only one way to fly. Via Volkswagen.

And why not? A Volkswagen engine is dependable. It's been dependable in over 10 million vehicles that never got off the ground.

It's lightweight. (A nice feature to have at 10,000 feet.)

It's air-cooled. (No water or antifreeze to worry about.)

And most important of all, it doesn't drink much gas. (40 or 45 mpg seems to be what most flying VWs average.)

Safer Motoring Magazine calls a VW-powered aircraft from England "the most economical plane in the world today."

On one hand, we're really thrilled to hear that we're doing so well up high in the sky.

On the other, we don't recommend it. (In fact, we're against it.)

After all, if we had really meant the Volkswagen to fly, we would have made it look more like a bird.

And less like a bug.

NEW ACT PROTECTS VETS AGAINST CUT IN PENSIONS

President Johnson has signed into law a bill protecting nearly a quarter of a million veterans, widows and parents (5,000 in Kentucky) against any reduction in Veterans Administration pension or dependency and indemnity compensation due to the recent Social Security increase.

The measure will also result in added VA payments, beginning January 1, 1969, to more than 1.1 million (22,000 in Kentucky) on VA pension rolls.

VA now pays out approximately $2.3 billion annually to these two groups of beneficiaries and to some 600,000 pensioners under a prior protected law.

Pensions are paid to veterans whose total and permanent disabilities are not related to military service and to widows who, like eligible veterans, meet low income limitations.

In two messages to Congress on America's servicemen and veterans, the President recommended legislation to "protect the veteran against disproportionate losses that could result from increases in other income, such as Social Security."

Veterans, widows and parents are assured by the new law of no reductions in VA benefits through 1969 because of increased Social Security payments.

Added VA benefits beginning next January for more than 1.1 million pensioners will result from restructuring of the entire VA pension and dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) program, as provided in the new law.

Effective January 1, 1969, income limitations, which govern financial eligibility for VA pensions and dependency benefits, will be raised $200 for all beneficiaries. This increase is particularly important to "old law" pensioners since it will mean that the recent Social Security income hikes will cause no loss in VA payments.

Also starting next year, income levels, which determine the amount of current law VA pension and DIC benefits, will be computed in $100 increments, with larger payments going to those with the lowest income. VA benefits will be reduced only a fraction of each $100 increase in income up to the new ceilings.

Currently, the amount of benefits is determined by one of five income levels. There are no graduated benefits for income between these levels.

Under the restructured VA pension and dependency indemnity-compensation program, one of 28 income levels will be used to compute a recipient's pension or dependency benefit.

'WHATSOEVER THINGS'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

It's a confusing world we live in. There is such an existing paradox in the world that it makes the world hard to understand at times. Let me share what I am speaking of.

Some fellow, a little better off financially than the average fellow, goes over to the club and has a few drinks. Before long he is tight and his buddies, themselves staggering, have to take him home. What he did is kinda frowned upon by a few and laughed about by several. But you let a poor, uneducated country boy drink the same stuff and get the same way and we are hard and harsh on the "uncouth country hick." Now to an unbiased observer it appears that both of them have done the same act and committed the same deed. But one is cursed and condemned because he has neither money nor education.

It seems that if one has money and education his breaking of the Creator's law, and man's, is played down. But if one lacks money and education, his breaking of the same law of both Creator and man is a sign of his "sorniness." Personally, I see a drunk as a drunk if he is a scholar or a bum. I can't see where a rich, educated drunk is any better than a poor, uneducated drunk. And I don't think the Creator does, either.

One would think there is a difference by just looking. If a fellow is reading Playboy he is sophisticated. But if what he is reading is just a two-bit girlie book he is crude and coarse. Really, I can't see where just is any better if it is dressed up a little or just in a cheap form. And I don't think the Creator does, either.

The world we are living in today has tried to do away with sin. They have dressed it up and called it by other names—freedom, art, law—but sin remains sin by whatever name you call it. Just because we have renamed it and dressed it up to a sophisticated state has not done away with it. You can't get rid of sin simply by calling it another name anymore than you can rid the world of communism by calling it the People's Party.

The great danger is that we don't recognize it for what it is. With all its new clothes and respected advertising, sin has taken a new aspect. It has become the respected thing to do. And one isn't really educated until he can throw grandmother's morals out the window and swing with the "in" gang.

There is a story in the Book that for years was the world's bestseller (unfortunately the Communist Manifesto is now the world's bestseller) that I love to read over and again. It is the story of a boy who wanted a license to sin. He made his father give him his share of the property. He went into a far country. You know the story. There is one sentence I wish to pass along—"When he came to himself, he said, 'I have sinned.' That is as stark and as plain as it can be. 'When he came to himself, he said, 'I have sinned.'"

Make no mistake about it, my friend, sin is sin. Call it whatever you wish, but recognize it for what it is. And if my theology is correct only One can forgive sin. Maybe one day we will come to ourselves.

Announcing Chevrolet's new Torque-Drive.

Nobody else offers anything like it at the price.

Torque-Drive does away with the clutch pedal. Most of the shifting, too. And for the most economy, it's available exclusively on all Camaro sixes and Chevy II

Nova 4- and 6-cylinder models.

Look how simple it is. You accelerate in 1st; then shift to Hi for cruising. That's all. If you like, you can even start in Hi. And accelerate from standstill to cruising speed. It's just a little slower that way.

The shift lever is conveniently located on the steering column, and there's a selector quadrant with easy-to-read indications. Park-R-N-Hi-1st. Only your Chevrolet dealer has it—clutchless driving at only $68.65.

The first no clutch one shift $68⁶⁵*

Only Chevrolet has it.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price including Federal Excise Tax, State and local taxes additional.

ORIGIN OF GORGE CABIN STILL ARGUED IN POWELL

As far as the U. S. Forest Service may be concerned, a small hut in a Red River Gorge cave will be historic until proven otherwise.

Robert Brooks, supervisor of the U. S. Forest Service office at Stanton, said he wasn't "entirely satisfied" with one man's story that he and his brother built the small, wooden shelter which others believe was built by Kentucky pioneer Daniel Boone.

The Forest Service and at least three Powell county residents think the little cabin is authentic. Arrangements are being made to have the site investigated by the Smithsonian Institution, with the help of the University of Kentucky.

To protect the hut from souvenir-seekers who have been attracted to the site by recent publicity, the U. S. Forest Service has sealed off the mouth of the cave with a 25-foot steel fence.

Jess Ashley, of Powell county; his son-in-law, Roy Reed, of Winchester, and his grandson, Don Reed, 18, found the crude hut about nine years ago, along with a piece of board with "D.Boon" carved on it. They managed to convince the Forest Service that the find was genuine.

Early last week, however, Henry Catron, 47, of Powell county, said he and his brother Hugh, 45, had built the cabin while playing in the gorge more than 35 years ago.

Hugh denies this and has suggested his brother was mistaken.

The older brother visited the cave site, and said that while the site didn't look exactly as he had pictured it, "there's no doubt in my mind this is the cave."

Two Forest Service rangers who accompanied Catron to the location said that at first he did not recognize the cave or the hut. But later, after surveying the land around the cave, Catron said "that has to be the cave."

One of the rangers pointed out that there was another cave in a nearby hollow, but Catron said he'd "never been there in his life. It must be the one we've just been in."

Mrs. Butt's Career As Singer Reviewed By Texas Newspaper

Mrs. Robert Butt, who sang "Maria" in "The Sound of Music" which was presented two summers ago at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre here, is the subject of a feature article in a recent edition of The Greenville (Texas) Herald Banner.

The Texas newspaper recalls that Mrs. Butt, who is a daughter of Mrs. Mary Alene Riffe, of Prestonsburg, and the late Carl Riffe, received a part of her formal voice training here and after further study in Phoenix, Ariz., appeared as soprano soloist with the Arizona Symphonic Choir and the Phoenix Civic Opera.

She met Capt. Butt, of the U. S. Air Force, in Phoenix, and his stateside service has taken them to various air bases, including McClellan, in California, Sumpter, S. C., Wright-Patterson, Ohio, and Greenville, Texas, where she and their three daughters are residing while Capt. Butt, an Air Force pilot, is assigned to the AFLC Liaison Detachment at Ling-Temco-Vought.

While they were in California, from 1964 till last year, she was a member of the Sacramento Symphony Choir.

More than 500 early settlers and soldiers are buried in Pioneer Cemetery at historic old Fort Harrod in Harrodsburg.

Would Ease Strip-Mine Rules

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Louie B. Nunn has no present plans to alter the state's regulations regarding strip-mining operations, according to his staff.
The assurance came in response to a question about a proposed regulation submitted by Henry Stratton, a Pikeville attorney. Stratton is one of the attorneys representing River Processing Co. and other strip-mining firms in a suit seeking to invalidate strip-mining regulations adopted by the state Reclamation Division on former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt's last day in office in December.
The proposed regulation, as explained by Stratton, would allow several crucial state restrictions on strip-mining operations to be waived if everyone involved signed an agreement.
Among the restrictions that could be lifted in this manner are those governing the steepness of slopes, the width of the bench cut into the hillside and rather than the previous maximum of 33 degrees. Strip-mining would be permissible on any slope, with a suitable plan and permanent waivers, under Stratton's proposed regulation.

Adding a note of uncertainty to discussion of that proposal is the fact that two key men behind the state's present stance on strip mining are planning to resign shortly, perhaps within a month.
They are Natural Resources Commissioner J. O. Matlick and Reclamation Director Elmore Grim.
Matlick, 56, has been wanting to retire to his farm near Middletown for some time. Grim, 52, is planning to join the U. S. Forest Service at Berea, where he will carry out research on strip-mining reclamation.
Both Matlick and Grim are holdovers from the Breathitt administration. They had agreed to remain at their posts under Nunn for an unspecified "transition period."
They and Mines and Minerals Commissioner Ambrose Mandt comprise the state Reclamation Commission, which hears appeals against rulings by the Reclamation Division.
Most of these appeals have come from strip-mining operators who have protested the division's regulations or its refusal to allow operations on some sites. Mandt has sided with the operators in some of these more recent cases.
James Shropshire, who was appointed deputy commissioner by Nunn and reportedly is in line to succeed Matlick, said he has not seen Stratton's proposed regulations.
But in response to a newsman's questions, he said he believed it would be the department's position not to adopt any regulation that would weaken the state's present program.
Nunn has said he has no commitment nor agreement in this field and that any decision he makes regarding it will be based primarily on recommendations by the department.
David Schneider, 29, resigned as attorney for the department April 1, citing Stratton's proposed regulation as one reason for his action. Schneider said he could not be associated with "any weakening of enforcement" of the department's present regulations.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

THE WEARY WEIGHT

Poets and other romanticists have often spoken about the simple life of the primitive people, assuming that all our knowledge has merely increased the things that could worry us. Suppose we think a while about what a primitive person, whether of the South Seas or of our own time, had to face daily.
First of all, was this a lucky or unlucky day for the individual worrier? If the day as a whole was supposed to be lucky, certain hours might be unlucky. Then he would have to watch his step, or, if he was near enough to a skilled doctor, he might take a pill of some sort to tide him over until a lucky hour or day appeared. If such a person could read, he could find, in the writings of his time, plenty of things to do, many of them perfectly contradictory. It would take a lot of nerve energy to decide on one certain way and wait, trembling, for the results.
Everybody has to eat, and most people are happier and better satisfied with three square meals a day. But what shall we eat? It might be perfectly awful if our type man ate the wrong sort of meat, maybe the meat of an animal that was forbidden for his tribe. It would be all right to eat some other sort, but who could tell him when he was safe? The primitive man would not have known about contaminated water and could drink to his heart's desire whatever was potable. "Potable water" was often mentioned in older writings, and I have heard some semi-learned discussions at country stores on what kind of water is "fit" to drink.

Suppose our primitive man does not feel up to par. He might have angered some deity that seems to have just hung around to cause trouble. Then he must do something to get that deity's good will, or the whole day might be spoiled. He might swallow something or refrain from some perfectly normal activity or give up some trinket or treasure.
Assuming that the fellow actually is sick, according to our ways of thinking, then he must take some medicine? But what? The kind that tastes good might be the very worst kind for him; if he has not been instructed in the elaborate schemes of gathering and preparing medicines, he might actually poison himself. Why, the bark in his medicine may have been peeled the wrong way, not intentionally but ignorantly. Or the signs of the zodiac or the correct position of the major planets might have been wrong; thus he might drink his own death dose, purely from ignorance.
Primitive people had to work to get clothes and food and shelter, even as do their descendants. But certain jobs were taboo to our typical man; they were just not engaged in by his tribe or his family. Other jobs brought honor and, let us hope, plenty of food. But how many people must have spent miserable lives because they got off on the wrong foot by choosing the wrong job.
Every time our primitive man turned around, he met some "don't." He had to eat what was proper, just like some spoiled modern child who is being reared, according to the book, by fond parents. He had to wear certain types of clothes, not necessarily appropriate or becoming ones, but those supposedly suitable to his position and his age or his wealth. Manshirts or sheep-dog haircuts might have been known then, but if so, they were the rule and not daring exceptions. Even in relatively late historic time a woman, probably the wife of the primitive man we are talking about, could be punished, even to death, for appearing in public with her head bare. And think how many subjects weren't talked about except in appropriate company. Even children got spanked for saying the wrong word in the right place. In some primitive societies a boy talks the language of his mother until he is an adolescent; then he learns to talk man-language. That sounds like having to lick several larger boys if you put on long pants before you were old enough.

The trend is clear!

Few women would wear a dress designed in 1930 . . . but many are tolerating heating systems that are as outdated as a bustle. Because of misconceptions about the cost of electric heat, you may be cheating yourself out of a cleaner, more comfortable, flamelessly safe home. The difference in operating cost is so small it's insignificant. Millions of homeowners who heat electrically have discovered how much more it is worth. That's why owners of older homes are converting to electric heat in record-breaking numbers. Few things you can buy for your home add more to its value than electric heat because dollar-for-dollar it delivers so much more for your money. Virtually any home can be converted to electric heat quickly and economically. Let us prove it. Just mail this coupon.
