

Dedication Near For New Factory

Equipment Is Moved To Plant

Full Operation Seen For US Shoe in May; More To Be Trained

Dedication and full operation of the new U. S. Shoe Company plant, near Lancer, is a matter of only a few weeks away.

Formal dedicatory exercises are expected, sometime in May, but the exact date will depend upon a time when Governor Nunn and Congressman Carl D. Perkins will be available as participants.

Machinery used at Archer Park here is being moved into the new plant, the second floor of the park building used for the last few months has been vacated, and only the shipping and loading departments have not yet been moved.

The big plant structure itself has been completed, and its equipping is well under way. Installation of a large transporter, which will require about two weeks, will place the plant in shape for a full work schedule. G. E. Pease, plant manager, said.

A new training class for about 40 workers is expected to start within the next two weeks. Although the new plant has a population of only a few weeks away. (See Story No. 4, Page 6)

This Town ... That World

SOME DAMAGE, SOMETIMES

It's times such as Tuesday afternoon when the storm warnings fly and reports of destruction in other parts of the state come in that we become just a bit more thankful for these beautiful, old, rugged, old hills. The worst wind damage we ever sustain comes at election time.

WE ORGANIZERS

An item elsewhere in this newspaper has it that Bill Dingus spent last week-end organizing a fish and game club at Monticello, Ky. We are not disputing the accuracy of this report but on the same high note of veracity wish to report that we were engaged in the same business over at LaFollette, Tenn., at the same time. Hope Mr. Dingus did better than we — even the biggest suckers around wouldn't fall for our line.

NEW FACES

About the only important official job that hasn't changed hands around here since a new state administration took over is that of Poke Warden.

Saw an interesting title to an article, the other day: PAY WITH LOVE OR BLOOD. The people of this country haven't too much time to make a choice.

IT WAS THE LAW

Yes, I'm a sissy—I sometimes read "Dear Abby," and enjoy it. This I ran across, the other day, relating to the artifices and wiles women employ to make a catch, and reminding them it's lucky they weren't in business 200 years ago. The writer quoted the following excerpt from an Act of the British Parliament of that time:

"That all women, of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, that shall from and after"

Tuesday's Tornado Toll Placed at 13; East Ky. Escapes

Thirteen known dead, scores injured and property damage running into the millions was the toll taken by Tuesday afternoon's tornado which struck the Falmouth area of Kentucky and the Wheelersburg, Ohio section. Heavy property damage was suffered in Greenup county but there was no loss of life there.

Heavy rain, with hail, fell in the Paintsville-Inez area, but wind caused little or no damage in this section.

FIRES LEVEL HOMES OF 3

Damage Total May Reach $75,000, Said; Owners Are Absent

Destruction by fire of three Floyd county homes in two days last week caused estimated damage of $75,000.

Two of the blazes hit the Minnie and Dwale communities almost simultaneously, around 10 a.m. Friday. The third fire Saturday morning destroyed the home on Highland avenue here of Sam Bays. In all three cases, owners of the residences were away from home.

Loss of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Turner whose home and all its contents at Minnie were destroyed was unofficially placed at $45,000. The fire apparently started in the basement of the large, two-story residence which was undergoing remodeling. All furnishings, including antiques, new appliances, cash savings and clothing were lost. Mrs. Turner, a teacher in the McDowell schools, was en route to North Carolina at the time, and Mr. Turner and their children had spent the night with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Turner, of Drift. The furnace in the basement was suspected, although only its pilot light had been left burning. The damage was estimated at $45,000.

The Dwale fire loss resulted

FLOYD SLAG FIRE LISTED

Highway Chief Told Fires on Right-of-Way Must Be Extinguished

A roadside slag pile near David was listed last week as one of seven which are burning on state highway right-of-way and requiring attention of the State Highway Department.

But, said William H. Sutherland, manager of the now-idle properties of Princess Elkhorn at David, "They'll have to hurry—this one at David is almost burned out."

On the hillside along the road leading across the mountain to Howard Branch, Magoffin county, the David slag-pile fire apparently is an old one.

Five slag fires on road right-of-way in Clay county have been reported to the Kentucky Air Pollution Control Commission. Another is at Mouthcard, Pike county.

The Air Pollution Control Commission told Highway Commissioner Hazelrigg the piles burning on state right-of-way must be put out. "Just because it belongs to the state doesn't exonerate it," said Ralph C. Pickard, executive secretary of the commission. "Our opinion is that this is no different from anybody else who has something on their property."

Hazelrigg has been told either to put out the coal fires immediately or register them as sources of air pollution with the commission. All other sources of air contaminants are also being registered with the state, under a regulation adopted last year.

Pickard told the pollution commission that many complaints have been received about the coal refuse piles. At times smoke from the burning piles obscures vision on the highways, some complaints charge.

Pickard acknowledged that in some cases the Highway Department may have "bought themselves a headache" by purchasing rights-of-way through coal refuse piles.

Season Pool Tickets To Be Offered; New Park Mgr. Employed

Season family tickets to the Archer Park swimming pool will go on sale here next week, it was announced Wednesday.

Purchasers will be issued a season ticket, and each member of the family will also be given a card which must be presented by the owner, each time privileges of the pool are used.

The pool will officially open its season on Memorial Day. Edward Patton, who will be graduated from Eastern State University, Richmond, has been employed as director of the park and its recreational facilities, including the pool. He and his wife will live at the park, it was said.

The Park Commission also announced that it is interested in receiving written applications for jobs as lifeguards at the pool this season. Applications should be mailed to Mrs. Mary Jane Harkins, Prestonsburg.

Former P'burg Man Sues For $1,084,000 Damages

The Rev. Denver Sammons, of Lexington, formerly of Prestonsburg, last Friday filed suit in the Fayette circuit court seeking a judgement of $1,084,000 from Montgomery Ward & Company.

The suit was filed a day after Judge Joseph J. Bradley had directed a jury to return a verdict of not guilty for Sammons who had been accused of conversion by Ward's Lexington store. The Church of God minister, division supervisor for the Lexington store, was accused of converting to his own use a wall heater and a floor furnace.

At the hearing of the case against Sammons it was shown that the wall heater was purchased on a home demonstration plan and that a written order was given directing that the heater be charged to his account. The furnace was damaged, and testimony was offered showing that it was given Sammons by Roman J. Birch, another em-

Grubbs and Party View Potential Plant Sites

The touring party of state officials, headed by Commerce Commissioner Paul Grubbs, and representatives of Kentucky industry who visited Prestonsburg last Thursday were impressed by the desire for new industry they found not only in this county but in every community visited.

Joined by county and city officials and business leaders, the party inspected a potential industrial site on the north side of the Big Sandy at Cliff, near here.

Commissioner Grubbs later said two things are apparent in Eastern Kentucky—the desire of every community for industry and the scarcity of plant sites.

He rated the Kenwood site, in Johnson county, as one of the best in the United States. A bridge connecting the site with US 23 made Kenwood attractive to industry.

(It was pointed out here that a number of sites along the Big Sandy could be developed, but these are separated from US 23 by the Big Sandy river and would require bridges such as the one built at Kenwood.)

"This (Kenwood) shows us what can be done in Eastern Kentucky," Grubbs emphasized, "by cooperation between the local, state, and federal levels. This kind of improvement will make Eastern Kentucky a contender in today's highly-competitive market of industrial location."

The image of Eastern Kentuckians either working for the government or getting a government hand-out is in for a change, Grubbs told audiences at all stops.

"It's in for a change," Grubbs pointed out, "because

20 Spellers To Vie Saturday for Title, Place in Tri-State

The countywide spelling bee from which will emerge a champion and runner-up to represent the county in the Tri-State finals at Huntington, West Virginia, will be held at the Prestonsburg elementary school, starting at 10 a.m., Saturday.

Twenty spellers will compete here. Each of the schools of eight or more teachers will send one speller to the county bee, and winners of sectional bees held for smaller schools will complete the array of spellers.

Lawrence B. Price, who is in charge of the county bee for the Floyd County Board of Education, said the public is invited to attend the spelling finals here. Parents are especially invited.

NUNN CALLS FOR AV STUDY

Says New Appraisal Needed To Determine If Work To Continue

Gov. Louie B. Nunn said Tuesday that a new appraisal of the Appalachian Volunteers is needed to determine if federal funding of their activities in Eastern Kentucky should be phased out or continued.

Headquarters for all Appalachian Volunteers work in the region is now located here, and since their coming here they have been under attack from the Floyd County Community Action Program.

Nunn called for "a long, hard look to see what the organization has accomplished." His request for the study was made to Levio Sanchez, regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Deft. Says Death Not Suspected

Wood Alcohol Found In Blood of Victim, Dr. Terrell Testifies

A jury in circuit court here Monday night held Granville Crittendon, Chicago man, guilty of manslaughter in the 1966 death of his Floyd county-born wife, Alpha Jean Tackett Crittendon, and fixed the penalty at two years in prison.

The woman was dead in the back seat of the Crittendon car on its arrival at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe P. Tackett, of Weeksville. The Commonwealth accused Crittendon of causing her death. He claimed he did not know Mrs. Crittendon had died until he arrived at Weeksville.

In the trial which began here Monday morning, Dr. Talbert, of the University Medical Center, Lexington, testified that laboratory analysis showed that wood alcohol in lethal amount was in the woman's bloodstream. How this was introduced to the victim's body was not established.

Mrs. Crittendon had undergone brain surgery some time before her death. Loretta McRay, her sister, testified that after she returned home from the hospital Crittendon told his wife, in the presence of Mrs. McRay, "The next time, I'll not send you to any hospital." She also quoted her sister as having told Crittendon that but for him she would not have been in "this condition." A brother-in-law of the defendant testified Crittendon had told him he was bringing his wife back to Kentucky to stay. Crittendon was quoted by officials as having told them he had brought his wife home for Christmas.

They left Chicago around 10:30 p.m., Dec. 3, 1966 and arrived at Weeksville about 4 p.m. the following day. (See Story No. 6, Page 3)

Mental Health Clinic Holds Unique Position

The only fully staffed community mental health clinic in the nation has its headquarters here, and its work is reaching those to whom help has seldom in the past come in time.

This is the Mountain Care Comprehensive Care Center which has as its field of operation the rugged area composed of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties.

Dr. Willard Dill (shown above at left with Dr. George P. Archer, mayor of Prestonsburg) is medical director and psychiatrist with the Center and is probably the first resident psychiatrist to serve the Big Sandy region. Richard Stal is director of the Center.

Dr. Dill is a member of a mobile team which hold mental health clinics here, on Monday and Friday of each week, and at Pikeville and Paintsville. The team also includes a psychologist (Jerry Coates), a psychiatric social worker (Hart Ransdell) and two part-time workers, Frank H. Layne, in the area of alcoholism, and the Rev. W. D. Jagers as pastoral consultant.

The region served is divided into three areas, Floyd-Magoffin, Johnson-Martin and Pike county-South Williamson. In each of these psychiatric social workers and nurses are at work.

There is strong emphasis on both salvation and All ages will enjoy this picture, and all people are invited.

SHARE-IN-FREEDOM WEEK TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Citizens of Floyd county will join the nation in the observance of "Share-in-Freedom" Week, beginning Sunday. Purpose of the week will be to acquaint more people with United States Savings Bonds and the companion Freedom Shares.

Miss Burieta Gearhart, chairman of the Floyd county Savings Bond Committee and local bank official, said that newspapers, radio stations, business firms and financial institutions had joined in the effort to bring greater awareness of the advantages of this savings device.

"More than half of our population is too young to remember the Bond Drives of World War II," Miss Gearhart said. "Therefore, most of today's bond buyers are people who acquired the habit back in the early '40's as a patriotic gesture, then discovered it was a mighty easy and convenient way to save regularly. Surprisingly enough," she added, "about 13 per cent of those war bonds have never been cashed, but are still earning interest for their owners."

Miss Gearhart pointed out that the current Series E Bond is better than ever, paying the higher 4.15% interest and maturing in only seven years. The Freedom Shares, offered as a bonus to regular bond buyers, pay 4.74% interest and mature, in four and a half years.

DID YOU KNOW? . . .

Did you know that just 151 years ago today, Canada and the United States agreed to limit naval armaments on the Great Lakes by signing the Rush-Bagot Treaty? Did you also know that United States Savings Bonds have a definite tax advantage? They are not subject to state and local income taxes, and the federal income tax on E Bond interest may be deferred to a later date. If you are holding them for retirement, they might even be completely tax-free.

WHERE THE ROAD FORKS

There was what appears to have been an interesting divergence in the thinking expressed at the 56th conference of the Council of the Southern Mountains in Lexington last week.

The council's board of directors endorsed support of a poor people's campaign in Washington, D. C., which has been planned by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and other groups.

This campaign was referred to as "a proposed expression by poor people of their needs." Pointing to the 1.2 million families in Appalachia who live below the poverty-index level, a resolution adopted by the directors says the council "has a historic commitment to thoughtful, dedicated and united action to resolve social problems."

The federal government already is pouring millions into education, roads, foodstuffs and housing for Appalachia. Certain programs are designed to fight unemployment.

It isn't clear what the poor people's campaign expects to say, specifically, to official Washington. Surely, not more handouts, more programs which leave people required only to hold their hands out. Could it be that they will be asking an opportunity for every able-bodied man to earn—repeat, "earn"—a full day's pay?

Or could the poor be planning through leadership from the Council of the Southern Mountains, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and other groups to ask for more direction by experts in the several areas of this thing called poverty?

If so, the divergence in thinking as expressed at the Lexington conference becomes more emphatic in view of a statement which was made by British economist and author, Robert Theobald, at the same conference. For Theobald argued that any change for the better in Appalachia must originate within the region by the people themselves to "lock the door against any more experts . . . who descend like plagues of locusts."

The Britisher, apparently far enough removed from the mountains to be able to see the trees, declared that these experts, helped along in the job by national radio, television, newspaper and magazine writers, are telling the people how they must change their way of life "to conform with the outside world." This, he maintains, has stripped the people of their pride—and this pride must be restored before any constructive progress begins.

So there the road forks—one headed for Washington, demanding bigger and better programs; the other, leading back to the old bastion of native pride, without which the mountaineer, though having a little more materially, will languish in the deeper poverty of the spirit.

This newspaper, which has never attempted to qualify for the role of expert on the ancient and deep-seated ills of this region, believes the sick and the helpless (and that includes young and old) should be cared for, and that opportunity should be afforded the rest of us to work for what we get. If there is left even a trace of the pride that once sustained mountain men and women through a hard life in a rough land, we will not want to be babied, by experts or anybody else.

The tour primarily was concerned with industrial sites, but all of the factors which attract industry — highways, airports, recreation areas, and such—were noted. This was the first of a series of thrusts planned into Kentucky's area of chronic unemployment—this unemployment not because of residents therein, but because of a shortage of industry, especially after the decline in the coal industry.

Participants on the tour were honored by luncheons at Hazard and Paintsville and a dinner at Pikeville, each sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce. Refreshments greeted the travelers at all other places.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

"THREE SCORE, THEN AND NOW"

When you are nineteen, sixty years seems like a very long time. When you are seventy-nine and look backward for sixty years, somehow it is not so very long. I have the same body, somewhat older, the same name, and, fortunately, some of the same living acquaintances. But, even to me, much of what took place in 1908, when I first came to Bowling Green, might have happened in 1808 or 1708, for I have great difficulty in remembering and making alive those events. One good thing has resulted from this long backward view: I am a good deal more tolerant of old people, now long gone, than I used to be. Like all young people, I used to think that memories got badly scrambled with dreams. Maybe the old fellows who used to spin what we, privately, called yarns had more truth on their side than we used to think. And maybe it would be kind if I repeated my having doubted a bit too much.

After all, the world that the old people of my childhood had known was far different from what I knew. Why, Uncle John Elkins, who lived to be ninety-three, could recall the end of the War of 1812 as well as I remember my first two or three terms at Fidelity School. As a little boy he had also gone with his father and older brothers on a hunting trip into the Indian Country, what was to be called, after 1818, the Jackson Purchase. That seemed a thousand years before my time, and yet here was a man fully alive who remembered our very neighborhood before a single log cabin had been put up, before there was even a trail of any sort from Tennessee River to Fidelity. My father always said that Uncle John had a very remarkable mind, and thus I am inclined to believe that his memories were actual history. When I got to be a big boy and had had a chance to read some history in the books, I was never able to find Uncle John at fault. I must say that he was a clam man and never indulged in what we now call tall tales.

But we had other old men, some of them much younger than Uncle John, whose memories seemed strange and stranger now, for I now know that many of the things they told, adventures in which they were the heroes, were just plain folk tales, told in varying forms all over the world. We children were taught to respect age, but had a hard time believing the yarns that Uncle Clark and Uncle Arch could reel off by the hour. How the Civil War turned out the way it did with such valiant soldiers on the Southern side puzzled me greatly. Some of my older brothers and sisters would laugh, privately again about some of the yarns, but I was afraid that I would be laughing at history in the flesh. For wasn't Uncle Clark actually at Shiloh? Didn't he distinguish himself there for bravery under fire? That could be proved, for some of our own relatives were there, men not given to exaggeration much, who saw him and gladly corroborated his accounts. But aside from the actual fighting side of the war, Uncle Clark could talk indefinitely, as one having authority. And it was just this big talk that I learned later was the traditional side of his memories. If what he said was his experience, then it happened again and again, through generations and centuries. But how could we youngsters, shut in by our range of hills, know that this was folklore and not history? Here, then, sixty or fifty years after I heard these old-timers talk, I want to apologize for ever doubting the history of Uncle John and for ever failing to appreciate the folk tales of Uncle Clark. Both were active men in a very changing world, both had been places and seen things, in a popular phrase, and both were exemplary citizens. Uncle Clark's marvelous achievements in no way affected his honesty in doing a hard day's work; he paid his "just and honest debts," he raised some mighty good children, and he, long after his adventures, passed on to realms which, let us hope, have satisfied some of his longings for adventure and bravery.

'WHATSOEVER THINGS'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

Major Stanley Barrett, of Chenes, England, has 35 prize poodles around his mansion. Because of them, Major Barrett slept pretty sound in the belief that no thief could enter his home without being detected. That is, he used to.

It seems that his prize poodles yapped their heads off (figuratively speaking), the other night. It happened to be a night when the wind was blowing hard. The next morning the 60-year-old major awoke to find that $7,000 worth of silver was missing.

Relating the incident later, the major remarked: "The dogs barked their heads off, poor things, and I ignored them. I honestly thought they were just barking at the wind."

There is a lot of truth in that story that we may miss because of the humor in it. The major had a purpose for his dogs and they fulfilled their purpose. They were to bark when danger was imminent. They were to warn, awaken, guard, arouse the major to the danger approaching. By doing this, the major could prevent any loss of his treasures.

The dogs did their part. They served their purpose well. They fulfilled their mission. They barked—loud and long. And the major heard them. That is, he heard the noise they were making. But he paid them no attention because, in his own words, he thought they were "just barking at the wind."

Now let's search that incident for some greater truth than meets the eye. There is in our civilization a watchdog designated with the purpose of keeping watch over our society. It is to bark when danger is approaching. It is to warn, to remind, to guard, to make sure that we do not lose our treasures. That watchdog is the Church.

Laugh if you will. Say that the Church has lost its purpose. Say it is no longer operating in the realm of reality. But in all your ridicule of the Church, you need at least to face some honest facts about it.

It is the only institution that has survived nearly two thousand years of punishment, pressure, and attempts to destroy it both from without and within. It is the only institution on the face of the earth that has always come forth from any challenge the victor and marched forth to serve in a grand and glorious way. And it hasn't always done this because of the humans in it. Often it has done this in spite of the humans in it.

The Church is barking today. Barking loud. Trying to warn our civilization about the pending danger of leaving the Creator out. But the crowd is ignoring it. Some are even fighting it. But it will not give up nor give in. It continues to be the watchdog. It continues to warn, to urge, to signal. It is trying to tell us that someone is trying to steal our most sacred treasures.

One thing we need to realize, and realize quickly—that is that the Church isn't "just barking at the wind."

SENATE OK'S LUNCH ACT

Perkins' Bill Goes To President; Needy Children To Benefit

Congressman Carl D. Perkins' bill to expand and extend the National School Lunch Act was passed by the Senate last week and sent to the President.

Last month, Perkins, chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, had piloted the bill through the House by a 398-0 vote. The Senate accepted the Perkins' bill without change after beating back two limiting amendments.

The bill provides for a three-year extension of the school lunch program and authorized $32 million a year to be spent through fiscal 1971. It also makes permanent the breakfast program for needy children which up to now has been a temporary project.

The new law will extend the lunch program to day-care institutions and other child-care institutions for children from areas in which poor economic conditions exist and from areas in which there are high concentrations of working mothers.

Kentucky's tentative annual apportionment under the $32 million authorization would be $1,045,558.

"The National School Lunch program has been invaluable to the school children of America for the past 21 years," Perkins said. "Now we extend its benefits to a broader group—to very young children in organized activities such as day care centers, settlement houses, neighborhood houses—and to any children in need of better nutrition that can be reached during the summer months in day camps or recreational centers."

Social Security Law Move a Step Nearer Equal Treatment

As a by-product of the recent changes in the social security law, women have moved a step closer to equality of treatment with their male counterparts.

And, with this step forward, their children also benefit. The 1967 Amendments of the Social Security Act provide that a child can now be deemed dependent on his mother under the same conditions as he previously was deemed dependent on his father.

This is an important change for many children under age 22. It means that some of them may now be eligible for child's social security benefits based on the earnings of a retired, disabled or deceased mother.

To qualify for child's social security benefits the child must be dependent on an eligible or deceased parent. If the child was not actually dependent on his mother, he was deemed to be dependent if the mother had credit under social security for 1 1/2 years out of the three-year period prior to retirement, disability or death. This recent work requirement is what formerly ruled out payments to many children of mothers who had worked long enough to qualify for retirement or disability benefits, but had not worked recently, and were not providing at least half of the child's support.

With the recent change in the law, the child can now be deemed dependent under the same conditions as those under which a child can become entitled to benefits based on his father's earnings.

The change in the law is effective with benefits for February, 1968. Nationally, an estimated 175,000 children have become immediately eligible for benefits beginning with the month of February, 1968. During the first year under this change, an additional $93 million in benefits will be payable to children. Persons having knowledge of children who might qualify under this provision should have the child's parent or guardian get in touch with the Pikeville, Ky., social security office located at Second & Division Streets, Pikeville, Kentucky.

Summer Head Start Program Is Funded By Slight Increase

Frankfort—Nineteen thousand children are expected to enroll in this summer's Head Start program in Kentucky, according to the Kentucky Office of Economic Opportunity which administers the federal program.

This summer's program will be funded by over $5 million—a slight increase over any previous summer program since 1965 when Head Start first began in Kentucky, a spokesman for OEO said.

This summer's enrollment will be in addition to 6,000 children from low income families who are attending full-year Head Start programs, the spokesman said. He also noted that school districts in 117 counties in Kentucky have either summer or full-year programs.

He said staffs operating the programs will be trained at five state universities, Kentucky State College and the University of Louisville.

Among the board of goals of Head Start are: improvement of the child's health; his ability to think, reason and speak clearly; build his self-confidence, and provide him with wider and varied experiences in broadening his horizons.

U.K. Publishes Report Of Study on Education

The first of a two-volume, two-year study of the quality of education in Kentucky's 197 school districts has been published by the University of Kentucky Bureau of School Service.

The report, by W. J. Diamond, IBM advisory statistician; Dr. Charles F. Martin Sr., and Dr. Richard I. Miller, of the UK College of Education, ranks each of the state's school system two ways—based on community, school holding power and achievement factors, and according to the latter two factors only.

Purpose of the study is to determine whether a school district is receiving a reasonably effective educational return for the amount of money spent.

The authors believe results of the study should help the legislature and the State Department of Education identify those districts that need attention and pinpoint the kind of help that is needed. When used with the second volume, on procedures for calculating improvements in each system, it will be possible to determine how much improvement can be expected from the proposed alternatives. The second volume will be published in the next few months.

The Ft. Thomas independent school district ranked highest in the state in the first set of rankings which employ 19 community and school factors. The Beechwood independent district in Kenton County scored highest in the second set of criteria, using only the holding power and achievement factors.

The first set used such factors as median grade attainment of citizens in the district who are 25 years or older; median family income; per pupil expenditure; elementary and secondary teachers' salaries; per cent of Rank I and Rank 4 elementary and secondary teachers; elementary and high school library expenditures; enrichment expenditure; teacher-pupil ratio, and the percentage attendance.

The second set cited the percentage of ninth graders who graduate from high school; the percentage of high school graduates who enter college; percentage of ninth graders who enter college; college qualification test scores, and the percentage who fail the armed forces qualification tests.

The study contains a profile of each district, using the factors in the first set, to show how the individual districts vary above or below the state average.

According to Dr. Martin, who has 20 years' experience in Kentucky high schools, the findings related to the first set of 19 factors indicate that:

Independent school districts are superior to county school districts in a large majority of cases.

Certain areas of Western, Central, and Northern Kentucky have school districts of higher quality than do Eastern Kentucky and adjacent areas.

Rankings suggest that community wealth and expendi-

Evangelist Dick Lythberg will speak starting Sunday morning, April 28, through Sunday, May 5, at 7 o'clock each night at the First Assembly of God Church at West Prestonsburg, Ky. Lythberg, an ordained minister of the Assemblies of God, brings a message of challenge for young people, and of deeper spiritual life for all.

Mr. Lythberg, 38, has the B.A. degree from Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill. and the B.D. from Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, Oakbrook, Ill. He has also attended Illinois Institute of Technology and Fuller Theological Seminary. An army veteran with a varied background, he has experience in home missions work as well as youth work, in which he has been affiliated with Youth for Christ, International directing a rally in Dodge City, Kansas. He has pastored two churches, in Chicago, Ill., his home, and Guthrie, Oklahoma. During the past two years Dick has been active in the evangelistic ministry as well as in the field of Christian Education. In the latter field he has taught in a Christian Day School in Chicago's inner-city, a very needy and challenging work.

Lythberg's quest for a deeper spiritual experience went on for several years and finally came to fruition when he received his heart's desire, the infilling with the Holy Spirit.

This was the beginning of a new life in the Spirit for him, with many new doors opening, which were previously closed.

All those interested in a deeper, more satisfying and more effective spiritual life will want to attend. The pastor, Lorie Vannucci, extends a welcome to all.

NUNN NAMES COMMITTEE TO NAME UK PRESIDENT

Frankfort—Gov. Louie B. Nunn has announced the names of faculty and board of trustees members designated to serve on a committee to screen candidates for the presidency of the University of Kentucky.

This action was made necessary by the recent resignation of Dr. John Oswald, who will leave the University on Sept. 1 to become executive vice-president of the University of California.

Four of the eight-member screening committee were named by the Governor to represent the board of trustees. The others were elected by the faculty—three to represent the main campus and one the community college system.

The Governor's appointees: Dr. Ralph Angelucci, Lexington; Mrs. Rex Blazer, Ashland; George Griffin, London; and

William Black, Paducah. Representing the faculty will be Dr. Albert D. Kirwan, professor of history; George W. Schwert, professor of biochemistry, College of Medicine; Paul G. Sears, professor of chemistry; and Charles E. Deusner, senior instructor in history, Elizabethtown Community College.

The Governor described his own appointees as "extremely able people who will represent the board quite admirably." He said Dr. Oswald, in a letter announcing the faculty representatives, had described them as men "of character... with a deep loyalty and devotion to the University of Kentucky."

Said the Governor: "I'm sure that each of these members shares with me a keen interest in the future of the University. They are charged with great responsibility. The recommendations they make will have a profound influence, not only on the University of Kentucky but on education at all levels throughout the Commonwealth."

BIDS ON NEW POST OFFICE AT HAROLD TO BE ASKED

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien has announced the Post Office Department is seeking competitive bids to build and lease the new post office at Harold.

The purpose of competitive bidding, Mr. O'Brien said, is to encourage the most attractive and economical offer to the Government in line with President Johnson's economy program to achieve the best possible postal service at the least possible cost.

Under the Department's Lease Construction Program, the successful bidder will construct the building according to departmental specifications, and lease it to the Post Office Department for a basic period of eight years, with options to renew the lease for an additional 20 years.

The Department's capital investment will be limited substantially to postal equipment. The building will remain under private ownership with the owner paying local real estate taxes.

Local residents and all parties interested in this project should contact Real Estate Officer J. F. Smith, Post Office Box 1999, Cincinnati, Ohio 45201. The real estate officer will furnish information relative to bidding, supply bid forms, building specifications, and lease provisions. Bids must be submitted to the real estate officer by May 24.

Engineers Stand Firm On Red River Dam But Fight Is Not Over

The Army Corps of Engineers is standing firm on its decision to dam the Red River Gorge but conservationists will get another chance to officially voice their objections.

The project will be the subject of a public hearing before a Senate committee later this month, and the Sierra Club of Kentucky is busy lining up witnesses.

The Engineers, in their final report on the gorge, said the Powell county reservoir will be built as Congress agreed in 1962. The dam would control the river in Powell and Morgan counties in Kentucky.

The report contains a letter from Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who pointed out that benefits would be approximately equal at either the upstream site or one downstream, as recommended by conservationists. Udall also said the change would add $2.7 million to the cost of the reservoir.

I Say What I Think

By S. C. VAN CURON

Frankfort, Ky.—With the May primary a little more than a month away, candidates in both parties have generated small reactions from the public because of the lack of campaigning.

However, it is expected to pick up some in the U. S. Senate race and in a few of the congressional races.

The number of Democrats, 13 in all, in the U. S. Senate primary have done little more than provide a guessing game for party leaders, but former Commerce Commissioner Katherine Peden seems far out in front at this time. Reason for this is that she announced way before Senator Thurston Morton said he would not seek re-election. No other Democrat seemed willing to tackle Morton, and this early decision has given Miss Peden the edge.

She had gathered most of the party-line stalwarts to her cause across the state, and now the others must win them away from her.

Another factor, the three other candidates who are trying to put up some form of strong campaign, are all from Fayette county—former State Representative Ted Osborn, former chairman of the Democrat State Central Committee Foster Ockerman, and former Representative John Y. Brown.

If these three stay in the race until the finish, it looks like they are going to divide the opposition to Miss Peden and insure her nomination. About the only way now for one of them to have a chance is for two of them to withdraw and to support the one they may decide to be the strongest against Miss Peden.

The picture is not muddled over in the Republican party. Here former Fifth District Congressman Eugene Siler is opposing Jefferson County Judge Marlow Cook.

Some observers are trying to guess what Gov. Louie B. Nunn will do in this race because he said at a press conference here, "Under no circumstance would I oppose Eugene Siler."

Some are trying to interpret this as meaning he will openly support Siler with strength in the latter days of the campaign while other observers hold to the thought that the governor will have a hands-off attitude. With the presidential election coming this year, the governor, as leader of the party, is not wanting to cause any turmoil within the ranks.

There is no way that last year's primary between Nunn and Cook can be compared with this one. In the first place, Nunn was familiar state-wide with all local party leaders; he was a very attractive candidate to Republicans, Democrats and Independents. He had made a strong showing four years before. He was about the same age as Cook.

Siler has not been exposed to a statewide race since 1951 when he opposed Lawrence Weatherby for the governorship. However, he is well known among people his age. He's over 60. He's a prominent lay preacher in the Baptist Church. No one doubts his integrity. The question may be age and lack of contact with the young.

Cook, while a Catholic, did not have such a bad showing in the primary against Nunn. He has the strong base of Jefferson county to operate from as opposed to Siler's strong base in the 5th District, the mountain stronghold of Republicanism.

Kentucky's general feeling of conservatism and the fact that Republicans now have the governorship, gives the GOP a feeling they will carry the state in the presidential election this fall, and they feel that can retain the U. S. Senate seat that was held by Morton.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the wonderful people for the kindnesses shown us upon the passing of Susanna Stone. We especially thank the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for its efficient service, and the ministers of the Regular Baptist Church for their kind and consoling words.

ALUMNUS TO DELIVER CENTENNIAL SERMON

Langley, Ky.—The Rev. Lee Edward Caudill, of the Maytown graduating class of 1956, will deliver the Centennial sermon in the Maytown Methodist Church, Sunday, July 28. He is the only native alumnus of the school to enter the ministry, and is now studying at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville. Rev. Caudill, son of Mrs. Elb Howell, will be introduced by Thomas Patrick, Mesdames Gene Frasure and Tommy Jones, choir directors, are in charge of musical for the occasion. All former pastors of the church have been invited for Homecoming.

A special and separate booklet on the church will be distributed at Homecoming. This will contain the complete history of the church, written by Mrs. Amanda Sutton, and will be free; whereas, the community and school Homecoming booklet with ads will be on sale Friday and Saturday of Homecoming week-end.

Some have erroneously inferred that Homecoming is to be a reunion of the May families. It will be reunion time for all Maytown families. Any former resident, teacher, or student, with his or her family, is eligible to attend. Seating capacity limits admission to present and past residents of Maytown and former Maytown students only. All local citizens must register, along with visitors, on Friday and Saturday, for identification tags which will admit them free to the programs in the gymnasium.

One large city newspaper in a nearby city has asked to do a feature on Homecoming here. Mrs. Thurmal Click, of the Publicity committee, has sent Homecoming reports to a dozen papers already. If any reader has a picture of the old Maytown school houses which stood on the Syd Begley and Townsel Combs properties, he or she is asked to lend them to Mrs. Click soon.

Unfortunately, some Maytownites have not yet been invited. Persons residing in the county will get none. Families living here are asked to notify their relatives and friends elsewhere. Address committee members of some graduating classes failed to secure addresses—hence, no invitations to their classes. No one need blame officers of the Homecoming Association when individuals accept committee posts and do nothing. Countless others are working hard. Maytown citizens who wish to help meet Homecoming expenses should see Thomas Patrick. Coming soon: the $64.00 Homecoming Question.

Mini-Bikers Must Comply with Law

Frankfort—All persons operating mini-bikes on public streets or highways in Kentucky must not only comply with all of the requirements for motor vehicle operators, but must also bring their mini-bikes into conformity with state safety regulations for motor vehicles, the Department of Public Safety advises.

Taking note of the increasing number of the miniature vehicles being operated in the state, Department officials said a large percentage of the mini-bikes are being operated without license plates. Many of the operators do not have drivers' licenses, and some are as young as nine or ten-years-old.

The Department pointed out mini-bikes, like all other motor vehicles, must be licensed if they are to be operated on streets and highways. Before such a vehicle can be licensed, it must be equipped with adequate brakes, horn, lights and other equipment required by state laws, and if involved in an accident the owner and operator must comply with the Financial Responsibility Law as do other motorists.

Riders of mini-bikes must have a valid drivers' license, and after June 13, 1968, be equipped with helmet and goggles or use a windscreens on the vehicles, since the small bikes fall into the same category with full-size motorcycles and motorbikes, and are subject to the same regulations.

Department officials said they do not encourage use of the miniature vehicles in traffic under any circumstances, but that if they are to be operated on public roads and streets, both the vehicles and the operators must comply with state laws.
