Hughes said the train of events leading to her resignation included a sudden move to transfer her to Kentucky Dam Village. She said the letter from Parks Commissioner Gable asking her to transfer was mailed on October 10, and that it called for her to report to Kentucky Dam Village on October 14. Unable to contact Gable by telephone until the Monday following receipt of the letter—which was the date for her to report at the new post—, Mrs. Hughes said she telephoned the commissioner on Monday, pointing out that she could not accept transfer because she could not take her son out of school here and because her husband would quit his job in this county. She said she was then told by Gable that if she did not transfer she would be fired. Later, she submitted her resignation.
 "What I didn't know," Mrs. Hughes said, "was, they already had a new housekeeper for my job."
 The former housekeeper added that when she returned to May Lodge Monday morning, Oct. 14, her desk had been opened.
 "I saw everything had been gone through—my desk had been turned upside down, all my records were gone, time sheets, maid sheets, all my housekeeping books, even my children's pictures."

ment Organization which secured a $1.8 million federal grant and $270,000 federal loan for the water project, said the AV's were endangering the plan. Well water in the area was described as dangerously polluted.
 Charles J. Persinger said it was difficult to get residents to sign up for water on the line, at an initial cost of $25 because the AV's and their allies were saying they could get it cheaper. Persinger said the development organization has been able to sign up only 12 of the 700 subscribers needed.
 Jean Auxier, an attorney for the water district, said he was certain the 700 signatures were prerequisite to the project and "if that fails, the whole project fails." He said the $25 hookup fee was required by Washington and was the best rate that could be obtained.
 The ultimate water proposal has been advocated by the Pike County Citizens Association (PCCA), a group which the AV's organized about six months ago.
 PCCA Chairman James Hamilton, 74, said the required 700 signatures could not be obtained at the $25 rate because Marrowbone Creek residents were too poor to pay it.
 For that reason, said Hamilton, the PCCA drew up what it thought was a fair plan, which would provide the water free to families below the federal poverty line in income and for a $5 fee to others.
 Hamilton acknowledged that his group had not consulted engineers nor anyone else and had not presented any plans to the federal government. He also praised the AV's, saying they were helpful and he had "never talked to nicer people" than them.
 Harry Eastburn, of Paintsville, area director of the Big Sandy Community Action program, said his agency has had difficulty with the AV's because of a difference in philosophies.

 The candidacy of Thomas J. Spears in Division 3 was not challenged. By argument his name was removed as a candidate in Division 5, to correct an obvious error.
 Both Lawson and Crawford were granted an appeal from the decision.

Was The Preacher 'Protected'?

The Kentucky Labor News belabors Kentucky newspapers for their failure to publish an Indiana story which told of the arraignment of the Rev. Jack Anderson, of Sturgis, Ky., on charges stemming from the theft of $62,000 in bond money from an Indiana church.

The News claims that the same offense by a union man would have made every edition, with pictures in the papers and pictures via TV, and at the same time infers that the press has soft-pedaled stories of hi-jinks when the hi-jinks were bankers, public officials, doctors, company officials or even ministers.

That hasn't been our experience, and we can remember all the way back to Jimmy Walker and the Rev. Frank Norris. Only recently, the respected firm of Merrill-Lynch got full journalistic coverage when it was accused of straying from the straight and narrow. The press, often accused of heartlessness, and often unable to disprove the charge, usually measures the newsworthiness of an event and lets the chips fall. And when a minister of the gospel strays he usually winds up, as he should, the blackest sheep of all.

Kentucky newspapers may have failed to get into the act, in full cry with the pack, on the Rev. Mr. Anderson because he went over into another state to get into trouble. The news coverage failure probably started at that end, not this.

Whoever is to be blamed, The Labor News surely doesn't expect the guilt of the press or the preacher or anybody else to mitigate that of any union man who gets caught with his hand in the cookie jar.

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

The newspapers reported the story of two brothers in Egypt. It was a pathetic story. It was really the kind of story that hurts.

Saladdin Hassaneyn was 18 years old. Rumors began to go around that Saladdin was a thief and a homosexual. His brother, Mohamed Abdel Hassaneyn, came to Saladdin and told him he must die because of the rumors. Saladdin agreed, according to the news story, Mohamed gave Saladdin his choice for the spot of death and Saladdin replied, "Let it be in a field." They chose a spot in the Mediterranean city of Alexandria. There Mohamed strangled Saladdin with a headscarf.

Immediately after the act was committed, Mohamed went to their mother and boasted of the crime to her. Then Mohamed went to a police station and confessed. The report went on to say that Egyptian courts do not usually hang for "murders of honor." Mohamed can expect a 25-year sentence with a generous remission.

If one goes back into history several hundred years he will find that the first murder ever committed had a lot of similarities to the one committed recently in Egypt. There were two brothers who went into the field. One became jealous of his brother and murdered him. One difference between the two murders was that the first would not admit his guilt while the second boasted of his.

Right or Wrong

By HENRY A. BUCHANAN and BOB W. BROWN

President Svoboda has emerged as the real hero of the Czech revolution. Bowing before the overwhelming military might of the Soviet Union, the crusty old general still beat the Russians at their own game. By a daring but clever trick, Svoboda secured the release of Dubcek and other top reformers destined for a Soviet oblivion. In doing so, it may be that he has turned the tide of history and become the herald of the eventual collapse of the totalitarian Soviet regime.

According to the story now being told, Svoboda threatened to kill himself, unless Dubcek and the other Czech reformers were released. Nobody would believe he had killed himself. Svoboda reasoned — and told his Soviet captors. Knowing their character from their past deeds, the world would certainly assume that his Soviet overlords had murdered the Czech President.

The Russians, faced with this "gun to his own temple" threat, backed down, released the Czech reformers, and a ray of hope for Prague crept into the otherwise dark and dismal picture of Soviet invasion.

Then, with great self-discipline and patient understanding of his harassed countrymen, Svoboda infused his comrades with the courage to face the crushing responsibilities of leadership of an occupied nation. In the streets of Prague true patriotism as-

When one reads a story like that in today's world we wonder how far man has progressed, from the first man. We speak of our "advancements," and maybe we have advanced in the area of scientific research and methods. But you wonder sometimes if man's advancements in the area of human relations have kept pace with the advancements in the area of science. And the more you think about it the more you are convinced that they have not.

But they could have, and that's the tragedy. Ever since Cain killed Abel, even before that, our Creator has been trying to get us to get along with each other. The problem is that we can't get along with Higg and that prevents us from getting along with each other. Because of this, He chose a cross. This is the highest and greatest attempt He ever made in His efforts of reconciliation of man and Master.

There are parts of the world, here and abroad, where the Galilean has never been admitted. They are not all geographical, either. His message has never been carried by anyone to those parts or has not been received. There are those, too, who oppose any efforts to spread the Good News. They say the Message doesn't make any difference. If Saladdin Hassaneyn and Mohamed Abdel Hassaneyn had known the Galilean, Saladdin would still be alive. And that would be a difference.

Five preceded her in death, leaving nine living. Names of those living are Mary Prater, Lula Prater, Jamima Prater, Bill Prater and Jimmie Prater, all of Hueysville, Ky.; Martha Ousley, Dundas, Ohio; Ella Prater, McArthur, Ohio; Maxie Patton, Hippo, Kentucky; Sarah Hammonds, Water Gap, Kentucky. She raised one grandchild, Muri Prater, whom we dearly love. She leaves 52 grandchildren and 104 great-grandchildren and some great-great-grandchildren and six brothers and sisters and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss. Names and address of brothers and sisters are as follows: John Ousley, Jamima Ousley, Cephs Ousley and George Ousley, all of Risner, Kentucky; Narcie Hicks and Zella Miller, of Willard, Ohio; Aunt Curley joined the Old Philadelphia Regular Baptist Church about 56 years ago, and the life she lived showed she was a good Christian woman and mother. I visited her very often before and after she was afflicted and we would sing songs for her and she would slap her hands and praise the Lord. I could write a lot more good things about her but I don't feel it necessary. We feel our loss here on earth is heaven's gain.

Written by her nephew, Zeb Ousley, Hueysville, Ky.; submitted by her daughter, Mrs. Sarah Hammonds.

GHOST PLANT OF THE FOREST

The exotic and unusual Indian Pipe, which seems to spring up in the "spirit gardens" of cool, damp forest solitudes, is one of the weirdest plants found in nature. It blooms during July and August, mostly along cool, damp stream banks and in deep, shadowy coves of the mountains.

This strange plant has many striking names, given to it by flower lovers in a vain effort to express something of its fantastic nature. It is called the "corpse plant," as it is ivory white—pale as a corpse. It is called by such colorful names as Convulsion Root and Fit Root, as the Shawnee Indians used its ball of matted rootlets to make a medicine for convulsions and epileptic seizures. While these Indians, as well as other tribes, regarded the Indian Pipe with something akin to awe, they believed it was a good medicine sent to them by the Great White Spirit; so they used it as a medicine for their eyes, making a soothing lotion from its roots to drop in their eyes, much as we do today use murine.

Indian Pipe is also called, "Ice Plant," and "Frozen Jelly." It is cold, aloof, brittle and cannot be handled. If one picks a plant of it to handle it and study its structure, it will melt away in the hand like ice, leaving nothing but a black residue.

By its very nature this plant expresses something of the unknown mysteries of the deep forest. It comes from the dead—it lives on the dead! It has no green chlorophyll to make food, so it lives on the dead matter of the forest floor. Those who have made a careful study of the Indian Pipe claim its beauty can scarcely be seen, but must be felt or sensed, and if one stands quietly and looks at a colony of the ghostly plants, a strange feeling of something ethereal, something almost unreal from the nether world, creeps over him, and it is said to be one of the most thrilling of nature's experiences to come suddenly upon a colony of ghost pipe in the deep-shadowed woods.

Botanists call this plant, Monotropa, which means to turn, in allusion to the way the plant turns to one side at the top; also, Uniflora, which means having a single flower. The plant produces the flower at the top; it is shaped like a bell and nodds over, suggesting a pipe. The leaves are mere scaly bracts, wan white, and look like something that was born before its time.

Some admirers of this wild flower call it, "the white-robed nun of the forest." The plant stands waxy white and purely chaste, like a nun in a white robe. The flowers are things of rare beauty, with four or five petals and sepals and about eight stamens.

Indian Pipe is one plant of the wilds that is utterly impossible to move and transplant. It turns black and melts away before one has time enough to get it transplanted. It seems to resent being touched or handled, as it has an aloof, hands-off attitude, like something that is too fragile and brittle to be touched by irreverent hands.

The Indian Pipe often forms colonies of several plants and seems to lend a ghostly aspect to deep, shadowed places where it grows. It is such a rare and unusual plant, the botanists have placed it in a family of its own, The Indian Pipe Family, and have named the family, Monotropaceae.

Certainly Indian Pipe is one of nature's most unusual creations; it is a plant with an ephemeral beauty that lights up the dark gloom of deep woods with a pure white glow and then quickly melts away into the limbo of ghostly things.

If you should be lucky enough to find a colony of Indian Pipe in bloom this summer, take time to sit down and observe it closely. It is better not to touch it, or to handle it in any way. Just sit still and let its rare beauty steal into your soul and you will have an outdoors experience you won't soon forget.

A PLANT NOT TO BE TEASED

When I was a boy and had to go to the pasture to drive home the cows, my grandma would say, "Don't tease the teasel, sonny." I soon learned to heed her warning and I let the teasel strictly alone. No creature would ever bother a teasel; no cow, no matter how tough her tongue might be, ever dared to take a bite of teasel. It grew aloof, staunch, and stood stiffly erect, seemingly without fear of being molested. Because teasel is beyond all doubt the best armored plant known.

It is covered with sharp prickles and has large, sharp thorns standing upright around the cylinder flower head. Some people call teasel the "devil's horns." It looks formidable enough to merit this frightful appellation and reminds me of the picture of the devil with his horns sticking up—a picture I used to shudder at when I read the book, SERMONS BY THE DEVIL.

Yet, for all this, teasel is one of the most highly useful plants known. It is not handsome by any standards of plant beauty; it thrives in pastures, old clearings and in waste places along roadsides. The plant has other common names: Fuller's teasel and Card teasel. The large, spiny heads of teasel were once widely used to clean and card wool. They were cut and dried and came in handy back in our grandmothers' day, when people had their own sheep and carded wool for knitting socks for the family.

The spiny cylinder heads of teasel are also used in the manufacture of woolsens of all kinds. The heads are seasoned dry and then fitted on spindles that rotate rapidly, for cleaning cloth and raising the nap on woolsens. It is said there has not yet been made any mechanical device that can do this job as efficiently as the spiny heads of teasel.

It would seem that nature has a purpose for creating every kind of plant or any creature. Teasel was highly regarded as a useful settler in the days of the early pioneers, who brought it from Europe and got it started in America. It is said to be found growing in every county of West Virginia; also throughout Eastern Kentucky, as far south as Tennessee, and north to Michigan. It is such a prickly biennial plant and so unusual, the botanists have assigned it to a family of its own, The Teasel Family, DIPSACACEAE. The lower leaves of teasel form a cup which holds a "death bath" for drowning insects, which the plant absorbs for nourishment.

It is almost impossible to handle teasel plants without gloves on the hands, as the whole plant is protected by sharp prickles. The flower spikes produce a few small lilac colored flowers, which are protected by sharp bristles. The plants often form small colonies in waste places or in pastures and grow about three or four feet high. The leaves are large, opposite and clasp the stem. They are covered with sharp spines along the midrib of the leaf. Even the stalk is armed with very sharp prickles. So teasel is one plant that is well equipped by nature to protect itself from injury of any kind.

Johnny Pack, Age 83, Is Claimed Saturday At Martin Hospital

Johnny Roscoe Pack, 83-year-old retired railway worker, of Martin, passed away Saturday at Our Lady of the Way hospital there after a lingering illness.

A former employee of the C. & O. Railway Co., Mr. Pack had resided at Martin for the last 44 years.

He was born May 27, 1885 at Blaine, Ky., a son of the late Daniel and Katherine Francis Pack. His wife, Mrs. Gypsy Pigg Pack, also preceded him in death.

Surviving are two sons, Ray Pack, of Martin, and Leonard Pack, of Hueysville; three daughters, Mrs. Lena Dintin and Elsie Pack, both of Martin, and Mrs. Dixie Warren, of Ashland, Ky.; one brother, Jay Stepp, of Ashland, and a sister, Mrs. Mirzie Jordan, of Blaine. He also leaves 13 grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the Martin Free Will Baptist Church, of which he was a member, the Rev. Brodey Amburgey officiating. Burial was made in the Wooten cemetery in Lawrence county under the direction of Merion Funeral Chapel.

TIME FOR A CHANGE HOW TRUE IT IS WHY?

Oh, Man! Do you want to be free? Of course you do, from the clutches of an all-powerful government, of the few, by the few and for the few. Taxpayers have never worked so hard and had so little for their money, as they have for the past four years. Their money has been thrown world-wide until the dollar is losing its face every day. We have had a lot of earning power, but it has been blood money, which seems to be the only way the free wheelers can have what they call prosperity, which is at the cost of the life of an American boy.

Our export versus import trade is getting so out of balance that we are heading for financial catastrophe or downfall; i.e., we are buying more than we are selling. This can't last. We are pricing ourselves off the market. There must be a solution to this problem. There is a solution, but Mr. Johnson and his aides don't seem to care. They are leaning with the fall as long as the dollar lasts, but if it isn't stopped the terrible pain of the consequence is coming later. Oh, well, he'll be gone and he has made his wad, and do you think his boy Hubert is going to do any better? Do you think his boy Hubert will do anything different than what has been done, except to do more of the same and worse? Many will say, I don't see how Hubert can do any worse, but he will. He had his chance to put forth his ideas and his force to stop the burning of our cities, but he was never heard of or from in these crises. Now to turn Hubert Humphrey loose with our nation, is the most reckless thing the American people could possibly do. Short of national suicide, he just does not have the equilibrium, or overall balance, to run the most powerful office in the world.

We need a man with the highest integrity and fortitude to step in and iron out the many problems that are harassing our nation. We have two men to do the job, and will do the job, Richard M. Nixon and Spiro Agnew. Mr. Nixon has given a prompt, complete answer to each and every question about the problems and how he would handle them. He has shown his willpower and fortitude by making a rebound from bottom to top, he has been persistent, sincere and honest in every respect. Most of all, he has the interest of his country in his heart, and will strive to do everything in his power for the good of the nation, one and all. He is stable and unwavering and is not afraid of problems and will wade right into them to solve them, for the good of all concerned. This is our golden opportunity to put in a team that will go to battle for our cause and free us from the terrible mess or calamity we are in. Vote Nixon, Vote Agnew, Vote Cook.

Also come one, come all and attend speaking and rally at Republican headquarters in Richmond Plaza, Friday evening at 8:00 p.m., October 18th. Speaking by Mr. John Kerr, State Champaign Chairman. Floyd County Republican Campaign Committee W. T. Foley, Chairman

In Memoriam

In memory of my dear husband, Luther Allen, who passed away October 15, 1967 (one year ago):

The waiting time of the day for me
Is just like it was before—
It's the time of the day when I listen
And wait for the sound of your key in the door.
It's the time of the day when I make believe
That soon you'll be home with me—
Then my world will be lovely and bright
Again the way that it use to be;
I'll feel the touch of your hand
Once more
And in the nearness I'll find
The remembered warmth that I
Always found, the closeness of spirit and mind.
I'll think of your smile and hear your voice,
As plain as if you were here—
Then all of the sorrow and grief I've known
Will magically disappear.
Please, God, let me go on pretending—
For this is the only way I can bear the silence around me
At the waiting time of the day.
Sadly missed by wife, Helen, and family.

PAINTSVILLE GIRL TELLS NEW YORK EXPERIENCES

"Now that I have worked on two New York magazines as an intern, I know what is awaiting me when I return to work there. The speaker is Miss Linda Harrington, University of Kentucky senior journalism student from Paintsville who was one of 35 interns sponsored by the Magazine Publisher's Association during the past summer.

All UK journalism students are encouraged to enter the internship program, and Miss Harrington was the first UK student interning under the auspices of the association.

Miss Harrington spent five weeks each at "McCall's" and at "Reader's Digest."

She worked in every department while at the Digest, edited about five articles, and "went through the whole process of preparing copy," she says.

She spent much of the time at the Digest in the research department, where she researched two articles, but "research is overstaffed," she recalls, and she was not called upon to do much work.

"Reader's Digest" is headquartered at Pleasureville, in the New York suburbs, so the magazine provided her with quarters in a motel.

Miss Harrington says Reader's Digest operates under no more than Manhattan-based publication and at a slower pace, adding, "and it has a more stable staff."

At McCall's, Miss Harrington worked only in the fiction department, where she read "stacks and stacks" of stories submitted by outside writers. "Those I liked, I passed on to an editor," she says.

"I found several stories that were well-written but were not suitable for McCall's. Actually, I turned over only four stories."

"McCall's knows what they are aiming for and the type of woman the stories are to appeal to, but I have a rather broader definition of the modern woman than McCall's does," she continues.

They say the type of woman to which the stories must appeal is married and interested in her home. But the magazine does not give her enough credit for interest in other things. They also say that the fiction should be about things such a woman has experienced. Of course, they have been successful and it seems to work."

All the employees in McCall's fiction department are women, Miss Harrington says. The fiction editor also is a woman. Many of the editors, however, are men. So are most of the artists."

She explains that editors mostly mold the material rather than write it. "So I know I probably would not have a magazine job at which I sit and write."

Miss Harrington would like to live in New York City for a year, but "not for the rest of my life. There is a different atmosphere there."

She adds that "there are many talented people in New York, and they all want the 'good' job. I know it is not going to be easy to get established there. Jobs are more competitive at McCall's, but I expected that. There also is a big staff turnover there."

Miss Harrington, who will be graduated from UK in December, says she would rather work with features or fiction. "I learned through conferences with the McCall's editors that magazines want people with newspaper experience, so I might do that first."

Miss Harrington said she stayed at Johnson Hall on the Columbia University campus while interning in New York.

She recalls seeing only three protest marches. "One group passed through the dorms once, but none of the three got out of order," she says.

When the Columbia dormitory was closed for the remainder of the summer, Miss Harrington moved into an apartment for two weeks with some other girls.

Her advice to high school seniors interested in magazine jobs:

"Write. Work on your school paper, if you possibly can. Take a typing course. When you get to college, be interested also in something besides writing, so you can specialize. You will have a much better chance this way, the magazine editors tell me."

She says there are many technical publications seeking writers with specialized knowledge. "The possibility of interning in such a program as I have should be investigated." She cites it as a valuable experience. "There are many such programs if you are alert to them," adds the 1965 graduate of Paintsville high school.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Harrington, of Paintsville.

How Former Floyd Man Got Republican Plum

By FRED W. LUGART, JR.
(In The Courier-Journal)

Frankfort, Ky. — William H. May, long a kingmaker in Kentucky Democratic politics, is finding that life for him can be just as beautiful under the Republicans.

The main reason is that state highway engineers and money-lenders like the way May's firm — Brighton Engineering Co., of Frankfort — goes about designing and engineering toll roads.

This is the explanation being offered by Republicans here to explain why Brighton was awarded a $350,000 personal service contract with the state highway department as general consulting engineer on two planned toll roads.

These were the first contracts awarded to Brighton under the Republican administration of Gov. Louie B. Nunn, a frequent critic of May during last year's gubernatorial campaign.

The contract covers consulting engineering work on the 73-mile Owensboro-to-Bowling Green toll road, and the 90-mile Bowling Green-to-Somerset toll road. Estimated cost of the two roads is $140 million.

Brighton will be paid a fee of one-fourth of one percent of construction cost for the location study, and the $350,000 total is based on that ratio.

In fact, Brighton may collect at least $2.8 million if the contract is later revised, as expected, to include fees for design work and construction supervision.

Other engineering contracts held by May during the previous Democratic administration, including those for the Henderson-to-Owensboro toll road and the Hazard-to-London toll road, have been continued or revised by the Nunn administration.

Brighton had the lion's share of consultant and engineering road contracts for the eight years of former Democratic Govs. Bert Combs' and Edward T. Breathitt's administration.

Throughout this same period, May served on the Democratic Party's finance committee and was known to be a large contributor to the party. He also did considerable business with the state Highway Department during the administrations of former Democratic Govs. Lawrence W. Weatherby, now a Brighton official, and A. B. "Happy" Chandler.

It was these circumstances that caused Nunn to assert during the campaign that, if elected, he would see to it that May and his firm were turned out to pasture.

Why, then, the decision to award these latest toll road contracts to the firm May serves as board chairman?

Nunn's top aides say it was the product of several factors, all of which added up to the conclusion that Brighton knows "how to cut the mustard" when it comes to engineering toll roads.

Not the smallest aspect of this mustard-cutting was the discovery by the Nunn administration that Brighton enjoys an enviable reputation within the state and national financial communities.

Bankers and underwriters testified to this in letters to the state Highway Department when the department was shopping around for information on Brighton's reputation.

One large national underwriting group that has financed toll roads throughout the nation, including some engineered by Brighton, informed Highway Commissioner William B. Hazelrigg in a letter dated July 26: "We have found no consulting engineering firm more accurate or more cooperative than Brighton. I might add that we have no reluctance whatsoever in basing our financing commitment on cost and engineering reports prepared by the Brighton firm."

A similar recommendation came from one of the state's leading metropolitan banks. It advised the department that "at no time have we had occasion to be in doubt about the validity of decisions made by Brighton Co. . . We consider them to be a firm of integrity and ability."

Another factor that tipped the scale in Brighton's direction stemmed from advice the Nunn administration got from some of the nation's leading investment houses.

Several of these firms informed Nunn's financial advisers that Kentucky, to obtain a reasonable interest rate on bonds it must sell to raise the money to build the two toll roads, should hire a consulting engineering firm that has a "national reputation."

"The bond holders want the assurances of a national reputation protecting their investment during the lifetime of the bonds," a Nunn aide explained. "The investment people told us that if you're going to engineer a toll road system as large as this one will be, it's necessary—to secure the soundness of the bonds and to assure that the road will be built—that you have continuity . . . to get a favorable rate (on the bonds)."

Brighton, because of its experience in engineering toll roads in Kentucky and elsewhere, and because it has a "national reputation," provides the "state and the bond holders with that continuity," he added.

Nunn's financial team was also told, he said, that the value of hiring a nationally recognized engineering consulting firm for the two projects could save the state, depending on the bond market, around one-eighth of one percent interest cost on the bonds—a "savings" that could amount to $10 million or more over the 40-year life of the bonds.

Another financial factor that entered into the decision, the aide said, was Brighton's "ability to start work on the two projects without undue delays."

"May knows how to cut through red tape in the Highway Department," he added. "It would take other firms around six months longer just to get started."

The Nunn administration also was influenced by a poll — undertaken by Highway Commissioner Hazelrigg — that showed Highway Department engineers clearly preferred Brighton over other Kentucky firms.

Hazelrigg asked "several" department engineers to send him unsigned letters giving their choices for general consulting engineer for the two projects.

The engineers were asked to give preference to a Kentucky firm, and also to consider "work record, working relations with the (Highway) department, size of staff and other pertinent facts about overall performance." They were told not to be influenced by personal friendships or dislikes.

The survey produced 16 votes for Brighton, four for another firm, and two each for two other firms.

All four firms had the capacity to "do the job," said a Highway Department official. "One didn't want it, the second bowed out in favor of Brighton, and a third wanted it . . ." None of the firms was identified.

Emergency Case Speed-Up Ordered

Frankfort, Ky. — An order to speed-up claims for Public Assistance in emergency cases has been issued by Economic Security Commissioner Eugene Goss.

Goss said the action is the result of a trip to Wolfe county where he found a mother and four small children "living under the most deplorable of conditions" who had filed for assistance two weeks before the day of his visit.

"The social worker in charge of the case had not yet made the home visit required before the grant could be approved. Meanwhile, the family was in desperate need of food, adequate clothing and shelter," Goss said. The order issued by Goss calls for:

1. All applications are to be reviewed immediately by the caseworker who will determine if an emergency situation exists.

2. Emergency situation means there is a substantial absence of food, clothing, shelter and medical attention when this is not otherwise available through public or private sources.

3. Caseworkers will give such cases priority to seek and obtain emergency relief or assistance including food stamps from all public and private sources.

4. In these emergency cases, the caseworker shall notify the supervisor of field operations in Frankfort who shall see that funds are made available to the approved applicant as soon as possible.

DEMOCRATS!

It Is Time To Think and Work For the Democratic Party!

Did You Know—

That 93% of the Republicans in the House and 64% of the Republicans in the Senate voted against Medical Care for the Aged?

That 73% of the Republicans in the House voted against the Elementary and Secondary Education Act?

Do not be misled by Republicans and other candidates. SUPPORT CARL PERKINS BY GIVING HIM A DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENT AND U. S. SENATOR TO WORK FOR THE BEST INTEREST OF THE NATION AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY.

Daryl Enix, Infant Son Of Former Co. Resident, Is Strangulation Victim

The three-year-old son of a former Floyd county woman died last Thursday at his parents' home on Airhill road, near Brookville, Ohio, after choking on popcorn.

The victim was Daryl Enix, youngest of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. James Enix. Mrs. Enix is the former Irene Goble, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Will Goble, of Dwale.

The Montgomery (O.) coroner's office said the child was eating popcorn when he choked. When her effort to clear the tot's throat failed, Mrs. Enix called the Brookville rescue squad, but the child was dead when the squad arrived at the home.

Surviving, besides the parents, are two brothers and a sister, Tommy, James Aaron and Sheila. Burial was made at Brookville.

We humans, dependent though we are on nature's gifts, must provide against it. Shelter from the cold, the storm, the heat, for instance. Homes, places of business which afford the greatest degree of comfort and yet are clean in line and beauty.

OPERATION TALENT SEARCH ON IN EASTERN KENTUCKY AFTER MOREHEAD U. MEET

Guidance counselors representing a 21-county area, including Floyd county, attended a two-day Operation Talent Search conference September 30 and October 1 on the Morehead State University campus to learn how to discover undiscovered talents in their students.

Speakers at the conference included Dr. Emmitt Burke, director of Talent Search at Western Kentucky University; Lola Doane, counselor at Bellefleur high school, Pike county, and Samuel Robinson, principal of The Lincoln School.

Financed by a $50,754 federal grant, Operation Talent Search has the purpose of identifying, encouraging and motivating young people of exceptional ability but lacking the financial resources to continue their education above the high school level.

Talent, defined by Operation Talent Search personnel, is not only intellectual, but also includes social leadership potential and physical ability in music, art, sports, or creative ability.

Campus workers supplement work of guidance counselors by providing a super-structure in an effort to discover students who don't realize they have special talents.

It is hoped that 40 percent of the student body at each high school will be termed "talented" and will go on for a post-secondary education in a vocational school or college.

Counselors who attended the conference are to administer questionnaires to high school juniors and seniors in each of the 70 high schools in the area. Teachers are asked to evaluate the students. The permanent record of each student is checked for grade average, achievement scores and IQ evaluation. This information is placed on data processing cards, and a computer selects the top 40 percent of the students.

Students chosen are then encouraged to stay in high school and seek post-secondary education by films and programs designed especially for their situation.

MY FRIENDS:

Some months ago I decided to become a candidate for member of Board of Education, District 4. I proceeded to obtain 41 of my friends and neighbors' signatures on the petition declaring my candidacy. After I filed the necessary papers with the Clerk of the Floyd County Court, my opposition secured a copy of it and persuaded 24 of my signers (by telling them it wouldn't hurt me) to likewise sign Bill Blair's petition, thus voiding both documents.

An addition to the original petition containing an adequate number of new and different signatures was filed by Mr. Blair. As a result, my name will not appear on the ballot at the coming election. However, we have decided to conduct a write-in campaign.

I remain determined to oppose such tactics and maneuvering to attempt to evade a fair election. I strenuously object to the high-powered politics and pressure being applied to all the school employees and every phase of our society.

As all my neighbors and friends know, I have devoted much time and energy to help improve our schools and school program.

I will furnish a description of how a write-in can be made on the ballot.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE GROUP HERE IS PATTERNED AFTER LEXINGTON ORGANIZATION

The Lexington Children's Theatre presented MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre this summer, and the production received such high praise here that a group of interested citizens met with the theatre staff with the idea of organizing a group here. Purpose of the organization is to inspire all young people to participate in drama, musicals and all phases involving the theatre. The following officers were elected:

President, Harold Cooley; executive vice-president, Cloyd Johnson; vice-president of production, Mrs. Lee Shannon; vice-president of public relations, Mrs. Earl Martin; vice-president of finance, Raymond Bradbury; secretary-treasurer, Marshall M. Davidson.

Mrs. Leo Weddle, head of the English Department at the Prestonsburg Community College, will be the artistic director for plays the local group will present. Tom Omara, technical director for all of the plays at Jenny Wiley Theatre this summer, will also assist in the productions. Committees will be announced later.

Plans are under way for a play to be presented, the last of November. Auditions will be held at the Archer Park Theatre, Wednesday, October 9, from 3 to 5 p.m.; Friday, October 11, 3 to 5 p.m., and Saturday, October 12, 10 a.m. to 12 noon. All between the ages of eight and 18 are urged to attend.

Progress Means CHANGE

Elect
Thomas J. Spears

To
Floyd County Board of Education
District 3

TO THE TEACHER

In addition to the qualification requirements of the minimum foundation, I propose to provide further safeguards for Floyd County Teachers. My contention is that there is not a single employee of the Floyd County School System who has not felt the pressure or influence of its administrators in matters which do not relate to his employment.

The URGING to donate to various funds, political and otherwise; the WHISPERS that one must support the employee's candidate in every election that comes along; the FEELING that the teacher must conform to his (board member) every whim; these are the conditions I seek to relieve. I propose a PUBLIC SCHOOL MERIT SYSTEM.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals has established, in a manner of rulings, that "The Superintendent will recommend and the Board of Education will hire," relating to employment for various jobs and placement, but I hope to adopt a policy under which the Superintendent will "recommend" by a specific set of rules which I will call the PUBLIC SCHOOL MERIT SYSTEM.

I also propose:
1. That all schools in Floyd county have a broader athletic program so as to meet the needs of ALL children.
2. That parents who have children attending school in a certain district should have a voice in selecting a board member in that district.

3. That teachers should be teaching in major fields of study in order to present the BEST instruction.
4. That qualified teachers who live in a particular district should be considered first for employment in that area.

It is the dream and ambition of every American to be free to choose his friends and speak his mind on issues that concern the individual. There exists today in Floyd county certain barriers to this dream, and there are numerous "examples" of "ex-employees" who failed to yield to every whim. Under the present system YOU MAY BE NEXT. THINK IT OVER.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT STUDY IS MADE AT SEMINAR HERE

City and county officials are studying the strength and weakness of local government in a series of seminars being held in 15 southeastern Kentucky county seats by Eastern Kentucky University.

The seminar for Floyd, Johnson and Magoffin counties was held here last Thursday.

Assistant Professor Rodger S. Gunn, of Eastern's Political Science Department, is conducting the seminars for officials of 21 counties. The meetings are being held in court houses.

Gunn said the purpose of the seminars is improvement in the quality and amount of political leadership in the small city and the rural county.

Half the cost of the seminars is provided by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Gunn said, "Virtually all literature on local government problems is geared to the big cities and metropolitan areas." This supports the conclusion, he said, "that relatively little attention is being given to smaller, less populous localities."

One important aim of the seminars is development in the local official of a change from the subjective to the objective view of public issues, Gunn said. "Certainly most public officials are keenly aware of their political positions and strive to promote their own continuance in office," he added.

To the Editor

THE MISTAKES WE HAVE MADE

EDITOR, The Times:

I read what Mr. Hall from McDowell wrote, and I am pleased to hear some one speak out against what is happening in our county.

The first mistake we let happen was when we let the Bible be ruled out of schools as unconstitutional because some one got offended by something it said. We who believe the Bible and how it tells us were created, should have had the same right about the science books, because the part about how we were created the science books teach opposite what The Bible teaches.

Another mistake was when censorship was lifted and that anything goes. Each movie producer tried to out do the other by making the most obscene movies and now the filth is coming into our homes by television. Every movie is filled with sex and violence. Everyone who desired to do so started committing adultery under the names of the New Sex Freedom and the Sex Revolution. Regardless of what some of these people believe, sex has been around a long time and adultery is still adultery.

As for the Hippies and Yippies, they are nothing new; they are just vagrants glamorized by television. I believe if parents would put themselves back in the place where they belong, and put down all the books on what to do and not do, we would have less trouble with the children.

Rearing children is just like making up any other recipe—you have to put in the right amount of ingredients at the right time, if you try to put just in anything and don't care what time you put in your ingredients or how much, you end up with a big mess, not what you intended to make.

Unless we as parents take an interest in our children, no one else will or can. And what the children do now will have a big effect on their lives later.

You can't just hope they will turn out alright and won't get caught up in the actions of destruction. We as parents have to show and tell our children that those committing evils of destruction of body and soul don't want to travel the road alone and are going to get all they can to travel with them. If our children were going to be exposed to any other disease, we would try to do something to prevent them from catching it. So let's start something and prevent the disease of what has been happening spreading any farther. Let's get our censorship back, and more Bibles in our schools to prove that, regardless what one book says, we did not come from animals and should not act so. Let's see that all the Hippies and Yippies stop being glamorized so much by television because the only peace they know is through drugs, and their love is not the kind any one can be proud of.

The peace demonstrators are anti-war people are those that don't know discipline or how to follow rules and are the ones that abuses the freedom so many die for.

I believe some of us had better start thinking more about Patrick Henry's "Give me liberty or give me death!" Those who are protesting so much about everything really don't know what they are protesting about.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

Local Farm Similes

In my collection of folklore from the Mammoth Cave region there are more than 3,500 items that are labeled Proverbial Lore. Of these more than 900 are similes with a distinctive farm flavor, some of them so local that I have been unable to find them in the same form in any of the numerous state and regional lists that I have consulted and in any of the standard books on similes many of them seem as proverbial lore. Of these 400 similes many of them seem as common as any of those in the studies, but for some reason they have not been collected elsewhere, or certainly have not appeared in any well-known publications.

Similes are very useful and widespread as forms of adding spice and picturesqueness to language. And my Mammoth Cave people did their share to use farm objects as sources of comparison. Here are some of the quaintest similes for which I cannot find duplicates in any of the state or regional studies that I have used.

As sure as God made little green APPLES,
Dull as a widow-woman's chopping AX.
Common as a duck's going BAREFOOTED.

Cheerful as a BASKET OF CHIPS.
Common as BEDBUGS.
Toothless as a BIDDY.

No bigger than a picked BIRD.
Common as blackberry PIE.
Soil too poor to sprout BLACK-EYED PEAS.

So BUCK-TOOTHED that he could bite a punkin through the crack of a fence (or gnaw corn off a roasting-ear through a paling fence).

Twittery as a BUTTERFLY.
Dressed up like a CAT with a ribbon around its neck.
Peart as a spring CHICKEN.
As little as a chigger's uncle.

As big a fool as Thompson's COLT.
Awkward as a country COW in a livery stable.
Busy as a DOG with fleas.
Freckled like a DOMINECKER.

Nose so narrow that a FLY couldn't sit down between his eyes.
Mean enough to push little DUCKS into water.
Knotty as a TOAD-FROG'S BACK.
Smells like an acre of GARLIC.

IT'S APPLE BUTTER TIME -- HERE'S HOW TO MAKE IT

RETURN FROM VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connors, of Auxier, have been visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Wells, and children, at Ripley, Ohio, for two weeks. They returned home Sunday.

Frankfort, Ky.—Old fashioned, homemade apple butter is a delight to whet the appetite of almost any Kentuckian, young or old, on a crisp, fall day.

Each year at the Johnson

County Apple Festival members of the Paintsville Garden Club revive the open kettle method of canning in pioneer days and prepare a large quantity of apple butter over an open wood fire.

Picturesque in their long dresses and old-fashioned bonnets, this year they stirred 90 quarts of apple butter from early in the morning until late in the afternoon on the main street of Paintsville in full view of the 15,000 who attended the festival.

Mrs. Mitchell Preston, president of the Paintsville Garden Club, explained proceeds from the sale of the apple butter would be used for landscaping and beautification of a local fountain.

She described the recipe for the apple butter as including eight bushels of apples, properly peeled and chopped up with a "little" water added. The apples stewed for 10 hours during which time 80 pounds of sugar and cinnamon flavoring to taste were added.

Members of the club prepared in advance 600 quarts for sale to those attending the festival who were pressed for time and unable to wait while the apple butter was processing from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For an adventuresome homemaker who is not too pressed for time the following old-fashioned recipe for apple butter is recommended for an average family: Temperature, 350 degrees; time, 4½ hours.

Ingredients: 1 peck of apples, 2 quarts of boiled cider, 1 ounce cinnamon stick, 1½ pounds of sugar, 1 teaspoon salt.

Directions: Core, pare and quarter the apples. Add the cider and cinnamon and bring to the boiling point on a surface burner. The cinnamon can be tied in a small piece of clean cheese cloth and removed just before the apple butter is placed in jars. Place the mixture in an open pan in an oven set at 350 degrees and cook for four hours. At the end of this time add the sugar and salt and stir until they are thoroughly dissolved. Pour the apple butter into clean, hot jars on which new and clean rubber rings have been adjusted. Partly seal and return to the oven for 30 minutes. Remove and complete the seal. Store in a cool, dry place.

In Navy Service

Sm. O. David Scutchfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eral Scutchfield, Water Gap, Ky., is now serving in the Mediterranean Sea aboard the USS Charles P. Cecil. Cruises have included many ports in France, Spain, Greece and Italy. Scutchfield enlisted in the U. S. Navy Oct. 19, 1967. He is a 1966 graduate of Prestonsburg high school and was employed at R. R. Donnelly Co., Warsaw, Ind., before his Navy enlistment.

MAYTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Stephens, of Oklahoma City, Okla., visited Mr. and Mrs. George May and Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher May last week and visited points of interest which Mr. Stephens remembered from his childhood. This was their first visit here in about 47 years. They also visited relatives in Prestonsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Herald, Timmy and Michael, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Herald, Newport News, Va., visited Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Herald last week-end.

A group of Maytown students and cheerleaders attended the cheerleaders clinic at Richmond, Saturday. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stewart, Miss Shirley Bradley and Rondel Ray Prater.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart and children were shopping in Huntington last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Allen are spending a month visiting relatives in Ohio and Michigan.

Mrs. Jack Sword was hostess at a surprise birthday party for her husband Friday evening at their home. Church services were also conducted by several Regular Baptist ministers.

Dana Jack Hicks, of Lexington, was the week-end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Hicks.

Thurmal Click, accompanied by Cecil Lester, from Kentucky Hydrocarbon Co., were business visitors in Charleston, W. Va. last Wednesday. Also from Kentucky Hydrocarbon, Jones Talley and Donald Hunt spent last Thursday and Friday in Lexington on business.

SWITCH WITHOUT HITCH SEEN ON TIME CHANGE

Frankfort, Ky.—The average family may have only two, three or four clocks to think about when Kentucky goes off daylight time Oct. 27, but the state's housekeeper, Lawrence Parrish, director of the Division of Services, Department of Finance, has got some 225 on his mind.

There are about 25 clocks in the Capitol Building, for instance, 62 in the Capitol Annex, 81 in the Department of Health, and 43 in the State Office Building. This is not counting those in State Police headquarters, the Old Capitol, the Old Capitol Annex, and other state buildings.

Taking care of all these clocks would be a great, big problem to most people, but to the chief of the Division of Services, it is just a snap. Reason is that the state has care of the clocks under contract, and the switch back to regular time from daylight time, he says, presents no more of a problem than a resetting job after a break in electric current.

All Kentucky, as well as the rest of the nation, will get back the hour lost last April 28 when daylight standard time became effective under the Federal Uniform Time Act. With that hour one can do what he likes—such as sleeping an hour longer, eating a bigger breakfast, or taking more time before church with the Sunday paper.

Many Kentuckians, no doubt, will turn their watches and clocks back before bedtime on Saturday night, Oct. 26, so they will be on correct time "when they arise on Sunday morning. The suggestion has been made that one member of the family be assigned to the chore, because both husband and wife may turn back the clock, unknown to each other, and get back two hours instead of one.

Kentucky is divided into two time zones. The eastern and central sections are on Eastern Time, and the western section is on Central Time. The dividing line runs southward through the state from the western boundary of Meade county.

On Eastern Time, which is one hour faster than Central Time, are all counties east of and including Meade, Hardin, Larue, Taylor, Casey, Pulaski and McCreary. On Central Time are all counties west of and including Breckinridge, Grayson, Hart, Green, Adair, Russell and Wayne.

Regular standard time will be in effect until next April 27, also a Sunday, when Kentucky and the nation, under the Federal Uniform Time Act, will go on daylight saving time for another six-month period.

Almost everybody has a friend who has heard "electric heat is expensive."

Melvin Wertz knows better

"People who say that electric heat's expensive just don't know. I know it's not, because we switched our 40-year-old house to electric baseboard heat and our electric bill isn't higher than our gas bill was, electric heat is more reasonable in cost." Ask Melvin Wertz of Russell, Ky. or anyone who has it. They'll tell you the comfort of flameless electric heat is incomparable—but that cost is comparable to other forms of heating. Let us prove it. Get a free estimate—from us or your Reddy Kilowatt Recommended Dealer.
