

Board Incumbents Defeat Opponents

2 Write-In Candidates Are Losers

Stumbo, Cooley, Blair Retain School Posts In Tuesday's Voting

All three incumbents won their races for reelection to the Floyd County Board of Education at Tuesday's election.

Despite spirited write-in campaigns waged after they had lost their places on the ballot through a court decision holding that the filing of their candidacies was faulty, Manis Crawford lost in Division 4 to Billy Blair, incumbent, 913 votes to 532, and Ronald Lawson was defeated in Division 5 by Ross Cooley, 1068 votes to 130.

In Division 3, where names of both candidates appeared on the face of the voting machine, John M. Stumbo, incumbent, defeated Thomas J. Spears, 1478 votes to 1122. Cooley led in all 12 of his division's precincts over Lawson, but Crawford polled a majority over Blair in two of the eight precincts of Division 4. Stumbo led Spears in all but three of the 10 precincts in Division 5.

FOOD-STAMP NEED CITED

Mud Creek Group Asks That Worker Be Assigned There

A Floyd county welfare group was scheduled to take a busload of its members to Frankfort Monday to ask that the state send a worker to Mud Creek to take food-stamp applications.

The delegation planned to confer with the Economic Security Department, claiming its efforts to get a worker to the Mud Creek section from the department's office here had failed.

Arnold Hamilton, chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Welfare Rights Organization, said that food-stamp recipients in the Mud Creek section were required to travel 40 miles to Prestonsburg to receive their stamps.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said he had not been contacted by the group. A branch food-stamp office is operated at Martin but this is possible, it was said, only because the town has a bank where cash receipts may be deposited.

Mines Work Again After Long Layoff

The first coal to be mined at David since the Princess Elkhorn Division of Princess Coals quit its operations there several months ago was loaded for shipment last Friday.

Coal trains, which for months have not travelled the 10-mile spur line from West Prestonsburg to the onetime mining center, again were moving as coal was being loaded over the main tipples formerly operated by Princess Coals.

The No. 2 mine at David is being operated by the Patsy Development Company. W. M. Sutherland, superintendent of Princess operations prior to the

Price Pleads Guilty To Cab-Driver Murder; Draws Life Pen Term

George Darrell Price, 20, entered a plea of guilty in Johnson circuit court last week to the murder of Richard Eugene Ison, Louisa taxicab operator, and was given life imprisonment.

Price was arrested by county and state officers less than two weeks after Ison's body was found, beside his taxi on Rt. 201 in Johnson county, victim of a bullet in the back.

The youth, dressed in tan shirt and blue dungarees, his hair neatly combed, spoke only to respond "guilty" when asked by Judge W. D. Sparks how he would plead on the charge of murder. During the remainder of the brief trial, he sat with his mother at his side, listening to the legal details which led to the jury verdict.

B. E. Mullins, Price's court-appointed attorney, stressed his client's family background, suggesting that parental failure was responsible for Price's presence in court, and urging that he be given psychiatric help and rehabilitation.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS:

"But I thought the polls said

The tail-gate isn't down, but the gangplank is. All aboard that's going aboard. The Spirit of Salt River is ready to begin its November cruise, and guess who's that on the poop-deck—me, plumb pooped.

Perhaps we all might join in this prayer, now that we've simmered down a bit:

Lord, we need of thy wisdom, but right now we need the more a miracle—the will to do what we already know to be right.

TO THE LOSER:

Congratulations upon your defeat. Losing, you will probably live longer, certainly more happily, escaping abuse in all its refinements and brutalities. The door to service is not closed; there always is a place in which to serve—if not at the top, elsewhere.

True, you may have lost the place you wanted in history. Wouldn't mourn. I am not going to be cynical and say that history is mainly an epitaph written in varying styles, by different hands. But some folks, way down the ladder, hold right permanent places in this "record of past events," and some, I recall, got there because they gave, not because they received.

OLD-STYLE DELINQUENCY

Almost anytime I get with men from age 40 on up and listen to their recital of shenanigans in which they figured, I get the feeling that these youngsters today are on the whole, a pretty good lot, by comparison.

There, for instance, was this rather sedate gentleman who told me the story recently of the time when he and four or five other youngsters decided to make a "run" of drinkin'-likker. They chose, of all places, the unused upstairs portion of a local church, by stealth got their crude equipment and all the

ANTI-FARLEY GROUP WINS

Local Issues Enliven Elections in Counties Bordering Upon Floyd

Local issues enlivened the election in neighboring counties as well as in Floyd.

In Pike county School Supt. C. H. Farley was soundly beaten in Tuesday's voting.

Farley, who has weathered lawsuits, criminal charges and various political maneuvers the last few years, faces the prospect of working with a school board with a four to one voting edge against his administration. He needed to win all three board races contested in yesterday's election to retain control of the board, but apparently he lost two of the three.

Final unofficial tabulations gave Ulan Childers, with an anti-Farley voting record, 2,284 votes to 1,936 for Albert Taylor, who favored Farley.

A 21-vote margin for John J. Ward, opposed to Farley, over Alvery Potter, a Farley ally, could be altered when absentee ballots are counted. Ward polled 1,495 votes to 1,474 for Potter. About 70 absentee ballots figure in the race.

One pro-Farley candidate, Russell Goslin, defeated Ernest Hunt, 1,565 votes to 1,313.

With two holdover board members, the anti-Farley faction will have either a four to one or a three to two voting edge, meaning that Farley will not be re-elected when his contract expires in June. Farley has been in office for more than 30 years.

Knott county school board winners, with a total of 29 precincts accounted for and 100 absentee ballots yet to be counted, include incumbent Okie Conley (See Story No. 5, Page 5)

Council Backs UK To Manage System

The state Council on Public Higher Education went on record Monday as supporting the University of Kentucky's administration of the state's community college system—at least for the present.

Meeting in Louisville, the council indicated after prolonged debate that it might consider recommending some changes if a proposed study of the system should show better ways of administering the two-year colleges.

The community college study was approved last month by the council but has not been started. The first of two points approved by the council Monday was that "in carrying out studies it should be our policy to recommend no changes to the governor unless there are clear and compelling reasons for such a change . . ."

The second point, which precipitated some heated dialogue between several members, centered around council chairman William Abell's contention that the forthcoming study should be "confined to the way they (the community colleges) are functioning."

In reply to a question asked by Dr. Adron Doran, of Morehead State University, Abell said the legislature's current position is that the colleges should be administered by UK.

SECTION HAS THEFT RING

Eight Stolen Autos Recovered; 100 Others Are Believed Missing

An auto theft ring believed to be operating on a wide scale in Floyd and other counties of the section is engaging the attention of peace officers, it was said here this week.

At least eight autos said to have been stolen have been recovered.

"There may be as many as a hundred cars around that have been stolen and sold, many to innocent purchasers," one officer said.

Two cars reportedly stolen from the Avis Rent-a-Car Corp., have been recovered within the week. Both had passed through two or three hands.

Lake Fertilization Wins Official Nod

Experiments in fertilization of Dewey Lake, the largest Kentucky impoundment where such work has been done, have produced satisfactory results, Bernard Carter, director of the Division of Fish and Wildlife Resources, said Sunday afternoon at a meeting of the Seventh District Wildlife Federation at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park.

The work of fertilizing the lake almost its entire length was begun in 1967 and was repeated this year. The original schedule provided for a three-year experiment.

Both Carter and Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, commented on the lake fertilization project. Carter said population studies showed a 20 percent increase in the size of fish and a higher frequency of fish caught. Prior to fertilization, it was said, 8 fish was brought to net per hour. The catch is now 1.2 fish per hour.

GOP Bastion Gives Perkins Majority

Carl Perkins has probably never felt more secure in his Seventh district Congressional seat than he did after Tuesday's balloting.

He not only piled up huge leads in counties that are Democratic but also achieved the unusual when he polled a 200-vote majority in Johnson county where the G.O.P. holds a two to one registration edge.

Floyd county, which is believed to have given the Knott county his biggest majority over his Republican opponent, James D. Nickell, of Ashland, cast 9,652 Perkins votes to 2,530 for his opponent.

Knott county polled 3,698 votes for Perkins to 735 for Nickell. Magoffin, a county that cannot be claimed regularly by

WOMAN HELD FOR SLAYING

Dead on arrival shortly after midnight Sunday at the Prestonsburg General hospital was Thomas Perkins, 39-year-old Magoffin countyman, who had been wounded by a shotgun blast.

The victim's wife, Ludeane Perkins, was jailed at Salyersville on a murder charge. It later was said she waived examining trial and bond was set at $5,000 for her answer to grand jury action.

The shooting took place at the home of a neighbor, near Roy-alton. The 16-gauge shotgun charge, fired at close range, struck Perkins beneath his right arm.

State Police Detective Chester D. Potter, of Prestonsburg, who joined Magoffin county officers in the investigation of the slaying, said Mrs. Perkins admitted (See Story No. 8, Page 3)

Floyd Tells Plans For Funeral Home

The Floyd Funeral Home here announced plans this week to construct a new mortuary on South Lake Drive, less than a block from its present location.

Clearing of two lots to provide an area of 120 feet fronting on Lake Drive has begun. The former Nazarene Church building already has been razed, and the former Mrs. T. Y. Martin building will be leveled soon.

The proposed two-story building, which will cost around $100,000, will be 80x75 feet, of brick and concrete block construction. It will include a main chapel, 55 by 25 feet; a second chapel, 35x20 feet; a 20x40-foot garage; a 29x19-foot reception room (or chapel); a display room, 20x40 feet; a kitchenette and other features. Three apartments for employees will be on the second floor.

The building will have central air-conditioning and its features will represent the most modern in mortuary structures, it was said.

Construction which will be done by Beverly Burchett, may not be begun until early next year.

Mrs. Polly Pitts, 72, Is Victim Saturday At Home at Risner

In Time of Need—Even a Dog's . . .

The day-to-day record of activities of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad for the fiscal year, July 1, 1967 to June 30, 1968, released this week, ranges the field of emergency from deepest tragedy such as the Silver Bridge collapse to the task of rescuing a dog from a mountainside ledge.

In addition to the search for bodies at the scene of the Point Pleasant, W. Va. bridge collapse, the Floyd group was called to assist on eight other occasions when deaths had occurred.

$1.3 Million Grant OK'd for Hospital

Congressman Carl D. Perkins last Friday announced that a federal grant of $1.3 million had been made by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to help build a regional hospital proposed by the Highlands Hospital Corporation here.

The grant was made under terms of the Hill-Burton hospital aid program. Next will be sought a grant and loan in excess of $3.5 million from the Economic Development Administration for construction of the hospital which will cost about $5 million.

Local funds totalling $150,000 will be required.

Chalmer H. Frazier, administrator of the Prestonsburg General Hospital, which is operated by the non-profit Highland Hospital Corporation, said this week that plans for the new regional hospital are now being prepared. He expects construction to begin next year.

The hospital will be located on a site of about 20 acres, between Prestonsburg and Auxier, on new US 23.

The hospital initially will have about 150 beds, Frazier said, with expansion capabilities that would allow it to be increased to 350.

Republicans Hold Margin In Kentucky

Congressional Race Won by Carl Perkins; Cook Defeats Peden

The election of his Republican opponent, Richard M. Nixon, to the Presidency of the United States was conceded by Vice President Humphrey Wednesday afternoon.

The G.O.P. national victory followed a suspense-filled night during which Nixon's lead was so thin that both major political parties feared Gov. Wallace's 47 electoral votes might make it impossible for either Nixon or Humphrey to win a clear-cut decision, which could have thrown the election into the House of Representatives.

Victory in Ohio, Illinois and California put Nixon beyond danger in the electoral college with more than the 270 electors required for election. Earlier, Humphrey had won big electoral states such as Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York and Texas.

The Democrat came back from a dismal early showing to surge into a near-tie in the popular vote with his victorious opponent. Wallace ran far behind both the other candidates.

Kentucky gave its nine electoral votes to Nixon and also elected Judge Marion Cook, Louisville Republican, to fill the U. S. Senate post vacated by Senator Morton. He defeated Miss Katherine Peden, Hopkinsville Democrat, by a margin much less than most observers anticipated.

Although the state remained Republican, Floyd county turned in a whopping Democratic majority. In perfect autumn weather a few more than 12,000 voters—less than half the 26,000 on the registration books—went to the polls.

Vice President Humphrey polled 8,333 of these votes to 3,550 for Nixon and 1,150 for Wallace. Miss Peden's Floyd vote was 8,354 to 3,402 for Cook, and Congressman Carl D. Perkins, an easy winner for his 11th term in Congress, led the Democratic ticket in this county with 9,652 votes to 2,530 for his Republican opponent, James D. Nickell.

Both Perkins and Peden led in each of the county's precincts. Humphrey lost only Tickey precinct, and that by a 152-140 count. He also lost the absentee voting in this county, 101 to 80. (See Story No. 2, Page 3)

Dr. Archer added, "There's nothing wrong with these small hospitals except they're old." Small hospitals at West Liberty, Lacey and Martin have already closed, he said. Prestonsburg General Hospital will also be phased out when the new one is opened. Some of the hospitals in small towns of the area are proprietary hospitals, owned and operated by doctors on a profit-making basis, but Archer said that rising medical costs have made their future shaky.

The regional hospital near here is being planned in connection with another regional hospital at Pikeville.

The First United Methodist Church will sponsor a bake sale at The First National Bank Tuesday, November 26, beginning at 10 a.m. Special orders will be taken at phone 886-2188 till November 26.

necessary ingredients inside, and soon had their still going.
I don't recall if they had reached the "singlings" stage or were "doubling it back," or what, when it happened. But these "manufacturers" had overlooked one telltale matter. Smoke.
One day, at the height of operations, the girls in the nearby telephone office saw smoke emerging from the superstructure of the church and quickly turned in the alarm. When the volunteer fire department arrived and made full and exact determination as to the cause of the smoke, which, of course, was fire, and as to the use of said fire, and who had set it burning, and for what purpose—well, there was what is known as "a time" hereabouts.
What floored me about this whole yarn was a remark the narrator made at the close. He had been chuckling about the whole disgraceful situation. Then, suddenly, he became very serious and almost sadly remarked:
"You know, if that had been now they'd have called us a bunch of juvenile delinquents."

FISHING TALK
This fisherman friend of mine almost staked out a claim on the point, down-lake, near the Jenny Wiley Riding Academy stables. He had worn the seat of his pants and the bank mirror-slick, and the results had been a whopping zero, all season long.
Finally, he was giving up and mumbling in his beard words to the effect that "there ain't no fish in that blasted lake" when a fellow with "Tourist" written all over him came into the dock.
"Golly, you have a wonderful lake!" the outsider exclaimed. "I envy you fellows having a place with so many fish."
Reluctantly our friend went along with that but with a number of mental reservations. Just then the visitor tossed over the side of his boat an eye-popping stringer of bass.
As soon as the hometown boy could unswallow his tongue, he piped, "What did you catch 'em on?"
"Soft crawls, sir. Ever use soft crawls?"
"All the time," our friend lied. "Where'd you catch them—up the lake? Down?"
The tourist pointed. "Know where the stables are? Off the point, right near there. Know where I'm talking about?"
The local fisherman gulped. "The stables... oh, yes, b'lieve I know the place."
"Felt like shootin' myself a tourist," he later commented.

COLLEGE-AID PROGRAM IN TROUBLE IN STATE

A federal-aid program that affects more students in Eastern Kentucky than any other region of Kentucky is in trouble.
Of the 10 counsellors assigned to the program in Kentucky, two are in Floyd county. They are Mrs. Sally Hill Stumbo and Mrs. Eva Allen Horn.
The educational future of 481 youths from families on public assistance rolls is cloudy, for money for the Higher Education Project (HEP) will run out in June. Most of the students in the three-year-old program are sophomores and juniors. And the state Department of Economic Security, which administers the program, recently began a search for private funds that not only would let these students finish college but also would let others start.
A renewed federal contract has not been ruled out, but Mrs. Ann Hall Taylor, assistant director of public assistance for program development at Frankfort, said she knew of only one similar demonstration project that was supported for the fourth year by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.
She said the idea behind such a program is that a state will see its advantages and take over its financing. But she noted that even if the state decides to do this, it couldn't happen before 1970, since the 1967-70 Kentucky budget has long since been drawn.
HEP seeks to get "high potential" youths whose families receive public assistance into college and to keep them there until graduation. The federal government picked Kentucky for a demonstration project in 1966.
Initially, the program was meant to offer only counseling services. "However, it became obvious after the first four months of the project that a number of youths just couldn't make it—even with scholarships—without more money, and they dropped out," Mrs. Taylor said.
So additional funds were obtained to provide students with $50-a-month grants, she said. An evaluation of the project this year by the University of Louisville's Kent School of Social Work cites the HEP grant and counseling as being responsible for keeping participants' dropout rate 15 to 20 percent below the national average.
But even with the grant, "lack of finances" was most often cited by dropouts as the reason for leaving the program.
Financial problems top the list, followed by academic, personal, family and other things, such as summer jobs, extra-curricular activities and social adjustment. Of the 481 students now in the program, 348 are returnees.
The students also are being aided by scholarships, government and private loans, other government and private grants, work-study programs, savings from summer or part-time employment and vocational rehabilitation grants.
The participants were selected after being evaluated by teachers and by welfare workers, who also helped them apply for aid, arranged transportation to the colleges for necessary tests and offered other help.
Since 1966, when the first 534 students enrolled, nearly 700 young people have entered college under the program—565 in 1967 and 481 this fall.
Considering the taxes on the anticipated income of a typical college graduate, project evaluators said that if only three students completed their schooling under the program it would more than pay for itself. They also noted the savings involved in taking individuals off the public assistance rolls.
The program cost over three years has been $1,110,256.
However, HEP officials already can boast of about 18 participants who have finished college, some 40 who have completed vocational school training, which was included only in the first year, and four who are presently in graduate schools.
HEP officials also are enthusiastic about the "tremendous" effect the project has had on field staff workers, who are working on their own to bring more students into the program.

over Delmas Innon in Division I, 273-217; Imalee Combs, unopposed in Division III, and Hershel Combs over Grant Honeycutt in Division IV, 502-437.

In the presidential race, Hubert Humphrey had a 3-1 lead over Richard Nixon, with George Wallace a distant third. The tally in this contest was 3,292-1,067-404. Katherine Peden enjoyed a 3,232-912 margin over Marlow Cook.

Johnson county's commissioner form of government was toppled by voters who indicated a preference for a return to the magisterial district plan.

The vote was 2,845-1,860 and dealt a death blow to the governmental form of three commissioners. Magistrates will be elected from six districts next year.

In a hotly contested county school board race, incumbents Clyde Vanhoose and Cecil Sherman retained their seats. Sherman defeated Larry Joe Wells, 631-481, and Vanhoose won over Walter Castle, Jr., 626-321.

Eugene Rice was unopposed for Commonwealth's Attorney. Also elected without opposition were Ortie Adams for the Johnson county school board, and William Salyer and Allan Perry on the Paintsville city board.

Incumbents took the three Magoffin county school board seats.

In District II Richmond Salyers ran unopposed; in District III John Arnett defeated Forest Arnett, 294 to 275, and in District V Mrs. May Hensley, with 364 votes, defeated Freddie Howard with 332 and BillONEY with 152.

In Magistrate District III, Democrat John Watkins won over Hatcher Allen, 822 to 523.

Richard Nixon barely took the Magoffin presidential vote with 1,967 votes to Hubert Humphrey's 1,927. Wallace polled 229.

Katherine Peden, candidate for U. S. Senate, won over Marlow Cook, 1,998 to 1,934.

The March of Dimes works closely with federal, state and local poverty programs to extend prenatal care services as a dynamic medical-social force.

Radiant Rays

... via richard

Psalm 34:5: They looked unto Him and were radiant...

...if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. (Gen. 4:7.)

...to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin. (James 4:17.)

There are verses of scripture and writings that seem to have great bearing on one's life. The above scriptures, along with another excerpt from literature, and I do not know who originated it, which says: "All that is required for evil to triumph is that good men to do nothing," have borne heavily upon me.

Let me use one other. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matt. 15:18). I was always led to believe as a boy that this was a picture of the church within walls and the devil and his crowd trying to tear down the entrance to the church. I was told that I had nothing to fear as long as I remained in the church. But since growing up I have an entirely different view. I now see it as the devil and his crowd huddled behind all the doors of evil throughout the world and the church advancing "like a mighty army," battering down those strongholds. In other words, they can't withstand the onslaught of Christianity. I believe this is the correct view. Primarily because Christ did not fortify himself within a structure but went out into the world waging war on Satan. If this is the intent of that scripture, what has happened?

How many churches were split last year by divisiveness? How many churches were "stolen" by godless men under the guise of ministers. Something like 120 million people go to church and claim to be Christians—YET!

While church attendance has increased 30%.

Illegitimate births have increased 300%.

Pornography has become a $500,000,000-a-year business.

Veneral disease increased 72% in one year.

Our crime bill is running in excess of $20,000,000,000 yearly.

Crime increases four times as fast as the population.

Juvenile crime is increasing five times faster.

There is a ratio of 12 to 1 for crime-church expenditures.

There are seven million alcoholics and 3½ million problem drinkers in our midst.

Add up all the meeting places of all religious groups and the taverns have us outnumbered by 175,000.

The money spent on religion, education, medicine and automobiles fails to equal the money given to gamblers.

If 120,000,000 go to church; that only leaves 80,000,000 left to do all the dirty work—unless... unless a lot of those who go to church also habituate other places and have habits other than church attendance.

It isn't enough for me not to take dope to have my wife attacked by one "on a trip." It isn't enough for me not to smoke to keep my daughter from taking up the habit because there are so many adults trying to tell her it's the "in thing" and so many others making it easy for her to get them any time and any place she wants them.

Instead of a "mighty army" moving and stamping out evil, the church is like a mighty river "meandering" through the world, and the oceans of sin are engulfing it. And the terrible, terrifying thought that haunts me is that I'm one who can help prevent it.

Oh God, help me to keep my finger in the dike!

UK COLLEGE TO HELP STOP STUDENT EXODUS

If Kentucky employers are interested in stopping the migration of college graduates to other states, the University of Kentucky is ready to help them.

So said Dean Charles F. Haywood, of UK's College of Business and Economics, this week.

Pointing out that this migration is a deterrent to industrial growth and expansion, Dean Haywood cited the recruiting opportunities available to business at the College of Business and Economics. "While our primary purpose is to provide educational training to the student, we are also interested," he wrote The Times, "in affording job opportunities to the graduate and in aiding and stimulating business growth and expansion in your area. Both of these interests could be satisfied in part by placing a portion of our graduates . . . with business enterprises in your area."

Each fall the Commerce Employment Association of the College publishes a profile of each cooperating graduate in a publication which is called "Bargains in Brains." This publication provides a synopsis of the graduating student's training, employment interests, and a photograph. Ordinarily this book is furnished only to those companies which have expressed an interest in recruiting. This year, because of indicated need and specific interest in this area, the college is attempting to make recruiting opportunities known and available to firms in this section.

Dean Haywood also said: "Knowing that college graduates obtain very attractive starting salaries, many small businessmen assume that salary is the graduate's only interest. Many of our students have expressed a desire to locate in Kentucky. It is my opinion that they would be attracted by such other inducements as a future interest in a small business, attractive living accommodations, and lower living costs. It is my hope that businessmen in your area will take advantage of our invitation to actively recruit our graduates. We stand ready to assist in this endeavor to keep Kentucky graduates in Kentucky."

Merit Award Winner

Dean Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Perry, of the Auxier road, recently received from Gov. Louie B. Nunn the Governor's Merit Award for scholastic achievement as an honor student last year at Prestonsburg high school. He is now a freshman engineering student at the University of Kentucky.

Pound Dam Design Receives Top Award

The North Fork of Pound Dam, near Pound, Va., last Friday received the top award in the Chief of Army Engineers' 1968 engineering design competition.

The award was made by Brig. Gen. Frank Koisch, deputy director of Civil Works for the Engineers, at the annual meeting of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association in Cincinnati.

It was accepted jointly by Col. Maurice D. Roush, Huntington district engineer, and Dan G. Johnson, chief of the Huntington district's engineering division.

The Huntington district designed and supervised construction of the North Fork project, completed in 1966.

Competition included entries from throughout the country and overseas.

The dam was selected for first award because of the ingenuity of design of the intake structure which houses operating machinery for controlled discharge of water from the reservoir. The judges also commented that "the strong sculptural form of the tower stands in effective contrast to the naturalistic setting of the reservoir, and the curved form of the dam has led to economy of materials without sacrifice of structural safety."

An earth and rock structure, North Fork Dam is located on North Fork of Pound River near the Virginia-Kentucky state line. It is a unit in the comprehensive plan for water resources development in the Big Sandy River basin.

BETTER ROADS COUNCIL BLASTS FEDERAL EDICT

The Kentucky Better Roads Council said this week that if a new edict of the Department of Transportation stands unchanged the entire federal aid highway program "could bog down in a morass of red tape."

The new ruling would require two hearings to be held on every federal aid road—the public to be consulted as to route location at one hearing; the matter of design to be discussed at another.

The regulations give detailed instructions for procedures to make sure that the "social, economic and environmental effects of proposed projects are given full consideration and that all interested parties have ample opportunity to make their views known."

Any interested person who objects to the road through his property, or who resents its being located away from his property may appeal location or design, or both, and such appeal would automatically stop further progress until the appeal is disposed of.

The Federal Highway Administration, through this new "deal" has indicated, a distrust of the engineers and designers of the Kentucky Department of Highways and of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Both agencies have, in the past, indicated a desire to locate and design roads in the interest of the public. There have been objections, but in most cases these could be traced to personal gain, the Council adds.

OPPORTUNITY OFFERED COMMUNITY COLLEGES STRESSED BY HARTFORD

"You must establish a professional image for yourselves. We are living in wonderful times, even though we may not know it," Dean Ellis F. Hartford, of the University of Kentucky Community College System, told a community college meeting in Louisville last week.

"I hope you share my excitement in realizing the opportunities that lie ahead for us in the Community College System," he said.

Dean Hartford collected the principle topics of the annual faculty meeting and blended them with the meeting theme—"The Comprehensive Community College: Idea and Implementation"—to declare that the faculty should not only realize how far they have come, but how much remains to be done.

"Let's reflect upon what we have heard here from our speakers and go home with determination to move on to even greater heights in education throughout Kentucky," Hartford said.

He noted remarks by various speakers who made the following points:

—There is a great need for community college-trained mental health technicians to counsel disturbed people and to staff suicide-prevention centers. Technicians would work in nursing homes, jails and schools. Other essential areas are service on committees and boards, preparing reports and maintaining records.

—More flexibility in education is needed—adaptable to the needs of the community.

—Renewed interest in recruiting students with more concentration on the problems of bringing in students with achievement ability but who have been deterred by behavioral problems.

The community colleges' faculty meeting came at a time when informal discussion was centered on proposals made a few days earlier by outside observers concerning the administration of the system, notably Dr. Adron Doran's suggestion that it be administered by Morehead, Eastern, Western and Murray Universities and Kentucky State College.

Cats Win Eighth, End Louisa Streak

The Prestonsburg Black Cats last Friday night celebrated Homecoming by snapping Louisa's six-game winning streak and picking up their eighth win of the season.

Prestonsburg capitalized on a Louisa mistake to go ahead early in the first quarter. After receiving the opening kick, Louisa put the ball in play on its 31. Unable to move the ball, Louisa faced a punting situation on fourth down. A high snap from center delayed the attempted punt long enough for Tony Burchett and Steve Collins to get to the punter and prevent the kick.

Prestonsburg took possession on Louisa's 19. Three plays later, from the 17, Darrell Leslie went in to score. The extra point attempt failed.

Penalties ended two other scoring opportunities for the Cats in the first half.

A fourth quarter fumble recovered by Tony Burchett on Louisa's 47 gave Prestonsburg good field position and paced the way for the Cats final touchdown.

From that point Mike Vance exploded through the Bulldog line to pick up a first down on the 36. Then Mark Miller rolled out to the right on a quarterback keeper. With no place to go, Miller cut back to the inside and bulled his way through the Louisa defense for the touchdown. The extra point attempt failed.

There were a few anxious moments as the game neared its end. Louisa moved to Prestonsburg's 19, but a fumble recovered by Darrell Leslie ended the threat.

Prestonsburg's football season will end next week when the Cats travel to Johnson county to take on the Paintsville Tigers.

Six-Foot-Ten Freshman Leads McDowell Team To Win Over Hindman

McDowell, Ky. — Coach Pete Grigsby's McDowell Daredevils opened their 1968-'69 basketball season Saturday night with a 64-40 victory over the Knott county Cardinals at Hindman.

The Daredevils are in a rebuilding year and have elected to rebuild around six-foot-ten freshman, Steve Smith. The Daredevils lost nine players from last year's squad, and five of these were starters.

Knott County, fresh off an 18-point loss to Martin, fell victim to the Daredevil board strength as Smith and Benjie Stewart collected 45 rebounds.

The Daredevil offensive threat is directed by Ira Dean Newman. Charles Vance, Glenn Turner and Benjie Stewart are expected to be major threats in this category.

The impressive thing about this year's team is their tenacious defense which is made possible by the 6-10 Smith playing center. Knott County found this out the hard way as Smith blocked 11 shots and finished the game with only one foul.

Rebounding, defense and the shooting of Steve Smith, Glenn Turner and Charles Vance helped the Daredevils keep an eight-year tradition, that of winning their opening game.

Three school records were set in this game, all by Smith: most rebounds in a single game by a freshman; the first time a freshman has ever taken high point honors at McDowell, and the first time a freshman has ever started.

HARDY PIONEERS OF THE PLANT WORLD

If you get the chance to observe the weatherbeaten rails of oak and chestnut split many years ago to build the old-time worm fences, you will note on their surface pretty plants that look like crocheted lacework. These plants are hardy lichens, the pioneers of the plant world. One nice thing about studying them, they do not fade and die in the fall like the flowers but remain the same throughout the winter.

Those lichens on old rails or on decaying wooden shingles of ancient log houses have flat lobes, with a crimped or fringed border. They are light gray-green in color and are made up of two plants living together in a mutual relationship beneficial to both. The alga plant cannot live without the help of the fungus; so these two help each other to survive.

The alga part of the lichen lends a tinge of green to the plants; it also gets the moisture needed from the air. The fungus part anchors the lichen to the fence rail, shingle, stump or log and obtains nourishment needed from these. The two plants living together in this relationship are called symbiotes.

The lichens are often seen forming large patches on flat rocks, lending them an artistic touch. The plant secretes an acid that slowly eats away the rock and gradually turns it back to soil. Lichens are the soil-makers of nature. Those growing on rails, logs or rocks are called foliose lichens, as the thallus, the leaf-like structure, is crimped and folded. Although it may take many centuries, these lichens will gradually and surely turn the rocks into dust, to be mixed with the soil; they pave the way for the larger flowering plants to spring up and grow.

You may also notice on the sheer face of large sandstone cliffs peculiar growths of plants that look somewhat like sea-shells or old, dried leather. These are crustose lichens. They take a firm hold of the face of the cliff, being hard to pull loose. About all the food they require is obtained from the moisture of the air, and perhaps some minerals from the rock. In eons of time, these lichens will dissolve the cliff, crumble it back to dust.

Lichens belong to a class of plants called cryptogams, which comes from two Greek words: kryptos, meaning hidden and gamos, meaning marriage; literally, a "hidden marriage." These plants have no flower parts, no stamens or pistils, so their reproductive processes cannot be seen with the unaided eye.

Perhaps the most beautiful of the small lichens are those with red caps; these are called "little red-capped soldiers." They are slender, grayish, about two inches high and form small colonies in dry, sterile soils. The tips have red caps, the spore cases. These are known as fruticose lichens.

Lichens thrive well on the bark of trees, such as oaks and beeches. These form a flat, fringed flower-like lobe, and in the middle of the main lobe, numerous small brown cups may be seen; these lichens are sometimes called "cup lichens."

Lichens grow in most all regions of the earth. In the Far North, they form handsome plants that are much branched and look like little trees. These are called Reindeer Moss, and form the main winter diet of caribou, elk and reindeer. However, the name "moss" is a misnomer, as these plants are lichens.

In the cold regions of Iceland, lichens grow abundantly and are called "Iceland Moss," which is used to make bread and for medicines of many kinds.

Lichens are highly useful plants for man. They are used to make a dye called litmus. Soil experts use litmus paper to test soils. A soil with too much acid will turn blue litmus paper red; one with too much alkali will turn red litmus paper blue, or perhaps violet.

Lichens are also used by various birds for nest-building. The ruby-throated hummingbird gathers tree lichens to shingle its nest outside, for the purpose of camouflaging it. The cerulean warbler gathers lichens to decorate its nest. Apparently birds have a sense of beauty, as lichens add a pretty artistic touch to the nest and perhaps give the birds a chance to display their artistic skill in constructing a nest.

Is this the way you look at electric heat?

So did Ray Wells

For years Ray Wells of Greenup, Ky., "wouldn't even think about electric heat. I thought it would be too expensive.

Then I got an estimate and switched to electric heat—and the cost, compared to the total of heating bills and electric bill before, is very little more." You can switch to flameless electric heat—economically. And your heating bill will be about what you're now paying. Get a free esti-

Radiant Rays

They looked unto him and were radiant... (Ps. 34:5)

Recently I walked into the tombs of the Pharaohs of Egypt. They are great edifices of stone and marvelously constructed. At one time they had been filled with vast riches. These riches were placed there to enable the Pharaoh to make his long journey to heaven. Then I went to the museum and saw these riches. Obviously, their preparations for making the journey were to no avail.

They also had built a boat and provisioned it for that journey. But they also had missed the boat because it had been unearthed, and was now a museum piece.

Two days later I followed the footsteps of One who had lived and died in poverty—One who was treated as an outcast and criminal. His earthly life had not been surrounded by pomp and royalty and His tomb held no riches. I followed His last steps and they, too, led me to a tomb. Not a huge and noble edifice, just a rough, hewn hole in a rock, surrounded by other holes where other bodies had lain.

A guide had led us into the Pharaoh's tombs and told how his body and his riches were stolen and removed, and then he took us to the museum and

IN MEMORY

In Memory of James Kelly Prater, who passed away October 22, 1965:

The heartbreak of that tragic day

Will never from us part. As long as life and memory last, You will always live within our hearts.

They say time heals all sorrow, And helps us to forget. But, time thus far has only proved

How much we miss you yet. God gave us strength to face it, And courage to bear the blow, And what it means to lose you. No one will ever know.

Sadly missed by his son, mother, brothers and sisters. MARY and CARRIE, Angola, Ind.

showed us some of the riches and a mummified body of one of the Pharaohs. A guide also led us into the other tomb; and he, too, led us to another place—the top of a hill—and said, "Yes, they laid Him in a tomb but He didn't stay. He got up—and, later, He stood on this spot and God lowered a cloud and He stepped on it and ascended into heaven." And, somehow, you knew it was true because there was a glory in your bosom that would not be contained.

Take inventory. Please, be sure there are no trappings or riches in which you're placing your trust, because, like the Pharaohs, we cannot provide for that future journey. We can only walk the path that our Saviour-Guide walked, and try to emulate Him.

If we had to provide our own passage, many of us just couldn't make it. We don't have the money or the know-how to get it. Somehow, I think Jesus looked down at those Pharaohs and saw the futility of their efforts and had compassion, and thought with great joy how some day, soon, He would bridge the gap and do away with their fears, traditions and superstitions.

Thank God, He did! Now reality replaces superstition, and joy replaces fear—and we can walk triumphantly into the jaws of death, knowing that, though they close on us, One has gone before us to remove the fear and to lighten the way.

Truly, come thou with us and we will do thee good. Luke 24

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

MANY KINDS OF FOLKLORE

Sometimes friends of mine, who seem to think that folklore is only concerned with ignorance and even depravity, assume a sort of "how-can-you-stand-it" attitude. They almost seem to think that I am actually hindering humanity by even noticing such things. To them it is a waste of time at best to study the ways and beliefs of subnormal people. I haven't yet had enough nerve to suggest that these very people are showing some of the same folkish feelings that they are so ashamed of.

Of course some folklore is ignorance, often a harmless sort of ignorance. Some of it is genuine wisdom, ideas that have been found good over long periods of time. Some things are genuinely poetic; some are repulsive; some are idiotic; some are humorous. Here is a sort of generalized definition: Folklore is a series of beliefs and practices that have been handed down, not by any formal means, like education, but transmitted orally or, in the case of industries, by observation. Folklore is opposed, not to learning as such, but to formal learning. Whittier, in his "Barefoot Boy," says the boy knows "knowledge never learned of schools." I know of no better definition.

Long before there was formal education, learning in any form had to be given to each succeeding generation by word of mouth. I personally have known several people who could not read and write, who literally didn't "know B from bull's foot," but who had their minds stored with hundreds of valuable things, gathered over a long life of observation and listening. Some of these could quote Bible verses by the dozen without making a single quotation; they could not have recognized a single word of what they had said. Some could recite long poems that they had memorized from having heard them read or recited. Some could remember dozens of historical dates with the accuracy of a scholar. To me, after a lifetime in the schoolroom, they seem like educated people. The fly in the ointment was and is that they also held in their minds hundreds of unwise sayings, unproved scientific observations, purely traditional beliefs that a single good observation would have disproved. Not having had an introduction to the value of formal education, they did not know where to draw the line between genuine facts and mere traditional beliefs. A good illustration of this, by no means limited to illiterate people, was and still is the belief that cattle have one type of front teeth, while sheep have the other. The opening of one sheep's mouth and one cow's mouth would be enough to settle this argument. But I have known men who had lived on farms all their lives, who had raised both sheep and cattle and had helped butcher both kinds of animals, but who still held to the traditional belief.

It is a folkish belief that often has fought such things as purification of water, the proper refrigeration or preparation of foods, the pasteurization of milk. Think how recently many such things have been settled in your own beliefs! If someone had come into our Fidelity neighborhood 70 years ago and had even thought of testing the purity of Sulphur Springs, he would have been laughed at by even the most thoughtful and best-educated people. "Pure spring water" was a sort of shibboleth; why, just anybody would know that spring water is the best kind. One of my former students found out, almost tragically, that springs, at least in the limestone area, can be polluted and even when the water is clear, I recall the day we were in swimming together when he went to a near-by spring and, without even so much as asking anybody, took a full draught. That drink or a similar one brought him down with typhoid soon; he has often told me that the drinking of that spring water was the silliest thing he ever did.

Folklore can be quaint, humorous, and full of common sense; it can be equally witless and degrading. As long as a so-called saying of great wisdom is not put into action, no especial harm is done; it is when the folk saying is accepted as Holy Writ, even though common sense knows otherwise, that folk wisdom can do infinite harm.

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

In the year 1931, Aldous Huxley, the famous skeptic, wrote on the subject: "Wanted, A New Pleasure." In the essay, he said: "As far as I can see the only possible new pleasure would be derived from the invention of a new drug which would provide a harmless substitute for alcohol. If I were a millionaire, I should endow a band of research workers to look for the ideal intoxicant. If we could sniff or swallow something that would abolish inferiority, atone us with our fellows in a glowing exaltation of affection and make life in all its aspects seem not only worth living but divinely beautiful and significant, and if this heavenly world-trans forming drug were of such a kind that we could wake up next morning with a clear head and undamaged constitution, then it seems to me that all our problems would be solved and earth would be a paradise."

Huxley was hunting something we all hunt in life. Every person seeks what he wanted. The difference comes in the method in which we seek it. For him and countless others, the answer could be found in a drug or a bottle. Some kind of magic to turn the trick.

Some of the rest of us have found that which Huxley searched for, but we didn't find it in the magic of a bottle. We found it in the miracle of a Cross. We have followed the little Jew tentmaker's advice: "Do not get drunk with wine, which will only ruin you; instead, be filled with the Spirit." Abolish inferiority? We have rid ourselves of it by hearing Him tell us that we are "the light of the world... the salt of the earth." And when He compares us with terms like those we cannot feel inferior.

Affection toward our fellows? We have found that, too. You see, the Galilean has taught us to do exactly what Mr. Huxley wanted—to love one another. He set the example. He loved us. "Greater love has no man than this..." Then, because of His love, He faced that Cross.

And something to make life more than mere existing? Some, who follow the Galilean, can say with Him: "... for this purpose I have come..." And making life beautiful? There is nothing more beautiful in all of life than to see it as His creation. To know that He is there, behind it all, full of love for us even when we don't deserve it, makes life eternally beautiful. He is, indeed, the Source of all beauty!

A clear head and undamaged constitution? He gives that, too. Let's you think clearly and live with a constitution written by the Author of Life.

Mr. Huxley kept hunting for that "magic" drug. On November 22, 1963, 31 years after his wish, Huxley tried a new drug called LSD which many thought to be the answer to his wish. His wife administered the dose to Huxley, dying of cancer. It was the last drug Huxley ever experimented with. You see, it was a one-way trip.
