

Attendance Drop Threatens School

Absenteeism For One Day Exceeds 50%

Bell Manager Plans 'Nuisance' Calls Check As Threats Reported

When only 46 percent of the pupils of the Martin elementary school showed up for classes Monday County Supt. of Schools Charles Clark announced by radio the "distinct possibility" that the Martin grades, 1 thru 12, might be closed "till cooler heads prevail."

Tuesday, however, the attendance had risen to 63 percent, and he announced that an effort would be made to operate the school, the following day. But, he added:

"When the attendance gets low again, the school will close." Clark explained that if teachers appear for classes and absenteeism runs high, failure to close the school would result in youngsters failing to graduate because of non-attendance. Such lost time, when teachers are at the school for classes, cannot be made up, he said.

The drop in attendance was in protest to board of education plans to build the new Eastern school, it was said. High school attendance at Martin rose Tuesday to 84 percent.

The superintendent said he has been told a number of parents have received threatening telephone calls there. One parent, he said, reported that a male voice threatened by telephone to shoot his sons if they went to school.

This Town... That World

Oh, to hear one little peeper peep!

THERE'S HOPE

The drear of landscape and sky as I write this do nothing for the old spirits. But I take heart when I recall the favorite saying of the late Noah Harris to the effect that he had always noticed that if he "made it through" March he made it through the rest of the year.

REMEMBER?

The good, old days were on the unhurried side, weren't they? So leisurely that folks, writing a letter, got down to business only after a long preamble which usually ran to this effect: "I set myself down to take pen in hand to write you these few lines to say that this finds me very well and hope you are the same."

Our trouble, these days, we just don't "set ourselves down" enough.

FUND APPEAL SET MARCH 3

Rev. Skiff, Mrs. Stumbo Head Red Cross Drive; Floyd Goal Is $5,557

Floyd Chapter, American Red Cross, has set March 3 as the date for launching its annual appeal to the residents of this county for funds to support its programs of community service during 1969 and to provide its share of the cost of the services to be carried on in this county and the world by the national Red Cross organization.

The Rev. Milton E. Skiff, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will serve as chairman of the drive, with Mrs. Sally Hill Stumbo as co-chairman. The county's goal is $5,557.

The slogan of this year's drive is, "Help Us Help." This year, the American Red Cross faces a crucial financial situation, it was pointed out. Rapidly mounting demands for its services in Vietnam have forced the Red Cross to increase its budget for services to the armed forces more than $4.17 million. Various disasters have forced it to draw heavily on its disaster funds as several thousand persons have been helped to rebuild or repair their homes and return to normal living.

Since March, 1957 the Red Cross has spent in Floyd county almost $900,000 in disaster relief alone. This spending is itemized: 1957 flood, $525,000. 1958 school bus disaster, $1,225.

AREA FORMS WORK GROUP

Planning of Programs For Five-County Area, Organization Purpose

A health council, major purpose of which is to plan for health programs in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Pike and Magoffin counties, was formally organized at a meeting held February 6, at Jenny Wiley State Park. The organization will operate under the auspices of the Comprehensive Health Planning and Public Health Service Act of 1966.

Ed Copley, a Baptist minister, and employee of the South Williamson Bank, was selected to serve as chairman. J. B. Wells, mayor of Paintsville, is vice-chairman, and Gene Ball, resource development specialist, University of Kentucky Extension Service, will serve as secretary-treasurer.

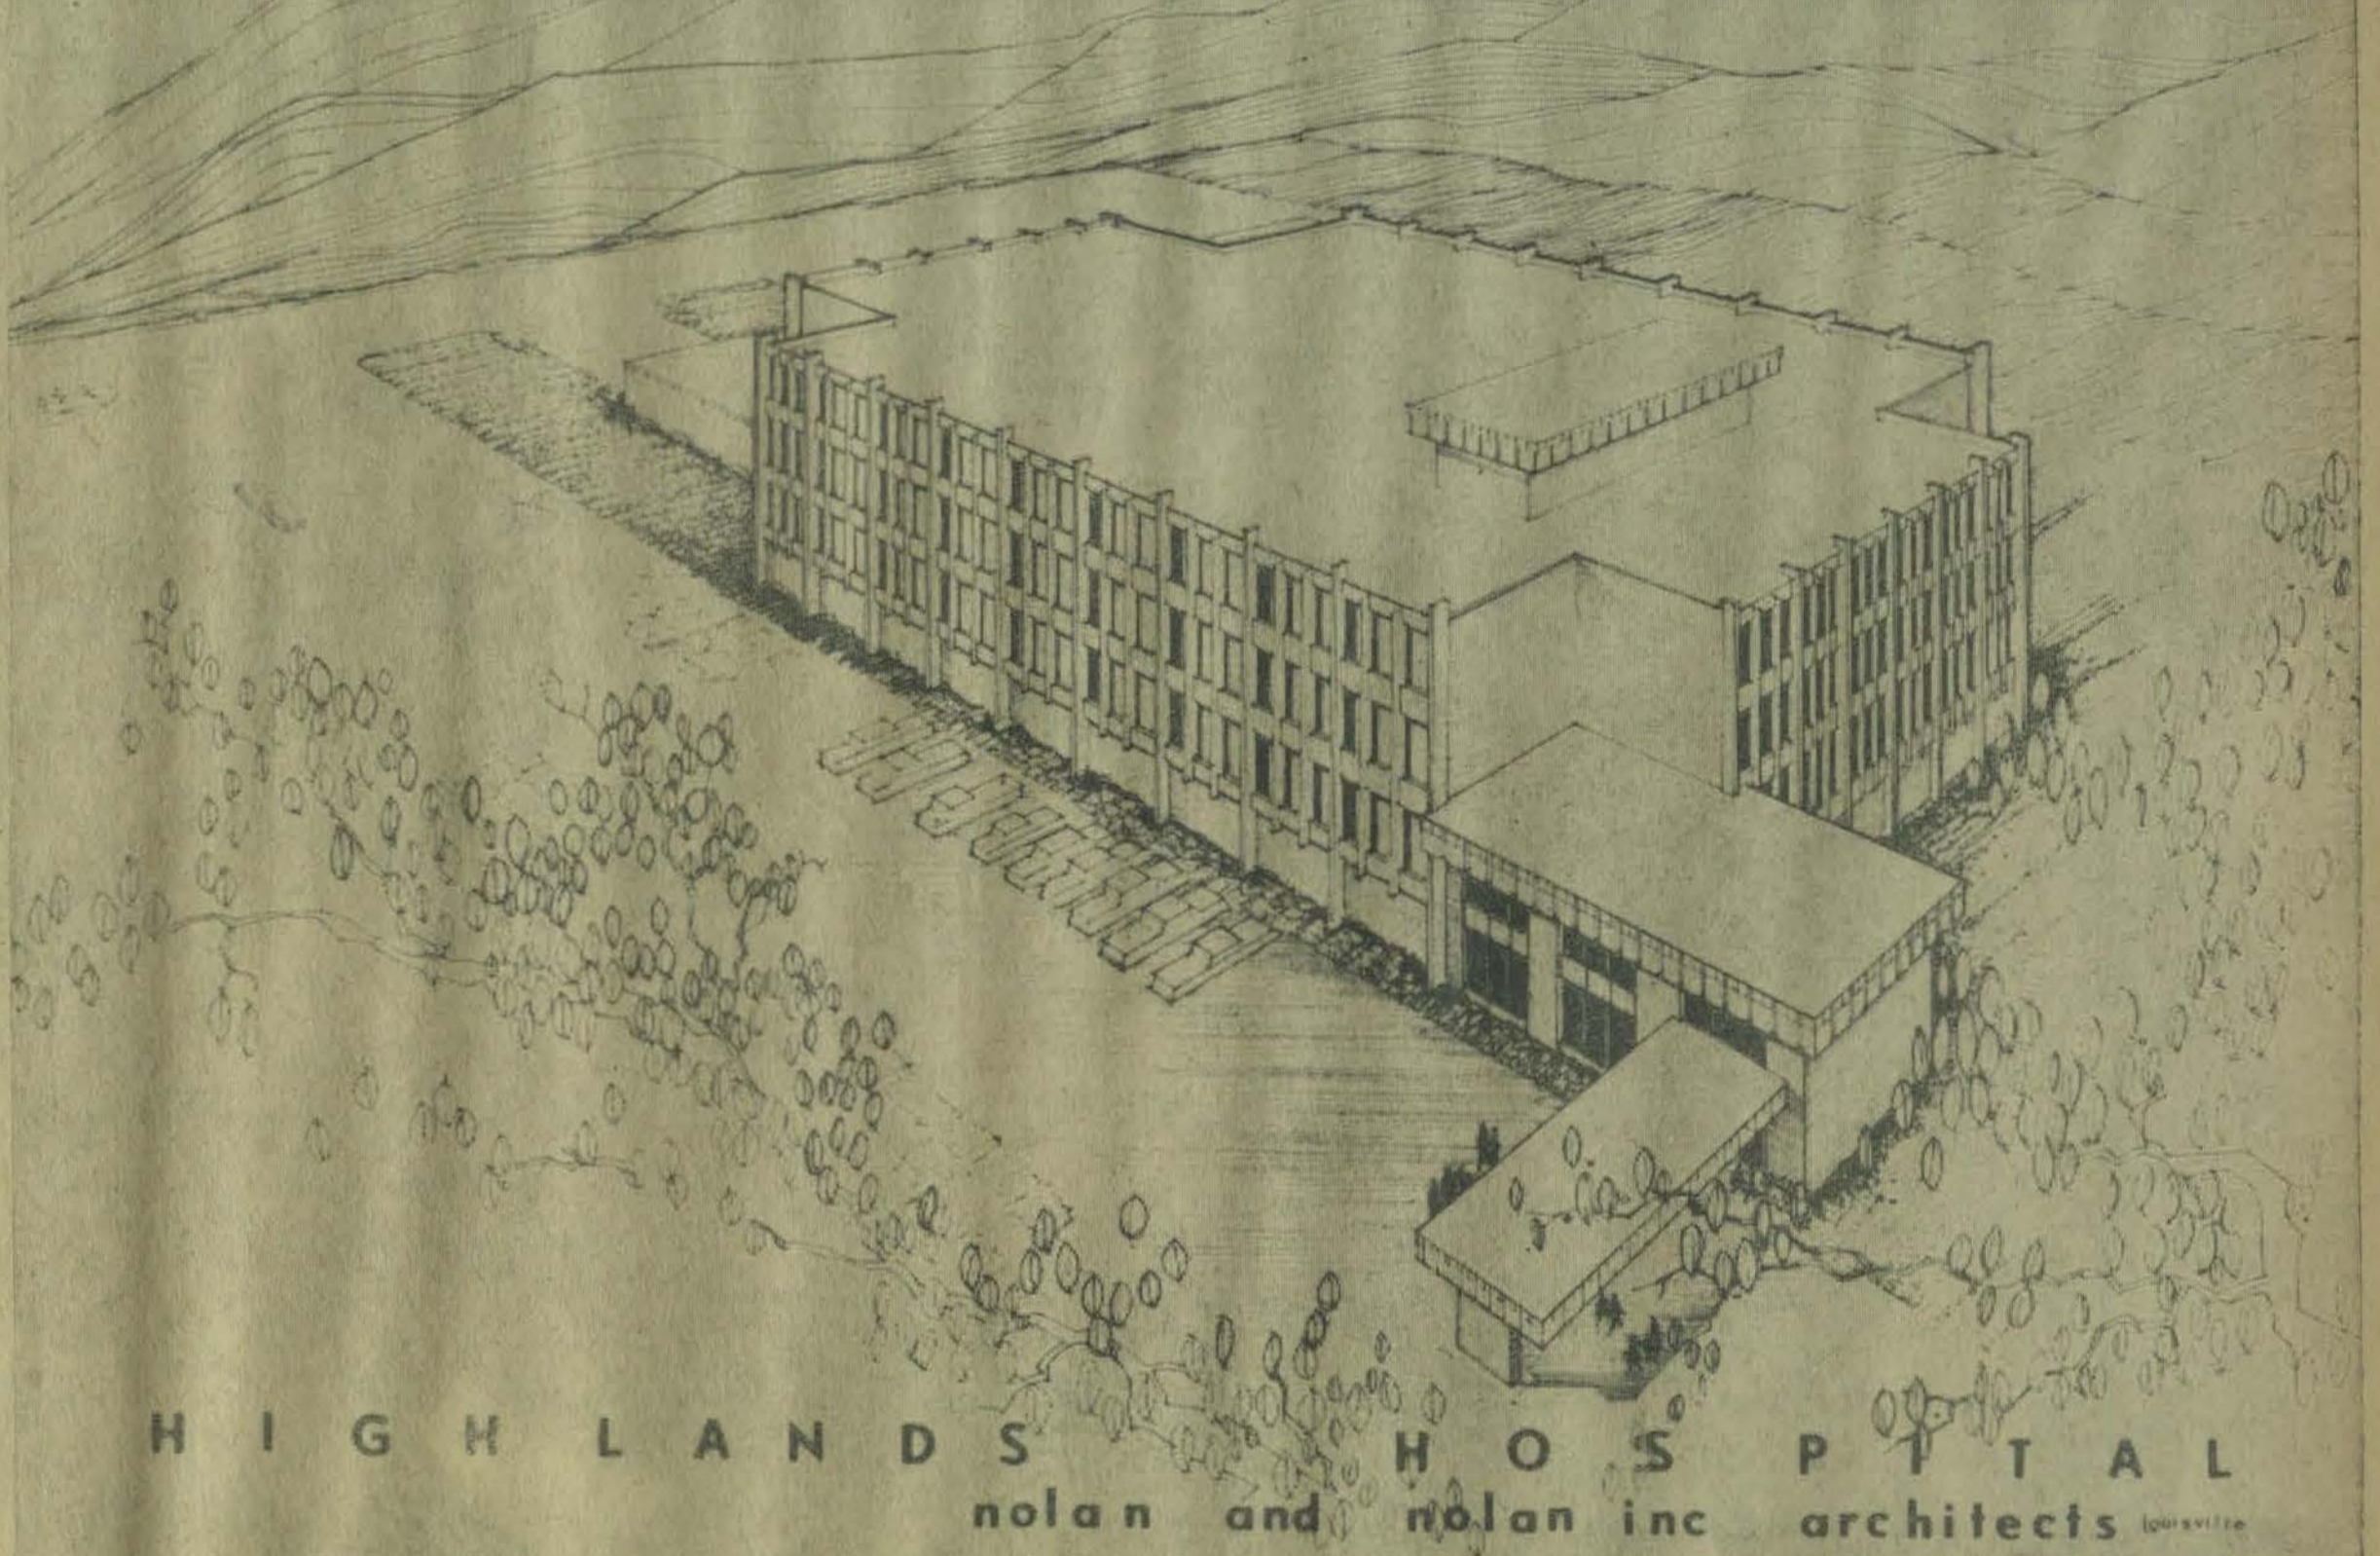

The executive committee will include Dr. Charles Sword, of Inez, and Dr. William C. Hambley, of Pikeville, plus the elected officers. The group formally adopted working by-laws and agreed to petition the Kentucky Health Planning Commission for official recognition. Membership in the council consists of Dr. George P. Archer, Prestonsburg; Dr. Ballard Cassidy, Pikeville; Dr. Paul B. Hall, Paintsville; Dr. William Hambley, of Pikeville; Mrs. Dorothy Carter, Pikeville; Mrs. Marguerite Tackett, Paintsville; Dr. Charles Sword, Inez; Alfred Brooks, Pikeville; Chalmers H. ## Deaf-Mute Held After Pike Girl, 16, Attacked This Week

Roger Booth, 20, McVeigh, Pike county deaf-mute, is held on charges of stabbing, criminal assault and robbery after a 16-year-old Belfry high school girl had been attacked Monday.

The girl was listed in serious condition Tuesday evening at the Appalachian Regional hospital, South Williamson, Kentucky.

Deputy Sheriff Jim Bevins, who investigated the incident, said it occurred Monday in an outbuilding near the girl's home at McVeigh. He reported she was stabbed several times and left in the building with the door padlocked from the outside. A neighbor, who heard the girl's cries, broke open the door and notified authorities.

Architect's sketch of proposed regional hospital to be built near here. Actual construction of the $5 million-plus facility must await a $150,000 contribution from the area it will serve.

EDA Reviews Bids On Mud-Cr. Work

Apparent low bidder on the two major contracts for construction of the Mud Creek Water District system is the H. B. Ranier Construction Co., Prestonsburg.

Bids were opened last Thursday afternoon, and 12 firms offered 22 separate bids on the several phases of the work to be done to extend water distribution throughout the Mud Creek watershed.

Engineers recommended to the district's water commission that Ranier's and other apparent low bids on other phases of the work be accepted, and the commission voted to accept the recommendation, subject to EDA approval. But alleged informalities in two bids could result in their disqualification.

If these bids should be disqualified, the overall bid of $1,233,303.30 submitted by the B. & B. Construction Co., Prestonsburg, on all five contracts would be low, it was said. This lump bid would be approximately $8,000 less than the construction funds earmarked for the project.

These were the apparent low bids: H. B. Ranier Construction Co., Contract I-A (water lines), $805,242.17; H. B. Ranier Construction Co., Contract I-B (water lines), $300,345.43; Miles P. Brown Boiler Works, Franklin, Pa., Contract II (reservoirs), $115,516; L. & R. Construction Co., Hamlin, W. Va., Contract III (reservoir foundations, access roads, etc.), $139,542; Claude Wilburn, Lynn, Ky., Contract IV (pump station), $68,500.

Bids have been sent to the Huntington area office of EDA for final action.

CHILD'S BODY YET MISSING

Rain, Swollen River Hamper Search Party During Past Week-End

Intensive search of the Big Sandy river for the body of seven-year-old Beverly Akers, missing since Jan. 25 when she, her mother, Mrs. Barbara Howell Akers Pierce, and her sister Tammy, 5, were drowned in the wreckage of their auto at Emma, was resumed last week-end by the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad. But no trace of the body has been found.

Other rescue groups had planned to join the Floyd squad last week-end, but weather conditions were such that an effective search could not be made, and they were notified not to come here at that time. Rains again raised the river stage, and muddiness of the water handicapped workers.

The only watch of the river maintained between late last Sunday and next Saturday morning will be by individuals.

Graham Burchett, captain of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, indicated this week that if river and weather conditions are favorable next Saturday and Sunday, he may call the entire Kentucky Association of Rescue Squads to join in the search for the child's body.

Magoffin Murder Case, One of Four Docketed, Postponed Till April

One of four murder trials docketed at the current term of the Magoffin circuit court was continued till April this week because of the illness of defense attorney, Cordell H. Martin, of Hindman.

The delayed trial is that of James Arnett, charged with the slaying last October, near Salsyville, of Carl Adams.

Local Quota For Project Is $150,000

Area Contributions Necessary To Receive U. S. Grants, Loan

The drive to raise $150,000 as the local contribution needed to assure construction of a $5 million-plus regional hospital near here was in its early stages this week.

Heading the fund drive is the Rev. Milton E. Skiff, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Work begun this week was aimed at reaching larger contributors.

Pledges in any amount will be sought. Amounts pledged may be paid over a three-year period.

Accepting the leadership of the campaign drive, the Rev. Skiff said that he did so because he has long recognized the need of a modern hospital facility to serve the area.

"I have lived," he said, "in communities in New York and Pennsylvania, and now here in Prestonsburg, and this is the most progressive community I have ever lived in. The leader- (See Story No. 2, Page 8)

ROADS CHIEF MAY RESIGN

Hazelrigg Reported Quitting State Post To Become Candidate

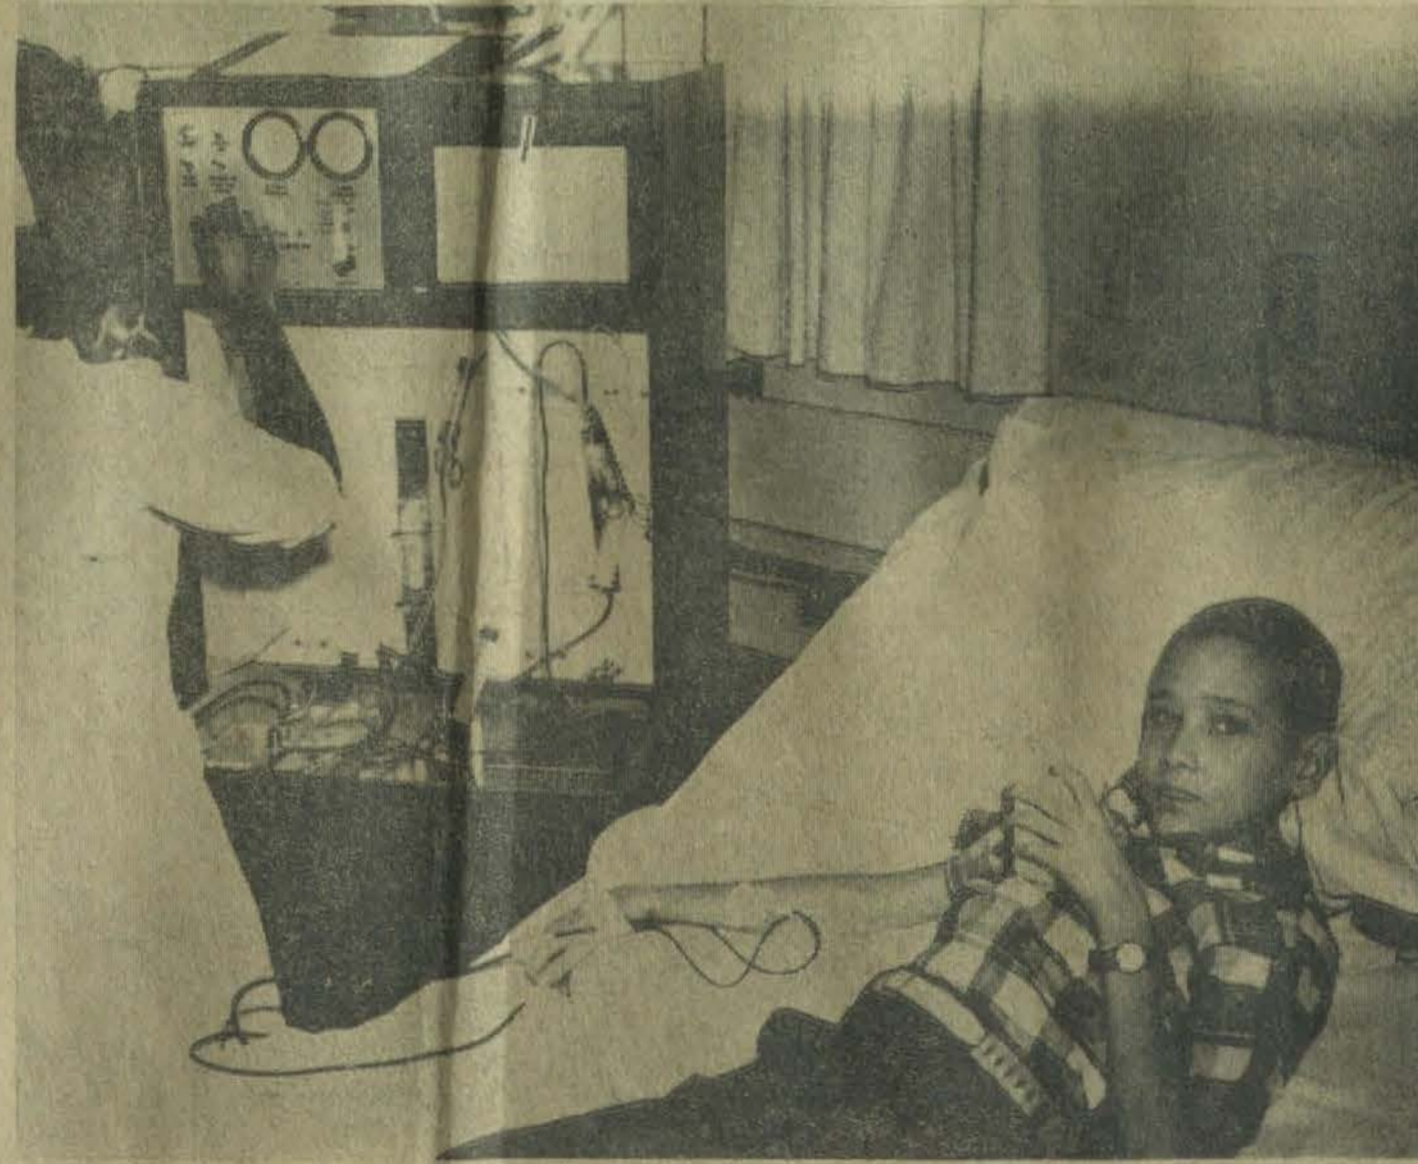

The rumor persisted here this week that Commissioner of Highways William B. Hazelrigg will, perhaps within the next week, resign.

A reliable Paintsville source said, however, that inquiry from Mr. Hazelrigg himself about the rumor had elicited the statement, "Absolutely nothing to it."

The report received here, and repeated by members of Hazelrigg's own party, said the commissioner will resign as head of the highway department to return to Johnson county and run for circuit judge this year. The post is now held by a close friend of Hazelrigg, Judge W. D. Sparks, but it was said Sparks may not seek re-election for health reasons.

From other sources — not Republican — Hazelrigg's possible resignation is ascribed to a shakeup in the Nunn administration.

"A Compassionate Response..."

Young Keith Williamson in Cleveland, O. hospital awaiting kidney transplant that offers him hope of life.

While 10-year-old Keith Williamson, of Paintsville, awaits in Cleveland, O. the kidney transplant that hopefully, will save his life, his Floyd county neighbors were digging into their pockets to help finance the operation.

"The compassionate response of the people was a gratifying experience for all concerned," said a spokesman for the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association which sponsored a radiothon over Radio Station WDOC all day Monday. The effort drew contributions in excess of $5,300.

The kidney transplant, which has been termed the boy's only hope, will cost $25,000, or more.

During the radiothon here one small boy, himself a patient in the hospital here, donated the $1 he had in the bank. Pastors and laymen of Prestonsburg churches carried on the day-long program, women of the churches served at station telephones to take pledges, the station gave its programming time and its advertisers relinquished time in order to help.

Bids on 2 Bridges, Road Slated Mar. 7

Bids will be received March 7 by the Department of Highways on two bridges and 2.62 miles of highway in this county, it was announced this week by Commissioner of Highways W. B. Hazelrigg.

The announcement from Frankfort said that one of the projects up for bids is grade, drain and bituminous concrete surfacing of the Lancer-Water Gap road (KY 1536). Although the bridge to span the river at Lancer was not mentioned in the news release, Hazelrigg's announcement did specify that the project will extend from US 23, near Lancer, to Water Gap, and that would require the bridge to connect US 23 on the east side of the river with the Lancer-Water Gap road on the other. Earlier, Mr. Hazelrigg notified State Senator Clifford E. Latta that both the bridge and road bids would be opened, March 7.

The second bridge project scheduled for bids is the span across the Big Sandy at Harold which would replace the old bridge there which was badly damaged when a section collapsed 18 months ago. The Frankfort announcement said bids will be received on the bridge and approaches for the bridge, a distance of .194 mile.

The new Harold bridge location will parallel the existing span, on its northern (downstream) side.

Both bridges are considered among the most urgent projects in the area. The existing Harold bridge has been repaired for limited use, but buses transporting school children from the Mud Creek section to Harold and Betsy Layne schools unload their passengers before crossing. The span normally is subjected to heavy traffic, serving an area with a population of approximately 6,000 and a number of small coal mining operations.

Heavy traffic to the new U. S. Shoe Company plant, across the river from Lancer, uses either a one-way suspension bridge at Knotley Hollow, scene of an earlier bridge tragedy, or travels via Prestonsburg and Town Branch over the narrow Bull Creek road.

The response to the boy's need began with private contributions, then youngsters of the Prestonsburg elementary school began working. As of Tuesday, the Prestonsburg pupils had raised through a chili supper and solicitations $1,105.87. Last Sunday, a benefit dinner at the Clark elementary school added between $325 and $350 to the Keith Williamson Fund.

And the generous response of Floyd county continues. Benefit events have been planned at other schools of the county, including Betsy Layne, Garrett, McDowell, Allen, Harold and Stumbo.

Average daily cost per patient in Veterans Administration hospitals during 1968 was $39.34 for general hospitals.

$150,000, A SMALL PRICE

Business and professional people and citizens of the area are being asked to subscribe a total of $150,000, payable over the next three years, in order to qualify the region for a hospital which will cost in excess of five million dollars. Except for this local contribution, the entire cost will be financed by federal grants and loan.

A local contribution of $150,000 is not too much to ask.

This new hospital was conceived, is being planned and will be built not to serve only those now living and in need of modern hospital facilities. It belongs to the future of this area as truly as it does to the present.

It will be dedicated to, and serve, all who need modern hospital services in the area of diagnosis, medical treatment, surgery and hospital care. Its modern facilities and capacity for service will attract specialists such as may now be consulted by our people only after travel to distant cities.

The hospital will stand as a memorial to the progressiveness of the area and to the compassionate interest the people have for others—those who suffer now and those who will be born to suffer. It will not represent any individual or group.

Medical men here will be heavy financial contributors to this fund-raising campaign. They will do this, not to enhance their own professional incomes, but because they, better than any of us, know the needs of the area. No doctor needs a new hospital as a base for his practice. If they had no interest other than that of making their profession profitable, they could better practice from an old hospital and let their unattractive surroundings discourage other doctors from coming here, thus leaving the field to themselves.

But they are convinced the people of the region deserve the best in hospital care, and that that best should be within the reach of all who need it. Existing hospitals have served well, within the limits of their capabilities, but their facilities not only fall short of modern-day standards but are also such as to discourage specialists and many other topflight medical people from coming to this area of Kentucky.

If we want a modern hospital facility, we will be given the opportunity, very shortly now, to express that desire by committing ourselves as financial partners in a great undertaking.

MORE TROUBLE FOR COAL

The fact that "black lung" is a comparatively new disease ascribed to conditions in the nation's coal mines does not mitigate its seriousness or the urgency for action to meet this deadly threat to the lives of many thousands of workers. It is no more unreasonable for this action to be demanded now than it is for roof-bolting or any other measure designed to protect human life to be an urgent necessity.

The coal industry, by its very nature, is one beset by problems. Air pollution, stream pollution, spoliation of the land are laid at its door. Another human ailment, silicosis, results from the use of rock-dust. Mechanization was given great impetus by increasing wages, with machines taking over from manpower, and this same mechanization has increased the coal dust that has become a bane of the industry. The round of problems is endless. Millions are made in coal, and millions have been lost; it is a "feast or starvation" industry.

So it is that the coal business, a vital one to the country, is not one simply to be condemned. Its endless round of problems should earn for it some degree of public sympathy.

But coal has no monopoly on trouble. The individual has his share of the same, and so does every other type of business. So it is that, in the last analysis of the situation, the industry must be required to face up to the things that plague it, particularly when they affect the lives of others.

"Black lung" may be as deadly as the more dramatic roof cave-in or mine explosion. Those who have contracted it deserve compensation without being subjected to great expense and trouble to get it. Those who yet are working and facing this danger must be given protection against it.

Whatever that protective measure is—and surely a country with the scientific know-how that the United States has can find one—whatever it is, it must be taken.

SPECIAL CHILDREN . . . SPECIAL EDUCATION

By RICHARD D. HOWARD

Director, Special Education, Pikeville College

I would like to share with you this week two items from CHILDREN LIMITED. The first deals with a 13-year-old retarded youngster, Billy Shulman, Woodbury, Long Island, New York, who will be featured in a 90-minute drama on NBC-TV along with TV stars David McCallum, Ossie Davis and George Grizzard.

Billy will play a retarded child in an original drama, "Teacher, Teacher," on the Hallmark Hall of Fame, 7:30-9 p.m. EST, February 5.

Billy was cast for the role after auditions by several retarded youngsters suggested by the NARC Public Information Division.

The drama, which is being produced by George Lefferis and directed by Fielder Cook, was written by Allan Slocane. Dr. Jack Tobias, former executive director of Aid for Retarded Children, New York City Chapter, is serving as technical consultant.

The second deals with a survey taken by the W. T. Grant Company which shows that 13 percent of the chain's stores have hired the mentally retarded in some capacity and that 77 percent of the retarded workers are rated good to excellent in their job performance by their supervisors.

Since winning the first NARC Employer of the Year Award in 1964, the W. T. Grant Company has encouraged the managers of their 1,090 stores to seek out the rehabilitation agencies in their communities to discuss job opportunities for the retarded.

From 22 retarded workers on the W. T. Grant payroll in 1965, the work force has grown to 127 retarded employees in one capacity or another.

Approximately 32 percent of the retarded workers are employed in food service; 31 percent in porter or custodial duties; 20 percent are stockroom helpers; 6 percent mark merchandise; 3 percent are sales clerks; 3 percent are utility boys and 2 percent are department managers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FIRE DEPARTMENT SAYS AN APOLOGY DUE
EDITOR, The Times:

We, the undersigned members of the Martin Fire Department, wish to take this means and opportunity to answer the derogatory remarks made in the Floyd Circuit Court by Mr. Woodrow Burchett, attorney for the Floyd County Board of Education, in the case of Jake Layne, et al vs. the Floyd County Board of Education.

We feel that Mr. Burchett not only owes the members of the Martin Fire Department a public apology for his disparaging remarks concerning us and our efforts in combating the recent fires at the Martin gymnasium and elementary school but he also owes an apology to the Prestonsburg Fire Department, the Allen Community Fire Department and the Left Beaver Civil Defense Unit. All of these departments ably assisted us in combating and containing the fires. We feel that their efforts were conducted in a highly professional manner which reflects a high degree of skill and training and which were a credit to their individual departments. Further, we feel that collectively the actions of all the departments concerned were above reproach; especially from one who was not present at the scene of the fires and who has no concept of or training in the fire-fighting service.

Further, we would like to add that information which Mr. Burchett so conveniently omitted from his courtroom histrionics. The Martin Fire Department, with the assistance of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, the Allen Community Fire Department and the Left Beaver Civil Defense Unit, were able to confine the fire at the Martin gymnasium and save: (1) The entire elementary and high school system of Martin; (2) The John W. Hall Masonic lodge; (3) The Martin Methodist Church; (4) The Western Auto Store; (5) The home of Oak Wilson; and (6) The home of Clyde Hogsdad. At the second fire at the Martin elementary school we were able to confine the fire to the elementary school building and were able to save the remainder of the Martin school system consisting of: (1) the cafeteria, band room, the high school building; (2) two trailers used as classrooms, a prefabricated building used for classrooms and the ungraded school building; (3) the residence of Mrs. Dortha Allen and (4) the residence of Phillip Dangus, principal of the Martin school system.

In view of the above record we do not feel that we deserve criticism. Ours is a public service; we do not receive monetary reimbursement for time devoted to the fire department or for time in combating fires. We wonder if as much can be said for the Floyd County Board of Education's attorney?

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

Two incidents concerning PLAYBOY magazine have come across my desk lately. I think they are worth passing along because they open the door to truth. And we all need that.

The first concerned a former "Playmate of the Month" for PLAYBOY, one Miss Joey Gibson. She was the Playmate for the month of June, 1967. She was recently placed on probation for 30 days on her conviction for prostitution. Municipal Judge Andrew Weisz, of Beverly Hills, ordered Miss Gibson, 21, whose real name is Nancy Cole, not to engage in those activities which led to her arrest. Miss Gibson was living in Santa Monica at the time.

The other incident concerning PLAYBOY happened at Springfield, Oregon. A municipal court jury found Diane Johnson, 19, guilty of trying to smuggle a PLAYBOY pinup to her husband in the Springfield jail. Authorities said the pinup was pasted inside the cover of a Bible.

We think there is a word which should be said here concerning the PLAYBOY approach to life and that of the Bible, PLAYBOY, and its followers, pride themselves on being honest and facing life like it really is. They play a no-holds-barred game.

Well, for those in the know, PLAYBOY couldn't hold a light to the Bible when it comes to facing life like it is. Certainly if there was ever a book that presented the view of life and man exactly and completely and fully as it is, the Book our mothers read is it. You will find no hiding of the facts or dodging of the issues in that great Book. It, indeed, "tells it as it is."

Go back into the early part of the book and you will find the story of a king who murdered a soldier in his army in order to have the soldier's wife as his own. While he did not commit the deed himself, he was responsible for it. His desire for her was such that he committed murder to have her. Telling it like it is? That's it, my friend. That's facing life like it is. The man's name was David. Ever heard of him?

Or take the man named Hosea. Married a prostitute. She proved unfaithful to him. Stepped out on him. Left him as the husband of a harlot.

And then there is the fellow called Paul who tells us of some women who "exchanged natural relations for unnatural, and the men likewise gave up natural relations with women and were consumed with passion for one another . . ."

You see, the Book of books tells it in some of the same stuff PLAYBOY has. It tells it like it is. But it not only speaks about the depravity of man and his lust and desire for the flesh. It also tells about his craving for some meaning and purpose in life. It tells about his finding what real life is by finding his Creator. PLAYBOY leaves this out.

The difference between the Bible and PLAYBOY is that the Bible tells the whole truth. And, my friend, that is all the difference in the world.

THE VERSATILE WHITE BASS

The white bass are perhaps the most temperamental of all the fish that inhabit Kentucky waters. But with all their idiosyncratic actions they are the favorite of a great many fishermen, not necessarily from the standpoint of edibility but because of the lively action they offer, once hooked. The white bass are almost a year "round fish"—that is, they may be caught in all the months except a couple. The methods of fishing for the white bass are as varied as their actions. The caster, the live bait fisherman, the troller—all enjoy this fish which offers, during some time of the year, a challenge to each of these type fishermen.

Like the crappie, the white bass engage in a spawning run in the early spring, sometime in March or April, according to weather conditions, and it is during this move into the shallow tributaries of the impoundments that their greatest and often most frustrating challenge is presented to the fishermen.

When the water temperatures hover around the 60-degree mark the white bass head for the smaller tributaries. They move up the lake to the very mouths of the tributaries and may remain in that area for several days before conditions are right for them to move into the stream. It is then that fishermen troll the area or cast it with shad-like minnows and catch great numbers of this fine fish even before they have penetrated the spawning locale.

Then they move into the shallow water and with this move comes fantastic fishing by frantic fishermen. This occurs to some degree in all lakes in which the whites live, but most especially in Lake Herrington, Lake Cumberland and Dale Hollow.

Perhaps, the best catches to be made at this time will be on minnows, usually about two inches long, but the casters of shad-like lures will argue about this and probably with justification. Equally skilled minnow fishermen and casters would battle to a draw, were their methods to be contested, many contend.

The minnow rig is much like that used for crappie. There'll be the minnow hooked either near the dorsal fin or in the lips. Above this bait will be sinkers, enough to make the minnow stay to the bottom in some cases and others enough to keep the cork level on the top of the water while the minnow swims about three feet underneath. This rig will be fished in the eddies, or it may be used above or below swift riffles. In fact, when the sun is in full bloom it won't matter much where the lure is so long as it's in the water. Now at this same time there'll be the casters, either in boats in the larger tributaries or on the banks of the smaller ones, who will catch fish for fish with the minnow dunker and claim that he's having more fun.

But the most exasperating thing about white bass habits is that they may be biting like copperheads on a given day and then, as if turned off by some magic wand, will quit, often not to resume their activities for as many as two days.

Rain and muddier water will also turn off the white bass. If muddy water persists, biologists believe, the white bass will spawn only to have its eggs buried under silt or washed away.

The white bass run usually continues, intermittently, for about three weeks. Some fishermen are as eccentric as the white bass and fish only for this striper during their spawning season. After the run is over they'll put up their fishing tackle and not fish again until about the same time next year.

But, immediately following the white bass run, the fish return to the lake proper and on their way back some of the very finest catches are made. At this time they are highly voracious and will literally hit anything that is thrown at them. They'll first be found right near the mouth of the tributary and later will spread out over the entire lake. And then comes some of the fastest fishing there is—white bass in the jumps.

About mid-May the shad have spawned and schooled up. They offer a delicacy for the foraging whites and when the minnows reach about two inches in length the whites will be found nearby, bursting through the schools as the minnows swim near the water's surface. It's then that a well-placed, shad-like lure, cast into the swirling mess, will in all probability be gobbled up with much vim. Fact of the matter is, it is not too unusual for a fisherman to bring in two whites on one lure, so eager are they to hit the offering.

Given the right time and the right place, a skilled fisherman often has little trouble in limiting out his 60 white bass in a couple of hours. It's not always his way, however. On many occasions the jumps will continue for only a short time and the fisherman must wheel and deal from one jump to another in an attempt to satisfy his fishing yen. He may obtain a couple from one jump, which will disappear, then he'll pick up another where he'll pick up maybe a couple more, and so on throughout the day. The best time to watch for the jumps is in the early morning and late afternoon. To be sure, they are not to be had on a windy day when the water surface is rough, the main reason being that you'll be unable to locate them.

Throughout the summer months there's trolling for white bass. This is accomplished with a deep running lure, usually, although a medium deep runner of the shad-like variety, will often catch fish. The areas over the poles are prime targets for the troller who may also have luck along-side a deep bank and often right out in the middle of the lake. On occasion trolling can be highly productive and it definitely offers fishing for the perfectionist sportsman who desires action, although not much, even in the hottest weather.

Perhaps more white bass are caught at night during the hot summer and early fall months than during the entire season by other methods.

The night fisherman will need much patience and an A-1 type of insect repellent. He'll also need, of course, a boat, many lanterns, several rods and reels, a goodly supply of lively minnows, and he'll be wise if he also will take along a couple of sandwiches and a jug of coffee. He'll need his ice cooler, also, for in it he can better preserve the whites that he catches at night.

Each fisherman has his pet location for night white bass fishing and it is difficult to oust him from his chosen spot. He'll go there time and again and most usually he'll catch fish. He reasons, with justification, if the whites have been there once, they'll be there again. By his very persistence he's apt to catch more fish than many others.

He'll know his location and he'll be acquainted with the area in which to tie his boat so that he may fish in exactly the right spot. Usually he'll anchor before nightfall and enjoy a few hours of rest and relaxation before the whites take over his attention. Sometimes he may have the whole night to himself, the whites being the temperamental fish that they are, but this does not happen often. Usually before the night is over, the fish will have moved in and that is all that is necessary.

He'll fish maybe up to 40 feet deep and he'll use a fairly heavy sucker on his 10 to 15 pound test line which the fishes right over the side of the boat. He'll keep

Right or Wrong

By HENRY A. BUCHANAN and BOB W. BROWN

President Nixon is a already survived the first three tests of his endurance and patience in high office. The inclement weather of a Washington inaugural. The inanities of the Yippie anti-inaugural. And the endless prayers of his clerical supporters.

Now he faces three more tests, and the way he handles them may well determine the course of American history.

First there's the Vietnam War. He is expected to end it. Either by a decisive military victory or by clever diplomatic maneuvering at the Four-Way Round Table in Paris. This won't be easy and it may be that nobody will be entirely happy about the outcome.

Then there's the Law and Order thing. Just getting the streets to settle down to their backs again won't be easy. Especially since they've had a taste of occupying the administration buildings.

Like it or not, American higher education must now undergo revolutionary changes in order to channel the students' energies into positive, constructive and satisfying activities. And, like it or not, college students must adjust themselves to the imperfect society which, for the first time in history, has put higher education within the reach of every American of average intelligence and ambition.

It is, in fact, this near-universalization of higher education that has precipitated the campus crisis. In the Great Society everybody must have a college education. Part of his birthright. Now we have to find ways to make the process a meaningful experience. And judging from current student activities, boning up on the old text books isn't considered the most exciting way to spend four years.

But the President's hardest test will arise within his own house. Exemplified by the storm of pre-inaugural controversy over his appointment of Governor Hickel as Secretary of the Interior. The think-big Alaskan is accustomed to viewing the natural resources as something to be spent, not conserved.

The question now is whether the President can find and inspire capable men of imagination, vision and creative genius to help him run the country the way most Americans think it ought to be run. We hope he can. For our own good.

By TED KESTING

Probably the big frustration of both beginning and experienced bass fishermen is being unable to catch big bass.

But one lure has been establishing quite a record with big bass. I'm talking about the plastic worm.

Ideal spots for this lure are where trees or bushes appear on or in the water or where rocky points drop into deep water. Cast the worm near cover and let it settle until your line goes slack, signifying the worm is resting on the bottom—or possibly on weeds, limbs or some other underwater object.

Lower your rod tip, and slowly reel the slack out of the line. Raise your rod tip very slowly, and if the worm appears to be snagged, don't yank on it. Instead, yield a foot or so of slack line and give your rod tip short, upward flips.

Sometimes you'll get snagged. On the other hand, if the snag moves, it's not a snag—set the hook! This frequently happens because a bass follows the worm as it settles, and picks it up just as it hits bottom, sometimes on the way down.

You have to stay alert to what that lure is doing all the time. Jolting strikes are rare on the worm. Usually, it's just a gentle jerking of your line as a bass mouths the worm; or your line feels abnormal as a bass inhales the worm and heads for a place to eat it.

Just remember this: anytime your line feels as if it shouldn't feel—either tighter, looser, or no feel—set the hook! I can't emphasize too strongly that this must be done with unbelievable power if you want to hold the bigger bass. And I'll tell you why. The bass has the worm ball up inside its mouth. This means the hook is insulated by all that worm, and this plastic stuff is far tougher than the live article. So, to get that hook through all that worm, and drive it into the bass's tough jaw—you won't cut the mustard with your usual hook-setting energy.

Home Circle, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine, has seen expert form fishermen actually fall off the boat seat from the power they put into setting the hook.

There is little else to say about fishing the worm, except these pointers: When you retrieve, cr-a-w-l the worm over the bottom as slowly as possible without stopping it any longer than the time required to reel the slack out of your line. You cr-a-w-l the worm by slowly raising your rod tip, crank in the slack line as you lower your rod tip to the water, then cr-a-w-l the worm some more.

If you possess normal sensitivity, soon you will develop a feel, a definite sensing of what the worm is touching. Some develop this awareness to such a degree that they can distinguish the feel of rocks, mud, leaves or brush.

A difference of opinion exists on when to set the hook and most of this comes from the various ways of rigging the worm. My advice is (a) let the bass have free line off your reel the moment you feel life, and (b) count three before you sock it to him.

The most important factor in worm fishing is experience, hours behind the rod, thousands of casts to learn where bass are found, and infinite patience as you worm your way into their confidence.

Nature Trails

By RUFUS M. REED

It's Spring in February

The calendar says spring comes March 20, but spring is already here for many things and these will have their spring over and done with before the calendar date. Many of nature's treasures keep their own calendar to go by.

About a month before the date set for spring on man's calendar, Thoreau wrote: "How silent are the footsteps of spring! I perceive spring in the softened air; the hardness of winter is relaxed; there is a fine effluence in the woods, as if the sap had begun to stir and you could detect it a mile off! In the warm recess at the head of the meadow, I was surprised to see the skunk-cabbage, with its great spear-heads open and ready to blossom. The spring advances in spite of snow and cold . . ."

Walk out now on any sunny day of February and you will begin to note the difference; the air is less harsh—it has lost its winter sting. The sun is softer, mellow, and comes with healing in its wings for winter's bruises. It has a coaxing power to begin to coax creatures out of their winter bed. The things of nature know this and begin to wake up. The maples and the skunk-cabbage are among the first things to know it's spring.

The sap's flowing—the maples are full and running over! If you look at them now, you will see the bark wet with flowing sap, and you wonder how it got through the bark. When you look, you find small round holes drilled in a row around the trunk. Each small hole is beaded with sap; it is slowly trickling down, saturating the bark. Something has been here—a bird. This is one of the wisest birds of the spring. It knows how to bait a trap to catch the first insects swarming out in the warm sun. This bird is the yellow-bellied sapsucker and even as you examine the trunk of the maples and see the insects feasting on the sweet sap, the sapsucker is sitting somewhere near, no doubt chucking to himself at the gullibility of insects.

On the trunk you will see the ants marching up and down, their bellies bloated with sweet sap; they'd better hurry to get to their den before the sapsucker comes back. You also see five or six different kinds of flies, attracted to the maples by the flowing sap; and there are bugs—the ladybugs hibernated under the roots of the maple in a big wad to keep warm. Now the sap flows down to the roots of the tree and the ladybugs wake up and crawl out; they too like a taste of sweet sap. Alas, while all these insects are enjoying their feast, the sapsucker swoops down and picks them off before they can escape. There are plenty of insects to fill his belly for a day or so; he dines to the full, drills some new holes and waits for another feast.

You walk out along the swamp in the early days of February; soon you will find spring has come for the skunk-cabbage. In some wet, sheltered spot you'll find it in bloom. It sends up a great speckled spathe shaped like a hood; this spathe covers the flower parts inside it and shields them against the cold. From a distance, the hood looks like the head and neck of a large speckled bird. The leaves are big and broad like fans; you crush them and take a whiff. Fresh! No wonder this huge, robust plant is called "skunk-cabbage!" It smells more like onions though then skunk; it is a loud, rank odor and here again we see displayed the marvelous intelligence of nature. The skunk cabbage knows there are no bees out this early in the season to do the needed work of pollination. Instead of having perfume to attract bees, it produces an odor to attract flies, which do on bad odors. Does this show some sort of thinking process for this plant? It would seem so. How does it know that flies will be out in February seeking food, but it's yet too early for the bees?

Other things wake up to spring in February. I walk upon the ridge, past a large oak; under that oak there is a burrow in which two pilot blacksnakes have lain dormant since last November. But now the sun strikes warm on the tree; the heat penetrates the sleeping quarters of the snakes and out they crawl to warm their cold-blooded bodies in the first balmy rays of the sun. I go, too, near their winter den and they don't like this at all. They don't want anything near their winter quarters; they will go back to sleep some more when it turns cold again. As I approach them, they rear up, their tails hissing in the dry leaves; they lash out savagely and drive me away. But they have had a real day of spring in February. Their bodies are warmed by the first mellow sunlight of the season.

I scratch down in the soft, black soil, looking for bloodroot's first sprout. I find the large, fleshy rootstock and, sure enough, there at the front end of it a sprout is beginning to push up. This sprout knows it's spring . . . almost; bloodroot is one of the few "immortal plants" of nature. It never dies unless bruised or injured by man or animals. Its roots are filled with rich, red blood—the life-giving principle that lends it immortality. Year after year, it puts up a new sprout long before spring comes by the calendar. It proclaims eternal spring! The large, white blossom will be waving like a banner of victory, long before March 20th.

Prestonsburg Loses One Game, Wins One

By DAVID MUSIC

The Prestonsburg Black Cats lost to the Johns Creek Bear Cats, 69-67, last Friday night, but defeated the Salyersville Hornets, 79-74, the following evening.

The Black Cats were led in both games by Keith Leslie who scored over 20 points in each game and also led in rebounding, with Joe Cooley and Steve Ousley close behind. Cooley, who has come back after an injury, scored in double figures both nights.

The game between Prestonsburg and Johns Creek was close up until the last seconds of play. Prestonsburg was behind in the last 50 seconds by six points, but scored enough to lose by only one point.

After the first quarter of the Salyersville game, Prestonsburg led all the way, although the visitors outscored the Cats in the final quarter.

New Teaching Method On Trial at McDowell

A new approach to reading for the beginner which originated in England and spread to schools in the United States is being closely watched as it is taught in the McDowell elementary school.

The new teaching tool, perfected a few years ago by Sir James Pitman, grandson of the man who developed the Pitman system of shorthand, is designed to eliminate some of the confusion with which the beginner is beset when he tries to associate sight and sound of letters in the traditional alphabet.

The new system, known as the Initial Teaching Alphabet (ITA), has 44 characters which are made up of 24 conventional letters, 14 which are letters joined together to make sounds, plus six new symbols of letters. It is pointed out that ITA successfully attacks problems faced by a child when he encounters, for instance, the long vowel represented by the letter "I" and finds that it can be spelled differently in words such as "aisle," "height," "choir," "eye," "buy," and so on.

Those who have used ITA say that, once the 44 characters or letters are learned, any word can be read and written successfully by the child.

Clem Martin, director of instruction for the Floyd school system, said he has studied the system and its results, "with an open mind," neither accepting or rejecting it until experience justifies action in one direction or another. Marshall University, Huntington, W. Va., has been very helpful to the Floyd school system in its consideration of ITA. Martin and possibly others have witnessed teaching of the system in Baltimore and other cities.

At McDowell Mrs. Vivian Allen is trying this new approach in the teaching of reading to her first-graders, and she has this to say about the program:

"I feel that the first-grade reading materials have not changed significantly in so many, many years that we have a nagging need to move into something better. Having taught this program for one

MARRIED 50 YEARS AGO

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of my dear husband, Luther Allen, who passed away October 15, 1967. For our anniversary, February 14:

The nights are so long without you How cheerless the sun My smile when it comes is empty My hand to a friend is chill. In a world where one lover listens, but the voice of the other is still

I stand at my window at midnight gazing into the darkness beyond My grief is overwhelming when I realize again you are gone All of our memories, darling, will in my heart abide till I turn the knob of the door of Heaven and find you waiting on the other side.

You are free of your pain and sorrow since God has taken you home

But I am left here wandering without you in this cold, lonely world alone.

Life is so pointless without you My skies are forever gray But I must try to believe time heals

That life is not hopeless But without you it seems that way.

Sadly missed by Your wife, Helen

THE VERSATILE WHITE BASS

a sharp eye on the tip of his rods and when there is a slight tug he will hoist away with all vigor. His line will more than apt become tangled with his two or three other lines that he is using, but that's all a part of the business, and he'll go right on fishing. Often, when conditions are favorable, he'll probably get bites on more than one pole at the same time and that will cause him some trouble, too, but he'll enjoy it all.

Often the whites will be caught also by casting, mostly off the points and they are not opposed to taking a minnow that has been proffered the crappie.

All in all the white bass is a valuable member of Kentucky's family of fishes.

DISABLED SURVIVOR MAY RECEIVE BENEFITS AT 50

It is now possible for the disabled widow, disabled widower, or disabled divorced wife of a worker who was insured under social security at death to receive disability benefits as early as age 50.

Daryl E. Ratliff, District Manager of the Pikeville District Office, announced Monday that a 1967 change in the law made such payments possible as early as March, 1968.

"About one of every five applicants for Social Security disability insurance benefits delays so long before making his application that he risks possible loss of some of his payments," Mr. Ratliff said, and in an obvious effort to remedy this situation, he added: "We're inviting anyone who thinks he might possibly qualify for disability benefits to get in touch with the Social Security people as soon as possible."

Ratliff pointed out that under the present law a widow who is unable to work because of severe disability may be able to get monthly benefits as early as age 50. Disabled widow's benefits are also payable to a surviving divorced wife at age 50, but only if her marriage to the wage-earner lasted as long as 20 years, and he was contributing to her support at the time of his death or was under court order to do so. A disabled widower who was receiving at least half of his support from his wife at the time she died is also eligible for benefits at age 50.

In order to meet the disability requirement for these new benefits, the disabled survivor must have a physical or mental impairment that is severe enough to prevent the performance of any gainful work, has lasted (or is expected to last) 12 months or more, and started before or within seven years after the death of the worker.

An exception to this rule, Mr. Ratliff stated, is a widow who received monthly benefits as a widow with children. She can qualify if her disability starts before or within seven years after such benefits ended.

The amount of the benefit will be affected by the widow's age at the time she starts receiving benefits. It can be as low as 50 percent of the benefit the deceased worker would have received (if the widow's benefits start when she reaches age 50), or may be as high as 82½ percent (if she waits until she is age 62). Mr. Ratliff explained that the social security intervisers will go into all the details of individual cases so that qualified persons may make an intelligent choice as to when the benefits should start.

ship is outstanding. I'm tickled to death to have a part in it."

This, he pointed out, is the leadership and community spirit which results in good things such as the proposed regional hospital.

Hill-Burton and EDA grants approved for the hospital total $4,118,400. An EDA loan has been approved for $1,126,600. But the area is asked to raise on its own roughly 3 percent of the $5,395,000 total. Failure to do so would threaten the entire project.

The proposed five-story, 150-bed hospital is planned to serve the counties of Floyd, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin. It will also be an emergency center for the entire valley.

A 22-acre site has already been purchased from Hobart McGuire. It is located on new US 23, approximately four miles north of Prestonsburg and six miles south of Paintsville.

Interest of specialists in various fields of medicine has already been attracted, and the new hospital is considered the magnet necessary to draw them to this area.

"If students and teachers need protection," said Clark, "we will call to their defense whatever number of peace officers that is necessary."

W. S. Gibson, South Central Bell Telephone Co. manager, said Tuesday numerous "nuisance" telephone calls have been reported to his office recently by Martin residents and that all were apparently inspired by the continuing school vendetta.

He added that he expects to have installed by today (Thursday) equipment which will enable the company to trace such calls.

"When these calls are traced," he added, "we intend to ask the full penalty for the guilty." The penalty could be a fine of $1,000 and a year in jail.

"We don't believe," Gibson said, "any jury would be sympathetic toward a person who threatens the lives of children."

The telephone company official added that Bell has more trouble from anonymous telephone calls in this county than in any other in the area.

Study Made Monday Of Computer Feasibility

Morehead, Ky., Jan. 30—Would it be feasible to establish a regional computer center for public schools and colleges in Eastern Kentucky?

A 28-member task force gathered at Morehead State University Monday as part of the search for an answer.

Two computer firms assigned engineers to the study which is financed by a grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission. The investigation began last year.

The task force specifically sought to learn if public school systems and institutions of higher education need high-speed data processing and if such systems are economically feasible.

Suggested uses include registration of students, class scheduling, attendance recordkeeping, cost accounting and computer-assisted classroom instruction.

The task force is headed by Dr. Morris L. Norfleet, MSU vice-president for research and development.

TRANSITION TO UK EASY FOR MOST WHO STUDIED AT COMMUNITY COLLEGE

A recent survey of University of Kentucky students who transferred to the Lexington campus from one of UK's 15 community colleges reports 72 percent indicated they "experienced no problems" in making the transition.

Conducted by the Office of the Dean of Admissions and Registrar, the survey found that 64 percent of the responding students felt they "received adequate preparation" at the community college, while 36 percent felt they had not received adequate preparation.

If they had it to do over again, 73 percent said they would still go to the community college, but many of them for only one year.

Twenty-one percent indicated they would not attend a community college if they were starting college again.

A common complaint from almost 80 percent of the students questioned was "the lack of, or improper, counseling and advising on both the Lexington campus and the community college campus."

The University advises students transferring from the community colleges to report for a one-day summer orientation program. The survey found that 37 percent of the students felt they did not benefit from the program, although 35 percent indicated they did not attend all sessions of the orientation. Sixty-three percent felt the orientation was helpful.

Although the students had been on the Lexington campus a short period of time when the survey was made, 75 percent indicated they had experienced no problems while enrolled on the main campus.

Radiant Rays

Psalms 34:5 They looked unto Him and were radiant . . .

Greetings, traveling companions. May I share a verse from "Getting Back?"—
All the aim of life is just
Getting back to God.
Spirit casting off its dust.
Getting back to God.
Every grief we have to bear,
Disappointment, cross,
Despair,
Each is but another stair,
Getting back to God.

On our journey there for this phase we have been trying to see into the future and consider the possibilities. We considered death and concluded that he was a friend in disguise. Next to death, what do we mortals generally fear? Crippling accident or debilitating disease.

I'm most fortunate in this capacity. I cannot speak from experience. I can only refer you to others who have suffered and let you weigh their experiences against the possibilities that may come your way and use them to prepare your soul for such. Of course the first one to come to mind is Jesus Christ. No one suffered more deeply—yet "for the joy that was set before Him he suffered the shame of the cross." This tells us that if we have a goal beyond the immediate it can sustain us through trials. Christ told us that He came to release captives and reduce suffering in others.

Do you remember the story of the Little Dutch Boy who stuck his finger in the hole in the dike to prevent the hole from becoming bigger and thereby weakening the dam and ultimately destroying the community? This little fellow suffered cold and freezing because he knew he was saving others. If our suffering is for another, it is easier to bear. Remember Job, that man of patience. He suffered almost as much as a person can and still live. The scriptures teach us that this was for our benefit.

$20 Reward

I will pay a reward of $20 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who on the night of February 1 stole four tires and radiator from my automobile.
JACK SELLARDS
Stanville, Ky.
2-6-2t-pd

What little suffering I've had to do has been to develop patience and understanding. Many times adversity comes our way simply because God can't get us to stop long enough to listen to Him otherwise. We're so busy with our own affairs that we ignore His affairs, and so He puts us on our back, or in a wheel chair until we are ready to listen.
"Let no man pray that he know not sorrow,
Let no soul ask to be free from pain,
For the gall of today is the sweet of tomorrow,
And the moment's loss is the life-time's gain."
—Life's Harmonies

The Apostle Paul said it this way: "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord . . ."

Petition In Protest of Application for Sewage Permit for Construction of Eastern Consolidated High School, Eastern, Floyd County, Kentucky.

Board of Education of Floyd County, Ky., Charles Clark, County Superintendent of Schools of Floyd County, Ky., John M. Shumbo, Chairman of the Board of Education of Floyd County, Ky., Dr. J. H. Allen, Member of the Board of Education of Floyd County, Ky., Bill Blair, Member of the Board of Education of Floyd County, Ky., Ross Cooley, Member of the Board of Education of Floyd County, O. R. Howard, Member of the Board of Education of Floyd County, Ky., Board of Education of Floyd County, as a body politic, Floyd Fiscal Court, as a body politic, Henry Shumbo, Bill Wells, Zeb Ousley, Edward Cantill, and Dewey Roberts, Members of and composing the Floyd Fiscal Court, Applicants.

The protestants for their petition against the applicants state as follows:

1. The applicants, Board of Education of Floyd County, Ky., has on file before this Commission plans, specifications and application for permit for the approval of construction of a sewage disposal system to service a proposed building or buildings to be known as the Eastern Consolidated High School at Eastern on the waters of Right Beaver Creek, Floyd County, Kentucky.

2. The effluence of the sewage system proposed would empty into the extremely shallow stream bed of Right Beaver Creek and would flow downstream some seven miles to the intake of the City of Martin Water Works in Beaver Creek.

3. The sewage disposal system would propose to service the needs of some 700 students. The amount of effluence emptied into Right Beaver Creek based on 700 students using approximately 20 gallons of water per student per day, would be 14,000 gallons per day—all within a period of the school day of six to eight hours.

4. Considered together and independently, the short distance from the effluence entering into Right Beaver Creek to the intake of the Martin Water Works, and the low normal water level of Right Beaver Creek may result in saturation of the pollution. The decreased water flow in summer months would result in even greater saturation of the pollution.

5. The sewage system proposed for the Right Beaver Consolidated High School as above mentioned may adversely and dangerously affect the health and welfare of the citizens of the City of Martin in polluting the water supply of that municipality and would constitute a violation of the water pollution laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, as well as the laws of the Federal Government.

6. Protestants respectfully request the Commission and its engineers to go upon the scene and determine the correctness of the facts herein stated and further request a public hearing, preferably at Martin, Floyd County, Kentucky, to determine the issues raised herein.

WHEREFORE, protestants demand that the approval of the specifications and plans for the proposed sewage system of the Eastern Consolidated High School, Eastern, Kentucky, be disapproved and permit denied and request a public hearing be conducted in the City of Martin to determine the issues raised in this protest.

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS 1969 BOONE CENTENNIAL YEAR

Gov. Louis B. Nunn has proclaimed 1969 the Daniel Boone Bicentennial year in Kentucky.

In May of 1769 Daniel Boone crossed Cumberland Gap into the Kentucky wilderness to begin his first extensive exploration of the Kentucky territory. 200 years later the Governor of Kentucky noted, "The proud history of this Commonwealth may be said to have begun in the year of Boone's entry into the Great Meadow of Kentucky."

In praising all Kentucky's pioneers, the Governor commented that Daniel Boone possessed "in special measure those qualities of courage, initiative and hardiness that typified our early settlers."

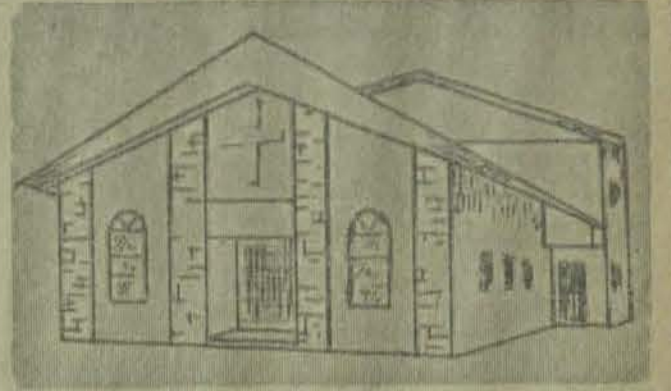

"It was through Cumberland Gap," proclaimed the Governor, "and over the trails that Boone blazed that the first surge of the westward movement came, opening up not only Kentucky but all the western portion of our nation to civilization."

In signing the proclamation Gov. Nunn extended an invitation to everyone to "Re-discover Kentucky" and made this the official slogan for the Daniel Boone Bicentennial year.

The theme of "Re-discover Kentucky" will be used in Kentucky travel promotion both locally and nationally during the coming year. Travelers across the nation will be invited to retrace the footsteps of that early traveler and trailmaker. The hope was also expressed that the many festivals and annual events around the state would adopt the "Re-discover Kentucky" slogan, thus unifying efforts to popularize the 1969 campaign.

Oral Interpretation Clinic Held Monday For High Schools

Eighteen high school in Eastern Kentucky participated in a two-day oral interpretation clinic January 31 and February 1 at Ashland.

Dr. Kathryn Schoen, of Ohio University's Schools of Communication, was the guest-consultant for 150 clinic participants.

The clinic was held to permit Eastern Kentucky students to develop skills in dramatic reading and acting techniques. Students use this opportunity to demonstrate their abilities to employ facial expression, gestures, bodily attitude, voice tone and pitch to convey meaning to an audience. Teachers accompanying students to Ashland gained insight in evaluating their pupils' progress in communicative arts skills.

Plans outlined by Regional Communicative Arts Steering and Planning Committee call for student and teacher involvement in future dramatic events. Morehead and Pikeville will be sites for regional drama festivals during February. The state drama festival will be held on University of Kentucky's campus at Lexington, March 13. On March 28-29 a regional drama committee meeting will be held at Prestonsburg. In April, Ashland's Paul G. Blazer high school will host the National Thesplan Convention.

Notice To Bidders

The Floyd County Board of Education will receive bids until 12 noon March 1, 1969, on approximately 625 high school diplomas for the various schools. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Value Showdown:

Match these features against what competition gives you for the same kind of money, and you'll have a better idea why more people are buying Chevrolets again this year.

Built-in "guard rails"

There's a strong steel beam built into every door of every 1969 Caprice, Impala, Bel Air, Biscayne, Kingswood Estate Wagon, Kingswood, Townsman and Brookwood.

We call it a side guard beam, and it looks like one of those guard rails you see along the freeway.

That's what it's there for: To guard you. To strengthen the door and put a more solid wall between you and the outside world.

Not a glamorous feature. But you'll have to admit, worthwhile.

Computer-selected springs

Maybe you'll order your new Chevy equipped to the hilt.

Or maybe you'll order it with hardly anything on it.

Either way, you're going to get your full measure of our renowned ride.

Because we go to the trouble of programming each car's equipment load into an electronic computer.

The computer then tells us exactly which springs to use, depending on the car's weight and the way it's distributed.

Chevrolet, the only car in its field with computer-selected springs.

Fenders inside fenders

We could have skipped this. (The other cars in our field do.) But we're as anxious as you are to keep your beautiful new Chevy looking beautiful and new.

So:

Up inside the regular fenders we've placed a second set.

They do all the in-fighting. Catch all the splashed-up rain, slush and road salt. Stop the kicked-up stones.

While your "outers" just sit there looking pretty.

Astro Ventilation

The other two cars in our field give you air intakes down by the floor.

So do we.

We also give you two up on the instrument panel.

And all four of them are adjustable so you can regulate the flow of air just the way you like it.

Even with all the windows closed, you'll be comfortable inside. You get air without wind. Without noise.

Astro Ventilation is standard, now, on all the big Chevrolets.

The theft-thwarter

On the steering column there's a lock.

Only Chevrolet has it, in Chevrolet's field.

You turn the key and it locks three things:

Your ignition.

Your steering wheel.

Your shift lever.

When you own a car this tempting, you don't dare take chances.

Biggest standard V8 in our field

Ask any car enthusiast, he'll tell you:

Chevrolet builds great engines. Especially V8s.

And this year there are six great V8s available for the big Chevrolet. Standard: Our 235-hp 327-cubic-inch Turbo-Fire.

Another thing: We've lowered the price of several of our bigger V8s along with our automatic transmissions and power disc brakes. Which makes it possible for you to buy a '69 Chevrolet for even less money than you could last year.

Show up for our Showdown. You can't lose.

Putting you first, keeps us first. Impala Sport Coupe

Drivers Here Get Breathalyzer Test

The Prestonsburg Police Department put into use its recently acquired Breathalyzer for the first time two weeks ago, and the "subject" registered an alcohol level of .22, the equivalent of about 11 ounces of 100-proof whiskey. A reading of .10 indicates the subject is drunk.

The Breathalyzer, an intricate gadget which analyzes the breath to determine the alcoholic content of the blood of the subject, came into widespread use as a result of the Implied Consent Law enacted by the Kentucky Legislature last year.

The law requires a motorist charged with drunk driving to submit to a chemical test for alcohol, whether it be by Breathalyzer, urine analysis or blood sampling. If the driver refuses, his operator's license is automatically revoked, even if the driver later goes into court and wins an acquittal.

Policeman Ralph Thornsbury has a certificate from Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, after taking a training course there. He will operate the Breathalyzer here.

The device was provided the police department here by the federal government. Otherwise, it would have cost the city $700. With it came a simulator which costs $125. This is a test machine. An "artificial drunk" is created by a mixture of alcohol and water in desired quantity, and the Breathalyzer analysis is checked against the simulator.

A U. S. Department of Transportation study last year showed that the use of alcohol by drivers and pedestrians leads to 25,000 deaths a year in the United States and a total of 800,000 wrecks and collisions a year.
