

The Suit Winner, Board To Appeal

Aim To End Bond Doubt For School

If New Sale of Bonds Forced, Cost To Board Seen As $25,000 Plus

Although the recent decision of Special Judge James B. Stephenson favored the Floyd County Board of Education and permits it to proceed with construction of the proposed high school at Eastern, the board's attorney, W. W. Burchett, this week filed notice of an appeal.

The appeal from the circuit court opinion is intended to speed up a final decision in the case. The plaintiffs, residents of Martin, have 30 days in which to appeal the case to the Court of Appeals, and this would delay to the detriment of the project a final adjudication, the board of education held.

Joe Hobson, attorney for the Martin plaintiffs, announced Wednesday that he will file notice of cross-appeal.

Bond purchasers, it was pointed out, require litigation-free bonds, and the 41-day period given the board in which to establish this "clear" status already has expired. If bond-firm attorneys hold the board to this time limitation, re-advertising of the bonds would be necessary.

And this, it was said this week, could cost the board of education from $25,000 to $30,000 in interest. The bonds to finance the new school sold at 5.8% interest. Three other county boards have sold bonds since that time, and the lowest rate of interest for any of the three was 5.97%.

Another reason given for seeking a quick final adjudication of the case by the Court of Appeals is the approaching deadline for $200,000 of federal funds to be available for the project. "If this is lost, we will have to start all over again," County Supt. Charles Clark said.

Clark said nothing can be done until a final decision is made. He said plans of the board to renovate the existing high school building at Martin for grade school use are among the items dependent upon final outcome of the suit. These plans, he said, include lowering of the ceilings in the building, installation of adequate lighting, complete renovation of toilet facilities and central heating.

CAPT. FIELDS WAR VICTIM

Native of Floyd Dies As 'Copter Shot Down In Vietnam, March 26

Capt. Robert W. Fields, 28, Air Force surgeon and native of this county, was killed in Vietnam March 26 when the helicopter in which he was flying was shot down in flames.

The victim was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Herschell Fields, of Deland, Fla., former owners of a Prestonsburg store, and was born at Garrett. His death followed his marriage by five weeks. He had returned to Vietnam only a short time before his death after coming home to visit his father, who is seriously ill.

Capt. Fields was a graduate of the University of Florida and received his medical degree from the University of Miami. He is survived by his parents, his widow, Mrs. Jeanette Fields, and one sister, Mrs. Kathleen Mahaffey, Jacksonville, Florida.

His uncle, Tom Fields, of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Fields were among the Kentucky relatives who attended the funeral at Deland last Friday.

Group Takes Look At Area Education

Congressional staff members and representatives of the U. S. Bureau of the Budget and Office of Education, with Health, Education and Welfare specialists, conducted a pilot "traveling seminar" in Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties this week to get an on-the-spot look at the educational programs financed mainly by federal funds.

Purpose of the seminar was not so much to check on the work being done as to gain a more realistic understanding of actual educational practices and problems and to improve communications between Washington and educational staff members and educators in the field.

The group began its Floyd county work Tuesday morning with a breakfast-seminar at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, and from there visited two schools. At Clark elementary school the non-graded innovative program was the object of interest. Later, the delegation chose to visit a rural school, and the one selected was on Left Toler, most isolated of all schools in the county. Members of the party made the last mile to the school, afoot.

At the May Lodge meeting Superintendent Charles Clark, Assistant Superintendent Wayne Radloff and Clem Martin, director of instruction, supplied the visitors with an orientation briefing.

"We think this is a very significant move," Supt. Clark said. "Always before, we have gone to Washington to tell the story of education. Now, Washington is getting at the grass-roots to bring about a better understanding of the whole problem."

The "traveling seminar" moved on from here to Pike, Knott and Perry counties.

On their return to Washington members of the party will discuss practices and situations observed, then join education decision-makers in further discussions, emphasizing "what works" and how it can be stimulated elsewhere through federal action.

Charles I. Fultz, executive director of the Education Advisory Committee, Appalachian Regional Commission, led the Eastern Kentucky tour. Other members of the party included William F. Gaul, associate general counsel, House Committee on Education and Labor; Guy Smith, U. S. Office of Education; Harley Dirks, U. S. Senate representative; John T. Bass, Congressional assistant; Miss Mary Hoag, research assistant to Senator Prouty; James Blunt, John Leebman, Jan Pitman and Naomi Parusa, all of Washington, D. C.

KY. MENTAL HEALTH CHIEF, WOMAN'S CLUB SPEAKER

For its April meeting the Prestonsburg Woman's Club had as guest-speaker Dr. Dale Farabee, Kentucky Commissioner of Mental Health.

Dr. Farabee said Kentucky is No. 1 in the nation in the development of regional mental health centers. He praised the local club for its support of the local mental health program but reminded members it is not a time to sit back and feel the job is completed.

Dr. Farabee pointed out that one in every ten persons would need some form of mental health service sometime in his life.

At the conclusion of Dr. Farabee's talk, an Easter-time dessert was served by the following hostesses: Mrs. Lee Shannon, Mrs. Joe Burke, Mrs. J. Y. Goble, Mrs. Tom O. McGuire, Mrs. Hubbard Francis, Mrs. J. B. Clark, and Mrs. Glenn Brickley.

In general business session, Mrs. Tom Bolling informed club members the recent style show had netted $350 for the Hospital Fund. The group also nominated and elected new officers for the coming year. They are:

Pike Coal Company Pays $15,000 Fine

Kentland-Elkhorn Coal Company this week paid its $15,000 fine — the largest ever imposed through a Kentucky Pollution Control Commission action — for pollution of a tributary of the Big Sandy River in Pike county, and the success there led Floyd county conservationists to consider all over again the situation in the head of Johns Creek.

2 OUTPOSTS SET TO OPEN

Will Ready Program For Health Service Throughout County

With the opening of two additional outposts scheduled within the next two weeks, the pilot Comprehensive Health Program will be set to carry out its full program of taking medical care, health information and allied services to every part of the county. Dr. Russell L. Hall, director of the program, said here this week.

The two new outposts will be located at Goodloe on Middle Creek and near Maytown on Right Beaver Creek. They will bring to eight the total number of stations out of which personnel will work. Outposts already are in operation at Dvale, Bypro, Drift, Bosco, Mud Creek and Ivel.

Each outpost is staffed by a nurse who acts as team leader, four aides and a clerk. Visits by aides to the homes of the economically depressed locate those in need of medical attention. Nursing service is afforded, and in many instances the program provides transportation of patients to doctors and hospitals.

A dental hygienist is stationed at the Toler Creek outpost which serves the Mud Creek section, and the work there has been described as "not only badly needed but outstanding." Dental attention also is given through the cooperation of dentists in private practice.

Civil Cases To Pad Slim Crime Docket

Crace Gets Jail Term In Circuit Court Trial; Termite Company Fined

The first conviction of the current court term was recorded Wednesday when Billy Joe Crace was convicted of a hit-run driving charge and sentenced to six months in jail. The case against Bill Hinton, who was indicted with Crace for leaving the scene after hitting the car of Melvina Frazier, was dismissed.

The State Termite Company was convicted of conducting business without a license and drew a $100 fine.

The grand jury recessed Wednesday after three days of work and will resume its session next Monday.

Judge Says Floyd Crime Now Lowest

Aid Programs, Officers' Work Are Given Credit For Fewer Violations

When the Floyd circuit court convened Monday morning Circuit Judge Hollie Conley told a small court gathering that the criminal docket is so slim that some civil cases will be booked for trial in order to fill out the work-schedule of the term.

Judge Conley did not give the grand jury formal instructions but before juries were empaneled directed his remarks to all attending the opening of court. He pointed out that law violations in the county are at an all-time low, with not a murder case docketed and only one homicide for the grand jury to investigate.

He said that when he recently told a Perry county court official of the low crime rate here the other found it difficult to believe that the murder docket here is as low as it is. Perry has five or six murders docketed for trial, he was told.

Judge Conley said there may be several factors contributing to the decline of cases on the docket here. He cited two:

1. Federal programs which relieve financial stresses of families and cut down on child desertion charges.

2. The work done by Floyd county law-enforcement officers.

Wallace Calhoun was named foreman of the grand jury.

TWO ACTIONS ASK $30,000

City Officials Named With Station Owners In Prestonsburg Suit

Damages totaling $30,000 are asked in two suits filed in circuit court here within the week.

Mrs. Billie Elswick, Delmer Elswick and Anna Lee Harris asked $10,000 damages in a suit filed Saturday, naming Rondall Lawson and Joseph M. Hall, doing business as the Community Sunoco Service Station, Mayor Archer and eight members of the City Council as defendants.

Plaintiffs claim their property has been damaged as the result of construction of high retaining walls by the service station owners, resulting in improper drainage and creating hazards. They included the mayor and council members on the ground that the officials had permitted construction of the retaining walls and had refused to correct the situation, meanwhile permitting additional walls to be constructed.

In the other suit Florence Mullins and others sue Stephens Elkhorn Fuel Corp. and the C. & O. Railway Company for $20,000 damages. The plaintiffs claim the coal company is using their land for the purpose of removing, storing and hauling products from lands in which the company does not own any interest and is using tracks connecting to the C. & O. tracks for these purposes without right to do so.

They claim C. & O. is maintaining and operating tracks across their property and that ingress and egress to the (See Story No. 3, Page 3)

'UP THE DOWN STAIRCASE' AUTHOR And NUNN SLATED TO SPEAK AT KEA SESSION
LOUISVILLE, KY. (ENS) — Bel Kaufman, author of "Up the Down Staircase," will share the spotlight with Governor Louie B. Nunn at this year's Education (KEA) convention, with both scheduled to speak at the general session at 9:30 a.m. Friday, April 11.
"Up the Down Staircase," Miss Kaufman's novel, tells the story of a teacher's first four months in a big city school. Published in 1955, it was later made into a highly successful motion picture of the same title, starring Sandy Dennis.
Miss Kaufman, granddaughter of Yiddish humorist Sholom Aleichem (whose Tevye stories were basis for the long-running Broadway musical, "Fiddler on the Roof"), knows her subject well, having taught in New York public schools for 15 years.
She has worked in vocational high schools as well as schools for gifted children. Currently she is teaching writing and literature at the Borough of Manhattan Community College and the New School for Social Research.

Young Democrats Set Meeting at McDowell
The Floyd County Young Democrats' Club will meet at 7:30 p.m., April 15, at McDowell high school for the election of officers for the new year and to discuss next month's scheduled convention of the Young Democrats in Louisville.
Democrats between the ages of 16 and 35 are eligible to membership in the club, it was said.
U. K. PROFESSORS
The University of Kentucky chapter of the American Association of University Professors was founded over 27 years ago and now numbers more than 400 members.

Success or Failure
As manhood dawns and the young man catches its first lights, the pinnacles of realized dreams, the golden domes of high possibilities, and the purpling hills of great delights, and then looks down upon the narrow, sinuous, long, and dusty paths by which others have reached them, he is apt to be disgusted with the passage, and to seek success through broader channels and by quicker means. It calls on the young man to put forth energy and determination. It bids him to build well his foundation, but it promises in reward of this a crowning triumph.
There never was a time in the world's history when high success in any profession or calling demanded harder or more earnest labor than now. It is impossible to succeed in a hurry. Men can no longer go at a single leap into eminent positions. As these articles that are most highly prized to attain require the greatest amount of labor, so the road that leads to success is long and rugged. What matter if a round does break or a foot slip? — such things must be expected, and, being expected, they must be overcome. Rome was not built in a day; but proofs of her magnificence are still to be seen. We each prepare a temple to last through all eternity. A structure to last so long, can it take but a day to build it? The days of a life-time are necessary to build the monument mightier than Rome and more enduring than adamant. It is hard, earnest work, step by step, that secures success; and while energy and perseverance are securing the prize for steady workers, others sitting down by the wayside are wondering why they, too, can not be successful. They surely forget that the true key is labor, and that nothing but a strong, resolute will can turn it. The secret of one's success or failure is usually contained in answer to the question, "How earnest is he?" Success is the child of confidence and perseverance. The talent of success is simply doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do, without a thought of fame. Success is the best test of capacity and materially confirms us in a favorable opinion of ourselves. Success in life is the proper and harmonious development of those faculties which God has given us.
Whatever you try to do in life, try with all your heart to do it well; whatever you devote yourself to, devote yourself completely. Never believe it possible that any natural ability can claim immunity from companionship of the steady, plain, hard-working qualities, and hope to gain its end. There can be such fulfillment on this earth. Some happy talent and some fortunate opportunity may form the sides of the ladder on which some men mount; but the rungs of the ladder must be made of material to stand wear and tear, and there is no substitute for hard-working, ardent, sincere earnestness. Never put your hand to anything into which you can not throw your whole self; never expect depreciation of your own work, whatever it is.
Although success is the guardian for which all men toil, they have, nevertheless, often to labor on perseveringly without any promise of success in sight. They have to live, meanwhile, upon their courage. Sowing their seed, it may be in the dark, in the hope that it yet will take root and spring up in achieved result. The best of causes have had to fight their way to triumph through a long succession of failures and many of the assailants have died in the breach before the fortune has been won. The heroism they have displayed is to be measured, not so much by their immediate successes as by the opposition they have encountered and the courage with which they have maintained the struggle.

In Loving Memory of My Mother, Rosa Sellards on her 88th birthday, April 11

I cannot send a birthday card, Your hand I cannot touch, Today there will be no gifts and cake, For the one I loved so much, For in a graveside softly sleeping

Where the flowers gently wave, Lies the one I loved so dearly, But whom I could not save, God alone knows how I miss her

As He counts the tears I shed, For He whispers, "She is only sleeping, Your loved one is not dead."

So on this, her birthday, "Forgive me, Lord," I pray, "She was so precious, Why couldn't she have stayed?"

With farewell unspoken you gently entered home, Now peacefully sleeping, resting at last, world's worry, trouble and trials are past. In silence you suffered; no one knows the pain you bore. So God called you home, to suffer no more.

A TRIBUTE TO MOUNTAIN MANOR

I wish to take this opportunity to express my heartfelt thanks, love, and many prayers to the entire staff at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home, here in Prestonsburg. I have visited many times, even before my own mother went there. I have always received the best from the whole staff. They are all very kind and courteous, and it's much more like being in my own home than in a nursing home. As I have observed many times, I find the most efficient, warm-hearted, considerate, kindest staff I have ever known anywhere. Also, by experience I know they have their hearts and hands full, and they do a wonderful job. They have no preference, they are the same to each individual. It is also very clean and sanitary. The cooking is delicious, as I have bought guest trays, when visiting, and my tray had the very same as the patients, unless, of course, it was some one on a special diet. So, again, my heartfelt thanks, to all the staff at the Mountain Manor and God bless you all.

Six Floyd Students At Eastern Doing Student-Teaching

Six students from this county are among 453 seniors at Eastern Kentucky University now involved in student teaching at 142 different Kentucky schools.

The number of students is an all-time record, according to Dr. J. Dorland Coates, associate dean for teaching education. There are 174 students in elementary schools and 279 in secondary schools. The practice period lasts 10 weeks.

Each student is supervised by an experienced teacher, and each was prepared for his on-the-job training by a six weeks' course in methods and fundamentals.

Floyd county student teachers include:

Mary Anne Harris, of Emma; Sandra C. Stumbo of Harold; Edith S. Patrick, of Hueysville; Tommy D. Hall, of Ivel; and Gayle R. Burchett and Peggy Lewis, both of Prestonsburg.

Cleanup of State Streams Part of Special Emphasis

Frankfort — Removing debris from streams and rivers throughout Kentucky will be emphasized by many conservation groups during the month of April, the Department of Natural Resources has announced.

April has been proclaimed "Clean-Up and Beautification Month" throughout Kentucky by Gov. Nunn.

Representatives from the following groups will participate in the special clean-up event: Audubon Society of Kentucky, Cumberland and Ohio Chapters of the Sierra Club, The Kentucky Rivers Canoe Club, Louisville Hiking Club, Boy Scouts, Kentucky Society of Natural History, and the League of Kentucky Sportsmen.

William Nash, director of Natural Resources' Division of Clean-Up and Beautification, said "every effort will be made to clear away existing litter from stream areas throughout the state. Many groups are planning education programs to advise citizens how to properly dispose of unwanted items."

Nash said a number of cities are planning local clean-up and beautification projects which will involve a whole community.

A "Neighborhood Clean-Up Campaign" is planned for Paducah, sponsored by the Paducah Civic Beautification Board. Hazard has completed plans for a campaign entitled, "Operation Pride."

Danville, Earlinton, Henderson, Ashland, Williamsburg, and Hickman have contacted Nash for information. He added, there are many other interested communities.

Types of activities include: cleaning up vacant lots, organizing neighborhood block programs to paint and repair, green thumb programs for lawn care, and renovating downtown areas for a more attractive appearance.

Several types of promotional material are available from the Division of Clean-Up and Beautification, Kentucky Department of Natural Resources, Frankfort.

* Bumper stickers, entitled "Every Litter Bit Hurts." Starting April 1, these will be placed on all State-owned vehicles.

* "Color Me Clean", a 32-page coloring booklet for the small fry. It features Kentucky's clean-up mascots, Dan'l and Rebecca Broome, whose job it is to help keep Kentucky a "cleaner and greener land."

* Litter bags, designed for use in cars. These contain cartoon figures of the pair of mascots and are being distributed at Kentucky State Parks and Tourist Information Centers.

Nash said over $600,000 was spent in the State last year to clean Kentucky Highways.

"It would help a lot and cost the taxpayers a good deal less if every car owner would use a litter bag."

Martin Officers Get Drunk Test Training; To Use Breathalyzer

If you're arrested for drunk driving in Martin, there's a good chance you'll see the Breathalyzer in action, according to Chief of Police Andrew J. Reed.

Reed said he and District 3 Constable Ted H. Salisbury have just completed a one-week Breathalyzer training program at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, and that both are qualified to use the Breathalyzer to test persons accused of drunk driving.

The Martin police chief also said this week that he is making available to the people there forms devised by the Kentucky Law Enforcement Council for recording serial numbers of items of valuable property. The value of this service is emphasized by the fact that millions of dollars' worth of stolen property is never recovered because the owners cannot identify the items stolen. Often, in case of fire or other loss, insurance companies cannot pay claims because the same lack of identification.

Perkins Seeks Expansion Of School Food Programs

Federal funds and federally donated foods for food service programs in schools in Kentucky; seventh congressional district amounted to $2,343,996 during the last school year, according to a study made by Congressman Carl D. Perkins.

The House Committee on Education and Labor, of which Perkins is chairman, is considering legislation to provide needy schools with the necessary funds to initiate school breakfast and school lunch programs where such programs do not now exist because of the lack of facilities.

are designed to meet urgent needs in the school food service programs. H. R. 515 cleared the House on March 20, and is now pending before the Senate Agriculture Committee. H. R. 515 would authorize $1 million annually over the next three years for grants to schools with large numbers of children from low income families.

"The great need in the food service programs is to make sure that in our hardest pressed areas, modern equipment and lunch facilities are available. We want to be sure that children attending school receive proper nutrition through school breakfast and school lunch programs," the Kentucky Congressman said.

Under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, 38,571 children in 24 Seventh District schools are being served by breakfast and lunch programs at a cost of $43,314. Title I was designed to enhance educational opportunities in schools having large numbers of children from low income families.

Perkins said that while the use of Title I funds for food programs is entirely proper and justified, the practice does limit the impact of aid to instructional services.

"It is my hope that Congress will make it possible for schools to use educational funds to enhance learning opportunities, and provide money for lunch and breakfast programs from other sources."

"We need to give every child access to proper, nutritional food, whether the foods be donated by the federal government, provided under the food stamp program, or made available through cash donations," he said.

H. R. 516, introduced by Perkins on the first day of this session, would provide $300 million over a three-year period to supply local school districts with funds needed to acquire facilities for breakfast and lunch programs.

'Some Day' Comes Quickly For Wildflower Artist

Frankfort — Kentucky has a wildflower artist who is pert and petite, speaks in a soft, breathless, little-girl way and meticulously applies watercolor to paper with such purity of color an overall freshness is noticeable. Nellie Kennon Meadows, of Clay City, is the name of the new artist who is creating much interest with her paintings.

Less than a year ago Mrs. Meadows was still thinking in terms of "some day." Some day she would concentrate only on watercolor painting; some day she would paint only wildflowers; some day she would, at her own expense, have her paintings reproduced in prints. She talked this over with her husband, Roscoe Meadows, Powell county businessman, and he agreed to underwrite her efforts — though, as is turned out, he didn't.

At last October's Mountain Parkway Art Show on Hoedown Island, Natural Bridge State Park, Mrs. Meadows exhibited only original watercolors of wildflowers. Her work impressed Kentucky naturalist Nevyle Shackelford, of Beattyville, whose later article about Mrs. Meadows came to the attention of Fayette Park Prints, Inc.

The reproductions, numbered and signed are 11 by 14 inches, will sell for $12.50 each and only 1,000 prints of each painting will be available.

Released in twos, the first prints are Callail and Thistle.

To be released at intervals of six weeks are Spiderwort, Chicory, Golden Rod, Partridge Pea, Violet and Dandelion. To be available in later issues will be Mountain Laurel, Trumpet Vine, Ageratum, Gerardia and Stick-tights.

An additional 1,000 prints of each painting are being reserved for a book to be published in collaboration with Shackelford.

Since being introduced to the art world, the Powell countian is enjoying (she loves public appearances) exposure on radio and television, talks before various groups in different cities and exhibits of her work.

Floyd Cadet State Trooper Finds Training Work Hard

Frankfort, Ky., April 4 — "Most of the work we've done so far has been difficult, and I imagine it'll get harder all the time."

Entering the third week of his training as a Cadet State Trooper at the Kentucky State Police Academy in Frankfort, Fredrick A. Bailey, of Betsy Layne, echoed a remark which is probably typical of every class that has gone through the Academy.

One of 31 young men presently enrolled in the 15-week course, the 21-year old native of Floyd county has already undergone extensive training in first aid (including emergency procedures in obstetrics and closed chest heart massage. Ahead of him lies some 600 hours of additional classroom indoctrination in such subjects as criminal and traffic law, Kentucky history, grammar, patrol techniques, investigative procedures and use of firearms.

Accompanying the daily classroom schedule is a regular regimen of physical fitness drill and exercise.

Rules of conduct imposed on each cadet during the time he is a student at the Academy rival those of a military academy. Drinking, possession of alcoholic beverages, cheating on tests, not reporting or falsely reporting any incident involving the cadet as result of a criminal or traffic charge, theft, gambling, withholding or knowingly falsifying information of a detrimental nature affecting any cadet, leads to immediate dismissal.

Circuit Court Clerk

Democratic primary

During my present term of office I have tried to the full extent of my ability to render the public every service that the office can afford.

Besides the satisfaction of doing a job well, I am particularly pleased on two specific points in my record:

I am the only Circuit Court Clerk in Kentucky who sponsors Driver Education in the schools. I also am the only Kentucky Circuit Clerk who sends out birthday reminders to help drivers remember the time to renew their operators' licenses.

In asking your support, I pledge my continued efforts toward honest, dependable service.

This house is one in a thousand. For every one of these, 999 homes in this area can be economically converted to electric heat. That's one reason why the switch to flameless electric heat is breaking all records. People who have it are comparing their bills for electric heat against their former fuel bills and are telling their friends it cost (1) "about the same," (2) "a fraction more" or, (3) "a little less." If you're beginning to think your home could be converted and heated inexpensively with electric heat, the chances are 999 out of a thousand you're right. Let us prove it. Get a free estimate.

Bass 'Keeper' Size Cut To 10 Inches in State

The Kentucky Fish & Wildlife Resources Commission has made the 10-inch black bass legal in all waters in Kentucky. This action rescinded a previous ruling which set the minimum size limit for impoundments at 12 inches and for streams at 10 inches. The change was made, according to the commission, because the previous situation presented an almost unenforceable condition.

Raccoon hunters will have the full 12 months in which to train their dogs according to a commission ruling.

In effect the regulation oncoon dogs went back to its former status whereby the hunters would have from February 1 through October 21 in which to train their dogs, but during which no coons may be taken. October 22 through November 19 is designated as the shakeout season during which coons may be taken by dogs only, and November 20 through January 31 is the taking season for all furbearers.

Hunting dates for the 1969-70 seasons were set as follows: Squirrels, opening date August 16, continuing through October 31. The season will re-open on November 20 and continue through December 31. The bag limit is again six with a possession limit of 12.

The quail and rabbit seasons will open on November 20 and continue through January 31. The bag limits are unchanged from last year at six and 12 for rabbits and 10 and 20 for quail. The grouse season will open on November 20 and continue through February 28 with a limit of four and eight after two or more days.

A five-day gun deer season was set, from November 12 through November 16. Only deer with visible antler or antlers may be taken. Seven new counties were added to the 91 opened last season. New counties are Gallatin, Bracken, Campbell, Lincoln, Pendleton, Robertson and Madison.

The archery season, in all 120 counties, runs throughout the months of October and December. Dates for hunts on management areas will be set at a later meeting.

The commission approved participation of the Department with the Department of Public Information in two informational stations in Boone and Jefferson counties. The details of the plan will be worked out by the commissioner.

Also approved was the production of a film for the Department by Karl Maslowski. The proposed film will deal with the smaller animals and insects as they affect the balance of nature.

The Conservation Education Division was given the go-ahead in an attempt to use conservation education programs in the schools through Educational TV.

Five major productions are provided each season by the Guilford Theatre on the campus of the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

Wright Council, Investment Company Co-Sponsor Cleanup

The Wheelwright City Council and the Mountain Investment Company will sponsor a Clean-Up Drive during the week of April 14-19, it was announced this week.

Tenants who have trash, leaves, paper or other disposable matter are asked to collect it and place it by the roadside so that trucks can pick it up as they make their daily rounds.

The Mountain Investment Company has offered to furnish paint, brushes and ladders to those who wish to paint their houses.

Commenting on the drive, Dr. J. L. Patterson, Wheelwright mayor, said, "It is hoped everyone will respond to the plan. If so, we'll have a cleaner and much more attractive community."

Heart-Lung Machine May Cause Problems

An untold number of human lives has been saved in the past decade through the use of the heart-lung machine, but problems have developed. One of the major problems resulting from use of the machine is being investigated by the University of Kentucky's Wenner-Gren Aeronautical Research Laboratory.

Dr. Charles F. Knapp, an aero space engineer specializing in fluid mechanics, says that heart-lung machines tend to damage red blood cells and other constituents of the blood. He noted that the machines can be used in operations lasting up to approximately six hours. Beyond that time, damage to red blood cells becomes a matter of some concern to physicians.

As blood is pumped through the machine, the cells become damaged by contact with the walls of tubes and pumps. Microscopic study shows that red blood cells incur considerable shearing and distortion while moving through an artificial system. The inner surface of living arteries and veins are lined with cells which respond to the movement of red blood cells in such a way that damage is slight and of little consequence when the normal life of the cell is otherwise considered.

"We're getting design criteria for the next generation of the heart-lung machine," Dr. Knapp said. "In addition, we're concerned with getting bioengineering information about damage to all the constituents of the blood. We may have to put some kind of charge on the inner walls of the new machines which will repel the blood cells, thereby preventing the red cell-wall interaction."

Dr. Knapp explained that blood samples are placed under mechanical stress and then placed in a centrifuge and spun until the plasma is separated from the red cells. The plasma is analyzed and the blood trauma can then be recorded.

Equally significant in the research being carried on by the Notre Dame graduate at UK is the flow mechanics of blood. So far, this study has shown that a stationary blood clot can become an embolic feeder. That is, the flow of blood over the clot can cause a piece of the clot to be "sheared off." This may happen periodically. These small emboli, as physicians call them, then move further along the circulatory system. Eventually these clots may find their way into the small arteries and capillaries of the brain and become lodged.

Circulation may be cut off by causing the person to suffer a stroke. Of course these clots may form in any part of the body, but they also may be formed in the artificial heart device and be transported into the body. Physicians then have to locate them through the use of dye and can alleviate the situation through surgery.

"We need to know the velocity profiles in the arteries of the body as well as in heart-lung machines," Dr. Knapp says. "With the velocity profiles recorded we help to determine the shear stress produced by the blood on the walls of the arteries and on the surfaces of blood clots."

Dr. James P. Lafferty, acting director of the Wenner-Gren Laboratory, is setting up a laser flow meter to measure the velocity of liquid through such systems. With flow in small tubes the laser system is important because it is the only proven means of measuring velocity at a discreet point without disturbing the flow. He explained that the laser beam is scattered by microscopic particles in the water and the frequency of this scattering can be measured.

"Dr. Knapp and I will use the information to compare the velocity of the blood from an artificial heart to that of a normal heart," Dr. Lafferty said. "This information will be essential to the people who will be designing the heart-lung machine."

Dr. Knapp adds: "If we can supply information to the building of the second generation heart-lung machine — the type of materials that should be used and perhaps design factors, too — we will have been most pleased with the research project."
