Names Four In Action Asking $102,000 Total; Barnett Sues Officer

Willard Harvey McKinney, Jr., who was seriously injured in the collision of two autos at or near Martin last Dec. 22, has filed suit in Floyd circuit court seeking to recover a total of $102,000 damages from four defendants.

He named as defendants Michael G. Hamilton, driver, and Charles Hamilton, owner, of one car which figured in the collision; David Lee Grigsby, driver, and his wife, Janice Grigsby, owner, of the car in which McKinney was a passenger. He alleges joint and concurrent negligence of both drivers.

In another action George Barnett, of Martin, asks $10,000 damages of Constable Ted H. Salisbury, claiming his arrest was effected in such a way that he was humiliated before his family and friends. The arrest was made on a warrant issued by Martin Police Judge D. M. Hutchinson, alleging assault and battery against Barnett after he reportedly had punished one of his children.

Barnett claims Salisbury arrested him and did not take him before a magistrate, as required by law, and did not afford him an opportunity to execute bond. He also claimed the officer used excessive and undue force in making the arrest and threatened to do him bodily harm. Later, his suit said, Salisbury called him by telephone and renewed threats on his life and person.

Salisbury denied all the allegations, claiming the action against him was politically inspired, since he was a candidate for magistrate. He offered in support of his claim affidavits of Chief of Police, A. J. Reed, of Martin, who said he was with Salisbury at the time of Barnett's arrest, and those of Judge Hutchinson and members of Barnett's family.

THE TIMEKILLER
Every time I've stuck my nose out of this office this week, somebody has greeted me with, "Well, with the election rush over, see you're taking it easy." Since I got into this racket, I've helped "put to bed" more than 2,000 weekly editions of this and other papers, plus a little help on a daily, and there never has been any "taking it easy" — not this week, or any other. But I'll say one thing for the newspaper business — it's the world's greatest timekiller. You're constantly working against time, and there's never enough.

Awarded Medal for Heroism

For heroism displayed during a fire and in the face of a threatened explosion of fuels in Vietnam Sp/4 Eldon G. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verma Hall, of McDowell, has been awarded the Soldier's Medal.

"For heroism not involving actual conflict with an armed enemy in the Republic of Vietnam on 23 January 1969, Specialist Hall distinguished himself while fighting a major petroleum fire at Camp Eagle, Republic of Vietnam. Receiving word that an accidental fire at the Class III refuel point was spreading rapidly into the petroleum bulk storage area, Hall unhesitatingly took control of three rough-terrain forklift operators, directed their vehicles to the scene of the inferno, and began to supervise the movement of highly explosive solvent and oil out of the fire path. With complete disregard for his own safety, Hall stood directly in front of the blazing tanks guiding the forklifts in trying to cut a fire break between smoking stacked barrels. For over two hours, Hall worked through heavy oil smoke and sulphur fumes, unmindful of the constant possibility of explosion. Moving closer and closer to the wind-whipped sheet of flame, he suffered from the intense heat across his bare back and shoulders, but his personal coolness, untiring fervor, and determined attitude inspired the forklift operators in their efforts to contain and control the fire.

"Through the individual courageous example of Specialist Hall, the fire lane was completed, thus stopping the inferno from destroying over four hundred thousand dollars worth of petroleum equipment. This enabled the 426th Supply and Service Battalion to continue its combat supply mission and to heli-lift needed petroleum in support of combat operations to the Third Brigade on schedule the following morning."

A continuing hassle of months between conservative and liberal elements at Pikeville College and in Pikeville itself resulted Saturday in the resignation of the college president, Dr. Thomas H. Johns.

Dr. Richard S. Cope, dean of academic affairs at the college, was named John's successor.

Dr. Johns said his resignation was due to a difference in "educational philosophy" with a "small majority" of the 29-member board of trustees. He praised the selection of Cope and termed Cope's elevation to the presidency "a coup" for those who agree with his philosophy of education. Cope was brought by Dr. Johns to the Pikeville campus, a year ago, to revise the curriculum.

Johns, an aggressive liberal educator, has attempted sweeping changes at the Presbyterian-affiliated college, and these resulted last year in the first protests heard in a college from conservatives. They alleged he was too liberal and gave students too much freedom in the classroom.

The city of Pikeville was "split down the middle" as criticism of the educator mounted, one Pikeville source said. In many cases, he said, families were divided. Resignation of Dr. Johns was followed Monday by an attempt of the Student Government Association to meet with the college trustees. Charles E. Moore, Sheltung, a junior at Pikeville and president of the Student Government Association, said his group isn't trying to get the trustees to reinstate Dr. Johns but is interested in establishing "better communications" with the trustees about the future.

"We're concerned that the same thing that happened to Dr. Johns may happen to his successor if he tries to do anything but play 'lap dog' to the local power structure," Moore said.

ATTEND PRESBYTERY

Rev. Milton Skiff, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and Rainley White attended the meeting Wednesday of Ebenezer Presbytery in Ashland.

The Department of Highways has offered to issue a permit for the conveyor construction but it would require Greer-Ellison to remove the structure at its own cost when US 23 is rebuilt.

The C. & O. Railway Company has built a 100-car sidetrack across the river from the mouth of Ivy Creek, and the coal company says it has made a sizeable investment in preparing the coal lands for strip, auger and other methods of mining. It has been operating there on a limited scale two years.

GUESTS AT LANCER
Mr. and Mrs. Challie Fralley, of Lancer, had as their guests over the week-end Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stumbo, of Nicholasville, Ky., and Mrs. Stumbo's brother, Sam Dingley, of Dallas, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Terry and Pat, Pam and Quentin, Jr., of Van Lear, came by Wednesday evening to visit Mr. and Mrs. Stumbo while they were here.

Dr. W. T. Hatcher, Pikeville dentist, and a co-trustee of the James Hatcher estate which holds a big portion of the coal reserves, said further legal action will be taken and that the question of ownership of the right-of-way for the highway again will be an issue. In the original suit plaintiffs contended that Department of Highways is not the legal owner of the right-of-way, since it had not complied with stipulation contained in the deed made by the late James Hatcher to the state when US 23 was built through his Ivel holdings.

The right-of-way deed, made without cost to the state, provided that the state build an appropriate memorial commemorating the Civil War battle of Ivy Mountain. The memorial was never built.

The clinic will be held at the Comprehensive Health Outpost located in the Clive Akers store building from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 2 p.m.

A nurse from the health department will be present giving shots to those babies or children who have not started or completed their immunizations, to those children who are participating in the Head Start Program this summer, and to those adults who would like to get their tetanus or smallpox shots. Children under 12 years of age can receive their free measles shots. T. B. skin testing will be done on those people who have not been tested within the past year.

Court Ruling Hits Ivel Coal Mining

Last Friday's decision by the Court of Appeals denying a permit for construction of a coal conveyor over and across US 23 at Ivel to a tippie on the opposite side of the Big Sandy river at least temporarily stymies development of what is said to be a 10-million-ton coal reserve in Ivy Creek and adjacent territory.

The decision affects proposed development of a huge coal acreage by the Greer-Ellison Coal Company. It upsets an earlier decision handed down by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, who held that Greer-Ellison was entitled to a permit for construction of the conveyor line over the highway.

The Court of Appeals reversed this decision, maintaining that owners of property contiguous with highway rights-of-way are not entitled to such construction over the road itself.

Dr. W. T. Hatcher, Pikeville dentist, and a co-trustee of the James Hatcher estate which holds a big portion of the coal reserves, said further legal action will be taken and that the question of ownership of the right-of-way for the highway again will be an issue. In the original suit plaintiffs contended that Department of Highways is not the legal owner of the right-of-way, since it had not complied with stipulation contained in the deed made by the late James Hatcher to the state when US 23 was built through his Ivel holdings.

Vote Total For Election Near 12,000

Democratic incumbents in all major offices who were eligible to seek re-election easily won nomination at Tuesday's primary election, and most of them are without opposition in the November finals.

Although perfect weather prevailed, less than 12,000 of the 29,000 registered cast their votes. The long ballot discouraged some, and in five precincts the voting was delayed when voting machines malfunctioned, but neither situation appreciably reduced the vote total.

W. J. Reynolds, Democratic incumbent, won re-nomination in a three-way fight for Representative from District No. 95, and is unopposed in November. In District 96 T. P. Reynolds was nominated for the legislative post. He will be opposed in the final election by Elmer Ferguson, who won the Republican nomination without opposition. The winner will succeed Everett Akers, who did not seek re-nomination for Representative and lost in his bid for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley won both the Democratic and Republican nominations for the office. He easily defeated Paul E. Hayes for the Democratic nomination, but only the absentee ballots unknotted a tie which existed between the two at the conclusion of the machine tally for the G. O. P. nomination. Judge Conley received all three absentee votes cast by Republicans, and that was his margin of victory.

Easy Democratic nomination winners were these incumbents: Harold Stumbo for Commonwealth's Attorney, Frank DeRossett for Circuit Clerk, Henry Stumbo for County Judge, Barkley J. Sturgill for County Attorney, C. "Ollie" Robinson for County Clerk, Lawrence Hale for Jailer, and James J. Carter for Coroner.

4 Knott, Johnson Incumbents Lose

Incumbents in Knott and Johnson counties did not fare as well Tuesday as their Floyd counterparts at the hands of the voters.

In Knott, County Judge Merd Slone was defeated by Sid Williams for the Democratic nomination, 1,898 votes to 1,653, and Tax Commissioner Delmer Draughn lost to Robert H. Smith, 2,277 to 1,227.

In Johnson County Mrs. Ruth Wolchik, Representative from the district composed of Johnson and Martin counties, lost the Republican nomination to L. T. Hardin, of Martin county. She led Hardin, 1946 votes to 978 in Johnson, but in Martin Hardin ran away with the balloting with a total of 2,007 to 151 for Mrs. Wolchik. Democrat Howard Hughes was unopposed for Representative in the primary. Incumbent R. B. Harrington lost the Republican nomination for County Attorney to Jack L. Davis.

Sons of two Johnson officials lost their bids for G. O. P. nominations. Ernest VanHoose, son of State Senator Wendell H. VanHoose, was defeated by Wayne Belevins in the race for County Judge, and Charles Donald Preston, son of Sheriff Ray Preston, lost the Republican nomination for County Clerk to Betty Jo Conley. Ray Ross is the Democratic nominee for the office.

At the same time, Sheriff Preston defeated Orville Castle, 1,823 votes to 1,168, for the Republican nomination for Sheriff. He will be opposed in November by Former Deputy Hobert Pack, who squeezed past Otis Blankenship by 10 votes.

FRALEY'S STUDENTS SELL ART WORKS AT EXHIBIT

Bill Fraley, art instructor at Big Walnut high school, Sunbury, O., and a native of this county, recently brought the work of his students to professional status when their paintings went on sale at an exhibit.

Sixty art works by junior and senior high school pupils were on sale, and, said Fraley, "The quality of some . . . is higher than that seen in many such college exhibits." He said he had never heard of any other high school selling the art creations of pupils.

The value of the exhibit, he said, lies not so much in the money raised but in the students when they see people paying money for their creations. The students will retain their amateur status by contributing their works to be sold as a fund-raising project for the school's art department and the Christmas fund. Mr. Fraley is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Challie Fraley, of Lancer, and is a graduate of Prestonsburg high school.

GOSS ASKS TOP ENGINEERS TO BE UNDER MERIT SYSTEM

Frankfort — Commissioner of Highways Eugene Goss has requested the State Personnel Board to take necessary steps to place 17 top highway engineers under the merit system.

The move, according to Goss, has the approval of Gov. Louie B. Nunn. It is another step toward fulfilling the administration's commitment to professionalize the status of the Department's engineering staff.

The positions requested to be covered include all six assistant state highway engineers and directors of the eight engineering divisions.

Governor Nunn said, "It is the desire of Commissioner Goss and this administration to help provide Kentuckians with the best possible road program.

"To accomplish this, we need the services of dedicated professional engineers.

"It seems a disservice to deny these men coverage under the state's merit system," the Governor added.

According to Department records, none of the positions have ever been covered under the merit system.

Commissioner Goss said, "I cannot understand why these high-level engineers have never been brought under coverage of the merit act.

"Most of them have been with the Department for many years and have demonstrated their commitment to building and maintaining a good highway department and road system for the Commonwealth.

"If this action is approved by the Personnel Board, for the first time all engineers in the Department, with the exception of the State Highway Engineer, will have merit status.

"The State Highway Engineer is exempt by statute.

"From time to time, as we continue efforts to put the Highway Department on a more professional basis, we hope to extend status to other groups within the Department," the Commissioner added.

“I wanted a car and foreign cars are hard to fix. So my brother said Maverick was coming, and I waited. It's a great car to learn to drive with. You can park it and drive it so easily. I really love it.”

Miss Susan Sara, Bionville, New York

“We bought the Maverick as a second car when a tree fell on our import. Maverick handles better and feels solid and safe on the road. When I hit a bump in the other car it was like going over a mountain. Maverick really flattens them out and I'm getting 25 miles to the gallon.”

WE'LL STICK WITH KY 80

The people of Hazard are ably represented by Mayor Dawahare. They have in him an able advocate, and he never fails in asking the most for them.

We wish, however, that he had not produced his rather grandiose plan for a superhighway to link these two "metropolises," Hazard and Pikeville, that road cutting straight across country, through and over hill and dale, to connect the two county-seats by the shortest route, to the exclusion of everybody else.

Our objection to the plan is this:

Already officials and interested citizens of counties served by KY 80 had met and agreed to work together for modernization of that key highway, which would link the Kentucky River Valley and Hazard with the Big Sandy Valley and Pikeville without bypassing Floyd county, Hindman, the Knott county-seat, and other places which, though not metropolitan, want connection with the outside world via a modern highway. Now Mayor Dawahare's plan comes along to muddy the water, offer an alternate and perhaps a dilemma to state and federal road officials.

We are not spoiling for a fight, but we think there are other towns and villages in Eastern Kentucky that deserve consideration, and we join the fight for KY 80 and its improvement to the benefit of the greatest number of people.

The Challenge to the Next Sheriff

This is being written on Tuesday afternoon, hours before the closing of the polls where the fate of ten Democratic and three Republican candidates for the office of sheriff is being decided. It could not be written earlier, because it would have served to the benefit of one candidate and consequently to the detriment of his opponents.

With that preamble, we would point out that whoever becomes the next sheriff of the county has a more challenging job ahead than usual. This challenge arises not alone, either, from the fact that law-enforcement in a county the size of Floyd is always a herculean task. The fact that the present sheriff has made an outstanding record, especially toward controlling the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, sets a mark for the next sheriff to shoot at that will not be easy to hit.

We trust that the new sheriff will take stock of the situation, consider the fact that Floyd county is among the most law-abiding counties in Kentucky, that organized crime is practically non-existent, and will decide to keep it that way. The present situation didn't happen by accident. It was achieved by dedicated effort and the refusal of Sheriff Lewis to be turned from the course he had set.

This administration has not been perfect, but it has avoided many of the flagrant imperfections that mar the efforts of many law-enforcement officials. The sheriff who will take office next January could escape even the shortcomings of the present administration. We devoutly hope the new official will at least make an honest effort to measure up to the example that has been set during the last three and a half years.

AREA STUDENTS OFFER INVOLVEMENT PROGRAM AT ALICE LLOYD MEET

Pippa Passes, Ky. — Students from eight eastern Kentucky counties presented a five-point program for the "proper involvement of young people in the orderly process of community development" to officials of the Kentucky Program Development Office on the 50-year-old campus of Alice Lloyd College here last week. Specific proposals covered manpower and job development, urban services and natural resources and included:

1. Combined state, regional and community encouragement for the "valuable human resources which exist" throughout the area to remain.
2. Establishment of non-graded schools for those young people from "underdeveloped learning environments."
3. Initiation of programs in elementary schools that will "eventually produce a young people's community at the high school level dedicated to regional development and area improvement."
4. Recognition that transportation, communication, water and other urban services "must someday become a regional rather than a community concern."
5. Concentrated effort on the part of election officials to register young people in the 18-21 age group so "these voices can be heard at the polls."

Submission of the program to KPDO administrator Frank J. Groschelle marked the conclusion of a three-day seminar for some 80 high school juniors and seniors coordinated by Alice Lloyd College and sponsored jointly by the independent, liberal arts host institution, the Kentucky River Development District, the Kentucky Program Development Office and Lees Junior College.

According to Malcolm H. Holliday, Jr., staff director for the KRDD board, emphasis was on constructive regional development "without regard for county lines." KRDD, representing Breathitt, Knott, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Owsley, Perry and Wolfe counties, is one of 15 development districts throughout the state.

Presentation of the program followed two days of intensive group discussion and meetings with representatives of more than a dozen federal and state agencies and some 35 local leaders including educators, public officials and representatives of the business and professional community. Included in the program were major addresses by Alice Lloyd College President Dr. William S. Hayes, KRDD Board Chairman Arley R. Barber and Ralph R. Widner, executive director of the Appalachian Regional Commission.

All student delegates were nominated for participation in the seminar on the basis of "demonstrated capacity for leadership in the area of community development" by area schools and colleges, civic clubs, service organizations and public officials.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS HAIL BUCKMAN'S DEFEAT--BUT WHAT HAPPENED TO GREENE?

Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford and his political friends hailed the defeat at Tuesday's election of J. D. (Jiggs) Buckman, a supporter of much of Governor Nunn's legislative program, by William R. Gentry, Jr., of Bardonia, for the Democratic nomination for State Senator. They also were encouraged by the apparent setback of Nunn when State Representative Gene Huff, London Republican, who voted against the 2-cent sales tax increase, won re-nomination.

But they wonder what happened in the case of one of their own, John W. Greene, who apparently has lost the nomination for State Auditor to Mary Louise Foust.

Greene, a native of Sandy Hook, was barely beaten for auditor by Clyde Conley, of Johnson county, who died in office. He was considered a certain winner. But he was trailing Miss Foust by 67,000 votes, Wednesday morning.

In Floyd county his edge over Miss Foust was an amazingly low 864 votes.

The primary fight for Buckman's Senate seat was the only one in which Lt. Gov. Ford openly campaigned. Commenting on Gentry's victory over Buckman, Ford said, "It is heartening to see the victory of a Democrat dedicated to the ideals of our party over a man who was the captive of Republicans. This presages well for the future."

Answer to Questions On Driving Knowledge

1. Fact. Recent research by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has found that adding weight to your car won't boost traction, but increased tire pressure will.
2. Fiction. Releasing a seat belt is easy, and wearing it will increase your chances of being conscious after an accident, thus allowing you to escape. In case of collision, being strapped in a car is five times as safe as being thrown out.
3. Fiction. Even under ideal conditions, it takes almost four car lengths to stop from a mere 20 m.p.h. — and more than the entire length of a foot ball field from 60 m.p.h.
4. Fact. Parking lights are not meant for driving; they are deceptive, and they are hard to see. If driving conditions warrant lights, use low-beam headlights. Many states forbid driving with parking lights at any time.
5. Fiction. Sunglasses reduce the glare of headlights, but they also reduce your night vision so that you may not see hazards along the road.
6. Fiction. This was a habit developed by many older drivers because of carburetor characteristics in old model cars. Today this procedure is unnecessary.
7. Fact. Although distilled water is best, many service stations use tap water with no harm done.
8. Fact. Applying your brakes generates heat that can evaporate moisture which may be present after driving through deep water or even during a heavy rain.
9. Fiction. Your car does not use octane above what it needs.
10. Fiction. Oil does not wear out, but becomes so polluted with the dirt it collects that it begins to act like sandpaper rather than a lubricant.
11. Fiction. The greatest heat producer is the constant flexing of the sidewall as the tires turn. Proper pressure can minimize this.
12. Fiction. Driving too slowly can increase your chances of an accident. Drive within the posted speed limit and with the general flow of traffic.
13. Fiction. Alcohol is primarily disposed of by the body through oxidation in the liver. This time is the important factor in the sobering process.
14. Fact. A lane change is a direction change, and must — by law — be preceded by a signal.
15. Fiction. By law, you are required to carry your license while driving.

PERKINS WINS APPROVAL OF LUNCH PROGRAM BOOST; BILL NOW GOES TO HOUSE

Representative Carl D. Perkins won approval Tuesday of his House Committee on Education and Labor for a $100-million increase in funds for the National School Lunch Program.

The additional money is to provide free or reduced-price lunches for school children not now being served by existing programs.

The new bill, H. R. 11651, introduced by Perkins for himself and Representative Albert Quie, Minnesota Republican, is expected to go to the House floor within the next few weeks.

The bill grew out of two days of hectic legislative activity involving appropriations for the Department of Agriculture. The agriculture appropriations bill had come to the floor without a specific amount for the special milk program for school children.

Shortly after noon on Monday, Perkins, acting for himself and Quie, introduced H. R. 11614 to provide $100-million for the special milk program and $100-million for the School Lunch Program.

Later in the session, House members overrode the Appropriations Committee to set a specific figure of $120-million for the milk program.

Within minutes, Perkins and Quie worked out a new proposal covering the School Lunch Program, and it was introduced as H. R. 11651 about 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Perkins, Chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, called his group into session for 10 a.m. Tuesday. At that meeting, the School Lunch bill was cleared within minutes without a dissenting vote—29 to 0.

The Kentucky Congressman, long identified as a champion of the School Lunch Program in Congress won House approval of a $100-million increase last year. Maneuvering in the Senate, however, resulted in a lower appropriation for Fiscal 1969.

The $100-million voted this week by the Committee on Education and Labor is in addition to the $638-million for the program in the regular Agricultural Appropriation Act.

This new money would not require a Congressional appropriation. The legislation simply directs the Secretary of Agriculture to transfer that amount from tariffs paid on imported goods.

GRAYSON'S IS NEWEST EASTERN KENTUCKY LAKE

Grayson Reservoir in Carter and Elliott counties is not yet a year old, but the number of people and boats enjoying this newest scenic lake are taking to the water like it was a lively teenager.

Water in the lake, which was built by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, is now at summer pool of 645 feet, temporary boat ramps are being used until permanent ramps are constructed. Two of the temporary ramps are near the dam site on Ky. 7, and another is just off Ky. 7 at Rose-dale.

The lake of 1,500 acres is scenic water, backing Little Sandy River into a number of forks and fingers, some of which spread out to rolling land, while others are hem-lake are taking to the water like it was a lively teenager.

Grayson Reservoir is a dream come true to many people who actively worked for its construction through the Grayson Development Association of Carter and Elliott counties.

Chaffins Murder Case
Defies Investigation; Probe Moves Slowly

The slaying of James M. Chaffins, 37, on Arkansas Creek early this month apparently remains as much a mystery to probes as ever.

State Detective Chester D. Potter said this week that there are no new developments in the case and that the investigation is moving slowly.

He did not discuss details of the investigation, and did not say what state police laboratory study disclosed about a man's suitcase which was found on Middle Creek, a mile from where Chaffins' auto was found. Chaffins' car was driven from the murder scene to a spot on the David road, approximately 10 miles away.

The victim, a resident of Louisville, reportedly had driven to this county the night of his death to visit his parents in the vicinity of Garrett. He was shot in his head, chest and back.

Ever have the shivery thrills as a child to draw up before an open fireplace in a room lighted only by the flicker of flames from the grate, and have an older person begin telling in sepulchral tones a ghost story? I can watch the horrible horror movie on the late, late show and never blink an eye, unless I perchance drop off to sleep. But the memory of some of those tales still raise a few stray hairs.

I am reminded of such experiences by the story of the two Negro boys who were discussing the matter of haunts and old houses that had sperrits runnin' around loose, and such. One of the boys assured the other that only the other night, when he was passing this old, deserted house, out there at the end of a dark lane, a ghost came tootlin' out of the house with his head under his arm.

"What was this ghos' doin'," the last time you saw him?" the other youngster asked.

"Just fallin' behind, son, fallin' behind."

IRON OUT WATER PROBLEM

Hellier, Ky.—The Office of Economic Opportunity is stepping in to help resolve a stalemate over water rates in this remote Marrowbone Creek section of Pike county.

Justice Jenkins, OEO program director for Kentucky, told a small group of county officials, state and local OEO representatives and members of the Pike County Citizens Association (PCCA) that the anti-poverty agency is willing to subsidize monthly water payments of low income families—provided that all factions work together.

The result will be a demonstration project designed "to develop information and experience which would allow water systems to be put into rural economic depressed areas of the county," Jenkins said.

Since the announcement last summer of an Economic Development Administration grant of $1.3 million and a loan of $270,000 for a water system, members of PCCA—an organization of poor people—have maintained that the rates and tap-on fees called for are too high for many Marrowbone residents.

Last fall, they presented petitions to Gov. Louie B. Nunn, outlining their feelings and bearing more than 300 signatures. Meanwhile, county officials, who were unable to sign up the 700 subscribers needed before work on the project could begin, accused PCCA of trying to block the water system.

Members were called before the Kentucky Committee on Un-American Activities last October and again in December to explain their actions. Last month, a delegation of PCCA traveled to Washington to explain the situation to Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., and Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky.

OEO got into the picture, according to Jenkins, because "we were concerned about the lack of progress in obtaining a water system in an area at high rates which would be a stumbling block to many of its residents."

The demonstration project will make up the difference between what people can afford and the rates required to maintain the water system, Jenkins said. The tap-on fees will remain at $25, but low or no interest loans will be available. Jenkins also offered the possibility that welfare payments might be increased to cover the loan and equipment for hooking up to the water lines as well as plumbing and fixtures.

"This demonstration," Jenkins said, "is being proposed in the knowledge that good water is both an essential element for good health and is often unavailable to many areas under existing legislative and administrative requirements."

The Pike County Health Department has said that 90 per cent of the water in the Marrowbone area is polluted.

Asked whether PCCA was satisfied with the compromise, Eugene May, the organization president, said, "If they will come up with their proposed plan there won't be any trouble at all getting the water."

Representatives of OEO, the Water Commission and PCCA will meet next week to discuss eligibility guidelines and ways which the subsidies can be administered.

Sheriff was another story, with the outcome doubtful enough to provide most of the suspense during the Tuesday night tally of votes. Frank Leslie, of Emma, won the Democratic nomination over a field of nine opponents, and Mrs. Eva Collins, of Prestonsburg, over three Republican opponents.

Perhaps the biggest upset of the election was the Democratic nomination of Denzil Ray Hall, a newcomer to the political arena, for Magistrate in District 4 where he defeated the incumbent, Dewey Roberts, and Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis.

Incumbents who won magistrerial nominations were Bill Wells in Dist. 1, Zeb Ousley in District 2 and Edward Caudill in District 3.

Three incumbents won nominations for Constable — Corbin Joseph in Dist. 1, Kenneth Roberts in No. 2 and Gillis Conn in Dist. 4. Buddy Bryant was the nominee in Dist. 3.

The couple was married in Hong Kong, April 1.

After spending a few days in Hong Kong, followed by a trip to Phnom Penh and the ancient ruins of Angkor Wat in Cambodia, the couple returned to Bangkok, Thailand, where they are currently residing.

Caldwell is employed as a political scientist on a field research team for General Research Corporation, a California-based firm currently conducting a military study in Thailand for the U. S. Department of Defense, Advanced Research Projects Agency.

Mrs. Caldwell, 1961 graduate of Lamar high school, received her bachelor of arts degree in political science in 1965 from the University of Denver, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She received a master of arts degree in political science the following year from the University of California at Santa Barbara, and in 1967 earned a master of science degree in journalism from Northwestern University.

After working for a year as a reporter for United Press International in Hartford, Conn., and Boston, she was employed as a public information officer for a year by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission in New York City.

Caldwell received his B.A. cum laude in political science in 1963 from Amherst, Mass. He earned an M.A. in political science from the University of California, Santa Barbara, and is currently a candidate for a Ph.D. in the same field. He is a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Before joining the staff of General Research Corporation, he taught undergraduate courses at the University of California and served as a consultant in the Strategic Environment Division of Douglas Aircraft Corporation in California.

Mrs. Caldwell is a granddaughter of Mrs. Ben Maynard and a niece of Clyde Maynard, Hobert Keathley and Erwin Stumbo, all of this county.

7,222 FLOYD RESIDENTS PAID $468,000 IN MONTH

A record $468,000 in monthly social security benefits was being paid to 7,222 residents of Floyd county at the end of December 1968, an increase of 2.3 percent above the amount payable at the end of February 1968, according to Daryl Ratliff, district manager of Social Security.

"Throughout the country, monthly benefits payable at the end of 1968 amounted to nearly $2.1 billion, some $350 million higher than at the end of 1967," Ratliff said. "Approximately three-quarters of the increased monthly amount resulted from higher benefit rates authorized by the 1967 Amendments to the Social Security Act. The remainder of the increase was simply due to a greater number of beneficiaries."

By the end of May 1969, social security will be paying monthly benefits to more than 25 million people — 1 out of every 8 Americans. Although retired workers comprise the largest group of beneficiaries, almost one-fourth of all people receiving benefits are under 60. There are currently more than 3.8 million children and 5 million young widowed mothers receiving payments. Yet the public continues to think of social security as a program for old people.

In this county, 3,649 people under 60 are receiving benefits. That figure breaks down into 2,053 under age 18; 253, age 18-21, and 1,343, age 22-59.

Many students would have been unable to continue their education were it not for the 1965 Amendments to the Social Security Act which extended survivors and dependents insurance benefits to students until their 22nd birthdays. In 1968, that provision resulted in continuing benefits for 470,000 students.

Monthly payments to the family of a worker who dies leaving a widow and two or more children range from $82.50 to $434.40 a month, depending on the worker's average earnings under social security. Payments to the young family of a worker who dies at an early age could total as much as $85,000 to $100,000.

Ratliff also pointed out that by the end of 1968, approximately 90 percent of Americans 65 and over were either receiving cash benefits or would have been eligible for such benefits if they or their spouses had not been working.

In terms of Medicare, almost all people in the country 65 or over are eligible for hospital insurance benefits. Likewise, 95 percent of all older persons in the country have elected coverage under the voluntary supplementary medical insurance plan which pays physicians' fees.

OF MODERATION AND AMERICANISM

Americans are being killed. They are dying as you read these words. Communists are killing them. Young Americans, with crew cuts and fuzzy whiskers, that you watched play Little League baseball just a few short years ago. The freckle-faced kid who took special care to keep your newspaper dry, and stood looking up at you with his "business face" on collection day. He's the lad in the Cub Scout uniform who helped post the colors at the PTA meetings, but who could never quite make the shaft stand straight. Well, dear Fellow American, that boy — that very same boy — now lies dead on the field of battle. That's "Moderation," folks!

Communists shoot our unarmed planes out of the sky. They capture our ships on the high seas. They kill our young men in Vietnam. They hold one-third of the World's population in slavery. They instigate bloody riots and revolutions and murder in the remaining two-thirds of the world. They have murdered an American President, and then murdered his brother. They terrorize our colleges and burn our cities, but the Supreme Court says they must be allowed to work in defense plants. That's "Moderation," folks!

Call a Communist a "Communist," and that makes you a radical. Call a Negro Communist a "Communist" and that makes you a bigot. Suggest that the United Nations can never be united as long as Communists receive honored treatment in its halls, and that makes you an extremist. Suggest that students should go to college to learn, not to run the college, and that makes you a dangerous reactionary. Get a tear in your eye when the American flag goes by, and that makes you a "nut".

Combine all these bad names, and that makes you a "Bircher". That's "Moderation," folks! I am sick of that kind of "Moderation". I am sick of hearing excuses about why we cannot, or should not, WIN in Vietnam. I have seen American soldiers with their legs blown-off and their guts shot out, and I'll tell you, there was nothing "Moderate" about that. That was real blood, and that was real pain. It's past-time to stop being "Moderate" and realize that Communism is at war with you. "Mister Moderate." It's time you began to fight back, and when you do, do it with all your heart, and do it to "WIN".

And that's called "Americanism," folks!

Nature Trails By RUFUS M. REED

Farmers say the cuckoo, or "raincrow," predicts rain with his soft, monotonous calls, or song if you prefer. But this bird has no resemblance whatsoever to a black crow. It is one of our sleekest, most handsome birds, slim-bodied, about 12 inches long, with an olive-brown back and a snowy breast.

This bird is notable in many ways: the lower half of its bill is yellow and its eyelids are also yellow. No other bird has such a peculiar color combination. The wood pewee has its lower half of the bill yellow but its eyelids are not. The cuckoo is the only bird which has a clock named for it, one that is supposed to "send out the bird every hour" to give the time of day by repeating the cuckoo's calls. However, it is a very poor imitation of this bird's song.

The cuckoo is also noted for having two toes extending forward and two backwards, which is also a feature of the feet of the woodpeckers. However, most all the perching birds and domestic fowls have three toes extending forward and one backwards.

The yellow-billed cuckoo, which is our most common one in the Tri-State Region, has a long, down-curling bill, somewhat like that of the brown thrasher. It is also the only cuckoo with large white spots on its long tail. These spots are oblong patches of white, arranged in pairs and numbering usually six. The cuckoo is also notable for having red wings, which flash conspicuously when it flies. And so do the white spots on the tail. Its close relative, the black-billed cuckoo, doesn't have white spots on the tail, but has white stripes or cross bars instead. Its bill is black, not yellow.

The yellow-billed cuckoo is usually a late arrival among the migrants; I heard my first one on May 7. It winters in South America.

The cuckoo is a great protector of the forest. Its leading item of diet is the tent caterpillar; it hunts out the webs, tears into them and devours the hairy larvae. If we had fore cuckoos, we could soon get rid of this pest. The stomach of a cuckoo was examined and found to contain 250 tent caterpillars; another contained 217 fall webworms, which are serious pests of trees. Cuckoos eat the horny and spiny caterpillars. Sometimes they wham the spiny ones against a tree limb in an effort to dislodge the spines; however, they swallow many spines of caterpillars, and their stomachs are often lined with "caterpillar fur." In addition to caterpillars the cuckoos devour beetles, bugs and grasshoppers. They are great friends of the farmer and orchardist.

The cuckoo has been celebrated in song, legend and story. Wordsworth wrote: "O Cuckoo! Shall I call the bird, O but a wandering voice." According to Roman mythology, the god Jupiter appeared to Juno in the form of a cuckoo; so this bird was well known in ancient times.

Announce Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Roberts, of Harold, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Patricia Daryl Roberts, to Mr. Harold Adkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Adkins, of Justell.

Miss Roberts attends Eastern Kentucky University and Mr. Adkins is a student at Baldwin College, Tifton, Georgia.

The wedding will be June 14 at 6 p.m. in Calvary Baptist Church, Betsy Layne. Friends and relatives are invited.

Can this bird's calls properly be called a song? I think so, I enjoy hearing the cuckoo's song on a listless, drowsy late summer evening. At this time, all the song birds have quit and the woods are still, with dreamy, haunting appearance. At this stage of the summer, the cuckoo secretes itself in some hidden, leafy bower and for hours on end will sing a soft, dreamy tune, which flows on and on until the bird actually seems breathless with joy. This is music for me and seems to fill me with a sort of drowsy peace. Most of the time, however, the cuckoo's song or calls consist of unmusical "culks" and "kowps," and some other phrases that seem to twist its tongue as it utters them.

It is a shy, elusive bird and keeps hidden in green leaves. When one approaches, the bird sails away on swift wings and disappears like a ghost; its flight is swift and silent. The bird builds its nest usually in the forks of a tree or bush. It is not much of a nest, being a loosely laid structure of twigs, leaves and grass, something on the order of the nest of the mourning dove. The eggs are pale greenish-blue. Other nicknames for the cuckoo are, "rain dove" and "the low-kow bird."

The cuckoo deserves our best protection at all times for the good work they do. Without their help, many of our trees would be utterly stripped of all their leaves.

pointed out. "From January 1964 through June, 1968, a total of 33,000 divorces have occurred, involving 116,000 children."

One out of every four marriages in Kentucky ends in divorce. In 1967 there were 27,622 marriages and 7,927 divorces.

Kentucky's divorce rate in 1967 was 2.5 per 1,000 population, somewhat lower than the national rate of 2.7. Its marriage rate 8.7 per 1,000 population, was also lower than the national rate of 9.7.

TIDITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

It is sometimes felt that folkishness is on the way out, that folklore is a study of what used to be, of what standardized living has completely ousted. Don't be too sure of this. Suppose you start now and keep a list of folkish things that are still found in yourself, your families, your neighbors, and people who may not be so blessed with worldly goods as you.

As an outdoors man I am amused nearly every day by the folkish attitude many people still have to nature. Think how slowly we have developed such things as conservation! I have seen hundreds of acres of land cleared within my lifetime, much of this wastefulness within the last fifty years. Many of the new acres of farm land were too sloping to prevent gullies; hence there are now many gullies in abandoned fields where trees were standing in the 1930's and 1940's. I have rejoiced every time I saw erosion brought under control, every time modern scientific agriculture practices were used effectively. And, I am glad to say, hundreds of people who were blind, deaf, and dumb to conservation a scant twenty years ago are now enthusiastic supporters of it. A short drive off the main roads in the winter of 1968-69, however, brought me face to face with primitive farming, almost as wasteful as it was in Fidelity in my youth. The fight to save and use properly the land is not yet over.

Along with this same left-over folkishness exists a whole array of folk practices that need repair or something better. The conception of a balance in nature is hard to teach. Here some things that scare us all: unwise spraying of chemicals by the people who know or care nothing about the possible dangers; careless or intentional burning off of large areas; fear of many of the harmless or even helpful forms of animal life; pollution of streams; and disregard for property rights of people who love their timbered lands, or their fields, or their flowers.

Some of my readers think I too often harp on snakes and hawks; maybe I do, but I am trying to help people give up, even reluctantly, some of their folkish practices that are hardly worthy of people who live in good houses, drive good cars, and have money in the banks. To see some well-dressed man or woman fairly shriek with delight when a snake is killed or a hawk shot down makes some of us cringe. It would seem that, long ago, most people could have found out not all snakes are harmful or poisonous, that not all hawks are ravagers of the poultry yard or house. In one neighborhood where I often study birds I have seen more hawks that had been shot down and left by the side of the road or out in the fields than in all other areas put together. And, only rarely, were any of the hawks of the species known to be regular or occasional chicken thieves.

In the realm of superstition the folkishness of us all is still here to deal with. Though most people speak of superstition only to laugh at it, at least, openly, others are just afraid that there might be something to it. If you do not have a faith doctor or a war-truber or a thrush-curer on your street or in your good-sized town, you must be from somewhere that I have not yet visited or heard of. If you do not carry some talisman, for luck or to prevent some insidious disease, you must be modern indeed. Maybe you kid yourself into believing you do it to be folkish; maybe you are actually folksy, anyway.

Though the heyday of quack medicines got a sort of starvation period following our national attack on the quackeries early in this century, it is still amazing how many bottles of branch water or stump water or other potent medicines are bought and how large a sale there is for bread pills or sugar pills or soda pills coated with peppermint. No, folkishness is not dead; it is, apparently, not even sick.

Watershed Programs Set for Discussion At Louisville Meet

Ways in which upstream watershed programs help meet a wide variety of community needs will be discussed by national water conservation leaders at the 16th National Watershed Congress June 8-11 in Louisville.

James A. Shropshire, Commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources, is chairman of the host committee for the 1969 Congress. All sessions will be at the Brown Hotel.

He said this year's theme is "Watershed — Framework for Community Action." The Congress is sponsored by 27 national organizations to encourage interest in upstream watershed programs for flood prevention, recreation, water supply, agricultural development, and fish and wildlife habitat improvement.

Indiana Senator Birch Bayh will speak on "Watershed Development — An Avenue to Rural Development" at a luncheon on Tuesday, June 10.

Gov. Louie B. Nunn will deliver a welcoming address at the 9:45 a.m. session on Monday, June 9. Keynote at the forum will be Carl L. Klein, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Water Quality and Research.

Special papers will be delivered by John J. Griesbaum, director of the Memphis and Shelby County (Tenn.) Planning Commission; Hal Schroeder, manager of the Salt Valley Watershed District, Lincoln, Neb.; and David H. Brune, general manager of Trinity River Authority, Arlington, Texas.

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON
BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU DO WITH HIM

Gilbert West was a noted author and educator in England. Sir Edward Littleton was a famous English jurist and among the leaders in the English intellectual world. They shared one thing in common. Both were avowed skeptics and both not only doubted the validity of the way of the Nazarene, but were openly opposed to it.

The two men met to determine what course of action they could best take to rid the world of this "religion of a madman." After much study and debate, they decided that the best way to get rid of this fairyland would be to destroy its basis, its principles, its teachings. They arrived at the conclusion that two parts of the teachings of Christianity should be destroyed above everything else, and that after these were torn down all the other teachings would come crumbling also.

According to these two men, the two beliefs that needed destroying in order to destroy Christianity were the resurrection of its Founder and the change of life of its greatest proclaimer, Paul. West took upon himself the task of doing away with the resurrection, and Littleton had the job of proving that there was never a changing experience in the life of Paul. Shaking hands, they parted to go their way and do their job. When they met again, it was agreed, they would have enough evidence to put to an end — once and for all — this crazy teaching of the Christian faith.

There have been, down through the years, countless men who have attempted to do what Gilbert West and Edward Littleton set out to do. This Galilean has been ridiculed, shamed, mocked, and envied for nearly two thousand years. Individuals and nations have thrown their full weight and power into the battle to destroy Him and His way of life. Some of the best minds in all the world have opposed His way and His followers. People have used His name to curse and his cause to kill.

Somehow, through it all, despite all that the combined forces of millions of men could do against Him, He still calls to the hearts of men. We can take Him out of history books, but we can't take Him out of history. We can take men away from Him, but we can't take Him away from men. We can take Him out of our home but we can't get Him out of our hearts.

Following a year of research and study to prove their point, Gilbert West and Edward Littleton met to compare their findings and set about on their self-appointed task. West was surprised when Littleton told him that as a result of his research he had become a follower of the Carpenter. And Littleton was equally surprised when West told him that he, too, had taken up the Way of the Cross because of his study. Two men who set out to destroy Christianity both became Christians after making a serious study of the Faith.

Better be careful about taking this Man of Galilee serious. You might end up following Him. (Copyright, 1969, Donald E. Wildmon)

VIRGINIA PINE SAWFLY CAUSING FOREST DAMAGE

Heavy defoliation of pine trees, which has been noted in this and other counties of the area, is being caused by the Virginia pine sawfly, personnel of the district office, Division of Forestry, said this week. The sawfly feeds primarily on Virginia, shortleaf and loblolly pines.

Several species of pine sawfly can occur in Kentucky, although only the Virginia pine sawfly and the red-headed pine sawfly have caused significant damage. The Virginia pine sawfly hatches in the early spring and the resulting larvae feed for approximately four to eight weeks on the older needles. When mature, the larvae spin their cocoons and do not emerge as adults until the late fall. Upon emergence, the adult sawflies mate and eggs are laid on the needles. These eggs hatch the following spring. Only one generation occurs each year.

The red-headed pine sawfly, by contrast, spends the winter inside a cocoon and emerges as an adult early in the spring. Eggs are laid and the larvae hatch during the summer, at which time they feed primarily on shortleaf, Virginia and loblolly pine. In Kentucky, there may be two complete generations per year, depending on weather conditions and the length of the summer. The last generation again spends the winter in a cocoon.

It has been pointed out by Division of Forestry insect and disease specialists that sawfly populations are noted for rapid fluctuations in numbers, caused primarily by parasites, predators and climatic factors. Because natural control is possible, and because the Virginia pine sawfly does not cause extensive mortality to the affected trees unless they are severely defoliated over a period of years, chemical control of this forest insect pest is not usually recommended. The red-headed pine sawfly can cause severe mortality, due to its feeding habits and life cycle, and chemical control is sometimes used to prevent loss.

Questions concerning the identity of forest insect or disease pests, or concerning what should be done about them should be directed to the division forestry office at Thelma, Ky.

LETTERS, PETITION PROTEST FLOYD COUNTY'S TRANSFER TO NEW STATE PARK POST

Letters complimenting Kentucky's great system of state parks aren't all that's in the mail received by the Department of Parks.

When Mark Lovely, former Hueysville man and onetime manager of Jenny Wiley boat dock, was transferred from Levi Jackson State Park at London to be manager of Carter Caves State Park, a flood of letters and a 200-signature petition arrived on the desk of Parks Commissioner Gable, asking him to transfer Lovely back to Levi Jackson.

The people around Levi Jackson had seen their park grow under Lovely and wanted him retained, but when Commissioner Gable answered each letter, explaining Lovely had received a pay raise and a promotion by going to one of Kentucky's year-round resorts and that a competent replacement, Rufus M. Yaden, was replacing Lovely, the letters of disenchantment turned to letters of understanding.

ALC STUDENT BODY LAUDED

Trustees See Contrast With Unrest Elsewhere As Mark of Dedication

PIPPA PASSES, Ky. — Alice Lloyd College trustees have formally recognized the contribution to society, leadership and service of the college's coeducational student body as "in marked contrast" to recent activities on campuses across the country.

In semi-annual meeting on the 50-year-old campus of the independent, liberal arts college here, the trustees approved a resolution commending the students for their dedication to "higher idealism" and established citations for work on behalf of the college and the community.

Projected income for the fiscal year ending July 31 of this year, as reported by the board's business affairs committee, will exceed expenditures by purposes and endowment fund. Sources of those funds necessary to underwrite the major portion of the student participation in the Alice Lloyd College educational program are expected to be about $386,000 in direct student aid from gifts and grants; $150,000 from the college work program and Federal Educational Opportunity Grants; $155,000 in student payments for tuition, room and board; and about $130,000 from endowment earnings and other gifts and grants.

For the 1969-1970 fiscal year, the board also adopted a record operating budget of $967,100, up more than $146,000 from the projected expenditures of $821,000 for the current 12-month period. Neither figure reflects additional outlays for community service programs and capital expenditures, which are expected to exceed $1.2 million during the next fiscal year.

Sources of income for next year are expected to include $400,000 from unrestricted bequests; $500,000 from unrestricted gifts, grants and student payments for tuition, room and board; and about $200,000 in restricted grants.

Projected capital expenditures are based on a master campus plan developed by Johnson, Johnson & Roy of Ann Arbor, Michigan and presented to the board by Harold C. Doster, executive dean of the college. It includes a $721,750 science building and $280,000 in dormitory facilities.

Invited to address the board was George L. Evans, Floyd county industrialist and director of operations for the Beaver Valley Consolidated Coal Company. The company has announced plans to mine some 1.25 million tons of coal from properties less than five miles from Alice Lloyd College on Caney Creek. No other facility has come that near to the college in its 50-year history.

He indicated that development of mining properties near the campus by the company will "set new standards" in safety and that the company, a joint venture of National Steel Corporation and other mining interests, will "take the lead" in road construction and other improvements throughout the area.

DORAN HITS DISRUPTION ON COLLEGE CAMPUSES

MOREHEAD, Ky., May 23—Scholastic excellence does not carry the right to subvert academic freedom and personal liberty in the disruption of college campuses, Morehead State University President Adron Doran told an academic honors day assembly Thursday.

He commended the MSU student body and faculty for not following the example of others who have brought "dishonor and disrepute to themselves and their institutions."

Dr. Doran told more than 400 honor students and scholastic award recipients their achievements had brought "great honor" to Morehead State University and that their labors in a democratic framework "to advance the cause of education will stand as monument when other universities go up in smoke and are reduced to rubble."

The president defended academic freedom and constitutional rights as "pearls of great price" in American democracy but cautioned the honorees "never to desecrate this day, this institution and this nation by irresponsible deeds and words."

"Honor must not be equated solely with having attained a high level of academic achievement," Dr. Doran said. "We must look, however, to how preparation and experience have conditioned us to serve our fellow man."

He called on the entire University community to devote itself

Jack Jouett's Ride Earned Him a Place in History

(Governor Louie B. Nunn has proclaimed June 4, 1969 as Jack Jouett day in Kentucky. The following historical sketch tells why Jouett's memory is so honored . . . Editor.)

Shortly before dawn on the morning of June 4, 1781, a dusty rider spurred his weary horse up the hill to Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson. He had traveled 40 miles through Virginia back country in a hazardous all-night journey to bring news of impending peril to Jefferson and the members of the Virginia House of Delegates, assembled at nearby Charlottesville.

The message was brief. The British officer Tarleton was on his way, bringing with him 250 picked horsemen! It was disastrous news, for during this period of the Revolution these leaders of the Virginia government were virtually unprotected, their fighting men widely dispersed. Capture was imminent. Their only choice was to flee.

The horseman was Jack Jouett, a captain in the Virginia Militia. His torn clothing, his scratches and wounds attested to the many hazards of the bone-tiring ride he had just completed. His adventure began at a wayside inn, 12 miles east of Louisa Court House. It was there he had been resting when he was awakened by the sound of hoofbeats.

On the road to Charlottesville were Colonel Banastre Tarleton and his legion. They had been dispatched by the British commander-in-chief in the South, Lord Cornwallis, and their mission was to capture the patriots assembled in Charlottesville and thus crush the Virginia government. The 180 dragoons and 70 other mounted horsemen were more than enough to accomplish the task.

Perceiving their intentions, Jouett hastened to saddle up and follow them. As he neared their rear guard he left the road and cut cross-country to deliver his warning. Night was already upon him as he headed into the heavy forest. The terrain was rough and, in the darkness, his horse could be thrown by a root or hole. But he pressed on, stopping only when he must to make sure of the way.

From Monticello, Jouett continued his ride to Charlottesville to warn the legislators. Hastily gathering, the Assembly met briefly and decided to reconvene on June 7 at Staunton, about 43 miles to the west. By this time the British were upon them and a few were captured as Tarleton's men swarmed in on the town.

Most escaped, however, including Jefferson, Patrick Henry and Benjamin Harrison. Jouett's brave ride had thwarted the British invaders. The American patriots were free to carve their place in history.

The importance of Jouett's ride was noted immediately. Members of the House of Delegates, after reconvening at Staunton, voted that an elegant sword and set of pistols be given him.

After the war Jouett married and settled in Mercer County, Kentucky. He farmed and raised cattle, and twice represented Mercer County in the Virginia legislature. He was a member of the Kentucky district's 1788 convention at Danville which sought separation from Virginia. Mercer County sent him as a representative to Kentucky's first legislature in 1792.

In 1793 he moved to a farm in Woodford County. Jouett was one of the first to import grade cattle from England. He represented Woodford County in the Kentucky legislature in 1795, '96 and '97.

Around 1809 he moved to Bath County, where he was active in community affairs until his death on March 1, 1822 at age 67. He was buried in Bath County.

The legislatures of the Commonwealths of Virginia and Kentucky have seen fit to commemorate the gallant ride made by Jack Jouett. In 1940 the Virginia General Assembly set aside June 4 of each year as "Jack Jouett Day," and in 1942 the Kentucky legislature followed suit.

In proclaiming June 4, 1969, as "Jack Jouett Day" in Kentucky, Governor Louie B. Nunn noted that "Jouett's momentous ride averted . . . a potentially crushing blow to the Revolutionary effort." Kentucky, he said, joined "the Commonwealth of Virginia, which sired him, in commemorating his great achievement."

TIME AND TOLERANCE ENDING FOR RIOTING, KIRWAN TELLS CLASS

Time and public tolerance may be running out on the universities, Interim President A. D. Kirwan told the 2,265-member graduating class at the 102nd annual University of Kentucky commencement, Monday.

Dr. Kirwan cited moves by state legislatures to assume more control over college campuses. "Take charge, or we'll do it," he said the lawmakers are warning.

He said universities torn with dissension are facing reaction from two fronts—a disenchanted public and right-wing students, and that democratic nations are facing "a mortal danger" in the questioning of their abilities to govern themselves.

"This threat and challenge of authority is striking academic institutions with a severity, but retaliation may be equally as severe," he continued. "Some of the right-wing students are preparing to take direct action—to meet violence with violence."

Dr. Kirwan pointed out that many university administrations have surrendered rather than run the risk of violence and bloodshed, "something no college wants or is ready to assume responsibility for."

He said the alternative is a toughness alien to university tradition and to the academic mind, and that students, faculties and administrators must find ways of renewing their mutual trust and confidence in one another.

Dr. Kirwan reminded that "in our conquest of nature we have lost contact with natural things." Fundamental pursuits have been neglected in the concentration on electronics, spacecraft and missiles.

"We will soon put a man on the moon, while we are unable to build the houses we need, move traffic through our choking cities, or keep ourselves from polluting the air we breathe and the water we drink," he said.

Among the highlights of the annual commencement event were these:

David Wilson, 24-year-old blind student from Louisa, who received a bachelor's degree in English, walked across the platform to receive his certificate with his seeing-eye dog, Lady, also garbed in a graduate mortar board.

Mrs. Marie Carey, 72, also of Louisa, received a degree in elementary education. Many of her eight children, 29 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren were there to see the UK Donovan Scholar and former teacher receive the certificate that will help launch her on a new career—as a librarian.

I spent one minute. I saved $662.

Proctor Haller of Ashland, Kentucky made one phone call and discovered, "Electric whole-house air conditioning cost me $662 less than the gas estimate for the same size unit, and my operating cost will be less than it would have been with gas. The electric air conditioning unit was easily installed on my present gas heating system." In home after home, we have proved that flameless electric whole-house air conditioning costs less to install and less to operate than gas. Electric whole-house air conditioning can be added to most warm air furnaces, regardless of the fuel used for heating. If you're thinking of installing gas whole-house air conditioning, make a phone call for an electric cost comparison. It could be the most profitable minute you ever spent.
