

Stephens Lodges Contest Dismissal

Court Order Delay Until Friday Seen

Writ of Prohibition Denied Last Friday; Machines Impounded

Although Henry Stephens moved Monday to dismiss his contest of the nomination of Frank DeRossett for circuit court clerk, the case remains in court, pending action by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, and that action may not be taken before next Friday.

Meanwhile, the voting machines remain impounded by Judge Conley's order.

Judge Stephens' legal notice to dismiss was in the form of a court order, which he signed. It reads:

"Upon motion of Contestant, it is ordered that this case be dismissed at the cost of the Contestant."

It was indicated this may not be considered a motion to dismiss.

Stephens' move followed by two days the motion filed by the contestee, Circuit Clerk DeRossett, asking the court to dismiss Stephens' contest suit on the grounds that contestant failed to complete his proof within 15 days after service of summons on the contestee. This, the motion stated, is required by KRS 122.030, and completion of proof within that time also had been directed by Judge Conley.

Also preceding Stephens' action was the refusal last Friday of the Court of Appeals to grant him a writ of prohibition forbidding Judge Conley to preside in the hearing of the case.

When the Stephens case is dismissed another may take its place on the court docket here, it was indicated this week. The new suit, it was said, is one which may be filed by a taxpayer at any time within one year after the date of the election and it would attack the election as a whole, seeking a "No Election" judgment.

This Town ... That World

THE JUMPING FROG '69 STYLE

This year's frog of Jim Smiley's in Mark Twain's celebrated story — now, he wasn't in the same class with a tiny bullfrog that left here last Tuesday in one of the longest jumps ever made by any of his kind. It came about, this way:

"Set" Branham was home from Salt Lake City for a few days, and with him he brought his daughter, Georgjane, 8, and his son, Blade, 5. And those youngsters found nothing that crawled, swam, flew or jumped in these parts that they feared. They combed the garden of their grandmother, Fanny Branham, for any kind of specimen around. They caught a big toad, played with him by day and tied him up by a hind leg to a tree in the yard at night. When the time neared for their return west, they announced they were taking the frog home with them. But "Set" vetoed the idea.

So the youngsters found this tiny bullfrog, which fitted well into a jar partially filled with water. And the frog Georgjane took with her, aboard the plane — and, off, off he went — up, up — and never came down till this hill-billy frog was pretty near Jim Smiley's old stomping grounds, Calaveras county.

This recalls the time when a Prestonsburg family was all packed and ready to take off for Myrtle Beach. Then strange sounds were heard. They seemed to be coming from inside one of the bags. The mystery was solved when the bag was opened and the pet hen which the twins had decided to take along staggered out, squawking a feeble protest against the lack of air.

SUGGESTED READING

Bless the young'uns and every pet! I've just finished reading "Rascal," the story of a boy and his pet raccoon, a St. Bernard, and a bevy of other pets, including a crow named Poe and a small tribe of skunks. This is a book with a heartfull of nostalgia for every old boy who ever owned, or was owned by, a pet.

Dr. Russell L. Hall, health officer, urges all teachers, foodhandlers, known contacts of tuberculosis cases and citizens living in the Wheelwright area to take advantage of this free service and have a chest X-ray made. Anyone who has received a letter requesting they have a larger chest picture made should bring this letter with them and present it to the technician on duty at the trailer.

'69 HIGHWAY PACT SIGNED

Dept. of Highways Allocates County $139,368 for Year

The Floyd fiscal court last week approved the overdue contract with the Kentucky Department of Highways which provides a net apportionment of $139,368.55 for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The state earlier had reached an agreement with the county on its machinery lease-purchase arrangement. County Judge Stumbo said the first amount offered the county was insufficient to maintain the machinery acquisition and payment plan, but that the amount was increased to an adequate figure.

The $139,368 apportionment is exclusive of administration, emergencies, and contingencies. This amount, with any unencumbered balance from prior apportionments to the county, will be expended by the Department of Highways to aid the county in maintaining, constructing and reconstructing certain roads in the county.

Altogether, the long list of roads covered by the contract totals 30.3 miles of bituminous surfacing and 116.9 miles of traffic-bound surfacing.

CONCLUDE VISIT

TWO JAILED IN SHOOTING

Adams, Hall Held In Mud Creek Fray; Craft, Beer Taken

An exchange of gunfire Saturday night between two Mud Creek men resulted in the wounding of one and the jailing here of both.

Frank Adkins was booked by State Trooper Bevins on a charge of shooting and wounding Lee Hall, who was struck in his chin by a bullet. Hall later was returned here from Lexington to answer to a shooting at without wounding charge.

Sheriff Joe W. Lewis said Adkins claimed Hall fired first on him after he had stopped his car at a spot on the Branham's Creek road which had been blocked by a set of bedsprings.

Adkins waived examining trial in quarterly court here and executed bond for his appearance upon future grand jury action. Hall was booked in Magistrate Dewey Roberts' court.

Robert Craft was booked on charges of possessing and selling intoxicants after Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Claude Flannery confiscated 87 cans of beer found Saturday on his premises, a short distance off new US 23, north of here. The selling charge as well as the search warrant resulted from the purchase by a deputy sheriff of a case of beer at the Craft home, Lewis said.

Within the week 42 persons have been booked at the jail. Those booked with major offenses, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Howard Chaffins, obtaining money under false pretense, by Constable Willis Conn; Billie Joe Gearheart, child desertion and bigamy, by Deputy Sheriff Flannery and Probation Officer Montgomery, later released to Wise county, Va. authorities; Odie Dennis Rife, burglary, by State Trooper Bevins; Janie M. Poston, bigamy, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Montgomery, later released to Wise county, Va.; Mike Cecil and Joboe Click, Jr., driving while under the influence of alcohol, by State Troopers Ross and Bevins; William Jasper Rogers, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, by Trooper Bevins; Noah Hall, drunk driving, by State Trooper Elmo Allen; Robert Ralph Wells, driving while under the influence of alcohol, by Trooper Bevins; Noah Nichols, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs Stilton and Hall; Cecil Halbert, drunk driving and driving under revoked license, by Constable Ted H. Salisbury.

ADAMS GETS FLOYD JOBS

4 Surfacing Projects Are Let to Contract At Total of $105,018

Governor Louie B. Nunn announced Monday that a contract for four road surfacing projects has been awarded in Floyd county. The contract will include a total distance of 8.6 miles.

The contract for $105,018 was awarded to Adams Construction Corporation, Pikeville.

Highway Commissioner Eugene Goss said re-surfacing projects will include: 2 miles of the Martin-Prestonsburg (KY 122) road from KY 122, extending south-easterly; 2.2 miles of the Maytown-Garrett (KY 777) road from end of blacktop, 5 miles north-east of KY 80 at Garrett, to beginning of blacktop, 1.1 miles southeast of KY 80 at Maytown; and, 1 mile of the Slick Rock Branch road from KY 194, extending northeasterly.

The fourth contract is for bituminous concrete surfacing of the Bonanza-Big Lick Fork road (KY 1750), from KY 1427 3.4 miles to the Johnson county line.

2 Girls from Floyd Town Miss Kentucky Nominees

MISS BALDRIDGE

MISS PRATER

The Floyd county village of Hueysville is not exactly the population center of Eastern Kentucky, but it has a claim to fame that no other town its size can boast.

Two contestants for the Miss Kentucky title come from this community. Kathy Lynn Prater and Daphne Lynn Baldrige will make observations at the Miss Kentucky Pageant, at the Brown Hotel in Louisville, July 24-26, wonder if there are any more like them at home in Hueysville.

Kathy, a student at Alice Lloyd College, will represent Knott county in the pageant, while Daphne will represent her home Floyd county.

Kathy, 19, is a cheerleader at Alice Lloyd, where she is majoring in art. She will paint a picture on stage at the pageant, while delivering a monologue. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Feely Prater.

Daphne, 18, has recently graduated from Garrett high school where she was a cheerleader four years. She will attend Eastern Kentucky University in the fall. She enjoys outdoor sports, sewing, cooking and drawing. Miss Floyd County is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgille Baldrige.

Although only one girl can be crowned Miss Kentucky, Hueysville claims two champions.

Teen Corps, Born of Tour By Youth, Works in Area

A youth movement, born of a 16-year-old boy's tour of Eastern Kentucky two years ago, has put to work in four communities of this section 109 young people this summer.

Sans federal funds, the Teen Corps of Minnesota, composed of high school and college students, is at work in the communities of Handshoe, Beaver Creek, Decoy and Pine Top — working with residents of these communities on roads, churches, community buildings, whatever project is deemed most needed.

While in Kentucky in 1967 for a speaking contest, Robert Benedict, a student at Bloomington Kennedy high school, Min., got the idea that people of his age could be helpful. He returned home, began organizing what became the Teen Corps in his own school. The movement spread to other schools. Now, it has three major areas of concern: Appalachia, the Red Lake Indian Reservation and the Minneapolis-St. Paul inner-city area.

Each participating school raised $300 for each boy or girl sent to work, except in a few cases when the student paid his or her own way. Benedict, now a ministerial student, came with the Eastern Kentucky contingent.

At Handshoe (the work center, really is the Joshua community on Quicksand Creek, across the mountain from Handshoe) 34 youngsters have since June 14 been working on a community center, the non-denominational church and a clothing project. The church structure there was built with funds contributed by Mrs. Sylvia Thomas from compensation paid her after the death of her son in a factory accident.

The Teen Corps youngsters have installed altar equipment, dug and carted away the mountain-side earth which crowded the building and have built a retaining wall for its protection. The clothing distribution has reached the needy.

There are more blistered hands than good meals at the Teen Corps camp, since work is always plentiful and food is not. But, of all those who came, only one has returned home and then only because of the death of a dear friend.

'WILD' AUTO RUNS AMOK

Laferty Seriously Hurt, Gas Station Is Rammed As Car Out of Control

An automobile went out of control here Sunday afternoon, seriously injured a service station manager, and caused damage estimated at $2,000.

The auto, driven by Larry Newsome, 22, hit a panel truck which he was following, cut across the highway to his left, rammed the front of the Cardinal Service Station, hit Eppie Laferty, the station manager, then Laferty's car, and stopped when it toppled a gasoline pump.

Laferty's leg was broken three times below the knee and the bone was splintered. He was taken, soon after he was injured, to Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington. He is expected to recover but will be immobilized for months, it was said.

The gasoline pump overturned by the Newsome car caught fire but prompt work of firefighters prevented spread of the blaze and a possible explosion.

Newsome was arrested by City Policemen "Hack" Thornsbury and Lonnie Herald and was booked on a drunk driving charge. The driver claimed his brakes failed and added he would fight the drunk driving charge. A Breathalyzer test failed to establish drunkenness, he claimed.

The Newsome car first hit the panel truck of James Rayburn Stone, turnkey at the county jail here. Mrs. Stone, who was driving an auto, following her husband, said she saw no brake lights to indicate that Newsome ever applied his brakes.

The plate glass front of the service station was smashed, the Stone and Laferty cars were badly damaged. Newsome suffered a head laceration. His father, Curt Newsome, of Teaberry, was a passenger in his car as they were returning to this county from Ft. Wayne, Indiana.

Writer Scores Program; Report False, Says Clark

Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark reacted strongly to a Courier-Journal story published Friday as a resume of a magazine article which criticized the Floyd county school-lunch program.

Friday's story, written by Jim Remsen, of the Louisville newspaper's Washington bureau, quoted from an article written by Charles Remsburg, a free-lance writer, and published in Impact, a new magazine.

The Remsburg article claimed that the national lunch program, believed generally to be running smoothly, often falls far short of the mark. It said that Floyd county was chosen at random for its scrutiny, adding that this county "represents neither the worst nor the best in school lunch operations."

The article was critical of C. E. Bevins, state school lunch division director, Superintendent Clark, Miss Blanche Dingus, Floyd school-lunch supervisor, and Forrest Curry, principal of the John M. Stumbo elementary school at Grethel.

Remsburg, according to The Courier-Journal story, charged that in Floyd county:

1. At least 2,000 youngsters are not receiving lunches, including many poor children in desperate need of the program.
2. Children unable to afford lunch or to bring food from home are sometimes forced to sit, hungry, in the same lunchroom where their more fortunate classmates are eating.

3. Free school lunches are promised to buy votes in school board elections.

4. Lunch program rules have been flagrantly ignored by state and local officials, while federal administrators acquiesce.

Admittedly shocked by the Courier-Journal story, Supt. Clark said a Charles Remsburg came to the superintendent's office here some weeks ago, posing as an investigator for the Ford Foundation with an assignment to investigate the Appalachian Volunteers to determine if the foundation should extend financial support to them.

"During our lengthy, frank discussion," said Clark, "I explained that the federal government's support of the lunchroom program, while important, did not amount to anywhere near the total cost of the program. We discussed the Appalachian Volunteers' part in the so-called demands presented to us by a small delegation from the Stumbo school area. We asked Blanche Dingus, lunchroom supervisor, to show the gentleman the financial records of the lunchrooms so he could see that most of the schools were operating with a deficit because of the heavy load of free lunches. We also called Mr. Curry at the Stumbo school and asked him to cooperate with the 'Ford Foundation' investigator."

"If," said Clark in a prepared statement, "the Courier-Journal story is an accurate resume of the Remsburg story, our comment on the four allegations made in the article would be that they are completely, absolutely without a single iota of truth."

"In his ignorance of the facts," the superintendent's statement continued, "he (Remsburg) resorted to fiction and thereby qualified as our nominee for the Ananias Award, then those of us who are diligently and honestly trying to furnish proper leadership for people should establish one. It would go, each year, to the journalist who strays farthest and hereby does the most damage from the truth in his reporting to progress in Appalachia."

Referring to the four charges by Remsburg in the Impact article, Clark commented:

1. No child is denied a free lunch if his parents are truly unable to pay. Our free lunch load in Floyd county went from 28.9% to 37.3% during the last school year.
2. No poor, hungry child is forced to sit and watch his affluent classmates eat. Those who choose to bring their lunches do go to the lunchroom with their homeroom groups to eat.
3. Neither race, creed, nor school political affiliation has ever been a factor in the matter of determining who gets a free lunch. We challenge Mr. Remsburg and Impact Magazine to prove this allegation. In fact, we say demand through the courts that they prove this statement.
4. Until November, 1968, we had (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

FLOYD OK'D FOR EDA AID

Grants, Loans To Help 902 U.S. Communities; 73 Removed from List

A total of 902 economically lagging communities were qualified, effective July 1, for federal aid to stimulate job growth, Robert A. Podesta, assistant secretary of commerce for Economic Development, announced this week.

Floyd is one of the Kentucky counties which qualified. The state is next to Georgia in the number of qualified counties.

These areas are qualified for public works grants and loans and business development loans from the Department Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce. The qualification is generally on the basis of persistently high unemployment rates reported by the Department of Labor or median family incomes that are less than 40 percent of the national median.

Podesta announced that in the last year 73 areas have improved their economies to the point of being removed from the list of areas designated for EDA assistance. Podesta also reported that increasing local unemployment has resulted in the addition of 70 communities to the qualified list during the last fiscal year.

Hall Makes Vain Effort To Save Boy

Hall, Stanley Victims In Dewey Lake Tragedy Funerals Held Sunday

A double drowning in the German area of Dewey Lake last Thursday afternoon brought to three the number of lake victims this year.

The victims were 17-year-old Theodore (Teddy) Stanley, of Weeksbury, and his would-be rescuer, Roy Hall, Jr., 20, of Wheelwright.

Graham Burchett, captain of the Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad, said eyewitnesses told him five youths were playing on or about a small pontoon boat and that the two victims were in the water, near the boat, when young Stanley stepped into deeper water. The youth could not swim and Hall, seeing his plight, went to his rescue. Both soon thereafter submerged.

The body of Stanley was recovered within a few minutes by a man named Holt and his son, of Paintsville, but attempts at artificial respiration failed. The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad recovered the body of Hall, about an hour after arriving at the scene of the tragedy.

Young Stanley was a son of Hubert Stanley, of this county, and Mrs. Eloise Castle Gin, of Columbus, O. His funeral was conducted Sunday from the home of his grandfather, George Castle, of Weeksbury, with whom he resided. Ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses officiated. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Weeksbury.

Surviving, besides his parents, are one brother, Hubert Stanley, Columbus, O., a sister, Mrs. Dawn Alroid, Pensacola, Fla., and three half-brothers, Terry, Larry and Jerry Gin, all of Columbus.

Roy Hall Jr. survived by his parents, Roy and Anna Harris Hall, of Wheelwright; a brother, Roger Dean Hall, and four sisters, Ella Rose, Deborah, Rachel and Loretta Hall, all of Wheelwright. He was employed by Dr. Patterson at Wheelwright and was a member of the Church of Christ there. Funeral rites were conducted Sunday by Emery Hall and Bennie Blankenship, ministers of the Church of Christ, and burial was made in the Richmond cemetery here.

The Merion Funeral Chapel directed the funerals of both victims.

Let Honesty Prevail

A study is being made concerning the May primary election with reference to the election laws enacted by the Legislature in 1968.

Under certain provisions of the acts of the Legislature, an action may be filed within 12 months from the date of the primary by any taxpayer and voter of the required age in the circuit court against any or all the successful candidates in the county at large to disqualify any or all such candidates from holding the office to which they were nominated. If any action is filed it will include the Circuit Judge, who will then be compelled to vacate the bench, since he cannot preside in a case in which he is a party.

I notice in the press last week, also in the Floyd County Times, that an investigation will be made as to any violation of the election laws, and I wonder just how vigorously such matter will be pursued. If a few people should be indicted, it is my judgment it will be those with little or no political influence. Why have not such matters been investigated heretofore as the law requires? I have a copy of an order by Judge Conley placing the keys to the voting machines and other materials connected with the primary in custody of Norman Allen, editor of The Times, to which I have no objection, since I consider him to be a trustworthy, honest citizen. But how can such an appointment be made in violation of the Act of 1968, which provides that such machines and materials are to be in the custody of the County Clerk, Mr. Robinson, and not in the hands of DeGarmo DeRossett, who at this time has custody of the voting machines. It is claimed by some that these voting machines cannot

Commonwealth's Attorney recently wrote Commissioner Newman, of the Department of Public Safety, pointing out that the integrity of the voting machines in his county had been questioned and asking the department to lead an investigation. In response to this letter Col. C. B. Crutchfield, director of the department, wrote last week:

"We would be glad to assist your office in any manner possible, but we do not have an investigator who would be qualified to inspect and offer testimony on the good order or correctness of the internal mechanism of the voting machines."

Col. Crutchfield added that the department would assign a detective to cooperate with a member of the Attorney General's staff in routine aspects of such an investigation, assist in interviewing witnesses, taking statements or acting in any other part of the investigation in which department personnel would be qualified. But, he pointed out, the department has had little experience in such matters.

Crutchfield suggested that Stumbo try to procure the services of a manufacturer's representative or an engineer who is familiar with the principle of operation and the internal mechanism of the machines.

be rigged, but take the case late pending in Martin county, in which it was shown that they could be changed. A book lately written and now in the Congressional Library shows that such machines can be changed in many ways, which applies to the kind of machines used in this county. It now seems that some of our officials have recently become very much interested in honest elections but it seems to me a very late date to commence investigating such matters.

I know there are a great number of people in Floyd county who believe in honesty and not only in elections but in other matters as well. Begin to gather all matter possible in connection with the suit to be filed. Many people connected with the Nelson Program and other programs in which federal moneys are involved took an active part in the primary in strict violation of the law, which may be investigated by a federal grand jury. Proper authorities are being notified of these violations.

Miller-McGuire Vows Solemnized

Miss Jayne Ellen Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Miller, and Mr. Tom McGuire, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom O. McGuire, Sr. were united in marriage June 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the First Methodist Church, Prestonsburg. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Revs. William M. Pope and Edward Burns before a candle-lit altar decorated with majestic daisies, white mums, baby breath and foliage of jade and solal.

An organ program of traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Chalmers Frazier, preceding the ceremony. Mrs. John W. Sutherland, soloist, sang two special selections, "Whither Thou Goest" and "Till."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional floor-length gown of misty-white organza in an "A"-line silhouette, especially designed and made for her by Lillian Whelan. The bodice of pale ivory Peau d' Ange lace, touched by bridal pearls and sparkling crystals with sculptured petal neckline and long sleeves embellished by scalloped lace at the wrist, was created with Empire waistline. A deep pyramid of heavily jewel-encrusted matching peau d' ange lace indented the slender skirt and scalloped the hemline. A chapel train strewn with lace medallions completed a picture of understated elegance. Her halo mantilla veil of gossamer silk illusion, completely bordered with hand-applied ivory peau d' ange lace medallions, floated the full length of her train. It was held by a bridal head-dress of peau de soie petals and matching lace motifs enriched by pearls and aurora crystals in a tiara effect, curving to compliment her coiffure. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink sensation roses, baby breath and ligumstrum.

Miss Miller's maid of honor was Miss Betty Jo Greer, Prestonsbury, who wore a floor-length gown of Nile green organza in an "A"-line silhouette. The sleeveless bodice with jewel neckline edged with Venise lace medallions was created with Empire waistline defined by a wide band of matching lace. An overlay of Venise lace encircled the slim skirt above the hemline.

Dresses identical to that of the maid of honor, except in pale pink, were worn by the eight bridesmaids, Misses Marthann Archer, Barbara Rowe, Barbara Nunnery, Bonnie Meade, Mary Lynn Combs and Karen Miller, all of Prestonsburg, Sharon Prater, Lexington, and Martha Holcomb, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Miss Miller's flower girl was her cousin, little Cindy Greer, of Lexington. All wore floor-length, matching net headpieces and carried miniature white straw baskets containing flower arrangements made of snowdrift pompoms, statice and pink marguerite daisies.

The mother of the bride wore a blue, long sleeved "A"-line dress of imported embroidered organza. Her corsage was of white glamelias.

The mother of the groom was attired in a beige lace dress with jeweled buttons. Her corsage was pink cymbidium orchids.

Mr. Tom O. McGuire, Sr., father of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Roger Lubbers, Chicago, Illinois, Shanklin Cannon, Bethel, Kentucky, Danny Lewis, Grundy, Virginia, Vernon Goetz, Cincinnati, Ohio, Steve Webb, Lexington, Kentucky, Kimberly McGuire and Huey Grey, Prestonsburg. Mark McGuire, the groom's brother, was ring bearer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Boyd. The bride's table was covered with a pink cloth overlaid with nylon lace, which was caught up in a draped effect around the edge of the table by tiny flower bouquets and pink satin ribbons. A four tiered wedding cake was served to the guests, along with punch, nuts and tiny green mins.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. McGuire left for a ten-day honeymoon in Daytona Beach, Florida. They will be at home to their friends at Apartment 4, Briarwood, for the summer. In the fall they will be returning to Lexington, where Mr. McGuire will resume his studies at the University of Kentucky Medical School.

and on a community building — these are some of the activities at Decoy. Over the area a dental unit is moving, and Teen Corps volunteers go with it. Before it arrives, they will be instructing youngsters in dental hygiene. It is the Corps' second summer at Decoy.

Said one of the group: "We are getting wonderful cooperation from the people... the friendliest, most hospitable people we've ever known." Volunteers and native residents work, side by side.

Individually, the youngsters speak of the beauty of the hills, the peace and quiet of their surroundings, the hospitality of residents who invite them into their homes.

"If," wrote one volunteer, "there were more people in the world like the people I've met here, our world would be the most beautiful place to live in."

This week, their leader, Mr. Benedict, was in Frankfort, urging help on the Quicksand road. Back at the job, the youngsters had needs themselves — food, a used refrigerator, among others — but there was no complaint. In fact, their food needs had been partially met by a small group from Hueysville, this county, who also loaned them a refrigerator till they leave to resume classwork in their several schools, late this month.

"We came down with the idea of helping others," commented one volunteer. "As it turned out, we learned more and gained more from the people than we ever expected, and we have probably gained more from them than they have from us."

never seen the new federal guidelines for school lunchroom operation. We have always operated in compliance with the state guidelines, the only guide we had. The new guidelines, came to us from the state in January, 1969, and at the February principal's meeting we discussed the implications of the new rules. Principals were directed to put the new guides into effect by March 1, 1969. We shall adhere to guidelines, both federal and state, as long as we have lunchrooms with government support.

"Mr. Rensberg," Clark added, "might have truthfully reported that we have one of the highest percentages of free lunches in Eastern Kentucky. He could in truth have reported that Floyd county served as a pilot school system when the U. S. Department of Agriculture wanted to test a plan for providing a hot noon meal for each child in each isolated rural school where lunchrooms were unknown. At that time all 86 rural schools in Floyd county started the program to feed those children for ten cents per lunch for those who could pay and free to those who could not pay. Our county was the only one in the whole United States trying the program in all rural schools."

The Impact article went into some detail on the Stumbo school, where it said children were charged 25 cents a meal and about 89 per cent of the students participated in the lunch program. About a quarter of those participating ate free and the others paid full price.

Curry himself estimates that 50 to 60 per cent of his students are poor by the usual federal standards, but he claims the lunchroom already is losing money with the free lunches it now provides.

"We can't feed them all free and still operate a lunchroom. We can't turn this into a charity thing," he is quoted by Impact.

Curry showed his January balance sheet to Rensberg to point out that his expenses ran $1,300 over cash income from lunch sales from the month, but the Impact reporter noted the supposedly non-profit lunchroom had a cash balance of over $6,000 at both the beginning and the end of the month.

Curry told him that part of this cash was earmarked for new kitchen equipment.

Rensberg said Curry, like many of his fellow officials, believes students not participating in the lunch program are skipping the meals by choice.

"They have money," he said, "but they don't want to eat. We can't force children to eat. That would be violating their constitutional rights."

Rensberg said he found otherwise in his visits to shabby homes of the unemployed miners and widows whose children attend the Stumbo school.

Many told of being denied free lunches by Curry, and some said their children were told they could work for meals (a violation of federal regulations).

C. M. Holbrook, 79,
Abbott-Cr. Farmer,
Succumbs, June 25

Carroll M. Holbrook, 79, died June 25 at his home on Abbott Creek, victim of a heart ailment from which he had suffered for some time.

Born and reared in the community where he died, Mr. Holbrook was a son of R. D. and Sarah Shepherd Holbrook. He was a farmer and was a member of Little Rock United Baptist Church. He was first married to Nora Miller and after her death to Lottie Cantrell Puckett, who survives.

Other survivors include seven sons and daughters, Tom Holbrook, Ada, O., Mrs. Audra Belcher, of Allen, Bill Holbrook, Coal Grove, O., Mrs. Herma Bentley, Chelsea, Mich., Mrs. Margie Rice, Gallipolis, O., Mrs. Dixie Brickley, Cannonsburg, Ky., and Mabrey Holbrook, Prestonsburg; two step-sons, Kelly and Tom Puckett; two brothers, Jim and Sam Holbrook, both of Portsmouth, O.; a sister, Mrs. Addie Howard, East Point, 15 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted Friday from the Little Rock Church, the Revs. Millard Blanton, Wallace Calhoun and Johnny King officiating. Burial in the family cemetery was under direction of the Carter Funeral Home.

Active pallbearers were Donald Lee Neeley, Elza Bayes, Elza Prater, Abe Sparks, Danny Prater, Johnny Grimm, Alex Prater, Roy Mullett, Johnny Holbrook.

Archer Park Sports

The slo-pitch all-star game will be played Friday evening at 5:30. The league has been divided into two sections for this game. All of the Prestonsburg teams will make up the southern division, and all out-of-town teams will be represented in the northern division. Coaches for the South are Paul Phillip Hughes and John Grant Anderson; for the North, Gene Shelton and Martin Holbrook.

The district slo-pitch softball tournament will be held at Archer Park, beginning July 18. The tourney is open to any team in Floyd, Knott, Pike and Letcher counties. The winner and runner-up will advance to the regional at Harlan. Entries will be eliminated on the loss of two games. Persons who enter teams should contact Ed Patton, Archer Park manager.

The farm teams are still trying to recruit players for their baseball teams. Two teams have been organized. Their lineups for Wednesday night's opening game:

REDS — Dan Daniels, c.; Mark McGuire, p.; John Perry, ss.; Randy Martin, 2b.; Randy Chafins, 3b.; David Layne, 1b.; Mike Allen, H.; Mark Rice, cf.

The total loss by fire on University of Kentucky property during 1968 was less than $500. The quick action of building operators prevented several fires from becoming serious losses.

Wins Three Medals

When Sp/4 Troy L. Branham returns home — hopefully, soon after Aug. 31 — he will bring with him from Vietnam three medals as an infantryman often working in conjunction with other military units.

He arrived in Vietnam Nov. 5 last year and with a mobile infantry unit won the Air Medal for action with the 27th Eagle Flight against the enemy. Later, he was awarded the Joint Service River Ben Medal for operations in the Mekong Delta with the Navy. He is now with the 709th Infantry Battalion in Dong Ton and has received the Army Commendation Medal for outstanding work with that unit.

The soldier is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Branham, of Harold.

Bell Manager Warns Anonymous Callers

A telephone call can lead to arrest, a jail term and a police record—that is, if the call is threatening, harassing, obscene or just a nuisance call. South Central Bell's local manager, Bill Gibson, said this week.

"Some people think that making an anonymous call is a harmless prank. They don't stop to think that, besides causing worry and inconvenience, they are breaking the law. There is a warning on the inside cover of the local directory. Anyone who is making nuisance calls would do well to heed this warning," Gibson said.

"We are especially concerned about people who make such calls," Gibson added. "An arrest would mean a criminal record which could have an adverse effect on a young person's future. Embarrassment of family and friends would surely result, too. We at South Central Bell would like to avoid such serious consequences, but we are determined to reduce the number of nuisance calls, by tracing them and helping prosecute the guilty parties."

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall, of Wheelwright, would like to express their gratitude to all the many wonderful friends who gave so much comfort and helped so much in the passing of our dearly beloved son, Roy Hall, Jr., and to the Merion Funeral Chapel and the officiating ministers, Bennie Blankenship, Emory Hall and Charlie Johnson.

The Master Key

"The Master Key," a devotional given by Mrs. H. B. Wright, at the February meeting of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club, was published in the March-April number of the Kentucky Club Woman. It reads:

Keys for involvement include five keys, representing five very important openings in our society. I, too, would like to introduce a key. The Master Key, which every individual holds to use, whether they recognize it or not. It is the key of prayer. It opens the door to the kingdom of God. We start by using this key to open our hearts to let Christ come in. As Christians we use it every day. It has won wars, saved nations, dispelled illiteracy and famine. Without this key, we could not advance the Christian program over the dark continents as well as over our own Christian nation which is so important in our world filled with chaos and discontentment.

Without Christianity and our belief in an Omnipotent, Omniscient, Omnipresent God, our nation would soon fall into the power of Communistic rule. Our freedom of speech, press and worship would be taken away from the American people. We cannot afford to lose our Christian heritage. Let us daily use this key to pray for our leaders, that they will have the wisdom to rule the greatest nation on earth, that we will be the guiding light to other nations, and our motto always be, "In God We Trust."

C.-J. Drama Critic Praises "Carnival"

CARNIVAL, the opening production of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, has won critical and popular acclaim during the opening week at the Jenny Wiley State Park Amphitheatre in Prestonsburg. Jean Dietrich, drama critic for the Louisville Courier Journal, called CARNIVAL "a smooth, happy production."

"It's an ideal kind of show for the Jenny Wiley stage," wrote Miss Dietrich, "where audiences are as filled with children as adults. Those delightful puppets which figure so prominently in CARNIVAL's story are captivating to all ages... Colorful circus trappings on stage and peddlers hawking those familiar souvenirs through the audience bring the circus zestfully to life."

CARNIVAL continues at the Amphitheatre Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays through July 12.

SAFETY CHECK STATIONS HIT IN STATE CRACKDOWN

Missing stickers, slipshod records and deliberate disregard of inspection procedure were but a few of the reasons cited by the state's chief motor vehicle inspector, John Parrott, for disciplinary steps recently taken against some 40 service station operators and mechanics licensed to make vehicle safety checks.

Most violators were handed probation orders or warning notices. Three were placed on indefinite suspension while three other stations and one mechanic-inspector were slapped with permanent revocation of their state inspection licenses.

All of the stations hit by the crackdown were located within a 17-county area. "But," warned Parrott, "they represent only a small fraction of the licensed inspection stations which are now—and will continue to be—receiving unannounced visits by our inspectors throughout Kentucky." Backed by Public Safety Commissioner, William O. Newman, Parrott has ordered an all-out effort by his men to enforce compliance with the inspection practices law which governs the operations of some 2400 stations and 6300 mechanics licensed by the State to make safety checks and issue the blue, 1969 safety sticker to vehicle owners throughout Kentucky.

One frequently recurring point revealed by regular check of inspection reports as they arrive at Frankfort (and one which usually leads to a warning for station operators) is the surprising number of stations which consistently file reports indicating no defects or rejections whatsoever. "We find it hard to believe," Parrott said, "that a station never finds any car in need of some repair or adjustment."

Not all traffic fatalities are caused from drinking while driving or speeding. But too many of them are. ## UK ALUMNI BOARD TO ASK GRANTS FOR VALEDICTORIANS

The University of Kentucky Alumni Association board of directors last week-end voted to seek a full scholarship for any high school valedictorian in Kentucky wishing to attend a state-supported college or university. The measure was adopted at the directors' annual summer workshop at Kentucky Dam Village State Park. About 30 directors attended, and an additional hundred persons came for a special meeting Thursday night of UK alumni from west Kentucky.

The scholarship resolution, accepted after a special study committee's report, stipulates that the UK association ask the 1970 session of the General Assembly to fund the valedictorian scholarships.

"Too many of our top high school graduates are being lost to the commonwealth because of grants made to them by other institutions across the nation," Alumni Association President Joe Creason said.

JAMES E. ROBINSON

James E. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Robinson, of Langley, is one of three Kentucky boys who received scholarships this year to Camp Rising Sun, the unique camp for boys located in the Berkshire Mountains, near Rhinebeck, N. Y.

George Jonas, founder of the Lois August Jonas Foundation, Inc., who personally interviews every boy who is invited to the camp, was in this county last March. He describes Rising Sun not as a camp but as "a summer school for living." Robinson and the other Kentucky boys left the Greater Cincinnati Airport Friday and travelled from LaGuardia Airport, New York, by bus to camp where they will spend the next two months. The Floyd scholarship winner is a sophomore at Maytown high school.

Building a pump house adds a sense of usefulness to a days work for project repair crews. Crew members must be area residents 52 or older and previously unemployed.

A century of time shows in the attentive face of "Uncle John" Wooten while project social worker, John Rimmer, interviews the Leslie Countian to determine the repair needs of Wooten's home.

UNIQUE HOME REPAIR PROJECT IN KENTUCKY

A housing repair project unique to Kentucky is underway in Leslie, Knott, Letcher and Perry counties. The pilot program is aimed at improving substandard dwellings owned by elderly poor. With a federal Health, Education and Welfare grant, Kentucky Economic Security Department supplies repair materials for the project—a joint undertaking of DES, Eastern Kentucky Housing Development Corp., and several local and federal agencies.

A simple wood ramp makes life much easier for Roy and Anna Ward. The construction crew built the ramp and railing while repairing the Wards' house.

Mountain tradition is still followed in the home of Lizzie and Elithu Gross. A down-home style dinner is served crew chief, Huey Morgan (back left), John Rimmer (back right), and all the crew on the last day of work on the Little Stennet, Leslie County home.

'SEED OF CIVIL DISORDER' SEEN IN 'RALLY' BY POOR

Frankfort—"Communicate with your people—they need you," was Economic Security Commissioner Merritt Deitz's message to members of the Kentucky Welfare Association attending a two-district meeting at Cumberland Falls State Park.

Addressing 135 members representing 12 Eastern Kentucky counties, Deitz pointed to militancy, population explosion and inflation as major changes affecting current welfare programs.

Relating these changes to the poor people's rally in Frankfort, Deitz remarked:

"Faced with a rapid increase in the welfare population and an inflationary national economy, these poor people came to Frankfort to present their grievances."

He indicated this "militant approach to problem solving" is being directed more and more toward welfare programs.

"Though the rally was very orderly, nevertheless there was in the confrontation the smallest seed of civil disorder," Deitz said.

"These people are trying to tell us it is time to turn from our concern over technological advances to a concern for advancing the human condition."

"We in the social welfare field have to confront the problems squarely and soon. The poor are convinced we are NOT working for their benefits—we must prove to them we ARE by hearing their grievances, working to alleviate them, and informing the people of our progress and our problems."

Of major concern to those at the rally was the federal freeze limiting money for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program (AFDC).

That total population increase directly affects the increase in the welfare population is most evident in the rising number of AFDC recipients on Kentucky's and the nation's welfare rolls," Deitz stated.

The federal government decided it would no longer support illegitimate children, and it put the full burden of support on the states. Lack of funds made such total state support impossible," Deitz stated.

"Gov. Nunn joined with the 49 other governors to petition for an appeal of the freeze. The bill lifting the freeze passed the day before the rally, and the people were told federal funds are well on their way to flowing again."

Nature Trails By RUFUS M. REED

Often, when passing through summer woods at night, one will see strange, eerie lights glowing on the ground. These lights usually have a greenish-blue glow, sometimes wan white, or plain green. They are called "fox-fire" by woodsmen and oldtimers, yet not many persons know what makes these lights. In fact they are still a mystery even to the learned scientists. They are the same kind of lights produced by glow-worms and fireflies. Glow-worms are often seen shining in grass and weeds at night, but the glow seen in the woods at night is not made by these. These lights are made by certain kinds of fungi and mushrooms.

The pioneers, while blazing out wilderness trails, made good use of fox-fire. They gathered pieces of the doty wood with the glow and fastened them to trees along the trails; so they never got lost when traveling through night woods. The light produced by fireflies, mushrooms and fungi is called "cold light" by the scientists; that is, it is light produced without heat or friction. Just how certain kinds of mushrooms can produce such a light is still one of the unsolved mysteries of nature. This is not known at the present time and surely merits more careful study.

The light is sometimes produced by the "root-strands" or rhizomorphs of mushrooms, which spread through the ground in search of rotted wood to feed on. The stringy strands penetrate the doty wood to feed on it and reduce it back to soil. While living in the wood, the strands produce a glow that makes the doty wood flame like a candle.

One of the most famous of the light-producing mushrooms is called the "Honey Mushroom," or "Honey Tuft." Some also call it "The Shoestring Mushroom," because of its system of long strands, which it sends out in all directions. These penetrate the doty wood or extend under the bark of oak or other stumps. When new, the strands begin to glow as soon as dark comes.

Botanists call this mushroom, "Armillaria Mellea," and claim it is one of the best edible species. It has a honey-yellow cap from two to five inches broad. While it has a bitter taste when picked, this disappears on cooking.

The Honey Tuft Mushroom is very aggressive and attacks the roots of living trees; it saps their vigor and causes the branches to die. Sometimes it kills the tree. Only the roots of this mushroom make the light at night.

But there is a mushroom called the Jack-o'-Lantern, which grows in dense clusters at the base of oak or other stumps. Its gills glow in the dark like a lighted lantern, hence the name. It is one of the most beautiful of all mushrooms but is very poisonous. It is a brilliant reddish-orange, or sometimes golden yellow, and it may be seen at a great distance in the woods, even in daytime. At night it lights up the woods like many candles; if one should happen to eat this mushroom by mistake it causes severe vomiting.

The most eerie light of night woods is that produced by the fungus called "Dead Man's Fingers." These are small, solid-black "fingers" reaching up out of the ground like the fingers of a corpse. They are four or five inches long and are crooked like bent forefingers. They also glow in the dark with a soft, eerie light, like the subdued light of a funeral parlor. The mystery of this light is still just that—a mystery. "Dead Man's Fingers" are known to botanists as Xylaria, meaning "loving wood." While the outside of the fingers is black, the inside has the pale color of a corpse. The Dead Man's Fingers grow from buried wood on which they feed.

As a boy, I sometimes collected pieces of doty wood that glowed and pulled it apart, trying to find out what made it shine. Father told me it was "fox-fire," and was made to furnish light for foxes to travel through dark woods. But I knew that foxes didn't need such a light, as their eyes also shine in the dark to give them light. So the mystery of fox-fire eluded me then and it is still a deep mystery to me. A better knowledge of this light might help to unlock one of nature's rarest secrets.

KY. CHAMBER MEMBERS FAVOR BIENNIAL MEET OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY

A poll of Kentucky Chamber of Commerce members indicates that a majority is against the Kentucky Legislature meeting each year rather than every two years as is traditional.

The poll, released recently, shows that 64 per cent of those responding are opposed to annual sessions and that 35 per cent indicated they would like to see annual sessions. One per cent indicated in the poll that they are neutral.

The question will be put to the voters of Kentucky in November in the form of a referendum ballot to amend the Kentucky Constitution.

The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce board of directors had directed in April that the membership be polled on the question. After the results of the poll were announced to the board, the directors directed that the matter be turned over to the chamber's legislative committee for further study and a report be made at the August 19 board meeting in Louisville.

The Kentucky Chamber membership is comprised of business leaders and companies from throughout the state.

This is no accident

But you're our witness, anyway—to a piece-ful demonstration of how quickly and easily Maverick can be taken apart and put together. We designed Maverick that way for a good reason. When you're paying by the hour for service or repairs, speed is important. And at times like this, nothing can beat a simple machine.

Most new cars are more and more complicated. And more expensive to care for. Maverick's so simple to service, you can do it yourself—if you really mean it about being independent.

You won't feel like an orphan either. Our Owner's Manual shows you how to handle all the routine service. You can tune and time your engine, change plugs and points, adjust the idle, the headlamps, the handbrakes, do nearly 40 different service operations.

And if you crease a fender or crack a grille, you can almost smile. Maverick's front fenders bolt on and grilles are replaceable in minutes. And where time means money, fast means savings.

Stop in once every 36,000 miles for a lube job. Oil changes are 6,000 miles apart. (The leading import suggests oil changes twice as often and lube jobs every 6,000 miles.)

While still being simple, Maverick is big enough to take the whole family—without streaming luggage from the roof. It's small enough to park easily, and go light on gas. A 105-hp Six gives you real passing power. (You get 52 more horsepower than the leading import offers.) And the wider stance gives you a smoother ride, better handling and roadability.

It's no accident that Maverick is the hottest selling new car to come along in five years. We designed it that way. See it at your Ford Dealer's.

WOULD RETAIN 'OLD SWIMMIN' HOLE'

Editor, The Times:

In a recent report in the Floyd County Times, it was brought out that the Jenny Wiley Park is planning on expanding existing facilities to meet tourist demands. Tourism has been expanding rapidly in this area and I feel that this is in part due to efforts of the State Park System in providing excellent recreational facilities at the Jenny Wiley State Park. One very recent improvement was the irrigation project for the golf course. Newly proposed expansion at the park are tennis courts, volleyball courts, horseshoe pits, twelve new dwellings, and one of an unknown nature simply listed as "additional improvements."

There exists a group who are silently hoping that the "additional improvements" clause will be a reconsideration of the park's intention of closing the Stratton Branch swimming area. Reason for closing? Water pollution caused by the unsanitary conditions that exist at the camping area located immediately above the swimming area. Organisms, present in the human colon, is the culprit that is being dumped into the Stratton Branch by indiscriminate campers, thus introducing these deadly pollutants into the lake which is less than one hundred yards away. Oddly enough, there is a permanent toilet facility within the camping area but some tourists continue to use portable toilet facilities and empty these containers of human elimination, without regard to swimmers, into the Stratton Branch. This act inevitably results in sending the deadly coli count soaring in the swimming area. This is a situation that is, in my opinion, inexcusable on the part of the camper tourists.

Admission to a new swimming pool at Stratton Branch is fifty cents. This facility was originally intended to provide safe swimming, but in reality, only solved part of the total problem. Prior to construction of the pool, brochures pictured a lovely, white sand beach and blue, inviting water that was captioned as exceptional swimming facilities. After the pool was completed, adjectives used in describing the "old" swimming and beach area were not quite as complimentary. The area is now known as the old swimming "hole" and the Health Department ceased a coli observation and chemical treatment of the water. According to an employee of the Floyd County Health Department, when the area is redesignated as a public swimming area, chlorination of same will be renewed and a daily coli count would again be in effect. Low income families and those who prefer the lake water over regular swimming pool water are now denied the privilege of swimming in reasonably clean water.

A survey conducted by the University of Kentucky in behalf of the Community Action Program (CAP), published in 1965, found that Floyd and Johnson counties combined had a total of 16,756 dwellings, of which 11,252, or 67 percent, were considered substandard. Using these figures as a rough barometer to obtain some idea as to the area's economic condition, this would tend to indicate that the fifty cent charge for admission to the pool could be financially difficult for some of this area's families. The figures were made available by Mr. Gene Ball, County Agent of Floyd County.

We should not, in the interest of tourists only, forsake our own people of Floyd and Johnson by restricting their participation through discriminatory acts and proposed legislation such as seeking a ruling by the Army Corps of Engineers that would actually result in arrest and prosecution of swimming violators. Would not a simpler solution be to put back the white sand on the Stratton Branch beach area and install additional septic tank type toilets in strategic locations in the camping area and once more have a non-chemically clean swimming area for all those who prefer lake swimming to pool swimming? We should see to it that the State Park slogan, "The Nation's Finest Park System," applies to all. Let's consider the tourists' demands but not surrender all for the sake of catering to a select group only. Before considering the proposed expansion to meet tourist demands, perhaps we should consider maintaining that which already exists, namely, the "Old Swimmin' Hole."

JACK CALDWELL

'CHEAPER TO FIGHT POVERTY'

Editor, The Times:

It isn't worth much to deplore the loss of American boys in Vietnam while at the same time we demand that more be sent there to be slaughtered. We are told that these boys are fighting and dying for a good cause, that they are saving this country from communism. But no one has explained why Communists in a little nation like Vietnam are more dangerous to America than the millions in Russia.

Our whole interference in Southeast Asia has been wrong since the beginning by President Eisenhower in 1956. If he had permitted the Vietnamese in South Vietnam to carry out the elections as provided in the Geneva Accords there would have been little trouble in that war-torn country. We would not have lost 35,000 boys killed, 150,000 blinded and crippled together with the 100 billions of dollars it has already cost us, with the end not yet in sight.

Where and when did a president of the U. S. get the authority to withhold free elections in countries on the other side of the world? The president said the reason he did this was that the south Vietnamese would vote 80 per cent to unite with the north of Vietnam. But we were a party in the Geneva Agreements that plainly state that free elections must be held in south Vietnam in 1956.

It's true that President Eisenhower never sent a great army to Vietnam. But he paved the way for weak men in Washington to do so, and the whole matter is so far removed from the past history and policy of the United States, it is impossible to see any reason in it.

Nobody can deny that we face a danger from world Communism. But a policy of fighting ground wars in Asia is the most foolish thing our leaders have ever decided to do. Why, Red China alone can give the rest of the world a hard fight on her own grounds. What, then, should we do? The healthiest thing for us is to get rid of our hysteria and fear of our own people. Quit looking under your bed or behind every bush in your yard for a witch or a Communist. There is none there. Our only danger is from Asia and Eastern Europe, where more than two-thirds of the manpower of the world lives, and they are either Communists or on the brink of becoming Communists.

It is poverty-stricken nations that turn to Communism. Yes, we have poverty but none like the poverty in other parts of the world. In Russia, where world Communism started just a half century ago, 90 per cent of the people were unable to read and write. They lived in huts fit only for pigs and their furniture was what they cobbled up with their own hands. Even their cook-stoves were made from fire clay and were used at night to put a straw tick on for a bed. Conditions nearly this bad were in Poland and other European countries and in Cuba. And they are every bit as bad in most of the South American countries.

Ask any person who has been there and observed the great landed estates, especially in Brazil, where young women toil in clothes so ragged that they have to hide in the bushes to hide their nakedness when strangers come near. After studying these conditions many years I've come to the conclusion that it is cheaper and more honorable to fight to win over poverty than it is to fight to win over Communism on a hundred foreign fronts. The time may have arrived when, in order to survive, men must use their brains instead of bullets.

Twenty millions of people in the world have never worn clothes. More than that number scratch worms from the earth for food. What will we answer when asked, like Cain: "Where is your brother?"

'Whatsoever Things'

By DONALD E. WILDMON

He grew up down in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. When he was 12 years old he was thin and frail and had no coordination. He was slow and weak. He said that when sides were chosen for any game, he was the last one picked. As a freshman in high school he went out for football and made third-string tackle. He managed to get in a game once. The other team ran over him, en route to a 65-yard touchdown. That ended his football career. He tried baseball and managed to get to play second base in one game. The batter hit a ball and it went right through his legs. That ended his baseball career. Then he turned to basketball. This young man knew that if he was ever to excel in any sport it had to be basketball.

His sophomore year, he went out for basketball. He tried—tried hard. He gave it everything, all he had. Then came the day when the coach posted the names of those who had made the squad on the bulletin board. His world fell from beneath him when his name wasn't on that list. He was a failure.

He said that for a while he just moped around the house. After a short time he started going to church. He sang in the choir, served as an altar boy, and took the collection at Sunday services. His minister, knowing something of his disappointment, took some interest in him. He said his pastor was very understanding. His minister told him about the Galleian, and how he would help him when he was discouraged and would help him if he stumbled. Those words didn't mean much to that 14-year-old, but he said that years later he used the same words to help boys overcome disappointment.

Then the minister had an idea. Why not start a church team? The youngster jumped at that idea. They found enough boys who had not made the high school squad to form a three-team church league. For the first time this young man was a member of a team, and, as he said, "important."

He started practicing. He took a wire coat hanger and put it over the garage door at home and shot tennis balls at it. His father, seeing his determination, bought him a regulation basketball and backboard. He developed a method of practicing that lasted for years. From 3:30 till 5:30 he would practice. Then he would eat and do his homework. At 7:30 he was shooting baskets again with the help of several lamps in the windowsill facing his back yard. He was on his way!

Isn't that the work of the

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore—Local Great Men

In my years of wandering around over Kentucky, I have formed a pretty good idea of what most neighborhoods regard as great men. And, I am glad to say, the average community where I have been entertained as a guest has nearly always had high opinions of worthy people, whether they were rich or poor, prominent or average, old or young.

Maybe I as a college professor was expected to want to see the people whom I would regard as worthy; maybe my hosts knew the sort of people I most appreciated and also the very few kinds that I am not very enthusiastic about. Anyway, I was often asked whether I knew certain ones of their great local citizens. In most instances I had heard of their great ones; once in a great while, when I had strayed pretty far away from my home in south-central Kentucky, I actually did not know the name of anyone in the town or city where I was to speak, except one or more of the teachers. Even in such places I would be told, within minutes of my arrival, of some local citizen who had done a lot for his community; he had grown up from near-poverty, let us say, had prospered, and had given some worth-while building or endowment or recognition of solid worth.

As we were walking in procession down the aisle of a high school auditorium, the principal asked whether I knew the history of that very building. I could hardly wait until the program was over to be told the story of a great local man: he had been left an orphan at an early age, the son of an emigrant with a foreign name and language. An elderly couple who had some money and standing in the community took the boy into their own home and saw him through high school and college. That boy soon became a great business man in a big city, but he never forgot his benefactors and the town that took him to its bosom; in memory of the man and his wife the hall was donated to the city and, in Biblical words, it stands "to this day," a magnificent monument to a worthy man who in turn was the beneficiary of worthy people.

CHARLES CLARK, Supt.
Floyd County Schools

Often I have spoken in a small county-seat town that has honored the memory of one of its long-time teachers by naming a school building for her and erecting an appropriate marker in front of it. This dedicated teacher did not become wealthy, in worldly goods; she remained for a half century a primary teacher, ultimately teaching three generations in that small town. When one of her most devoted admirers also became a lifelong teacher, she told me that the greatest compliment she ever got was when her neighbors said, in the early days of her teaching, that she was a regular Miss Mary, let us call the great local teacher.

Naturally I, as an educator, would see more of this kind of recognition of great local citizens, but I have also found, more times than I can recall, examples of others who did great things in their way, large or small, for the places they loved and lived in; efforts to beautify a street, to clean up some unsightly place, to aid youngsters in having a place to play, in giving uncounted hours of free service as hospital workers, in "little unremembered acts of kindness and of love." Such people expect no reward for their work; often they hardly seem to have been surprised that anybody even knew about it. A good deal of honest praise is given to missionaries who give whole lives to some needy foreign area, braving dangers from hostile people and even more hostile climates.

All honor to such! Without going two blocks from my front door I could find several people who have stayed right here and have made every day of long lives a gift of love to people less happy than they are, or with few of the actual necessities of life, or with few trustworthy friends. And some of these people have died at advanced ages without having ever had even local recognition. Fortunately, some of them have had honors in their lifetimes and some have had posthumous honors, but we ordinary people who have benefited from their dedicated lives have sometimes failed to show our proper appreciation for our own worthy citizens, rich in things that no money can buy, that no tablet can record.

FLOYD SERGEANT MAKES TRIP HOME FROM VIETNAM BY BUS, JET-EVEN ABOARD A CAMEL

By S/SGT. WALT TROTT
FRANKFURT — One V Corps Support Command soldier selected a rather unique combination of travel to return to his family after a stint in Vietnam.

Sgt. First Class Ernie DeLong, Security, Plans and Operations NCO, disclosed recently that his return transportation included jets, buses and — would you believe, — a camel!

Sgt. DeLong, a former resident of Banner, Ky., upon completion of his Vietnam duty with the 25th Division, decided it was the right time to see the Middle East.

His journey began in Saigon and the first stop was Bangkok, Thailand, where he lingered five days before jetting to New Delhi, India. In another three days he was off for Karachi, Pakistan.

Next came the highlight of DeLong's trip and the beginning of a shaggy camel story. Upon his arrival in Saudi Arabia, the veteran soldier joined a camel caravan to cross into Iraq.

"A bus actually drove our group from Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, to a small suburban village straight out of the Arabian Nights," DeLong recalled.

There the camels and caravan leader were waiting. He added, "I was the only English-speaking member of the band. It took a combination of feet and hands to get my point across."

During the trek, the tourist-type camel train camped nightly at predetermined sites or oases where they slept in tents. The Floyd county native spent an entire week jockeying his steed across the desert before the expedition arrived at the outskirts of Baghdad, Iraq, nearly 400 miles away.

He revealed that camels move at a very slow but steady pace. At the end of the first day's journey, DeLong noted he could

ACCIDENT SURVEY

A survey of accidents to University of Kentucky employees in 1968 showed the basic cause to be 83 per cent due to human frailties and 17 per cent were caused by unsafe conditions.

Insurance Rate Boost On Autos Is Approved

Frankfort — In a studied move to preserve the insurance market in Kentucky for automobile owners, Insurance Commissioner Robert Preston has announced approval of an average 22.9 per cent increase in premium for insurance dealing with the repair of damaged automobiles.

The Insurance Rating Board, with 188 companies writing 45 per cent of automobile physical damage insurance in Kentucky, had indicated a need for an average increase of 29.5 per cent.

Commissioner Preston declined to approve a request for an average increase of 8.3 per cent in liability insurance premiums.

"The garage costs for repairs have gone beyond the point of necessary income for those companies protecting Kentuckians from loss and an adjustment is not only necessary, it is mandatory if this coverage is to be continued here," Preston said.

"I do not like to pay more for the insurance on my car, but I would prefer this to no insurance, and that is exactly the prospect without a premium realistic to the growing costs to the companies."

Preston said the increase in premium leaves Kentucky 33rd in the nation in the dollar charge for such insurance.

The increase in premium would amount to $2,951.810 statewide. The liability increase refused would have been approximately $1,000,000.

The average Kentuckians will now pay $135.92 for $10 and $20 thousand liability, actual value comprehensive, and $100 deductible collision insurance.

Rates in adjoining states for like insurance are: Missouri, $182.76; Illinois, $181.77; Ohio, $156.33; West Virginia, $151.00; Indiana, $148.43; Arkansas, $146.89; Tennessee, $133.31, and Virginia, $110.79.

The primary agent causing the most injuries in 1968 to University of Kentucky employees was "sharp pointed objects," mostly needle punctures by employees in the UK Medical Center.
