Few Here Attend Rally for Peace

Quiet Talks At College Mark Day

Few Outside College Attend Program; Most Students Remain Away

Approximately fifty members of Prestonsburg Community College's faculty and student body joined Wednesday in the nationwide Moratorium on the Vietnam War.

Meeting in a classroom at the college at 11:30 a.m., faculty and students presented informative talks in the interest of peace.

The program was opened by Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of PCC.

The Rev. William Poole discussed "The Moral Aspects of the War in Vietnam," in which he wondered at a colored soldier's fighting for a freedom in Southeast Asia that he did not have in Southeast Georgia. Commonweal magazine was cited as saying that for every soldier killed in Vietnam, eight civilians died.

John Hanson, physics teacher, spoke on the "Philosophical Aspects of War." Jim Funkhauser, instructor in history, on "A History of Vietnam;" Jessica Pollard, art teacher, "Vietnamese Cultural History." Miss Pollard pointed out that, although it was incidental, compared to the lives lost, essentially all of Vietnam's contemporary art was destroyed in the bombing of Hue, site of that country's museum of art. Anti-war folk songs were sung by Rich Kerby, and David Leonard, student-editor of the college's Big Sandy Review, read anti-war poetry by e. e. cummings and William Blake, among others. Mr. Leonard noted the total lack of pro-war poetry published.

The program was educational in nature and encouraged discussion. The goal of the Moratorium program is peace, and the majority (See Story No. 2, Page 8)

Council To Study Tax Set-Up Here

Prestonsburg's City Council will concentrate its attention at its meeting tonight (Thursday) on the tax structure here and on establishing a more systematic method of tax-collecting.

Mayor George P. Archer said the tax program here has been under study by University of Kentucky specialists in business administration and government and that their recommendations will be given consideration.

Tonight's session of the Council will continue the look into the tax situation which was begun at the last previous meeting.

Asked if a payroll tax is in the making here, Dr. Archer indicated a decision has not been reached. He did say, however, something must be done in the face of increased demands for service from the public, increasing living costs which create higher pay demands and the general raise in expenses.

AREA SCHOOL PARLEY SET

Superintendents, Board Members of 7 Counties To Meet at May Lodge

School board members and superintendents from seven area school systems will gather at Jenny Wiley State Park next Wednesday for the annual meeting of the Eastern Kentucky Region (South) of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA).

Eastern Kentucky Region chairman, Mrs. Rebecca Lewis, who is chairman of the Paintsville Board of Education, will preside at the dinner meeting, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the park's lodge. William D. Salyer, also of the Paintsville school board, is the vice chairman of the region, and Paintsville Supt. Oran C. Teater is regional secretary.

KSBA President F. C. Bryan, an attorney and a member of the Mt. Sterling Board of Education, will speak on education legislation, professional negotiation, student conduct, and the local school property tax.

Also on the program will be a review of the Association's legislative program by KSBA Executive Director Maurice D. Bement, and the election of regional officers for 1970.

KSBA is a statewide organization of public boards of education, founded in 1936 to work with and through local school boards to improve educational programs offered to Kentucky's schoolchildren. Its state offices are in Lexington.

Attending the regional meeting will be board members and administrators from the school districts of Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin, and Pike counties, and the independent school districts of Paintsville and Pikeville.

ROAD PACTS YEAR AWAY

Akers Told All US 23, P'Burg to Pikeville To Be Let in 1970

State Representative Everett Akers, of Martin, said here Wednesday that he was told last week by a Department of Highways official that all of US 23 from Prestonsburg to Pikeville will be let to contract by November, 1970.

He added that he was told the route will be let to contract at possibly two lettings, in July and November of next year.

Akers was told the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible, with rights-of-way acquisition the next move. There has been no acquisition of right-of-way undertaken in this county, to date, although a section of US 23 from Pikeville to Ferguson Creek is under construction.

The Martin representative also said he had called on the Legislative Research Commission to (See Story No. 3, Page 8)

PULPIT VETERAN 58 YEARS, NOTED CLANSMAN'S FRIEND, HENRY PARSONS DIES AT 92

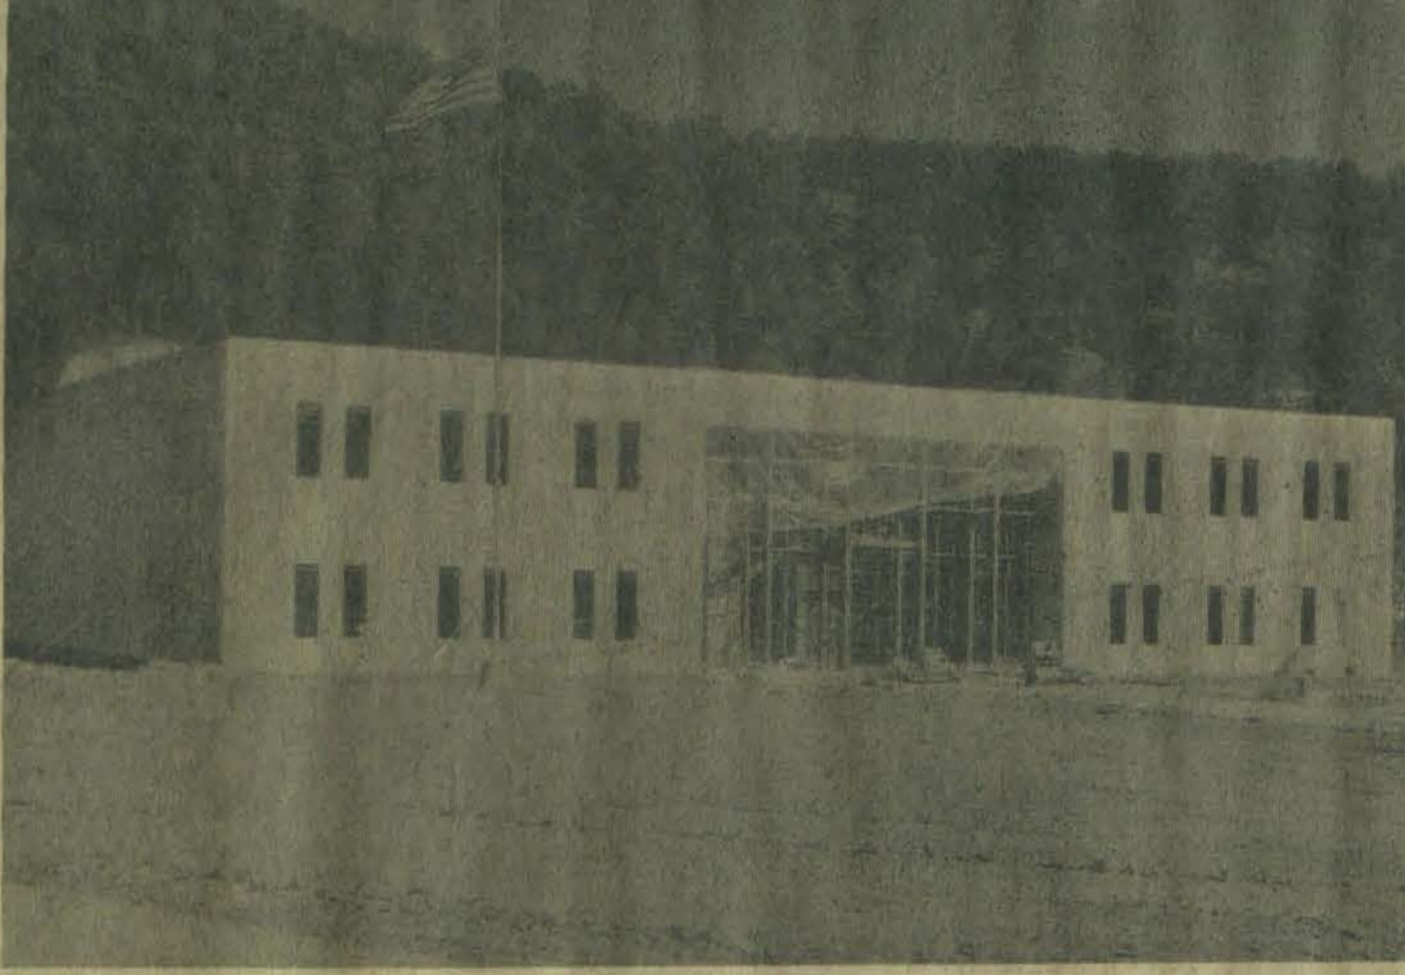

Henry Clay Parsons, the Betsy Layne man who for 58 of his 92 years was a minister of the Church of Christ in this and other Eastern Kentucky counties, died Saturday at the Paintsville Hospital, less than two months after the passing of his wife.

Unable to read but possessed of a remarkable memory which dimmed only a few days before his death, he committed to memory most of the Bible by listening to its reading by others. He pastored churches in this section of Kentucky and border counties of West Virginia, and during his ministry officiated at hundreds of marriages and funerals.

In his boyhood Mr. Parsons worked with "Devil Anse" Hatfield, noted clan-leader, and his recollections of the Hatfield-McCoy feud were vivid and interesting. He was interviewed during the past summer by the motion picture company which produced "Honey in the Rock" for a part in a film on the famous mountain feud which it had scheduled for release next year.

Mr. Parsons' ability to quote the King James version of the Bible was widely known. A relative who often read to him said he never failed to correct a mistake made in the reading.

Born Feb. 13, 1877 at Honaker, he was a son of Adolphus and Josephine Hall Parsons. Surviving are five sons and two daughters, John L. Parsons, Precious, W. Va., William Parsons, Columbus, SHAPING UP. The Academic Building under construction on the Prestonsburg Community College is due for occupancy at the beginning of the second semester. The second campus building, the Student Center (not shown in picture) is also going up but will be completed later next year.

Chaffins Slaying Baffles Probers

The mystery surrounding the gun-slaying five months ago of James Chaffins on Arkansas Creek has so defied solution that when the Floyd circuit court grand jury convenes next month there may be little or no new evidence to be considered in the case.

The last grand jury session heard "witnesses" in the case, but next to nothing of trial value was produced. One of those called to testify was from Indiana; others were from this and Knott counties.

Nobody has admitted seeing the night-time shooting of Chaffins, who had driven on the night of his death to this county from Louisville. None has named the person who apparently was a passenger in Chaffins' car when he left KY 80, near Martin, to drive up Arkansas Creek. The car, which was seen being driven away after the shooting, was found next day, near David. A suitcase containing items of wearing apparel was found on the hillside, not far from the auto.

State police laboratories have checked the suitcase and its contents. No fingerprints were found, and the clothing bore no telltale laundry marks. A partial fingerprint was found on the car.

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo and State Detective Chester D. Potter have collaborated in the lengthy and often exasperating search for the slayer's identity. Stumbo admits the situation isn't encouraging but he indicates they're not giving up on the job.

Discussing the coming court term, which will convene Nov. 10, Stumbo said the docket has picked up a bit as his illness cut down the number of trials at the last

Baptist Fall Revival To Begin Next Monday

The annual fall revival of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, which will begin Monday and continue through Sunday, Oct. 26, will be led by the pastor, the Rev. W. D. Jagers. Services will be at 7:15 p.m. daily.

Two special features will be part of the daily services and will precede the worship hour. These are a Christian ventriloquism act by the Rev. Dan Heintzleman with his puppet, "Joey," and Mrs. Frankie S. Best's chalk presentations.

The revival choir will be directed by Gus Kalos, Nursery facilities will be provided, and everything is being done to make all who attend feel welcome.

School Aid Loss Nulls Tax Gains

The Floyd County Library Board is in the position of the man who couldn't win for losing.

The tax levy this year is such that its tax income will be $2,000 more than last year, but it has lost the financial support of the Floyd County Board of Education which paid the salary of approximately $4,000 a year for a bookmobile driver-librarian.

As a consequence, only one bookmobile is now in operation. Loss of Board of Education financial help resulted from two causes, it was said: 1. The consolidation of schools until the library service to schools was limited; 2. The budget deficit under which the board labored and which it sought to correct.

With one bookmobile operating, the Martin schools are still served by the library. The library board is confident that the lone bookmobile will be able to render the usual service once a month, to all adult book distribution stations in the county.

Roland Jones, former driver-librarian, whose salary was formerly paid by the board of education, is now librarian at the Stumbo elementary school. The library board has not yet found the financial resources necessary to return him to his old job of driver-librarian.

On the brighter side is the fact that a special fund of approximately $7,000 was made available

Two Severely Hurt In Two-Car Collision Saturday Near Emma

Two persons were severely injured, late Saturday afternoon, in the collision of their autos on a curve near Emma, and both cars were reduced to wreckage.

Mrs. Frank DeRossett, Jr., of Prestonsburg, suffered a broken kneecap and contusions, and later underwent surgery at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington. C. L. Williams, also of Prestonsburg, driver of the second car, is in the Prestonsburg General Hospital, suffering from a pelvis fracture.

Mrs. DeRossett was driving south (upriver) when the collision with the oncoming Williams auto occurred.

RAIDERS NAB EX-JANITOR

Former Court Employee Taken on Ram Charge; Ohio Escapee Jailed

German Salisbury, a familiar figure at the courthouse here where until recently he was janitor, was arrested Saturday after a sheriff's raiding party had found six half-pints of whiskey on his premises at the scene of the 1958 school bus wreck, near Knotley Hollow.

The liquor cache was found in a washing machine by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Deputies Claude Flannery, Bill Hall and Tom James. Salisbury was charged with possession.

Terry Layne was arrested last Thursday, a day after his arrival in this county from Ohio, where he was wanted for escaping custody and cutting and wounding with intent to kill. He was arrested by State Troopers Michael Angel and B. Rose and was later released to Ohio authorities.

Also booked at the county jail within the week were:

William Akers, charged with lending his operator's license to another, arrested by Troopers Angel and Rose; Rex Frasure, reckless driving and failing to yield right-of-way, by Troopers Angel and Rose; James Hall and Fred Hall, possessing an opossum out of season, arrested by Conservation Officer Don Mead; Ellis Tackett, Jr., drunk driving, by State Troopers Allen and Flora.

Doctors See Rights Suit Possibility

New McDowell Clinic Tells KMA Committee About Situation There

The six physicians who constitute the new Regional Medical Clinic at the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital appealed last week to the judiciary committee of the Kentucky Medical Association to consider the impasse reached in their efforts to regain offices in the clinic area at the hospital.

And, it was indicated last week, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 — federal legislation which is popularly regarded as a weapon of racial and underprivileged groups — may be invoked in a U. S. court suit by the doctors, if necessary. Such an action, if taken, would allege discrimination.

The situation at McDowell had its inception in the withdrawal from the Daniel Boone Clinic of six of the seven physicians then composing the Daniel Boone group there to form an independent group known as the Regional Medical Clinic. Among these was Dr. Mary A. Hall, who later was prohibited under terms of her contract with Willard & Woolsey, of Harlan, operators of Daniel Boone clinics at McDowell and three other Appalachian regional hospitals, from practicing for a year in a radius of 50 miles of McDowell. That part of the contention apparently has been settled.

But Dr. R. H. Berardi, chief of staff at the hospital, and other members of the new clinic group claim in their statement to KMA's judiciary committee that their eviction from the clinic area was "without any due concern or consideration for the continuing medical care that our patients have a right to."

They contend that, although the Daniel Boone Clinic during their connection with it contributed 38% of the income of the entire Daniel Boone chain of clinics, and treated more miners than any of the other three operated by the Harlan firm, their requests for improvements at the McDowell clinics produced no results.

In their communication with the KMA committee the Regional Medical Clinic group pointed out (See Story No. 5, Page 8)

Three Agencies Join In Homemaker Program

Dr. Russell L. Hall, director of the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Program, congratulates Mrs. Gertrude Stumbo, McDowell mother of 10, on her completion of training as a homemaker.

The homemaker service being established in Floyd county will be a cooperative effort between three existing agencies. The Floyd County Comprehensive Health Service Program, the Kentucky State Health Department's special Maternity and Infant Care Program, and the Kentucky Child Welfare Department.

It has been decided by the agencies involved that the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Services Program will be the focal point for the services. If either agency needs the services of a homemaker, it will contact the central agency to place a homemaker in the home needing such service.

Union Strike Vote Set Saturday Night

A strike which would paralyze widespread operations of the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company in an eight-county area of Eastern Kentucky appeared inevitable after negotiations between representatives of the workers' union and the company had ended without agreement at 2:30 this (Thursday) morning.

Wednesday midnight had been set as the deadline for an agreement to be reached, but the time was extended till Saturday night when the union membership will take a strike vote at Allen. If agreement is not reached through further negotiations, meanwhile, the strike will begin Sunday or Monday, depending upon approval of the International Union, Atomic, Oil & Chemical Workers.

Approximately 300 workers will be idled, if the strike is called, in Floyd, Pike, Knott, Letcher, Johnson, Lawrence and Martin counties.

The contract which ended this week was for three years. The new contract sought would be for two years. A second gas company, United Fuel, and its workers will later begin negotiations toward a new contract to supplant the present pact, which ends Dec. 29.

O., Demere Parsons, Pikeville, Carl Parsons, Matheny, W. Va., Frank Parsons, of Betsy Layne, Mrs. Oma Asbury, St. Albans, W. Va., and Mrs. Inez Taylor, of Betsy Layne. He also leaves one brother, Sanford Parsons, of Honaker, 38 grandchildren, 88 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted at 1 p.m. Monday from the Betsy Layne high school auditorium, with Roy Hall, Wayne Darron and Bob McKinney the officiating ministers. Burial was made in the Bush cemetery at Harold under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Gold-Mining Scheduled To Begin in Lawrence

The Doubting Thomases who have given something less than full credence to stories published in The Times telling of gold, silver and lead deposits in Lawrence, Elliott and Rowan counties may soon be convinced.

Preparations are under way now to begin mining of gold in Lawrence county. The Times learned last week from an authoritative source. The operation will be owned by Kentucky and Ohio residents.

The group has under lease a huge acreage in the three counties. A small extraction plant has been in operation, across the Big Sandy in West Virginia, and plans for a large plant costing perhaps $5 million have been talked since the ore has been assayed as what one source describes as "the richest mineral seen on this continent."

Geologists have long known that gold and silver exist in Eastern Kentucky rock formations but they have doubted that it can be profitably mined.

The Kentucky-Ohio combine is certain mining of both gold and silver can and will be done in Lawrence county at a profit.

In memory of Laura A. Hayes who passed away Dec. 5, 1968:

Dear Mother,
How we miss you! I'm sure I speak for all her children and grandchildren.
Our wonderful mother often sang "This world is not my home, my treasures are laid up beyond the blue."
We miss your wonderful prayers and mission work.
She was a hundred dollar worker for 13 years before her passing. Many years have come and gone since I beheld my mother's face; life has been so sad and lone, for there is none to take her place. She slipped away so easy and unexpectedly to meet her reward. We hope to meet her soon where tears will all be wiped away.

Belfry Downs Cats For Regional Title

The Prestonsburg Blackcats suffered their second loss of the season Friday night as Belfry defeated the Cats, 42-14. The victory clinched another Region 4, Class AA championship for Coach Al Viperman's Pirates.

The Cats lead at halftime by a score of 14-12. In fact, the Cats started out as if they were going to win in ease. They picked up their first touchdown on 4-yard run by Quarterback Mark Miller and annexed the two extra points on a pass from Miller to Wayne Brown. At the end of the first quarter, Prestonsburg led, 8-0, and the situation appeared to be well in hand. Prestonsburg scored again in the second quarter on a run by John Paul Leslie. Meanwhile, the visitors also scored twice but failed to convert on either occasion, leaving the Cats ahead at halftime, 14-12.

that the clinic area is now unoccupied, except by one doctor who is there only three days a week, while they occupy "temporary" quarters in scattered parts of the hospital building. They also claim they care for at least 95% of the ambulatory patients and 98% of the in-patients at the hospital. "We strongly feel," the doctors told KMA's committee, "that we have as much right to lease the necessary clinic space for the proper function of our group as the Daniel Boone Clinic had and still has. We see no justification in leasing a clinic building to a group which, in effect, is not using the space. We strongly feel that our rights as physicians, as the officiating staff of the hospital and as interested leaders, is being violated."

T. P. Hopkins, president of the ARH chain, wrote Dr. Bernardi, late last month, that ARH was willing to make offices available in the clinic to all who desire to rent ARH space and services, but his offer included provisions that ARH would have active control of the entire clinic space and manage it "to the best interest of the patient" and that Raymond Rowlette would be the organizing clinic manager. Mr. Hopkins also pointed out that ARH would provide all services to the clinic area, including appointments, nursing services, record-keeping, management of personnel and space allocation.

This offer was rejected by the Regional Clinic group. "We most emphatically disagree," they wrote Hopkins, "that your proposals would be in the best interest of patient-care... We have patiently awaited a sensible conclusion but have not received any type of consideration in regard to our desires. We do not intend to continue for any further unreasonable period of time in this present situation."

The Regional Medical Clinic added: "It is to be understood that we do not intend to have McDowell under any unforeseen pressures or future eventualities. We are here to stay."

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. One of the world's most celebrated boys' choirs, these Ninots Cantores de Monterey, under the direction of Maestro Amador Cortes, will perform a three-section program comprised of classical selections, and operatic presentations, and a potpourri of spirituals and folk tunes sung in Spanish English.

ty of qualms and misgivings I set myself to indite the following paragraph. For the first time in the memory of living man not a forest fire has been visible from where I sit, this far into October. The weather has been extremely dry, and conditions have been just right for the annual destruction of woodland and all it holds, but not a wisp of smoke has been visible from Prestonsburg. There may have been a fire or so elsewhere in the county, but it hasn't been reported here.

Was this mere luck? I like to think it wasn't — rather, that it is the result of the hard work done by Forestry Department personnel, the cumulative result of years of teaching youngsters to protect nature's gift from man's foolishness, and perhaps a spreading consciousness among us all that it's time to stop playing the fool.

THERE'S ALWAYS ONE There's always the dissenter. One was rhapsodizing about the beauty of the foliage at this time of year and wondering why the death of the leaves comes in such beauty while humans, even trees, die in ugliness. The old grouch standing nearby then said his piece. "Just wait, and try rakin' them up off your yard, and see if they're so all-fired pretty!"

It's election year — what year isn't — and one Democrat remarked that there's a good crop of Democrats (those long-necked gourds, so-named), and a member of the "loyal opposition" countered with the observation that it appeared to him they'd withered, just a bit, on the vine.

learn for him what will be done by the Highway Department to implement his House Resolution No. 50 which was voted at the last session of the General Assembly calling for a four-lane highway, all the way from where the route enters Kentucky from Portsmouth, O. to Pikeville. He said he was told by LRC that the road will be built to these specifications, even to the redesigning and reconstruction of the two-lane Louisville-Pointsville sector which is only now nearing completion.

Akers said he proposed to register some emphatic protests against the educational system at the interim committee on education session in Frankfort later this week. A part of his protest, he said, will involve the Martin school situation and what he described as "disgraceful" provisions for the grade school children there.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN KENTUCKY

BY HARRY TOWLES

Ever wonder why it's said that 10 per cent of the fishermen catch 90 per cent of the fish? Well, reasoning behind this statement is that the smaller group of anglers have a much greater knowledge of the fish they seek than do the others. They're real die-in-the-wool fishermen who know when, where and how to catch fish.

As an example: Many fishermen are putting away their fishing tackle about now and won't take it out again until vacation time next year. Members of the "Upper Ten," however, are currently taking advantage of cool weather and falling water temperatures and are harvesting bass, large ones in limit numbers, with regularity from Kentucky's lakes. For the serious angler, fall is the ideal fishing period. The lakes, devoid of pleasure boaters and skiers for the most part, are quiet; the weather is comfortable and generally stable, and more important, the fish have perked up and are feeding for long periods of time on shallower waters. They're feeding more regularly, too, and may be more easily caught during these feeding cycles.

Each fisherman seems to have a favorite spot and a favorite lure (and is very mysterious about both) but there are several fall fishing facts that are just that — facts — and knowing about them will benefit any fisherman. Among them:

During fall, black bass will be found and will strike an artificial lure if it's presented to him in the right manner in the right place.

First of all, try fishing the fallen trees — places where trees have fallen into the water and furnish a resting site for bass as they lie in wait for a passing morsel. Try a surface lure and cast it into the notch of limbs, close to shore, and work the lure back slowly. Try various retrieving techniques — slow then fast — fast then slow. If this fails to get a rise, then go deeper.

When casting any of the deep running lures, those with large lips and built-in action, cast over the outside edges of limbs lying beneath the water. Make the lure dance up and down over the limbs in an erratic fashion.

Either of the above techniques can be deadly if the bass have moved into the tree tops. If they're not there, then head for submerged stump beds. Frequently these can be found by spotting a few stickups above the water. Again, start with the surface lure. Let it rest, then splash and gurgle about, imitating an injured minnow. If this doesn't work then try bottom-bouncing with deep running, built-in action lures. Let them run over and around the stumps, stirring up a little which sometimes excites the bass into a frenzy.

Another often successful method is to cast around points and drop-offs, as well as around the areas mentioned above, with doll-lies or artificial worms.

For most part, anglers agree that such lures are more effective when fished slowly. Allow them to creep and crawl around and over limbs, stumps, rocks or other bass hiding places.

Shallow running lures also have a place in fall fishing. One of the best ways to fool big bass is to make him think such a lure is a big, fat minnow that can't quite get away. Let the lure roll about as you retrieve it slowly, pumping it up and down or sideways. Once again, choose an area that is over cover — try shallow stump beds, overcropping of rock and drop-offs with deep dropoffs. The tougher the terrain the better.

If you want to be a really successful fisherman and join that 10 per cent who catch 90 per cent of the fish, then you have to work at it and you won't find a better time to start than right now!

Nunn Vows He'll Fight OEO Poverty Program

Governor Nunn revealed in Northern Kentucky last week that he is gathering forces to fight federal welfare programs as administered by the Office of Economic Opportunity which recently overrode his veto of the use of federal funds for the poverty program in Breathitt and nearby counties.

Disclosing he had talked with three other governors and two congressmen about OEO programs, Governor Nunn declared "what I want to do is separate the professional poor from the real poor."

He added, "We have people in the field doing research on the system now." He said he hoped his attitude "isn't misinterpreted as meaning I am against the poor and needy, for I am not."

"I am fed up," he was quoted as saying, "with the group of people who are spending taxpayer dollars to promote themselves. I intend to take this to Washington and to the people, and I don't intend to let up."

Combs-Cooper Race Talked

Governor Nunn is said to be talking up U. S. Senator John Sherman Cooper as the Republican candidate for Governor in 1971, and the report is waking up political echoes.

Heard among Kentucky Democrats is talk that if Cooper runs Federal Judge Bert T. Combs will oppose him for the governorship which he once held.

Writes Sy Ramsey of the prospects for a Combs-Cooper set-to: Gov. Louie B. Nunn is doing the talking so far for Cooper, declaring the 68-year-old senator would like to close his career with a gubernatorial term.

Combs' friends are beating the drum for him, but he is under a vow of silence as a judge of the U. S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati.

There are other clues. It is reported reliably that Combs went on a fishing trip out of the state some weeks ago with State Democratic Chairman J. R. Miller of Owensboro and Lewis Cox of Frankfort, an advisor to both Combs and former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt.

Only the principals know of the conversations. Perhaps they talked of fishing and sundry matters without getting around to politics. The irony is that a Combs-Cooper contest would entail a high risk for both men, who might be understandably reluctant to oppose each other.

Combs would be giving up a comfortable, prestigious post at a time when he is fairly close to retirement—which means at the full salary of $42,500 a year. A Kentucky governor makes $30,000 annually.

More important, if Combs ran it might be partly to defend his 1959-'63 term when Kentucky began emerging as an industrial state — with accompanying growing pains.

When Nunn first ran for Governor—in 1963 against Breathitt—Combs was his primary target. These days, Nunn rarely misses an opportunity to blame the Combs-Breathitt combine for some of the state's troubles.

While the Republican administration makes such political hay, Combs has to rest mutely because of his position and Breathitt is too engrossed in business in Tennessee to get involved on a continuing basis.

Combs' candidacy, of course, would resolve that problem. His nomination would be fairly certain, but his chances against Cooper, a champion vote-getter, most precarious.

A loss for Combs would be psychologically shattering, but the same holds true for Cooper, who always expressed a yearning to be governor.

Cooper lost his first statewide race towards that goal—the 1939 GOP primary—and a friend said "John wants to make up for that one."

But how would Cooper feel, if, after becoming a kind of statesman in Kentucky, he were rejected by voters at the twilight of his career?

Easier for both Combs and Cooper would be honorable retirement from their respective posts in due course.

But party pressures could dictate otherwise. The Republicans have not been in office long enough to groom strong young successors and the Democrats apparently never bothered to develop enough young leaders during the past decade.

The result is a partial vacuum for both parties at the moment.

Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford is the leading Democratic prospect, but likely to draw potential rivals from the legislature and elsewhere.

The Republicans have some bright young men in state government, but none has been tested at the polls.

One GOP politician commented that if a Combs-Cooper contest did nothing else, it would give both parties four years to evolve a younger strata of politicians.

TIDBITS of KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.

CHILDREN AND FOLKLORE

Early in 1969 I was asked to speak to a group of classes in Children's Literature in our university about folklore as it is and as it can be used in school work. It is strange, as I said earlier, that I am still hammering on the first emphasis I gave in discussing folklore, its use in understanding formal as well as traditional arts.

The fine old art of telling tales is far less important than it used to be. I must confess that I have ceased to be the story-teller of the late teens and twenties of this century. In these days I discovered that grown-ups as well as children loved to hear stories, old and new. The story hour so often used in libraries now strikes me as an excellent illustration of how valuable folklore can be. I sometimes scold myself for not continuing some of the story-telling I used to practice, ranging from classic stories all the way down to the most modern times. Maybe I have become somewhat sophisticated; maybe I have started down the road toward what I used to laugh at: some folklorists, I used to say, would not recognize a folk tale if they heard it or would not pay attention to it unless it was printed in some reputable collection. This type of folk tale, of course, is great to have, but, remember, it used to be purely oral and must have been told thousands of times before someone wrote it down. The mother of James Hogg, the shepherd poet of a century and a half ago, scolded people who collected ballads. She contended that they were to be sung, not to be written down.

However, it is increasingly hard to keep, wholly by traditional means, some of the treasures of our race. Consequently, I am urging teachers of small children, especially, to take down on tape as many bits of children's folk songs and plays and games and recitations as possible. Think how many jumping-the-rope rhymes you have heard. How many of them could you now repeat? Think of counting-out rhymes and their quaint turns of expression. Can you direct Wolf Over the River or Dare Base or Prisoner's Base just as you played it ten or twenty or many more years ago? One of my prized tapes is made up of singing games of small children as remembered and acted out by middle-aged and old people. I think the grandmothers and grandfathers who were induced to act as children again got a real thrill out of even the so-called inane rhymes and actions of some of the games. Certainly I got a lot of thrills, for I spent some ten years, beginning in the late teens of this century, teaching hundreds of young and old people the traditional songs, games, and stunts of our people. I am not sure that I could do that now, and that not alone because my old joints are not so supple as they were when I taught hundreds of people to play the Virginia Reel.

In my last years of teaching, now ten and more years ago, I believe that I got most response from my students of literature when I took time to explain the folkish nature of the story or poem or play or essay being studied. Reading older literature is, frankly, not an easy job for most people. Strange words, strange attitudes, forgotten custom ancient stories and precepts — my, how many molehills to the teacher often become mountain ranges to the pupils. And that not alone when small children are being taught; I found it hard to get across things that were everyday back in the early 1900's, even with bright college students. In 1967, in a paper read before the Tennessee Folklore Society on the passing of the one-roomed school, I took Whittier's "In School-Days" as a sort of text and found that, even before such a grown-up crowd, it was necessary to explain almost every stanza in terms of what the old school used to be: turning down when a word was missed, charcoal frescos on the walls, the jackknife's carved in it, the master's desk deep scarred by raps official. It was almost like going right back to Fidelity and living again the whole process of the one-roomed school, school sweethearts and all.

NEW HAROLD POSTOFFICE DEDICATION SET, OCT. 19

The new Harold post office will be dedicated at 2 p.m. October 19, Postmaster Lillian L. Sturgill announced this week.

The new facility is part of the Post Office Department's lease construction program, the postmaster explained. Under this program, investment financing is used to obtain needed facilities which remain under private ownership, pay local taxes to this community, and are leased to the federal government.

"The fact that Harold has been chosen for a new post office," Mrs. Sturgill said, "reflects credit on our growing contribution to the economy and life of the nation."

Guests expected to attend the local postal dedication include C. W. Deakins, postal services officer, and Congressman Carl D. Perkins.

Pike County Youth Is Patriotic

By MARION E. ALFORD
Supt., Portsmouth, Va. Schools
Pike county high school students are patriotic. When asked if they would join an organization that issues literature belittling or making fun of those principles upon which this country was founded, 636 said "No" and 41 indicated they would join such an organization.

This sampling was a part of the 1969 Pikeville Kiwanis Career Day program. Students were given a questionnaire containing 20 questions. Sixteen of the questions could be answered by yes or no and the others were multiple choice.

A vast majority of this group believed more patriotic teachings or programs should be included in the schedule for students. The minority — 87 — appeared to be satisfied with the current number and level of patriotic teachings.

Contrary to opinions held by many people about today's youth, those in the survey were aware of the "War in Vietnam." These young citizens know freedom threatened by armed aggression must be defended. A majority believed it is important for the United States and other nations fighting for freedom "to win the war in Vietnam."

More than half of the students stated a pledge of allegiance to the United States flag or similar ceremonies was part of the day's schedule. A check with the National Bellamy Award regarding the number of schools having flag raising ceremonies or a pledge of allegiance regularly, revealed this does not differ too much across the nation.

These young adults cannot be accused of being "soft" on known Communist speakers. Ninety per cent said these type speakers "should not be allowed to speak at high school assemblies or on college campuses." Neither would they be soft on the "student, teacher, or minister who takes part in an unlawful riot against the United States." Only two students were undecided about the type of disciplinary action that should be administered to persons guilty of such acts. In rank order of importance 274 of the students would deprive such individuals of American citizenship; 225 would seek imprisonment; 97 would recommend fining and 2 suggested shooting.

When selecting punishment for "deserters leaving the United States to avoid serving their country," 557 should be deprived of American citizenship; 102 recommended prison and 18 thought they should be forgiven.

Another interesting question dealt with how to settle the war in Vietnam. The suggestion of the students for settling the war in ranking of order was as follows: 304 would seek a just peace by negotiations; 284 would try for an all out military victory; 53 would withdraw and the remaining 36 students would seek help from other nations.

Whisman in Discussion Of Program's Future

John Whisman, states' representative to the Appalachian Regional Commission, will be the dinner speaker next Monday evening at 6 o'clock at the Paintsville Country Club when at the monthly meeting of the Big Sandy Area Development Council is held.

Dr. William C. Hambley, president of the Area Council, said that Mr. Whisman's address would concern itself with the "Present and Future" of the Appalachian Program and how it may be expected to affect the Big Sandy area.

All citizens interested in the Big Sandy Area and Eastern Kentucky are invited to hear Mr. Whisman outline the future of the Appalachian Program.

ORDINANCE NO. 7-69
An Ordinance of the City Council of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, appointing the Clerk or Assistant Clerk to the Office of Collector for the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky

Be it Ordained and Enacted by the City Council of the City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky, as follows:

SECTION III. The Mayor of the City of Prestonsburg is authorized to appoint a Special Auditing Committee, to be composed of three members of the City Council, of which the Chairman of the Finance Committee shall ex officio Chairman of the Special Auditing Committee.

SECTION IV. This Ordinance repeals all ordinances or parts thereof in conflict herewith.

Dated: October 2, 1969.
/s/ GEORGE P. ARCHER, M.D. Mayor, City of Prestonsburg, Ky.

Attest:
/s/ JUDITH D. ARCHER Clerk, City of Prestonsburg, Ky.

The young Pike countians did not believe a lottery is the best way of selecting service registrants for active duty. More than four-fifths polled did not favor this method. Neither did they advocate inducting all draft-age persons. Eighty-five per cent would permit some type of deferment.

When asked, "Would you favor an all volunteer service?", 60 per cent responded affirmatively. The remaining did not "favor an all volunteer" method of securing personnel for the armed forces.

Some of the other questions in this sampling pertained to the administering of the Selective Service laws with equity and fairness. When asked "Should girls be registered for the draft?" a majority said no. However, to this question 202 gave an affirmative reply. Since this survey included both sexes it is not possible to determine whether this conclusion reflects the influence of girls or boys or whether the combined responses is typical of both groups. Basically, many of the attitudes considered in the answers of the students reflect their cultural-social environment. They are loyal and have a deep sense of pride in their country. There is little doubt they are American oriented. It would be interesting to compare these answers to answers given by metropolitan high school students and by students enrolled in "big city" colleges.

It is fair to conclude from this survey, that Pike county youths are concerned about the problems confronting the nation in such areas as, how to settle the war in Vietnam, what procedures should be used to secure men for the armed forces, and what are the basic citizenship duties of Americans. Their responses should encourage the current generation of Americans and should remove doubts about the existence of a citizenship "Generation Gap" among the high school students of this county.

Berea, Ky., Oct. 9 — A new dean from Wisconsin, an English professor from Hawaii and an Egyptian-born instructor in Romance languages were among 32 passengers on the bus leaving Berea College early Saturday morning for the seventh annual Appalachian study tour.

State's Largest Power Plant

This aerial view of Kentucky Power Company's Big Sandy plant shows both units operating at the largest investor-owned generating station in Kentucky. The 800,000-kilowatt Unit 2 went into commercial operation October 1, boosting the plant's capability to 1,080,000 kilowatts. Readily visible are the concrete cooling towers that provide cool water for steam condensing purposes. The smaller hyperbolic-shaped tower at right was the first of its kind in the western hemisphere when built in 1962 to serve the first unit at the plant near Louisa. The $100-million expansion program, under way for three years, will be completed later this year when the exhaust from Unit 1 is tied into the new concrete stack which towers 826 feet.

Says Rural-Urban Life Possible in Appalachia

Pippa Passes, Ky. — The executive director of the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) called for the development of Appalachia as an option to urban life; a Minnesota college administrator called for a new type of leader for Eastern Kentucky and the nation, and a research corporation executive listed some of the challenges facing the region's leaders.

These were the highlights of the Alice Lloyd College Symposium on Appalachian Affairs held at Pippa Passes last Friday and Saturday.

More than 100 persons from in and beyond Eastern Kentucky discussed Appalachian life and culture with leaders in government, education, and industry during the two-day symposium.

Sunday's annual Homecoming activities honored Dr. June Buchanan, president of the Caney Creek Community Center, as she celebrated 50 years of service to the college and the community center.

Ralph Widner, executive director of the ARC, opened the symposium with a talk on "A Hard Look at Appalachia." He said regional "leaders have the chance to build a society in a rural setting where one can live without sacrificing the qualities of city life."

"While metropolitan society is breaking down, Appalachian leaders should be working on an option to urban life," he said. "Although they can draw on tools imported from other parts of the nation, such as the ARC, the people of this region must decide on its future and then act to make their ideas realities."

Dr. David Hess, vice president of Mankato State College, began Saturday's session of the symposium by describing a new kind of leadership.

"The traditional model of a leader," Dr. Hess said, "is a figure of power and authority. He knows both goals and the means to attain them."

"The leaders that are needed in Appalachia and in the nation today are facilitators or enablers," according to Hess. "Today's leaders know how to bring people together. He knows humility, because he realizes he doesn't have the capability to determine goals for others."

John Leslie, vice president of Lexington's Spindletop Research, Inc., closed the symposium with his address "The Challenge." He urged Appalachian leaders to think big, and to look at problems as "upside down opportunities."

Others participants in the two-day symposium included Charles Foltz, executive director of the education advisory committee, of the ARC; Roger McKenzie, project manager of the American Standard plant under construction near Paintsville; Edward Prichard, Frankfort attorney; the Rev. Jack Weller, of Hazard, author of "Yesterday's People;" Mace Crandall, of Berea, former editor of "Mountain Life and Work magazine;" and Dr. William S. Hayes, president of Alice Lloyd College.

Madelyn Murray, the atheist who has protested prayers in public schools and succeeded in getting the Supreme Court of the United States to rule them out, has obtained 27,000 signed letters protesting the Astronauts' reading the Bible from outer space. She plans to present these to N. A. S. A. headquarters, asking the men be publicly censured. The Family Radio Broadcast is asking for 100,000 letters commending the Astronauts.

Gentlemen:

I personally appreciate and wholeheartedly support the recent decision of the Astronauts to read the Bible in space as they orbited the moon.

It should be the right of every human to publicly express his faith in God and the Bible without fear of reprisal from government or any other power.

Sincerely,

(Name and Address)

POWER FIRM FILES SUIT

Kentucky Power Names
Coal Companies, Asking
Damages of $4,200,000

The Kentucky Power Company filed on October 2, in Jefferson circuit court, Louisville, suits against three Pike county coal mining firms and two Louisville companies seeking a total of $4.2 million in damages.

The power company alleged in its suit that failure of the coal companies to deliver fuel in accordance with contractual obligations, threatens its ability to produce electric power at its Big Sandy Plant near Louisa.

One of the power company actions, seeking to recover $2.6 million, was filed against Dixie Mining Company and its president, Robert D. Holcomb, former Prestonsburg man; A. R. C. Industries, Inc., Raccoon Elkhorn Coal Company and C. D. Roberts, all of Pikeville. The other for $1.6 million, was filed against A. R. C. Industries and the Standard Sign and Signal Co., both of Louisville.

Mr. Holcomb countered with the claim that Kentucky Power had broken its contract with his company, and added that a counter-suit is a possibility.

Holcomb said the power firm refused to accept coal shipments from Jan. 1 to July 1 of this year, despite a six-year contract calling for 240,000 tons annually.

The refusal to take the coal "forced us to look elsewhere for business and made the power company subject to damages for breach of contract with us. Rather than sue, "we notified Kentucky Power Co. in June that we considered the contract cancelled."

Circuit Judge Lyndon R. Schmid of the Jefferson circuit court issued a temporary restraining order to prohibit one of the mining companies from selling coal to anyone until the contractual obligations to Kentucky Power are met. The power company suits charge the coal producers with selling coal to other industrial users to get a higher price, rather than meeting power company contract agreements.

The restraining order issued by the circuit court also forbids the companies from failing to produce and deliver up to 20,000 tons monthly to the power company. It also forbids abandonment or sale of the mines.

1969 Bowl Queen

Deborah Webb, Miss Johns Creek High, was awarded the crown of queen of the 19th annual Big Sandy Bowl, Sept. 20 at Paintsville. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zebb Webb, of Route 1, Pikeville, former residents of Martin. The 16-year-old Miss Webb was chosen for the honor from 10 contenders representing high schools in the valley. Her attendants were Phyllis McCoy, of Belfry high school, and Barbara Justice, of Mullins high. Miss Webb was crowned by last year's queen, Gwen Elswick, also of Johns Creek high school.
