Stumbo Says Roads Possibly at Worst

Effort To Keep School Routes Open Stressed

Floyd county's rural roads, usually in poor condition at this time of year, are now possibly at their worst, County Judge Henry Stumbo said Monday.

Heavy freezes, snows, then thawing rains have "dropped their bottoms out," he said. "Which is the worst road?" he replied to a question. "The one you happen to live on.'

- Seven bridges have been reported out, an equal number of roads have been wholly or partially blocked by slides, drain pipes and roadbeds have been washed out.

"About the most we can try to do, right now, is to keep the school buses runningand we're doing a poor job of that," Judge Stumbo said.

"Red dog" is being hauled by county trucks. Help appeared, two weeks ago, in the form of five state trucks, but before all these were loaded with red dog at an Estill dump they were recalled.

The district office, Department of Highways, Pikeville, later explained the trucks were pulled off the job when it was discovered that Floyd county had no rural highway funds to its credit.

Judge Stumbo said each county's rural highway fund is drawn on periodically to create an emergency fund but that the money is not always returned to the county from which it came. Instead, it can be sent to another county. He is interested in knowing what became of Floyd county's

Leslie, Deputies Nab Six in Raids During Week-End

Liquor raids by Sheriff Frank Leslie and deputies last week-end ranged from Prestonsburg to the head-of-Left-Beaver section of the county and resulted in the arrest of six.

Two arrests were made here Saturday when Joseph's Taxi lot was raided and 14 pints of whiskey and vodka and six cases of beer were confiscated. Ashland Joseph was arrested on a possession charge, and later Junior Joseph was arrested on a warrant charging him with selling intoxicants. A selling warrant also was sworn out for Clyde Blackburn, Sheriff Leslie said. The intoxicants were found, officers said, in an auto left on the lot. The car was impounded. A raid headed by Sheriff Leslie on the premises of Ralph Morris at Auxier failed to find intoxicants, but Kenny Wells was named in a selling warrant.

The same day, 67 half pints of whiskey and vodka and 168 cans of beer were confiscated after a search of the Parkway Drive-In, near Stanville. Paul Tackett was arrested, charged with both possession and selling.

A raid Sunday on the premises of Landon Charles, of Brandy Keg, netted four pints of whiskey and vodka, 49 cans of beer and 33 cartons of fireworks. Charles was charged with possession.

Sunday night, Marvin Little was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Claude Flanery and State Trooper Bevins at Wheelwright Junction when 25 half-pints of whiskey were found on his premises. manness manne

U.S. Funds Not For Easements On Martin Work

The $150,000 appropriated by the Congress for the Martin stream improvement project does not include, as The Times reported last week, funds for acquiring easements, County Judge Henry Stumbo said this week.

This amount, he said, is earmarked for planning only-and that creates a disturbing situation. For two houses at Martin must be moved from their present locations if the work is to be done, and this expense is not to be supplied by federal funds.

That leaves the cost an obligation of the Floyd fiscal court-and the court doesn't have the money needed.

Other easements, officials hope, will be given without charge in order to get the flood protection work done.

Officials of Martin and Floyd county will confer here this evening (Thursday) at 7 o'clock with representatives of the U.S. Corps of Engineers on the project.

Conley Denies Stumbo Motion

Motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo asking that Bob Hall, of Banner, accused as the slayer of his father and step-mother, be committed to a mental hospital for observation was overruled Friday by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. Defense counsel protested the proposed action. Judge Conley held that committal of the defendant would be in violation of his constitutional rights.

The weather, which is usually responsible for the closing of Floyd county's schools, may have kept them open this week.

Directors of the 32,000-member Kentucky Education Association (KEA) last week voted to recommend a work-stoppage in protest against the failure of Governor Nunn and the General Assembly to meet cost-of-living increase demands in teachers' salaries, and the KEA's delegate assembly was scheduled to take final action last Saturday in Louisville. Closing was tentatively scheduled for Monday of this week.

Then the snow, plenty of it, dropped into the picture. Highways became virtually impassable for a time, necessitating a delay in KEA action.

Now, the KEA directors recommend to the delegate assembly that the schools close, beginning next Monday. How long they will remain closed is anybody's guess. KEA officials predict this will be no oneday stoppage, like that which was staged during the administration of Governor Breathitt.

The final word on stoppage plans was scheduled for last night (Wednesday) when a special session of delegates assembled in Louisville.

Dr. Kenneth Estes, KEA president, cited an almost total lack of progress on educational legislation as the reason for strong action by teachers.

More than 600 of the 687-member Delegate Assembly met in Frankfort on February 2 and at that time set a deadline of February 13 for "substantial progress" by the legislature on KEA's four equal priority points in its 1970 legislative program. The four equal priority points are (1) KEA's professional negotiation law, (2) (See Story No. 4, Page 16)

ABOUT THE MOVIES

Out of respect for a cause log hat has departed our midst, I went to the movies, a week or so back. You guessed it-the picture was "101 Dalmatians." And, being a story about dogs, it was as clean as the proverbial hound's tooth.

This newspaper does not lend itself to free advertising for any business that is in competition with others, but we must point to a recent statement of William Blair, manager of the Strand Theatre, which showed the film we young'uns enjoyed so much. He wrote Mrs. Clayton Holland, president of the PTA here:

"In recent months there has been a definite trend away from movies that are suitable for our very young to see. Yet, in spite of this, there are still good movies of the old standard available. We at the local theatre are determined that our Little People shall neither be neglected nor deprived of ... good, wholesome en- Power Company line on Bull Creek, the tertainment . . .'

32 Communities In Floyd To Get Home Delivery

Expanded home mail delivery, principally in small communities, has been implemented by a new postal service program which affects 80 Eastern Kentucky towns, 22 of which are in Floyd county.

Persons living more than a quarter mile, but less than half a mile from the post offices that do not have city delivery, are now eligible to receive delivery at home. Previously they had been compelled to go to the post office for their mail.

Since they live less than half a mile away from a post office, they have not been eligible to receive rural delivery service prior to the new order. And because they live near a post office that does not have city delivery they have missed out there,

$28,000 Damages

Asked of Gas Co. In Auxier Blaze

A January fire at Auxier has resulted in the filing of a suit by four plaintiffs against the Auxier Road Gas Company, Inc., which seeks to recover $28,000 damages and $150 a month for an unspecified time for loss of use of the destroyed or damaged properties.

Two of the plaintiffs, Billy G. Curnutte, and his wife, Betty, ask $14,800 for contents of their home, which was destroyed by fire, and $11,000 for real property, plus $100 a month, beginning with the date of the blaze and continuing till they are back, living in restored premises.

The others, Ralph Webb, and his wife, Elizabeth, seek to recover $3,000 damages and $50 a month till their premises are repaired so as to be rentable.

The complaint alleges that the properties of the Curnuttes and the Webbs were damaged by a blaze resulting from negligent construction, maintenance, repair and inspection of a gas line or lines which paralleled the rear of the two properties. It claims the dwelling of the Curnuttes, outbuildings and all contents of the home were destroyed by the resultant fire. The Webbs claim loss of a dwelling and some of its contents.

Martin county improvements are not confined to industrial developments which promise a 25-mile railroad and the opening of major coal mining operations. The county is already on its way to progress in the field of health, and Floyd countians are major figures in this development.

Dr. Raymond Wells, of Lancer, who went to Inez before he became a full-fledged M. D., is there now as a medical practitioner. Dr. Douglas Sword, native of Wheelwright, is the county's lone dentist. And heading the Martin County Health Department, which is quartered in a new building, is Dr. Russell L. Hall, of Prestonsburg, who is Floyd county health doctor. The Floyd County Health Department shares his services with Martin County.

Martin County's move upward is said to have begun with the visit of President County Development Association, and others talked to him about establishing a practice here and he was interested. "But I told them they would have to have a clinic of some type before any doctor could come here," Dr. Wells said.

Dr. Wells' interest was heightened about that same time by a KMA program offering scholarship loans in return for a promise to practice in a rural Kentucky county after graduation.

The development association, meantime, applied for a federal loan to build a clinic, then conducted a telephone campaign to see that it was approved. "We made quite a few calls to our congressmen," Ward said. "In fact, every Monday morning we had a call in to Washington.'

The loan was approved. Ward theorizes that the President's interest helped. Dr. Wells, meanwhile, returned to Martin

Dr. John Ford, the physician who was nearing retirement age six years ago, still practices in the county, but has cut his office hours to a tolerable limit.

The young physicians, both 29, feel the state and federal medical assistance programs, Medicaid and Medicare, make it possible for two doctors to earn a living there. Without them, they say, there wouldn't be enough paying patients in this county, which has a per capita income of about $500.

But both also feel there are flaws in the programs and each has a suggestion to remedy at least one of them.

"What I've been preaching is that the state should reimburse the patient instead of the doctor for medical expenses," Dr. Wells said.

"That way, the patients would have to shell out some money, at least for a few

Johnson to the home of Thomas Fletcher, in 1964. That visit made Martin county's needs national news, and it contributed to the national concern about conditions in the sprawling area that has become popularly known as Appalachia.

In 1964 Martin county has only one doctor, and he was nearing retirement. It had no dentist, no hospital or clinic. It now has a modern clinic which houses the offices of three doctors and a dentist.

The success stemmed from selfdetermination of Martin countians along with major assists from the federal government, the Kentucky Medical and Dental Associations and, indirectly, the University of Kentucky.

Dr. Wells was a medical student when he made his first visit to Martin county with a tuberculosis field program in 1964. Gene Word, chairman of the Martin him there.

county, still as a student to set up a theoretical practice. He liked what he found and applied for the KMA loan, citing Martin county as the area where he would practice.

"I really wanted to come back to Eastern Kentucky anyway," the doctor from Floyd county said. Four years ago, he did just that.

Seeing 85 to 90 patients a day, Dr. Wells holds office hours from 8 a.m. "until we get through," usually about 6 to 6:30 p.m. Most of those he sees are on state or federal medical aid programs.

Dr. Sword went to Martin county under a similar scholarship program operated by the dental association. And, six months ago, Dr. Wells convinced his old college roommate, Dr. Raymond Holloway, to join days, and it would keep them from coming to see us when it isn't necessary," he added.

"Some people just come down here as a place to socialize," Dr. Holloway said. "They meet their friends in the waiting room and talk to the doctor and it doesn't cost them anything."

Dr. Holloway thinks a solution would be to charge every patient something, "even if it's 50 cents or a dollar, every time he visits the doctor.

Dr. Sword, of course, has no such problems, although most of his patients, too, are on medical aid program. "They just don't come to a dentist unless they really need to," he said.

In ETSU's 101-87 rout of Austin Peay the 6-3 Martin broke the 100-mark for his team with a 25-footer in closing minutes of the game and brought the crowd to its feet with a behind-the-back pass to a teammate for another score.

Sgt. Beckett was officer-in-charge of the technical control section of Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 54th Signal Bn., and was responsible for the control of 25 multichannel communications systems and more than 200 voice and teletype circuits during operations against the enemy.

Earlier, he was awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

He, his wife and their four children will leave this month for Augusta, Ga., where Sgt. Beckett will be instructor at Ft. Gordon's Signal School. Mrs. Beckett is the former Gail Lynn Patton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Patton, of Prestonsburg.

The lanky center, who carries only 170 pounds on his big frame, was expected to run out of gas toward the end of the encounter. But 30 of his points were scored in the last half. His coach, Robert Slone, later told a Courier-Journal writer:

No Camping Area Is Better Than What Park Offers

More than three years ago, a joint effort was initiated by the U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Kentucky Department of Parks to provide Dewey Lake with a real, honest-to-goodness camping area. The Goble Branch area has since been acquired—all of it, save one tract—by the Corps of Engineers; the Department of Parks has acquired the Girl Scouts' original Camp Chatterawha there as a nucleus of the proposed camping area. A major camping facility is talked.

But the camp itself is where it was more than three years agoon paper. And another camping season nears, with only the pitifully meagre facilities of Stratton Branch to be offered campers from all parts of the United States who come here, believing that here, in a beautiful state park, near a widely publicized lake, facilities equal to those at other parks await them.

Former Resident Here. Mrs. Esther Bond Bever, Passes Away In Florida

Mrs. Esther Bond Bever, 66, of Winter Haven Park, Fla., formerly of Prestonsburg, died February 9 in a hospital there. Mrs. Bever was a daughter of the late Dr. Harry and Esther Borders Bond. Mrs. Bever, also a former resident of Ashland and Catlettsburg, had lived in Florida for the past three years. While a resident of Ashland, she was a member of the First Presbyterian church, the Bellefonte Country Club, the Daughters of the American Revolution and was a past president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. She was a member of the Three Arts Club and founder of the Eastern Kentucky Art Exhibit. Mrs. Bever was also at one time society reporter for the Ashland Daily Independent. Her husband, Frederick Leo Bever, preceded her in death in 1965. Survivors include a son, Frederick Leo Bever, of Ashland; a stepson, Wendell Bever, of Norman, Okla.; two step daughters, Mrs. Basil Minnech, of Simi, Calif., and Mrs. Kenneth Kay, of Norman; a brother, J. D. Bond, of Washington, D. C., and two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Meers, of Winter Park, and Miss Dixie Bond, of Mexico.

And again this year campers by the hundreds will be leaving Jenny Wiley State Park, breathing maledictions on it because the poorest facilities imaginable in a major park were offered them. These will not be advertising, by word of mouth, the beauties of the park and the region; they will be warning their camper-friends against coming to Jenny Wiley. Thus the park suffers more damage than from any other source.

It does nobody any good to operate a disappointment, and Jenny Wiley camping, as it now exists, is just that.

So, if the two governmental agencies involved cannot move in time to get anything of a tangible nature done within the next two months, the Department of Parks should close the Stratton Branch area to camping, thus ridding the park of at least one of its sources of public censure.

Knott-Co. May Lose Library, Bookmobile As Result of Petition

Knott county is threatened with loss of its library and bookmobile service as a result of a petition circulated against the program and acceptance of the petition by the fiscal court. Friends of the library have filed suit in circuit court to test validity of the petition. While the case is pending the library will be closed and the bookmobile idle. Users of facilities of the library and bookmobile have been notified to return all borrowed books. If the petition stands, it is pointed out, the county will lose the only public library it has ever had and the bookmobile which has served it for 16 years. Another loss cited will be the opportunity of having a new library building, two-thirds of the cost of which would be paid by state funds.

A New Year's Resolution is something that is put into words on the first day in January after having crystalized from many months of thoughts but which on the second day of January may be discarded. Thus we hold that resolutions are not of much value. If a change is needed and if more intensive work is required any day of the year will do to start it. You simply do not have to wait until Jan. 1. And if you do wait many months until that time to put an idea into effect, then the worth of the resolution is of no great moment.

But Jan. 1 is the time for resolutions and while we aren't advocating that they be indulged in we do think that the beginning of a new year is a good time to re-evaluate ourselves and our activities and see where we stand. So in place of resolutions this year why not give a thought to the condition

Whatsoever Things By DONALD E. WILDMON

Edwin M. Stanton lived from 1814 to 1869 He was a nervous, asthmatic, cranky, and contradictory lawyer who worked his way up after dropping out of college because of a lack of funds. Stanton served as the Attorney General in the Cabinet of President James Buchanan.

Stanton was also a sharp critic of Abraham Lincoln, and had many unkind words for the man who followed Buchanan as the President of the United States. He often spoke of Lincoln as "a low cunning clown" and even nicknamed him "the original gorilla." Stanton went so far as to suggest to a famous hunter of the time that he was a fool to wander over Africa trying to catch a gorilla when he could have easily found one in Springfield, Illinois.

After Lincoln was elected President, he was influential in acquiring a post as legal adviser to Simon Cameron, Secretary of War, for Stanton. Even after this favor, Stanton continued his harsh criticism of Lincoln

Many people were shocked when Lincoln appointed Stanton as the Secretary of War following the resignation of Cameron. It Into that room that night came several people. They watched-stunned-as their President lay dying. Among those who were there was Edwin Stanton, the man who had been so harsh and critical of the President, despite the fact that the President had shown him every courtesy and kindness. Looking down at the rugged form of a gentle man, Stanton spoke through the tears: "There lies the greatest ruler of men the world has ever seen.'

"ONOMASTICS"

Quite a large library has been written and is being written about the origin of names of people and places. The science dealing with name-giving is called "Onomastics," guite a new word in our language, but the study is by no means a new one. If you will turn to your Bible, you will find literally dozens of names applied to people or places because of some certain event or some other obvious thing. Poor "Ichabod" was so named because of a great defeat of the Israelites: "The glory is departed." "Jacob" named the place where he had his vision of angels ascending and descending a ladder to heaven "Bethel:" "House of God." And on and on I could go, for the Hebrews made a great ado over names and their origin and meaning.

In 1968 I brought to a reasonable completion my study of the place names of the Mammoth Cave region and have published it in a folklore magazine. Now I am far along in a study of the family names of that whole area, to determine, primarily, just where the pioneers came from. As would be expected, nearly all the names are British, that is, English, Scotch-Irish, Welsh, Scotch, and Irish. Even some names that obviously were not originally from the British Isles had been there so long that they are now regarded as British, names that are French, for example. Just a few names show German or French Huguenot origins, and that is to be expected. Many of the pioneers who came to Kentucky came by way of western Pennsylvania, western Virginia, and what is now West Virginia, where a great many Pennsylvania Germans had previously migrated. The Huguenots, or French Protestants, had come in fair numbers to several of the Atlantic Coastal states; many had come to New York after living for some generations in Holland. The Carolinas had the next largest group of these people, and some of the Carolina names have drifted into the Mammoth Cave region, along with a few French-Dutch names.

Many family names are easily interpreted, for our ancestors had a way, which we still keep, of bestowing nicknames for all sorts of things: personal appearance, place of residence, occupation, and a generous use of patronymics, or names derived from one's father or ancestry. Think how many people you have known who were called Shorty, or Red, or even Fatty. And then we had, in Fidelity, a way of calling a boy Little Sam or Bill's Sam or some similar patronymic. And how easy to talk of Coaling Jim Mc-Cuiston, who lived up the creek in the Coalings, a large tract of land formenly owned by an iron company and used as a place to grow trees to be used in making charcoal to refine the iron. Farmer, Carpenter, Taylor, and similar words used to name occupations. And the most used of the occupation names, Smith, is easily explained, for the smith was a worker in metals; he was likely to be well-fixed financially and held a name that was highly honored in all ages.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday morning in Ashland by the Rev. Richard Krajeski. Entombment was in the Bond Mausoleum, here.

and position of our natural resources? Why not think a while about:

DDT-This seems to be uppermost on conservationists' minds. For years we have promiscuously scattered this insecticide to the four winds. We have placed it on our trees and on various crops and eventually it has found its way into streams and lakes and then into the fish that inhabit those bodies of water and when we eat those fish we are again loading our fatty tissue with this long-lived pesticide. But we hope before we become a statistic to DDT it may well be banned as is indicated by the Health and Agriculture departments of the federal government.

Spoiled waters-Streams that 20 years ago ran clear and pure are today unfit for a child to play in or a fish to live in. Garbage and sewage from our cities and towns and villages and from farmhouses make up a good part of the contents-mine waters and acids too. Salt water from oil wells spill into streams, as do the hillsides and coal dust from mines. All these make our waters unfit, unsightly and all but unusable despite purification procedures.

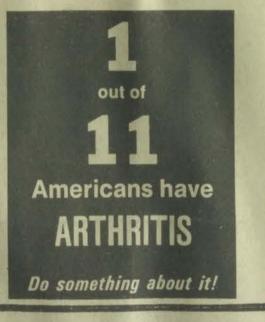

Fouled air—Pollution from a thousand smokestacks; exhaust from autos, trucks and airplanes; poisons from smelters and steel plants and rubber industries. Can suffocation be far away?

Ruined lands-Hillsides washed away for lack of cover crops; stream banks denuded by the chainsaw; lowlands drained, mountainsides and pastureland ravaged and turned into badlands by strip mining operations; incorrect farming operations that take from the soil but put nothing back. Have you ever thought that there will never be more land than there now is?

was hard for them to understand why Lincoln would give such a high, important post to a man who had continually criticized him and his policy.

While Stanton was treating Lincoln in such a manner, Lincoln continued to show Stanton every courtesy. He never spoke of him harshly, or returned hateful remarks with hateful remarks. Lincoln appointed Stanton to the job of Secretary of War for one simple reason-Stanton was the best man for the job. Lincoln knew this, and did not let the ugliness of Stanton stop him from making the appointment.

On the night of April 14, 1865, Lincoln was watching a play entitled "Our American Cousin" from a box at Ford's theatre in Washington. During the play a man named John Wilkes Booth entered the box where Lincoln was sitting and shot the President in the head. During the confusion that followed Lincoln was carried to a little room where an attempt was made to save his life.

Many names have undergone changes or are from words we no longer know so well and need some explanation. It is easy to see that Johnson is plain John's son; it is not so easy to know that Davis and Dawes are descended from some ancestor who was named David. Gibb or Gipp used to be common as a nickname for a man named Gilbert; hence in the Mammoth Cave area and elsewhere both Gibson and Gipson. Tunks greatly puzzled me; it is a shortened form of Tony's son, say the scholars in this field. Words that have "Mc" or "Mac" as prefixes show Irish or Highland Scotch origin; this prefix means "son of;" hence McDonald, son of Donald. Our custom of calling a boy Little Willie had other ways of calling a boy whose father was named William: by adding "in" to Will, you get Wilkin, now apparently lost, and then Willkin's son would be Wilkins, Little Willie's son. Briggs is a variant from of Bridge or Bridges and shows that the original bearer of the name lived at or near a bridge. Similarly, Gates, Waters, Meadows, and almost dozens of other names showed the place of residence. Napper, a fairly common name in southcentral Kentucky formerly, has now been restored to its original English form, Napier, which had been borrowed from French and meant maker of tablecloths. napkins, etc.

CONSERVATION OF GRAY SQUIRRELS NEEDED

bushy tail of all the squirrels; it shakes like

Last fall during the open squirrel season. I had reports from various hunters concerning the general scarcity of gray squirrels in many sections. In some of the states there were two open seasons for killing these animals, which I feel is a bad. mistake. The first one begins in August, at a time when squirrels are often rearing a second litter. When the parents are killed the young soon perish from starvation. During the first open season, I had reports from hunters about killing suckling squirrels, showing that they still had young to nurse. In late summer, during the first open season, the flesh of squirrels is hardly palatable; at this time they are feeding on mushrooms, insects, snails-whatever they can find to eat before the nuts mature. So their flesh is of poor quality and bad flavor. Not until they fatten up on hickory nuts and beechnuts is their flesh of good flavor. The gray squirrel is said to be the most widely known mammal of North America; it is as useful as it is interesting and beautiful, and is always a favorite with children about the parks. One reason for the general scarcity of gray squirrels in some sections is the cutting down of the nuttrees on which they depend for food and for a winter supply of food. Destroying the nut trees or a failure of the nut and acorn supply causes serious disaster to the squirrels; many starve to death during winter. On the other hand, when the squirrels are all killed off in any region, the oak forests will begin to decline in a few years, because there are no squirrels to plant the acorns.

a feather duster as the squirrel squacks at an intruder; sometimes the squirrel will leap out of a green cluster where it is hiding and burst out with a sudden, squacking sound, as if in defiance of the hunter. Hunters sometimes call squirrels "squacks" from the sound they make. Squirrels are wary, cunning, alert to any sound of the woods. Let a hawk sail over looking for a squirrel to eat and the animal will flatten its gray body against gray tree bark, which makes it almost invisible to the sharp eye of the hawk.

The Latin name for squirrel, SCIURUS, means, literally, an animal that shades itself with its tail. The tail serves the squirrel both as an umbrella against the hot sun and as a cloak in winter to keep the body warm. The tail is the hardest part of the body to keep hidden. Often when the squirrel is hiding in green leaves, the long tail may be seen hanging down in plain view. Many hunters can judge the squirrel's exact location from the dangling tail and often bag one without actually seeing its body. Our oak forests need the squirrels to keep them replenished, and we should always leave enough squirrels in the woods to make them alive and interesting. When cool autumn days come and the leaves have changed to brown and gold and are falling from the trees with every wind that blows, leaving the trees stark bare, the gray squirrel seems to sense the melancholy mood of the season, as it knows that winter is just around the corner. At this time, the squirrel will often sit alone in Gray squirrels have the longest, largest some barren tree and make a low, doleful, whining sound, as if to express its melancholy mood; it is truly the "swan song of the dying season."

Sometimes hunters kill squirrels with what they call "wolves" in the back, which make them unfit for food; these "wolves" are the larvae of botflies, which lay the eggs in the hair during summer. When the eggs hatch out, the larvae burrow under the skin and form a cyst, with the head of the larva protruding. Squirrels with these cysts become emaciated and have to be thrown away. In order to escape these botflies in summer, the squirrel builds large bowers of leaves in green trees, into which they crawl to hide from the flies.

Let's keep our gray squirrels and let them increase. There should be only one open season each year. Farmers in many rural sections can help the squirrels in winter by leaving several rows of corn around the borders of the field, next to the woods; this will be a big help to the squirrels, especially in a season when the acorn crop is poor. Gray squirrels are the champion high jumpers of the world. Once I saw two of them jump from the top of a tall hickory tree when a man frightened them by scraping the trunk of the tree with a stick. They jumped out into sheer space, with their long bushy tails flattened out to serve as a wind-brake. I thought they would be killed when they landed, but they struck on their feet and scampered off, unhurt.

Maytown Boy Scouts Hold Court of Honor

Troop 24, Boy Scouts of America, held its Court of Honor at the Maytown United Methodist Church Monday evening, Feb. 2. Ed Stephens, institutional representative, was master of ceremonies. Invocation was by Jerry Patton which was followed by Jeff Jones leading the Scouts and the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance. Judge Hollie Conley, committee chairman, gave the welcome address and expressed the appreciation of all the parents to the scoutmasters for their fine work this past year. The impressive candle ceremony then followed in which all Scouts participated. In lighting each of the 19 candles and telling what each candle symbolized, the Scouts made clear to their parents and friends the full significance of the ideals by which Scouts live and how they achieve worthy citizenship.

Mr. Stephens presented the Tenderfoot and the Second Class Investitures. Roy May, Soutmaster, gave the pins to each Boy Scout's mother and she pinned it to her son's uniform. Those receiving their Tenderfoot pins were: Scott Allen, Stephen Allen, David Boyd, Phil Flanery, Eddie Fraley, Stanley Hayes, Dennis Martin, Randy Martin, Mark McGuire; Second class pins: Jeff Ellis, Kent Flanery, Keith Frasure, Bobby Gates, Brent Gibson, Mark Hamilton, Russell Hayes, Stephen Herald, Jeff Jones, Joesph Owens, Jerry Patton and Jerry Rowe.

Scoutmaster May presented a special award to Jeff McGuire who has assisted the scoutmasters and given many hours of his time helping the young Scouts earn their badges.

Presentation of the one-and two-year pins was made by Committeeman Edgar Herald.

Committeeman Thomas Flanery presented the Patrol Flags to the Rattlesnake Patrol, Wolf Patrol and the Panther Patrol.

The audience enjoyed hearing the short, informative talk by Chief Scout Executive Marvin Barber, of Pikeville. Mr. Barber then presented the Boy Scout Charter to Mrs. George Patton, president of the Maytown Woman's Club, sponsor of Troop 24. Mrs. Patton accepted the Charter after which she gave the 1969-'70 membership cards to both the Scouts and their leaders and committemen.

The Scouts and their parents and friends then enjoyed cake and punch in the recreation room. The cake, decorated with the Scout motif, was baked by Mrs. Marie

Indiana Man, Native of Floyd, Helps Churches, 'Back Home'

One of the main contacts Frank Hale, of Hebron, Ind., has with his native Floyd county is through two churches and their pastor and the distribution through these of clothing, household goods, and other items for impoverished families and toys and candies at Christmas time for children of this area.

Mr. Hale and his wife, around the first of the year, delivered to the minister of these churches, the Rev. Ashland Shepherd, a panel truck which enables him to better serve the two churches which he built in the area-the Open Door Community Church near David, and the Laurel Fork Community Church on Quicksand Creek-and to get to those who need them the supplies brought by the Hales from Indiana. The Rev. Shepherd also is using the truck to transport children and adults to and from Sunday School and church.

The 1963 model truck delivered by Hale

Now Mr. Shepherd keeps the dilapidated old truck in the garage, in case, and keeps on his distribution and Sunday rounds among his congregation.

Besides the couple, several volunteers have driven down to Kentucky with them delivering boxes. Among these are Mrs. Hale's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hibbs of Hebron, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Douglas of Boone Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sexton of Valparaiso, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dombrowski of Gary, Burns Whittaker of Lake Eliza, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garling of Kouts, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Henson of Gary.

Churches which have been helpful in gathering goods for the boxes have been the Boone Grove Christian Church, Faith Baptist Church of Lake Eliza, Deep River Church of Christ, Calvary Baptist Church, First Baptist Church and First Christian Church, all of Valparaiso, Evangelical Free Church of Washington Twp., Liberty (Twp.) Bible Church, McCool Methodist Church, and Temple Israel of Valparaiso. Those who contributed toward purchase of the truck were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Douglas, Rockwell, N. M.; Boone Grove Christian Church Women's Circle, Boone Grove, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Linkimer, Valparaiso, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sexton, Valparaiso, Ind.; Mrs. Susan Young, Charleston, Ind., and Mrs. Burns Whitaker, Valparaiso.

replaces a 1949 truck that went off duty last year after the preacher had driven it too many trips over rugged roads.

Shepherd, a retired coal miner, has been working the spiritual of this part of Appalachia for 18 years. He left the mines two years ago and has been existing on a $115 monthly pension.

Since 1966, the Hales have been providing him with clothing, household goods, shoes, toys and Christmas candy for the children-all donated by more fortunate residents of Porter county, Indiana. Mr. Hale's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hale, were from Goodloe.

But last year, problems began plaguing the program from both ends.

The Hales, who'd been making four or five trips a year to Kentucky, had to slow it down to twice a year because of Mr. Hale's failing health. They've made 25 trips so far. Shepherd's work began bogging down because his battered panel truck was finding it more and more difficult to wheeze up and down Handshoe Mountain to Laurel Fork.

And a Porter county fund begun by the Hales to provide the minister with a newer truck was barely crawling along.

But help continued seeping through from nine Porter county churches and one synagogue, and individuals who contributed cash toward the Hales' $600 goal for a new truck.

The Hales started the fund in late 1968 at a local bank, and by April it had barely reached $130.

They never got the $600, and late last year they had only $320 in the bank account. This was after the Hales and their friends had slowly pumped up the fund through bake sales and candy sales around the county.

Pessimists told them they'd never get a decent truck for $600, said Mrs. Hale, let alone $320. They looked at various vehicles, but to get a truck that would fight the Kentucky hills wasn't in their budget.

Then a trip to relatives in Mishawaka proved to be the turning point. The Hales looked at a serviceable truck, made their $320 offer but weren't very hopeful. The owner later contacted them and told them that since the truck was for a charitable cause, he'd take their offer.

The Hales quickly loaded the new truck with boxes they'd been storing in their home-as they'd done for years in their Union Twp. home-and made the 450-mile trip to David. They delivered the vehicle and 62 boxes of clothing and Christmas candy-no toys this year-for residents of the area. David Coffman of Misawaka drove the truck and the Hales followed by

A state-wide survey of Kentucky school children's needs was announced recently by Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell P. Butler.

Butler declared the study, preparations for which have been under way several months, would be the most comprehensive since the survey preceding enactment of the Minimum Foundation Program in 1954. Questionnaires are being sent to all school districts to involve approximately 5,000 school and related personnel with an additional 2,000 to go to citizens at large. Representatives of all segments of the population will be involved.

The purpose of the questionnaires, Butler explained, is two-fold:

1. To obtain from a wide range of people their opinions on what they deem the most important needs of Kentucky children and youth as learners.

2. To lay the groundwork for the cooperative development of goals and objectives for Kentucky public education in the 1970's, and ways to obtain them.

A task force of the Kentucky Department of Education, including 22 persons working with several consultants, devised the design for the detailed survey and the ultimate tabulation of results.

The superintendent has asked 20 outstanding Kentuckians to serve on a Citizens Advisory Committee to aid in studying the changing needs and new demands of this decade. Announcement of 20-member committee will be made at a later date.

All bureaus of the department are involved in the endeavor and will benefit from the needs assessment, the superintendent said. In addition, it will be a wideranging assessment for use under Title III of the U.S. Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which provides for innovative and exemplary school programs, administered by the Department.

"The main focus will be upon the children's learning need," Butler said in describing the survey. The earlier survey, after implementation and full financing of the Minimum Foundation Program, provided the background "to produce the administrative design and blueprint for elementary and secondary education in the 1960's."

Steady progress has been made, Butler stated. "But now we must have a state-wide assessment of needs to meet the challenges of the 1970's," he added.

This state-wide study will complement, not supplant, needs assessments in local and regional areas, officials explained.

"The emphasis now is upon measurable goals and performance objectives," Butler said. The survey instrument is "vital to assessing the needs" so that "we can chart where we are going and establish priorities, up-dating the study annually as we progress."

The evolving educational program for the new decade, Butler said, will incorporate ways to determine whether the goals and objectives are being met and, if not, why.

AUFWIEDERSEHEN UND GRUESSE

Loosely translated (from German, of course) it means goodbye and hello. We are saying hello to Palmer Vance Volkswagen of Prestonsburg and goodbye to many of our Volkswagen owners in the Big Sandy Valley.

Now, if you own or intend to own a Volkswagen, you can buy your car and get trained authorized service in your hometown. Then if your bug gets the bug, parts and service will be available without an all-day trek to Ashland. That is how it is and that is how it should be.

A little over a decade ago, the Mid-Ohio valley was perilous country for a transient Volkswagen to pass through. It was then that Ashland became the only Volkswagen oasis from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Charleston, West Virginia, and from Columbus, Ohio, to Knoxville, Tennessee, an awesome area of over 50,000 square miles.

First, our mechanics went to All this is the result of a Volkswagen Volkswagen school, then the parts (including a "whatsit") were put on the Volkswagen says, "Prove to us you can shelf, then the tools and equipment service the cars, and you may sell were inspected, office procedures were them." It's a simple approach to established, and sales personnel were business but by no means the easiest or trained. Then and only then were the least costly. It also works. cars shipped.

That was 1959 and, like the beetle, the original concept hasn't changed much, only improved upon. To open a Volkswagen dealership today you must do more, much more. Like construct an all-new building, install new and sophisticated equipment, and train diagnosticians. For several years a lot of people around Prestonsburg wanted To you, the customer, it means that policy of "service before sales".

Volkswagen dealers like it. They like it because they know just what kind of Voldswagen dealer is opening in Topeka, Kansas, next Tuesday and the dealer in Topeka knows exactly what kind of dealer opened in Prestonsburg last Wednesday.

the Volkswagen franchise but Palmer wherever you go, and even if you've never been there before, you know there will be a Volkswagen dealer much like the one in your hometown. It also Since 1959 we have welcomed new means that after each new dealer opening your Volkswagen becomes a little better buy.

The Floyd County Catholic Parish extends an invitation to the public to two worship-discussion programs. In MARTIN, at Our Lady of the Way Hospital Chapel, there will be a presentation on the nature of change and the church by William Koupal, the parish's religious educator, on Wednesday, Feb. 18 and the following five Wednesday evenings. During Lent this will be preceded at 7:00 p.m. by Way of the Cross Devotions. And at Saint Theodore Church in PRESTONSBURG a "Friday Evenings In Lent" program is scheduled. Beginning Friday, Feb. 20 and including the following three Fridays, there will be a 6:00 p.m. supper of fish, rice, and tea; Way of the Cross Devotions at 7:00 p.m. followed by an open discussion of the

"It's Our Business To Do Your Worrying"

Tel. 886-2318 Prestonsburg, Ky. The need was great, even urgent. But, anxious as we were, the beginning was not haphazard. Volkswagen wouldn't let you hang up a sign, sell cars, and then practice repairs on the customer's vehicle. Neither would you sell a car and tell the customer you would order a "whatsit" when he came in with a broken "whatsit".

Vance Volkswagen was the first willing and able to meet all the requirements.

Volkswagen franchises in Huntington, Portsmouth, Williamson, Nitro, Gallipolis, and now Prestonsburg. Each year and after each opening we have sold more cars than ever before. This is not unique in Volkswagen. You see, Volkswagen dealers sell more cars than any other dealers in the world. Just so you won't have to back track over that one, we'll say it again. Volkswagen dealers sell more cars than any other dealers in the world.

So now to a transient Volkswagen in distress the Mid-Ohio Valley is no longer the awesome hinterland it once was; and should you find yourself in distress while passing through Ashland, Kentucky, or Topeka, Kansas, relax relief is only minutes away.

VA DENTAL CARE

Under VA's policy on dental care, veterans may receive treatment without supporting military records if it is determined professionally-during the first eight months after discharge-that the condition is service-connected. But the veteran must apply within six months after discharge.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to the ministers for the kind messages of sympathy; those who sent the beautiful floral offerings and to Hall Brothers Funeral Home who helped in our recent bereavement in the death of our dear mother.

immediately available, an unusual number of students had been absent with six teachers affected. At the time, Mr. Dingus himself was suffering from the "bug". The ailment which remains officially undiagnosed, was described by one hospital spokesman this way: "I certainly wouldn't want to be quoted as saying it is flu, but I will say that it acts like the flu . . . there is fever, aching, dizziness, and some stomach discomfort ... and the danger of pneumonia." At the health department, it was said that the epidemic was certainly more severe than had been expected. Most hospital spokesmen seemed to agree that the virus is no more severe than that of last winter.

removal of the limitation on local schooltax rates, (3) fringe benefits (group insurance, personal leave, sick leave, sabbatical leave, and optional teacher retirement with full benefits after 30 years' service regardless of age), and (4) an annual cost-of-living increase of 6 per cent on the base salary as indexed in the foundation program.

A so-called teacher-negotiation bill, HB 462, introduced by the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA) is "a slap at every teacher in this state," said Dr. J. M. Dodson, KEA's executive secretary.

"The fact that KSBA leaders would draft such repressive anti-teacher legislation demonstrates why we need KEA's professional negotiation bill, HB 215, which has been in the works for more than four GIVEN ASSIGNMENT years," asserted Dr. J. M. Dodson.

'Not only is the KSBA bill unacceptable, but we are advised that it violates basic Constitutional rights as well," said Dodson. Dodson said HB 462 is not a negotiation bill. It merely allows teachers to meet and confer with local boards of education. Nor does it provide any machinery for resolving the impasse through the use of advisory individuals or groups, as does KEA's HB 215. The KSBA bill purports to give teachers certain rights, said Dodson, but at the same time it takes away those rights by setting forth punitive provisions that can only be described as excessive.

We will not go into his plans for a special matinee on Saturdays and Sundays, but will hazard the guess that his and other theatres would be glad to get back to good, decent pictures—if viewers were good and decent enough to go, see them. Somebody in exasperation or desperation, or something, once cried, "The public be damned!" but that wasn't a fellow in a highly competitive business. The public, you and I, dictate by our patronage or lack thereof, the type of movies shown ... even what businesses will be open on Sundays.

FARM REPORT

My annual supply of seed catalogues is far behind schedule, and this leaves me late with my 1970 crop. I usually do my farming in the depths of winter, from an easy chair, preferably before a crackling fire. It is then that I do a Walter Mitty and put Luther Burbank and his whole tribe to shame, plants and shrubs and flowers springing up and blooming in sizes, shapes and colors that no other field or garden ever grew.

This is not to say that I haven't been occupied while waiting for the clouds to break and the winds to shift. There are the fishing magazines, and they have a few ads I haven't got around to yet.
