

Beaver Creeks To Get Biggest EDA Water System in State

Project To Cost $3 Million; Bids Asked This Week

The four-year fight to win for the Beaver Creeks a modern water system ended in success last week when final approval of the project, largest of its kind to be undertaken in Kentucky, was made by the Economic Development Administration and the Kentucky Department of Health authorized construction.

As a result, the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District this week advertised for construction bids and set the contract letting for 1:30 p.m. (EDT) May 22.

For the undertaking EDA has made an outright grant of $2,232,000. The district will finance remainder of the estimated $3 million cost through EDA loan.

The work will involve construction of approximately 80 miles of mains, beginning at the preparation plant site on the Big Sandy at Allen and extending up Beaver Creek to Martin, then branching off to serve both the Right and Left Beaver Creek sections of the county. It is the largest EDA-backed water project in Kentucky. On Right Beaver Creek water service will be extended to the Floyd-Knott line, above Wayland. The Left Beaver branch will include Clear Creek.

Other construction items for which bids are sought are water storage tanks—one of 400,000-gallon capacity, two of 200,000 gallons each, one of 100,000 gallons and an fifth of 60,000 gallons; the water treatment plant itself, intake facilities, concrete tank foundations and miscellaneous structures.

The successful bidder will have two years in which to complete the job, but service is expected to consumers within the next 15 to 18 months, it was said.

The sprawling water system will serve the town of Martin, which already has its municipal water system, as well as Wayland, Lackey, Garrett, Bosco, Eastern, Maytown, Drift, McDowell, Price, Ligon (See Story No. 1, Page 12)

Isbell Is Named To Select Group

Charles "Joe" Isbell, assistant professor of botany at Prestonsburg Community College, has been named one of the three "Great Teachers" in the University of Kentucky Community College system.

The P.C.C. Student Congress nominated Isbell as P.C.C.'s "Great Teacher" in February of this year. His name was then submitted in competition with those chosen from the other 14 U.K. community colleges.

Isbell was notified last Wednesday of the award designating him as one of the top three teachers in the community college system. A public presentation of the award—a plaque and check for $500—will be made May 9 at the annual U.K. alumni dinner. He will also be a special platform guest at the 103rd annual U.K. commencement on May 11.

Mr. Isbell received his B.S. degree from Georgetown University and his M.S. from the University of Kentucky. He is the son of Mrs. Ruth Isbell, of Prestonsburg, and the late Samuel L. Isbell.

This Town . . . That World

The "snow on the hillside" that appeared with the blooming of the dogwoods has melted. We regret its passing much more than the real brand that covered the hills and us, too, only a few weeks back.

WELCOME TO THE CLUB!

That long-drawn-out echo you may or may not have heard, the other day, could have come from as far away as the Stepp farm-pond, near Bonanza, when Harry Burke tangled with a 5-pound, 2-ounce bass. Bill Hall somewhat enviously witnessed the mon-u-mental struggle, then expressed the fear that he might just at that very moment have lost a golfing partner.

HERE'S HOW

Lenna Moore and Ellis Martin have been reappointed to the Floyd County Election Commission. It has been a source of wonder, for some time now, how it is that Mr. Moore gets appointed and reappointed so often. Now it may be that I know. Lenna sends in the list, writ by hand, and his name just happens to be the only one they can read, down at Frankfort.

INVITATION TO TWO ONLY

Received from Ray Hornback, Morehead State University vice-president for university affairs, an invitation to the MSU alumni banquet at May Lodge, Friday evening. Liked that line of Ray's which said, "We would like to have you and your wife or girl-friend (but not both) as our guests. . ."

IT TAKES THREE STRIKES

Joe Isbell refutes the old theory that any time a fellow goes home to teach or coach he has two strikes on him, as a starter. He came home, and here he turns up one of the three instructors in the entire Community College system to win "Great Teacher" honors. We're glad on two counts—that he won, and that he came home to do it.

Two Hurt Monday In Middle Cr. Wreck

Condition of Earl Chaffins, 23, of Pyramid, and Tommy Slone, Jr., 42, of Prestonsburg, who were injured in a truck wreck on KY 850 on Middle Creek late Monday afternoon was described at the Prestonsburg General Hospital Tuesday as "satisfactory."

Slone suffered three broken ribs, multiple bruises and lacerations. Chaffins was severely cut and bruised.

The two were hurt when the truck driven by Chaffins wrecked on a curve at the foot of the mountain on the left fork of Middle Creek and plunged 30 feet over an embankment. Slone, it was said, was pinned in the wreckage but Chaffins was thrown clear.

Judge Kills Motions To Void Indictments

Narcotics Case Defendants Win On Other Points

Motions of two defendants named in indictments charging possession of narcotics were denied their motions to quash last Thursday, but Circuit Judge Hollie Conley overruled their motions with the provision that the Commonwealth amend the indictments to show on their face the statutory section alleged to have been violated.

The motions were filed by Sammy Music and Sammy Nelson.

The court also directed in the two cases that the Commonwealth make the following disclosures to defendants' attorney:

1. Samples of any material or matter or narcotic to be used as evidence against them.
2. Copies of any report of analysis of such matter or narcotic.
3. Copies of statements made by witnesses who appeared before the grand jury.

Judge Conley also directed that defendants may take witnesses for the Commonwealth under court process for the purpose of discovery of evidence.

The court also sustained a motion of Clarence Martin, liquor case defendant, to quash the affidavit for search warrant and the search warrant itself. The case against Martin was dismissed.

Trial of William Riley Wells, Jr. on a possession count resulted in a "hung" jury.

Two appeals to circuit court were dismissed and the cases were remanded to the courts of their origination. One of these was the appeal of John F. DeRossett from a Prestonsburg police court conviction on a charge of having no operator's license. The other was that of German Salisbury, who had been convicted in quarterly court on a liquor possession charge.

Charlie Keathley entered pleas of guilty to charges of conversion and two counts of knowingly receiving stolen property. He was given a one-year pen term on each count. James Slone was fined $50 and sentenced to a 30-day jail term on a possession charge.

Million-Dollar Suit Filed in Deaths of 2

Damages totalling $1 million were asked in a suit filed in circuit court here last week as an aftermath of the April 10 highway tragedy in which a young Magoffin county couple lost their lives near here. The action is believed to be the biggest of its kind filed here.

Jimmy George Layne and Lloyd's Standard Service Station, both of Prestonsburg, were named defendants in the action which was filed by B. F. Cooper, administrator of the estate of his son, Wayne Douglas Cooper, and by Marion Robert Elrod, administrator of the estate of his daughter, Mrs. Tamara Elrod Cooper. Young Cooper was a student at Prestonsburg Community College, and his bride of a few weeks was an employee of the First National Bank here.

The complaint alleges that Layne negligently ran the auto which he was driving into the lane of traffic being travelled by the Coopers, causing a collision of the Cooper car with another vehicle. Damages of $500,000 were asked in the death of each of the victims.

Defendant was an agent or employee of Lloyd's Standard Service Station, and the 1970 Ford he was driving was owned by Lloyd's, it was claimed.

The week saw the filing of four other damage suits involving motor vehicle wrecks, and these asked a total of $78,000 damages. In a suit filed April 27 A. L. Tuttle names Lysle Hayes and his employer, Frank Adams, doing business as Adams Used Auto Parts, asking $20,000 damages for injuries suffered allegedly as a result of the negligence of Hayes and while he was on Adams' premises, near here. Among injuries listed was a fractured wrist.

Damages amounting, in all, to $33,000 were asked in a complaint filed April 28 by Carl Hall, Dottie Sue Hall and Randy Allen Hall, an infant, against Ronnie Boyd and Noah B. Conn. They allege that Boyd left, unattended, a disabled truck on the travel portion of a public road and that this negligence resulted in the car driven by Carl Hall colliding with the truck. It is claimed that Hall's two passengers, Dottie

Tuberculosis Testing For Wayland Area Set For Thursday

The mobile X-ray unit, donated by the Kentucky Elk Lodges will be near the company store at Wayland Thursday, May 7, from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. Dr. R. L. Hall, health officer, urges all teachers, foodhandlers, known contacts of tuberculosis cases and citizens living in the Wayland area to take advantage of this free service and have chest X-rays made.

Those who have received letters requesting that they have larger chest pictures made should present those letters to the technician on duty at the trailer.

Candidacy of Combs Becomes a Certainty

The candidacy of Bert T. Combs for governor became as certain last Thursday as anything can be in Kentucky politics.

Speaker of the House Julian M. Carroll, of Paducah, announced at a Louisville press conference that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, and at the same time made it clear that he will be running with Ex-Governor Combs.

And Combs broke the silence he set out to keep till his resignation from the U. S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals becomes effective June 5, to praise Carroll, thus clearing away any doubt that he will be a candidate.

Several Floyd county supporters of Combs were present when Carroll made his formal announcement.

Combs' had this to say later:

"Julian is a fine young man and has made a good record as a member of the (state) House of Representatives and as House speaker. I think he would make a good lieutenant governor and it would be an honor to run with him."

"My present position as a federal judge dictates, at least to me, that I should not at this time make a more specific statement as to my future plans except to say that after I leave the bench, I hope to be of service to the people of my state in whatever capacity I believe and others feel I can be useful."

"I have agreed to remain in my present post until June 5, 1970, since the workload of the court might be increased and decisions in certain cases delayed if I should leave the court before that date."

"By June 5, I shall have completed work on all cases in which I have responsibility. I plan to make a full statement shortly after that date."

Carroll received an ovation when he made his first statement, announcing his own candidacy. And he received prolonged applause when he said, "I can tell you that I have every reason to believe that on June 6, 1970, the day after Judge Combs leaves the federal bench, he will announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor of Kentucky."

"You can be assured that I would not be making my announcement today unless I firmly believed that Judge Combs will be a candidate for governor, and that we shall become a working team to bring to the people of Kentucky a new and positive program for progress in our great Commonwealth."

"The problems which we now face and will face in the '70s in Kentucky demand both experience and enthusiasm, qualities which I strongly believe you will find in the team of Bert T. Combs and Julian Carroll."

Traffic Violations Main Arrest Cause

Traffic at the county jail was on the light side over the week-end, with traffic offenses the strongest charges filed. Those booked:

Vernon Gayheart, reckless driving and speeding, booked by Constable Gillis Conn; Merlin Hall, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Bevin; Harlan Slone, drunk driving and hit-run driving, by Deputy Sheriff Otto Fannin; Johnny Joe Collins, drunk driving, by State Trooper Brenner; Melvin Hall, drunk driving, by State Trooper Rose; Raymond Reynolds, reckless driving, by Troopers Rose and Ross; Janon Coburn, drunk driving, by Troopers Bevin and Thornsberry.

The Old Water Mill Among First Early Ky. Community Enterprises

The water-driven grist mill such as here shown was in the early days of Kentucky one of the first business enterprises to become a part of a community.

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
 Staff Writer, UK College of Agriculture

In the pioneer days of Kentucky settlement, millers ranked in importance with schoolteachers and preachers. Just as teaching and preaching required some skills in order to provide food for the mind and soul, so did milling which provided food for the stomach.

Actually in those early days, a miller outranked the teacher and preachers, but this, of course, was no reflection upon the worth of these two professionals. It was more a matter of expediency. In its beginnings, a new settlement or community could get by for a time without a school or a church, but it could hardly go for long without bread. As a consequence, when settlers set out for new lands, a miller and his millstones rode on the lead wagon or ox cart. Then upon reaching their destination, a site on a stream with a proper "fall" was selected and a mill erected.

One such mill once stood on the banks of Lower Devil's Creek some 15 miles south of Campton. It was originally built and operated around the mid 1800's by Uncle Billy Booth, formerly of Virginia, and common ancestor of many of the Booths now living in Lee and Wolfe counties.

This mill had an "overshot" wheel and was largely constructed of wood. Even the meshing gears that turned the ponderous millstones were made of wooden pegs fitted into wheels sawn from logs. Grinding grain on such a mill was a slow process, but bread from the meal was of superior taste. There was little flavor-degenerating heat produced by the slowly turning granite burrs.

In the tradition of all other millers, Uncle Billy collected "toll" which was a small portion of every bushel of wheat or corn brought in. What part of this toll he didn't need for himself, he sold or bartered and was thus able to make a good living for himself and his family.

This old mill became an important meeting place for the community and shortly after its establishment, a church was erected on the creek banks nearby. It may have been pure coincidence which can explain everything while proving nothing, but at the time there were some who believed the church was a factor in the destruction of the mill.

A few years after its establishment, a schism developed in the church—a separation so disruptive that the membership was split right down the middle. This brought dire warnings from outsiders that a house divided could not stand, and sure enough it didn't. One warm night in the month of June of the year 1882, there was a flood on Lower Devil's Creek that washed away not only the church, but also Uncle Billy's grist mill.

Deprived of spiritual comfort and the ingredients for biscuit, cornpone, and johnnycake, the community was in a bad shape indeed, but the situation didn't last for long. The people immediately pitched in and helped Uncle Billy rebuild his mill, and research into the story leads to the belief that the religious disagreement resulted in two churches instead of one. The church houses, however, were erected this time on hilltops well above the high water line.

Uncle Billy's second mill lasted up until the turn of the century, but is gone now and only a few old timbers and a faded yellow, 60-year-old photograph remain as visual evidence of its existence. Some say, though, that on warm summer nights when the moon is down and whippoorwills call from the timber, there can be heard low groans coming from the site—sounds such as are made by the turning of ungreased mill wheels.

But this, of course, is only imagination. Grist mills, as far as anyone knows, do not produce ghosts.

This is Oldsmobile's year at Indy.

Isn't it your year for an Olds?

The knowing folks at Indy just named Olds 4-4-2 official pace car for this year's 500.

For good reason. Olds is not only an excellent performer, it's a winner in looks and ride as well.

The fact is, every 1970 Olds is a pacesetter. And it goes far beyond than performance.

You find it in great engineering, in exceptional comfort. In ride and handling that are outstanding. And in the solid quality and dependability you've come to expect from Oldsmobile.

In fact, it's this quality that leads many people to believe that Olds is priced out of their reach. A mistaken notion that might keep you in an ordinary car, instead of an Olds.

The truth of the matter is that many Olds models are priced right down with the low-price names.

Now that you have the facts, isn't this your year to go Oldsmobile? You can probably do so for no more than what you've been paying. See your nearest Olds dealer!

Co-Ops To Join In Observance

The Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative will join electric cooperatives across America May 11 in observance of the 35th anniversary of the Rural Electric Administration (REA).

Planning its part in the observance, Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative officials cite this record of achievement since its organization in 1940:

1. First lines energized July 21, 1941; $4,335,000 invested in REA loans to build and operate 776 miles of line and other facilities in five counties of the area, serving 5,000 customers.

2. Consistently repays its loan, with interest, on time, even ahead of time. These payments on principal have amounted to $1,678,298.58, with interest payments totalling $796,368.

3. Last year, paid $21,277.97 in property taxes.

In addition to electric service, these cooperatives serve 2 million telephone subscribers in 46 states.

Of the $7.1 billion borrowed to meet electricity needs, the government has lost through foreclosures only $44,500. For telephone facilities $1.7 billion has been borrowed, and there has been no loss on this.

CAPITAL DIGEST

Edited by— Thornton Connell

Objections were raised at a meeting of the Frankfort-Franklin County Planning Commission that a high-rise building such as the Investors Heritage Life Insurance Company wants to erect at Second Street and Capital Avenue would obstruct views of the State Capitol.

PARK SET FOR GREEN RIVER

Gov. Louie B. Nunn announced establishment of a new, Green River Reservoir State Park near Cambellsville in the Lone Valley area of Taylor county on a 1300-acre site leased from the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers at no cost to the state. State Parks Commissioner W. James Host said he expected to open the swimming beach and picnic area at the park this summer and to complete camping facilities by the summer of 1971. The new park is 37th in the state's system of resort parks and historic shrines.

MEDICAID COSTS CUT

Commissioner Merritt S. Deitz Jr., said a tightening since last July 1 administrative procedures in the Department of Economic Security has appreciably cut the oncoming costs of Kentucky's Medicaid program. The trend to reduce costs, he said, has raised hopes the program of medical assistance for welfare recipients can be kept within its budget for the current fiscal year. The overall budget for the program is $52 million, with the federal government providing about $45 million and the state the remainder.

REVENUE ON TARGET

Kentucky's general fund revenue of $377,141,686 for the first nine months of the fiscal year was .67 per cent below the estimate but nearly 8 per cent more than last year's receipts for the comparable period. The tax-receipt portion of the road fund for the three-quarters was $122,804,439, up 5.3 per cent and almost exactly on the estimate. Revenue Commissioner James Luckett and Finance Commissioner Albert Christen said the trend indicates the general fund would get $524 million and the road fund $166 million for the year, as anticipated.

APPROVES TUITION INCREASES

The State Council on Public Higher Education has approved tuition increases of up to $50 a year for both in-state and out-of-state students at the seven state-supported universities and colleges. Some special increases also were approved. The University of Louisville, due to enter the state-supported system July 1, will not raise its in-state tuition for undergraduates, which is currently $1050 a year, but will up its out-of-state tuition from $1800 to $1950.

Who's Who Athlete

Tony Burchett, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Burchett, of Prestonsburg, has been nominated for inclusion in the 1970 Who's Who in High School Athletics.

An offensive guard and defensive tackle for the Prestonsburg Black Cats football team, Burchett was named most valuable player for 1969 and was given honorable mention by the Courier-Journal in its all-state team selections. He also has taken part in track and high jump activities as well as being president of his junior and senior classes.

The publication will be released this summer and will include a picture and resume of the nominees who are outstanding athletes from over the country.
