The Leslie County Plan

Leslie County Judge Wooton and others with qualities of leadership apparently have decided that their county's future lies in being a place where people live in a deeper, truer sense rather than where people live only till the place is "worked out."

These leaders may be drawing toward a sound and sensible solution of problems that are not too great at the moment but which, if neglected, could become insurmountable. They are building up a defense not only against surface mining but also against other industrial practices that will, if uncontrolled, destroy the happy environment of wooded mountains, clean air and clear streams in that rugged area.

The defense is countywide zoning—a thoughtfully planned means of developing the county and of preserving its beauty and liveability now and for the future.

The right of a county to plan and zone for proper land use has survived a variety of legal tests. So it is that Leslie county has reasonable hope of not only controlling strip and auger mining but also of eliminating unsightly and damaging features of deep mining, of restricting objectionable types of construction, even of making road-building more than a hit-and-miss undertaking.

Prestonsburg and Martin are the only Floyd county communities that now have zoning commissions. The incorporated towns of Allen, Wayland and Wheelwright could have them. Perhaps these municipalities should get busy now in a move to stem the tide while a Floyd County Zoning Commission is being formed to do a thoughtful, long-range job of development planning and to do things which neither state nor federal governments appear willing to do.

Prestonsburg's zoning commission a few years ago stopped a building development near Dewey Lake because the project was considered inimical to the lake areas and the development plan that had been evolved. At that time its zoning commission had jurisdiction for a distance of five air miles.

With such a range, zoning commissions for five towns in this county might, with the proper view of needs, and given a considerable amount of intestinal fortitude, be the answer to some of the county's most pressing problems. Local zoning commissions might be able to keep a finger in the dike till a more comprehensive county commission is formed to come to the rescue.

P'BURG GIRL IN STATE MUSIC CONTEST

Prestonsburg high school junior Marilyn Rose is a finalist in the 1970 Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs Music Contest, to be televised in color on Channel 11 at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 21. The 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rose selected Debussy's "Deux Arabesques, No. 2" for her piano performance.

The ceremony will take place Tuesday, June 23, at the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist church, with vows being exchanged at 7 p.m.

The gracious custom of "open church" will be observed.

Rice-May Wedding Solemnized June 13

Mr. and Mrs. George Rice, of Banner, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Edna Lynn, to William L. May, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. May, Jr., of Prestonsburg. The wedding took place June 13, at Clintwood, Va., and was solemnized by the Rev. Roy L'leming.

Mt. Manor Approved As Nursing Facility

The Board of Commissioners of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has approved the Mountain Manor Nursing Home of Prestonsburg as an accredited nursing care facility.

This is the result of the evaluation of the survey conducted April 13 by a field representative of the Joint Commissions.

The letter of approval read in part: "The Joint Commission wishes to commend you for maintaining standards deserving of accreditation and for your continuing effort to improve the quality patient care."

The accredited facility is one which has voluntarily chosen to operate on a higher level than that legally required and the Certificate of Accreditation serves as an indication that the institution adheres to the most rigid self-imposed standards.

LETTERS To The Editor

ON THE PLIGHT OF THE PEOPLE

Editor, The Times:

Is it constitutional for the Kentucky Department of Highways to appraise the people's property on a figure from the past, present this appraisal price to us, the people, regardless of whether we think it is a fair price or not, or what we could have sold the land for—then present the price to the owner and he or she accepts, or the property is condemned, and the owners told that if they refuse the price offered the state can keep the matter in court for years?

The people are confused, so they take the price offered them, for they can't afford to bear the expense of a court battle of years in duration.

The Highway Department is paying, all through Floyd county, 1929 prices, but we have to buy back at 1970 prices—and even then we can't find property as good as we had.

Is it unconstitutional, or is it a dictatorship?

And don't grin and shrug this off without thought, for it may be your home they will be taking next.

Should property-owners have to sacrifice their homes to pay for a road that is for the benefit of all the people—or is this our penalty for working hard and trying to have a home?

Drift and Winchester Move Up, P'burg and Hazard Share Lead

Drift and Winchester sound the alarm as the division races suddenly gets tighter. Drift, with tight pitching, beat Nicholasville, Friday, and shut out division leader, Prestonsburg, Sunday, while Winchester moved to within half a game of first in the Central Division by whipping Nicholasville twice.

With the addition of several players, Maysville has started the uphill battle, having won the last two. Approaching the halfway point of the season, the division races are still hard to figure, with no team showing a definite edge over all the others. Following are the standings and schedules for this week:

New Food Stamp Rules Benefit 6,686 Persons in Floyd County

Food stamps have more meaning than ever before for low-income families. That's the opinion of Floyd county welfare administrator, Ronald J. Wright, who reports that participation in the program continues to show a significant increase following inauguration of important rule changes last February. Mr. Wright noted that during February participation in the program in this county increased by more than 400 persons as compared with the previous month. "This increase is due almost entirely to the fact that the new food stamp rules make the program of significantly greater value to low-income families who need help in improving their diets," Wright said. Generally the rule changes involved reducing the purchase requirement and increasing the amount of free food coupons many eligible families receive. Wright urged local volunteer groups, civic clubs and other organizations to offer their services to help families getting food stamp aid.

"Many food stamp families have no regular transportation, either to the food stamp issuance office or to the grocery store," Wright noted. "By volunteering to provide this transportation, as well as helping instruct families in wise buying practices and other activities, local organizations in Floyd county will be making a valuable contribution to the community," he said. During May, 1970, officials of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service reports, a total of 6,686 persons in Floyd county paid $51,740.50 of their own money for $164,000 worth of food coupons. This means, FNS officials note, that the economy of the county received a

Miss Malissa Allen Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Francis, Prestonsburg, cuts a chain of ivy symbolically severing the ties between two of her classmates at Christian College, Columbia, Missouri, at graduation ceremonies.

MISS FRANCIS IN IMPORTANT ROLE AT COLLEGE IVY CHAIN CEREMONY

Miss Malissa Allen Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Francis, Prestonsburg, played an important role in the traditional Ivy Chain ceremony held last week at Christian College, Columbia, Missouri.

In the formal farewell ceremony, senior women dressed in colorful long dresses file onto the campus lawn carrying a long chain of ivy looped over each girl's shoulder. They form a circle and class officers cut the ivy separating each senior from her classmates. As treasurer of her graduating class, Miss Francis was one of those who wielded scissors in the ceremony.

The 1970 Ivy Chain ceremony at Christian College was an especially meaningful one for two reasons. It was the first such ceremony in which male students took part. (After 118 years of educating only young women, the college accepted its first male students last September.) And it was the last "Christian College" Ivy Chain. On July 1 the school will adopt the name "Columbia College" to clarify the fact that it is an independent non-sectarian college.

Miss Francis was graduated from Christian College May 27 with an associate of arts degree.

He received his A. B. degree from Marquette University where he was graduated with a degree in law in 1968. He and Mrs. Crowley, the former Patricia Evans, have two children.

Re-elected as directors were Mrs. Iley B. Browning, chairman of the board, Joe Hobson, W. J. May, Mary E. Powers, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., Dr. George P. Archer, Walter Scott Browning, Ervin Akers, and Donald D. Harkins, advisory member.

"Call first" is the new motto of Social Security. It may save you a trip. The number is 432-2177.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister:

Brenda Kay Holbrook, it has been five years since you went away. If only you were here today. I know you are at peace in the distant far, never to be hurt by pills again. You left us on the fifteenth of June, 1965, at the age of three years, one month and seven days. These have been a sad and lonesome, heart-broken five years since you passed from our home. Some don't know the sadness you have left with us, but God in heaven knows. It is coming to us all. This sadness has helped to shorten my days and caused heart-breaks to the rest, your mother and brothers and sisters. Oh, how happy we were together, unaware of the future. We were all so pleased to be with you in ways nobody else will know. I am sure you know the love we had for you, for it was felt in us all for the presence of us all by little things on special occasions, for we knew the love we had for you when you were here with us.

There was love and joy in our home, but now we have sorrow and grief. There have been many tears shed that other people knew nothing about.

Sadly missed by your mother and father,

WILLIE AND OSIE HOLBROOK AND CHILDREN

When they're looking up to you, are they really looking down at you?

The station wagon on the left is known in some circles as a status symbol.

The station wagon on the right is known in the same circles as a mistake.

Now the status symbol is long and low and really quite beautiful.

Whereas the Volkswagen is short and high and really quite ugly.

The status symbol features a powerful engine.

A Volkswagen engine is not as powerful, but it'll go farther on a gallon of gas.

The status symbol boasts roughly 88 cubic feet of carrying space.

The Volkswagen has twice that amount, 176 cubic feet.

Conclusion: If you're looking for something to show how big you are, then we suggest you get yourself a status symbol.

But if you're looking for something that's just plain big, then maybe it wasn't us, who made the mistake after all.

Pikeville College Gets $2500 Gulf Grant

PIKEVILLE, KY.—Pikeville College recently received a cash grant of $2,500 from the Gulf Oil Foundation for the college's unrestricted use.

Dr. Robert S. Cope, college president, said the grant will be used in constructing the college's new multi-million dollar science center, to be completed in 1971.

Terrell Coleman, president of Coleman Oil Company, Inc., new distributor for Gulf in the Pikeville, Ky., area, presented the $2,500 check to Dr. Cope. Raymond Zemo, Prestonsburg, representative for Gulf in several Eastern Kentucky counties, attended the presentation.

Of the workers trained under the Manpower Development and Training Act, three out of five have not finished high school, and one out of six has not completed the eighth grade.

Oil Executive Warns Division May Destroy

Barbourville, Ky.—Rexford S. Blazer, chairman of the board of Ashland Oil, Inc., told graduating seniors at Union College that solutions to national problems will not be won by an exploitation of differences, but by a fusing of understanding and compassion based on fundamental Christian attitudes.

"The test of your generation could well be whether it can continue the forward progress of this country, while preserving the timeless values on which our civilization rests. If it fails, the alternative is to continue down the road of rebellion, destruction of property and defiance of authority until we must choose between the logical consequences—a country destroyed by revolution and delivered into the hands of international Communism or a homeland dictatorship demanded by the final need for centralized authority to prevent rebellion and mob rule. The clear lesson of history is that violence begets violence."

The oil industry executive told graduates that it is essential that Americans "resist the efforts of forces designed to divide us," noting a new language of division which he said has crept into the American vocabulary. Its phrases, he said, include "The Generation Gap," "The Establishment" and other "over-simplifications."

"Frankly, I don't know where the Generation Gap occurs. Is it after high school? After college? After age 30? The trick of this illusion is that it automatically compels the listener—any listener—to identify himself as either young or old, committing him to take sides in a contest, instead of participating rationally in a discussion.

"The situation is aggravated, I think, by overemphasis on youth as a distinct class in our society. Even in sophisticated circles, there is accepted an oft-repeated fallacy: Half our population is under twenty-five. That's not true, and probably never will be true within our lives. It was true once—very briefly—in 1920.

"But I'm not talking about statistics. I'm talking about the cleavage so erroneously implied.

"In truth, there are no such distinct separations of ages—but a continuity of ages."

Congratulating President Mahlon Miller, his administration, the faculty and Union College students for setting an example of orderly, peaceful conduct in the midst of college rioting throughout the country, Mr. Blazer said the "intelligence, skills, reason, sensitivity and participation of all younger Americans will be required in a world which is profoundly insecure."

And he declared Communist activists in this country are exploiting that insecurity.

"The Communists told us many years ago that by 1972 every college and university in this nation would be closed by revolution. To our horror, we suddenly realize this could be true!"

He added that mounting evidence indicates that much campus turmoil today is "instigated, magnified or encouraged by support from Communist affiliated organizations according to documentary proof now available."

And he added that riots, destruction and violence is "practically guaranteed to end in the withdrawal of public support for higher education, with disastrous consequences for us all, but especially for our youth."

Mr. Blazer said an informed and intelligent younger America remains the country's greatest hope.

Mr. Blazer said the "vast majority" of the college students are part of a "generation that is probably one of the most idealistic and humane of our history." These young people, to a greater degree than any previous generation, are devoted to racial understanding and justice and to religious tolerance.

"I remain confident that this idealism will be channeled into increasingly constructive directions, giving rise to an increasing degree of compassion and social commitment.

"Thus, the effort of responsible citizens must be toward accord on the deep issues arrived at through persuasion and reasoned discussion, not through force and violence.

"It is essential to the preservation of our freedoms that we resist the efforts of forces designed to divide us—and having divided us, to exploit us, and eventually to conquer us."

Plugging of Oil, Gas Wells To Be Done in Cave Run Area

FRANKFORT, KY.—The Oil and Gas Division, Department of Mines and Minerals, is planning to assist in plugging some 60 oil and gas wells at Cave Run Reservoir, now under construction near Morehead.

The wells would be under water when the reservoir is filled and would pollute the reservoir with salt water and oil if left unplugged.

The division supervised plugging of about 300 wells at Barren River Reservoir to prevent pollution there and is working with other state agencies to protect our environment.

While surface pollution is in the news today, underground pollution could be even more serious, according to Frank H. Walker, division director.

"Oil dumped into a river will wash away with the first heavy rains," Walker says. "But contaminate the underground water supply, and there is no way to remove the pollution."

The division fights underground pollution by careful inspection of operating wells and supervising the plugging of abandoned wells.

When a well is abandoned and the casing removed, oil and salt water can rise along the shaft and pollute the fresh water near the surface according to Walker. By properly plugging the shaft with cement the danger can be removed.

The division's 10 inspectors check operating wells for adequate equipment and safety measures to prevent leaks. According to Walker, most well operators try to prevent pollution and to cooperate with the division.

There are approximately 14,000 producing oil wells and 6000 producing gas wells in Kentucky.

Plugging of old wells not only prevents pollution but protects remaining oil underground for future use. According to Walker, today's methods recover only about 60 per cent of the oil. Some day, new techniques will enable man to recover millions of barrels of oil from wells now dead for all practical purposes.
