

Suit for $4 Million Filed on Floyd Work

Two Firms Halt New Bid Opening On US 23 Sector

Rejection by the State Highway Department of bids totalling $9,812,754 on three sectors of new US 23-460 between Stanville and the Floyd-Pike line at Boldman and the readvertising of the work for new bids resulted last Thursday in the filing of a $4 million damage suit by the contractors whose bids were rejected.

New bids were scheduled to be opened at Frankfort but the original low bidder procured a restraining order barring Commissioner of Highways Eugene Goss from receiving or opening them. The order was amended to permit new bids to be received but their opening is still banned.

The suit was filed by the J. D. Barter Construction Company, Harrisburg, Ill., and its subcontractor, the Mattingly Brige Company, Louisville, naming as defendants the Department of Highways, Commissioner Goss, Jack Ruth, Georgetown contractor and president of the Kentucky Association of Highway Contractors, and Victor E. Comley, of Nicholasville, executive director of the association.

The bids rejected were: From a point below Stanville to Tram, 1.287 miles, $2,277,490.44; from Tram to Coldwater Branch, 2.206 miles, $4,366,768.92; from Coldwater Branch to the Floyd-Pike line 1.36 miles, $3,168,495.27.

The demand for damages is confined to Ruth, Comley and the contractors' association. No money is asked of Goss or the highway department.

The suit alleges that between June 26 and July 8 Ruth and Comley "did influence the judgment and decision of the commissioner of highways (Goss) to reject the low bids submitted by Barter... upon the ground, among others, that preference... should be given Kentucky contractors."

Ruth and Comley, it is alleged, were acting "in conspiracy with other individual and corporate highway construction contractors in... Kentucky who were interested in procuring the contracts."

Goss said that he rejected Barter's original bids because, collectively, there were $877,110 over the cost estimates of the department's engineers.

"I felt that an $800,000 overage was entirely too much, especially since we have been getting prices in East Kentucky considerably less than our cost estimates," Goss explained.

Goss said Ruth and Comley did visit his office after the June 26 bid opening.

In a "very brief conversation," Goss said, they did "not directly" ask for the Barter bids' rejection.

However, said Goss, "I had the feeling that it was the desire of Mr. Ruth and Mr. Comley that both that these bids be rejected."

They gave no reason, Goss said, and he thought their actions "very curious."

Father and Son Taken in Raids

Simultaneous raids made Friday by county and state officers in the Pyramid vicinity resulted in the arrest of a father and his son and the confiscation of more than 1700 cans of beer and 68 half-pints of whiskey.

The heavier haul was made by State Trooper Brenner and an ABC agent in a raid on Damon Newsome, from whom 1554 cans of beer and 62 half-pints of whiskey were taken. At the same time an ABC agent, Deputy Sheriff Claude Flannery and State Police Capt. Lykins and Sgt. Ross were arresting the father, Fred Newsome, a half a mile away. They confiscated 152 cans of beer and six half-pints of whiskey.

Others booked at the county jail within the week, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

James Goble, drunk driving and no operator's license, arrested by State Trooper Stansberry; Eula May Hall, flourishing a deadly weapon, by State Troopers Thornsberry, Brenner and Ross; Marlin Hall, drunk driving, arrested by the same troopers; Kim Kindred, fishing without license, by Conservation Officers Conley, Cantrell and McCoy; Donna Turner, interfering with an officer making an arrest, by Officers Reed and Hackworth; Woodrow Lewis, threatening an officer, by Deputy Sheriff Silas DeRossett; Raymond Griffith, drunk driving, by Lt. Sword and Trooper Brenner; Carter Lee Hall, breaking and entering, by Deputy Sheriffs Dester Hamilton and Bill Hall; Dean Ernest Hunter, reckless driving, by Hamilton and Hall; John Davis, possessing alcoholic beverages, drunk driving and (See Story No. 4, Page 10)

Order Halting Sale Of Bonds Dissolved

The temporary restraining order staying the sale of bonds to finance construction of the proposed consolidated high school at Eastern was dissolved last Friday by Circuit Judge Ben Manns, of the Magoffin circuit court.

Judge Manns, who in the absence of Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley granted the temporary injunction last Tuesday, heard arguments of opposing counsel—W. W. Burchett, for the defendants, Supt. Charles Clark and the Floyd County Board of Education; and Joe Hobson, representing Everett Akers, J. R. Key and Frank Salisbury, the plaintiffs.

Much of the argument concerned the contention of defense counsel that the new suit was largely a repetition of an earlier action, a part of which had been decided in favor of the board. The portion of the suit involving continuance of a high school at Martin has not been decided, but it was argued that this has no bearing on the sale of bonds.

Counsel for the plaintiffs disputed the point that the suit was a repetition of the earlier action and maintained that the school construction proposed by superintendent and board is designed to the damage of the town of Martin.

Dissolution of the restraining order presumably clears the way for the sale August 20 of the $650,000 bond issue to finance the new school construction.

The temporary restraining order enjoined the defendants from:

1. Constructing a high school at Eastern.
2. Discontinuing or removing the present high school or any grade from out side the corporate limits of Martin.
3. From accepting any bids on the proposed $650,000 issue which would finance construction of the Eastern school.
4. From transporting any children attending the Martin school to any other outside the city limits.

The mandatory injunction requested would require the defendants to begin, forthwith, construction of an 18-room school, with gymnasium, at Martin.

REGISTRATION SET

The Prestonsburg elementary school will have registration for new students and first graders who have not registered on Monday, August 17, at 9 a.m. The fall term will begin Monday, August 24.

State, County Groups Win Confidence Vote

County Superintendent of Schools, Charles Clark, last Wednesday asked for, and received, from the State Board of Education, a vote of confidence for both the Floyd County Board of Education and the State Department of Education in their plans for a consolidated high school at Eastern.

The state board had earlier heard arguments of Martin residents against the building of the proposed school at Eastern. The board withheld judgment until the county board's side of the matter could be presented.

The vote of confidence was unanimous, it was said.

Clark reviewed the history of the controversy, pointing out that a 1961 survey team recommended the consolidation of the four high schools in the Right Beaver Creek valley, once adequate classrooms had been provided for rural children. The 69 one-room rural schools in use at that time have been reduced to six. He pointed out that in 1965 a State Department of Education team looked at four potential sites for the proposed consolidated high school—at Martin, at Stephens Branch, near Martin, Maytown and Eastern.

"The only 10-acre sites near Martin or on Stephens Branch," he said, "were lowlying and subject to flooding; the Maytown site was a mountain top which would create a transportation hazard. The Eastern site contained 11½ gently rolling acres, was above all known flood levels and was located near the center of the area to be served. The survey team recommended that the board choose the site at Eastern. Our board purchased the recommended site and authorized and directed our architect to prepare plans for the facility. We have already invested $75,000 on site and plans."

Clark pointed out that sale of bonds to finance construction has been delayed by two suits filed by residents of Martin but that both suits have been decided by both the Floyd circuit court and the Court of Appeals in favor of the board.

No Court Action Planned by Man Shot Second Time

Sheriff's deputies said Monday that James "Whacker" Spears was shot Saturday night for the second time by his kinswoman, Elizabeth Jervis, but that he will not prosecute.

Spears was struck by shotgun pellets in his arm and back but he refused to go to a hospital for treatment. Deputy Sheriff Claude Flannery, who with State Detective James Harmon investigated the case, said Mrs. Jervis told them she fired as Spears was trying to force his way into her home on Home Branch of Buffalo Creek. Spears disappeared after the shooting, and the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad was called out to search for him. He was found behind an abandoned building, in the vicinity of his home.

Officers said Spears walks with a limp, the result of a shot fired by the same woman several years ago.

A hearing for a 10-year-old Hi Hat boy, accused of shooting at without wounding State Trooper Don Thornsberry Friday night has been set for Aug. 20 in juvenile court. The shooting allegedly took place during a chase leading from a service station to the boy's home. The youth's (See Story No. 3, Page 10)

Return to Work Follows Meeting Tuesday Morning

Mines of the Island Creek Coal Company, at Price and Printer were believed ready to resume operation Tuesday night following a vote of members of Local Union 5899 at Wheelwright to return to work.

The return-to-work vote was recorded in a union meeting held at Wheelwright high school Tuesday morning.

Asked if differences between the company and its workers had been ironed out, a local union official said no definite understanding had been reached but that it is believed concrete agreement will be possible with the return to work.

The strike began at the Wheelwright-Price operations of the company, July 30, and spread to the company's Spurlock mine at Printer, August 3. Last Monday, a temporary restraining order was procured from the Boyd circuit court to enjoin the local union from maintaining a strike in violation of the labor contract and from maintaining a picket line to prevent others from working. Later, as the court action apparently was without effect, local union officials were cited for contempt.

Chester Mosley, president of Local Union 5899, pointed out that local union officials did not call the men out of the mines, adding that he and other union officers were in a meeting with company representatives, trying to negotiate their differences, when the men walked out.

Plan To Bypass Quarterly Court Hit by Stumbo

County Judge Henry Stumbo has taken strong exception to plans announced last week by the sheriff's office to dismiss liquor cases in quarterly court in order to take the cases to the grand jury and ultimately, get them heard in circuit court.

Judge Stumbo emphasized the point that his court will hear all such cases up to and including those of defendants charged with second-offense violations. Third-offense charges must necessarily go to circuit court, because the penalty involves a possible pen term.

Trial of liquor cases by jurors whose names were not drawn from a jury drum was attacked, earlier this year, by Clyde Blackburn, Landon Charles and Clarence Martin, who enjoined quarterly court to provide a jury drum. For a time the jury drum system was used, but this was discontinued after the Court of Appeals dismissed the injunction. Chief Justice Edward P. Hill in dismissing the injunction held that "appellees have a remedy by appeal," leaving the case to be tried on its merits. This may eventually settle an issue which has appeared in lower courts all over the state.

Kentucky statutes provide for a regular jury system in lower courts, but no provision for jury pay is made. Defendants demanding jury trial were required to pay (See Story No. 5, Page 10)

McClellan Optimistic About Cats Chances

With his team's season-opening game with the Wheelwright Trojans only two weeks away, Coach George McClellan, of Prestonsburg Black Cats, took stock of the situation this week after a full week of practise.

Although making no glowing predictions, Coach McClellan refused to be pessimistic. He said the progress made so far, especially by sophomore players, is encouraging. Thirty-seven boys were on the squad with the beginning of this week's training sessions, and some hefty boys are in the lineup but they have not yet developed the quickness and speed that will be needed in the nitty-gritty of actual play.

On the debit side of the ledger was the loss through graduation this spring of five regulars from last year's team.

"Our sophomores have been working hard, and some of them will be breaking into the regular lineup," the coach predicted.

The quarterback spot will be filled by either Scott Cline or Jeff Hall, and four players—Bill Roberts, Dicky Jarvis, George Hale and Guy Rorrer—are fighting it out for the regular tackle positions.

Greg Campbell will be at fullback, with Rickey Reynolds and Tom Burchett at halfback. Danny Wells, who till this season specialized in basketball, could break into any position in the backfield, McClellan said.

"This boy not only has the ability but the desire that is necessary for any individual who wants to be a football player," he commented.

Listed as outstanding sophomore material were Paul Pelphrey, Jim Calhoun, Jeff Hall, Rickey Elkins, Gary Yates and Danny Wells.

Others expected to see regular play in the line are David George, center; John Paul Leslie and Terry Hickman, guards; Randy Leslie and Doug Prater, ends.

Others composing the 37-man varsity roster are David Burrus, Byron Hamilton, Lowell Branham, Keith Shannon, Mark Neeley, Tom Collins, Allen Cline, Tom Waddle, Mark Lafferty, Rickey Ball, Phillip Neeley, Jack Absher, Ronnie Warrax, Mike Morrison, Reece Ray, Randy Goble, Eugene Burchett, Robert Tackett, Don Goble.

Spoon River lives again as the inhabitants come from the grave to reveal the secrets of small town life in "Spoon River Anthology." The Edgar Lee Masters classic plays its final performances Sunday at 2:30 p.m., August 16, and Monday at 8:30 p.m., August 17, at Prestonsburg Community College. Pictured above (front to back) are Richard Brenckman, Sharon Mills, James Paul Bohr, Cris Newland and Jane Smith.

'Spoon River Anthology' to Close At College; 'Forum' in Last 2 Weeks

Edgar Lee Masters' classic, "Spoon River Anthology," will have its last performances Sunday, August 16, at 2:30 p.m. and the following evening at 8:30 at Prestonsburg Community College. The production is a special workshop production of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

Set in the graveyard of a small Illinois town, "Spoon River Anthology" tells the secrets of the town in a series of vignettes. The stage version, which has been seen both on Broadway and on national television, also contains a folksong score including "A Paper of Pins," "He's Gone Away," and "Sow Took the Measles." The production is directed by Ronald G. Paolillo.

Tickets are limited to 248 per performance and may be reserved by calling 886-3408.

At the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," the Broadway musical comedy smash, moves into its final two weeks. The musical runs Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays through August 22.

When "A Funny Thing..." opened on Broadway in 1962 it took the New York critics by storm. Howard Taubman wrote: "Know what they found on the way to the forum? Burlesque, vaudeville and a cornucopia of mad, comic hokum... You keep laughing as if the old sight and sound gags were as good as new."

Life Magazine shouted: "The belly laugh is back. Whatever happened to all that old-time laughter that exploded in the belly, roared up through the ribs and fizzed out in snorts and chor'les? Well, it's having a comeback. The show is so shamelessly funny it suggests that Rome fell just from laughing too much."

This Town . . . That World

I'M OFF AND RUNNING

There's an off-chance that fate may deal more than deuces to me, after all. I have had a long succession of disappointments, but now there appears to be a light on up there in the clearing.

My ambition to be a railroad engineer lies buried, 'way back there. The nearest I ever got to being a big-league baseball player was when I mounted the mound in one of my better Walter Mitty moments. Even the reputation of a modern-day Izaak Walton has eluded me, and I fear the day may come when I will fall so far below that ideal that I will be only a tottering minnow-dunker.

But things are looking up. Philip H. Love has created in his Washington Evening Star column, "Love on Life," the National Society for the Propagation of Pokeweed, and lovers of poke from all over, forgiving him for calling the delectable herb a weed, have jammed his column with enthusiastic letters in response to his idea.

And here's where I come in. My old friend, J. D. Bond, who makes Derwood, Md. a pleasanter place in a not-always-pleasant world, has written Mr. Love to this effect:

"Your column in today's Evening Star was inspiring. It is an encouraging observation that my native Appalachia is successfully exporting some of its finer culture, i.e., poke salet appreciation."

"The Courier-Journal's Joe Creason is not true Appalachia; neither is his predecessor, Allen M. (Socrates) Trout. Their evangelism for pokeweed was inspired by that true and senior disciple, Norman Allen, who is mostly The Floyd County Times of Prestonsburg, Kentucky. His published teachings before and during the Great Depression (the 30's) spread more nourishment that "relief" grapefruit and the like, which even hogs wouldn't eat."

Immunization Need Not Confined to Tots, Health Officer Says

"Adults as well as children should keep their immunizations up to date," says Dr. Russell L. Hall, Floyd county health officer.

Citing an example of how immunization can save lives and money, Dr. Hall pointed out that of the eight tetanus cases recorded in Kentucky last year, five were among adults. Two of the cases resulted in death.

"The cost of hospitalization alone for each of the eight tetanus cases averaged almost $7,000, compared to only pennies it would have cost for prevention.

Dr. Hall urges all adults to consult their doctor or the county health department to make sure their immunizations are up to date. Adults should be immunized against tetanus, diphtheria, and smallpox. Once the initial series is completed, "boosters" are necessary every 10 years.

"Children are required by law to be immunized against whooping cough, poliomyelitis, measles, diphtheria, tetanus and smallpox," he said.

BALDRIDGE-SLONE VOWS SAID

Miss Daphne Lynn Baldrige, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgille Baldrige, of Hueysville, became the bride of John Marshall Slone, son of Mrs. Marie B. Slone, of Wayland, and the late Kermit E. Slone, Sr., at 7:30 Saturday evening, June 6, at the First Baptist church at Garrett. The double-ring, candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Webb before an antique gold archway with a garland of Lily-of-the-valley and arrangements of White gladioli and mums flanked by candelabra holding lighted white tapers. Each window was lighted by a white candle encircled by ivy, and white and pale pink bows marked the family pews. Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Peggy Rector at the piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line white gown fashioned with long sleeved and chapel wattleau train of silk organza over peau-de-soie appliqued with alencon lace and pearls. Her tiered fingertip veil was secured to a cluster of organza and lace roses. She carried a prayer book covered with white alencon lace and a spray of pink roses, stephanotis and lilly-of-the-valley with white satin streamers.

Miss Brenda Gail Francis, of Garrett, was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of pastel pink, and her short net veil was attached to a matching bow of satin. She carried a nosegay bouquet of pink carnations.

Walter Scott Slone, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and ushers were Hobert Webb, Jr., Jimmy Hopkins and Glenn Collins.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pale pink with white accessories, and the groom's mother wore a pink knit dress with matching accessories.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church by Mrs. Wendell Martin, Mrs. Larry Ward, Mrs. Stanley Bammer and Mrs. Gliden Bradley. The table was covered with a pink Belgian linen cloth with an overlay of white net, centered with a three-tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Walter Webb presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Peggy Rector served the cake.

Mrs. Slone, a graduate of Garrett high school, was Miss Floyd County of 1970. She will attend Eastern State University this fall where Mr. Slone will be a senior and will receive his degree next June.

Can you spot the druggist from Toledo?

Of course not. That's the point. Somewhere in our picture is what appears to be just another Italian playboy sitting in his expensive Italian sports car. But somewhere up there is a very dependable druggist in his very dependable Karmann Ghia. It looks like a racy sports job because it was designed by the Ghia Studios of Turin, Italy. It runs like a Volkswagen because, under the hood, that's exactly what it is. Complete with 4-wheel independent suspension, front disc brakes, 4-speed synchronized gearbox, oil cooler and rear-mounted air-cooled engine. To put an end to the suspense, the Karmann Ghia is the snappy number just left of center. And for a snappy $2,514.50 it's yours. So you can look like the kind of person to whom price is no object. And with the money you save, it won't be.

Annual Folk Festival Set For Sept. 4, 5, 6

Talent is being enlisted and welcomed from far and near so if you can strum, hum, pick or play the old, familiar mountain melodies, Mrs. James, or Elmer M. Beckett, producer, would be glad to hear from you. As in past years, the festival will be presented at Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre.

Redistricting in Kentucky Poses Problem of Splitting Counties

FRANKFORT, KY.—Splitting counties to form new legislative districts now prohibited by the state constitution, may come under study this year by the federal courts.

The Kentucky General Assembly's Interim Committee on State Government has approved a motion by Rep. Harold DeMarcus, R-Stanford, that before the committee did any work on reapportionment the courts be asked to ascertain whether the "one man, one vote" criterion of the Supreme Court can be met without splitting counties to realign legislative districts.

The 1970 census figures show that reapportionment is imminent for Kentucky's House and Senate districts, and Gov. Louie B. Nunn has indicated the need for a special session of the General Assembly to do it.

Federal congressional districts might also come under such a study.

Some states have solved the problem by combining counties to obtain more equal districts, and then have elected more than one legislator from such districts. But Kentucky's Constitution prohibits that.

Sen. Charles Upton, R-Williamsburg, offered an amendment to DeMarcus's motion asking, "that the Legislative Research Commission utilize the services of the attorney general's office for possible institution of legal action, such as a declaration of rights through the proper judicial channels." The amendment was adopted.

The state government committee also heard from a representative of the Kentucky Program Development Office (KPDO), the state's official planning coordinator.

House Speaker Julian M. Carroll, D-Paducah, voiced some concern to KPDO's administrator, Frank Groschelle, that applications for federal approval from local and area groups might meet political pitfalls and not be allowed through the KPDO clearing house on the proper federal agencies.

Groschelle assured the group that his organization could neither approve or disapprove, but simply sits as a coordinating unit to obtain proper state assistance and eliminate possible program duplications.

"Requests for aid on local projects are all forwarded to the federal level either without comment, or with critical comments if KPDO feels such projects are not feasible," Groschelle said.

"At the federal level, the project may be approved despite objections of KPDO," he said. Groschelle also said the state government committee would receive reports of all project applications sent to the federal level, along with any comments sent.

"Regular reports of grants given on local projects will also be furnished the Committee," Groschelle said.

Sgt. Conley Earns Soldier's Medal

Sgt. Darrell Conley, of Garrett, now on his second duty tour in Vietnam, has been awarded the Soldier's Medal for heroism, by order of the President.

The citation accompanying the medal points out that the award was for heroism not involving actual conflict. On Jan. 22, 1970 at Camp Corvad, Vietnam, Sgt. Conley went to the edge of the rifle range upon hearing an explosion and found several Vietnamese dead and wounded. Observing dud grenades and artillery rounds throughout the area, he walked, with disregard for his own safety, through the mine field, marking a trail with his military police gear. Returning to the area of security he called medical corpsmen and led them back through the mine field to aid the wounded, then assisted in carrying them to safety.

Sgt. Conley is a son of Sgt. Jay Conley, USAR, and Mrs. Rose Conley, of Garrett.

7 New Appeals Question Prices On Rights-of-Way

Seven new appeals from right-of-way appraisals made by local appraisers has brought to 65 the total number of appeals filed by the Department of Highways on property evaluations prior to construction of new US 23-460 between Allen and the Floyd-Pike line.

The new appeals, filed in circuit court here, involve property evaluations totalling $305,025. The 65 cases now in court represent a total right-of-way evaluation of more than $1 million.

Defendants in the new appeals and amount allowed each by county appraisers follow:

Chester Layne, et al, $11,125; Mary F. Hill, et al, $45,000; Nannie Lou Adkins Holder, et al, $15,000; George Conn, et al, $38,500; Virgil Goble, et al, $24,500; Della Stumbo, et al, $105,200; Haskel Stratton, et al, $65,700.

Checks in the amount of the appraisals are issued to the landowners, giving the state right of entry upon their property, and amounts paid may be used by the recipients or held in escrow, pending final disposition of the cases.

were members of the Kentucky Association of Highway Contractors at the time. Gobel Mattingly said Friday that he still is a member but that Barter resigned after the current controversy came up.

Goss released a letter from his department to the Frankfort office of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, requesting the bureau to concur in the rejection of the June 26 low bids.

The letter, from contract procurement director J. C. Hawkins, said the department expected better bids to be re-advertised with the following changes:

"Eliminate stage construction on each of these projects. This will delete the two lanes which are required to be opened to traffic on the base course by the fall of 1971. "Extend the over-all completion to Oct. 1, 1972."

The letter was returned with the stamp: "The Bureau of Public Roads concurs in this rejection."

"Nothing influenced my thinking...other than my feeling that the bids were grossly excessive and that...we could get better prices," Goss concluded yesterday. "Whether I was right or wrong will only be known when the bids that were received today are finally opened."

Condition of Paul E. Hayes, Prestonsburg, attorney who has been very ill at Veterans Hospital, Louisville, was described last week as improved.

"In anticipation of a progressive step that lies ahead of you and SFTPOP, I recommend the early designation of a National Poke Warden. Of course, the obvious nominee is that pioneering journalist and crusader, Mr. Norman Allen."

Now, I have an idea others who seek selfish gain and have no proper regard for the great, common people, will toss their hats into the ring and begin circulating false rumors about me. It may be that they will through dark, devious means thwart the will of the people and rob me of this office to which I would give the best of my talents, energies, experience and whatever else I might possess. In short, I view my chances with what amounts to alarm.

Yet, if, perchance, I should be so greatly honored—I shall accept.

In fact, I have already given some thought to my acceptance speech, outlining my plans for equal opportunity to every poke-sallet lover, for its spread through scientific soil preparation to new areas of the country, and for its protection in an age when the ecology is under a dark shadow. I may as well be frank with the public, here at the outset of this campaign. If named to this high office, I will appoint Watt Hale, of West Prestonsburg, Ky., as my press secretary, and J. D. Bond would as my campaign manager be appointed to the office of Pokemaster General.

jury costs. Judge Stumbo, in discontinuing the jury drum, pointed out that the system was working a hardship on many citizens who were required to come to Prestonsburg for a full week of court each month, with only those who actually served on a trial jury receiving any compensation.

Kentucky encompasses 40,395 square miles, ranking 37th among the states in area.

City Council Moving For Area Annexation

Prestonsburg's City Council last Thursday night initiated a move which will add another mile to the length of the town and approximately 250 persons to its census total.

The Council action began with its authorization of City Attorney Albert A. Burchett to file suit in circuit court to annex the Goble-Roberts Addition which now is outside the southern city limits. The area proposed for annexation, mainly on the west side of the Big Sandy, will be connected with the present corporate territory by a bridge now nearing completion.

A portion of the section up for annexation already is within the city limits. This is the area in which are now located the U. S. Shoe Company plant, the 75-unit rent-supplement complex and the 78-unit low-rent housing project now under construction.

Mayor George P. Archer and council members pointed out that residents of the area to be annexed will save 20 per cent on water and sewage rates and from 30 to 40 per cent on insurance. They also said the $4.50 rural electric charge for street lights will be eliminated.

The council also authorized advertising for bids on a new fire truck and a new police cruiser. It already has awarded a contract on a fire station to serve the southern section of Prestonsburg.

Mt. Mental Health Begins New Program To Serve W'wright

The Floyd county team of the Mountain Mental Health Services initiated a local delivery of services July 7 at Wheelwright.

According to Richard Gallaher, team director, this innovative program will combine a once-a-week out-patient service offering individual therapy and a day care program consisting of group discussion, recreation and socialization.

This program will be each Tuesday at the Wheelwright clinic, which is located next to the Wheelwright post office. Patients may report there from 9:30 to 2 p.m., or arrange advance appointments by calling Prestonsburg 886-3893.

Gallaher said the program is designed better to serve the needs of the people and will make for continuous and more complete follow-up of clients living in the Wheelwright area.

The delivery of this service is under the administrative-clinical programming of Mountain Mental Health Service, the private non-profit Community Mental Health Center which was established July, 1967 for the purpose of serving people living in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

KEA-Sponsored Survey Shows Higher Teacher Pay Favored

A Louisville-based opinion research firm that conducted personal interviews throughout the state with nearly 1,000 Kentuckians has found that people are "generally aware of the pressing need for increased funding of school programs."

"But they tend to shy away from any realistic consideration of how this increased funding can be accomplished," concluded Raymond A. Kemper and Associates in the wide-ranging study commissioned by the Kentucky Education Association (KEA).

The study, carried out during late April and May, sought to determine "what Kentuckians think about the quality of their public schools, what they think about the abilities and attitudes of teachers and other school people, about the work stoppage late last winter and the threat of possible NEA (National Education Association) sanctions in the near future, and related questions."

"We believe that the evidence supports the conclusion that most Kentuckians feel positively about their schools and their teachers," the Kemper report stated. It was released at a news conference today in Frankfort.

Among the findings highlighted in the survey were these:

1. One in two respondents rate Kentucky schools as good-to-excellent, while an additional 30 per cent rate the state's schools as "acceptable." They rate their own local schools even higher, with two in three judging them good-to-excellent, and an additional 20 per cent rating them "acceptable."

2. Seven in ten believe that "too little money" is being spent on education in Kentucky and that teacher salaries are too low.

3. One in three cite "teacher pay and benefits" as the core school problem in Kentucky.

4. Eight in 10 believe that "teachers should have more to say about how the schools are run."

5. The median salary figure considered "fair and proper... for college-trained classroom teachers... just beginning the work..." was $7054 annually (compared with the median salary of $5225 scheduled for such teachers in the 1969-70 school year).

6. Most respondents see local property taxes, sales tax, and income tax as being "completely out of the question" as sources of new money for education. When asked to cite the "single... best choice," one in three named "cigarette tax" and another one in three named "sweepstakes-lottery."

7. Three in four express the belief that "those who go into classroom teaching are sincere and dedicated people, who are deeply concerned with the quality of education in Kentucky." And approximately seven in 10 maintain that they have not changed their attitudes "about classroom teachers and the schools" during the period following the work stoppage last winter.

8. Only 37 per cent express the belief that "classroom teachers have become too militant in their dealings with the state legislature." Two in three express no dissatisfaction with "things that the KEA has done, or is doing..."

9. About eight in 10 have no idea as to the meaning of the term "NEA sanctions." Of those who do have some concept of the term's meaning (about 17 per cent of the total sample), two in three are opposed to the idea of sanctions. NEA, at the request of KEA, has authorized a full-scale investigation that could lead to sanctions in Kentucky.

In summarizing its conclusions, the opinion-research firm noted that "on a statewide basis, 81 per cent of our respondents expressed agreement for the idea that 'teachers should have more to say about how the schools are run.'"

"In our view, this is indicative of a strong base of support for the sort of professional negotiation legislation that has been proposed in the past by KEA."

Overall, said Kemper and Associates, "most people are inclined to accept the idea that the schools need and deserve better financial support, but there is still a very noticeable reluctance to take the hard and rather difficult steps that increased support will require."

KEA president Mrs. Ruth Reeves of Ashland said the study is being released in its entirety "because we want the public, the politicians, the news media, and our own members to see the total picture."

"It is significant, I think that the public's generally high opinion of classroom teachers and Kentucky schools has not changed despite the drastic measures we were forced to take during this year's legislative session," said Mrs. Reeves, a fourth-grade teacher at Ashland's Crabbe elementary school.

"Now that we know where we stand with the public on so many vital questions, we can take it from there," she said. "But I don't minimize the obstacles because some of them are formidable."

Dr. J. M. Dodson, KEA executive secretary, said the survey proves that anti-teacher and anti-education feeling in the state has been grossly exaggerated by some.

"The survey shows that, by and large, Kentuckians think well of the schools in the state and even better of the schools in their own localities. It shows that teachers are respected and ought to be given more voice in how schools are run."

"It shows we don't have to convince the public that schools need more money and that teachers are underpaid. The public is well aware of those facts," Dodson said.

"But it also shows we have to face the tough but not impossible job of getting public agreement on practical sources of revenue that can do what it takes to improve schools."

The Kemper survey, done with financial assistance from NEA, is entitled "How Kentuckians Feel About Their Schools and Their Teachers." Dr. Kemper, psychological consultant to the firm, is professor of psychology at the University of Louisville.

The stratified sample of 982 respondents, from as many separate households, was designed to be essentially representative of the statewide population. All eleven KEA districts were represented in proportions essentially similar to the distribution indicated by the best estimates available at the time the interviewing was done.

Accidents were the leading cause of death of all Kentuckians under 35 in 1967.

State Record Rockfish Landed On 'Bank Pole' at Herrington Lake

The way to catch a 44-pound, four-ounce rockfish is not on a bank pole, temptingly baited and designed to catch catfish, white perch (drum) or buffalo, but try to tell that to two Herrington Lake fishermen.

That's the device that yielded a behemoth of the ocean striper family for Ronald Warner, Burgin, and James Fugate, Burlington, on July 19.

The largest of the rockfish family to be caught in Kentucky, and one of the largest caught in the United States from fresh water, it has been duly recorded in the record books. Now it is being mounted for exhibition at fairs, travel shows etc.

The owners of the fish are busy telling and retelling how they caught the giant fish and their story is a most interesting one.

They had set a number of bank poles alongside Herrington Lake down fairly near the dam. Such a pole is about 12 feet long, fairly heavy and contains a line up to maybe 20 feet in length. The pole is "set" in the mud bank to hold it firmly, and then the hook is baited and the line is thrown into the lake.

Warner and Fugate were "running" their half-dozen bank poles on that Sunday morning when they discovered that one of the poles was missing. It was sighted within a few minutes, out in the lake, with only the tip end sticking out of the water. Then it was gone again. After a few minutes it reappeared, much like a croppie bober being jiggled, first on top of the water, then moving off at a tangent and finally disappearing again.

The mystified fishermen decided on the only course left open. They commandeered a boat and started in hot pursuit of the pole which was disappearing and reappearing from place to place in the deep water of the lake. They finally were so fortunate as to grasp the pole, but not for long. The fish decided to go deeper again, and they were forced to release their grip. But the pole reappeared and again was caught. By this time their catch had about "played itself out," and they were able to hold onto the pole.

But they had no landing net. They knew they had a monstrous fish, but they did not know what species. By this time the catch was very tired and the fishermen led it alongside the boat into a small inlet and into the shallow water at the very tip end of the small slough. The fish now came willingly enough and they were able, after a small skirmish in the shallow water, to lift the fish bodily into the boat.

Warner and Fugate, experienced fishermen, were pretty sure they had a record rockfish. They called officials of the Department of Fish and Wildlife who made pictures with the only camera available on the spur of the moment. To the chagrin of all concerned, it was found after the pictures had been made, the fish had been weighed and measured and placed in the deep freeze in preparation for mounting, that colored film was used. The colored prints were converted to black and white, for newspaper use, and the photos made available.

The size of the fish? Yes, it weighed 44 pounds and four ounces. It was 44 and one-eighth inches long and measured 29 and one-fourth inches in girth. And, oh yes-the bait. Well, the hook had been baited with crawfish, which attracted a one-pound drum. The rockfish gobbled up the drum as if it were bait, and sealed his doom.

The rockfish is really the ocean-going white bass which, until a few years ago, were caught from ocean waters only. But then, they were impounded in Santee-Cooper reservoir in South Carolina, and began to thrive and reproduce in the fresh water.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources believed if they would do well in South Carolina fresh water they would do likewise in Kentucky's lakes, and a transplanting program was started. Rockfish have been placed in Herrington, Cumberland, Kentucky, Dewey and Barkley lakes as well as Green River Reservoir. They are doing quite well (except at Dewey where the rockfish introduced were only "fry" size and apparently were gobbled up by other fish—Editor.)

The program started in 1958. The big fellow caught from Herrington probably was stocked in the early sixties as a two to four pounder. The previous record for Kentucky was a 34 pound, eight ounce "rock" which was caught several years ago from Cumberland.

Natural Bridge State Park sports a man-made waterfall as one of its beauty spots. The waterfall serves as a spillway for the new fishing lake.

DDT Amendment Becomes Effective, September 1

A new amendment to the state pesticide law passed by the 1970 General Assembly goes into effect September 1.

The new amendment limits the use of DDT to the control of household pests, subterranean termites, bats, rats and mice. Any other use of the chemical is now forbidden by the new law.

The amendment also forbids persons from selling DDT in a quantity of more than one pound until the purchaser signs a written statement that the DDT will be used only for one or more of the authorized purposes.

Any person who violates the amendment will be "jointly and severally liable for treble damages to any person whose person or property is damaged by the misuse."

Groschelle Says Magazine Article In Business Week Erred in Spots

FRANKFORT, KY.—Frank Groschelle, administrator of the Kentucky Program Development Office (KPDO), in a letter to the editor of Business Week magazine takes issue with portions of the July 18 article, "Appalachia as a Developing Nation," which appeared in Business Week.

A large part of the article concentrates on the accomplishments and failures of two Kentucky Area Development Districts—the Big Sandy and the Kentucky River districts.

The four-page article praises the accomplishments of the five-year-old Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC), and examines its new concepts in federal-regional relations.

Groschelle's "letter to the editor" takes issue with parts of the article.

The article states that "the ARC has used its funds to force the formation of new local political bodies, about 36 multi-county local development districts to which towns, counties and school districts surrender some autonomy for the sake of regionwide progress."

Groschelle's response points to the misuse of the term "force" in the article. He said, "It is the policy of the ARC to give each state the prerogative to establish or not establish local development districts."

"Maryland and West Virginia have no operating local development districts and as of now it appears they are not going to. Mississippi and New York are in the beginning stages of developing such districts. Kentucky has chosen to give a high priority to the development district concept on a statewide basis."

The letter also points out the figure of 36 multicounty development districts used in the article is incorrect. There are "some 50" development districts in Appalachia, Groschelle noted.

Kentucky accounts for 12 of those 50 districts and was one of the first states to take action in implementing the concept of regional development.

Groschelle pointed out that even the manner in which development districts are established is the prerogative of state and local action.

But the question of autonomy concerns Groschelle the most. According to the letter, he feels the true import of the multicounty development district concept could be missed by readers who are not aware of the whole spectrum of development activity and of the full partnership between local, state, and national levels of government.

Groschelle's letter states, "Towns, counties, school districts and all other units of local leadership do not surrender any of their autonomy to development districts."

"The development district concept allows government to fulfill its leadership role with added strength and unity through a concentration of available resources and investments."

Groschelle emphasized, "the intention is to give local and state people as much voice as possible in planning for and building their future."

Arthritis Foundation Names Co-Chairman

Professional basketball coach Gene Rhodes and banker Joe Hamilton have been named state co-chairmen of the annual arthritis campaign by the Kentucky Chapter of the National Arthritis Foundation.

Named as A-Day co-chairmen are Mrs. Ladean Hamilton, Glasgow and Mrs. Susan Schmidt, Henderson.

The Kentucky Chapter also named Colonel Harland Sanders "poster boy" for the 1970 campaign. He will also hold the post of honorary campaign chairman.

Colonel Sanders was introduced in a news conference in Louisville. State Co-chairman Joe Hamilton had this to say in his introduction: "The Colonel may be 80 years old, but to our way of thinking, he's got all the vigor and enthusiasm of a teenager. We're proud to be working with him, because we know that when the Colonel decides on some project he puts everything he has into it."

The white-suited Sanders, a self-made multi-millionaire who made it big in the restaurant field at an age when other men are thinking of retiring, told the assembled press and broadcast people: "Folks don't realize that arthritis affects youngsters, youngsters of all ages and that includes infants. Young people are close to my heart and I plan to do everything I can to raise funds for and help spread the word about arthritis. Arthritis affects about a quarter of a million Kentuckians. Money for research is needed. And people should know there are things medical science can do to help the discomfort and pain of arthritis."

The 1970 campaign goal is $110,000.00.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps announced this week that the position of job developer which pays $140 a week, plus mileage, is open. College degree and car are required. Applications should be filed at once, J. P. Hill, project director, said. Arrangements for interview may be made by calling 789-4370, Paintsville.

A historical marker on the courthouse lawn at Sandy Hook, Elliott county seat, shows the county was named in 1869 for John M. Elliott.

State, Truckers In Compromise

The state's lawsuit against a Perry county coal company and several coal-truck owners and drivers may have been settled Monday in Frankfort.

A tentative agreement reached there provides for:

—The coal firm, Arnold Coals, to pay the Department of Highways a maximum of $116,000 for damages allegedly caused by coal trucks to KY 476 and KY 1087.

—The lifting of the current restraining order against overweight loads, with the defendants to observe legal limits in the future.

—The defendants to install tarpaulins on all coal trucks to avoid spillage; also to remove sideboards.

The present gross weight limits are 62,000 pounds on KY 476 and 30,000 pounds on KY 1087.

However, Goss said he had agreed to consider an increase in the limit to 73,280 pounds on KY 476, once repairs are made.

"It may very well be that when the road is restored, the road will be sufficient to haul those maximum weights," Goss said. "We're going to be as considerate of the industry as we possibly can be, but our primary obligation is to the general public."

Even if the KY 476 limit is raised to 73,280 pounds, which is the statewide maximum, that would be "considerably less" than the loads of "100,000 or 110,000 pounds" that have been put on the road recently, Goss said.

Goss also said the department will "do what we can" to increase the load limit on KY 1087, "if we think the repairs are sufficient" to handle greater weights.

Drinking, Speeding Said Main Causes Of July 4th Toll

Fatal accident reports made by investigating officers over the Fourth of July week-end show that of sixteen accidents taking eighteen lives, all but one can be attributed to either drinking, speeding, or inattentiveness.

Officials from the Kentucky Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee (KTSCC) studied the accident reports and said that ten of the sixteen accidents involved only one car—the remaining six were two-car accidents.

The KTSCC spokesman said that the average age of persons killed was 33. Exactly half of those killed were between the ages of seventeen and twenty-two. One other person killed was a thirteen year-old child.

The one accident not attributed to the three major causes was possibly caused by faulty equipment on one of the vehicles involved, the spokesman said.
