

FBI's Prisoner Had Planned Store Here

Floyd Resident Captured Sunday At Betsy Layne

Bobby Ray McCutcheon, the 29-year-old Betsy Layne man who was captured Sunday afternoon at his home on bank robbery charges, had planned to open a jewelry store in Prestonsburg, it was learned this week.

He had rented a storeroom owned by Mrs. Abigail Bowling, paid a month's rent and had the sign painted to bear his wife's name, "Jacqueline's Jewelry." His brother did some watch repair work at the location but no merchandise was moved into it.

McCutcheon is accused of the robbery of the New Circle Road Branch of the Second National Bank, Lexington, and the North Parkway Branch of the First National Bank at Huntsville, Alabama. He allegedly took about $73,000 from the two banks.

His arrest in Pike-Floyd Hollow, Betsy Layne, was made by FBI Agents L. Z. McGinty, Tim Adams and Dave Mitchell, ending a search which began in mid-August. McCutcheon was taken to Lexington for arraignment before a U. S. commissioner, who set his bond at $25,000. Investigation of the robberies continues, and others may be involved.

Sheriff Frank Leslie said a net was spread by FBI agents, with the help of the sheriff's office and state police, last Friday, sealing off the Prestonsburg area. This followed a tip that Mrs. McCutcheon and her four children were to arrive at Archer Park by taxicab, Friday afternoon, and that her husband was to pick them up there. The stakeout dispersed, however, when it was learned that Mrs. McCutcheon had not left home.

Mrs. Bowling said that she made inquiry of McCutcheon's standing before leasing the storeroom to him. She was informed that he was "a nice man" and that he had bought two automobiles and paid cash for both. He carpentered the storeroom but recently told Mrs. Bowling he would not be using it, since he had decided to open a store in Louisville.

Crippled Children Clinic Scheduled

The Commission for Handicapped Children will hold a clinic at the First Presbyterian Church, here, Tuesday, October 27. This clinic is for examination of crippled children under the age of 21.

Dr. William Roland, orthopedic surgeon, of Ashland, who treats patients of the Commission from this area, will examine patients from Floyd, Johnson and Martin Counties from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

It is the policy of the Commission for Handicapped children to conduct its program in such a manner that no person will be denied benefits or otherwise subjected to discrimination on grounds of race, color, or national origin.

Floyd Without An ABC Agent

Floyd county is without the services of an Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) agent for the first time since the Wetherby administration, it was said here this week after the post had been abolished.

Delbert "Red" Ison, of Martin, ABC agent for the county, ended his work last Thursday. A lack of funds was given as the reason for curtailment of the service, it was said at the sheriff's office here.

The only ABC agent remaining at work in this part of Eastern Kentucky is Herman Combs, of Knott county. This county also is without a probation officer, Arthur Pigman, of Hindman, serving both Floyd and Knott counties.

NOT NEWSOME'S CAR

The auto in which intoxicants were found in a raid here recently was identified by state police as having been registered in the name of Namon Newsome, and The Times so reported last week. A check at the County Clerk's office here reveals, however, that the vehicle had been transferred to Jim Adkins prior to the raid.

Girl Admits She Led Looting Spree Here

The crime news in the county ranged this week from an alleged attempt on a woman's life by her husband to a knife attack on a man by his wife to the arrest of a Peeping Tom to a looting spree led here by an Abbott Creek girl.

The looting, accompanied by vandalism, involved three boys, all juveniles. The first indication of criminal activity was at 4 a.m. Sunday when Policeman Sam Hale saw activity in an alley at the rear of the Wise Restaurant and found an abandoned record player. At 5:30 a.m. Policemen Lonnie Herald and Tom Blackburn joined in the investigation and quickly turned up a stolen bicycle, clothing, school supplies and other items. The bicycle had been taken from the premises of Kensey Vandine on nearby Central avenue. Soon calls began coming to police from various persons who said they had found clothing and other items on their lawns.

At the grade school here Herald and Blackburn found that the basement window had been smashed with a rock and a cooking thermometer and school supplies had been taken. The front windows of two trailers used as temporary classrooms on the school grounds were smashed, as were five first-story windows in the school building and two arched windows high in the building. They also found that a truck had been broken into and wearing apparel

Plans Outlined For Countywide Patriotic Event

Plans were made at a meeting held Monday evening at Martin high school for the Nov. 7 event here which is intended to involve all Floyd county in emphasizing the spirit of patriotism.

Theme of the program will be, "America, the Beautiful." Colors in costumes, floats and marching bands will be the red, white and blue of the flag.

In addition to the participation by school bands and floats, the program will include the naming of Miss Red-White-and-Blue from high school entrants and a Junior Miss from the grades. Trophies will be awarded the best playing band, the best marching band, the No. 1 majorette and the best float.

A feature of the day will be the appearance of adults in the dress of earlier days to emphasize the "Good, Old Days" theme.

Several schools were represented at the Martin planning meeting. Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, and "Huck" Francis, of Prestonsburg, are serving as co-chairmen of the program committee. David B. Leslie, of Prestonsburg, will be parade marshal.

NEW COLLEGE COMMITTEE FORMED

Miss Cheryl Rolston, former student at Prestonsburg Community College, has been appointed a member of the new Advisory Committee on Community Colleges Organization and Programs. Miss Rolston, now a student on the main campus of the University of Kentucky, is shown at the first meeting of the statewide task force, held here last Wednesday. With her are Dr. Otis A. Singletary, right, UK president, and Dr. Stanley Wall, vice-president for the Community College System.

This Town . . . That World

I've fairly well recovered from the World Series shock but must express the opinion here that the Big Red Machine would have got home several hours earlier, but somebody mislaid the crank.

DON'T PIN ME DOWN

"Well, don't be so ambiguous," writes an acquaintance. "Did you fall in the lake or did you catch fish?" I reply—er, modestly: I did not fall in the lake again.

NO X-RAYS NEEDED

This section has its share of expressions and stories about poor—that is, emaciated—animals, people and the like. One man, years ago, told of his wife using the family nag's rather prominent ribs to get out the family wash when the old washboard gave way. Then there, of course, was Job's turkey, which was so poor it had to stand in two places to make a shadow, and so on.

But now comes Watt Hale with the poorest critter of them all. Watt says this elongated individual had wasted away something awful and that his folks finally took him to the hospital. The doctor peered and peeked and thumped and finally decided an X-ray was in order.

"Hold it, doc!" sang out one of the relatives. "No use wastin' money, thataway. We'll just edge him over there and stand him up against the window and you can candle him."

Appellate Court Refuses To Rush Judge on Ruling

The Court of Appeals last week refused to order the special judge assigned to the last case remaining in the courts and involving Martin residents and the Floyd County Board of Education to rule forthwith on several motions involved in the controversy.

The case at issue involves a temporary injunction granted the board of education against those picketing the Martin school last year and a motion that they be held in contempt of court. Special Judge William E. Fanning, of Boyd county, was designated to hear the case last March.

Although the transcript was filed in the case last April 20, the appellate court accepted Judge Fanning's explanation that he was still doing research on it. He said he had limited research facilities in this county and that he wanted to study more in the law libraries of the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville.

The group of Martin citizens, headed by Dr. Joe T. Hyden, had asked the high court to order Fanning to rule at once on these three motions:

1. To dissolve the temporary restraining order issued last March 4 to prevent the Martin group from interrupting operation of the Martin school.
2. For an injunction to the same effect as the restraining order.

CAP Directors Call For VISTA Ouster

Directors of the Big Sandy Community Action Program (CAP) voted at their Paintsville meeting Monday night to sever all connection with Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA).

The resolution, adopted by unanimous vote, called on Governor Louie B. Nunn and OEO to withdraw VISTA workers from the area immediately.

Lynn B. Frazier, OEO director for Kentucky, attended the meeting but did not comment on the action or on protests of Area 979 citizens against the move.

Pleading the cause of VISTA at the meeting were Lula Belle Akers, Gordon Meade and Perry Hall. They asked that the services of the group be retained. When the CAP action was final, Meade commented, "I guess I ought to turn the other cheek and let you slap it, too."

Palmer Frazier, VISTA supervisor in the Mud Creek section, said recently that the section will not give up its VISTA workers without a fight. Nine new workers had been trained recently for service there. Frasure indicated VISTA-type service will be maintained, whether under that name or another.

Williams Claims Mud As Harmful As Coal Washing

In this county last week to investigate a "black-water" problem in upper Left Beaver Creek, a representative of the Kentucky Water Pollution Commission said:

"We will not tolerate uncontrolled discharge of black water from any source."

The representative, Earl M. Williams, water pollution investigator with the commission's Harlan office, said the commission has no control over surface mining but that its authority over black water from coal washing is practically unlimited.

Asked about the threat of coal dust and coal washings to upper Johns Creek and the accumulation of such materials in Dewey Lake, downstream from the mining operations, Mr. Williams said there is some contamination of this sort in the stream but that it is minor when compared with damaging discharges from other sources into Johns Creek. He referred to the muddy condition of the stream.

Williams said not only mining but road-building, timbering and loss of coal from overloaded trucks, plus the fine coal dust emanating from coal preparation plants, contribute to the problem there. He added that mud is as harmful to aquatic life as coal dust.

But the Water Pollution Commission can do nothing about these surface disturbances that cause mud, he said. It is confined to the problem of black water.

"A non-degrading standard should be established for Johns Creek. Centralized authority is needed," Williams told The Times.

As of this date, no less than six state agencies have their hand in the pollution problem, with the powers of each limited and the powers of all so scattered that no strong hand is exercised, he admitted. These six agencies are the Water Pollution Commission, the Department of Mines and Minerals; the Air Pollution Commission; the Division of Water Resources, the Strip-Mining Reclamation Commission and the State Health Department.

Williams said the federal government (See Story No. 5, Page 14)

Department Rejects Bids on Floyd Work

Bids on three controversial sectors of new US 23 in this county were rejected last week by the Kentucky Department of Highways at the insistence of the U. S. Bureau of Roads, and bids on the construction work will be asked next month for the third time.

The rejected bid was that of Greer Brothers and Young, London, Ky., who asked $9,496,273 for construction of approximately four miles of the new four-lane highway between Mare Creek and the Floyd-Pike line at Boldman. The London firm's bid was lowest of those submitted, and the awards committee of the Highway Department recommended that it be accepted, but the Bureau of Roads declined to agree, pointing to the lack of competitive bidding when the bids were opened Aug. 7, after the second advertising of the three projects. The Department of Highways disagreed with the bureau's stand, but the federal agency stood firm and would not agree.

The three sectors of highway were slated for completion next Oct. 1, but the completion date now will be set ahead. Yet Robert Johnson, Bureau of Roads engineer, says he thinks they can be completed next year.

J. D. Barter Construction Co., Harrisburg, Ill., with Mattingly Bridge Co., Louisville, as a subcontractor, submitted the low bids of $9,812,753 at the first bid opening June 26. They did not take part in the second bidding.

Rejection of the June 26 bids prompted Barter and Mattingly to file a $4 million conspiracy lawsuit in Franklin circuit court. Depositions in the suit have raised a charge that a group of contractors offered Barter and Mattingly $300,000 to keep quiet about the bid rejection and not bid the second time.

District Titles Are Possible For Two Floyd Grid Teams

Both of the Floyd high school teams fielding football teams have a chance at district titles this week-end.

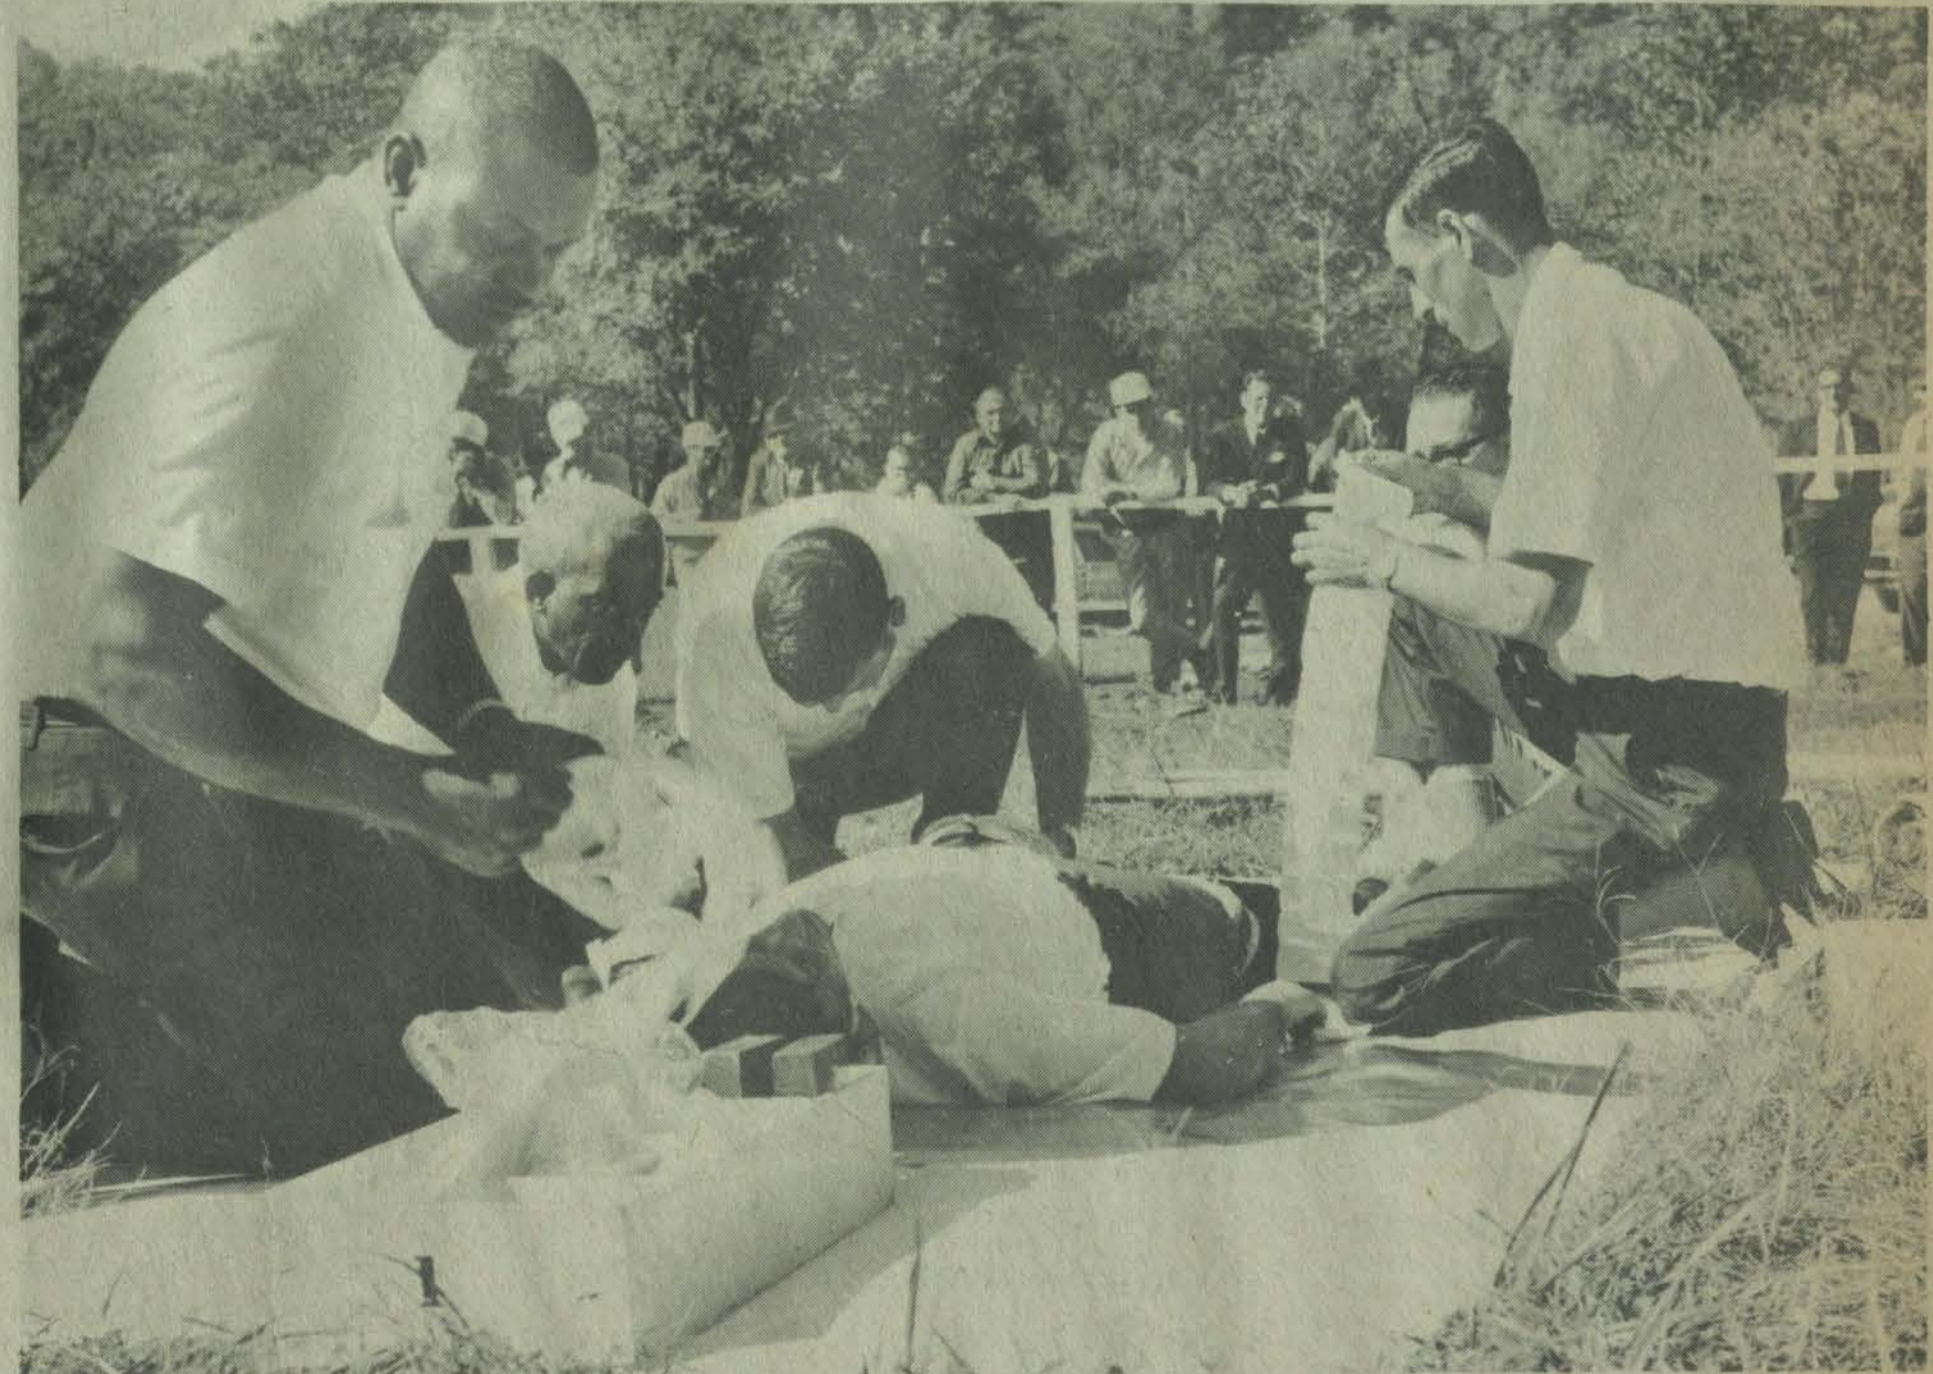

Prestonsburg could wrap up the Class AA title by downing the Hazard Bulldogs in their game here Friday night, and Wheelwright high could make secure its Class A claim by downing Jenkins, Saturday afternoon.

Prestonsburg easily downed visiting Whitesburg last Friday night, 41 to 0, but Coach McClellan and his team are alive to the fact that in Hazard lies far stiffer opposition. The team's season record now stands at five wins, with only the 8-6 loss to Matewan marring the picture.

Coach Shorty Jamerson's Wheelwright team, undefeated in its class within the district, faces in Jenkins a team which it should defeat, if the dope runs true. Wheelwright defeated Elkhorn City, 34-8, and Elkhorn City was a winner over Jenkins. Dwight Jackson, halfback, leads the Trojan attack—in fact, is one of the state's scoring leaders with 18 touchdowns.

In last Friday's game the Black Cats scored in every quarter except the second. (See Story No. 4, Page 14)

S. championship team from the Benham mine of the International Harvester Company won the state mine rescue title again. The Eyes of the Toad . . . Who Cares To Take a Look?

If Governor Nunn's announced plans for state parks at Fishtrap Reservoir in Pike county and the yet-to-be built Paintsville Reservoir in Johnson materialize, Eastern Kentucky may indeed become one of the top vacation areas of the United States. These Kentucky state parks, with their luxurious appointments and picturesque settings, are a powerful magnet drawing those who are tired of the rush of modern-day living and seek a bit of respite from ennui on the one hand and breathless tension on the other.

With a state park to be built at Grayson Reservoir, these two that are promised and those now existing, the area known as Eastern Kentucky will have no less than seven parks, and that does not include three or more in Southeastern Kentucky.

But this is not too many. There is no danger of vacationers becoming surfeited with the parks and their excellent accommodations—if Kentucky will match this willingness to spend millions on physical conveniences with the proper determination to keep Eastern Kentucky the beautiful land visitors have found it in the past to be.

Many doubt, however, that Kentucky leaders are as dedicated to the preservation of the natural environment as they should be. We, for one, doubt that hills can continue to be scarred, timber destroyed, streams polluted and the landscape cluttered up in general and continue to hold for visitors the old lure, regardless of the number of state parks and lodges that may be built.

Fishtrap Reservoir and its proposed park have a great potential. But the lake itself—the water that is one of the most compelling reasons people visit it—threatens to become one a giant settling basin for the Virginia coal-dust that has for a long while now been poured with complete impunity from the law directly into the stream that has been dammed up to form the impoundment.

State and federal governments have invested millions in Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park. But to speak, these days, of Dewey's "sparkling, blue water" is to exercise poetic license in a rather uninhibited manner. The lake has not been blue—much less sparkling—all year. Most of the time, it has been muddy in its headwaters and dingy elsewhere.

Timbering has been permitted along its shores, with haulways cut straight downhill and permitting the runoff from every rain to pour, unimpeded, into the lake. Strip-mining has added to the problems there, but other types of mining in headwaters of Johns Creek, where coal-dust has been piled up along the banks to be washed away by every rise in the water, may be the biggest problem of all.

The Department of Interior in Washington, the Corps of Engineers, the Department of Parks and other state agencies at Frankfort—all have been told of the situation and the threat to the lake. The response was a disappointing, "We're keeping our eye on the situation."

They still have their eyes on it. But are these jaundiced eyes of officials who do not care, or who at best care not enough to challenge powerful interests and force a showdown, that watch?

Industry is not entirely to blame for the situation. The ordinary visitor to these recreation spots, the vacationer, the boater, the fisherman—all add their cans, bottles, bits of paper, miscellaneous refuse to the unsightly mess. And nobody, state or federal, lifts a finger to warn them, much less require them to respect the purity and beauty that was there before they came.

The eye of a toad is as brilliant as a diamond. But the ugliness of the creature forbids one to pause long enough to look closely for these two islands of beauty. The swank lodges that Kentucky has built, or will build, could, if we are not careful, be lost in the midst of ugliness, unless there is an about-face in the thinking, motivation and actions of those who have the authority and the power to save the situation.

An open discussion for youth will follow the luncheon with Mrs. Libby Walthall, community services coordinator for Ashland Community College, moderating.

Reservations for the conference may be made by contacting the Division of Clean-up and Beautification, Department of Natural Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

KAI To Return Fifty to Work

Fifty workers are expected to return to their jobs Monday at Kentucky Appalachian Industries, West Prestonsburg, after a layoff that began last spring.

The workers are being called back after receipt last week of an order for $109,000 worth of cargo slings for the military. This is a part of an overall contract for production of this item, and it is expected to keep the plant working till around Dec. 15.

KAI, which until last spring was working about 350 persons, mostly women, has been operating for months with a minimum of employees. The work there is being supervised by Leonard Stephenson since L. E. Danielson, former plant manager, has moved.

NEA Representative Asks Martin Woman To Give Information

Mrs. Charles R. Laferty, secretary-treasurer of the Martin Parent-Teacher Association, said this week that she has been invited by William C. Hobner, of the National Education Association (NEA), Washington, D. C., to supply the team investigating education in Kentucky with information.

The Martin woman, a leader in the Committee for the Preservation of the Martin School, was asked to submit information from committee files.

She has agreed to appear before the NEA investigating committee in Louisville and to make available to it information on file with the Martin committee.

High School Talks On Traffic Safety Begin Here, Oct. 22

Seven regional meetings at which Kentucky high school students are being asked to give their views on traffic problems are scheduled in a seven-week period.

Governor Nunn is leading off with a speech Oct. 28 in the University of Kentucky Student Union building. The other meetings will be:

Oct. 22, Jenny Wiley State Park; Nov. 4, Rough River Dam State Park; Nov. 12, Cumberland Falls; Nov. 18, Kentucky Dam Village; Dec. 2, Northern Kentucky, and Dec. 10, Jefferson County.

Among topics discussed will be: the driver-points system, drug abuse, young drivers who drink and driver education.

Says Education Gets Fair Share

"There is no short-changing of education in Kentucky," State Finance Commissioner Albert Christen says.

"We have the largest percentage of increase in the past decade in school expenditures per pupil in the nation and top rank in increase in instructional-staff salaries."

The state has fulfilled its obligation to the elementary and secondary schools under the Minimum Foundation Program of basic aid to local school districts, Christen added. He said: "Financing of education has increased faster than improvements in the educational system."

Christen decried the spending of money on incompetent teachers as wasteful.

OBSERVE 64TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Boyd, of Stanville, celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary, Oct. 1. They were married Oct. 1, 1906, at Banner, by the Rev. Gilbert Bentley. They have two children, Mrs. Mousie Dingus, of Stanville, and Mrs. Willard Ratliff, Betsy Layne; four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Both have been members of the Regular Baptist church for more than 60 years.

Nunn, Atty. General In Show of Tempers

The controversy over leasing state park land for private development of campsites hit the boiling point recently with bitter debate in the Legislative Research Commission while the issue remained unsettled. A proposal to issue revenue bonds to allow the state to build 3,000 campsites itself failed when it received only two votes on the five-member commission. Those two votes were cast by the only Democrats on the commission—Atty. Gen. John B. Breckinridge, who made the motion, and Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford, who seconded it. No one then offered a motion on the proposal sought by the Parks Department—to allow it to seek competitive bids from private firms to develop and operate camping grounds on state park land on a 20-year lease.

The meeting adjourned without objection, upon a motion by Ford, about 10 minutes after it convened.

Gov. Louie B. Nunn, the chairman of the commission, said afterward he probably would call another meeting in a few days. The commission still has to act on a proposal by the four regional state universities to allow them to issue revenue bonds to build married student housing.

The proposal to lease state park land for private development of camping grounds has been before the commission at its last several meetings.

A vote on the proposal was expected last Monday and again Friday but a decision was put off when Ford and Breckinridge raised questions and suggested the revenue bond approach be explored instead.

There was no immediate explanation why Nunn did not press for a decision on the matter Friday. He almost certainly would have the votes to do whatever he wanted since two members of the commission are his appointees—Finance Commissioner Albert Christen and Revenue Commissioner James Luckett.

The brief meeting Friday was marked by unusually heated verbal exchanges between Nunn and Breckinridge.

It started when Nunn asked how much the bond issue would cost and Breckinridge said he was replying on information supplied by the parks and finance departments. He referred Nunn to that information.

"I can read and write, I'm asking you what it would cost; you're the one who made the motion," Nunn asserted. "Before I vote on the motion, I'm asking you how much you are committing the state of Kentucky to."

Breckinridge said he was asking Christen to advise them on that.

"You don't know if you are committing us to $9 million or $20 million or what, do you?" Nunn rejoined. "You just came in here to make another one of those old political motions."

"Governor," Breckinridge replied, "I'm as tired of your rudeness as the people are; now let me make a real point to you—we're relying on your advice and your data."

"I haven't said anything," Nunn said, "I'm just conducting the meeting, or trying to."

"Well, you could do a better job of it," Breckinridge declared.

"Well, that's a matter of opinion too," Nunn replied, adding that often his office could use expert legal advice but "the only time you ever have done anything is to run around and sue somebody."

Registered at Mountain Manor last week were Lucretia Clark, of Van Lear, Austin Smith, of Hard Burley.

"I'll try to accommodate you some more on that governor," Breckinridge said. "I think you are deserving."

"If you have no greater success than you have in the past, that will be an exercise in futility," Nunn remarked, referring to several legal challenges Breckinridge has made of actions by the GOP administration. Most of those have been unsuccessful.

Asked after the meeting where the leasing proposal now stood, Nunn said it would be studied further.

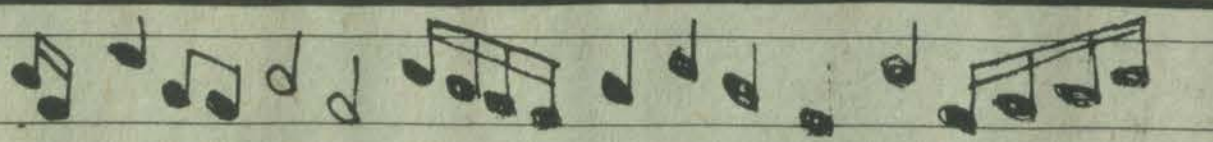

Figures previously given the commission said a $9 million bond issue would be needed for the state to build the 3,000 additional camp sites which Parks Commissioner James Host says are needed urgently.

Coal Gasification Coming, Boom For Kentucky's Coal Industry

By JAMES K. WARREN

Commerce Commissioner Paul W. Grubbs predicted Friday the gasification of coal will bring a boom for Kentucky's coal industry.

Speaking to an annual meeting of the Kentucky Coal Assn., Grubbs said:

"The gasification of coal is in the very near future, and Kentucky's coal growth will far exceed that of other states, because coal is the hub of the commonwealth's national scale total energy-fuel program."

He said, "Coal can be converted into most of the other fuels: natural gas equivalent, fuel and heating oils, gasoline, diesel and jet fuels and lesser uses, as well as other valuable products which hopefully at the proper time will increase your return on investments."

As a part of his department's coal refining program, Grubbs said he was "continuing direct in-depth personal contact with some 20 participating corporations, research and governmental units and attempting to attract pilot demonstration size and plant scale units to locate in Kentucky."

Grubbs said the current existence of technical converter processes and natural gas delivery shortages are spurring the development of coal gasification.

He said one particular process is capable of yielding 90 per cent conversion to liquid with less than 10 per cent char. A nuclear heat supply would increase conversion from 3½ to 4½ barrels per ton of coal used.

Grubbs noted, however, indefinite supply and pricing of foreign and domestic crude prevents rapid entry into that process. But, he added, a major foreign crude supply loss or price increase would justify the process.

He said the development of coal gasification and other converter processes would provide future coal markets if other technological advances close current markets.

Extension Service News

By JACK M. FRIAR

The cooler weather that's beginning to make its way into Kentucky causes insects like cluster flies, crickets, ants, spiders, and boxelder bugs to seek shelter, and this shelter may be your home.

The cluster fly or attic fly is about twice the size of a house fly, and produces a loud, annoying buzzing while it flies in a rather sluggish manner. With the approach of cool weather, large numbers of the adult flies collect on the sides of dwellings and find their way into homes through cracks, unscreened vents and louvers.

The best solution to the cluster fly problem, is to prevent their entrance into the home by good screening. If the flies are already in the house, one of the following control practices can be used:

—Hang 20 percent dichlorvos resin strips in the attic at the rate of one every 1000 cubic feet.

—Apply a five percent malathion spray to rafters, and for a quick knockdown of flies that enter the living quarters, use an aerosol bomb containing pyrethrins.

Boxelder bugs are about ½ inch long, are oblong-shaped and black with red markings. They feed mostly on boxelders but they also survive on ash, maple and fruit trees. When they invade homes in large numbers they may stain walls and fabrics with feces—and they also produce a foul odor when crushed.

Homeowners are advised to control the bugs by cutting down host trees, screening them out of homes, or vacuuming them when they accumulate around doors and windows. If these methods are not practical, the bases of boxelder trunks and other areas where they gather may be treated with a Sevin spray.

Crickets have probably begun to gather around most Kentucky homes already—and their incessant "singing" can turn even the sound sleeper into a hollow-eyed insomniac. For the control of crickets, as well as ants, spiders and cockroaches, spray the inner and outer foundations of the house with either a two percent chlordane mixture or a one percent diazinon solution. To prepare the chlordane spray, mix 3 level tablespoons of 45 percent emulsifiable concentrate per gallon of water; or two level cups of 40 percent wettable powder per gallon of water. To prepare the diazinon spray, mix ¾ cup of 25 percent emulsifiable concentrate per gallon of water.

This information will handle commonly recurring fall household pests, but you may encounter any number of different forms of insects. Therefore homeowners should supply their county agents with as much information as possible about the pest—where it was found, how many, what damage it was causing. It is always desirable to send in a specimen in some type of alcohol. This allows the county agent to recommend proper controls quickly and efficiently.

The meeting adjourned without objection, upon a motion by Ford, about 10 minutes after it convened.

Former Floyd Man Helps Level Enemy Camp thru Bombing

WITH U. S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam—A massive hillside enemy encampment 250 miles northeast of Saigon was leveled by a former Floyd county man and fellow airmen from Da Nang AB, Vietnam.

Major William G. Helton was a weapons systems officer with two U. S. Air Force F-4 Phantom aircrews who destroyed 50 fortifications and 20 bunkers during a recent afternoon fighter-bomber strike in Phu Yen Province.

Aided by allied ground troops and a forward air controller in pinpointing the target, the tactical fighter crews came in beneath a low cloud blanket and made level bombing runs between two ridges to hit the sprawling enemy complex.

Major Helton serves at the Northern Vietnamese coastal installation with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces, headquarters for air operations in Southeast Asia, the Far East and the Pacific area.

The major, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Helton, of 1600 Athens Court, Lexington, is a 1952 graduate of Wheelwright high school. He received his B. S. degree in 1957 from the University of Kentucky and was commissioned there through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

Major Helton, a member of Phi Sigma Kappa, earned his M. S. degree in 1969 at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y. His wife, Donna, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dusina, of Bypro, Ky.

Community Colleges Study Group Formed

Formation of a statewide committee to study the University of Kentucky Community College System was announced last week by UK President Otis A. Singletary.

Describing the committee as a "task force of community college people," Dr. Singletary said it would be asked to "study in depth the organization of the entire system, the programs which are being and which should be offered, and the total relationship of the system to the Lexington campus and the central administration."

The task force will be made up of the directors of two colleges, two members of Advisory Boards for individual colleges, two faculty members from the system and one from the Lexington campus, and two students.

The UK president said the Community College system and its future had received much thought and attention since he took office about a year ago and that the new group was being formed to fulfill commitments he had made to members of Advisory Boards and directors of colleges across the state.

The committee began its work this afternoon with a formal charge from Dr. Singletary to make its study and to report its findings to him. The timetable of work will be set by the committee, Dr. Singletary said.

"It is my expectation that the recommendations of this committee will have a most significant impact on the future of the community colleges and the entire University," he commented.

The formal charge included general provisions for the committee to study the existing organization of the system, its programs and its policies, and to recommend needed changes and improvements.

Specifically, the charge directed the committee to consult with Dr. Stanley Wall, vice president for the Community College System, in studying administrative organization and to make recommendations concerning the title of the chief administrative officer of individual colleges, now known as director.

It asked the committee also to look at documents containing statements and regulations governing the system and to evaluate their contents.

Specific documents mentioned were a policy statement issued in 1964 when the two-year colleges were put into a Community College System, the University's Governing Regulations, recommendations of visitation committees from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, and a report of the University's Self-Study Committee on Community Colleges.

The charge also called for a review of the relationship of the system with the State Board of Education on programs of career-oriented education.

Finally, it asked for a report and called for recommendations to be accompanied by supporting statements and alternative suggestions.

The University operates 13 two-year colleges—at Ashland, Elizabethtown, Fort Knott, Hazard, Henderson, Hopkinsville, Louisville, Madisonville, Maysville, Paducah, Prestonsburg, Somerset and Cumberland—and the Lexington Technical Institute on the Central campus under the Community College System.

Northern Community College, Covington, which last summer became the nucleus of the new Northern Kentucky State College, was UK's first off-campus unit, opening as the Northern Center in 1948.

The colleges were grouped into a system under its own dean in 1964, and the dean's office was changed to a vice presidency earlier this year.

Electric Power Is Under Study By Cooperative

Bill Wells, of West Prestonsburg, manager of Big Sandy RECC, announced last Friday that as a result of the rate adjustment being made by East Kentucky Power Cooperative that Big Sandy RECC is now involved in a study to determine the effect on the rate structure of Big Sandy RECC to its 5,000 members in five counties in Eastern Kentucky.

Wells said that the 7.8 per cent adjustment in East Kentucky's rate structure is to cover the cost of pollution control equipment and the inflationary rise in construction, labor and other costs in operating the power stations.

In addition to this adjustment, the increased cost of coal, which is the fuel used to produce electricity, has risen nearly 90 percent during this past year and this additional cost is currently being paid by Big Sandy RECC through provisions of its wholesale power contract.

As a result of this increased fuel cost and the rate adjustment, the wholesale cost of power to Big Sandy RECC is nearly 34 percent greater than this time last year, Wells said.

Arthritis Drive In Final Week

Floyd county's 1970 arthritis campaign is in its final week and "doing very well," according to Miss Burieta Gearhart, chairman.

"We hoped to raise at least $1,000 in the county," she said, "and we feel we will be very close to our goal."

Most communities in the county are now near or over their goals, she reported.

Miss Gearhart asks that anyone who has not yet been contacted for his or her contribution to help fight arthritis either mail it directly to her, the Floyd County Arthritis Campaign, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, or give it to their local chairman.

The local chairmen are: Mrs. Rondall Lawson, Wayland-Garrett; Mrs. B. F. Reed, Drift-McDowell; Mrs. David Reed, Langley; Mrs. Edmond Barnett, Martin; Mrs. Ethel Osborne, Wheelwright; Mrs. Robert Martin, Allen; Mrs. Paul Gearheart, Harold-Betsy Layne; and Mrs. J. W. Sutherland, Prestonsburg.

An estimated 3,500 people in Floyd County suffer from arthritis, Miss Gearhart said. It is the nation's No. 1 crippling disease.

'Dexterity Centers' Promoted by State

Eighty-three communities, designated as "Dexterity Centers," are being promoted in the national advertising program during the final quarter of 1970, by the Kentucky Department of Commerce. The first half-page ad appears in the October 14 issue of the Wall Street Journal.

Included in the list of Dexterity Centers are Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Pikeville, Inez, Salyersville, Louisa, Hindman, Hazard, Whitesburg, Hazard and other area county-seat towns.

Commissioner of Commerce Paul W. Grubbs said, "The purpose of the 'Dexterity Center' campaign is to bring Kentucky's large pools of unused human talent to the attention of the nation's economic community."

"Dexterity Centers," according to Commissioner Grubbs, "are areas of Kentucky where large pools of unused human talent exist. Manufacturers will want to investigate those communities that possess a strong capability for training this talent and that have the ability to support production with industrial sites, facilities, and transportation."

Counties are selected as "Dexterity Centers" if manufacturing employment is less than 6 per cent of the population.

Mental Health Group Backs Bond Issue

The Floyd County Mental Health Association this week asked all concerned citizens to consider the bond issue being presented to the public on Nov. 3rd. A Yes vote would provide $18,000,000 more for the construction or reconstruction of mental health facilities in Kentucky, and would not involve the raising of any additional taxes, the association claims. This would be allocated out of already existing tax revenues.

FAIR OR FOUL—U. S. officials called a conference of Ohio and Mississippi River states after Governor Nunn protested the setting of water quality standards stricter for Kentucky than for West Virginia, Ohio and Missouri.

TITLE I IN THE FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOLS

Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 provides federal funds to local school districts serving areas with concentrations of children from low income families and to provide programs of special educational assistance in order to serve the needs of educationally deprived children. If our county didn't get these funds other school systems would.

These things didn't happen in Floyd County by accident. Pete Howard and Dr. J. H. Allen helped make these things possible. Keep things moving by supporting Pete and J. H.

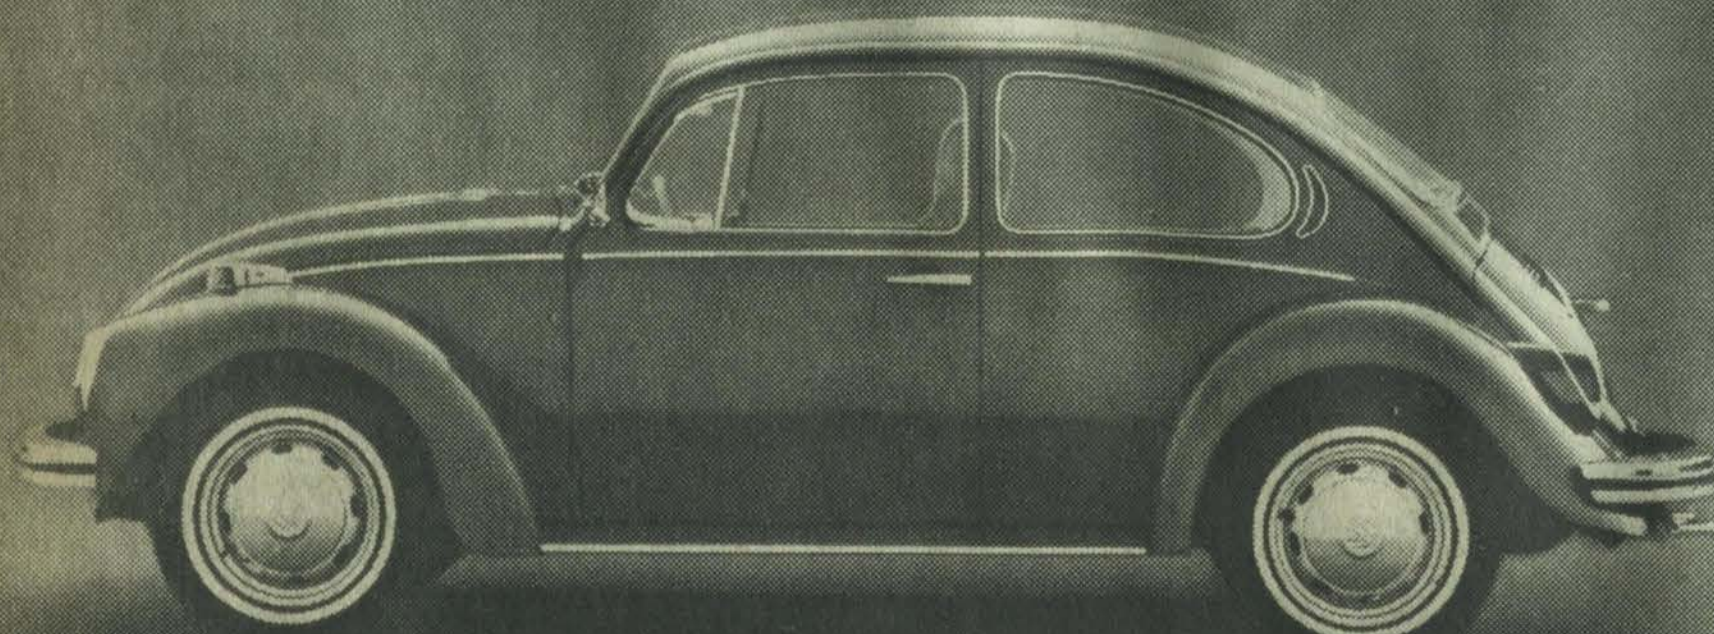

This record was made by an educational TEAM, working as a team. Does it make sense to run in two substitutes of unknown quality at this time? The two would-be substitutes don't even know the game of Educational Progress, and, from all we have heard, they would play for the No-Progress Team. Insure Progress by re-electing "Pete" Howard and J. H. Allen.

If this is the 1971 Beetle, then what's this?

The one on the top is a Beetle. The one on the bottom is a Super Beetle. What's the difference?

$XXX. The Beetle goes for a low $XXXX*. The Super Beetle, a whopping $XXXX*.

What do I get for more money?

The Super Beetle (on the bottom) is the most advanced Volkswagen ever. It offers nearly twice as much luggage space. A more elegant, fully carpeted interior. A smoother riding suspension system.

A shorter turning radius and improved brakes. (For the 84 other improvements, see your favorite VW dealer.)

What do I get for less money?

The regular Beetle (on the top) offers what the 16 million Volkswagens sold so far have always offered: Probably the most sensible way of getting from place to place ever devised by man.

Do the two cars have anything in common?

Yes. First off, there is a striking physical resemblance between the two of them.

Second, they both boast new, more powerful engines made to last even longer than the fabled VW engines of old.

Third, they are both backed by 25 years of small-car-making experience. In other words, you know what you're getting.

Is that supposed to be a dig at all the other new small cars that are being introduced for the first time this year?

No comment.

Rediscover State Parks, Some Winter Weekend

WEST LIBERTY, KY.—A letter from John Tierney, naturalist, Kentucky Department of Parks, reminds me that "the summer season has flown by and once again we look forward to another year of field naturalist workshops."

There are at least five such weekends being scheduled... and lest the first half of the word workshop be misleading, there is no work involved on the part of guests—it's all fun and family togetherness in the most pleasant of surroundings.

Naturalist weekends are scattered throughout the cold months, but Kentucky's State Resort parks—eight of them—remain open the year around and are delightful places when snow is falling... even when rain is falling... and particularly when sunshine is dropping down on limb-shaped shadows in the wooded areas and broad masses of the open country.

It's a shame those who foretell the weather by looking at the fur on a woolly worm claim this will be a mild winter, for the prettiest of all naturalist weekends was last November in the Red River Gorge during the season's first snowfall.

Being used to having events snowed-out, rained-out and otherwise adjusted to the vagaries of whimsical weather, it is nice to know then when the Department of Parks schedules a field naturalist weekend, the weekend materializes weather or no. They are sort of like football games and horse races—the game is played in the snow and the race is run on a muddy track.

With great splashes of color on Kentucky's hills, it might seem ill-timed to speak so glowingly of winter, but the beauty of Natural Bridge State Resort Park and the Red River Gorge in last November's snow is well remembered. Later in the year at the same park it precipitated whitely the weekend of the Artists' Retreat and also the weekend of the Folk Arts Festival.

What I'm trying to say is, if anyone is in a halfway notion to spend a weekend in a state park and it snows, don't let that put a crimp on the plans. There is a special aura during those times. Usually a log fire snaps and crackles in a big stone fireplace in the lobby not far from soft sofas and comfortable chairs with reading lamps. There are card tables for those who enjoy bridge, color TV so everyone can watch the game or other favorite program and giant window walls for those who want to watch the birds, look at the scenery and think.

Naturalist Tierney added in his letter, "We contemplate weekends dealing with geology, wildflowers, man and his environment. Eagles in February at Kentucky Dam Village State Park and ornithology in late April at Cumberland Falls State Park."

Informality rules on a winter weekend and unlike the stranger spoken to on the bus or at the airport, friendships are made that last; ideas are exchanged and trends noted from year to year. No one is "made" do anything. If one doesn't exactly like caves, he can occupy himself with another pastime. It's all great fun, entertaining and fabulously educational... and "Look, teacher, no books."

Even if it doesn't snow, any field naturalist weekend is a good time to plan a visit to a state park. A schedule of naturalists weekends will be released soon by the Kentucky Department of Public Information.

FORD, CHEVROLET MAY LOSE STATE VEHICLE ORDERS

ECONOMIZING—With Ford and Chevrolet balking at giving the state the usual discount of $500 to $700 on a passenger car and up to $1500 on a heavy truck, annual orders for hundreds of vehicles may go to Plymouth and American Motors' Ambassador line.

SPEAKING OF A FREE PRESS . . .

"Given a free press, we may defy open or insidious enemies of liberty. It instructs the public mind and animates the spirit of patriotism. Its loud voice suppresses everything which would raise itself against the public liberty, and its blasting rebuke causes incipient despotism to perish in the bud."—Daniel Webster.

In the first a blocked punt by Rorrer put the Cats on the boards with two points. This was followed by Burchett's return of the succeeding kickoff for a touchdown. Scoring for the half ended with Cline's pass to Reynolds for 40 yards.

Three touchdowns in the third quarter put the game beyond recall for the visitors. After Burchett's touchdown, a pass to Randy Leslie added the two extra points. Then Cline passed to Reynolds for a second t.d., and David George blocked a Whitesburg punt and ran for a third marker. Leslie's kick was good.

Fourth quarter scoring was limited to one touchdown by Hamilton on a pass from Hall, substituting at quarterback for Cline.

has given no help with the black water program, despite its financial investment in such impoundments as Dewey and Fishtrap which receive black water from mines in Kentucky and Virginia. The Fishtrap situation is an interstate matter, since most of the black water comes from Virginia mines. "But," said Williams, "the federal government has never given any positive help in enforcement."

Federal representatives have been taken into Virginia for a first-hand view of the situation there. They found nothing to concern them, it was said.

But in the Dewey Lake situation, Williams said, 98 per cent of the undesirable discharges into Johns Creek and the lake itself come from factors which cause muddy streams.

Williams saw some light ahead. In 1961, he said, 43 per cent of the state's coal mines were in violation of water pollution laws. Now, he said, more than 98 per cent are in compliance.

The Left Beaver Creek situation under investigation resulted from a breakdown of an underground disposal facility, an old, abandoned mine into which coal washings are pumped. A four-inch feeder line stopped up, Monday of last week, and when it was cleared built-up pressure caused black water to seep through the driftmouth seal into the stream. The Left Beaver Coal Company took immediate steps to stop the seepage.

WHY NOT?

I acknowledge, with thanks again, the gift from Oliver Marshall and his good wife of a gallon of molasses made at his farm on Johns Creek, below Dewey Dam. Don't know why Oliver thought of me, unless he had decided that if this country could afford a Be-Kind-to-Animals Week one man wouldn't upset matters too much by being kind to a newspaper editor.

THE OFFICIAL ROSTER

A news-story in the Mansfield (O.) News-Journal reads like hometown news. The item, which pertained to the Shiloh (O.) city council, listed Marion Hughes, former Floyd man, as mayor, and Grady McDonald, formerly of Right Beaver Creek, and Marvin Wireman, an expatriate from Magoffin county, as members of the council. These Eastern Kentuckians just naturally gravitate to politics, wherever they are, and the list of those elected in other states indicates they're right successful at it.

JUST BETWEEN

Forrest Burchett was telling at the courthouse this week about asking another fellow if he had ever caught a certain individual in a lie. Said the other:

"No, sir—don't believe I ever did catch him IN a lie, but I've sure caught him BETWEEN a few."

To the Voters of Educational! Division No. 1:

As a candidate for the Floyd County Board of Education, Division 1, I recognize my duty to the voters to state as clearly as I may some of the things I will work for as a Board Member.

First of all, I frankly admit that not everything is perfect with our schools. They may never be perfect, but I think they should be and can be improved. I make this statement, not as one skilled in getting the last drop of political strength from every word I may say or promise to be made, but as the father of two young children and as one who has an interest not only in his own youngsters but in the welfare of all our children.

There are other items, no doubt, that could be mentioned, but at this time I consider the following aims of top importance, and I pledge myself to make every effort to put them into effect:

1. PUPIL TRANSPORTATION. I will work for a daily evaluation of this department to the end that a more convenient, safer means of transportation can be achieved.
2. INSTRUCTION. A monthly evaluation, with continuing improvement.
3. LUNCHROOMS. A monthly evaluation, with changes made where and when needed for the benefit of the children.
4. INTERNAL SCHOOL ACCOUNTS. A monthly evaluation, and an annual audit of these individual school accounts once each year by professional people.
5. Better and more efficient maintenance of school properties.
6. The closing of the remaining six one-room schools in the county within the next two years.
7. The replacement of all inadequate buildings as soon as this is financially possible.
8. The construction of the new high school at Eastern on Right Beaver Creek.

I have no axes to grind, no political dynasties to build, no ambition for personal gain for myself or any of my friends. I will work for the progress of our school system and as best I may for the benefit of the boys and girls who attend these schools, and on this basis I ask your support at the election, Nov. 3.

Corn Blight Control Measures Need Time

By GARY G. HUDDLESTON
FRANKFORT, KY.—“We know how to control the blight, we just need a little time.”

The statement recently launched a discussion by Dr. A. S. Williams, extension plant pathologist for the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, on current scientific understanding of the southern corn leaf blight.

The nature of the disease, its causes and cures, are fairly well understood by researchers, but the short-term economic effects constitute matters still classified as “your guess is as good as mine.”

The fungus believed responsible for Kentucky's heavily damaged cornfields is so new, it has not, as yet, been given a name, according to Williams.

“We believe it got a buildup early this year in Florida,” he said.

“Weather conditions, including high humidities, heavy dews and long periods of early-morning moisture on leaf surfaces, were perfect across the Gulf states for a substantial spore production.”

“Prevailing southerly winds during June and July pulled in heavy spore showers across Kentucky and further north.”

To understand the susceptibility of common hybrid field corn varieties to the fungus, it is necessary to examine production practices at seed-corn plots operated by major supply companies.

By using corn plants known as “male sterile,” in combination with other inbred varieties, the cross-pollination process which produces hybrid seed was accomplished by the companies without detasseling the female plants, Williams explained.

The result was a big savings in labor expense for the seed companies.

But the new blight fungus is extremely destructive to the “male sterile” corn, which makes up a large majority of popular hybrid varieties on the market today, he said.

“The seed companies now must get the ‘male sterility’ factor out of their corn.”

“To do this, they will have to abandon the use of ‘male sterile’ plants and hire laborers to de-tassel the seed-bearing plants by hand.”

“If the seed companies had known about the blight early in the current season, they would have had no problem producing an adequate supply of blight-resistant seed corn for the 1971 crop year.”

“There are plenty of resistant varieties,” he added. “It will just take time to develop enough seed.”

Williams noted some companies have planted seed plots in Hawaii and South America, where the growing season has just begun, in an effort to boost seed supplies for next year.

He admitted, however, blight-resistant seed is likely to be in short supply for at least one year and the destructive fungus will probably be present in Kentucky in 1971.

Williams refused to speculate as to the effect of the blight on cattle and swine prices, or possible retail meat cost increases.

Dr. L. G. Northington, state veterinarian, said he anticipates “a small increase in the prices of meat,” but that such a hike would be “figured in pennies, not a large amount.”

Commissioner of Agriculture J. Robert Miller estimates an economic loss of 30 to 45 per cent of Kentucky's corn crop, due to blight damage.

The national estimate is considerably lower, at six per cent. This is due largely to vast mid-western corn-belt acreages still relatively untouched by the southern disease.

One Adair county corn grower believes he has another answer to the blight. James Rice, a lifetime veteran of all aspects of farming, can boast near-normal production in much of his 100 acres of corn.

Over the years, Rice has not been convinced by the promises of higher yields from modern hybrid varieties, and has continued to raise open-pollinated, or “Old-time” corn.

In fact, he selects seed from his harvest each fall, as he and his family have for the past 30 years, for the following season's planting.

Wayne Livesay, Adair extension agent, admits that Rice's “old-time” corn is by far the best corn crop he's seen this year.

Rice, who said he constantly tries new varieties of corn to compare them with his time-tested strains, planted some 20 acres of hybrid this year.

But the hybrid is so blight-damaged—some in the same field with the unaffected open-pollinated variety—that he is unsure whether it will be worth harvesting.

Dr. Williams, when asked if the blight might signal a partial return to “old-time” corn, conceded that many non-hybrid varieties are extremely resistant to the blight, but said he would not recommend extensive planting.

“The farmer raising ‘old-time’ corn could suffer a 30 per cent drop in yield potential, as compared to comparably-farmed blight-free hybrid varieties,” he said.

“The average grower can't absorb that kind of loss.”

Williams said as soon as statewide yield figures are computed, and blight resistance among hybrid varieties is determined, a list of strains recommended for 1971 planting will be published.

He cautioned that the list might not be ready until the first of the year, but that every effort would be made to hasten its publication.

He urged farmers who have questions concerning next year's planting to contact their local extension agent.

He said all new information concerning the blight will be passed on to the agents as soon as it is received, and specific farm-to-farm recommendations are more appropriate than more general guidelines.

Leniency Toward Drunk Drivers Inflates Insurance Rates

By GARY G. HUDDLESTON

FRANKFORT, KY.—When a lenient traffic court judge in your area files away or amends a drunk driving charge for a local offender, for whatever reason, he may be taking money out of your pocket in the form of higher automobile insurance rates.

According to Insurance Commissioner Robert Preston, a drunk driving conviction, and the accompanying suspension of the driver's license, are grounds for automatic cancellation of automobile insurance.

When the offender reapplies for insurance, after regaining his license, Kentucky's Automobile Assigned Risk Plan provides for penalty points which can raise the insurance premium as much as 150 per cent.

"The penalty point system is based on the notion that higher insurance costs should be absorbed by higher-risk drivers," Preston said.

"Each time a drunk driver comes out of court with a slap on the wrist, not only does he avoid a substantial fine, he also gets out of paying his own way, through increased insurance rates.

"This means that the average driver has to assume the cost burden of insuring a potential drunk driver."

Gov. Louie B. Nunn's campaign to rid Kentucky's highways of the drunk driver is one of the few ways commonwealth residents can realize an easing of pressure for auto insurance rate increases, according to Preston.

"Each year, insurance companies can apply to the Department of Insurance for rate revisions, either up or down," he said.

"There have been no downward revisions in the past three years."

Estimated economic loss from traffic accidents in Kentucky has risen from $161 million in 1959 to $246 million in 1969.

During the decade ended in 1968, the nation-wide average bodily injury claim against auto liability policies rose from $981 to $1550, while the average paid property damage claim climbed some 77 per cent, from $151 to $267.

Moreover, since 1963, Kentucky's total vehicle registration has increased 35 per cent, while miles traveled by commonwealth drivers has increased 50 per cent.

"Insurance should be considered as merely a redistribution of money," Preston said.

"When claim costs and number of claims go up, we can expect that insurance rates will continue to show similar increases.

"Car insurance rates are based on the number of accidents, and the cost or severity of each accident," he explained.

He said he cannot foresee any downward trend in hospitalization or auto repair bills, and that decreasing the number of accidents holds the only practical possibility for lowering insurance costs.

The brunt of Governor Nunn's campaign, recently recognized nationally by the Christian Science Monitor as exceptional, has been aimed at the courts, where in 1969 only half the drinking drivers arrested by Kentucky State Police were convicted of the charge.

At the same time, some 87 per cent of all traffic tickets given by Louisville police last year were filed away or otherwise voided or dismissed.

Another facet of the campaign has involved urging local courts to report convictions to the Department of Public Safety, so points can be assessed against the offender's record.

Thus far in 1970, four Eastern Kentucky counties have reported no traffic convictions of any kind.

Preston said, "Only through law enforcement or a change in public attitude toward highway safety can the number of accidents be reduced.

"For example, nobody has ever been killed in this country when driving at 50 m.p.h. or less and wearing a seat belt."

He said this is a clear indication that when traffic laws are adhered to, the accident rate decreases accordingly.

Preston explained Kentucky is divided into 12 auto insurance rating territories, and drivers within each territory set their own rates on the basis of their collective driving record.

Thus, he noted, strict traffic law enforcement, especially as concerns the dangerous drunk driver, and a resulting decrease in accidents, could conceivably lower insurance rates in a given region.

"At least," he said, "the more dangerous drivers would have to pay their own insurance bill."

One insurance company based in Des Moines, Iowa, has consistently refused to insure drivers who drink, even occasionally, and has checked into their policy holders' backgrounds to be sure of their tee-totaler status.

Liability premiums for the firm average some 35 per cent lower than rates available from the 150 Insurance Rating Board (IRB) member companies.

Preston pointed to the cost difference as concrete evidence that auto insurance rates decrease as the drunk driver is removed from the highways.

CHRIST DIED FOR SINNERS

Christ hath died for sinners. Whoever in this congregation inwardly and sorrowfully knows himself to be a sinner, Christ died for him. Whoever seeks Christ shall know that Christ died for him, for our sense of need for Christ and our seeking after Christ are infallible proofs that Christ died for us, and mark here is something substantial.

The Arminian says Christ died for him; and then, poor man, he has small consolation therefrom, for he says, "Ah! Christ died for me; that does not prove much. It only proves that I may be saved, if I mind what I am after. I may forget myself, I may run into sin and I may perish. Christ has done a good deal for me, but not quite enough unless I do something."

The Law tells of what men must do for God. Grace speaks of what Christ has done for men. The Law utterly condemns the best of men; grace freely justifies the chief of sinners.

Amazing grace! how sweet the sound That saved a wretch like me! I once was lost but now I'm found, Was blind but now I see.

"The Lord Jesus Christ died to save men, but it is certain that no man will be saved without faith. Even the blood of Jesus Christ does not save any except those who believe in it. 'God so loved the world' is a very wide expression, but we must not make it wider than Scripture makes it, for remember how the Scripture goes on: 'God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life.' Without faith, Christ is not ours, His blood cannot cleanse us, His life cannot quicken us. We must have faith to get at the blessings of salvation."

PARKS TO BE OPEN, EXTENDING VACATION-TIME IN KENTUCKY,
EVEN THOUGH WINTER COMES

Kentucky state parks, like fashionable ladies, change their appearance with the season. Right now they are alive with different colors and different sounds. The hummingbirds and the dragonflies have gone, although fish still leap and the sunlight still dances on the sparkling water. Color from the wildflowers has risen from the ground to mushroom out a millionfold and explode in the flaming trees and shrubs. There is quiet now where the carefree youngsters laughed and shouted yesterday, and the brown beauties no longer bask by the blue lodge pools.

Kentucky's state parks remain open through the year, but some of the parks reduce their facilities during winter. Here's the score for this season:

Pennyrile's lodge and cottages closed September 30. October 31 is the last day for the lodges, cottages, gift shops and golf courses at Buckhorn, Kenlake and Pine Mountain, for the cottages at Audubon and the golf course at Pennyrile. November 15 is the last day for Rough River.

Year round camping with full facilities is provided at Audubon, General Butler, Levi Jackson and Kentucky Dam Village. Camping in the other parks reverts to a primitive status on November 1st.

The golf courses at Pennyrile, Pine Mountain and Kenlake close October 31. All the other Kentucky state park golf courses stay open, however, and, weather permitting, may be played any day of the year.

Eight of Kentucky's vacation resort parks stay open all year with almost full facilities. (General Butler and Lake Barkley even have heated swimming pools.) They offer probably the biggest vacation bargain in America. They are: Jenny Wiley, Carter Caves, Cumberland Falls, General Butler, Kentucky Dam Village, Lake Barkley, Lake Cumberland and Natural Bridge.

Mini-vacations may be started any day of the week and may be had in sequence to form as long a vacation as you wish.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER
PROPOSES PROGRAM

I offer these objectives as a program of action for the consideration of the voters of Division No. 1.

1. The construction of a junior high school here to lessen over-crowding in our school buildings.
2. A redistricting of educational divisions so that people from Cow Creek, Bull Creek, David and parts of Middle Creek and Allen can vote for a Board Member representing the district where their children attend school.
3. Division No. 1 should receive its fair share of school budgeted funds for the amount of taxes paid and number of pupils enrolled.
4. Removing of political pressure from all school employees.
5. A faculty member to attend meetings and advise with the Board Budget Planning Committee.
6. Up-grade our school system so we can meet the standards of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools.

I pledge my wholehearted support to reaching these goals when elected.

TO ALL CONCERNED:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank each and everyone who had any part in any way in our rummage sale, bake sales, dinners and donated money at Martin for the preservation of our school.

We have met some wonderful people on these occasions. We have learned there is really strength in unity. We had a lot of fun and pleasure in our chicken and dumplings dinners, also our shuckie bean and ham hock dinner. We literally fed the town on three occasions. It was hard work but, being done by a bunch of dedicated men and women, they were big successes. There is a fine bunch of people in Martin with concern for each other.

The preservation of Martin School is not dead, neither will it ever be in spirit. We have met with some disappointment but we are good sports and proud we can look each other in the eye and say, "We are trying." We can't believe our work has all been in vain. We read in the Bible, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, etc." Romans 8:28. I am sure there isn't an atheist in our bunch.

Just a few words to the families who received the new clothes for their children at school. We are very glad you did, but don't let this influence your vote in November. It could be an election trick, since it is not very widely spread.

Let's remember our God-given privilege and go out on Nov. 3 and vote for our children and not just for someone to keep harmony in the Superintendent's office.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. P. B. FLANERY, Sr.
Martin, Ky.

Nurses' Society Asks Health Bd. Help at Schools

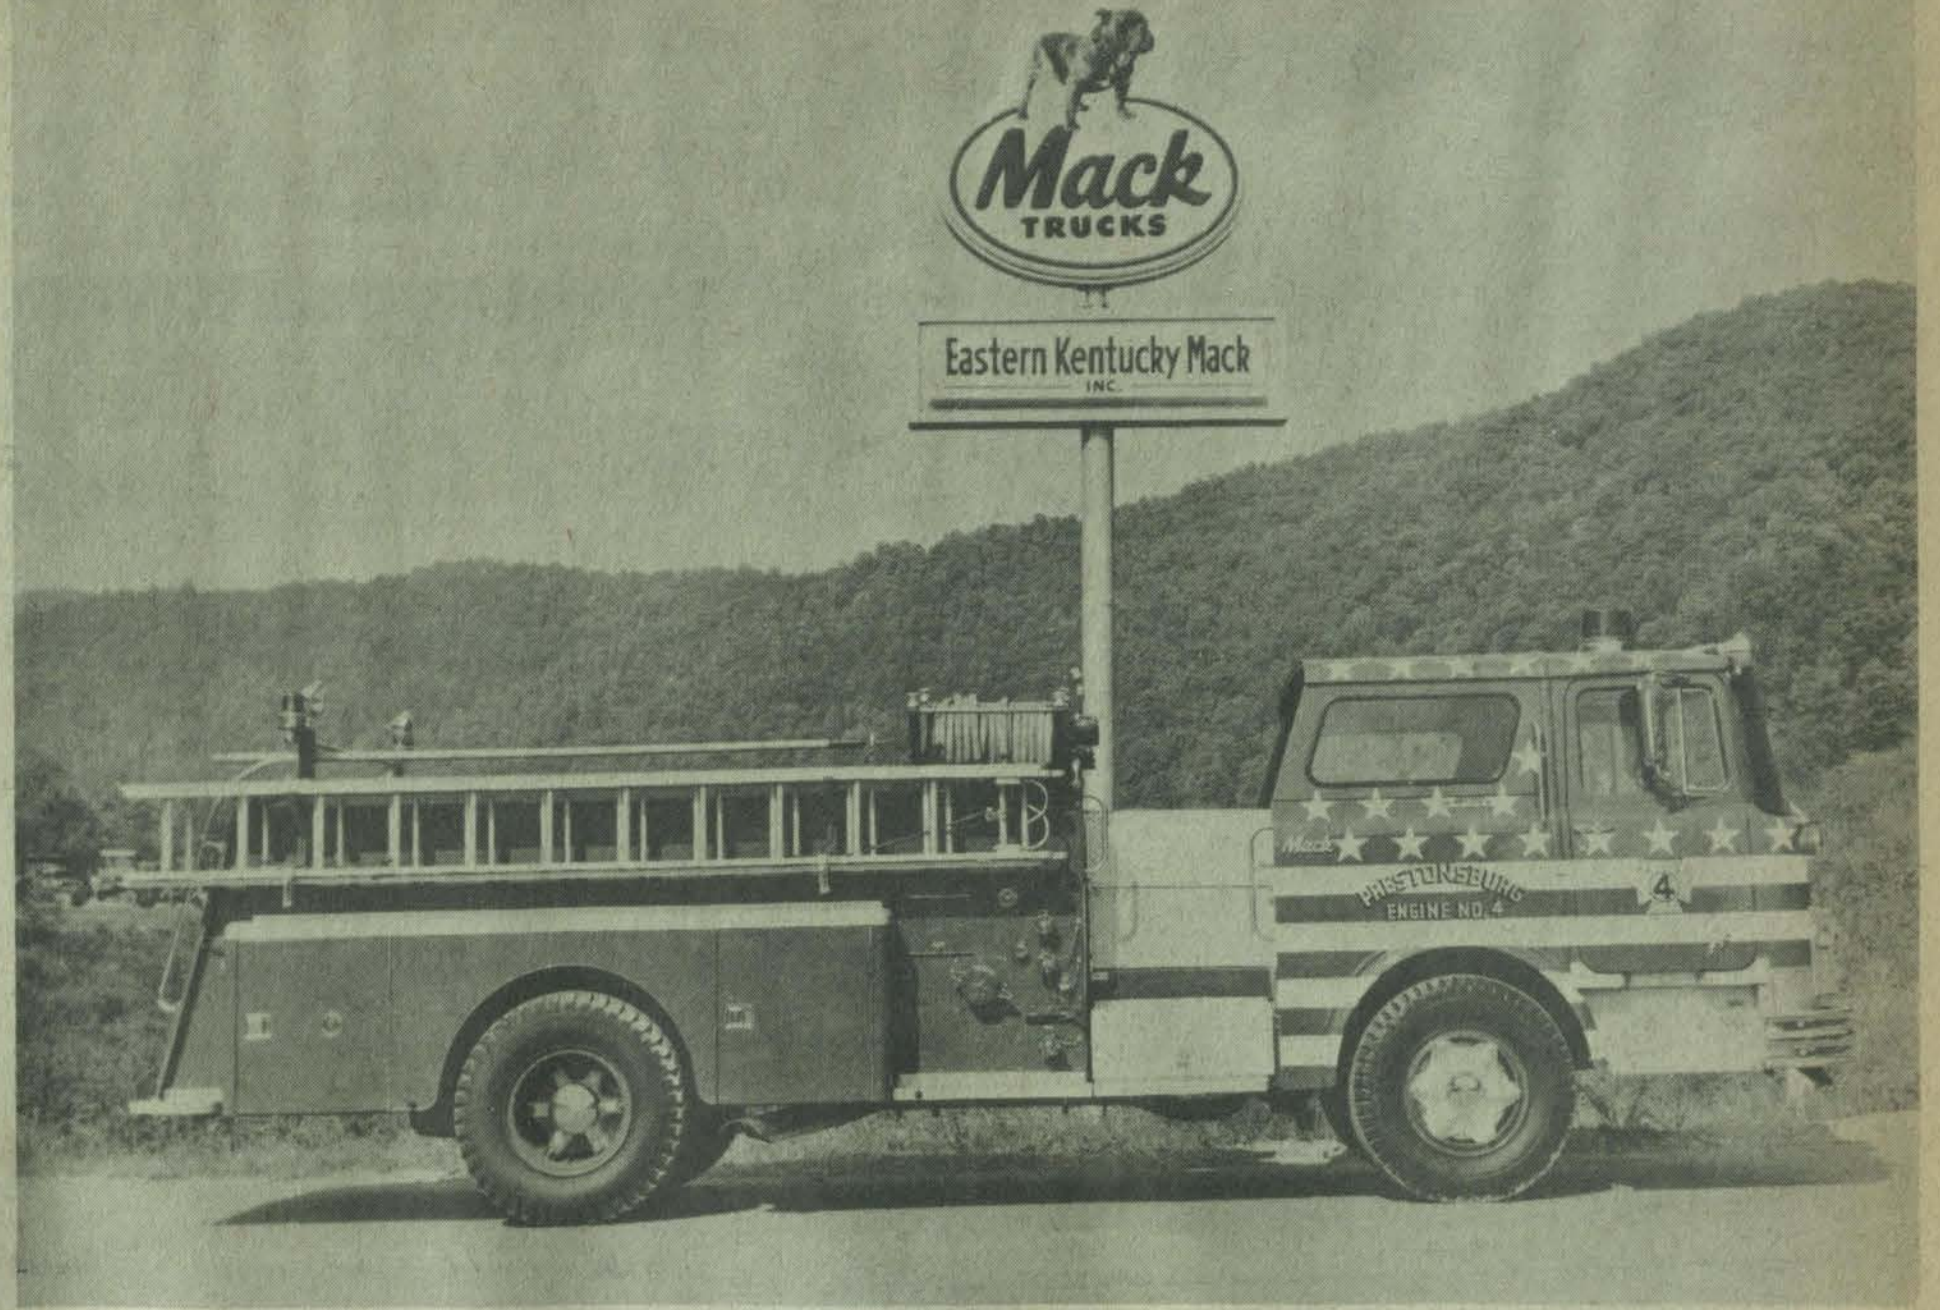

The recently organized Floyd County Society of Registered Nurses has called on the county Board of Health for its help in effecting improved sanitation in the school rest-rooms of the county.

In a letter to Dr. William B. Cook, chairman of the board of health, the nurses group pointed out that one mother had reported that on the second day of the current school year she inspected the girls' restroom at her child's school at 9 a.m., and found all commodes full of stool, urine and paper. Other similar cases were cited to the society of nurses, it was claimed.

Wrote the nurses:

"We know not where the fault lies but we feel there must be a solution. We hope the Board of Health will take an interest in this problem that directly or indirectly affects the entire county populace."

The nurses group suggested that a training program might be made available for school custodians and that, perhaps, the county health educator could work in the schools.

Fire Department Truck No. 4 Now Operating

Prestonsburg's fourth and biggest fire truck, which cost, equipped, $35,200, was put into operation recently. The truck, star-spangled and in patriotic colors, was purchased from East Kentucky Mack. It will pump 1000 gallons of water per minute and carries in its tank 500 gallons. The new truck and a second fire station now under construction in the Mayo Addition are items required of the firefighting system to gain lower fire insurance rates. (Photo by Strahan)

ABOUT THE 6-POINT ADAMS PROGRAM

The Adams Program, as outlined in last week's Times, reflects a total lack of knowledge of the Floyd County School System and even of Educational District No. 1. Although school board actions are public records, the good Doctor doesn't know what is going on here in this educational district as is proven below:

1. JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL IN PRESTONSBURG TO RELIEVE CROWDING

The enrollment at the High School has dropped from 868 at the end of 1964-1965 to 749 at the end of the 1969-70 school year. Three new classrooms were added to this school plant six years ago. As the elementary school enrollment has grown slowly, eight new classrooms, a music room, lunchroom and multipurpose room were added. A new junior high school in Prestonsburg at this time would be a waste of taxpayers money. With building needs as serious at Martin, McDowell and elsewhere as they are, this promise is unbelievable. Pete Howard stated publicly recently that additions would be made to Prestonsburg Elementary as needed.

2. REDISTRICTING EDUCATIONAL DIVISIONS

The good Doctor knows that all our board districts were redrawn by Federal Court order in 1968 and by state law they cannot be redistricted before 1973. High School students in Allen may go to Martin, Betsy Layne or Prestonsburg, would Dr. Adams put Allen in all three educational districts?

3. DISTRICT NO. 1 SHARE OF TAX DOLLARS

Of the 101 new classrooms constructed since 1960, thirty rooms have been constructed in District No. 1, at Clark, Prestonsburg High and Prestonsburg Elementary.

4. REMOVING POLITICAL PRESSURE

At no time within the last ten years has a board employee been pressured in any political race. Pete Howard has never approached a teacher in this board election. Has he ever tried to be elected Democratic County Chairman? Dr. Adams, on the other hand, ran for Republican County Chairman at the last election. We do not believe the county chairman of either party should be a board member. Is the good Doctor trying to control both parties by slipping through the back door by controlling the school system? Dr. Adams hasn't been bashful about campaigning with teachers and other board employees in this race.

5. A TEACHER ON BOARD COMMITTEE

A teacher committee of up to fourteen members has served each year to develop salary budget for the board for five years. Would Dr. Adams cut the teacher committee down to one member? We prefer the larger number.

6. MEETING SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION STANDARDS

Prestonsburg High was dropped from Association during teacher shortage when many teachers had to be used. This has not in any way affected the entrance for our graduates. A graduate of last year is an honor Freshman at Harvard. A self-study has gone on at Prestonsburg since early last school year in order to ask for readmission to Southern Association.

We all agree that Doctor Adams knows medicine and works hard at his profession, but the truth is, he knows very little about the school system in our County. By electing Pete Howard, we can be sure that Dr. Doug has enough time for his patients and the school system can keep marching forward through harmony and sensible planning. DR. ADAMS STATED HIS OPPOSITION TO THE NEW HIGH SCHOOL AT EASTERN AT A VERY RECENT CIVIC CLUB MEETING WHILE PETE HOWARD RESTATED HIS SUPPORT. We must not forget that the needless lawsuits filed by a number of Doug's relatives and friends at Martin have already cost Floyd County taxpayers over $225,000.00 and this should tell us something. The present board has worked as a team for all Floyd County children. Please preserve the team by re-electing Pete Howard and J. H. Allen.

A Vote for Pete Howard is a vote For The Children and ONLY The Children
A Vote for J. H. Allen is a vote For The Children and ONLY The Children

Group from U. of L. Visits East Kentucky In Study of Housing

Sixty-two persons from the University of Louisville last week-end visited Floyd and three other Eastern Kentucky counties in an effort to learn more about housing problems and programs in the area. A part of the week-end activities of the group was a housing survey conducted in Floyd, Knott, Letcher and Perry counties.

The Eastern Kentucky visit was sponsored by the U. of L. Urban Studies Center, which is offering a master's degree program in community development. Classes are held not only at U. of L. but also at Alice Lloyd and Pikeville Colleges.

Early in December, students from Eastern Kentucky will visit Louisville in a similar study of problems and programs that have been developed to meet urban needs, Dr. Richard O. Comfort, U. of L.'s coordinator for Eastern Kentucky, said.

American Standard Open House To Display Newest Product

The public will have its first look at the manufacture of a revolutionary product when American Standard opens the doors of its new Paintsville plant for 10 hours Saturday, October 24.

"We have been looking forward to this open house for more than two years, Plant Manager Roger McKenzie said. "While the hazards of construction and start-up previously forced us to limit public access, we are proud of this facility and anxious to share it with all of our new neighbors."

What the public will see in tours from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. is a widely-varied series of processes which produce the new Aquarian line of plumbing fittings, the newest product manufactured by American Standard at any of its more than 100 manufacturing plants around the world.

The Aquarian line features the unique ceRamix control valve cartridge which controls the flow of water without washers or other parts which are subject to wear. The working surface of the ceramic discs is so true that they form a vacuum seal when pressed together, and so hard that a compound of crushed diamonds must be used in final polishing.

then feed the substance into a dryer which converts it into a gritty ceramic powder.

2. The tablet press area, where this powder is pressed into ceramic discs under 10 to 16 tons of pressure.

3. The kiln room, where a gas-fired kiln consumes 55,000 to 60,000 cubic feet of gas during each 35-hour firing cycle required to bake the discs to near-diamond hardness.

4. The lapping and polishing room in which the disc surfaces are precision ground and polished.

5. The molding machine area, where a battery of machines mold up to 3,000 plastic parts per hour for use in the ceRamix cartridges.

6. Assembly lines where the cartridge is assembled and where plumbing fixtures which use this cartridge are assembled.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the tour, and guests will receive open house mementoes.

CARD OF THANKS
We, the family of Connie Lou Hamilton, wish to thank all who helped us during the illness and at the passing of our beloved daughter and sister. We especially wish to thank the minister, Rev. W. D. Jagers, for his comforting words; those who sent floral offerings, and especially the Hall Brothers Funeral Home for their kind and efficient service.
THE FAMILY

The cartridge contains 13 parts, seven of which are manufactured at the Paintsville plant.

Tours for open house guests will include:

1. The mix and blend area. Here, huge mixers churn seven ingredients into a mud-like substance for more than eight hours,

Isn't it about time someone did something about giving you an improved color TV guarantee? MOTOROLA HAS!

ONE YEAR SERVICE AND TWO YEAR REGISTERED GUARANTEE ON PICTURE TUBE AND ALL COMPONENT PARTS

Motorola's original owner's guarantee is twofold.

(1) Components and Picture Tube—For a period two years from purchase date, Motorola guarantees free exchange or repair of any component part and picture tube, including their replacements, proved defective in normal use. New or remanufactured replacement parts used at Motorola's option.

(2) Labor—Dealer will provide a Labor Guarantee Registration Form which entitles purchaser to free in-home service labor one year from purchase date. Labor extra thereafter. Labor covers repair and replacement of guaranteed components, picture tube and workmanship defects. Guarantee excludes charges for initial set-up, installation, delivery, instruction, misuse, customer misadjustments, and antenna service. Product and service's transportation and premium time not within normal work day are extra. Arranged through selling dealer and valid only if performed by Motorola authorized participating servicer and on submission of guarantee book, bill of sale and labor guarantee form.

Both the Guarantee Registration Card and Labor Guarantee Registration Form must be returned, as specified therein, within 10 days of delivery. Otherwise both guarantees are void. Owner must notify Motorola of any address change.

America's hottest love affair...

Mobile homes and electric heat. They were made for each other. Electric heat solves so many of the mobile homeowner's problems. Convenient. No more running out of fuel, no frozen fuel lines. Worry free. It's flameless. No pilot light or flame to go out. Eliminates fuel drums and bottles. If you're shopping for a new mobile home see how much more you get for your money with total electric. Or, if you own an older mobile home it can be switched to electric heat in a matter of hours. This improved guarantee comes with all 25" (diag.) Quasar II "works in a drawer" Color TVs.

All 25" (diag.) Quasar II Color TVs also have:

- Solid-state* plug-in mini-circuits to help keep the set at home working . . . not in the repair shop. If a mini-circuit should ever fail, the drawer slides out and a new mini-circuit can be plugged in, usually right at home, in minutes. That's why it's called the easy-to-service "works in a drawer" Color TV.
- Improved color picture tube that's "squared off" to provide a big 315-square inch viewing area.
- Automatic fine tuning that brings in the best possible color picture, and an electronic lock that keeps it that way, even when the channels are changed.
- All have luxurious cabinetry like the WU917 shown above. This is a to-the-floor contemporary style cabinet finished in rich Trendwood veneer and select hardwood solids.
