

Modern Camping 'Out' At Jenny Wiley in '71

Ex-Commissioner Admits No Hope For This Season

Jenny Wiley and all other state parks that have no fully developed camping areas face at least one more season with only primitive camping to offer visitors, Parks Commissioner James Host said recently, shortly before he resigned his post to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor.

Mr. Host said a million more visitors to Kentucky are expected next summer and that 10 per cent of these will be campers. All state and private facilities put together can't handle this load, he admitted.

The Department of Parks has acquired the Goble Branch area in the lower section of Dewey Lake as a potential camping area, but its development has been delayed while method has been debated. Commissioner Host and other state officials have maintained that development by private individuals or firms is preferable, while others have contended the Department of Parks should issue $9 million in revenue bonds to finance the development by the state itself.

The final decision will be made by the Division of Properties and Grounds. Whatever is done, Host says, will be too late for the coming season.

Last summer, only 71 campsites were added in all Kentucky, making a total of 1933 sites available to camper. A recent survey, according to Host, shows a need for 3850 more.

"Personally, I'll settle for something less," the ex-commissioner said, "and they don't all have to be laid this summer. But when you're a park superintendent and have to turn away more than a hundred camping vehicles on a given day, when you find campers the next morning nesting in the most primitive fashion all over your park, when these same campers are forced to dump raw sewage wherever they can, and it would be inhumane to stop them, you can't blame park managers for their demands."

A study by Spindletop Research shows the development of campsites would be profitable, whether by the state or private interests. Host submitted findings after an exhaustive study of the subject. He opposes further bond indebtedness, and contends private developers would do a better job because of their interest in making such a project show better profits. Opponents of the leasing plan speak of political favoritism and the money already spent on proposed campsites by the state.

Based on Spindletop figures for the installation of 1000 campsites, development of a 100-campsite area would entail an expenditure of perhaps as much as $200,000—more, if a camp store and laundry, playground, swimming pool and boat launching facility were a part of the development. These figures are based on an estimated cost of $1500 for the basic camp unit consisting of tent pad, table, (See Story No. 1, Page 8)

Action Attacks Driver Penalty

Suit was filed in circuit court here Tuesday by Raleigh Barnett against the Department of Public Safety in an effort to void the suspension of Barnett's license to operate a motor vehicle.

The suit points out that on Jan. 12 the Department suspended Barnett's license on the grounds that he refused to submit to a chemical test after his arrest on a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicants. He later requested a hearing and Robert L. Wilson, examiner, sustained the suspension on Feb. 2. Barnett, however, claims, that Wilson found that he first consented to take the test and to accompany Officer Allen to City Hall here where such tests are given and that at no time did he verbally refuse the test.

Plaintiff claims the suspension is not supported by substantial evidence and is "arbitrary or capricious." He also contends that KRS 185.565, the statute requiring such tests, is unconstitutional in that it violates petitioner's rights under the Fourth and Fifteenth Amendments to the U. S. Constitution protecting the individual from search and seizure and that it violates the Fifth Amendment, which bars the state from compelling a person to give evidence that might tend to incriminate him.

Hackworth Wins Reinstatement To Martin Post

Reinstating Bob Hackworth as Martin night policeman, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley held Monday that the officer's dismissal by the Martin City Council was illegal because the action was taken without notice and without charges being preferred against him.

The judgment also provided that Hackworth is to be paid his salary, retroactive to Nov. 24, the date of his dismissal.

Judge Conley said there is no question as to the right of Council to dismiss Hackworth but pointed out that such action must be preceded by due notice and the filing of formal charges.

Hackworth said Monday that he expected to return to work the following night.

Mayor E. P. Grigsby, City Clerk Walter Spencer, Councilman Raymond Griffith and others testified for the Council at Monday's hearing. Defendants in the action sought to show that minutes of the Council meeting at which Hackworth was dismissed were incorrect. Chief of Police A. J. Reed was one of those who testified to their correctness.

The temporary restraining order procured by Hackworth to prevent the Council from holding a meeting Jan. 11 and taking further action in his case was dismissed Jan. 29 and the trial date was set.

In addition to serving as night policeman, Hackworth is superintendent of the municipally owned Martin water system.

Raids Net Haul During Week-End With 3 Arrested

Three liquor raids by state and county officers over the week-end resulted in the confiscation of 1,005 cans of beer and 114 half-pints of whiskey, vodka and gin, and the arrest of three men who were charged with illegal possession of alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale.

Two of the raids were made Friday night when State Troopers Elmo Allen and Gary Rose and Deputy Sheriff Claude Flanery confiscated 573 cans of beer and 19 half-pints of whiskey in a search of the property of Burley Brown on Johns Branch, near Langley. The same night, the two state troopers raided the premises of Sherman Cook, of McDowell, confiscating 240 cans of beer, 46 half-pints of whiskey, 10 half-pints of vodka and 5 half-pints of gin. Both Brown and Cook executed bond. (See Story No. 4, Page 8)

Health Groups Meet In Uproarious Session

Last Wednesday's meeting at Paintsville of the executive and planning committees of the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Services Program with Big Sandy CAP and representatives of two state agencies developed on occasion into what was described as "a shouting match."

The verbal outbreaks resulted from challenges hurled by residents of the Mud Creek section and representatives of the Eastern Kentucky Welfare Rights Association.

The situation became so confused that Harry Eastburn, Big Sandy CAP director, adjourned the meeting to another building where the session was held behind closed doors.

"When the rich men speak, the poor people have to sit down," an unidentified woman shouted. "When the poor people talk, the rich men adjourn their meeting."

"It's a public meeting," another complained. Mr. Eastburn said it was not, adding: "Committee meetings are not necessarily public. This was supposed to be a work session, in which we planned how to get input into this program for all segments of society—including the poor people."

Present for the meeting were State Health Commissioner William McElwain and Lynn B. Frazer, director of the Kentucky Office of Economic Opportunity.

Another who attended the meeting was Dr. Arnold Schechter, recently deposed director of the Comprehensive Health Services Program in this county. Schechter has contended that the program should be more than a "referral agency," and that it should employ doctors, dentists and pharmacists to provide the 15,000 on welfare in the county central diagnosis and treatment.

But Frazer's statements at the Paintsville meeting indicated that the referral system by which the county's existing hospital and present doctors are used to provide medical care will be maintained for some time.

McElwain said he thought Schechter's proposal to put teams of specialists out in Floyd county "is unrealistic." Mentioning the proposals made by the health program director before he was fired, Frazer termed them a "list of uncoordinated activities" which, he said, could produce nothing but "inefficiency, fragmentation and lack of accomplishment."

The exchange of views and comments first became loud at Wednesday's meeting when Dr. Robert Titzler, who is serving the program as a doctor in the Mud Creek section, asked officials to define a provision in federal guidelines for the health program. This provision specifies, it was said, that care shall be provided in "a single, conveniently located setting."

Dr. Schechter's wife, an attorney, said if state officials and program planners want to learn what poor people want, they should go up the hollows and ask them. A part of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of approaches to the problem of getting ideas from the people served. It was decided meetings will be held at the seven outposts operated by the program and that the "consumer group" could be heard at these.

Dr. Douglas Adams, chairman of the health program planning committee, said several times during the meeting that he would meet with any and all groups to hear their needs and proposals, before writing the new program.

Eastburn pointed out that there were two poor people on the committee present and that they would be heard in the closed meeting. Schechter, however, said he thought two consumers represented out of 15,000 was too small.

Adams said during the private session that he already had asked the medical society and the pharmacists in Floyd

This Town... That World

I'm for the Establishment. Do away with it, and you have Disestablishmentarianism—a word too long for a headline, or for anybody who has a drawl. Especially in these days of "fast" time.

SHE HAD HER POINTS

This fellow was a bit on the noncommittal side when it came to discussing his wife. Wouldn't say she had a face that, like the famed Helen of Troy, launched a thousand ships or if it was one that would stop a clock. But he did admit, my informant says, that she was "the knife-swappin'est woman I ever saw."

WITH REGRET...

Richard Howard, of Pikeville College, and Clark Marshall, of Wayne, Mich., have been urging me of late to get my hat back into the ring for this poke warden office, but the poke season and early fishing sort of overlap, and I'm afraid I'll have to give up on whatever chance I ever had for the office. ## Jervis Dies, Three Shot In Gunfight

Columbus, O. Bar Scene of Shooting; 2 Others May Die

A gunfight inside a Columbus, O. bar Saturday night resulted in the death of one Floyd county man, the critical shooting of his brother and the wounding of two other men, one seriously.

Thomas J. Jervis, 35, formerly of Endicott, was almost instantly killed by a revolver bullet in his head. His brother, John Hardy Jervis, was listed Monday in critical condition with a bullet wound in his chest.

Arnold Carter, 47, bartender at the Old Corner Bar, was struck in his left hand by a shotgun charge reportedly fired by Thomas J. Jervis, and a wild shot from Carter's .38-calibre revolver critically wounded a bystander.

The homicide bureau, Columbus Police Department, said the shooting followed the ordering by Carter of the Jervis brothers from the bar. The police report said Thomas Jervis began kicking a cigarette machine when he apparently thought he did not receive the correct change and that the bartender told the brothers to leave. They left, telling Carter they would be back, a homicide bureau spokesman told The Times. This report says Carter fired, killing the elder of the brothers after he had been shot in his hand, and that the bartender then shot John Hardy Jervis when the latter "went after" the bartender.

Carter was booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the wounding of the bystander.

The brothers resided at 897 McAllister street, Columbus. The scene of the shooting is at 937 East Main street.

A tool and die machinist, the victim was a son of T. J. and Elizabeth Collins Jervis, of Endicott. He is survived by parents, his widow, Mrs. Mary Lou Sturgill Jervis, two sons and four daughters, Ronnie, Tom, Jr., Shirl Ann, Nell Sue, Renesa Rena and Debbie Lou Jervis, all at home; two brothers John Hardy Jervis, of Columbus, Wayne Cletis Jervis, Ann Arbor, Mich., and two sisters, Mrs. Hattie Belle Strickland, of Auxier, and Miss Flora Irene Jervis, of Ann Arbor; three half-brothers and one half-sister. ## Schools Reopen After Snowfall

Schools of the county were open again Tuesday after 12 of the 15 teaching days in the last three weeks have been lost because of snowfall and icy roads.

Four days were lost last week, classes resumed Friday, and then came new snow and ice over the week-end to close school doors Monday.

County Superintendent Charles Clark said that state school officials have ruled that 5 of the 12 "lost" days may be written off as "calamity days," leaving only seven days for teachers and pupils to make up at the end of the term.

If no more time is missed, this would make possible the end of the 1970-'71 term on June 7.

Church People Provide Lodge Largest Crowd in Its History

The largest crowd ever to attend any function of its kind at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, gathered last Friday evening for the Ford Philpot Crusade banquet, with 500 or more from four counties hearing the Rev. Philpot and members of his team discuss plans for the Big Sandy valley area crusade which he will lead here the week of July 18-25.

Mrs. Burl Spurlock, chairman of the banquet committee, said that 487 tickets were turned in by persons attending the banquet.

Dr. Philpot in his talk stressed the need for concern for the individual in contradiction to the usual general concern expressed for nations and groups. He was introduced by the Rev. William Pope, pastor of the First United Methodist Church here.

Orientation was discussed by the Rev. Swinton Futch, Crusade director. The gathering of pastors and members of practically all area churches was welcomed by County Judge Henry Stumbo.

Others taking part in the program were the Rev. Clifford Austin, of the Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist Church here; Rev. Dan Heintzleman, of Martin, co-chairman of the Crusade committee, and the Rev. Earl Waugh, of the Allen Baptist Church.

Bloodstained Theatre Program Among Lincoln Mementoes Here

Mrs. Stanley A. Combs, of Prestonsburg, a great-granddaughter of a law associate of Abraham Lincoln, spoke last Thursday at a meeting of the Johnson Central high school's Trailblazers History Club and exhibited her highly valued collection of Lincoln memorabilia.

The Prestonsburg woman has given her collection of Lincolnia for it to have a place in the Mary Todd Lincoln home in Lexington when its restoration is completed. The work of preserving the home is being led by Mrs. Louie B. Nunn.

Mrs. Combs' great-grandfather, David Smith, lived in Jeffersonville, Ill., and was associated with Lincoln in more than 40 court cases. In her collection are two letters written by Lincoln to Mr. Smith—one referring to a deposition; the other, written after Lincoln's election to the Congress, to the recommendation of a postmaster.

But the most highly prized item in her collection may be one of the only known five original Ford Theatre programs from the Presidential box for the night of Lincoln's assassination. Bloodstains remain in evidence on the paper.

But Mrs. Combs, who has devoted years to the task of weeding out the myth surrounding Lincoln and finding the truth, says her research convinces her this is not the martyred President's blood. The stains, she says, are probably from the blood of Major Rathbone, who was seated in the Presidential box on the night of the assassination. Lincoln's wound, she says, bled little, but Rathbone bled profusely when Booth, the assassin, struck him with a knife, cutting an artery in his arm. The attack on the major came when he grappled with Booth as he fled.

The program was presented to Mrs. Combs' father by Walter TenEyck, an actor who was not on the program the evening of the assassination. TenEyck knew of the close association of David Smith and the President and wanted the family to have the memento.

Also in the Prestonsburg woman's collection is what she terms an "1837 Emancipation Proclamation"—a document by which her great-grandfather freed his 17 slaves at a time when he lived in Huntsville, Alabama. After moving to Illinois he made of his home a "station" for the "Underground railroad" by which slaves escaped from the South into the North.

Smith made the first contribution toward the building of a tomb honoring the Great Emancipator.

Mrs. Combs blames William Herndon, Lincoln's law-partner, for much of the myth that has surrounded Lincoln. She especially blames Herndon for the story of the alleged love affair between Lincoln and Ann Rutledge. She claims there was no such affair; that Herndon was an alcoholic and, after having been refused by Mrs. Lincoln admittance to her home, retaliated with the false stories, "to get even."

Although her collection has been committed to a place in the Todd home it remains with her until the restoration work is completed and will be available for exhibit by her to historical groups.

Mrs. Combs displays framed Ford Theatre program, one of only five known to have come from Presidential box after Lincoln assassination. Bloodstains are visible on the program. Inspecting the exhibit is Cleetus Witten, president of the Trailblazers History Club at Johnson Central high school.

A Pattern of Service

Six years ago, a young Lexington, Ky. man went to a remote corner of Iran as a Peace Corps volunteer. His story may well be a pattern for all who go into strange places under the banner of Service.

Working with the Iranian people, and leading these people to work with him, he and they achieved these things:

- Built a public library, the first this town of 40,000 where he was located had ever had. Begun with less than a dozen clothbound books and 263 paperbacks, this library now has 7000 volumes, serves an average of 400 persons a day, and from it 31 other libraries have been founded in as many villages and towns—all staffed and supported by Iranians.

- Founded a kindergarten in a corner of this original library, and from it has now developed three schools for pre-school children, four private elementary schools and two private high schools.

- Equipped a laboratory for high school students and built a fully equipped gymnasium.

- Founded another school in a mountain village which stands at the end of a dirt road and is reached only by horse or on foot. It enrolled 128 pupils last year as the young Peace Corpsman went about, preaching to the villagers their responsibility to their "one treasure," their children.

As a project was established and going well, he moved out and let the Iranian people take over.

Today this Kentuckian, Barkley Moore, is known as "The Legend of the Peace Corps." The village where he worked, Gonbad Kavous, did an unprecedented thing, just before he left not long ago to return to the United States—it named him, an "outsider," an "honorary citizen." The Shah of Iran and the Council of Ministers hailed his work and presented him a special medal. In appreciation of what he had done the Prime Minister, on behalf of the people, gave him gifts and expressed appreciation.

These are facts taken from an article written for the Baptist Press by Beth Hayworth and reprinted in The Western Recorder. Writes Miss Hayworth:

"The legend of Moore's life in Iran is a story of faith and hard work, of incredible physical strength and determination. It is the story of how one man inspired entire villages to do almost impossible tasks. But, most of all, it is a story of love, of caring for people, of loving and being loved by them."

A high school student, having trouble with the English language, yet expressing himself (or herself) in poetic prose, wrote the Kentuckian:

"...I promise to keep all your advices by heart and soul and I will use it in the darkneses of life like a bright light."

Another wrote, admitting to Moore that when he first arrived in their town teachers poked fun at his attempts to speak Persian. "But when you left," the youngster added, "a thousand eyes cried after you."

And what does Moore himself say?

"I went to Iran with the feeling that if I could help just one person it would be worth two years of my life...The essence of our Christian faith is the value of one person...The whole key to the thing is caring about other people..."

When he left Iran Moore pledged to continue his support of 14 former school dropouts whom he had got back into class. Since then he has borrowed money to keep faith with them. To protests of Iranians and of friends here at home that he already has done enough, he says, "I can't do otherwise."

So one man worked and loved and lived as a part of the people to whom he went in the name of Service.

Barkley Moore didn't find things ideal in Iran, it's certain. There was plenty to complain about. He could have downgraded the Establishment, told the people they were being treated unjustly, that the Shah lived in a palace while they suffered in penury, that it was time things were changed.

But this young man, who was too busy even to grow a beard, was not there to lead a rebellion. He wanted to lead people to work, to develop, to retain pride in their own culture, know their own worth as individual human beings—not as a group but as individuals, each of whom he prized.

The Peace Corps has not always been marked by such devotion on the part of its representatives. Barkley Moore has set an example which the Peace Corps and what has been termed its domestic counterpart—VISTA—would do well to emulate as they deal with human needs and problems.

Letters to the Editor

BLAMES MINE SAFETY ACT

Now that the hysteria and smoke has begun to clear away from the Finley mine disaster, a pattern is slowly beginning to unfold. Even at this early point, any unbiased, clear-headed thinking can only surmise that the hastily contrived Mine Safety Act of 1969 was a primary cause of this grave tragedy.

Many of us who have been in the desert and have seen the huge duststorms that can be kicked up by wind velocity, can understand that excessive velocities, as required by the new law, could pick up and suspend coal dust, thus creating explosive conditions that, if not triggered by one cause, could have been triggered by another. As usual, excessive governmental interference results only in chaos, menial production and tragedy. Mine safety can be improved only by knowledgeable engineers and scientists, unharrassed management, education and training of miners.

All the laws passed in the halls of the Congress and Senate will not bring back a single life of a miner and, like our highways and airways, additional, hastily contrived and ill-informed regulations can only stir up more dust, and this is the atmosphere in which tragedies are bred.

A. E. HAYES
Elkhorn City, Ky.

WHERE THE BLAME BELONGS

It was a great tragedy that happened at Hyden, and my heart goes out to the families. But it burns me up to hear people put the blame on our President. I think the blame belongs closer home than Washington, D. C.

After all, what good is it going to do if the President makes a million safety laws if they don't practise the ones they already have?

By the way, I am not a Republican.
MRS. MARGARET HYDEN
West Prestonsburg, Ky.

IN PRAISE OF HOSPITAL

All my life I have heard how people were treated in the hospital, very little commendation, nearly always critical. I am 52 years old and have experienced my first stay in the hospital, and I want to express my gratitude to my doctor, William B. Cook, and to all of those at Prestonsburg General hospital. I was truly amazed at the personal care given each patient. This is a truly dedicated people—from the girls, who checked me in, through all of those who ran all the tests and the nurses who tried to make our stay more pleasant.

I am deeply grateful. May God bless and keep you in my prayer.

Blames Programs, Bootlegging For Decline of Moonshining

(In the article which follows Bob Cooper, Associated Press writer, blames the decline of moonshining in this section to three factors: the "Happy Pappy" program, the competition from bootleggers of "red" whiskey and the exodus to other states of many residents.—Ed.)

A legend passed from father to son, generation to generation, once made moonshine one of the most popular and profitable products of Eastern Kentucky's hills.

But now the preparation of white lightning is a dying art.

"Why, just about 15 years ago, I knew at least 15 people in this area who made moonshine for a living," a former moonshiner said. "Now there are just three."

His estimate is verified by the U. S. District Court for the Eastern district of Kentucky, which reports only about 10 per cent of the moonshine cases of two decades ago.

What happened to them all? "Well, part are in the pen, part are in other states and part are in the Happy Pappy program or some other kind of welfare," said the former moonshiner, who didn't want his identity disclosed.

Then, too, it's much much easier now to bring bootleg alcohol—legal booze that's smuggled into dry territory—into the hills from such cities as Lexington, Richmond or Winchester.

The legend that started it all was that settlers coming west over the Allegheny Mountains after the Revolutionary War were told that if they would settle the land, they could grow corn and make their own liquor with it.

"It makes no difference whether the legend was true or not," one historian said, "because as it was passed from father to son, it was believed."

It wasn't long until it became obvious that some were more talented than others in the production, so they turned that talent into cash, and commercial moonshining flourished.

"There wasn't too much money in circulation then," the former moonshiner said, "and a job was a difficult thing to get. You know, when a man's family is hungry, he'll make liquor or anything to feed them."

And in those days, as now, the men in the hill country preferred moonshine to commercial whiskey. "Why, right now you can trade a quart of moonshine for two quarts of that other stuff," one said.

But then America's modernization began creeping into the hills and gigantic government poverty programs channeled money into almost every hollow.

Roads such as the interstates and the Mountain Parkway cut travel time to Lexington, where alcohol sales are legal, by half or even two-thirds. A truckful of whiskey can be smuggled to, say, Prestonsburg in less than two hours.

"I guess there's at least 50 places right around here where I can buy whisky or beer," the former moonshiner said. "And it's the same all over the mountains."

Then, too, bootlegging is a state crime, to be tried in local courts as long as the operator buys a federal tax stamp. Moonshining is a federal crime, tried in U. S. District Court.

"When you have a local judge or a local jury, you don't have so much to worry about," the former moonshiner said. "You might get 30 days in jail, and lots of people get off free."

In federal court, however, the moonshiner is before a judge who is a stranger or a jury often made up of people who live far from his home. It's not unusual to get two years in prison on the first offense.

Moonshining also is expensive by mountain standards. "I guess it would take at least $100 to go into the commercial business on a common basis," the former moonshiner said.

That would get you just three steel drums in which to boil your "beer," the cap for the top of the drum to capture the steam, a copper coil in which to cool it again and the flake stand to hold cold water around the copper tubing, or "worm" as it's called in the business.

For each run, you'd also need about a peck of malt corn, 1½ bushels of meal and 50 pounds of sugar.

Rural Medical Scholarship Fund Loans Exceed $1 Million

Less than 15 percent of the physicians in private practice are located in rural areas of the United States. Dr. C. C. Howard, Glasgow, chairman of the Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund Board of Trustees, said recently in announcing that the Fund is now accepting applications for loans from medical students who are residents of the state and have been admitted to an accredited medical school.

Dr. Howard pointed out that Kentucky's Rural Scholarship Program was established 25 years ago, and has already loaned more than $1,000,000. There are physician recipients practicing in 87 of the 120 counties in Kentucky.

In designing a program to assist medical students who need financial help, three separate plans have been formulated:

1. A student may borrow up to $2,500 per year, provided he will agree to practice in one of 10 Kentucky counties most in need of a physician. For each year the recipient practices in one of these "critical" counties, one $2,500 loan will be forgiven.
2. A student may borrow $1,500 per year with the provision that one-half of the loan will be forgiven for each year of practice in a "semi-critical" county area designated by the Board. The "semi-critical" county areas are selected on the basis of the ones next in greatest need.

3. A student may borrow $1,500 per year who will agree to practice in rural areas other than the "critical" or "semi-critical" counties.

Students interested in learning more about the program should write to the Rural Kentucky Medical Scholarship Fund, Kentucky Medical Association, 3532 Ephraim McDowell Drive, Louisville, Kentucky 40205, prior to April 1.

PCC Debate Team Sets Good Record In Ohio Tourney

The Prestonsburg Community College debate team recently traveled to Marietta College in Marietta, Ohio to participate in a debate tournament with teams representing colleges from Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky. Prestonsburg Community College was the only two-year school entered in the tournament.

The Prestonsburg debaters defeated Kent State, Morris-Harvey and Stark College and had ties in the overall number of wins against Kent State, Otterbein, Morris-Harvey, and Alderson-Broaddus. P. C. C. has more wins than the teams from the University of Pittsburg, Youngstown College and Rio Grande College.

Those participating from Prestonsburg in the tournament were Marvin Holbrook, Stefan Magura, Phillip Meek, and Randy Clark. Robert Tackett competed in radio broadcasting. The students were accompanied by their coach, Mrs. Laura Weddle, English instructor.

The state's second oldest institution for juvenile delinquents, Kentucky Village, will close its doors within the next two years; the 200 children currently in residence at the facility will be moved to regional centers.

Collopy Presents Technical Paper

Frank Collopy, civil engineering and math instructor at Prestonsburg Community College, recently presented a technical paper at the fourth annual Kentucky Surveyors Conference Center in Lexington.

The paper entitled, "The State Plane Coordinate System—Uses and Calculations," was co-authored by Mr. Collopy and Robert Joubert, assistant town engineer, Brookline, Massachusetts.

Presented to over 100 participants at the conference, the paper described the advantages of, and the need for, present-day surveyors to utilize the State Plane Coordinate System (SPCS) of designating boundaries and monuments of property surveys with the rectangular coordinates referenced to the accepted coordinate axes as specified by the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The SPCS of determining boundaries was recently used to layout the Interstate Highway System throughout Kentucky and was also used in the 1940's by some of the coal mining companies in Eastern Kentucky to designate boundaries in their land surveys. The modern trend in most states in this country is to utilize such a system.

Mr. Collopy and Mr. Joubert, who were classmates in undergraduate days at Merrimack College, Andover, Mass. Successfully collaborated on this technical presentation, although they are now separated by more than 1000 miles.

Mr. Joubert has been employed at the Town Engineer's Office in Brookline, Mass. for the past six years. He is a registered surveyor in Massachusetts. Mr. Collopy, who is a registered professional engineer in Massachusetts, has previously authored and presented other technical papers in the field of structural mechanics, dynamics and vibration.

Breaks May Have 'Skylift' Spanning Its Scenic Gorge

Breaks Interstate Park is expected to add to its attractions by May, 1972 an aerial tramway which would provide a 2500-foot trip from the Clinchfield overlook across the scenic gorge there.

Cost of the facility would be over a half million dollars and would include a gift shop and snack bar.

The tramway would include two cars which would hold about 30 passengers each. The equipment will be manufactured in Switzerland.

A total of 75,000 paid passengers is estimated for the first year of operation. An estimate of 8 per cent increase per year was also projected.

This facility will also allow the development of the west side of the gorge as well as the east side.

FRANKFORT, KY.—With travel and boat shows making the rounds and playing to packed houses, with sporting goods dealers presenting pre-season displays of rods, reels and other paraphernalia, and with the annual flood of fishing equipment brochures that make their way into mail boxes, the fisherman or outdoorsman cannot be judged too harshly if his fishing anticipation mounts to the running-over stage.

There will be literally thousands of fishermen who this year will be in the market for new gear. The old rod and reel may be relegated to a corner by a veteran angler, the new fisherman eagerly awaits the purchase of his first tackle, and some who own adequate fishing gear will want to get into the swim of things by purchasing something new in the fishing world. This all makes for a good market, but often is not good for the fishermen.

Many fishermen buy equipment that is not suited to their needs. They do this through ignorance, pressure or bad advice from fishing friends. Just about every fisherman who has cast a plug believes he is an authority on the equipment offered and may often bluster his way into the purchase of rods or reels that are not suited to his needs. He may use them, completely unaware that better suited equipment could make him a better fisherman.

The very best rod of a given make is not always suitable for every individual. Some variation may be available that is more effective, or an angler may be forced to change to another brand before he gets what is best for him.

This is not a fluff at any or all tackle companies. If every person required and demanded the very same equipment, eventually there would be but one company and one brand. It is said that there are persons for cars and there are cars for persons. The same is true of fishing equipment. Some would be excellent for a given person, but not suitable for another.

So, what do we do? A prospective buyer should first determine which equipment best suits his particular type of fishing. This can be done by trying out various models made by different companies. If the buyer is not sure of his needs, he should ask the operator of the store or the salesman who deals in the merchandise and in most instances he will receive good advice. The seller usually is a man of integrity and he will be glad to guide a buyer and see that he receives the correct equipment.

If the dealer is unable to help, then a person who has had great experience in fishing will be able to give detailed information and guide the new buyer or the buyer who is uninformed about his needs.

Proper equipment can make a fishing season much more enjoyable. For a youngster it could determine whether he should make fishing his favorite avocation or whether he will be discouraged because of unsuitable or inoperable rods and reels. So often a parent has been heard to say: "My youngster likes to fish. I want to get him a cheap rod and reel to start with. An inexpensive one is all he needs."

How incorrect. If the inadequate rod or reel is purchased for the youngster, chances are that it will actually be all he'll need. Frustration with its limited action will cause him to abandon fishing for all time.

This new car is the best reason not to buy a Volkswagen Beetle.

In a year when every car maker seems to be giving you one reason or another not to buy a Volkswagen Beetle, it might be a good idea to listen to the best reason:

- Volkswagen's Super Beetle.
- It has almost twice the luggage space as the Beetle of yesteryear.
- It has a longer-lasting, more powerful engine.
- It has a new suspension system for a smoother ride.
- It has a flow-through ventilation system to bring

- in fresh air when the windows are closed.
- The interior is, to be honest, much nicer.
- The floor of the Super Beetle, for example, is fully carpeted.
- In all, it has 89 things you could never find on a Beetle.
- So of all the claims you'll hear this year by car makers that their cars are "better than a Beetle," there's only one car maker with 25 years experience in small cars to back it up.
- Volkswagen.

THE ANSWER

With politics threatening to take over for the next few months and aspirants to office springing up like tender plants all over, we are reminded of the story Woodrow Bur-

This was back during the administration of the late Edwin P. Morrow, and in spots there was strong sentiment for freeing "Old Ring" from the onerous burden of the state dog law. Elsewhere, sentiment was just as strong to control man's best friend. And the candidate, his constituents demanded, must make clear where he stood. He demurred but announced that on the first day of court at Hindman he would take his stand, publicly.

The day came, and the legislator stood, facing a big crowd. What he said ran to this effect:

"Some of my friends are for this dog law, and some are against it. I stand here to tell you that I'm always for my friends."

CHIP REMOVER

The story is told that this youngster was visiting his pastor a tough time. He wanted to know what was meant by "taking up your cross daily." Moreover, he demanded to know what good it would do.

To which the preacher patiently replied: "One thing it will do, young man, is this: Any time you take up your cross you'll knock off the chip from your shoulder."

Wish I had written this, but it's the thought of another—whose, I do not know: Any time you think another is inferior to you, he isn't.

Brighter News Ahead for KAI, Hope Expressed

Kentucky Appalachian Industries (KAI), Floyd county's pioneer manufacturing plant, has been closed for upwards of a month, idling 200 or more workers, but there is a possibility it may reopen soon, The Times was told Tuesday morning.

Don Harmon, of the Irving Airchute Corp., Lexington, which serves KAI in a supervisory capacity, said he plans to attend the annual Industry Appreciation Dinner of the Prestonsburg Area Chamber of Commerce, Friday night, and that he hopes to "have some good news" at that time.

Cutbacks in military spending halted work at KAI. The plant had devoted itself to the manufacture of tents, cargo nets and other items for the armed forces.

Mr. Harmon said he is hoping the plant can get into civilian production but added that what he is anxious about, just now, is to get back to work on any sort of contract.

KAI at one time had approximately 300 employees.

grate, parking space, electricity, drinking water, shower and restroom facilities, landscaping and the like.

To this basic cost would be added $300 per unit for a sewage system and $200 per unit for an electrical system. A camp store and laundry, which are optional, would cost another $22,000; a playground, $5,000; a swimming pool, $25-$50,000, and a boat launching facility, $30,000. These, however, are also optional.

Without a pool and boat launching installation, a 100-site camp would earn an annual gross of $70,000, and operating expenses would approximate $42,000. If full development of such a site were made, including pool, boat ramp, playground, all—the expected gross per year would be $90,000; operating expense, $48,600. Spindletop leaves $15,100 for depreciation, insurance, licenses, fees and bonds, leaving a profit of $26,300 before interest and taxes.

Spindletop estimates that the Department of Parks could operate the campsite system, pay $245,000 a year on bonds and have left over for its operating revenues $169,000 a year.

The document released by Mr. Host showed that 100 campsites are in the plans for Jenny Wiley State Park, 125 for Grayson, 150 for the new Green River park, 1100 for Rough River, 50 for Buckhorn, 125 for Carter Caves—in all, 3850 sites over the state.

He listed 49 firms or individuals, in and out of Kentucky, as having shown an interest in bidding on leases. Among these he listed Curtis Clark and Joe Weddington, both of Prestonsburg.

The report released to newspapers and other media by the Department of Parks listed last year's gross receipts at 10 boat docks operating under lease and showed that 60 per cent of these had a drop in revenues. Among those whose gross was down were Rough River, Jenny Wiley, on Dewey, Adams dock on Barren, Moffat's on Barkley, Kentucky Dam Marina, Ft. Boonesborough. Increased gross receipts were shown by Terry's dock on Dewey, Kentucky Dam Boat Basin, C. and W. dock at Kenlake and Gordon's on Cumberland. No report was given on the other docks.

Adams noted that there are three hospitals in Floyd county already, which is served by 19 local doctors and seven local dentists.

Adams proposed funding a scholarship program to help Prestonsburg Community College develop a paramedical training program. And he suggested local physicians could get out into the seven existing outposts operated by the health program, to give lectures to staff and to area residents.

Trooper Rose jailed Joe Hopkins Sunday night on an illegal possession charge after he had uncovered 192 cans of beer on the Hopkins premises at the mouth of Toler Creek, near Harold.

Three juveniles were jailed after they allegedly had broken into the second-story bedroom of Mrs. Boone Arnett last Wednesday night on Abbott Creek. Sheriff Frank Leslie said entry to the second floor of the home was effected by climbing a small tree onto the porch roof, then entering by a window. The youths were arrested by State Detective Chester D. Potter and State Trooper Williamson. Missing from the home were $8 in silver, a radio, a box of candy and an old razor. It was said the silver was taken from a change purse inside Mrs. Arnett's purse and that the intruders missed $80 in currency which was in an envelope, in the same purse.

Also broken into last Wednesday night was the church on Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, of which the Rev. Dan Heintzelman is pastor. A tape recorder and amplifier taken from the minister's second-floor office but left near the door on the main floor were badly damaged or ruined. Fingerprints were found but no arrest had been made as of Monday morning.

Clyde Branham, of Wheelwright, was jailed by City Policeman Ed Isaac on charges of destroying city and private property. Prestonsburg Policemen Hale and Campbell booked David and Donald DeRosset, Frank Stephens and Larry Shortridge on a charge of removing parts from a private car. Ted Goble was booked by State Trooper Cantrell and Deputy Sheriff Nelson on a hit-run charge.

Perkins Says Budget To Hit Ky. Education

Washington, D. C., February 16—Representative Carl D. Perkins advised Kentucky school superintendents today that President Nixon's budget for education may mean $13,042,000 less money for Kentucky next school year over the amount provided by Congress in appropriations for the current school year.

Perkins said that from data submitted by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, elementary and secondary education programs would be reduced about $2,000,000, vocational education by about $1,500,000, education professions development by $120,000, and public library programs by $500,000.

Higher education programs in Kentucky were allocated $9,044,351 in the current year, but under the President's new budget would drop to $267,492 because the President's proposal does not call for allocations to states of student assistance.

Programs most severely affected within these totals according to figures released by Perkins, are mathematics and science equipment. Under title III of the National Defense Education Act, Congress appropriated $948,977 for the current year and the President's budget calls for no expenditures in the school year beginning next September. Also eliminated from the budget are funds for vocational programs for disadvantaged students for which $403,891 was provided to Kentucky last year. There are no funds for consumer and home-making education; $429,159 was provided last year. The President's budget does not earmark funds for vocational education work-study; $94,161 was provided last year. The vocational cooperative education program was appropriated $333,000 last year; there are no funds in the budget for the next school year. Vocational education curriculum materials and development were given $722,259 in the current year and will receive no earmarked funds under the budget proposal. The Adult Education Act which got $1,148,538 for the current year will be reduced to $884,693 the next year under the budget proposal.

The state allocation of budgeted amounts shows severe reductions in funds for higher education with no funds scheduled for construction of facilities.

Public Library Services programs were provided $703,594 in Kentucky for the current year. Next year, under the President's budget, only $324,425 will be provided. Public library construction was given $127,653 by Congressional appropriations for the current year. The budget does not call for any expenditures in the next year.

Pikeville, Ky. (AP)—Six loaded coal gondolas on a Chesapeake and Ohio freight were derailed Thursday at Robinson Creek, about 12 miles south of Pikeville. No one was injured. The train was en route from Jenkins to the yards at Shelby in Pike county.

J. H. Cyrus' River Downs 6/9/70 "The Ohio Cannors Purse" "UNION PRIDE" T. Joseph up 5 1/2 fur. 1.05 R. W. Morris Trainer Lincton 2nd. Fulressa 3rd.

Prestonsburg-born Tommy Joseph, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Joseph, is establishing a reputation as one of the top jockeys on Florida racetracks and is moving toward his ambition to ride a winner in the Kentucky Derby.

Young Joseph, who began his riding career five years ago after getting the benefit of the experience of his uncle, Lee Cecil—also a Prestonsburg native and a veteran rider—has ridden 57 winners and has booted his mount into second place on more than 125 occasions.

In the Bluegrass Stakes at Keeneland last year Joseph finished in fourth place. Not too good, perhaps, but not too bad, either, when you consider that a fellow named Willie Shoemaker wound up fifth.

Young Joseph weighs 110 pounds—never weighed more than 120. When he was in school here he dreamed of a football career as his speed carried him around slower opponents, but while yet a Little Leaguer he decided he would never have the weight to go very far in that sport. So, with his uncle's help, he turned to a sport where lack of poundage is most desirable.

Another uncle of Joseph's—Claude Cecil—was exercise boy for last year's Kentucky Derby winner. He, too, has been connected with racing 10 years.

State, U.S. Agree On Drug Control

Representatives of federal and state drug control agencies recently signed a memorandum of understanding spelling out the activities of each to avoid duplication in enforcement work.

Officials from the federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs and the state Office of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs in the Health Department, along with Governor Nunn, signed the agreement.

Under terms of the understanding, state agencies will have the responsibility for control of drug abuse problems involving community and hospital pharmacies, dispensing practitioners and nursing homes, while the federal agency will be responsible for drugs distributed outside legitimate retail drug channels.

Before signing the agreement at the Capitol last week, Governor Nunn was presented an award by the International Narcotics Enforcement Officers' Assn. for his efforts in combating drug abuse in Kentucky.

Deep Drilling in East Morgan Finds Heavy Flow, Some Gas

(From The Licking Valley, Courier, West Liberty, Ky.)

Drillers have hit a good flow of oil and some gas in the deep-test well being drilled by Monitor Petroleum Corporation in eastern Morgan county near Moon post office, but the flows have been closed off and drilling is continuing.

Monitor proposes to drill the test well to the granite, estimated at 9,500 feet or deeper in that area. They were down 8,765 feet Wednesday, and expect to hit the granite in about two weeks or sooner.

Though various pays have been hit on the way down, biggest production found thus far was in the Rose Run section of the Knox formation at between 4,800 and 4,900 feet.

A drill-stem test was made in the Rose Run some weeks ago, and geologists estimated a flow of about 400 barrels of oil per day from this formation. Also some 3,000 cubic feet of gas cut the oil and surfaced in eight minutes during the test. The geologists estimate about 125,000 cubic feet of gas production in this formation.

The Rose Run section is at the bottom of the Knox, said Binck Strickland, Monitor's division manager.

Drillers also hit a pretty good show of oil in the Berea, and gas in a number of other formations, though not so big as in the Rose Run section.

"We're looking for something big in the basal sands" (the Pre-Cambrian atop the granite), Strickland said Wednesday. And he said the drill bit should be to that depth in about 10 days.

"Looks like we've got a pretty good well here in Morgan," he told a newspaperman this week.

Meanwhile, Monitor has picked up some 68,000 acres of leases in four eastern Kentucky counties since they came to Elliott last year and drilled a deep-test on Little Fork near Stephens.

Monitor now has about 14,000 acres of leases in eastern Morgan county, 20,000 acres in eastern Elliott, 24,000 in western Lawrence and 10,000 acres in north-western Johnson.

Now Monitor is looking forward to more exploratory drilling; also they plan to lay some connecting pipelines.

The company hopes to get started early in the spring on another deep well in Elliott near the Stevens well, and they plan to drill a bunch of wells in western Lawrence county. Also rumors are heard that Monitor plans to drill some shallow wells in eastern Morgan, one perhaps on the Ballard Wallin farm at the mouth of Dock's Creek less than a mile from the deep Moon well.

Strickland said Wednesday that Monitor had drilled two wells in Lawrence county in the shallower sands and had good gas production. They plan to lay a pipeline this spring to connect these wells to Inland's line about 1 1/2 miles away, and to drill additional wells in that area.

A recently published report shows the state's bonded indebtedness totaled just over $1.2 billion at the end of the last fiscal year.

Club Speaker Says Too Many Classes Fail the Pupil

Wayland, Ky.—“The Humanistic Approach to Education” was discussed at the January meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club recently at the home of Mrs. Milton Trusty, Jr., Garrett.
Guest-speaker was Mrs. Carrie M. Hughes, Whitesburg, member of the Central committee of the Mennonite Church, and teacher in charge of a day-care center near Whitesburg.

“Too many classrooms are meeting the needs of the teacher and not of the children,” Mrs. Hughes said. “Too often young children and older people are not treated as people.” On the subject of discipline, Mrs. Hughes felt that “a teacher must earn the respect of the children.” She stressed that “learning should be made so exciting that children will want to learn.”
She defined education as “learning from the past and present in order to shape the future.”

The Pledge to the Flag and a reading of the Club Collect by Mrs. Marie Mullins, with a brief devotional by Mrs. J. T.
Spillman, were given prior to the program.

During a business session the following committee members were elected to nominate officers for the coming club year:
Mrs. J. T. Spillman, chairman, Mrs. Cecil
Johnson, and Mrs. Otto Martin.

Checks for the annual scholarships to Prestonsburg Community College and Alice Lloyd College were issued to be presented to the respective colleges.

Club members were reminded by the club president, Mrs. Bill Castle, that it is nearing Valentine's Day, a time when the club furnishes cupcakes for the Golden Years' Rest Home at Lackey.

Those present were Mrs. Cecil Johnson,
Mrs. Marie Mullins, Mrs. Earl Castle, Mrs.
James E. Martin, Mrs. J. T. Spillman, Mrs.
Margaret Thiessen, Mrs. S. M. Martin,
Mrs. Alice Hornsby, Mrs. Hansel Bradley,
Mrs. Lula Coburn, Mrs. Beatrice Collins,
Mrs. Charles Collins, Mrs. Otto Martin,
Mrs. Carrie M. Hughes, guest, and the hostesses, Mrs. Milton Trusty, Jr., Mrs.
Rondell Lawson, Mrs. Birchell Duff, Mrs.
Orville Duff, and Mrs. Rondel Prater.

743 Phone-Users Added in Floyd During Year, Bell Manager Says

Kentucky telephone facilities continued to grow in 1970 as South Central Bell spent a record high $51,340,000 to provide its Kentucky customers with new and improved services.

According to Bill Gibson, South Central Bell's local manager, this represents an increase of more than $5 million over the firm's 1969 construction expenditures.

Reflecting the record construction program was an increase of 40,674 in the total number of telephones served in the state. These added telephones brought the year-end total to 900,164, compared with 859,490 at the outset of 1970.

"The number of telephones in Floyd county increased by 743, for a total of 7918 at the end of this past year," Gibson reported.

The $51 million dollar outlay made possible the extension of service to new urban and rural areas throughout the state, the upgrading of party-line service, and increased availability of Direct Distance Dialing to Kentucky subscribers.

Major projects in the state included the completion of a $7,000,000 expansion and improvement program in Henderson; the phasing in of a new computerized billing procedure; establishing the 911 emergency service in three Kentucky communities, and a $3.8 million dollar expansion program in Paintsville.

More telephones and improved services resulted in a high volume of long distance calls. Toll messages originating in South Central Bell's Kentucky operating area numbered 73,470,583, a 13 per cent increase over 1969. Of this total, 60 per cent were placed through Direct Distance Dialing.

To meet the increased calling volume while continuing to offer good service, an additional 108 employees joined the forces of South Central Bell, bringing the total to 5,657. Later this year several hundred more employees will be added to the rolls as the AT & T Long Lines operation in Kentucky is assumed by South Central Bell.

Ask Full Number On LD Phone Calls

"May I have your complete number please?" This is a request many area telephone subscribers are hearing from the operator these days when they place long distance calls and do not give their complete telephone number.

South Central Bell Traffic Manager Dennis Rapp explains that when the conversion to Direct Distance Dialing is made this summer it will be necessary for subscribers to give their complete telephone number when the operator asks for it.

"In order to avoid confusion at the time of the D. D. D. conversion we are trying to help our subscribers develop proper usage habits, Rapp said. We would also like to encourage persons making long distance calls to give the operator the area code on calls outside the 606 area as well as the number of the distant party.

Mr. Rapp supervises the operations of the telephone company's Traffic Department in Pikeville and Paintsville. He was recently transferred from Pikeville to Paintsville, since Paintsville will be the toll switching center for northeastern Kentucky.

Chilton Credited With Firm Growth

The husband of a former Prestonsburg, girl is credited with placing the Combined Insurance Company of America into the record book as the first company in the insurance industry to sell $1 billion whole life insurance in less than five years.

Paul L. Chilton, 39, of 1144 Walden Lane, Deerfield, Ill., vice-president in charge of life sales took over the Life Department at its inception in 1966. His wife is the former Mary Ann Maggard.

In January, 1967, Chilton and an original sales force of four men began marketing Combined's unique ordinary whole life insurance. Since that time, under Chilton's leadership and guidance, the sales force has grown to more than 400 agents, working in 46 states and the province of Ontario in Canada.

Nearly $2.6 million previously cut from the Minimum Foundation Program can now be restored because of an upturn in general fund revenue, according to Jack Blanton, state budget director.

Direct Dialing Seen for Floyd During Summer

Direct Distance Dialing (D. D. D.) is scheduled to become a reality in Floyd county this summer, South Central Bell Manager Bill Gibson announced this week.

The tentative schedule calls for Prestonsburg and all other Floyd county exchanges to convert to direct distance dialing of long distance calls in August.

The $1,135,000 addition to South Central Bell's Central Office building in Paintsville is nearly complete, and the installation of the new switching equipment is well under way. "We are very pleased with the progress to date," Gibson said.

The addition to the building required enough concrete to build a street 4 inches thick, 20 feet wide and 4,000 feet long, and enough bricks were used to build 22 average-size homes. In addition to the concrete and brick work, approximately 33,000 concrete blocks were used.

"This $3.8 million expansion program is in anticipation of continuing economic growth in Northeastern Kentucky and we are proud that South Central Bell can participate in the economic expansion of the area," Gibson said.

HARRY GORDON ALLEN PROPERTY VALUATION ADMINISTRATOR (Tax Commissioner)

I request that the taxpayers who have either BOUGHT, SOLD or BUILT to come in immediately and have your listings corrected for the year of 1971. The assessment period is from January 1, 1971 through February 28, 1971.

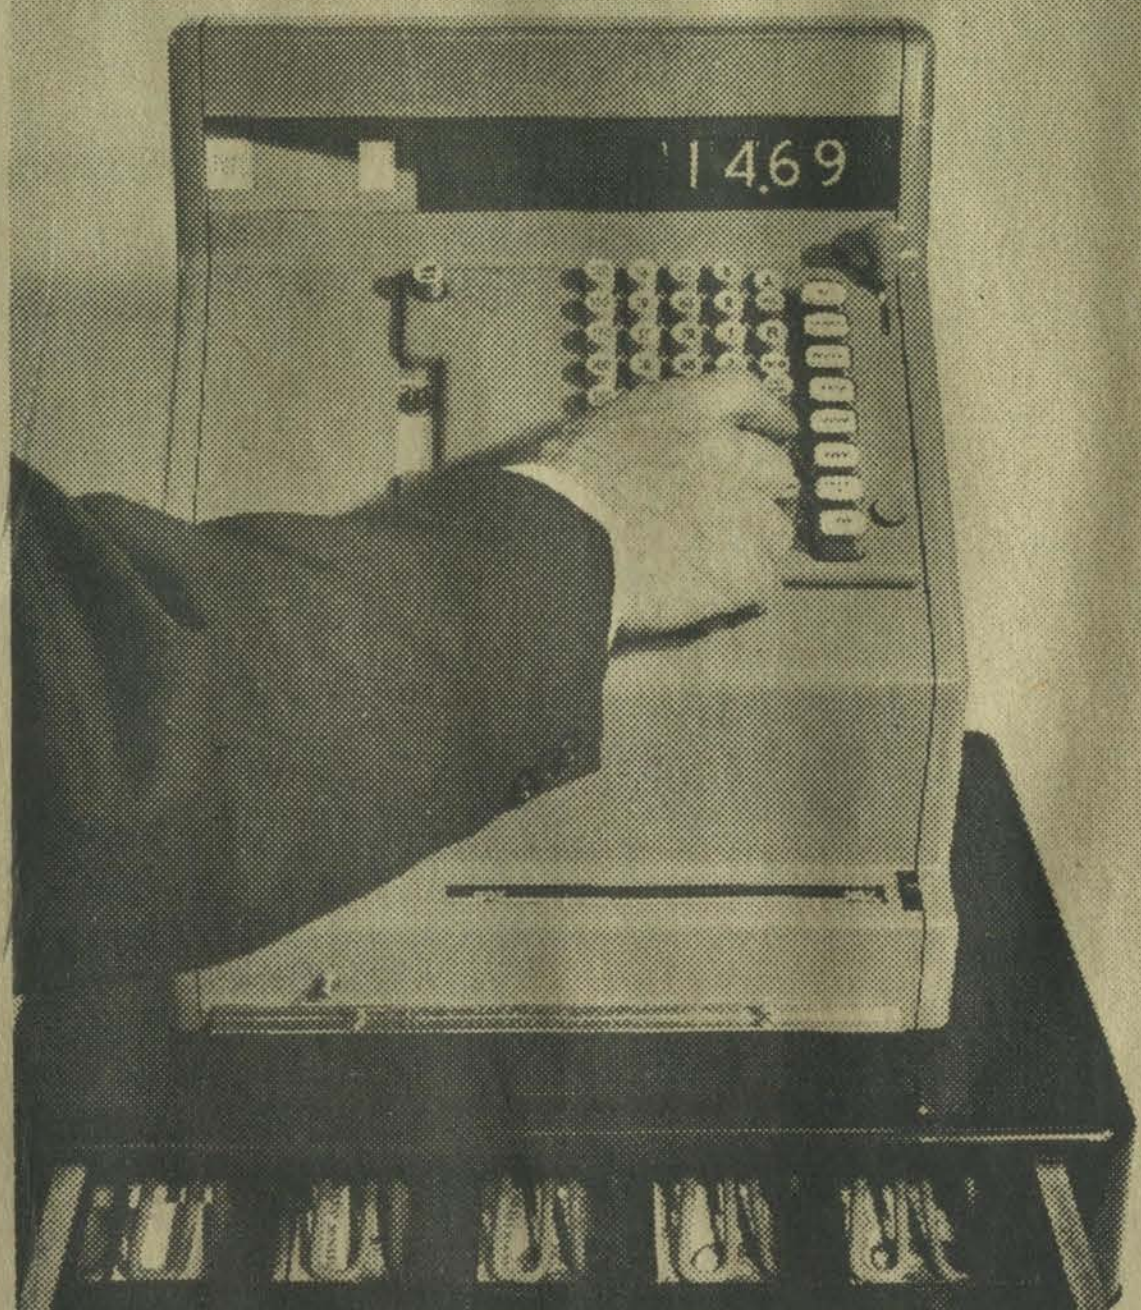

Also, those people who have not reported their MOBILE HOMES MUST DO SO. Failure to report these will result in possibly being penalized the 20 percent penalty; it is also possible to go back five (5) years on all property.

Also, business firms that have not reported their inventories, business furniture and fixtures, accounts receivables and other taxable information, please do so before March 1, 1971.

Keeping the tax rolls up to date is very difficult without your cooperation.

Respectfully yours, HARRY GORDON ALLEN

Tennessee Tech Soph from Floyd Sets New OVC Free-Throw Record

COOKEVILLE, TENN.—All eyes were upon him, the crowd noise was at a low murmur, and Al Lewis had his feet too close together.

Still the Tennessee Tech sophomore sank both ends of a one-and-one free throw situation to tie and then break the Ohio Valley Conference consecutive free throw record, which was first set 12 years ago.

Lewis' seven-of-seven performance at the charity line Monday night (Feb.) against UT Chattanooga gave him 29 straight to establish a new Tech and OVC mark in that category.

"I knew I was near the record and had to hit each shot I took," said Lewis, a 6-2 guard from Wheelwright, Ky., who also paces Tech scoring at 18.4 ppg. "All kinds of thoughts went through my mind—if my feet were too close together, if my hands were too slippery—and those last three bounced around the rim too many times to suit me.

"I really didn't think I'd get a chance to break the record Monday night because I don't usually get fouled that much in one game. Although the pressure is off now, I'd still like to see how far I can push that thing up there."

One reason Lewis doesn't get fouled much—which has kept him from qualifying in OVC free throw statistics until now—is that most of his shots are taken around 25 or 30 feet from the goal. And his accurate eye from the field (50.9 per cent) dissolves any speculation that perhaps his free throw record was a fluke. He now has connected on 49 of 54 free throw attempts for a 90.8 percentage.

The old mark was first set by another Tennessee Tech player, Jimmy Hagan, in the 1958-59 season. Since that time, the record had been tied by Eastern Kentucky's Lee Lemons (1964-65) and Murray's Don Duncan (1966-67).

Lewis' 18.4 ppg average continues to lead Tech scorers after 17 games. Sophomore guard and playmaker Wayne Pack is second to Lewis at 16.6 ppg and leads the team in assists with eight per game.
