

Order Bars Board Plan For School

Clark Says Board To Ask Dissolution Of Restraining Order

The Floyd County Board of Education had assembled for its monthly meeting last Saturday afternoon and was presumably ready to accept architect's plans for a seven-room grade-school building at Martin when a temporary restraining order procured the preceding day by Everett Akers and others barred any immediate action on the proposed structure.

The petition for the restraining order was entered in circuit court here as an amendment to an earlier action in which Martin plaintiffs seek to have upheld the 1939 Floyd circuit court order directing that Martin high school shall be perpetuated.

Since Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley had disqualified for the hearing of the original action and Judge W. Major Gardner, of West Liberty, had been designated as special judge, and Judge Gardner was not in the county, the temporary injunction was issued by Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett. The original suit is now in Judge Gardner's hands.

Plaintiffs alleged that approval of plans for a seven-room building at Martin would violate 19 separate regulations of the State Department of Education and that the only way in which these regulations could be conformed with would be by construction of an 18-room building and physical education plant.

Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd schools, said the board will move for quick dissolution of the restraining order and that, once that is achieved, the board will be called into special session to approve the seven-room plan.

"The board," he said, "is trying to get all the Martin children in improved quarters and back on the campus as soon as possible. This injunction only serves to delay our attaining this goal. . . We hope to have these rooms ready by the time schools are opened next year."

A delegation from Martin appeared before the board, and Rita P. Laferty, secretary-treasurer of the P.-T. A. there, offered a plea for an 18-room building there.

This Town . . . That World

MAYBE THE OFFICE PUP HELPED
A few of my skeptical friends have requested that our office broom be preserved to posterity; hence, this picture. Some, beholding our floors, have wondered how it ever reached this sad state. Advised that the broom was worn out, naturally, as a result of much sweeping, one sneered, "It's just as reasonable to suppose that a Hallowe'en witch took it for a ride and came in for a rough landing."

INTERESTING PICTURE

A color picture of Fishtrap Lake and surrounding hills has been given wide circulation. With the photo appears a statement to the effect that the mountains shown were surfaced mined and fully reclaimed in 1968. This whets the interest. All that's visible in the picture are an expanse of blue water and a heavily wooded hillside. If they mean to say those trees have grown back since reclamation two or three years ago, I want to know the species planted. A few acres of trees such as these would make the coal business look like a pauper industry.

Housing Project Costing $880,000 Is Stalled Here

Prestonsburg's $880,000 low-rent housing project in the Goble-Roberts Addition apparently is stalled, and Municipal Housing officials are at a loss as to what to do about the situation.

The 78-unit housing complex was scheduled for completion Jan. 21. But completion is far distant, and work on it is virtually at a standstill.

A Municipal Housing Commission official said Monday that only two or three men are at the job and that when they are there's little they can do, since materials are lacking. Britt Bertram Associates, Vanceburg, Ky., are contractors on the project.

Completion of the job has been expected by the contractor's bonding firm, but help has not come from this source. "We've contacted Atlanta about what to do. This is a situation we've never encountered here," a Housing Commission spokesman said Monday.

Bonds for Hall At $14,500 After Woman Wounded

Ralph Hall, Prater Creek carpenter, was placed under bonds totalling $14,500 Saturday by County Judge Henry Stumbo at the conclusion of his examining trial on charges of shooting his daughter-in-law and shooting into a dwelling.

Hall was jailed by State Troopers Gary Rose and E. B. Allen here last Wednesday after he allegedly had fired a revolver bullet which passed through the lung of 20-year-old Betty Hall, wife of his son, Hallard Hall.

Testifying for the Commonwealth at Saturday's hearing were the accused man's wife, Mabel, his sons, Earnest Dean and Hallard Hall, and Ivalene Hall, wife of Earnest Dean. They said Hall was angry at his wife when he came to the home of his son, Earnest Dean, that he fired four shots through the door of the home, then kicked it open and, met by Betty Hall, warned her to step aside or he would kill her. It was testified that as she stepped back he fired the bullet which struck her.

State troopers found him beneath a bed in a neighbor's home, Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo said. Stumbo also said the breathalyzer test given him after his arrest showed .13 alcoholic content. (Intoxication, Stumbo said, is at .10 or above.)

The wounded woman is at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin. Her left lung is collapsed, it was said.

Hall was held to $8,000 appearance bond, $5,000 peace bond and $1,500 bond on the charge of shooting into a dwelling. The peace bond was required when relatives of the accused man said they feared for their safety.

Other arrests within the week:

Clyde Vanderpool, drunk driving, arrested by State Trooper Williamson; Ernest Hall, destroying public property, by Wheelwright Policeman Joe Wheeler Lewis; Willie Robert Cantrell, drunk driving, by State Trooper Leeman Bevins; Kenneth Bradford, drunk driving, by Prestonsburg Policemen Blackburn and Campbell.

House Bill To Avoid Floyd County Split

Turner Surmounts Personal Tragedy To Continue Play

Those who watched McDowell's No. 25 dart across the floor, forcing an opponent into a tieup of the ball, or pass with unerring accuracy to a teammate for an easy layup, as the 58th district basketball tournament was played here last week would not have thought there was anything on the youngster's mind but basketball and victory.

But there was. Mrs. Amy Hall Turner, mother of No. 25, McDowell guard Mike Turner, died last Wednesday night when the tournament began. Young Turner played. Friday night, he again was at his place in the lineup, and again in the exciting finale Saturday night.

Young Mike played because it was his mother's wish that he play. "She wanted him to play in the tournament, regardless," his grandfather, Ernest Turner, of Drift, said.

Divided Counties To Be Reduced From 31 to 12

Floyd county may not be split, after all, in the redistricting of Kentucky's House districts at the current special session of the General Assembly.

State Representative W. J. Reynolds told The Times Monday afternoon that a House bill expected to get its first reading that night, and due for a vote perhaps Wednesday, leaves Floyd county intact as one legislative district. It will be the 95th.

The bill, as it was being written, would reduce the county splits from 31 to 12.

Representative Reynolds expressed his pleasure with the bill and its provision that this county would remain intact. He said that the entire county will be approximately 11 percent above the "ideal" population figure and that Pike county with two districts will be about 6 percent below in each district. He pointed out, however, that the Senate redistricting bill, which already has passed the Senate and may be ready for a House vote by Friday, ranges as high as 11.87 percent high in population in one or more districts.

The Sixth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, legislators have found, approved a Tennessee district which was 13 percent above the population figure sought in redistricting along one-man, one-vote lines, as directed by the Supreme Court. This opinion held that wherever possible it is to the benefit of the people that their counties not be divided.

The Senate bill provides that this, the 29th Senatorial district, will include Floyd, Knott, Martin and Perry counties. The adjoining 27th will embrace a nine-county area—Magoffin, Breathitt, Wolfe, Owsley, Jackson, Morgan, Menifee, Rowan and Elliott.

Program's End Seen If Change Not Made

In this county for a series of meetings last week, Dr. Leon Cooper, Washington, D. C., director of the national Comprehensive Health Services Program, quoted his superior, Dr. Thomas Bryant, director of the Office of Health Affairs, as having said that the Floyd County Health Services Program "will have to be changed very much, or it will not be funded after August 1."

The budget funding the program through July 31 is in the hands of Governor Nunn, who is expected to approve it.

Dr. Cooper told a standing-room-only crowd gathered in the county courtroom last Tuesday night that objectives of the trip made by him and members of his team to the county were to work toward proper operation of the program here and to report the results of negotiations in Washington, a week earlier. The session lasted till 11 p.m., and strong expressions of dissatisfaction with the Floyd program were heard. East

Kentucky Welfare Rights Organization representatives wanted to know the reasons for the firing of Dr. Arnold Schecter as director of the program in this county.

Accompanying Dr. Cooper to the county were Dr. Frank Stroud, medical consultant; Mrs. Lucia Hatch, team coordinator, and Miss Wendy Wheat, program analyst. After the meeting here the group visited Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin, the McDowell Regional Hospital, the Drift outpost for a conference with the nine nurse team leaders and Mr. Stark, administrator of the program, then with the 979 group leaders and East Kentucky Welfare Organization representatives on Mud Creek.

To the query of Dr. Robert Titzler, project physician on Mud Creek, at the meeting here for a definition of a comprehensive neighborhood health center, Mrs. Hatch replied that there are 50 such centers in the country and as many different types. She added that Health Affairs does not require a physician before accepting a facility as a health center. She explained that a competent nurse could meet the needs for preventive health care and health education, which should be two of the major objectives of such a health program.

Dr. Titzler charged the people at Washington with "spouting philosophy" and asked for definite word as to what should, or should not, be done.

When Dr. Cooper told the gathering that Washington officials would be physically present at board of directors' meetings in the future to monitor the Floyd county health program operation, Mrs. Ruth James, secretary of the board of directors of the Floyd program, retorted, "You were physically present from August (See Story No. 5, Page 12)

MISS MARTIN, MR. PRICE WED

Miss Gayle Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Martin, of Crofton, Md., formerly of this county, and Mr. David Jason Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin P. Price, of Wilton, Conn., were united in marriage on Thursday, December 24, 1970. The vows were exchanged in a double-ring ceremony at Saint Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Garnetts, Maryland, with the Rev. S. James Stillwell officiating. The church decorations carried out the traditional Christmas theme, a program of traditional wedding music and Christmas selections was presented by the church organist.

The bride, escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, chose a traditional floor-length wedding gown of white Peau de soie, designed with an empire waist-line and cowl neckline accented with clematis lace and seed pearls. The modified bell sleeves were caught at the elbows and wrists with a narrow band of Venetian lace and seed pearls. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was held by double Dior bow and her bridal bouquet was a red rosebuds, with background greenery and white satin streamers.

The bride chose her sister, Miss Connie Martin as her maid of honor and Miss Carolyn Frazzetti as her brides maid. The groom's brother, Mr. Daniel Price served as best man, and Mr. John L. Martin, Jr., brother of the bride, as the groom's other attendant.

The mother of the bride wore a melon-colored gown accented with a gold link belt and matching accessories. Her corsage was a single white orchid.

The mother of the groom chose a hot-pink pants suit ensemble with a floor-length brocade coat. Her corsage was a single white orchid.

A reception was held at the home of the bride immediately following the wedding.

The Fancett catering service arranged the brides table and served the guests. The guest register was attended by Mrs. Ernie West, cousin of the bride.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Price will reside in Brooklyn, New York, where both are students at Long Island University. Pre-nuptial events included a rehearsal dinner, with Mrs. Kermit Martin, an aunt of the bride, as hostess, and a shower given by Mrs. Dennis Martin, an aunt of the bride.

A Faint Glimmer of Hope

One who arrived at this information by touring the area in question and by making a one-by-one count brings the report that, as of last September, there were in the upper Johns Creek watershed—the feeder streams of Dewey Lake—exactly 51 strip mining operations.

Our source of information makes no attempt to assess the damage those surface mining projects are doing to the lake, has little to say, of the coal-dust and the acid water that pour from them into the water which eventually becomes Dewey Lake. But this informant does speak of the heavy load of mud which those coal operations are dumping into the water.

Coal trucks, we are told, use the stream-bed itself, not bridges, for crossings. So it is that not only the earth, ripped apart and exposed to heavy rains, contributes to the unnatural muddiness of the stream and lake, but there also is the continued roiling and stirring up of the creek-bed and the water by giant truck tires grinding beneath the weight of tons of coal.

The Times would not mention this matter again—it has in word and picture exhausted the subject in recent years with a remarkable lack of success—if there were not a faint glimmer of hope remaining.

The blackened water—you can't do anything about it, there's no law that applies, they tell us. But against mud and siltation there is.

The law dates back to around 1895, but it's still there, ready for use if any care to use it. Those who disdain bridges and make of running water a moving mudhole can be brought to law.

Yes, there is a glimmer of hope—if the U. S. Corps of Engineers, or the Kentucky Water Pollution Control Commission, or somebody, will dare to shoulder the responsibility that is theirs and go to law about the situation.

Letters to the Editor

Apologizes to Truck Drivers

This is to apologize to the truck drivers whom we have had to confront in our fight to end the terrible destruction of our beautiful hills by strip mining. These men are good people who are simply trying to support their families and we have no quarrel with them whatsoever. In fact, we very much admire the tolerance and good humor with which they have reacted to our actions in almost all cases. Regretfully we have had to concentrate our attacks on the trucks because here is where the average citizen confronts and experiences the dangerous illegality of the coal industry (frequent accidents and near-misses from tumbling coal pieces, road holes, etc.) This is also the tax issue front where the citizen sees the way in which he pays the main cost for the hauling away of the wealth of his area for the benefit of other states and countries.

Nevertheless, we want the drivers to know that we are not happy about the pressure thus put on the drivers whom we know are not to blame for these problems. We are comforted by the fact that when we win this battle the drivers will probably be the first beneficiaries of our victory. They will drive safer, legal trucks and thus be more secure in their work; and, since smaller trucks mean more loads, more of them will be hired and for longer periods. (The price of coal is high enough for the industry to afford this.) We look forward to the day (we hope very soon) when these unpleasant confrontations end and these fellow mountaineers will no longer be the victims of an evil which is not their fault.

The Kentucky General Assembly will convene in special session Feb. 25 to consider the reappointment of the state's 138 legislative districts to make them conform with population shifts recorded in the 1970 census.

Governor Nunn has announced that more money—some $6.2 million more as of Dec. 31—is coming into the state treasury than was expected a year ago, and that he is rescinding across-the-board spending cuts he ordered last August.

Enjoyed Floyd Basketball

The highlight of the present basketball season for me was watching Floyd county's own Rudy Thacker play for Vanderbilt University. This was my first opportunity to see him perform since 1967 at Prestonsburg and refreshed my memory of the outstanding basketball we saw played there. Not in all my experience in sports have I observed more enthusiasm and support for good championship competition than in Floyd county. I sincerely hope that this tradition is continuing.

Trailer Parks Pose Problem, Dr. Hall Says

Almost half of the trailer parks in Floyd county are operating illegally, a survey conducted by the Floyd County Health Department indicates. Twelve such parks are operating under a valid permit while "about" 11 are illegal.

Dr. Russell Hall, county health officer, said this week that all persons who are operating a trailer coach park within the county without a valid operating permit issued by the Floyd County and State Departments of Health are in violation of the Kentucky trailer coach park law and regulations.

Kentucky law defines a trailer coach park as an area of land on which two or more occupied trailer coaches are parked.

According to Dr. Hall, the law requires each trailer coach park operator to secure an annual operating permit. Expiration date of an operating permit is June 30 following date of issuance.

The Floyd County Health Department is now in the process of making a survey of all trailer coach parks in Floyd County, and Dr. Hall advises trailer coach park operators who do not have a valid operating permit to contact the County Department of Health for an application for their 1970-71 permit.

He warned that after April 15, 1971 legal proceedings will be instigated against all park owners or operators who have not applied for the required operating permit.

The initial operating permit fee for a trailer coach park is $25.00, with an annual renewal fee of $10 thereafter.

State law also requires that any person planning to build a trailer coach park or extensively alter an existing park must submit plans through the local health department to the State Health Department for approval and secure a construction permit prior to beginning construction or remodeling.

The application for a construction permit as well as information on plan submission can be obtained from the Floyd Health Department.

Dr. Hall added that the people of the county are entitled to be served safe, wholesome food products either in the marketplace or the restaurant. He indicated this area of the health department public health program would be receiving increased attention in the future.

More than 8,500 minority candidates have been prepared and placed as apprentices by the Manpower Administration in Apprenticeship Outreach program since January, 1968. This represents a monthly national average of nearly 250 for the three-year period.

Col. Castle, Native of Floyd, Tells of His Running Battle With Vietnamese 'Dragon Lady'

A former Floyd county man had a Senate sub-committee "in stitches" last Thursday as he told of his running battle with a lovely Asian "dragon lady" in an effort to prevent her from setting up a brothel in the very center of U. S. Army headquarters in Vietnam.

The witness before the sub-committee was Col. Edmund Castle, now retired, formerly of Wayland.

The colonel said he was forced to lay down the law when the voluptuous, diamond-bedecked Madame Phoung erected four bronze female nude statues covering the entire front of her steam bath and massage parlor at Army headquarters at Long Binh.

He said his only thought was; "Oh, my God, not on an Army base. If Time or Life sees those, we've had it."

Col. Castle told a story of a strange war in which he was forced to forget the Viet Cong and concern himself with prostitutes, slot machines, beer and whisky, and hordes of camp followers who once installed barbers and a gift shop in two latrines that they had shoved together.

In trying to reform the GI clubs under his supervision as Post Commander, the Colonel said, he was often warned he was "bucking a big machine," and causing higher-ups to lose income.

Holding aloft snapshots of the dragon lady's nudes, Castle said he had delayed the building of her steam bath but had not prevented its completion.

He said original plans called for the employment of 200 Vietnamese women, but he said Madame Phoung brought in 200 others, supposedly to drink soda pop with young GIs.

"I know she had an awful lot more in mind," he said.

The colonel said the nude statues eventually were replaced with flying dragons.

Castle testified he could never learn how Madame Phoung was able to win approval of her steam-bath proposal from the Army, but he said she often threatened him, saying that Castle was only a colonel and that several general officers were her personal friends.

And he said that after he started to reform the system he got a series of "peculiar telephone calls."

He said one unidentified caller told him:

accident or arson; any wildfire is illegal.

Any fire out of control is a wildfire. Don't cause one by careless burning. Do report arsonists. Everyone gets burned by forest fires.

Officials Wait Court Opinion On Jailing Poor

"We're waiting till we have the full court decision before reaching any definite conclusions," was the reaction of Floyd county officials to the recent Supreme Court decision which, on its face, held that an individual cannot be jailed because he is too poor to pay a fine.

Elsewhere in Kentucky, some officials already had freed prisoners held in jail to do time in lieu of cash payment of fines.

County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill said he wants to see guidelines set by the high court. He indicated that he will recommend that persons freed from jail be given an opportunity to pay and if they do not that capias be issued. This would return them to jail.

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo commented that the full court decision should be studied.

Most officials see the possibility of a wholesale denial by prisoners of their ability to pay fines and a possible emptying of jails.

"The jail," said one who declined to be identified, "will become no more than a receiving center."

"After they're released, who is going to determine if the defendant is actually making an effort to earn money and pay the fine?" asked another.

Some suspect that courts will turn in the direction of imposing jail terms for offenses in lieu of fines.

Frank Groschelle, administrator of the Kentucky Program Development Office, will become director of Region IV of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Atlanta on March 1.

No Redistricting For Floyd Seen

While the Kentucky Legislature is trying to put together the redistricting jigsaw puzzle some western Kentucky cities and counties are considering the same type of work to conform more nearly in their own localities to the one-man, one-vote rule.

Asked here last week if there may be a redistricting of Floyd county's four magisterial districts, County Judge Henry Stumbo said he had not considered such action.

"Of course," he added, "redistricting could be required on petition."

The one county where redistricting has been considered inevitable is Hickman—where the six districts vary in population from a low of 178 to a high of more than 1500.

Floyd county's magisterial districts do not reflect any disproportionate population such as this.

LONDON (AP)—In a fight against flab, workers in London's financial district are being offered a lunch of one apple, a piece of cheese, a cup of coffee, a diet sheet and lecture on sensible eating for 24 cents.

Stumbo Fought To Get into School- Now He's a Leader As a Med Student

Grady Stumbo, of McDowell, who had to fight to get into the University of Kentucky's College of Medicine, now is a leader of UK medical students and is the co-founder and a director of the Appalachian Program of the Student American Medical Association there.

He is a son of the late Isom Stumbo, a miner, and his interest lies in the medical needs of rural Kentucky. His philosophy is the subject of a recent Courier-Journal feature written by David V. Hawpe, from which the following is extracted:

The University of Kentucky College of Medicine will not meet Kentucky's needs until it takes its training program into the hills and hollows where people need it most, a leader of UK medical students asserts.

What is needed, Stumbo thinks, is community involvement like that produced by his own project, the Appalachian Program of the Student American Medical Association (SAMA).

Under the Appalachian Program, medical, dental, nursing and pharmacy students, and others in health-related pursuits, are assigned to local professionals to give them experience in rural medicine.

Stumbo said 65 per cent of the participants in that program said in response to a questionnaire that they would be willing to spend all or part of their professional careers in the Appalachian region.

"And I think the reason they are interested—the reason they have this kind of commitment—is that we have given them a taste of the people's needs. They have been involved first-hand in a total approach to the patient and his problems."

Stumbo does not believe that UK program to establish a department of family practice—now in the formative stage—will insure the kind of involvement he thinks is necessary to produce excellent rural practitioners.

UK and the University of Louisville are moving to carry out the state legislature's directive to set up family medicine as a specialty comparable to those now offered in such fields as pediatrics and surgery.

But Stumbo argues that much more is needed if the ever-worsening shortage of rural physicians and other health professionals is to be conquered.

"As of now the university has graduated 399 physicians (since its first class emerged in 1964), and only 32 are in the state practicing," he said.

"They will tell you that this is because many are still in (military) service, or in specialty training, or in internship, and so forth. But figures from another state illustrate what the full picture will be like in Kentucky, when the complete statistics are in," Stumbo said.

His example was Tennessee, which he said graduates more medical students than all but nine other states, but finds that 70 per cent of them go outside the state to practice.

"Of all the primary physicians graduating in America today, only 6 per cent stay in rural America to practice," according to Stumbo. "And yet there are 52 million rural Americans."

"There are 16 million Appalachian people and it would take 2,400 more doctors there to establish a ratio of 100 physicians for each 100,000 people. It would take 6,000 more physicians to establish a doctor-patient ratio which meets even the national average."

"Money to set up more rural scholarships, or money to finance a family practice department, will not meet these kinds of needs," Stumbo said.

"I am convinced that money alone will not put anybody anywhere. It has been our experience in the SAMA program that the doctors who will stay and do the right kind of job are those motivated by a desire to simply help people."

To produce this kind of morale, UK training programs will have to be moved out into the communities of Kentucky, Stumbo believes. And to be effective, he says, the training will have to emphasize a team approach.

"As it is now, doctors are trained in the medical school, dentists are trained in the dental school. And the doctors never talk to the dentists. We don't even know each other."

"How can we be expected to establish a team approach to health care, which is precisely what we are going to have to do to meet the comprehensive needs of the patient, if we are trained to operate separately?"

"Then too, the problem is not numbers of doctors, so much as it is the system of health care delivery," he explained.

"The system of health care delivery should be responsive to the people who need it most, instead of the people who need it least," he added.

"The emphasis should not be on acute-care medicine, but on preventive-care medicine. . . . We need to change the delivery system that we are asking young doctors to come in to. If we seriously want to improve care for the family, particularly in rural areas. . . . and remember that 80 per cent of Kentucky is rural, speaking from a developmental stand-point."

Stumbo's father died when he was 11 years old. He worked his way through Alice Lloyd College and the University of Kentucky on scholarships.

He was refused admission to the University of Kentucky Medical School when he first applied (although he had been accepted at the U of L), apparently because he did not score well on the medical entrance tests.

Friends tell how he challenged that refusal, contending the tests operated unfairly to exclude disadvantaged Appalachian students. He made his point.

Since then, he has lobbied fiercely for admission of more Appalachian students, particularly from low-income families, to the medical school.

Nunn Tells Governors He's For Revenue-Sharing

FRANKFORT, KY.—Gov. Louie B. Nunn told the National Governors' Conference meeting in Washington recently he favors President Nixon's proposed revenue-sharing plan except for the part which calls for abolition of the Appalachian Regional Commission.

"I want all the extension I can get on a good program like that," he told conferees during a breakfast session address.

He cautioned the governors that good management techniques might prove just as helpful as the increased federal aid.

Tree Seedlings Now Available

Ronald C. Schureman, director of the Division of Forestry, announced that tree seedlings are now being lifted and shipped from the division's three nurseries. During the next six weeks, the nurseries will ship 6-7 million seedlings for use by Kentucky landowners in reforesting idle acres.

Schureman said Kentucky has nearly one million acres of idle and eroding land that should be planted to trees. The erosion constitutes a major source of silt in our streams," he said, "and Kentuckians must make a major effort to reduce this shameful waste of our natural resources."

Order forms giving prices and other information can be obtained at any forestry office, county extension office, Soil Conservation Service offices or local ASCS offices.

All orders should be placed immediately with the Division of Forestry. Orders will be filled on a first come, first served basis and several species, such as yellow poplar, will be in short supply.

The cost of most species is $10 per thousand. The exception is black walnut and scotch pine, which will sell for $15 per thousand, and hybrid poplar and superior cottonwood cuttings which will sell at $20 per thousand.

Foresters from the Division of Forestry are available for consultation and advice on tree planting problems, Schureman noted. "A request to any of the district foresters listed on the back of the seedling order form is all that is needed. He will see that you receive the information or technical assistance you need."

Extending collective bargaining rights to the Nation's farm workers is a major Nixon Administration goal in 1971, according to Under Secretary of Labor Laurence H. Silberman.

Kentucky Needs a New Image at Frankfort!

Floyd County Ford for Governor Committee

Henry P. "Buck" Scalf, Publicity Director

(Pol. Adv.)

A. M. "Allie" Howard, Chairman

FRANKFORT, KY.—Don't be surprised any day now to hear that the white bass have moved into the headwaters of a number of lakes, that croppie are being caught in greater numbers and that black bass are hitting on surface lures. That time of year is not far away, and the fishermen are ready.

A friend, who keeps a calendar of his fishing events, produced records to show that last year, on March 13, in the headwaters of Lake Herrington, he caught a big string of white bass by casting just below the first riffle. He consulted his calendar to prove also that he had caught whites in the Dix River section for well over a month that same year.

To most persons it would seem a bit early for the whites to be running now. But credence is lent to that by the fact that even on March 1 this year reports came from Dale Hollow of whites moving into the headwaters of that lake, where the surface temperatures were about five degrees above that of the lake itself.

Expert croppie fishermen have been catching this species all through the winter, but now it's to the stage where just about anyone who knows anything about fishing can harvest "Old Papermouth." They already are being caught from ponds and a few have been picked up in the streams. Many sections of the rivers have been too muddy and too high for fishing, but where there is clear water, croppie and black bass are being taken.

This is not to indicate that fishing is good right now, but is meant as a reminder that before you know it fishing will be in full swing, and that more favorable fishing weather cannot be many days away, notwithstanding the blustery prediction made by Mr. Groundhog on Feb. 2.

Many fishermen are of the opinion that fishing will hit a high mark earlier this year than for the past several when cold winters and colder waters delayed top fishing until well up in April. Of course, there were exceptions to last year's trend and the shallower waters, always the first to warm, produced fish at an earlier date.

During the past winter there were very few long, drawn-out periods of frigid weather and the lake waters did not become as cold as in previous cold winters. By the same reasoning, with favorable March and April weather, the water should warm at an earlier date than usual and, of course, with warm water, comes good fishing.

The first frantic fishing to follow the jiggling season will be the white bass runs and, contrary to popular belief, they occur in a number of lakes. Most persons have heard of the runs in Herrington, Cumberland and Dale Hollow. Lesser known runs, but good ones nonetheless, occur in Barren, Rough River and Dewey, to name a few. So, the best advice to eager fishermen is to be ready. The time is not too far off when the whites will be on the move.

HANDICAP CORRECTED—Stephen McKenzie, a ten-year-old from Nippa in Johnson County, and his mother, Mrs. George McKenzie, discuss Steve's treatment with Ivaline Long, coordinator of services for patients of the Commission for Handicapped Children.

Rare Birth Defect Corrected

By MARY ANNE GURNEE

Stephen McKenzie, a 10-year-old from Nippa in Johnson county, is an extremely fortunate young man.

Until recently, Steve was able to breathe only through his mouth since he was born with a rare birth defect—the complete absence of a nose.

Through the efforts of the Commission for Handicapped Children, Steve has been under the care of a plastic surgeon who constructed nasal passages and airways enabling him to breathe properly.

Steve was fitted in January with an artificial nose by the University of Cincinnati's Department of Otolaryngology and Maxillofacial Surgery.

After Steve reaches maturity, he will undergo plastic surgery and a skin graft will be performed.

A county public health nurse referred Steve to the Prestonsburg Crippled Children's Clinic, and since 1966 he has been under the auspices of the commission's special plastic surgery program in Louisville.

Dr. Margaret A. Limper, medical director for the commission, said, "Steve's family deserves much credit for taking such good care of this child through a difficult infancy and early childhood.

"Stephen was born with a very rare congenital birth defect," she added. "Of the children born with this defect, very few survive, because infants do not breathe through the mouth reflexly."

The son of George and Ethel McKenzie, Steve is one of nine children.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

"I thought I had seen the plastic worm fished in every possible way, until I saw John Hadad III, winner of the recent bass fishing tournament, and his unbelievable loose-line technique," avows Angling Editor Homer Circle of SPORTS AFIELD. "With it he landed 29 of 30 bass while other good fishermen using plastic worms landed no more than 60 to 75 percent of their takers."

Let's analyze the Hadad technique for those of you who would like to try it. His casts are comparatively short, about 25 to 30 feet. He feels this is far enough if the approach has been quiet. Also, he gets in more casts per hour.

As the worm settles toward bottom, Hadad's rod tip drops to keep the line slack even on the cast. And his eyes are locked on that line where it enters the water because a good percentage of pickups come as the worm sinks.

A pickup is signaled by any number of line reactions, such as lateral movement, or a faster sink rate or a minute side twitch. At times the line just keeps on going as a bass grabs the worm and heads for cover. Hadad is ready for any of these.

If he gets no pickup on the cast, he reels the slack out of his line, lowering his rod tip as he does so. Then, he raises his rod tip high, and now is when he suddenly flips his (See Story No. 6, Page 12)

State Police Feel The Price Pinch

The deputy director of the Kentucky State Police announced recently a fiscal belt-tightening for the force, brought on by unanticipated expenses not included in the current budget enacted by the 1970 legislature.

McDowell Coach Pete Grigsby said it was "strictly a decision for the family to make." He spoke of Mrs. Turner's loyalty to the team, of her consuming interest in her son's development as a player.

Ill of leukemia, Mike's mother last saw him and "her team" play in the Ashland Invitational, last January.

The 6-1 senior is a son of Ray Turner, of Drift. "Mike had a fine tournament, despite everything that could have crushed a less determined boy," Coach Grigsby commented. "He has done a fine job for us, this semester. After Christmas he nailed down a starting assignment at guard, and since that time our record is 18 and 2." Grigsby described the youngster as a playmaker and strong on defense.

After the championship had been won Saturday night, Mike's coaches and teammates joined him Sunday morning at funeral rites for his mother.

Between 1960 and 1969, the total number of weeks that workers spent on vacation increased almost 50 percent, or from 87 million to 129 million weeks.

through October. This resulted in a report the size of a Sears, Roebuck catalog and it has apparently done no good."

Mrs. James alleged that during the August-January period "not a single opposition vote has been cast," and that when a consumer member wanted to dissent and asked for a secret ballot the request was denied.

The Prestonsburg woman also said that those designated to pass the word out that Tuesday's meeting would be held did not do so and that those who fired Dr. Schecter were not present for the meeting. "That should tell you something," she added.

In response to questions about the discharge of Dr. Schecter Dr. Cooper explained that the authority to discharge personnel lies with the local Comprehensive Health Board and that Washington's concern is to see that due process had been given Schecter. "Due process" includes, it is explained, the filing of charges and a hearing for the discharged employee.

Dr. Schecter claims he has not had a hearing. His case is being reviewed in Washington. He said this week the result of this review should obviate the necessity of a federal court action on his part.

After a Times story last Jan. 28 reported that completion of the housing complex had been delayed from four to five months because of financial difficulties encountered by the contractor, Roy Britt, president of Britt Bertram Associates, told this newspaper that the report that the bonding company was completing the work was untrue. He added that his company was proceeding with the work and that it would be completed before May.

Employment gains by blacks have been rapid over the past decade. Aided by the heavy demand for manpower during these years of economic expansion, blacks increased their employment by 1.6 million or 23 percent between 1961 and 1969.

Employment of health service workers is likely to jump 3.9 million in 1968 to 6.35 million in 1980, according to projections by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Routine Meeting Of County Board Is Held Saturday

Thwarted by a temporary restraining order in the portion of its agenda which related to school construction at Martin, the Floyd County Board of Education turned to more routine matters.

Beulah Hamilton was hired, on recommendation of Supt. Charles Clark, as mathematics teacher at Martin to succeed Janie Castle, who is on leave of absence. For the adult education program Duna Lee Rice was employed as librarian and Marie Reynolds and Hughie Darby as teachers.

Three of four teacher-aides employed will be assigned to the computerized instruction offered at Osborne, Prestonsburg Stumbo elementary schools. This instruction, provided under Title I and offered to disadvantaged pupils who are at least one grade behind their group, involves a teletype hookup with Stanford University. Shelby Jean Johnson was named teacher-aide at Osborne, Brenda Hall at Prestonsburg and Sandra Meade at Stumbo. The fourth aide employed is Jackie Lawson, for Wayland elementary.

The board authorized Supt. Clark to advertise two school properties for sale. One of these is the old Ligon school and grounds. This property was offered to the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Service Program under lease at the December board meeting, but since the health service had taken no action to consummate the transaction the board cancelled the lease and directed that the property be sold. Also to be advertised is the school on Buckeye fork of Middle Creek.

Other actions of the board:

1. Approved the list of textbooks recommended by the Textbook Committee composed of teachers.
2. Voted to petition the State Department of Education to approve the change of the school calendar to include five "disaster days" and eliminate the three days of Spring vacation.
3. Authorized the superintendent to advertise for bids on high school diplomas.
4. Employed James Hall as janitor at Stumbo elementary; Annis Nelson, to replace Otis Wallen as janitor at Prestonsburg high; Charlene Smallwood, to succeed Oma Waddles as half-time janitor at Osborne.

A group working to reverse the flow of Kentuckians from rural areas to cities recently heard a U. S. Agriculture Department official say the federal government is ready to help them get their programs under way.

The Public Service Commission has approved a $516,000 refund to customers of Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., mostly in the firm's Lexington, Ashland, Maysville and Paris divisions in Central and North-eastern Kentucky.

rod downward to import slack to his line. Can you envision the results?

If you do much worm fishing, you know that the worm takes a sudden plunge toward bottom, pulled down by the sinker, the instant the line goes slack. This is precisely what it does at the beginning of each cast.

In other words, that sudden dive of the worm toward bottom is what grabs the bass's attention. And the loose-line retrieve repeatedly sends the worm diving toward bottom. The more of these quick movements a worm makes, the more attention it is bound to get from bass.

But, there's one big plus to this loose-line method. Did you ever watch a bass take a plastic worm? I have many times. Picture it, and remember. It explains much lack of success in hooking bass on plastic worms. When a bass takes a plastic worm as it sinks after the cast, it virtually inhales the worm because the line is slack and offers little resistance.

Mister Bass just opens his jaws, flares his gills, and the worm is sucked into the bass's mouth—with no forward motion of his body.

However, when a bass approaches a worm being retrieved on a tight line, he usually approaches it from behind. When he opens his mouth and flares his gills, the worm can't flow inside because of the line tension. So, the bass grabs the worm by the tail.

You will know this by a number of tugs on your line as the bass moves off to eat the worm. If you set the hook too soon, you will jerk the worm out of the bass's mouth. If you wait too long, he may drop the worm the instant he senses it is a phony.

People considered "not in the labor force" include all civilians 16 years and over who are not classified by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics as employed or unemployed. These persons are further classified as "engaged in own home housework," "in school," "unable to work" because of long-term physical or mental illness, and "other."

White-collar workers will outnumber blue-collar by more than 50 percent in 1980. However, 31 million workers will be employed in blue-collar jobs, an increase of more than 2 million over 1970.

THE FAMILY

The wonder drug that prevents babies from being born blind, deaf, mentally defective and dead from German Measles.

The wonder is people won't use it.

Women who get German Measles while they are pregnant may have only a 50-50 chance of having a normal baby.

Not very good odds. During the last major German Measles epidemic in 1964, more than 30,000 babies died and at least that many more were crippled for life.

The real tragedy is all this doesn't have to happen.

Most of the virus is spread by young children of school age who can be immunized with a safe, effective vaccine.

But the vaccine is useless unless we use it.

The list of excuses is long. But time is short. Another big outbreak is expected this year in Kentucky.

All children desperately need to be vaccinated if the epidemic is to be stopped before it can begin.

Because once it starts, there's no stopping it.

Your help is needed. Now. If you have young children, see to it that they are vaccinated against German Measles.

Ask your family doctor. Or the board of health.

What you do after reading this could make a lot of difference.

The difference between life and death.

Tougher Stripmine Regulations Studied

New proposals to regulate surface-mine drainage, blasting and coal prospecting were announced last week by Elmore Grim, director of the Reclamation Division of the state Department of Natural Resources.

Grim termed the proposals "tough son-of-a-guns." If approved, he added, Kentucky would have the most comprehensive surface-mining regulations in the nation.

A new water-pollution law would give the division authority, for the first time, to control acid and silt pollution from mine sites from their source to where they enter watersheds. Jurisdiction for the streams would continue to be held by the Kentucky Water Pollution Control Commission.

Grim said the proposals were developed with the help of state and federal clean-water agencies and the University of Kentucky. He said surface-mine laws in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and other states were studied. The new regulation would prevent:

Active discharges from surface mines into streams in cases where operators had failed to install approved water-treatment facilities and silt-control structures.

High concentrations of iron, acids, solids and other materials in surface runoff from mine sites.

According to Grim, about 40 division fieldmen would be equipped with simple water-testing kits and trained in sampling procedures by representatives of the federal Environmental Protection Agency. He said some tests would be made in streams, but that his division would not encroach on the state clean-water agency.

"I hope my regulations are not in conflict or weaker than theirs," he said.

Also being formulated, Grim said, is a new state law to control blasting procedures at surface mines. Operators would be required to set charges during daylight hours, notify communities of their activities, and they would be prevented from blasting near streams and highways.

"This would stop a lot of local complaints," Grim said. "Now we hear about blasting at 2 a.m., or on Sunday mornings when the blast actually rocks people in their pews."

Operators also would have to designate an individual as their blaster and file information with the division on the amount and type of charge used. Grim said violators could be fined as much as $1,000 a day for each unintentional offense and as much as $5,000 for each deliberate offense.

A third proposal being drafted by the division would prevent "gouge and go" operations by coal prospectors. Grim said persons holding mineral rights for surface coal would have to get a permit to explore for new seams and agree to reclaim any lands they disturb after their search.

Grim said the new law is needed because surface coal prospecting is on the increase, spurred by rising coal prices, tougher underground-mine safety laws and a slump in the construction industry that has prompted some firms to take up mining.

"In 1969 about 13,000 acres were covered by surface-mine permits in Kentucky," Grim said. "Then last year we issued 174 new permits and the acreage went to 23,000. We've already issued 29 new permits since the first of January."

Grim said public hearings on the three proposed regulations will be held by early June. Final drafts of the measures, he added, then will be sent to the state's Legislative Research Commission for filing and could become law within 30 days.

How to visit Grandma without going over the river and through the woods.

Simple. Make a Lovin' Phone Call. It's as inviting as homemade apple pie.

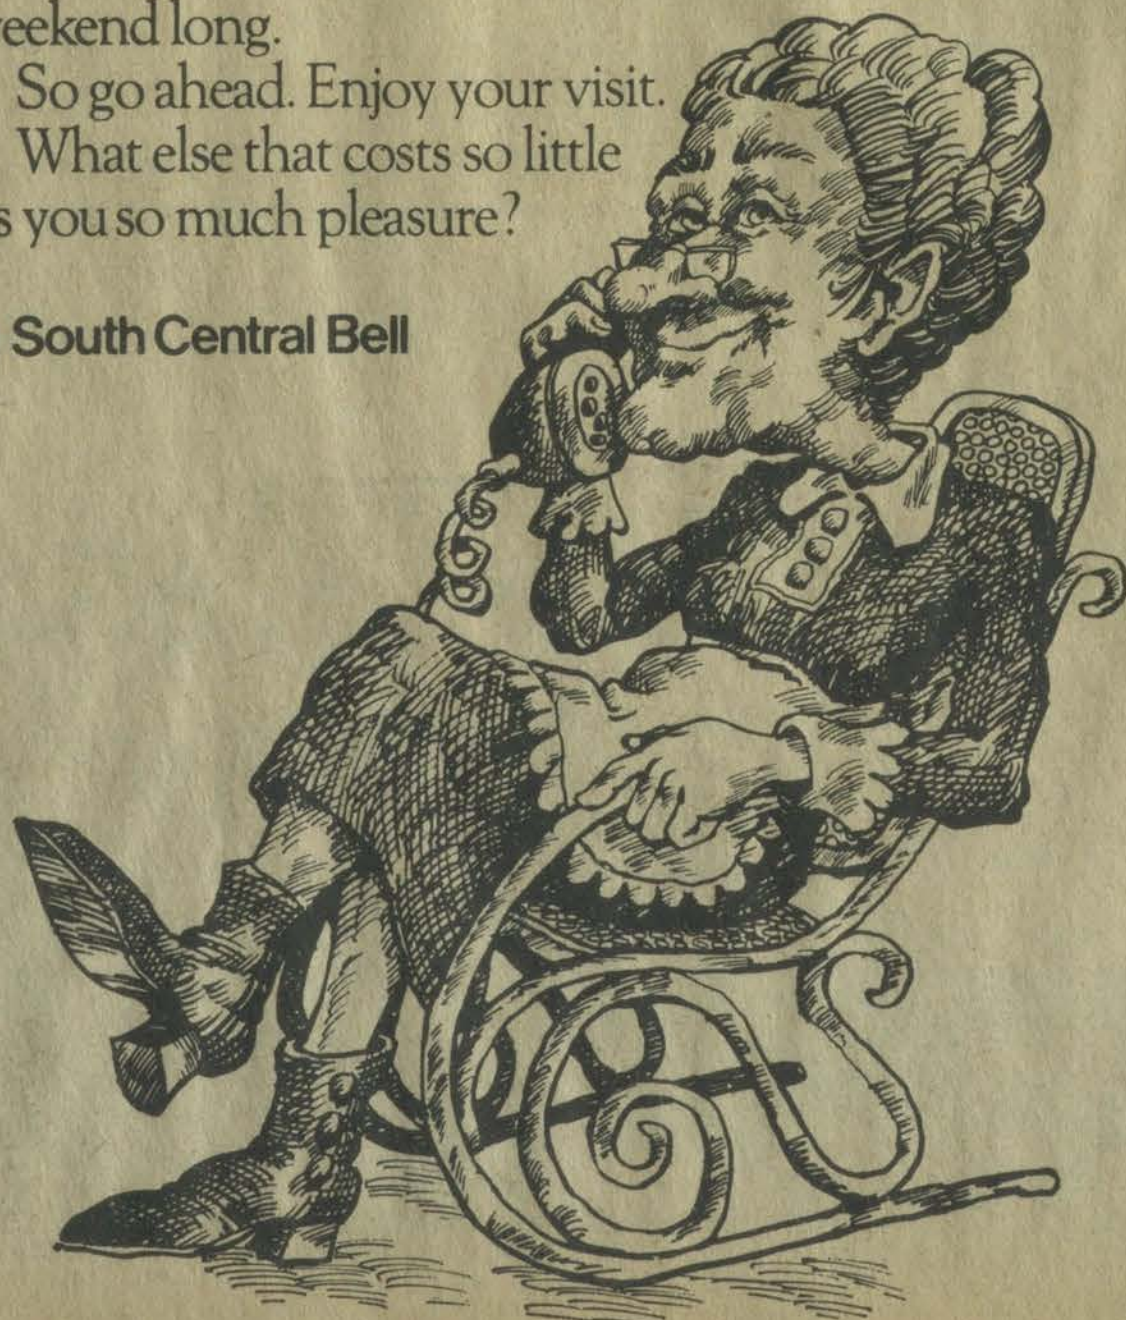

Calling long distance is faster and easier than going over the river and through the woods. In fact, it's even faster and easier than writing a letter.

And best of all, the rates are low every night and all weekend long.

So go ahead. Enjoy your visit.

What else that costs so little gives you so much pleasure?

We have a great future behind us.

It took us 23 years to get this far. Obviously, we didn't make it on our good looks. The Beetle we make today bears a striking resemblance to the 22 Beetles that preceded it. That's because we invested all of our time in making a Volkswagen run better and last longer, instead of wasting our time making it look different. To date, we've changed and improved our basic model thousands of times. And some things we left alone. You can still squeeze a lot of mileage out of one gallon of gas. Our air-cooled engine is still impervious to temperatures of 10 below and 110 above.

And when you part company with a Volkswagen, you still get something tangible to remember it by. Something green. In fact, according to the NADA Official Used Car Guide, the same Volkswagen Beetle that sold for about $500 less than the average economy car three years ago, now sells for about $200 more. So today, as we look at all the new economy cars trying to learn in one year what it took Volkswagen 23 years to learn, we can muse on something somebody said almost 200 years ago. "The best index of the future is the past." Because if that's true, we have a beautiful past to look forward to.

Postal Service Asks
Higher Mailing Rates

The Postal Service has proposed to the Postal Rate Commission rate increases which would provide additional revenues of $1.45 billion during fiscal 1972.

These increases would put the postal system on a sound financial basis and shift more of the costs from the taxpayer generally to those who use the mails the most.

The proposals call for increases in virtually all mail categories except parcel post.

If, within 90 days, the Rate Commission does not present to the Governors of the Postal Service a recommended decision on rate changes, it is anticipated that a temporary rate increase will be put into effect by the Postal Service.

Higher rates had been sought by the Post Office Department under both the current and previous administrations, but no action was taken.

In addition to the long-standing Postal Service proposal for a 2-cent boost for letters from 6 to 8 cents, advertising mail (regular bulk rate third-class) would be increased to a minimum of 5 cents per piece, plus additional increases for heavier weights.

Mailers holding bulk third-class permits would find their rates per pound raised from 16 to 22, and 28 cents per pound, respectively, when the proposal is fully effected, and the minimum-per-piece charge would be raised to 5 cents.

Kirkpatrick Notes Trend Is To Underground Mining

Kentucky may soon become the nation's No. 1 coal producing state, but the trend seems to be shifting from surface to underground mining, state Mines and Minerals Commissioner H. N. Kirkpatrick said recently.

Outlining a picture of increasing output in the coal fields, Kirkpatrick said Kentucky ranks behind West Virginia in coal production, but "the experts predict that in only a very few years" we will take the lead.

He said Muhlenberg county in Western Kentucky ranks first in the nation as a coal producing county, with approximately 20 million tons yearly. Pike county is the top underground coal producing county in the U. S. with 19 million tons, he said.

"The Hamilton Mine in West Kentucky just opened and will be the largest underground mine in the world—25,000 tons per day," he said.

"Three large underground mines are going to be opened in Martin county and 25 miles of railroads to be built will open up the entire territory."

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Lewis Branham wishes to acknowledge with deep appreciation the kindness of friends and relatives for everything that was done in our hour of sorrow. We thank everyone who brought food and flowers and offered words of comfort. A special thanks to the ministers, Rev. Wallace Calhoun and Rev. Green Boyd, and to the Floyd Funeral Home. We also thank the Prestonsburg hospital and the Mountain Manor Nursing Home and also Dr. Adams for their fine care while he was a patient.

USDA Food Assistance for Floyd Increased 54 Per Cent in Year

There were 7,285 low-income people in Floyd county on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's (commodity distribution) (Food Stamp Program) in December as compared to 4,726 receiving assistance during the same period a year earlier according to U. S. Department of Agriculture records.

At the same time, Russell H. James, southeast regional director of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service, revealed that Kentucky had a statewide increase of 56 per cent in participation in the food programs. He said 312,999 were given help in December as compared to 199,735 during December, 1969—an increase of 113,264.

James noted that the increase occurred in the food stamp program now in operation in 72 Kentucky counties. Here 259,964 persons in need of additional food were issued $6.4 million in food coupons in December. Of this amount, $4.5 million was in the form of free bonus stamps—the USDA's Food and Nutrition Service's contribution to the program.

In this program, low-income people use the money they normally spend for food to purchase food coupons worth far more. These are spent like cash in authorized grocery stores for domestic food.

Kentucky's other 48 counties provide for their people in need of help through the family food distribution program. During the month there were 53,035 participating as compared to 62,986 a year ago—a decrease of 9,951. The drop was attributed to the fact that a number of counties during the year switched from commodity distribution to food stamps.

The food stamp program is administered in Kentucky by the State Department of Economic Security, while the family food distribution program is handled by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, both in cooperation with the U. S. Food and Nutrition Service.

A comparison of participation by other counties of this area in December, 1969 and December, 1970 follows:

	Dec., 1970	Dec., 1969
Johnson	4623	3165
Knott	8796	5942
Letcher	6301	4269
Magoffin	5112	3657
Martin	3301	3036

Plan To Transfer Next Fall to U.K.—Here's Procedure

For present students at Prestonsburg Community College who will be transferring to the University of Kentucky next fall, a procedure has been developed to make the transition to the Lexington campus as simple and easy as possible.

Assurance that each student will participate in the required advising conference and early registration program in Lexington is one of the chief goals of this procedure, since this is the key to good planning for the opening of the fall semester.

The students who follow the steps outlined below will be assigned to an advising conference at the time they apply to go to Lexington. Community college students who do not participate in the total program will not be permitted to enroll for the 1971 fall semester. Community College students will be assigned to one of the first four days of the program, June 28, 29, 30 or July 1.

The application for fall admission and other required materials must be on file in the Admissions Office no later than June 15, 1971. Students who apply early have the first priority on classes, available to new students on the Lexington campus.

Steps to follow:

1. Obtain an admissions packet from the Prestonsburg Community College Admissions Office.

2. Do not mail the admissions packet to the University of Kentucky.

3. Those students wishing to live in U. K. residence halls must complete the housing application forms and mail them with the housing deposit directly to the University of Housing Office, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506.

4. Students intending to transfer to U. K. will receive an assignment reply card to go to Lexington for the advising conference. The confirmation of the assignment date must be confirmed by returning the reply card to U. K.

5. After students receives their assignment dates they must report to Lexington at 8 a.m. for the advising conference.

Applicants wishing to move to the Lexington campus for the 1971 summer session may use the same applications materials. May 14, 1971 is the deadline for receipt of the summer application at the Lexington Admissions Office.

For the first time, the University plans to have an optional advance registration for the summer session. Community college students who wish to come to summer school and participate in this advance registration must have their packets in Lexington by March 15. Summer school advance registration for Community College students have been scheduled for early April. Students coming for both summer and fall will also be able to advance register for the fall semester at this time.

Students desiring further information should contact Robert R. Allen, Academic Dean, Prestonsburg Community College.

The Blacksmith And His Tools

WEST LIBERTY, Ky.—My father, the late Earl Price, of West Liberty, taught me appreciation of country things. While most of his life was spent in a so-called city area, he was ever-mindful of his boyhood years on a farm near Spencer, W. Va.

When his work with United Fuel and Wayne United Gas Cos. brought him to Kentucky he found it as easy to talk with a farmer or a country blacksmith as with the Cabots and Lodges in Charleston office—and with the same degree of pleasure.

Through the years he acquired many tools, strange and unfamiliar to me, and occasionally passed some of them on to his inquisitive daughter. That is how I came to possess a number of items, handforged by blows of a smithy's hammer on an anvil.

Frequently, in interviewing farm folk for a story, I have come away with an ancient bit of iron that performed an ancient task in what seemed an ancient world. And yet, as history and fashions repeat themselves, a repeat era of the blacksmith is not the most far out idea.

Not exactly carried away at the time by my acquisition of these farm and hand tools, I did not bother to learn their uses. I kept trying to work out an artistic wall hanging with tongs—a common piece of sculpture with the anvil.

Common sense told me that a large pair of tongs that came with hand-forged and-irons should be used for lifting another log onto the fire, but not until I bought a secondhand book on practical blacksmithing did I learn that slightly smaller tongs were used by a smithy to hold horseshoes. Using the same theory I tried to make a still smaller pair into holders for pony shoes, only to find out they were hand-forged tooth pliers used by one of Morgan County's first doctors.

When Fayette county—or another county—gets a state park, provision should be made for an oldtime blacksmith or farrier's shop. Many people collect old tools and many farmers retain them to do necessary repairs around the farm. There are yet enough oldtimers, smithies in their day, who could be called on for background knowledge.

In the book on blacksmithing, compiled and published by M. T. Richardson in 1890, he called on guest smithies to relate their experiences in smithery. One told how to weld buggy springs and said, "I have welded springs in this way for many years, and it has never failed."

If the smithy used wooden parts for handles, they were made with the same degree of perfection as were the iron parts. The handles were soaked in linseed oil for a week then rubbed down every day for two weeks to give them a lustrous beauty and durability.

To prevent rust on a tool, caoutchouc oil rubbed on the piece gave good results, as did a coating solution of India rubber in benzene. Another preventive was to use one-half ounce camphor dissolved in one pound melted lard and mixed with fine lead such as pencil graphite.

To remove rust, cover the metal with sweet oil for 48 hours, then smear with oil applied freely with a feather and rub with unslaked lime.

Some of the tools in Richardson's book were: hatchet for opening bundle iron, collaring tools, light flatter for finishing flat irons, set hammers, heavy flatters, siding-down tools and tongs.

Farrier tools included shoe spreaders, picks, corn-cutters, clinch blocks, plow share tools and the more common wrenches, bolts, and screws.

It was agreed that any book was merely an aid to a blacksmith. The smith worked without patterns and diagrams, but used his finesse and imagination to turn out a tool for a particular job. The way in which he held his tools and the force and trueness of his blows often gave identity to his work.

The book on practical blacksmithing showed all kinds of gadgets that must have been dear to the smith of that day. Then almost every farmer was his own blacksmith using his farm shed or shop to make broad axes, hatchets, plowshares, andirons, froes, hoes and wagon and buggy parts.

Not only should books on the art of blacksmithing be collected and saved, but also the tools—and the tools that made the tools.

As complete as was the book of 1890, I was disappointed that it did not identify all the metal bits and pieces saved here and there.

The book told how to forge iron into a flat piece about four by six inches and how to make the metal bolts and taps to fasten it onto a five-foot wooden handle. It even told how to bathe the handle in linseed oil and polish it to a soft patina—but what does one do with a grub hoe after it is made.

DO YOU HAVE GOOD GARDEN SOIL?

A good garden soil is capable of producing large yields of high-quality vegetables. It is 10 to 12 inches deep and can hold large amounts of water, but drains quickly after a rain. A good garden soil is easily prepared into a good seedbed and will remain in a crumbly condition throughout the growing season. It will warm up quickly in the spring but does not become excessively hot in summer. It is well supplied with plant food and has an abundance of organic matter.

Soil such as this is built or kept by plowing under manure or other organic materials, such as compost, rotted leaves, straw, or a good cover crop 6 to 8 inches high each year. A 2-inch covering of one of the materials mentioned above will supply enough humus. None of them will supply all the plant food needed. If manure is used, apply 12 pounds of 20 per cent super-phosphate per 1,000 square feet (or 2½ pounds of fertilizer per 100 square feet) when other organic materials or cover crops are used.

You can improve your soil structure by adding organic materials. They increase the soil's water-holding capacity, but at the same time improve drainage. Don't destroy the benefits derived from the addition of organic matter by plowing or working in the soil when it is too wet. Protect the soil from erosion by planting cover crops or by plowing and leaving in the rough until it is to be prepared in the spring. Rains may wash away the most valuable portion of the soil during winter if left unprotected.

Plowing heavy clay soil in the late fall or early winter will improve soil structure by alternate freezing and thawing. It will also destroy many garden insects. Plow and leave in the rough until the garden is to be planted. This will assist in controlling erosion.

Garden bulletins are available at your Floyd County Extension Office, Prestonsburg Post Office Building, or call 886-2668.

Remember the quality of the garden soil determines to a large extent the quality of the vegetables you eat. Feed the soil well, and it will feed you well.

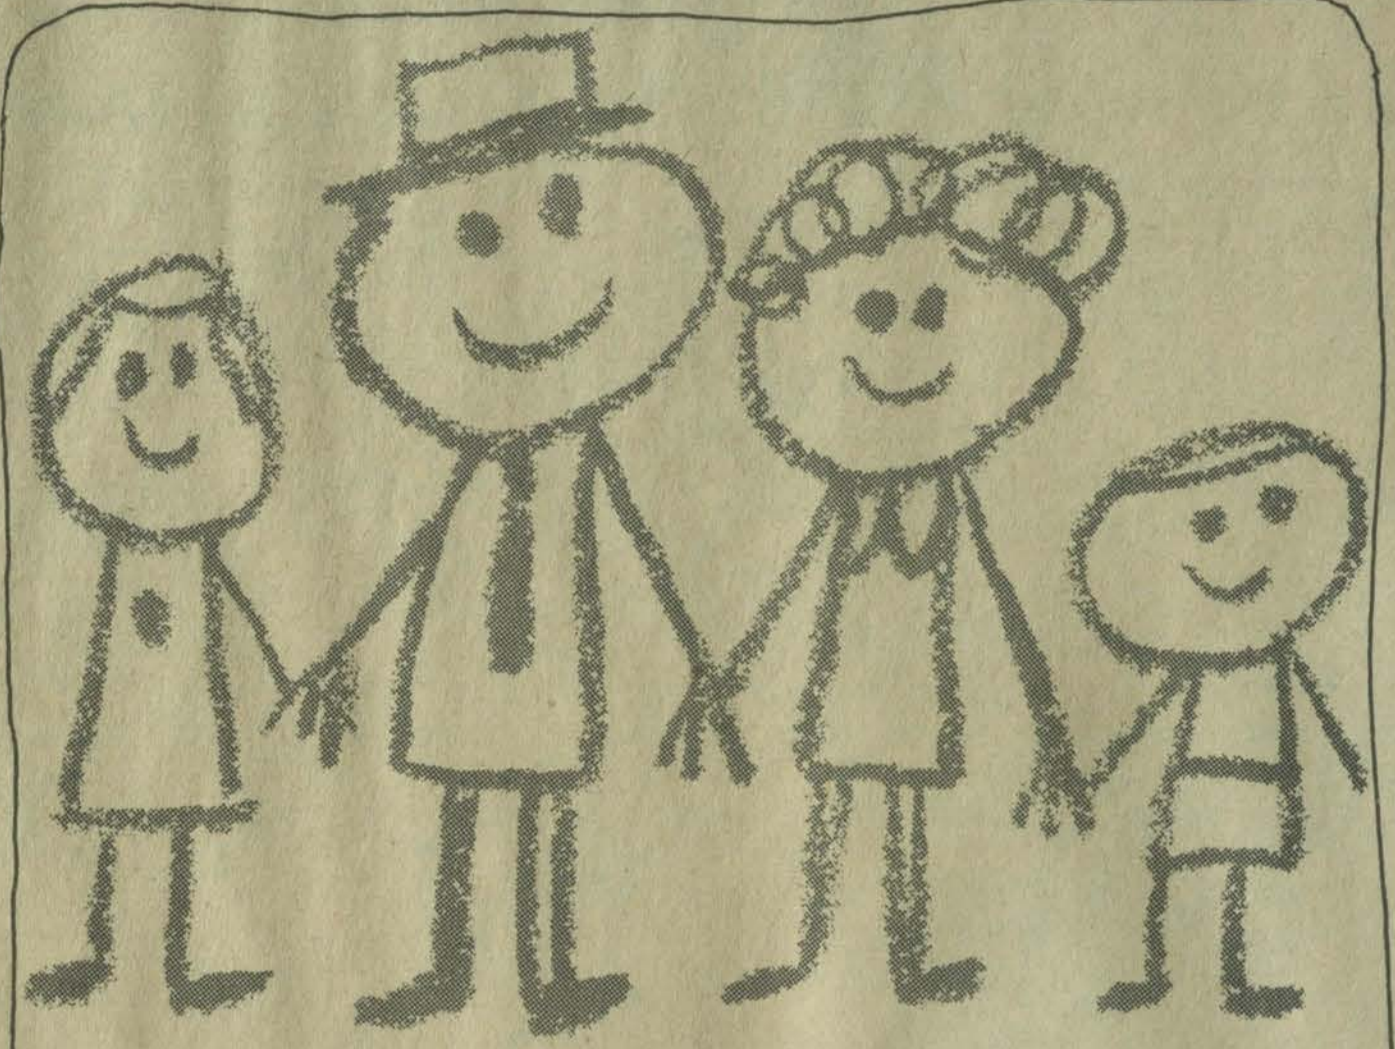

"Honor the Dead by helping the living" is the slogan of the annual Veterans of Foreign Wars Buddy Poppy sale.

Four Banks Are Indicted For Making Campaign Loans

Four Ohio banks were the targets of the first indictments in the 46-year history of a law forbidding federally chartered banks from making loans or contributions in connection with an election. Charged were First National of Cincinnati, Bellefontaine National, Ohio National of Columbus and First Knox National of Mount Vernon. A Justice Department lawyer said the Cincinnati bank had made loans to an organization that campaigned for Ohio's current governor, John J. Gilligan.

Now there's a new, small Pontiac with a small-car price for small-car lovers.

Upper left, Ventura II Coupe with special Sprint package you can order. Foreground, Ventura II Coupe (4-door Sedan also available).

Wouldn't you know it would be fun to drive, stingy on gas, quick to service and built to last.

Of course you would. We wouldn't build a small car unless we figured it would give you more of what you want a small car for.

Take that low price. Ventura II is a small car, so it has a low, small-car price. But it's what you get for that small price that makes Ventura II worth a close look.

Ventura II is fun to drive. It should be, it's from the Wide-Track people. Which means you get a smooth, comfortable, Wide-Track ride.

The handling's quick. There's a nifty 111-inch wheelbase for easy parking. And both the 250-cu.-in. six and available 307-cu.-in. V-8 respond beautifully in city traffic or on the expressway.

Ventura II is stingy with your gas money. Both the standard six-cylinder engine and the V-8 you can order run beautifully on regular gas or the new low-lead and no-lead fuels. The carburetor on the six is an economical one-barrel, and the transmission for both six and V-8 is a practical 3-speed manual.

Ventura II is quick to service. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, you'll like fiddling around with the new Ventura II.

New twist-lock lamp sockets let you make changes in seconds.

The engine is uncomplicated, and there is plenty of engine-compartment space, especially with the six.

If you ever need to have somebody else work on your car—well, you'll like Ventura II, too. Both the standard six and available V-8 are tough, time-tested designs. Same goes for transmissions. The standard 3-speed manual and the available 2-speed automatic, Turbo Hydra-matic or floor-mounted 3-speed are all rugged, dependable units.

Ventura II is built to last. There's nothing lightweight about this car. It's welded—not bolted—at hundreds of strategic points to help keep it tight and quiet.

The body is heavy-gauge steel. And it has double paneling in the deck lid, hood and doors. You could probably sum it up best with three little words. Body by Fisher.

So, come on. If you're a small-car lover, stop by your Pontiac dealer's today. Tell him you want to see the new Ventura II. It's the small car that gives you more of what you want a small car for.

Don't forget to buckle up for safety.
