This Town . . . That World

This is the week when its really important how the ball bounces. May all McDowell's bounce squarely into the basket.

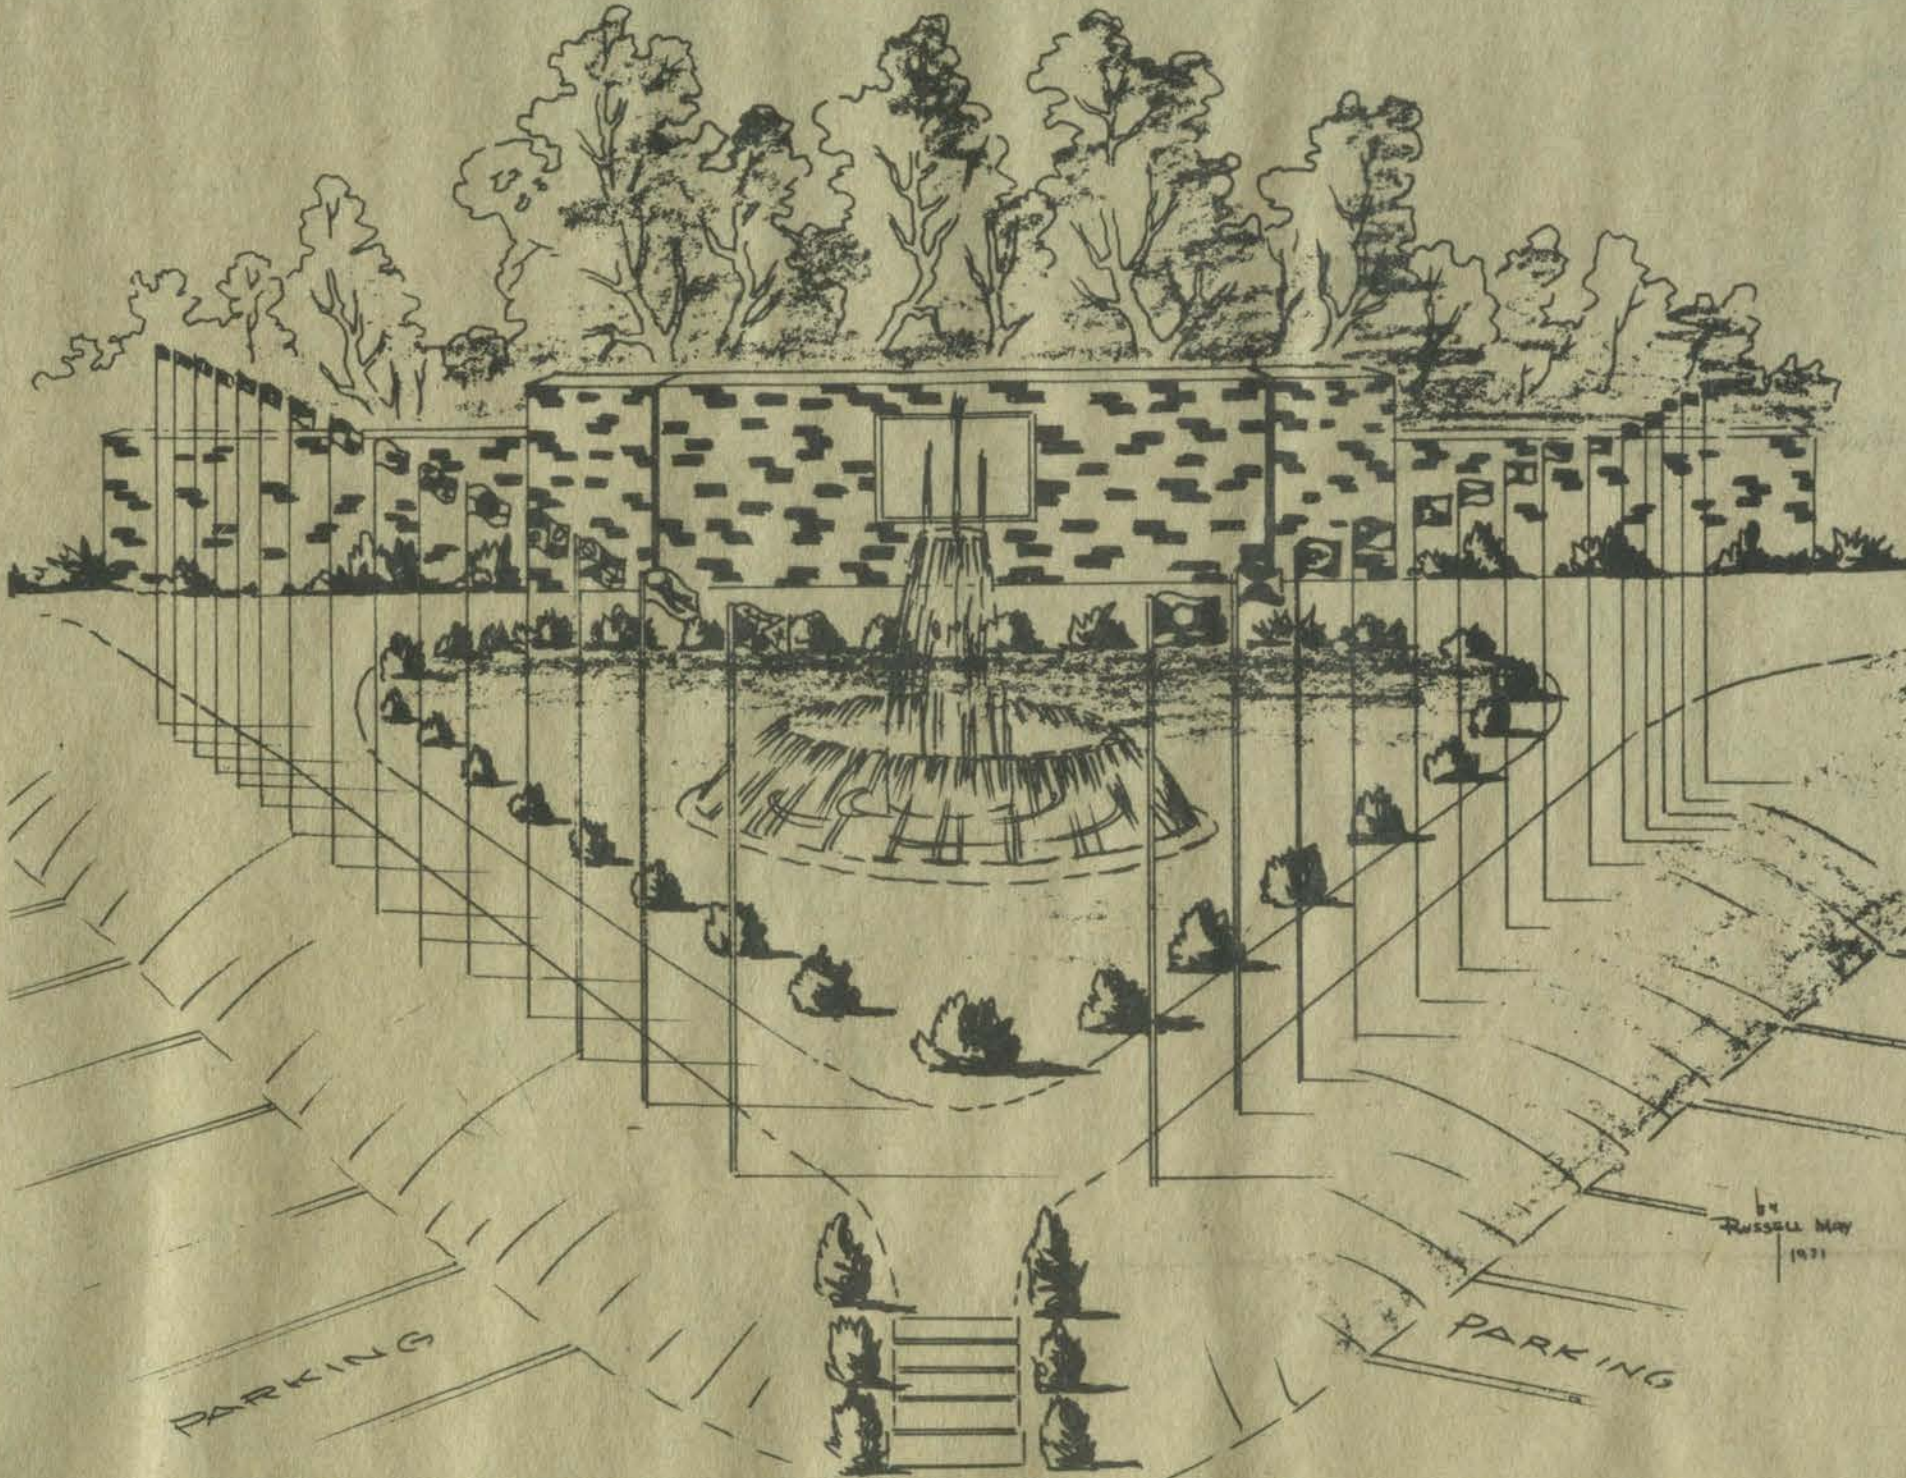

The television people have already begun their re-runs, and, so help me, another week like this with the old mill plumb dry of grist, and I'll be digging back into our files for re-runs of old columns.

A RE-RUN?

If the memories of readers are as uncertain as mine, I just might get away with re-runs. Some of these books I read, these days, are so forgettable that I sometimes go deep into them before I discover something familiar. As one oldtimer remarked, "Old-age has its benefits—I save a lot of money on books, these days, because I read them, over and over, and never know the difference."

A case in point is the following, which Dr. Henry Martin, of Eastern Kentucky State University, sent me. I have been told this column has already used this, but you can't prove it by me. So I print here what is called, "Old Folks at Home":

Police were called today to help restore order at the Old Folks' Manor, the scene of a week-long old folks revolt. Three militant octogenarians were arrested after a scuffle took place in the main parlor. They were identified as leaders of an activist group that seized control of the parlor three days (See Story No. 2, Page 10)

FLOYD COUNTY WAR MEMORIAL: ARCHER PARK, PRESTONSBURG, KY.

Drive Begins To Raise Memorial Fund

A continuing drive to raise the $25,000 necessary for the completion of the Floyd County War Memorial at Archer Park here will be taken to every part of the county, Estill Lee Carter, chairman of the fund-raising committee, announced Monday.

First of the major benefit events planned in this effort will be the appearance here Saturday, April 3, of James B. Hetzler's European Circus for two performances—at 2 and 8 p.m.—at the Prestonsburg high school fieldhouse.

The gym floor will be covered, and all of the 75 circus animals—except the elephants—will be inside the building. Tickets for the circus have been placed on sale at all schools of the county, as well as at other points.

Mr. Carter, a native of Pike county, is leading the fund-raising drive, although he has no Floyd county relatives who died in the country's wars since World War I and whose names will be perpetuated on a bronze plaque in the memorial.

"I feel that we have so many divisive influences, these days, that we need something on which we can all cooperate," Mr. Carter said. "This memorial to our war dead is something worthy of the support of us all."

Letters are being mailed throughout the county. These point out that by advertising in The Floyd County Times the Prestonsburg Park Commission now has on record the names of more than 20 Floyd countians who died in the country's wars and that these are names omitted by the War Department in its list.

"Without their names engraved on the proposed plaque, who would know, 25 years from now?" the letter asks.

Carter sought to dispel the impression gained by some parents or relatives of war dead that they must make a cash contribution in order for the name of their relative to appear on the plaque. He explained that, although contributions are desired, from whatever source, these relatives are not under any special compulsion to contribute.

Later, a Floyd County War Memorial Day will be observed in the schools of the county. At that time students may bring any contribution—from 5 cents up—as an expression of their respect to those who have lost their lives in the service of their country.

The grant of federal funds made last year to recreational development of Archer Park does not provide any money for the War Memorial. This portion of the park is wholly dependent upon the generosity of Floyd countians.

The cost of engraving names of the war dead on the plaque will be about $15 per name, it was said. Contributions to the War Memorial Fund are tax deductible.

Arnett Release Is Questioned

Russell Arnett, Magoffin county man who was convicted of manslaughter and given a 10-year pen term for the slaying at the Eagles Club here of Henry Shepherd, is no longer a prisoner—and a delegation of Magoffin county residents were here last week, wanting to know how come.

They called on Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo, for information, but the report that Arnett, was at liberty was news to him. Stumbo told The Times this week that in the past the Division of Parole and Probation has notified him when the release of a prisoner convicted in Floyd county was intended. Arnett's release, he said, was the first he recalls having been made without such notice.

Stumbo expressed some concern about the release of prisoners convicted of major offenses after such brief stays in the reformatory. "Wonder how long a man sent for only one year would be required to stay, if one sent for 10 years is paroled after little more than a year in the pen?" he asked.

Arnett was convicted here Jan. 22, last year, and was sentenced four days later, court records show.

Health Program May Yet Face Obstacles

Although the revised contract between the Big Sandy Community Action Program and the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Program were signed this week, the health program itself may yet not be out of the woods as Washington continues its review of the situation in this county.

The Times has learned from a usually reliable source that a letter mailed from Washington Monday is requesting a meeting of OEO or Health Affairs representatives here Monday night with directors of both the health program and Big Sandy CAP.

This report also says OEO will ask the removal of five directors of the Comprehensive Health Program, possibly on the ground of conflict of interest—an action which has earlier been suggested.

Although it will have no official bearing on the situation, a meeting of the Eastern Kentucky Welfare Rights Organization and others is scheduled March 28 at P. A. C. E. headquarters at Allen.

The new contract gives some control back to the CAP which has the financial operation responsibility of the program, spelling out the control by inspection as follows: Employees' personnel records, yearly; financial records, ledgers journals to be submitted on a quarterly basis along with the monthly statement; purchasing to be done by purchase order by project staff for single items under $500; employee evaluation records, yearly; disciplinary and suspensions, yearly; terminations, yearly; grievances and appeals, as they occur to CAP offices.

Comprehensive Health staff also agrees that CAP may carry out monitoring and evaluation activities to include documentation of professional credentials submitted at the time of employment; documentation of income levels at the time of initial employment; and all program changes to be forwarded to CAP simultaneously with submission for approval with CAP to receive notification of any and all action taken in Washington.

US 23, Rural Road Plans Announced

Water Gap Youth Seriously Injured When Hit by Auto

Fifteen-year-old Tavis Pennington, of Water Gap, remains in critical condition in a Lexington hospital as the result of injuries suffered last Thursday afternoon when he was struck by an auto while riding a bicycle on KY 1536 (the Bull Creek road). State Trooper Elmo Allen, who investigated the accident, said the boy apparently was attempting to cut from one side of the road to the other when hit by a car driven by Paul Douglas Goble, of Dwale.

State Police have taken no action against Goble, pending outcome of the youth's injuries.

Boy, Girl Scouts To Join Cleanup

Dean Murray, Dewey Reservoir manager, this week announced that the massive cleanup of the Dewey Lake shoreline will not be altogether restricted to the efforts of the U. S. Corps of Engineers, the Division of Parks and the Department of Highways.

Boy and Girl Scout troops of this district will pitch in for three days of work, May 14-16, to restore the lake surroundings. Plans for the Scout cleanup effort were arranged by George Chidester, district Boy Scout executive, and Mrs. Mary B. Tuttle, who serves the Girl Scouts of the district in the same capacity.

Each troop, it was said, will be assigned approximately one mile of shoreline and adjacent area. The youngsters will work both sides of the impoundment. A barge supplied by the Corps of Engineers will pick up refuse and transfer it to trucks.

Mr. Murray said individuals and clubs are being urged to assist in any way possible and that boat-owners are being encouraged to help with transportation of the young people on the lake.

In an attempt to reduce the accumulation of trash and garbage along the lake, officials have decided that no shoreline camping will be permitted during the coming season. Camping will be restricted to selected central areas.

Youth, 19, Dies, Driver of Auto Named in Writ

A manslaughter warrant was procured here Monday morning by State Trooper Dennis Williamson for the arrest of Dennis Ray Price, driver of the auto whose passenger, Donald Gene Johnson, 19, of Minnie, was killed shortly after midnight Sunday in a wreck near Drift.

Price suffered what were described as minor injuries.

The wreck occurred on KY 122 as the car driven by Price hit the curve near Drift at what the state trooper said was "an apparent high rate of speed." The driver lost control and his passenger was apparently thrown from the vehicle. Death resulted from head and chest injuries.

The victim was a son of Ballard and Lona Newsome Johnson. Survivors, besides the parents, include two brothers and nine sisters, Delmer Johnson, River Rouge, Mich., Ricky Johnson, of Minnie, Mrs. Olivia Coleman, Del Ray, Mich., Mrs. Betty Harrington, of Drift, Mrs. Carolyn Sue Burke, Warren, O., Misses Brenda, Sheila, Cathy, Shirley, Teresa and Denise Johnson, all of Minnie.

Funeral rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Wednesday from the Old Beaver Regular Baptist Church at Minnie, ministers of that church officiating, and burial was made at Buckingham under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

McDowell High Wins Place in State Meet

If the Census Bureau were making its head-count this week, Floyd county's population loss would be more disconcerting even than the official 1970 figures.

For the town of McDowell will be almost emptied, and a sizeable percentage of other county residents will not be at home. They will be in Louisville following the fortunes of the McDowell high school Daredevils in the state basketball tournament.

Coach Pete Grisby's team, ranked among the top 10 in the state all season, proved its mettle by defeating Maytown in the district meet here and then easily downing Pikeville high in the 15th region playoffs at Johnson Central, Paintsville, last Saturday night 82 to 52.

Hopes of an all-Floyd county finale in the regional, with McDowell and Maytown meeting again, were dashed when the Wildcats lost an overtime decision to Pikeville in one of the biggest upsets of the year.

P'burg-to-Allen Work Held Near; Other Work Seen

In the Floyd rural secondary plans announced by Highway Commissioner B. E. King, rock surfacing is scheduled for 2.4 miles of KY 2030.

Bituminous resurfacing of 1.4 miles of KY 777, 3 miles of the Branham's Creek road and .6 mile of streets in Harold is scheduled.

Bituminous initial surfacing is planned for 2.2 miles of KY 680, .9 mile of the Skull Fork road, .2 mile of the Betsy Layne Hollow road, .6 mile of the Spradlin Branch road, .1 mile of Briarwood Addition here, .1 mile of the New Allen-Jack Friar road, .1 mile of Old Allen street, 1 mile of the Bays Branch road, .3 mile of the Fisher Hollow Road, .1 mile of Friend street, .3 mile of streets in Harold, .8 mile of Hunt's Fork of Prater Creek road, .5 mile of Rice Branch of Prater Creek road, .7 mile of Tackett Branch road, .4 mile of the Branham Village road and .3 mile of the Auxier Heights Road.

Grade and drain work and rock surfacing are planned for 1.7 miles of the Mink Branch road.

Two bridge repairs are scheduled for KY 194, 1.3 miles east of US 23 and 2.1 miles east of US 23.

Two bridges will be painted on KY 1210 and on KY 777.

Bridge deck repairs are scheduled for a 99-foot bridge on KY 1210 and a 178-foot bridge on KY 194.

Various county roads totaling 105 miles will be maintained under the 1971-'72 program, the commissioner said.

Saturday Raids Net Booze Haul And 1 Prisoner

Deputy sheriffs and state police joined Saturday in liquor raids which netted 29 pints of whiskey and 238 cans of beer and the arrest of one man on a liquor possession charge.

Randolph Jacobs was arrested at a trailer on Raccoon fork of Salt Lick, three miles west of Hueysville, by State Trooper Elmo Allen and Deputy Sheriffs Claude Flanery and Otto Fannin who confiscated 238 cans of beer and 10 half-pints of whiskey.

In the second raid of the day Deputy Sheriffs Flanery, Fannin and Sollie Holbrook uncovered 24 pints of whiskey on the premises at Allen of Cesco Adkins. Adkins was not found and a warrant alleging possession of intoxicants was issued for his arrest.

Homer Franklin Smith, of Williamsport, Johnson county, was arrested at Kroger's here last Tuesday by Chief of Police Bill Potter and Policeman Ray Click and was jailed on a petty larceny charge. The officers said he had concealed under his shirt ham and eggs, apparently taken from Kroger's, meat from Thompson's IGA Store and tools from Maloney's.

James Jacobs was jailed on a grand larceny count by Deputy Sheriffs Conley and Salyers. He allegedly stole copper wire. Alex Slone was booked on hit-run driving and drunk driving charges after he allegedly had hit Stan Stumbo at East McDowell with his auto. He was arrested by State Trooper Gary Rose.

After he had been booked here on a drunk charge a warrant alleging that he aided prisoners to escape was served on Albert Chaffins by Probation Officer Arthur Pigman.

Other arrests within the week, charges alleged against each defendant and names of arresting officers follow:

All was quiet at Prestonsburg high school Monday when this photo was snapped. The bomb scare was past, students were back in their classes. Still standing by were Prestonsburg police and firemen.

Bomb Threat Evacuates School

Prestonsburg high school Monday morning had the first bomb scare experienced in the Floyd school system when a threat was received by telephone. The building was quickly evacuated of pupils and a search was made before classwork was resumed.

J. D. Hensley, principal, notified the Prestonsburg police and fire departments.

The threat came a day after a dynamite cap had been found on an awning of the high school gymnasium. This discovery was made when a "frisbee" being tossed by three girls lodged atop the awning. Policemen Tom Blackburn and Lonnie Herald and the fire department removed the cap.

County Superintendent Charles Clark said an investigation of the telephone threat has failed to identify the caller. He added that Bill Gibson, South Central Bell manager, has promised to install equipment to trace future calls into the high school.

The superintendent said procedure followed after receipt of the call was according to a prearranged plan to meet such an emergency. A fire drill was initiated immediately, and the search of the building quickly followed.

This plan has been adopted for all schools in the county.

Observe Girl Scout Week

Prestonsburg Girl Scouts and Brownies celebrated Girl Scout Week, March 11, by making posters about "What Being a Girl Scout Means to Me." Highlight of the day was a ride through Prestonsburg on the city fire truck. Troops participating in the day's events were Cadette Girl Scout Troop 205, Junior Girl Scout Troop 845, and Brownie Girl Scout Troop 262.

The Coal-Mining Problem Includes Past, Present, Future

If you are among those who wonder how our forebears could have been so shortsighted as to sell for a few cents an acre their mineral holdings, be reminded that what is happening now may cause the next generation to wonder why we could have been so dumb.

Those who may ask this question will not blame the owners of the land, since the landowner has inherited this situation in which he has nothing to say about what the owners of the coal, oil, gas and other minerals have a right to do. But they will wonder how the state and federal governments and community leaders could have so miserably failed the people as a whole at a time when the public was highly conscious of the dangers to the ecology.

The Times does not favor forbidding by law all surface mining. This coal is needed. Wherever its mining is possible without irreparable damage to the environment—to trees, the soil, the water—it should be permitted. But strip-miners should not, must not, be turned loose to inflict what amounts to incurable wounds.

We add: Neither should operators of deep mines be permitted to turn acid waters into streams and dump mountainous piles of slag and slate which will almost inevitably begin burning, one day, to pollute the air with sulphurous fumes.

State and federal laws may even now be adequate—if they were enforced. Perhaps the only needed additions to existing law are those covering situations which experience proves they do not meet.

The very nature of coal makes its production a messy business, but a nation which can bring rocks back from the moon without loss of life can surely find a way to bring this fuel from the earth without permanent damage to the environment.

A reader of this newspaper suggests that a guarantee of protection against strip-mine desecration would be a law providing that no operator be given a new permit to mine until the landowner on whose property the operator had last mined makes a notarized statement to the effect that his land has been restored or reclaimed to his complete satisfaction.

Is this giving the owner of the surface land too much power? Remember: That coal was not mined because he wanted it mined; it was not bought from him but from a progenitor who sold it for perhaps 50 cents an acre and signed away his rights not only to coal but to copper, zinc, lead, gold, silver, stone—and, to quote from the old "Broad Form" deeds executed by the forefathers and on record in every courthouse of the area, "all other minerals."

The economy of Eastern Kentucky will always depend upon coal—as long as it lasts. But the coal reserves may be exhausted within the next 30 years. After that—what?

Those who live then, will be wondering about the shortsightedness that permitted such a forlorn heritage, unless an honest effort is made to get down to the difficult, costly job of affording protection now. And if they do complain, what will they be able to do about it?

HARRY GORDON ALLEN PROPERTY VALUATION ADMINISTRATOR (Tax Commissioner)

I request that the taxpayers who have either BOUGHT, SOLD or BUILT to come in immediately and have your listings corrected for the year of 1971. The assessment period is from January 1, 1971 through February 28, 1971.

Also, those people who have not reported their MOBILE HOMES MUST DO SO. Failure to report these will result in possibly being penalized the 20 percent penalty; it is also possible to go back five (5) years on all property.

Also, business firms that have not reported their inventories, business furniture and fixtures, accounts receivables and other taxable information, please do so before March 1, 1971.

Keeping the tax rolls up to date is very difficult without your cooperation.

Respectfully yours,
HARRY GORDON ALLEN

PROPERTY VALUATION ADMINISTRATOR
(Tax Commissioner)

I request that the taxpayers who have either BOUGHT, SOLD or BUILT to come in immediately and have your listings corrected for the year of 1971. The assessment period is from January 1, 1971 through February 28, 1971.

Also, those people who have not reported their MOBILE HOMES MUST DO SO. Failure to report these will result in possibly being penalized the 20 percent penalty; it is also possible to go back five (5) years on all property.

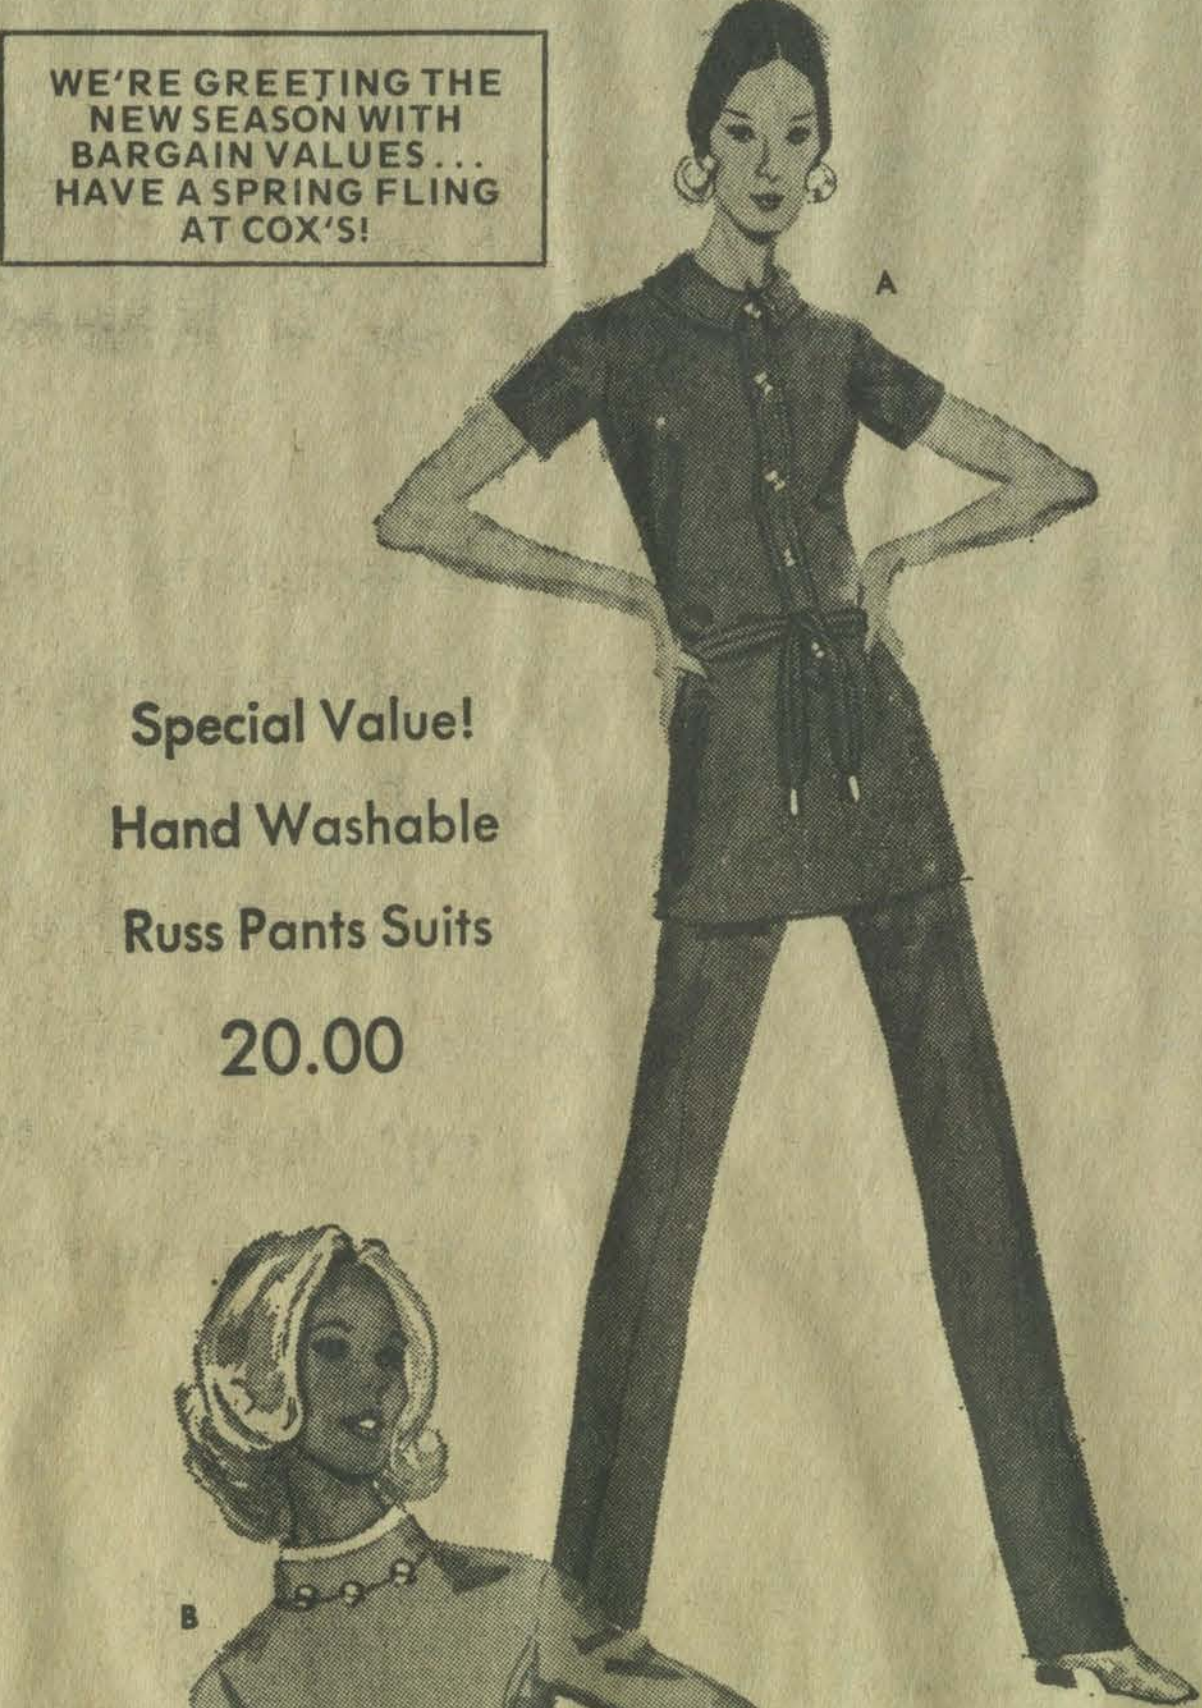

Also, business firms that have not reported their inventories, business furniture and fixtures, accounts receivables and other taxable information, please do so before March 1, 1971.

Keeping the tax rolls up to date is very difficult without your cooperation.

Respectfully yours,
HARRY GORDON ALLEN

One nice advantage of a Lovin' Phone Call is you don't have to lick the stamp.

Making a long distance Lovin' Phone Call is faster and easier than writing a letter—plus there's no bitter aftertaste.

In fact, you don't even have to look for a stamp.

And there's no better way to surprise someone that you care about. So why stay out of touch, when staying in touch is so easy?

Remember, rates are low every night and all weekend long.

So go ahead—address yourself to a Lovin' Phone Call.

After all, what else that costs so little puts you in touch so fast?

He Broke the Shackles Free!

As Governor of Kentucky, Bert Combs boldly initiated a PROGRAM OF PROGRESS that liberated the state from generations-old Do-Nothingness.

- He established the great Community College System — now a model for other states.
- He built the Mountain Parkway and other arterial highways to connect Kentucky with Kentucky.

- He gave Education the support it so badly needed.
- He substituted voting machines for the antiquated ballot box.
- He gave the State Park System new life.

For the first time in history, Eastern Kentucky Was given a chance —
— AND BERT COMBS WAS RESPONSIBLE.

Giant Fish Hatchery Contract Is Awarded

Kentucky is to have one of the most modern freshwater fish hatcheries in the nation, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources says.
Under the terms of a contract awarded last week by the state departments of Finance and Fish and Wildlife Resources, work will start within the next few days on the $2 million-dollar-plus facility to be located below Cave Run dam, near Morehead. The first-phase contract, amounting to slightly more than $1,300,000, has been awarded to the K. A. Barker Construction Company, of Louisville. Under terms of the contract the first phase work must be completed by March 12, 1972.
Minor Clark, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, in announcing the Barker contract award, said a contract for second phase work will probably be let this summer and that the hatchery should be in operation by the spring of 1973.

The Barker contract calls for the laying of a network of supply and drainage pipes; construction of roads after the area has been cleared; building of 84 one-acre ponds; 24 one-tenth-acre ponds which will be used as nursery stations, and three large ponds of eight acres each in which brood fish will be held. The layout will feature earthen dams, with necessary concrete structures. The $1.3 million figure does not include engineering and inspection fees which would bring the total cost for the initial phase to near $1.5 million.
The second phase will include construction of the hatchery building and the maintenance building and residences for hatchery employees.
Production of musky, walleye, rockfish and largemouth bass is expected to start early in 1973. In addition, forage fish also will be produced.
Bernard Carter, assistant commissioner and former director of the Division of Fisheries, stated that musky, walleye and bass eggs will be procured from brood stock held by the Department but that rockfish fry will be initially obtained from South Carolina.
The facility, to be known as the Minor Clark Hatchery, is to be built immediately below Cave Run dam which will impound the Licking river at Farmers, a few miles from Morehead. Cave Run is expected to be completed by late 1972. Water from this lake will be gravity fed into the hatchery proper in a cooperative move with the Corps of Engineers. The hatchery will be built on a 200-acre plot of the 300 acres which the Department has purchased, with 100 acres to be held for future expansion of the hatchery.

Rural secondary projects are financed by two cents of the seven-cent-per-gallon motor fuel tax.
With plans announced for an April letting of contracts on the Prestonsburg-Allen sector of US 23, the Department of Highways said this week that Floyd county's 1971-72 rural secondary road program will involve the expenditure of $422,714.96.
The Prestonsburg-Allen sector of new US 23 will be divided into three projects, a Department of Highways spokesman said—one beginning at the Mountain Parkway at the mouth of Katy Friend, extending 3.35 miles to Water Gap; another, from Water Gap to Allen, and the third contract covering construction of a bridge spanning the Big Sandy at Allen. This is the only major bridge project on the new route, from Prestonsburg to Pikeville.
If advertising for bids is done as expected, work on the Prestonsburg-Allen part of the four-lane highway may begin in May. This begun, all of the highway would be under construction.

ago and locked Mrs. Birdie McMush, assistant dietitian, in the pantry.

Two officers suffered minor injuries during the disturbance. One was hit from the rear by a runaway wheelchair and the other was jabbed with a knitting needle.

Quincy Tiredblood, 87-year-old spokesman for the rebellious faction, told reporters the demonstrations were started to enforce demands that old folks be given a greater role in the management of the rest home. "We've got a bunch of young whipper-snappers running things around here," he said, waving his cane indignantly. He said the old folks were demanding that at least three senior citizens be added to the rest home staff. "We don't trust anybody under 65," said Tiredblood, who had a "Senility Power" button pinned to his shawl.

The revolt began last week when a small group of hard-core superannuates held a "dodder-in" at which some burned their social security cards.

Although peaceable in its early stages, the protest movement took a violent turn when someone hit Clem Shuffle, rest home superintendent, with a bottle of Geritol.

Shuffle blamed the trouble on misunderstanding caused by difficulties in communicating with the militants. "Some of them turned off their hearing aids," he said.

COUNTING THE "EXTRAS"

Dean Miller, who starred in "December Brides," sends along from his JOURNAL, published at DeGraff, O., an item that's going the rounds. It seems that a farmer who had been upset on more than one occasion by the difference between the basic price of a truck and the price he paid after the "extras" had all been counted, finally caught up with the car dealer. He sold him a cow, and here's how the cost of the aforementioned animal mounted up:

Basic cow, $200; two-tone exterior, $45; extra stomach, $75; product storage compartment, $60; dispensing device (4 spigots at $10 each), $40; genuine cowhide upholstery, $15; dual horns ($7.50 each), $15; automatic flyswatter, $35—total, $595.

THE HOMEMAKERS AND CLEANUP

Homemakers' clubs of the county are undertaking to interest everybody in joining in a cleanup of our premises and surroundings. Here, they have conferred with the City Council. For the countywide effort they have gained the assurance of county help from Judge Stumbo, with county trucks scheduled to haul away the collected debris. Wherever there's a Homemaker's club plans are being made and soon people will be working.

Which is as it should be. Now, at the end of a long winter, and with better days presumably ahead, it should be just natural that all of us who have any pride in home and community left will want to get rid of the accumulated litter that is almost everywhere. It would be such a shame to wait for the flowers to bloom and the grass to grow to shield our neglect from view.

Cleanup must be a continuing effort if we are to escape self-interment. . . Whatever the ladies succeed in doing toward beautification of this cluttered landscape, it will not be gilding the lily.

have contributed to the Red Cross they have given back $20—not because we deserved it, but because we were in need and they wanted to help."

The Red Cross, it is pointed out, confines its services to no single corner of the world but is at the point where there is need—with the armed forces, those stricken by natural or manmade disaster, rendering service even to individuals needing help in contacting military personnel at distant post of duty.

Floyd County Woman's Cookbook Features 'Delectables' of Region

By HELEN PRICE STACY
(In The Cincinnati Enquirer)

As all loyal Kentuckians know, Kentucky does not have an off-season, a drab time of year—but if she did, it would be that time between winter and spring when snow has half melted leaving dirty tracks on the earth. It would be that time just before the wind starts to gentle and warm and before grass greens to a bright emerald on hills, sparked with redbud and brightened with dogwood and coin-gold patches of dandelions. That would be the time a Kentucky housewife would labor over recipe columns in newspapers and all the cookbooks on her kitchen shelf to try to find something different to "perk up" the day.

Mrs. Irene Hayes, of Hueysville, Ky.—that part of Appalachia where hills begin to grow taller seemingly to meet the sun—has compiled and edited a Kentucky cookbook that is in its eighth printing. The book has a little bit of everything in it—everything edible, that is—and would go far to dispel any gloom that has settled over the countryside due to what they call in the hills as lowering weather.

If serving "Mother's Grittled Corn Bread" some evening does not peartin' up the household, then the "Poor Man's Supper Dish" will.

On page 14 of Mrs. Hayes' book she not only explains how to prepare gritted cornbread but also how to make the gritter. She adds, for the sake of today's cooks, that an "easier way is to grind the corn in a sausage mill" and "it can be stored in plastic bags in the freezer."

Mrs. Yesterday never had it so good: plastic bags; freezers!

In earlier days in the Kentucky hills, gritted bread was a common dish but was considered a delicacy because it had to be made during a particular season: When corn growing in gardens and fields had reached a certain hardness, but not too hard.

In Morgan county, Ky.—established as a part of the Commonwealth in 1822 from the mother county, Floyd—there is a community named Gritterville. John Morgan Perry was hunting in the north section of the county, the story goes, and while climbing a high hill began to hear a peculiar roar. Curious as to what was making the unfamiliar sound, he climbed to the top and looked out over the valley spread below. Every housewife in the settlement was at her front door gritting corn for the next meal, and the scraping of the corn on the tin grater had made the noise. He thereafter called the place Gritterville, a name which stuck.

The recipe for gritted bread in the book called "What's Cooking In Kentucky" was contributed by Verna Patton Jackson, of Estill, Kentucky. She said to combine 1 cup buttermilk, 3 cups gritted corn, ½ cup regular cornmeal, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda and ½ cup flour. Add boiling water to make a thin batter and pour in a skillet that has been generously greased. Bake in 300-325 degree oven till brown.

In the foothills of the Appalachians, cooks for many decades have served economy foods that have become known as "Poor Man's Dishes." One of these is Poor Man's Gravy made with water and flour instead of milk and flour. Another is Poor Man's Supper Dish.

Stella Spurlock, Prestonsburg, Ky., submitted "Fried Cornbread in Gravy" for a poor man's supper dish in Mrs. Hayes' cookbook. Her recipe is on page 52, and uses leftover cornbread.

The bread is sliced and placed face down in a skillet (black, iron skillet) to which three tablespoons of bacon fat has been added. The cornbread is browned on all sides, then removed to a platter (in many hill homes the platter was white, thick ironstone made by one of the English potters). Add to fat left in skillet more bacon drippings and the same amount of flour. Brown flour lightly and add sweet milk, stirring until slightly thickened. Pour over cornbread in platter, or if not hot enough by supertime it can be put together in the skillet and reheated.

This dish, together with applesauce spooned from a green glass jar onto a cut glass sauce dish, and glasses of milk poured from an ironstone milk pitcher or hot coffee from a graniteware pot, would complete a meal worthy of any table.

Mrs. Hayes' cookbook includes a quickie main dish from Dry Ridge, Ky., Bronxville, sausage casserole from Louisville, casserole from New Castle, Ky., cornbread sandwiches from Frankfort, orange sauce from Ft. Mitchell, German roast beef from Martin, Brunswick stew from Richmond, Sukiyaka from Bellevue, asparagus casserole from Ft. Thomas, and Dolly Messer's grits casserole from Garrett . . . and many more. There are 700 recipes collected from all over Kentucky.

Mrs. Sinnie Watts from Ulvah tells how to fry green tomatoes, a lady from Quincy how to make sweet potato fritters. There are berry dumpling recipes and quick cobbiers, risen biscuits, Hungarian bread, popovers, Koeksisters and Mrs. Purdom Outland's slaw.

There are two recipes for Kentucky float—that dish of the country kitchen that too often was saved for great occasions.

Mouth-watering goodies, all of them. Reading the book makes one hungry—and preparing the recipes is a process as creative to a cook as writing a story is to a writer or painting a picture is to an artist.

Mrs. Hayes' book sells for $3.95 and interested persons can write her at Hueysville, Ky. 41640. This might be the book to make any cook "the apple of his eye" and the cookie of his heart. It is sure to put a warm sun in the sky, blue around all the clouds, a tinge of green in the grass . . . and pure joy in the kitchen.

Wins Air Force Commendation

Staff Sgt. Richard L. Tufts, of Wheelwright, has been awarded the Air Force Commendation Medal for meritorious service as an academic instructor at the Titan II Operational Readiness Training Branch, 4315 Combat Crew Training Squadron, Vandenberg Air Force Base, California. The citation, in recognition of service from June 17, 1963 to Aug. 14, 1970, points out that Sgt. Tufts' "outstanding instructional and leadership abilities were instrumental in the training of assigned students." The sergeant is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tufts, of Wheelwright.

Tougher Regulations Asked For Strip Mining in State

FRANKFORT, KY.—New proposals to regulate surface-mine drainage, blasting and coal prospecting were announced by Elmore Grim, director of the Reclamation Division of the state Department of Natural Resources.

Grim said if the proposals were approved, Kentucky would have the most comprehensive surface-mining regulations in the nation.

A new water pollution law would give the division authority, for the first time, to control acid and silt pollution from mine sites from their source to where they enter watersheds. Jurisdiction for the streams would continue to be held by the state Water Pollution Control Commission.

Also being formulated, Grim said, is a new state law to control blasting procedures at surface mines. Operators would be required to set charges during daylight hours, notify nearby communities of their activities, and they would be prevented from blasting near streams and highways.

A third proposal being drafted by the division would prevent "gouge and go" operations by coal prospectors, Grim said. Persons holding mineral rights for surface coal would have to get a permit to explore for new seams and agree to reclaim any lands they disturb after their search.

Fishermen in Kentucky are a hardy lot. Time was when with the coming of the first snow, the fishing paraphernalia was put away, there to remain until the first balmy days of the next spring. Not so, now.

With the advent of insulated clothing, boat heaters and the jiggling method came year-round fishing. First to come was the jiggling procedure which was inaugurated on Herrington Lake in the thirties. This fishing method became more popular with the invention of warmer clothing and the impounding of additional jiggling waters in the many new lakes.

So, now, it's not at all out of place to get a call from a fisherman to join in a fishing trip even when snow is on the ground and there is a skim of ice on the sheltered areas of the lakes. It will be jig fishing, to be sure.

During the past month jig fishermen have been having excellent luck in a number of lakes. Where there is murky to muddy water and the lake is fairly stable and quiet good black bass catches are being made.

But back to the jig fishing method. It was brought about many years ago in Herrington Lake when fishermen were reluctant to give up fishing even when the waters of the lake became muddy and cold. Reports say the native fishermen observed big bass lolling in the shallow waters, near the edge of the lake, even when the water was murky or muddy.

They reasoned the fish were obtaining some sort of food from this area. They were right. Worms, nightcrawlers mostly, were being gobbled up as they were washed into the edge of the water.

What to do then? Nothing but offer the fish what they were feeding on.

This was done by casting the night-crawler, fashioned below a bobber, into the waters. It was not successful because the splash of the cast spooked the fish.

It was reasonable then to arrange this same bait onto a pole and line where it could be eased into the shallow waters from the bank. This was it. The big bass blasted the offering, and jig fishing was born.

Many refinements have been added down through the years. The rigs have been improved and it was found that fewer fish were spooked if a boat was sculled noiselessly along the bank and the bait lowered and jiggled up and down in the inviting areas. Also, the boat provided more fishable shoreline than could be had by walking the banks.

Back in the early days it was night-crawlers almost exclusively for the jig fisherman. Later he found that large minnows jiggled about four feet deep even in dingy or clear water would produce good results.

Then came the artificial nightcrawler and now some fishermen rely on the artificials exclusively while some believe in using a mixture of the live and the artificial nightcrawlers.

There's one group of jig fishermen who have devised a potent lure. They use a dollfly with a pork rind attached. Others use spring lizards, both live and artificial, and some use a bait fashioned from a large hook and a gob of guinea feathers. Any of the methods will produce fish and big ones.

And, for your information, now is the ideal time for jig fishing. It can pay off handsomely, either in daylight hours or at night.

To Wed Sgt. Fargo

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Taylor, of Blytheville, Ark., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Beverly Ann, to Sgt. Joseph Robert Fargo, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robert Fargo, Sr., of Wheelwright, Ky.

The bride-elect is a 1964 graduate of Eau Gallie, Florida high school and is presently employed as secretary with the United Insurance Agency, Inc. of Blytheville.

Sgt. Fargo, who recently returned from Vietnam, is with the U. S. Air Force, Blytheville A. F. B., Arkansas. He is a graduate of Morris-Harvey College, Charleston, W. Va., and holds a bachelor of arts degree.

The wedding date has been set for May 22 at the First Presbyterian Church, Blytheville.

Universal Truths in Old Sayings

WEST LIBERTY, KY.—A yellow or purple crocus bloom is proof of one of the most familiar sayings—the one about the end of winter. Spring is “sometimes meek as a lamb trailing after Bo-Peep, other times like a winter hound barking at the eaves, then racing down a snowy lane playing games with March.”

Even if it's cold and snowflakes try to make a white blanket for the violet bed, it's time for re-evaluating universal truths and remembering that wise people in years past had a way of saying in few words what would take books to explain.

“Experience is a wise teacher.” The only difficulty here is that by the time a person has experienced it all and profited by it he is not only wiser but considerably older.

Who has not learned that at a bargain one should pause. . . a guilty conscience has no need of an accuser. . . a clear conscience no need of sleeping pills.

How many ask their purse what it will pay, quarrel with their tools when their work is bad, or cry the most when least hurt.

The old sayings offer great latitude. If a wanderer and drifter is reminded that a rolling stone gathers no moss, he can reply that a sitting duck is soonest shot—or a setting hen gets nowhere fast.

How many know that an enemy to beauty is a foe to nature; beauty produces love and cleanliness preserves it; by others' faults his own are corrected; he who promises is quick in debt; it is a poor art that sustains not the artisan; and that pen and ink are the wit's plow.

Who is aware that a mob has many heads but few brains; the second blow makes a fight; gold enters all gates but heaven's; time's file makes the least noise; a long life is but a small package of moments; it takes many drips to make an icicle.

Who is it thinks his own geese are swans. Truths like the rose can have thorns but truth also can have soft words and hard facts, truth is a buckler not a sword, truth drowns in a cup of wine.

Winter is the discoverer of what summer shields.

A goose's quill is more dangerous than a tiger's claw; the tongue bites, the pen scratches, the pencil blackens, the parchment rattles, but best of all is the pen of the tongue dipped in ink of the heart.

Of course, everyone can try again if he does not at first succeed, but try as he might he cannot build a house so big as to have closets of such number to hold the many shoes that fit two feet.

How many listen to betray and speak to deceive; let opportunity assist the thief; open a door to tempt a saint; wear clean gloves to hide dirty hands; or open the door for God and pay the doctor.

Most axioms and sayings are often repeated, quoted and misquoted. They have been dear to the hearts of Americans ever since the Chinese calligraphed them. Ben Franklin created a few of his own and others paraphrased them to suit many occasions.

The Chinese said that when snowflakes fell it meant a prosperous year. The English also believed that in a year of snow fruit would grow. Others learned through the years that a snow year was a rich year and that “under water famine but under snow bread.”

The greatest Teacher of all knew that His children could learn more from a simple parable than from a wordy dissertation.

A good axiom, maxim, or saying is never out of season.

If the shoe fits, put it on.

Ben Franklin, the printer, was considered a master of sayings, many aimed toward those who made a habit of wasting time. He knew that a slothful person was one who did in the afternoon that which should have been done in the morning. It was also he who said, “Up sluggard, and waste not life—in the grave will be sleeping enough.”

A modern-day printer, Charles A. Goble, of West Liberty, (formerly of Prestonsburg) is a Franklin scholar. One of his favorite sayings is, “Success has a thousand followers; failure has none.”

The late James Davis, an oldtime school superintendent, used to say that he saw his friend only once a year but his enemy on every corner.

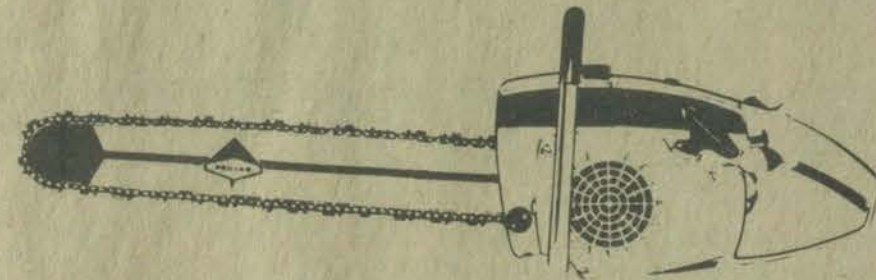

The one trying on the shoes might dally in front of a mirror admiring the fit and the feet, unaware that as he preens many friends have come to his door and not being met have turned away.

He might want to borrow some shoes from his neighbor and walk in his neighbor's shoes awhile. It might disprove the saying that borrowed clothes never fit well; it might also make the borrower aware of simple truth and understanding of his neighbor's shortcomings, and having gained this insight return the shoes with love and compassion.

He might even compare his neighbor's stature with that of a fruit tree that is dwarfed and bent, and know that the fruit is just as sweet.

Mounting Crime Figures Due To Increased Reporting, Claim

Today's pressing social problems may be no more pressing now than they were even in “the good old days.” It may just seem that way because they're getting more attention, according to George Perkins, state commissioner of Child Welfare.

In a recent address to the Louisville Kiwanis Club, he urged his audience not to lose faith in man's ability to overcome his social ills.

“I think our society is not going to hell in a hand basket,” Perkins insisted.

Using mounting crime statistics as an example, he asked how much such figures represent an increase in crime, and how much they represent an increase in statistical reporting.

“Let's don't panic,” the commissioner said.

He noted that deaths or injuries in juvenile gang wars were much more prevalent in U. S. cities during the 1800's than they are today. However, such youth problems receive greater attention in the 1970's because of mass communications.

“Some problems are greater (today) but so are the tools for treating them,” Perkins said.

PARK—The state is considering the purchase of Walnut Hall Stud, a standardbred horse farm near Lexington, for the site of a new Thoroughbred State Park.

Consumers shop more carefully today. Here's why they buy Fords.

Ford LTD, quiet and strong, is the luxury car without the luxury car price.

Ford LTD is the car that can match the luxury of cars costing hundreds of dollars more. And LTD's quiet ride is the standard that those same more expensive cars have to match themselves. That quiet strength is one reason for consumers choosing LTD over all other luxury cars in its class.

Torino is sized and priced right in the middle. Room for six, small car handling.

Consumers know the mid-size Torino gives them the roominess of a big car plus the easy handling of a small car. For a price that's right in the middle. As a result, Torino has become the most popular 4-door in its class. Your Ford Dealer has thirteen other models to choose from.

Maverick, the simple compact car, offers 2 doors or 4; 6 or V-8 power.

Take Maverick. Consumers know that the simple machine is simple to own and simple to run. And they learned recently that a leading independent survey found Maverick has the best frequency of repair record of any American car. That might explain why it's America's best-selling compact.

Paint Creek Area Rich in Early Lore

By HELEN PRICE STACY

WEST LIBERTY, KY.—When the Paint Creek Reservoir in Johnson county becomes a reality and that county has a park to add to the resort network of the Kentucky Department of Parks, the region will have much to offer to out-of-state tourists as well as Kentuckians.

It has much to offer now, but continued research by historians, including the Young Historians Club of the county, will reveal more of a region where each hill and stream, each rock cliff and cave and each oddtimer have a story to tell.

One of the most idyllic periods of the section embracing Paint Creek and the Big Sandy is the time of the Indian when the red man and his white brothers were at peace. The idyllic life along Paint Creek and the Big Sandy was interrupted when southern Cherokees and Creeks waged war with the Shawnees, Illinois, Delawares and Wyandots, but for many moons the life of the Indians who hunted and camped in the region was peaceful.

Came the days when ice on the creeks grew thin and white fields of snow walked northward to make room for the Moon of Buds (April). Forests took on a yellow-green hue and lower growing foliage turned white with blossoms. Red bushes became bright torches as the noon sun passed over, and young braves and warriors left the fires of their fathers to walk woodland paths to meet an Indian maid.

On Paint Creek they carried their colors and with them created pictures on bark of trees, on the tree trunks, rock walls and inside caves.

The pictures and the tints that ran from the colors into the creek named the stream that flows through Johnson and a short distance into Morgan county.

In Johnson and Morgan counties pioneers returned home from hunts in the woods with tales of strange pictures painted on trees and of tomahawks embedded in forks of trees. Occasionally, a young pioneer returned home with an Indian bride.

For the red man, life was guided by nature and the Great Spirit. When the Moon of Buds ended, the breezes blew warm and the Moon of Flowers (May) came upon the land. The bear and buffalo were hunted but not so much as deer and turkey brought from the dark forests and fish from the sparkling waters of Paint Creek and the steam of many names—the Big Sandy.

While the time of peace was upon the land, tribes traveled all the way from the Oniagara (Niagara River) and the Nae-mesi-Sip-u (Mississippi River) to hunt in the fields and mountains of Kentucky. Just as the different tribes had different names for the same stream, each tribe had a name for the land that would be Kentucky.

To the Shawnees, Kentucky was Kankuck-ee (Head of the River) as the Big Sandy was Mich-e-cho-be-ka-sepe (Big Medicine River or River of Great Mystery) and sometimes called Methotosepe (River of Many Buffaloes).

Some tribes of the Iroquois called Kentucky "Kentake," meaning the place of Meadows. One of their names for the Big Sandy was Seestayandawa, or Fire River, because natural gas escaped through cracks in the earth and burned with an eternal flame. To the Miamis the river was Wepepoconecepwe.

By the time of the Moon of Young Corn, (June) many braves and maidens were walking through the forests to begin their own home. In Morgan county, where one family claims an Indian great-grandmother in its ancestry, it is said the young Indian bride was temperamental in adjusting to ways of her white in-laws. In fits of anger she would flee the house, run to the forest and stay alone for as long as two weeks living on wild berries and roots.

As the river was called River of Mystery by the Shawnees, the disappearance of some tribes from the area has been unexplained. Mounds in Johnson county built by tribes so long ago that they were mysteries even to the Cherokees, have been excavated and valuable artifacts recovered.

Johnson county was admitted to the commonwealth in 1843, formed from parts of Floyd, Morgan and Lawrence counties. The county was named for Richard Mentor Johnson, vice president of the U. S.

When Johnson was a baby, his cradle was set afire by an arrow during an Indian attack on Bryan's Station near Lexington. His sister smothered the blaze and saved the life of her young brother. Johnson gained fame as an Indian fighter and was said to have killed the great Chief Tecumseh in the Battle of the Thames in 1813.

The Paint Creek Indians and those on the Big Sandy and its Tug and Levisa (Louisa) Forks had a great culture. Their signs and paintings should be researched and copied, and their stories and legends collected. Together with the pioneers and early settlements, the findings will provide a valuable historical backdrop to a future state park.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—Who says the government is losing touch with the people?

The City Council told Mrs. Glen D. Oliver it couldn't pay her $37 for a new tire because there was no evidence negligence was involved when the tire was slashed by a piece of metal embedded in a city street.

But some council members dug into their own pockets and gave Mrs. Oliver $25.

Can you find the Volkswagen hidden in this picture?

If you can, you'll make us very sad. Because we've troubled ourselves no end to hide it from you.

Our quest for the invisible Volkswagen took us all the way to Turin, Italy.

Where we asked the famous Ghia Studios to design us a sporty Italian body.

They did.

Then we secretly prowled about Europe for the best coach builder we could find.

Success. To the Karmann Coachworks of Osnabrück we handed over Ghia's sketches with the injunction:

"Make it beautiful." (Or else.)

They did.

They welded. And burnished. And sculpted. And sanded. And painted.

Until they had shaped in steel what Ghia had shaped in pencil.

Smug in the knowledge that nobody could ever mistake this beautiful car for a Volkswagen, we concealed our air-cooled engine in back. (For better traction.)

And made it go about 26 miles on just one gallon.

Then we gave this Volkswagen its final disguise:

We named it the Karmann Ghia.

Going to Europe? Take delivery there. Ask about it now.

Pick up a good second car from Volkswagen.

Somebody traded in a Rolls-Royce for a Volkswagen? Yes, somebody traded in a Rolls-Royce for a Volkswagen. It happened in Texas, of course. But even in average states some pretty fancy cars show up on a VW dealer's used car lot. And some not so fancy cars. And some quite practical cars. Like Volkswagens. But no car, Rolls or VW, gets that guarantee on the windshield automatically. First it goes through a rigorous 16-point inspection. If anything needs fixing, it gets fixed. Only then does the dealer guarantee the free repair or replacement of every major working part* for thirty days or a thousand miles. Whichever comes first. So when a Volkswagen dealer says that a used car is as good on the inside as it looks on the outside, you don't have to trust him. He'll put it all down in writing for you.

National Magazine Rates Tallent Among Top 30 High School Players

Maytown high's brilliant guard, Pat Tallent, is featured in the February '71 issue of LETTERMAN Magazine as one of the top 30 high school basketball players in the nation.

An article, entitled "This Country's Full of Classical Cagers," analyzes the top players and calls attention to more than 100 others worthy of recognition. Tallent is acclaimed for his 31-point-per-game average and as a star who can "burn the nets from all over the court."

The top 30 were chosen by a survey panel of sportswriters in collaboration with coaches and other experts close to the high school basketball scene nationwide.
