

Martin Group Files Federal Court Action

Judge Fanning, Superintendent Are Defendants

Suit filed Monday in U. S. district court at Pikeville by patrons of the Martin school district seeks to annul the existing temporary injunction forbidding plaintiffs to interfere by picketing or otherwise with the operation of the Martin school and to recover from Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark a total of $75,000 damages.

Judge William E. Fanning, of the Boyd circuit court, who was designated as special judge to hear the injunction case against Martin residents, was named a co-defendant with the superintendent.

Judge Fanning presided at the hearing on the temporary injunction held here March 14, last year. He has not yet rendered a decision. Martin residents sought last August a mandamus order from the Court of Appeals to hasten a ruling. This was denied.

They contend that the original temporary injunction is too broad in its effect, that it "inhibits and deters the exercise of the rights of freedom of expression, assembly and petition" guaranteed by the U. S. Constitution. The federal court suit asks that Judge Fanning be enjoined from enforcing the temporary injunction and that the restraining order be declared unconstitutional and in violation of the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

An injunction also is asked to restrain Clark or his agents from taking further steps to enforce the restraining order and from taking further action in connection with plaintiffs' peaceful protests.

Compensatory damages of $25,000 are sought of Clark for "inhibition, mental anguish and harassment that he has caused the plaintiffs...to suffer," and $50,000 punitive damages are asked for his actions which are described in the federal action as designed to deny plaintiffs' rights guaranteed under the Constitution.

Superintendent Clark said Tuesday morning that he had not seen the brief filed in district court. He added that he thinks Judge Fanning should have decided the

New Roof Ordered For Court Building Now in 6th Year

Floyd county's new courthouse, which has been in service less than six years, is in need of a new roof.

The Floyd fiscal court at its recent meeting voted to advertise for contractors' bids on the job, which will consist of 11,406 square feet of roof.

The court is requiring a guarantee of eight years on work and materials.

At the same meeting the court reached an agreement with the Department of Highways on its rural highway program, and it called on the department to build a bridge across Left Beaver Creek at Orkney leading to the Spewing Camp section. The bridge there was dynamited recently. The court order stated that the bridge will effect service to 18 homes, a U. S. postoffice and a school bus run.

Rides With Tide

Floyd county streams rose high during last week's heavy rainfall, but nowhere in the county was the water as deep as at Dewey Lake where the Johns Creek valley rainfall was held by Dewey dam from adding to troubles along the Big Sandy, further downstream.

Communities on the Beaver Creeks had their uneasy moments last Friday, but no major flooding was reported. The McDowell, Martin, Maytown and Garrett schools were closed

First Woman Prexy Of Ky. Postmasters

Mrs. Aileen Hall, postmaster at Betsy Layne, last week became the first woman ever to be elected president of the Kentucky Chapter of the National Association of Postmasters.

Mrs. Hall was elected without opposition at the chapter's annual convention held at Lake Barkley State Park. She succeeds H. E. Hudson, of Hopkinsville, as president of the 1260-member organization.

The Floyd county woman has for the last four years served the state chapter as secretary-treasurer and has been a vital influence in the state organization. She has been postmaster at Betsy Layne 22 years.

The new chapter president is the wife of Walter Hall, owner of Hall's Marine and Mobile Homes Sales here.

Titzler Reports Office Looting; He, Starke Fired

A report received here Tuesday morning says that the Wheelwright office of Dr. Titzler was entered and one or more desks overturned, either during the preceding night or Tuesday morning. Dr. Titzler was reported as having moved to the Osborne Outpost of the Comprehensive Health Program. He was quoted as saying he made the move because he feared physical harm. Wheelwright police were investigating the break into the office.

Following the announcement last Thursday night by Dr. Leon Cooper, head of the Office of Health Affairs' comprehensive health programs, that the program in this county would be ended and that funds exclusive of those needed to pay old debts were frozen, the executive committee of the Floyd program took action on its own.

Groundbreaking For New School Slated, May 22

County Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark announced Monday that groundbreaking for the consolidated high school at Eastern will be held Saturday, May 22, at 10 a.m.

The ceremonies will officially mark the beginning of the consolidated high school which is designed to serve the Right Beaver Creek section of the county. Actually, foundation work is already complete and walls of the structure are going up.

The county board of education at its May meeting voted to pay contractors' estimates on this school and the two-room addition to the Prater Creek school upon preparation of estimates by the architect.

The board at its next meeting, June 5, will employ teachers for the 1971-'72 school year. There apparently will be no openings for new teachers, it was said. In fact, the board at its last meeting directed that teachers employed as temporary replacements for regular teachers on leave of absence be notified that they may not be re-employed. The order applies in those instances in which teachers on leave will be returning for classroom work.

Safety Rulings Result in New Floyd Industry

Stiffer mine safety regulations have given birth to a new industry in the county, the Appalachian Mine Supply Company, of West Prestonsburg, which is producing mine ventilation systems and filters for dust control.

The company's plant, located at Pyramid, is devoted, primarily, to the production of new line curtains, or check curtains, to direct air flow and spread. This is similar to the old brattice cloth formerly in use in area mines but is of a material approved by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. The firm has its own unique system of hanging these materials, cutting down on the time usually required.

Appalachian Mine Supply expects to employ between 50 and 100 persons within a few months. "We already are experiencing growing pains and may require a larger building later," DeGarmo DeRossett, director of sales promotion, said this week. His partners are Leonard Stephenson, who is in charge of production, and Elmer Payne, design engineer.

Another product of the company is a filter for dust control. This product attaches to a roof drilling machine and collects the dust created by drilling.

The Coal Bit Company, of Prestonsburg, is the new firm's sales agent. Mr. DeRossett is manager of Coal Bit, which for years has produced a cutter bit for mine use and which serves the coal industry in Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee.

Death of Health Program Held Certain after Meet

Miss Sherry Skeans at her coronation here last Saturday as Floyd Band Day queen.

Band Day Attracts Big Crowd

Even the threat of more rain did not reduce the crowd gathered here last Saturday for the annual Floyd County Band Day festivities.

In the colorful parade which preceded the naming of Band Day queen, five high school bands from Betsy Layne, Maytown, McDowell, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright were joined by Scouting groups, and the Prestonsburg fire and police departments. Miss Sherry Skeans, of McDowell high school and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Skeans, of Hunter, was crowned Band Day queen in exercises held at the Floyd County Board of Education building. First runnerup in the queen competition was Miss Carol Jo Clark, of Prestonsburg high school, and Miss Debbie Hall, representing Wheelwright high, was second runnerup.

Performances of the five bands were not judged.

This Town... That World

A reporter from one of the dailies has just cleared the door, shaking his head and walking a bit uncertainly. He came here to get opinions about the vote in the Democratic race for governor and made the mistake of trying to talk to Lenna Moore and me at the same time. If he runs into many situations such as this, I wouldn't suggest to my friends that they lay any bets on conclusions reached by the Cincinnati Times-Star.

HE SURPRISED THEM

When Betsy Layne's Aileen Hall last week became the first woman ever elected president of Kentucky Postmasters, the retiring president, H. E. Hudson, predicted that the folks back home wouldn't be half as excited about her election as they would be about news that her husband, Walter, and daughter, Rhonda, had really caught fish at Lake Barkley. I would say Mr. Hudson's prediction would have been more accurate if he had said "surprised" instead of "excited."

SURPRISING MANEUVER

Pawing around in the papers which have the top of this desk buried four inches down, I find a note from Emery Clark, of Ormond Beach, Fla., who asks if I had heard the one about the old soak who toddled out of a bar and met two nuns coming down the street. As he rubber-legged his way in their

Collins Booked On Two Charges

Ernest E. Collins was booked at the county jail Friday night on charges of possessing intoxicants and selling in dry territory after his arrest at a Prestonsburg service station by Prestonsburg Policemen Thomas Blackburn, "Hack" Thornsberry and Lonnie Herald and Deputy Sheriff Darrell Conley.

The officers reported that they confiscated four cases of beer, a case of wine and a "fifth" of whiskey at the Phillips 66 Service Station in North Prestonsburg. They said they saw Collins making a sale in a side street here and then swore out warrants for his arrest.

Traffic offenses were alleged in most of the other arrests made. Those booked at the county jail, charges lodged against them and names of arresting officers follow:

Eddie Greathouse, drunk and resisting arrest, by Deputy Sheriffs Johnson and Isaacs; Robert Bailey Goodman, drunk driving, by State Trooper E. B. Allen; Arthur Morrison, reckless driving, by State Troopers Rose and Williamson; Jonah Isaac, drunk and resisting arrest, by Deputy Sheriff Dester Hamilton; Jack George, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriff Johnson; Darrell Campbell, reckless driving, by Deputy Sheriffs Claude Flanery and Virgil Conn; Gregory Hazelett, reckless driving, by Deputy Sheriff Conn;

The list was submitted to L. B. Moore, of Prestonsburg, Republican member of the election commission. The candidates designated one officer for each precinct.

Wilhoit, R. K. (Kenny) Grantz, Ed W. Hancock, Henry Beach, Pearl Strong, Earl Ray McIntosh, Wendell H. Ford.

The election officers will be named Saturday.

Appeal for War Memorial Aid Renewed by Park Commission

The invitation to Floyd countians, present and past, to have a part in the building of a permanent memorial to the county's war dead at Archer Park here was repeated this week after an admittedly discouraging response had been given earlier pleas for help on the project.

The proposed memorial is designed to be one of the most beautiful in the nation, Edward Music, Archer Park chairman, said. The names of the county's war dead will be engraved on a bronze plaque. The memorial area will include a fountain, a seating area, flower-bordered walks, and the entire memorial area will be encircled by the flags of all states.

The plaque itself will entail a cost of about $15 per name. The entire memorial will cost an estimated $25,000.

Ultimatum By Cooper Rejected

All Funds Frozen Except for Debts; Discussion Heated

The Floyd County Health Services Program may be dying this week.

Its directors and the directors of Big Sandy Community Action Program, the parent agency of the pilot health program, last Thursday night turned down the treatment prescribed by Dr. Leon Cooper, and so its death is expected within a short time.

The "treatment" came by way of an ultimatum from Dr. Cooper, head of Comprehensive Health Programs for OEO's Office of Health Affairs. Take it and survive; refuse it, and the program dies. He made it that plain.

Both boards deliberated. They declined to take the requested action.

Documents were due to be submitted to officials in Washington Monday as a step toward suspension of the program. Of the $650,000 recently appropriated for operation of the program, only the part necessary to pay past debts will be used. The remaining $352,000 was frozen, effective immediately.

The meeting at which these apparently final decisions were made as to the fate of the program was attended by a gathering which filled the circuit courtroom here. Tempers flared frequently in the discussion which followed Cooper's initial statement to the effect that the only possible way for the program to be continued would be to place it "in the hands of people from outside Floyd county."

Although Dr. Cooper announced that he was not here to debate "who did this or who did that," he was subjected to lengthy questioning. At one juncture he said, "I accept any blame placed on the Office of Health Affairs."

He explained that if the health program board and the Big Sandy CAP board would relinquish direction of the program, an interim board from outside the county would function until a new board was appointed.

The interim board, he said, would be in charge for a period of three months and would be composed of representatives of the State Department of Health, the

An Endorsement of Bert Combs

Twelve years ago, when Bert Combs began the campaign which was to take him to the Governorship, this newspaper endorsed his candidacy.

It did so because of its firm belief that this product of our Mountain region of Kentucky had all the qualities of mind and heart to make Kentucky a great Governor. We were convinced, to, that in him, one of our own, lay the hope of Eastern Kentucky to shake free of the economic doldrums and truly become a part of Kentucky through improved highways and facilities which would attract others to this area.

We have never regretted our espousal of Governor Combs' candidacy. And here are a few of our reasons for making that statement:

He launched, as he had promised, a bold road-building program which included, of all places, Eastern Kentucky. There were those who scoffed at it, but these were silenced as his program brought closer together the isolated Mountains and the Blue Grass. The Mountain Parkway attests to the success of this work.

He initiated the Community College System in Kentucky—a program which brought higher education within the reach, financially as well as in the matter of distance, of the people. The Prestonsburg Community College is one unit in this system. The program today serves as a model for other states as they seek to make college education possible for more people.

Governor Combs breathed new life into a dead or dormant Department of Parks. Jenny Wiley State Park is one of the results of his work. The impetus which he gave park-building has been continued by his successors, and the Kentucky parks system is now known as the nation's finest.

He took action, and did not resort to mere words, to abolish the ancient and often disgracefully faulty voting system which relied on the paper ballot and the often-stuffed ballot box. He not only replaced this system with the voting machine but also devised a means to help the counties make the costly conversion.

When Bert Combs became Governor, and long before, Northern Kentucky was in the grip of organized crime. Gambling and prostitution were big business there, and everybody knew it. Good citizens complained, asked for help. But the law, in Frankfort as well as in Northern Kentucky, conveniently looked in the other direction—till Combs became Governor. Then there was action. A Northern Kentucky sheriff was thrown out of office, so was the mayor of one of that section's larger cities.

This is not to say that Governor Combs' administration was without fault. Mistakes were made. But the record is replete with action and achievement in the name of progress and decency.

So it is that again we endorse this man Combs who has been Eastern Kentucky's great friend and a great Governor for all Kentucky. The Times does this without rancor toward his opponent—its ownership as individuals supported him, four years ago for the office he now holds. But we are not willing to trade away the "known quantity," Bert Combs—known by performance, not promises—for a candidate who has no real record of performance.

Letters to the Editor

SAYS RIGHTS VIOLATED

The rights of the American people are being violated every day. The following incident may seem a small thing, but it is one more step in taking away all of our rights.

I was in my home yesterday, when I heard a loud sound and my electricity went off. I was scared, to say the least! When I went to investigate, I found four Kentucky Power men on my property. They were changing a guide line that leads to my house. When I remarked to them that they had scared me, and that it takes about two minutes to knock on a door, one of them said (very smart) that they wouldn't do it any more if that would help me. The point I am trying to make is this. How did they know that there wasn't someone inside using an Iron Lung and that five minutes would mean their lives. I think courtesy and respect is fast leaving the American people.

As of January 1969, I acquired all stock of Howard Wholesale Company, which was twenty-five percent that I did not own prior to that date. I am the sole owner of all the corporation assets. I owned all the stock at the time I sold the merchandise only to The Hawkins family. Howard Wholesale Company, Inc. is at this time an inactive corporation, but the assets of the corporation are still intact.

Remarkable Plants of Bible Times

The Resurrection Plant has been called "the plant that refuses to die." The early Christians regarded it as a symbol of immortality and gave it the name of "The Holy Resurrection Flower." It is common on the plains of Jericho and is also known as the Jericho Rose. Its dried-up ball of stems may often be seen rolling about or lying on the burning sands in the vicinity of the Dead Sea.

In the Old Testament this plant was called "the rolling thing" by the prophet Isaiah. In the 17th Chapter, 13th verse of his book of prophecy, he writes: "The nations shall rush like many waters and shall be chased as the chaff before the wind, and like a 'rolling thing' before the whirlwind."

The "rolling thing" he referred to is this plant, which rolls up and forms a withered ball of branches and stems, and then becomes the plaything of the wind. The winds may carry it across deserts and plains for miles. Perhaps after weeks of being tossed and rolled about, the ball of dried vegetation comes to rest in some sheltered nook. There it is seen to lie, looking as dead as the proverbial door-nail. One would say there couldn't possibly be any life in such a lifeless ball of dead matter. But wait until the rains come and moisten up the dead ball. Then its dried-up stems begin to come alive. They unroll and soon put out small flowers and fresh green leaves. Soon new seed pods are formed, and the miracle has taken place. Out of this seemingly dead ball comes new life and beauty. Pilgrims to the Holy Land often seek the balls of this plant to keep as a holy relic. The mass of dead-looking leaves may lie dormant for years, but when it is moistened it comes to life and is resurrected to live again in the glory of beautiful flowers and green leaves.

The Resurrection Plant originally came from Arabia and is now found in Egypt, as well as in many parts of the Holy Land. It belongs to the Mustard Family.

THE LOCUST TREES

When I was a child, I was always much perplexed on reading how John, the Baptist, had for "his meat locusts and wild honey." No one explained to me what the "locusts" were, so I was badly confused and often shuddered when I imagined John chewing up and swallowing such weird-looking insects as 17-year locusts: This was the impression I got then, and it goes to show how wrong impressions can damage one's faith in the great men of the Bible.

What John really subsisted on were the "locust pods" of the carob tree, which are a truly delicious food, eaten by both man and beast. These pods are long and flat, and the seeds are bedded down in a mass of sweet, very delicious jelly-like mucilage. The edible pods are called "St. John's Bread," or "carob beans," the trees on which they grow are somewhat like our American locusts; they have compound leaves with several pairs of opposite, ovate leaflets. The carob tree is native to the Mediterranean region; it has been widely transplanted in many countries; the Greeks carried it into their country; the Spaniards established it in Mexico and South America.

The carob tree produces 800 pounds of bean pods!

THE JUDAS TREE

The Judas tree, which is named after Judas Iscariot, is a cousin to our American redbuds. Tradition says this is the tree Judas climbed when he went to hang himself. He must have made a desperate, headlong leap from the tree or else the rope around his neck was snapped in two. Peter says in Acts 1:18 "Now this man (Judas Iscariot) falling headlong, burst asunder in the midst and all his bowels gushed out."

There is a legend connected with the suicide of Judas. It is said that the redbud tree was so stricken with shame for Judas that its pink flowers blushed to a deep, rosy-red, which is the color of the redbud blossoms.

The Judas Tree is native to the Mediterranean region. In our country, it has a wide range and is considered one of the most beautiful flowering trees. The flowers appear well ahead of the leaves and often seem to burst right out of the dark bark of the trunk. They turn the hills of Appalachia into a fairyland of gorgeous rose-red color in April. The flowers produce clusters of bean pods, which hang on the tree until winter.

It is said that the Indians ate the bean pods in times when food was scarce. The redbud, or Judas Tree, belongs to the Legume Family. The leaves are rounded, heart-shaped, clear-green and beautiful; they have smooth margins, not toothed. The wood is quite hard and beautifully streaked and takes on a fine polish. The Redbud, which is known to botanists as Cercis, is a hardy tree, easily transplanted, and is highly resistant to blights and insects.

Right or Wrong

By HENRY A. BUCHANAN

What do you do with a million dollars? If you are not the head of a government agency, that is. Or better still, what would a million dollars do to you?

The George Ashton family, of West Hempstead, New York, will soon find out. They have just won a million dollars on a lottery ticket given to them by a sister-in-law.

George Ashton is a buyer for J. C. Penney Co., and intends to go on working. So that takes care of the tale we hear so often, "Boy, if I had a million dollars, I'd never hit another lick of work." The truth is that a useful, satisfying job is worth more to a man than a million dollars. And can keep him out of a lot more trouble.

George's sixteen-year-old son, Glen, would like to give away some of the money. "This is too much money for three people," Glenn says. He would like to give some of it for medical research. The impulse to give away somebody else's millions is so common that it doesn't even merit notice.

The impulse to give away one's own million is rare and admirable, and I am sure the George Ashtons will not go wanting for suggestions as to how to implement such an unselfish wish.

Mrs. George Ashton is not saying what is on her mind. But you may be sure her mind is not a blank at this point. A smart woman can always think of something to do with a million dollars. What with women's fashions changing from mini to maxi to midi to pantsuits, and all the redecorating that needs to be done and the entertaining necessary to show off the new decor, why, it just might become a real worry to figure out how to stretch that million.

Anyway, when my wife read the story about the George Ashtons she said to me, "What would you do if you were to win a million dollars?" I could hear the wheels turning and I said, "I'd apply it to my debts—as far as it would go."

Might even save back enough of it to take the whole family out to dinner.

Secret Plight of Many Women

By DEE GIANNINI

Frankfort, Ky.—Every day the sun rises on women who aren't thinking of the usual early morning housewife chores—but of having an "eye opener."

The number of female alcoholics is not known with certainty, but it is generally agreed that there are more than the best estimates indicate, according to Harold B. Armstrong, alcohol information specialist with the state Department of Mental Health's Office of Alcoholism.

This is particularly true since women are more successful than men in hiding their illness behind the doors of their homes, he added.

Armstrong quoted some characteristics of alcoholism problems peculiar to women as cited by Dr. Vernelle Fox, former medical director of the Georgian Clinic in Atlanta and a recognized authority on the treatment of alcoholism:

The female usually remains at home and is protected as a wife and mother.

The wife is more likely to seek help for her husband than he is for her.

Drinking to excess carries a bigger stigma for a female than for a male.

A vast majority of females with alcoholic problems are afraid to get out of the house for fear of being seen and found out.

"There are many paths a woman may follow into alcoholism," Armstrong noted. "Stress is a big contributor in both sexes, but in females it takes a different form."

"The young wife and mother who can't cope with the pressures of children and housekeeping.

"The middle-aged, depressed woman who feels useless because her children are grown and her husband is 'married' to his business.

"The wife who has become very dependent on her husband and finds herself unable to face life without him, for any of a number of reasons.

"A family with a handicapped child may constitute a stress situation for the mother.

"The wife who finds the pressures of entertaining, coupled with her husband's full outside schedule, too much."

Add economic difficulties to any of the above and the situation becomes unduly complicated, Armstrong added.

"The ability of a woman with a drinking problem to delude herself is astonishing. She needs a drink because she is tense; she needs another to perk her up; she drinks because her husband is away and she drinks to celebrate his return home.

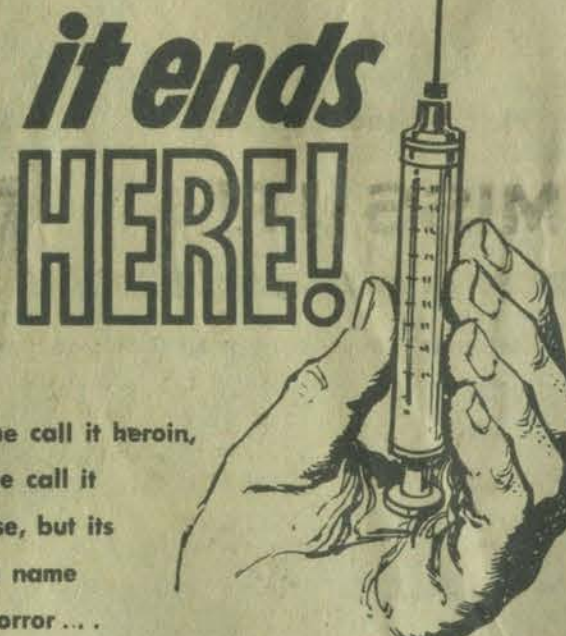

"Women alcoholics may not always fool others, but they almost always deceive themselves—this self-deception is the most dangerous of all, for it keeps them from seeking and accepting treatment."

"Husbands often deny their wives' alcoholism," Armstrong added. "False pride prevents many a man from helping his wife face her problem, the first step in many successful treatments of a alcoholicism."

As a wife and mother, a woman alcoholic's erratic behavior, swinging from one emotional extreme to another, has a devastating effect on her family, Armstrong said.

Research has shown an alcoholic mother is more likely to lose the respect of her children earlier than an alcoholic father, and is less likely to win it back. Husbands are more apt to divorce an alcoholic mate than a woman is.

Alcoholism among females has too often been called "the housewife's secret sickness." The time has come for female alcoholism to be brought into the open so it can be treated successfully, Armstrong stressed.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore . . .

A Local Encyclopedia

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Sixty years ago, I taught in a small village away down in western Kentucky, where I met some memorable characters. Across the decades I can remember many of them. One who amazed me was a bachelor brother of the local druggist. He was nearer an encyclopedist than walked around than any other person whom I have known. Within a few days after he would speak to you for the first time, he would be able to tell more things about you than you ever dreamed that anybody knew about: where you were from, your age, your previous experiences, your political and religious affiliations, and on and on. So vast a memory he had that he was sometimes called to help out in legal tangles, especially where property was concerned. He could rattle off boundaries and acreages like a legal paper and was in himself a veritable abstract title. The kinship existing between any two people you could name set his memory bounding, and, before you knew it, he was telling you about four of five generations behind the person being discussed. He was not in any sense a gossip; I cannot recall his ever making snide remarks about anybody; if there had been a scandal in the family mentioned, he told about it much as an old-time chronicler might have, without comment. If some member of a family had risen to some distinction, that was mentioned, too, plainly and without any great to-do. Facts seemed to be his stock in trade; he seemed like the robots that first gave that word to our language, capable of infinite memory.

A rather queer thing about Joe, let us call him, was his seeming to have no feeling of any sort. He mentioned tragedy or death in the same tone of voice as he mentioned the yield of his rich river-bottom farm. No one seemed to care for him, though everybody wondered at his memory. In the two years that I stayed in that small village, I never heard of his ever having a friend or even a caller at his house. He lived alone and, in the current phrase, "liked it." I have often wondered what he might have done with some education and an opportunity to use it. He was reasonably educated for that time, probably with what would have been ranked as a sixth-grade education. Whether he ever wrote down any of his accurate memories I never knew. He was not the sort of fellow anyone would get familiar with; nobody joked Joe, even though he was often consulted about very valuable and business cases.

And that makes me think of the other local compendiums of knowledge that used to be common. Some elderly woman had her own ways of counting time, but, with a few minutes warning, she could place in the Gregorian Calendar dates that might have started with the "year Aunt Jenny died." Aunt Mary herself might be regarded as senile and queer, but her quaint ways of connecting events with her own experiences and with her family often helped settle neighborhood questions and even neighborhood strifes.

In recent years much has been made by folklorists of folk documents, odd ways people of other times recorded events that concerned them. One such recent study revolves around a series of old calendars that a prosperous farmer of a century and more ago marked up with annotations relating to his crops, his planting and harvesting and selling, his crude way of keeping books, for in his day few people dared to risk their money in a bank and had to use their own ways to safeguard whatever cash they had.

In my courses in Old English I think the most fascinating reading I ever did was to study extensively the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, a record covering several hundred years of a single monastery in Old English and early Middle English times. For a whole year some monk who had been designated as record-keeper might set down only a few very local facts, like crop yields or diseases among the cattle; and then another recorder would write page after page of accounts of such things as King Alred's spectacular defense of his kingdom against the Danes. This sort of unconscious history sense makes the recorders long dead seem very much alive.

JIMMY "GABE" TURNER

For Floyd County's STATE REPRESENTATIVE

May Democratic Primary

I AM ONE OF YOU . . .

Jimmy "Gabe" Turner was born and reared in Floyd county, Kentucky, a son of Mae Burns Turner and Ernest Turner, of Drift.

He is married to the former Donna J. Barnett, daughter of Rana Calhoun and John Quince Barnett. He is a graduate of McDowell high school and attended Kentucky Wesleyan College and Eastern Kentucky State University.

Jimmy is a former Detective and a former representative with G. M. A. C. He and his wife run the Triangle Drive In at the Y in Martin, Kentucky. He sees and talks to a great many of his fellow Floyd countians every day, and he knows what kind of man they want to represent them in Frankfort. He is that man. He is in business for himself and has no connection with any company or firm, and he is not afraid to speak out for the people of Floyd county and their needs.

Following are just a few families to whom Jimmy is related: Cooley, Robinette, Patton, Lawson, Hughes, Stumbo, Hall, Moore, Martin. We ask all his friends and relatives to support him as their candidate for State Representative in the May 25th primary.

When he is elected he will prove to the best of his ability that he is a man for the people. The people of Floyd county must and will come first.

Jimmy is appreciative of all the good people who voted for him two years ago, and to those he extends his sincere thanks. He asks for, and would certainly appreciate, their support and vote again at this election time.

Two from County Graduate from EKU With Distinction

RICHMOND, KY.—A total of 119 graduating seniors from Kentucky, six other states and one foreign country were honored for academic excellence here Sunday during the 64th annual spring commencement exercises at Eastern Kentucky University.

Fifty-one were graduated "with high distinction," attaining an academic point standing of 3.6 or higher for at least three years of residence work. Another 68 were graduated "with distinction," maintaining a grade standing of 3.4 to 3.6.

Graduating with distinction were Janet Leigh Gunnell, of Prestonsburg, and Sandra Peters Ratliff, of Martin.

Secretary of State Kenneth Harper's decision not to accept candidacy papers which arrived in his office after the filing deadline for Paducah Richard Barkley for the Fourth District state House of Representatives seat was upheld by Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs.

Huge Cave Sparks Interest

The recent discovery of a huge new Kentucky cave under Pine Mountain is causing a flurry of interest in the state Department of Parks.

Geologist Ray Love, who discovered the caverns, said they may extend 60 miles underground, with ceilings in some sections reaching 400 feet high.

He said one huge room makes the largest room in Mammoth Cave seem "like a baby" in comparison.

In announcing the discovery Love said the cavern would mean additional tourist revenue to the state, once the tunnels and grottos can be opened to development.

It is that possibility that has attracted the attention of the Department of Parks.

"Our department is investigating the find at the moment so we can get an overall picture of this thing and decide what we're going to do," said Parks Commissioner S. W. Palmer-Ball.

"I'll tell you one thing—we've found it very interesting."

Pine Mountain lies in parts of Letcher, Harlan and Bell counties.

Reported features of the cave include an underground river 20 feet deep, a 50-foot waterfall and a hole with a sheer drop of 325 feet.

Palmer-Ball said the cave opening is in the vicinity of Kingdom Come State Park on the border line between Letcher and Harlan counties.

He said one big question in the discovery is just how much of the cave belongs to the state.

"We're going to need a lot of legal advice on this, I'd imagine," he said.

Stories of a chamber bigger than the Letcher County courthouse, which covers an entire square, and nearly 400 feet high were told by Dr. Raymond Love, Blackey, who said he had been exploring the caves for the past eight months.

Love said the cave chamber is unusually colorful because of a large amount of "flowstone," created when water seeping through layers of rock carries out minerals which then are deposited to create other formations. Love is calling the cave "angel cave" because of a 30-foot high formation which resembles an angel. Love said he believes the cave is only one of many which exist inside Pine Mountain.

He entered the chamber through an entrance on Scuttlehole Gap in the Cowan section of Letcher County.

Love's presentation of the attractions of the cave to an audience of Letcher county officials and state planners reached the front page of an Eastern Kentucky newspaper last week, and subsequently was picked up by wire services. The result has been an influx this week of out-of-town newspapermen to look at the "new" cave discoveries.

Scuttlehole Gap caves have been the playground of Cowan area children for nearly 100 years, however. And when a newsman visiting the caves Wednesday ventured 70 feet down on a rope to a ledge near the bottom of the angel cave chamber, he found initials carved there.

Love is convinced the caves in Pine Mountain extend along the length of the mountain from Elkhorn City to Cumberland Gap. He says he was misquoted that the caves would make Mammoth like a baby—that he said merely that there may be rooms in the cave system which are bigger than those in Mammoth Cave. He bases his opinion on the amount of flowstone in the angel chamber, which he says is a relatively new part of the cave network. If there is that much at that level, he says, then what must there be at levels higher in the mountain which have never been explored?

Love has been conducting his investigations of the cave along with some members of the out-of-school Neighborhood Youth Corps, an anti-poverty program which he directs for the LKLP Community Action Council.

Love said he himself has been only a mile back into the caves, but he knows explorers who have been as deep as seven miles into the mountain, on three levels.

Love said he, Rep. Raymond Collins and County Judge Robert Collins, want to form a nonprofit corporation to develop the cave section so the profits will return to Letcher County and benefit the county's residents.

Representatives of the State Department of Parks were in Letcher county Wednesday to visit the caves Love had described, but one of them remarked when he returned that he needed to talk to Love, since they must have been visiting different caves. He said the caves lacked the color Love had described and looked as though a high school prom had been held there from the names written on the walls. However, the state people did not remain in the county long enough for a thorough exploration of the cave area and did not look at other attractions of Pine Mountain.

Why Combs should get the nomination

OVER THE PAST two weeks we have examined in considerable detail the campaign platforms and promises of the two major candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor, former Governor Bert Combs and Lieutenant Governor Wendell Ford. In this examination, and from a study of the records and policies of the two men, one thing has become clear. Bert Combs is the better man for the job.

The coming four years are going to be tough ones for Kentucky, and for the men who direct its government. The 1970 legislature deferred action on a host of controversial measures which will surface again in the 1972 session. The state's cities and environment are in trouble. Its schools, farmers, elderly and poor need help. By experience, knowledge and personal ability, Bert Combs is better equipped to deal with these problems. He offers demonstrated executive skill, integrity, imagination and concern for Kentucky and its people.

This is not guesswork. Bert Combs has proved his qualities in demanding government posts. He was a good governor. He was a good federal judge. He has been a good candidate—informed, innovative and responsible. It is a tribute to his integrity that when he first ran for governor he was endorsed by every member of the Court of Appeals of which he was chief justice.

Differences on education

Such things as integrity, record and experience are of special importance in this race because, on the surface at least, the platforms of Mr. Combs and his principal opponent are quite similar. For this reason their differences—and they are substantial—take on added significance.

In the field of education, which may be the most critical state concern over the next four years, Mr. Combs has been more knowledgeable, specific, progressive and forthright. He has proposed specific six per cent annual salary increases for classroom teachers over the next four years, and this is only common sense. Unless Kentucky matches pay scales in neighboring states it can't attract and hold the better teachers on whom the future of our educational system depends. Mr. Combs has promised to reallocate dollars from the college level, where they're less needed now, to the money-starved grade and high school levels, and has promised teachers the right of professional negotiation. He has promised if elected to transfer the Governor from the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees to a revitalized and stronger Council on Public Higher Education, representing all the state's colleges instead of just one.

Taxes and younger voters

Education, on the other hand, has been one of Mr. Ford's weaker campaign spots, despite the surface similarity of much of his program to that of Mr. Combs. He continues to allege that by endorsing the KEA program of teacher raises, Mr. Combs also has endorsed the NEA program and its call for new taxes. But this is not the case. The NEA program is not the same as the KEA program. Mr. Combs has not endorsed the NEA program and has declared repeatedly that he opposes its tax provisions, including doubling the cigarette tax. Unsupported charges that tend to confuse Kentuckians about the needs and programs of their schools can only damage state education and do no credit to Mr. Ford's campaign.

On taxes generally, it seems to be an accepted fact of Kentucky politics that no candidate for governor has a prayer of getting elected if he talks about new taxes. Both Mr. Combs and Mr. Ford have dared a little—but not much—by promising severance taxes on coal; and Mr. Combs would extend this to cover oil and gas as well. Both have been forced to oppose increasing the state's aburdly low cigarette tax, and to pledge no new taxes on anything else, and this is too bad. One can only hope the day is not too far off when it won't be political suicide in Kentucky to tell the voters that essential state services cost money.

Both candidates have sought the support of younger voters, many of whom will vote for a governor for the first time this year. Though Mr. Ford at 46 is 13 years younger, Mr. Combs has consistently won the straw polls conducted on state campuses. The programs he has proposed, such as giving voting power to student members of college boards and his promise to bring more young people into the government at Frankfort, as well as his obvious concern for young people, seem to have impressed his youthful audiences. So did his maturity in not emotionally urging—as Mr. Ford did—a Rally for Calley.

In public welfare, Mr. Combs has shown—as he did while governor—a superior understanding of the needs of the poor, elderly and the dependent children, and has proposed imaginative improvements that would cost the state little. He has been more specific in his plans to protect the environment, and it is significant that many of the state's leading conservationists are supporting him.

Monuments to a leader

Mr. Combs compiled an outstanding record in conservation during his term in office. He revitalized the parks, passed the state's first sound approach to strip mine controls, pioneered in highway and capital beautification, and expanded forest-fire protection. Mr. Ford, in his term as Lieutenant Governor and president of the Senate, made no visible effort to save bills to protect wild rivers, save conservation easements, tighten strip mine controls and create an environmental protection agency. Mr. Combs created a model Merit System. Mr. Ford stood by, unprotesting, while Governor Louie Nunn destroyed it. Neither did he make any visible effort to save the election reform and financial disclosure bills he now says he favors.

When he was governor, Bert Combs once refused to have a park named for him, declaring that a governor should not erect monuments to himself at the public expense. Yet the monuments to Bert Combs today grace the landscape of Kentucky. They exist in the parkway system that he began, in a parks system often called the nation's finest, in the community college system he initiated, in the Department of Child Welfare he created, in improved mental health clinics, in busy airports, small lakes, higher teacher-pay scales and in the Appalachian Hospitals that he saved and the Appalachian Regional Commission he helped to found.

Bert Combs brought a tireless energy and imagination to Frankfort. He raised the level of state government. He is clearly the man to represent his party in next November's general election.

Can you find the Volkswagen hidden in this picture?

If you can, you'll make us very sad.

Because we've troubled ourselves no end to hide it from you.

Our quest for the invisible Volkswagen took us all the way to Turin, Italy.

Where we asked the famous Ghia Studios to design us a sporty Italian body.

They did. Their drawings clutched tightly in hand, we secretly prowled about Europe for the best coach builder we could find.

Success. To the Karmann Coachworks of Osnabrück we handed over Ghia's sketches with the injunction:

"Make it beautiful." (Or else.) They did.

They welded. And burnished. And sculpted. And sanded. And painted.

Until they had shaped in steel what Ghia had shaped in pencil.

Smug in the knowledge that nobody could ever mistake this beautiful car for a Volkswagen, we made it a Volkswagen.

By concealing our air-cooled engine in back. (For better traction.)

And making it go about 26 miles on just one gallon.

Then we gave this Volkswagen its final disguise:

We named it the Karmann Ghia.

Going to Europe? Take delivery there. Ask about it now.

Art In A Country Graveyard

WEST LIBERTY, KY.—This is the season of the year when transplanted Kentuckians living in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and other states get homesick for the hills. Regardless of how far they travel or how well they do in the business world, in spring when tree buds turn the color of limes and dogwood bloom seems to float through a dark woods their untransplanted hearts turn to thoughts of home.

Usually it takes a few weeks to put it all together—the longing for home and mountains, for clean winds sweeping down the valleys, bird chatter in early morning and the smells of country cooking; the sight of plowed fields, a man and his mule-drawn harrow, a boy in faded jeans bringing a pail of water at noon and a lunch bucket.

By Memorial Day—Decoration Day, in hill vernacular—homewardbound hearts make a steady flow of traffic. On that weekend opportunity is afforded for family reunions, hikes to the hills to renew acquaintance with childhood trees, coves and hollows... and to the country cemeteries where heartache is a secret thing, shut away from smiles to old friends and handshakes and hugs for mountain kin.

Perhaps more than any other year, this will be the time for looking with new eyes at gravestone art, seeing for the first time the small, sleeping lambs in marble, the stone hands clasped, the open Bible, unusual designs and shapes chosen by someone to grace the grave of loved ones.

For some it will be the first time to place sprays, wreaths and potted flowers made of one of plastic's many forms as a memorial offerings.

There was a time in the hill country when flowers for Decoration Day all were hand-made—maybe scattered bouquets of pink roses and field daisies in glass jars were seen here and there, but for the most part the entire family spent many evenings before Decoration sitting on the front porch, cutting, pulling and fluting crepe paper into roses of delicate beauty made stronger after the flowers were dipped in melted paraffin or wax.

Hands browned and rough from working with plows, hoes and rakes in garden and field could take a tiny scrap of red or pink paper and, using a piece of wire as a tool, curl the edge of the paper around the wire and have a perfect flower petal.

After pressing a thumb in the center to round the petal form, the petal was dropped into a basket along with hundreds of others like it. Later it would be crimped around a wire stem and fastened with finer wire, awaiting the wrapping of the stem with green crepe paper and fastening on a few life-like leaves.

The making of crepe paper flowers is art. Without the wax treatment the flowers last only until the first good shower when they droop and bleed color as if nipped by frost. But dipped in wax they retain some of their color many months, even until the next year.

This might be the year to leave the daisies in the fields and the roses in the yard corner and try a hand at making paper flowers. Ask any mountain woman up in years how to go about the art, and she will say, "Now, child, first you be cuttin' yer petals afore you so much as think of makin' a rose. Ye curl hit around thisaway..."

This might be the year to take a stone rubbing back to the city. While temple rubbings from Tibet and Thailand are valuable works of art, they are not exclusive subjects. Using materials that do not damage or deface a gravestone, a rubbing of hand-carved flowers from a country graveyard could also be a valuable part of primitive art.

Words of caution: Do not pollute the area with scraps of paper; make no deep footprints on hallowed ground) treat each cemetery visited as though it were a sanctuary to be kept neat, clean, uncluttered.

Most important of all to the many persons who will travel the parkways, the interstates and the country roads and mountain lanes: Drive cautiously, carefully, cleanly, courteously. That way, the trip back home to ease the pangs of spring homesickness will add other pleasant memories to place along with those of a wonderful childhood in the hills.

DELMAS INMON

Democratic candidate for

State Senator

Primary Election, May 25

I am the son of Cap Inmon and Allie (Chaffins) Inmon. I am married to Sturneth Moore, daughter of B. V. Moore and Melvina (Martin) Moore. I attended Alice Lloyd College and graduated from Eastern State University. I have taught school in Floyd and Knott counties for the last 16 years. If I am elected state senator I pledge full support to the following:

1. Give education top priority.
2. Establishment of a free, statewide kindergarten program.
3. A severance tax on all surface minerals.
4. Safety legislation for coal miners.
5. An improved Black Lung Law whereby less red tape is involved in establishing proof of the disease. Much too often our friends have to chase all over the state, taking tests after test, when they are neither physically nor financially able to make these trips and their families often do not have enough money to buy food or clothing. In many cases the recipient dies before receiving his benefits.
6. Legislation to allow an increase in Social Security benefits without reduction in Public Assistance payments.
7. More aid to Mental Health and Retardation.
8. Greater efforts applied toward the preservation of our lands. Too long we the people of the 29th district have elected lawmakers who go to Frankfort and serve on committees and do nothing but, come election date, they display elaborate committee titles, trying to pull a "Snow Job." I ask you to vote for a man who will go to Frankfort and work hard for the people of this district.

Discovery of Uranium In Gorge Spurs Plans

Red River Gorge—The discovery of uranium has moved two mining companies to lease some 15,000 acres in and around the gorge in hopes of mining its precious minerals.

In addition to extracting high-grade radioactive ore discovered there in 1969, officials of the companies acknowledged last week that they hope to quarry or deep-mine other hidden treasures of the gorge, including gold, silver, iron, titanium, magnesium and coal.

Exploring operations in the gorge country came to light recently as officials of the two companies explained their hopes to extract minerals if proper state approval can be obtained. Core samples have already shown commercial-grade ore.

Elmore Grim, state director of stripmine reclamation, vowed in an interview that his office would "never, never" approve mining or quarrying permits in the gorge. If necessary, Grim said, he would call a public hearing and propose changes in the state strip-mine law to ensure state control of the mining of precious minerals. Such control is not now provided. Precious metals were not known to exist in significant amounts in Kentucky until recent years.

Grim said the companies would be free to deep-mine the ores, since there are no state or federal regulations on the aesthetics of deep-mine operations.

Lionel F. Deacon, owner of Lionel F. Deacon, a Louisville-based mineral explorations firm, said that his company has taken core samples from several sites along the rim of the gorge but added that specific mining plans will depend on technical analyses of the samples.

Deacon, whose firm owns 70 per cent of the 15,000 acres of leased mineral rights, explained in a telephone interview that his samples have already indicated "workable" amounts of coal in and around the gorge and said that he plans to meet with coal operators in the near future to discuss possible mining operations in the gorge area.

Hopefully, Deacon added, the coal mining operations would help finance the expensive explorations and extraction of more precious minerals if analyses of his core samples are encouraging. He expects a report on the samples from a West Coast firm in about two weeks.

Observe Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rice observed their 50th wedding anniversary May 6 at their home on Little Paint, near here. They are the parents of seven children, six of whom were present for the occasion, and have 20 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Their children are Mrs. Helen Perry, Continental, O., John J. Ray and 'We Believe' Caravan To Make Stop at May Lodge

The University of Kentucky's "We Believe" caravan, headed by football coach John Ray, will make one of its statewide stops at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, May 17.

The "We Believe" campaign is a spontaneous outgrowth of UK alumni and friends in expressing their belief that the wildcat football program can return to the heights of the golden years it enjoyed in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

Bill Goebel, Jr., Floyd county chairman for the dinner at May Lodge, announced that there are a limited number of dinner tickets available. The dinner will be held at 7 p.m.

Coach Ray, who will be fielding his third team at UK next fall, will discuss the Wildcats' recently completed spring practice, recruiting and the future of football at Kentucky.

This marks the first time that a University of Kentucky head coach in any sport has taken his program to all sections of the state.

The visit to May Lodge is only one of 12 planned this summer that will take Ray throughout the state.

Ray recently announced the signing of 32 prospects for next year, a group which he terms every bit as good as the 1970 freshman team.

Serving with Mr. Goble on the Floyd county committee are C. "Ollie" Robinson,

Combs urges unifying services for the elderly

By ED RYAN
Courier-Journal Staff Writer

Former Gov. Bert T. Combs yesterday called for establishment of a state "cabinet-level agency to take up the growing problems of aged Kentuckians." "It should be the concern of all of us that there are now dozens of separate agencies and commissions and committees shuffling the problems of the aged," the 59-year-old Combs told a senior citizens rally at the Kentucky State Fair an Exposition Center in Louisville.

"Our aged are neither athletic enough or wealthy enough to endure the run-around many of them now receive," the Democratic gubernatorial candidate said. Combs went on to outline other parts of his platform concerning the aged:

He favors the passage of a constitutional amendment on November's state ballot that will give Kentuckians over 65 a tax exemption on the first $6,500 of the value of their residences.

"Many do not realize, however, that even if this 'homestead' amendment passes, it will be necessary for the subsequent legislature to implement it with legislative action," Combs explained.

He promised that the implementation of the amendment "will be an important part of my program in the 1972 General Assembly."

He will push for a law to permit recipients of old-age assistance to reside with their children without suffering a reduction in their welfare payments. Combs noted that Gov. Louie B. Nunn vetoed similar legislation in the 1968 legislature.

If he is governor, Combs said, he will "insist on a policy of no reductions in welfare payments for the aged when federal Social Security benefits are increased by Congress."

Combs charged that his principal opponent in the May 25 Democratic primary, Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford, helped kill such legislation as chairman of the Rules Committee in the state Senate during the 1970 Legislature.

Combs proposed that the aged living near a school and in need of proper nourishment, should be able to participate in the federally financed "hot lunch" program in the schools.

"I realize we will have to get the cooperation of the federal government on that," Combs told his audience.

There should be an upgrading of institutional home standards "with regular inspection and certification by the state, regardless of the number of occupants," Combs said.

"There is no reason to distinguish between the health and safety standards in a 'mini' home where two aged citizens live and a home, where, say 20 aged citizens live," he added.

Combs also said that he will "insist that the best system of fire detection known to modern science will be used in all residential programs under the state's jurisdiction."

He suggested that "a type of smoke sensor that measures any sudden change of oxygen content in the air" be used in addition to heat sensor devices.

Youth and Drugs To Be Subject Of Drug Education Night, May 24

Drug Education Night has been scheduled May 24, at 7 p.m. in the Prestonsburg Community College's auditorium, under Mountain Mental Health Services sponsorship.

The keynote speaker will be Dr. Bryan Lindsay, chairman of the Humanities Department at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond. Dr. Lindsay's address is entitled, "Where's It At, Daddy?" The basic premise of his presentation is that youth has formed its own subculture, and that the adult world must make an honest attempt to understand the point of view of the young. Dr. Lindsay interestingly explores his precept through the use of slides, films and tapes.

Dr. Lindsay has received many awards for poems and songs, as well as for a 20-minute film, entitled, "Beauty and Me." He was a Meritorius Film Award winner at the Sinking Creek Film Celebration, Tusculum College, Greenville, Tennessee. He has published articles in the Journal of Popular Culture, The Humanities Journal, Humanities Horizons, The Music Director, Southern Poetry Review and the Southern Humanities Review. His songs have been recorded by the Alan Copeland Singers, Johnny Mathis, Tome Cole, and Linda Gail Lewis.

The Mountain Mental Health Services invites the public to attend Drug Education Night.

University of Kentucky Medical Center, the Kentucky Medical Association and the Council of Southern Mountains.

Asked by County Judge Henry Stumbo, chairman of both health and CAP boards, who would be named to the permanent board, Dr. Cooper declined to say until the two boards accepted his proposal that they withdraw from their current roles.

When Dr. J. D. Adams asked why the Council of Southern Mountains was to be one of the groups represented on the interim board, Dr. Cooper said, "They're here, a part of the region. All segments of society are wanted as participants."

Dr. Joe T. Hyden, Martin dentist, a member of the health board, remarked that he had been told that "this thing is going socialistic, and we might as well be prepared."

"What the Office of Health Affairs has done," Dr. Adams said, "is, to me, as a member of the board, an insult. I have done my very best to implement a program that will serve the people. . . . It's difficult to carry on a health program without funds."

Cooper retorted that it seemed to him that an expenditure of more than $4 million is not a program without funds. Later, he emphasized the point that the line of action taken by Health Affairs was not in condemnation of the health board or anybody else.

Judge Stumbo commented that the health program during its first two years of operation helped the poor people. "This ended," he added, "when this fellow Schechter came here."

He referred to Dr. Arnold Schechter who was named director of the health program following its reorganization last year and who later was fired by the board.

At that point in the discussion Judge Stumbo apparently was willing to step down as a member of the board of directors. He said, "I want to see the program continue. If you don't do better, you'll hear from us." He described the attacks on the health program as "a one-sided proposition."

In the audience were persons who reflected a wide disparity of sentiment. When Judge Stumbo indicated the program might be permitted to pass into the hands of a new board, there were those who protested while others voiced their approval.

As the discussion dragged on, emotions got the upper hand.

In an attack on the ultimatum Supt. Charles Clark said: "I resent the ultimatum. . . you have not heard from this group (the two boards) because it hasn't been mousing."

"We're not going to sit here and let you tell us, either vote ourselves out of existence. . . or lose the program."

Dr. Adams added: "Office of Health Affairs has listened to one side of the story, and only one side."

Clark interposed the thought that Office of Health Affairs "listens to a bunch of loud-mouth people."

Mrs. Helen Wells, one of the originators of the program, challenged Cooper by insisting that Office of Health Affairs officials had requested answers to their questions about the program, but had not themselves answered disturbing questions about it.

She challenged Cooper to explain why Office of Health Affairs would approve the hiring of Dr. Schechter as project director, and she alluded to questions about alleged difficulties encountered by Schechter in receiving licensing in other states.

Finally, she asked Cooper to explain why Office of Health Affairs approved the hiring of a program administrator at a salary "far in excess of anything asked before."

Judge Stumbo asked Cooper whether Schechter would be approved as project director if the program were turned over to the blue-ribbon panel from outside Floyd county. Cooper told him that Schechter would not be approved.

George Ramey, director of Mayo State Vocational School, told Cooper that board members were under the impression they had until July to put together a program acceptable to Office of Health Affairs. He added that board members had worked hard, meeting with local people at the seven outposts operated by the health program in this county to determine what the best program would contain.

Cooper reiterated that the two boards had been sent a memorandum in March detailing the failures found by the Office of Health Affairs in the program.

Clark moved that the comprehensive health board refuse to vote on the question of placing the program in the control of the blue-ribbon panel. Stumbo requested a voice vote in favor and most of the board members said "yes." There appeared to be no request for a negative vote, but Stumbo finally asked if anyone was opposed. Some members voted their opposition but they were in the minority.

Next the board of the Big Sandy Area Community Action Program voted not to consider the issue of the ultimatum, and the vote was 17 in favor, with one member abstaining.

It met Friday and fired Paul Starke, administrator of the comprehensive health program in this county, and Dr. Robert Titzler, the program's only doctor.

Monday morning, a telegram from Washington declared all personnel "frozen". The freeze order ordinarily would have pegged all employees of the program in their positions at the time of its issuance. But the executive committee's order to fire predated Health Affairs' order to freeze.

How long Health Affairs will require to abolish the Floyd county program is not known. It was learned here that the federal agency has never had experience in this process and that it must first determine the procedure to follow.

Until the Health Affairs ultimatum was handed down here last Thursday night, only a comprehensive health program in Brooklyn had been so threatened. But suspension of the program was not necessary there. Brooklyn capitulated.

NO ANNOUNCEMENT FORTHCOMING

Some weeks back, I announced in this space that I had my sights set on a certain Tennessee lake and that the whole passel of us aimed to descend thereon with malice aforethought toward the fish population. The very night that item got into print, one of our party became ill and parts of some of the very counties through which we had plotted our course literally blew away.

By this time I am so superstitious that I hesitate to mention any future plans. But if any sudden gales pop up, you may guess that I'm either on my way or have just arrived.

LITERARY FORMULA

After reading several chapters of what had all the qualities of a good story and suddenly running into a mess of literary garbage, I've decided that the fellow was right who said all that is needed, these days, to write a best-seller is to have clean paper and a dirty mind.

Mr. DeRossett said the Coal Bit Company is now rebuilding steel mine car wheels and idlers and rollers for bulldozers. Although many mines use belt conveyors, he said mine cars are still used extensively. Some of the larger operations in the area find haulage preferable to belt conveyors, he said. An automatic welding process is used in rebuilding mine wheels and dozer idlers and rollers.

Tackett Rites Held Thursday

Funeral rites for Joe P. Tackett, 75, former Floyd County Attorney and State Senator, who died here at Mountain Manor Nursing Home the night of May 3, were conducted last Thursday at 11 a.m. from the Highland Avenue Free Will Baptist Church.

Mr. Tackett's death followed an illness which had its inception last September. He had practised law here 54 years and was one of the oldest members of the Floyd county bar.

A native of Hartley, Pike county, he was born Sept. 17, 1895, the son of Jay and Sarah Johnson Tackett. He was a graduate of Pikeville College and studied law before entering the Army during World War I, then following his military service was graduated from the Jefferson Law School, Indianapolis, Indiana.

An infantryman in the Red Diamond Division, Mr. Tackett was wounded in the Argenne Forest fighting. Returning to civilian life, he was elected County Attorney, serving one term, and later was elected State Senator from the 29th district. He was for years active in the Democratic party and in the American Legion, and was especially helpful to veterans seeking benefits following service in the armed forces. He was a member of the Free Will Baptist Church and of Prestonsburg Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Hazel Minerva Wallen Tackett, five sons and one daughter, Joe P. Tackett, Jr., Prestonsburg, Kenneth Bernard Tackett, Frankfort, Mrs. Mildred Tackett Ryan, of Allen, Edmond Herschell Tackett, Prestonsburg, Eddie E. and Charles M. Tackett, both of Lexington. Also surviving are one brother, Calvin Tackett, of Hartley, four sisters, Mrs. Bertha Osborne, of Hartley, Mrs. Cassie Burke and Mrs. Dixie Downs, both of Frankfort, and Mrs. Angie Ramsey, South Webster, O., 14 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Officiating ministers at the funeral were the Revs. Clifford Austin, Charles Rowe and Belmont Johnson. Burial in the Richmond cemetery here was under direction of the Floyd Funeral Home.

'Teleservice' Help Is Now Available

"Use your telephone to transact business with the Pikeville Social Security Office," Daryle E. Ratliff, manager of the Pikeville Office, advises in announcing "Teleservice"—a new social security service to the public.

Teleservice is simply using the telephone to transact as much social security business as possible. Anyone having any kind of business concerning social security is requested to telephone the office. In most instances the business can be handled by phone and will save a trip to the office.

Examples of social security matters that may be handled by telephone are: Applying for retirement, survivors or disability benefits; changing an address; reporting the death of a beneficiary; reporting the marriage of a beneficiary; applying for a social security number, and applying for Medicare.

In the few instances where the business must be handled in person in the office, an advance telephone call will still give the district office people a chance to tell you exactly what records to bring—and very likely will mean that all your business can be handled in one trip, Mr. Ratliff said.

The telephone number of the Pikeville Social Security Office is 886-6291.

NEA-KEA-Combs Plan Will Cost $196 Million

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford, at a press conference here last week, said he is "unalterably opposed" to the NEA-KEA-Combs plan calling for $196 million in new taxes.

"I believe the people of Kentucky had better take a long look at the NEW-KEA-Combs tax plan, Ford said referring to the National Education Association, Kentucky Education Association and his opponent, Bert Combs.

"1. They propose to double the tax on cigarettes from 3 cents to 6 cents per pack. This is a tax on Kentucky's number one farm cash crop, tobacco, which already is under assault and in deep trouble. I am unalterably opposed to this tax increase.

"2. They propose to remove the present ceiling on your property taxes so they can be raised to $1.50 on full value assessments. I am unalterably opposed to this proposal.

"3. And, most terrifying, they propose to make your property assessors, your tax commissioners, appointed officials of the Governor rather than elected by you. In other words, the man who sets the value of your property on which you pay your property taxes will no longer be responsive and responsible to you, but to the governor and his revenue commissioner in Frankfort. I am unalterably opposed to taking away the people's ability to elect their tax commissioner," Ford said.

The Lieutenant Governor said he strongly supports "quality education for all Kentucky children and I have a program."

"But I am not in Favor of removing the control on your taxes from you, the people who must pay these taxes," he said. "I am in favor of improved salaries for our dedicated school teachers, but I am against our tax policies being set by National Education Association bureaucrats from Kentucky."

The Lieutenant Governor said on April 14 his opponent, former Gov. Bert Combs, endorsed the Kentucky Education Associations legislative package.

"Just like clock work on the next day . . . as planned, the executive secretary of the National Education Association, Dr. Sam Lambert, a man from West Virginia, injected himself into our governor's race in Kentucky by publicly promoting my opponent, ex-Judge Combs, before the final session of the KEA convention," Ford said.

He said, "Ex-Judge Combs has publicly stated that the school people were supporting him. The top leaders of the National Education Association and the top leaders of the Kentucky Education are supporting Combs and proposing a tax plan for the people of Kentucky from their offices in Louisville and Washington."

"If the ex-Judge is endorsing the total program of the Kentucky Education Association, then he is endorsing an increase in taxes proposed by the National Education Association," Ford said. "This plan will mean $196 million in new taxes for Kentuckians."

LITTLE "A" ALLEN SLONE

for

State Senator

Floyd, Knott, Martin and Perry counties

Who is your State Senator? Do you know him? Ask your neighbor about him, how he voted in Frankfort on the $12.50 car license, the extra two-cent sales tax, transfer fees on your automobiles.

My Friends and Voters, I am asking you not to make a second mistake, because Mr. Clifford B. Latta has bestowed the highest tax burden upon the citizens we have ever had. In his ads in The Floyd County Times he says his experience will help in the State Senate. May the good Lord help us if he gets a second chance.

My record speaks. Give me the chance to serve you again by voting for Little "A" Allen Slone on May 25.

Small-Town Kentucky Awaits You

By LOIS CAMPBELL

FRANKFORT, KY.—Kentucky has hundreds of miles of modern interstate highways. In fact the white ribbon of the widened freeways channels you along at such a rapid pace you can travel Kentucky north to south these days in a little more than three hours.

Along the modern interstate highway you can see only the tops of forested hills, limestone rock and an occasional rolling expanse of bluegrass.

You suddenly realize that gone are the scenic, twisting, two-way roads, the railroad crossings and the curbside country stores.

If the monotony of the interstate tends to bore you, you can drive Kentucky along a scenic route through the bluegrass and the southern hills, whichever route you choose, small-town Kentucky, a country full of history and magical names awaits as well as that plain old fashioned sport of motoring along the countryside.

If the most likely route for your summer trip seems along Route 75, from north to south, take a deep breath and turn off into appealing, historic Kentucky.

In northern Kentucky, just this side of the Ohio River, there's Historic Washington in Mason County, a lovely little village that has been restored to much the original state that Harriette Beecher Stowe found when she wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Just south of there, you will find Blue Licks Battlefield, where Daniel Boone and other Kentucky frontiersmen fought a bloody Indian battle during the last days of the Revolutionary War.

On into central Kentucky, you approach the Bluegrass country and the horse farms that have made Kentucky famous. Pause along the roadside to watch the farming of Kentucky's number one agriculture product—tobacco.

Slightly to the west in Frankfort is the Kentucky State Capitol and the graveside of Daniel Boone overlooking the Kentucky River.

Highway 127 takes you south to Harrodsburg, the oldest town west of the Alleghenies, which in 1974 will celebrate its bi-centennial birthday. Don't miss nearby Pleasant Hill, a restored Shaker village. Just off Interstate 75, one can visit Madison County, which combines its growing university town of Richmond with the simplicity of nearby Berea, home of Berea College and world-renowned Churchill Weavers. Here too are the rustic old shops of Bybee Pottery and historic White Hall, home of abolitionist-statesman Cassius Clay.

An experience in country music awaits at Renfro Valley, where square dancing Kentucky-style is a major attraction. In Eastern Kentucky, roadside stands clamor for your time and money with brightly colored quilts waving you in. Here in the crafts center of Kentucky the mountain folks spend hours upon end making everything from musical instruments to pottery and textiles in a style that has been handed down for generations.

Take time to stop at a peaceful little town, have lunch at a local restaurant, where the fare will more than likely be homecooked.

Browse and shop a while at the small shops that serve the local folks, the rural department store that seems much akin to the old general store, the county courthouse where the older men still go each day to whittle away their older days.

Buy a copy of the local newspaper. You may reminisce as you read the "this and that" columns, the community news sections where the county correspondents report the happenings in their individual communities, and the ad columns that market produce, used equipment and other odds and ends.

Pause on the lawn of a country church where an entire congregation may be sharing their noon meal. Look at an old country cemetery, ponder the names. . . Clay, Shelby, Boone, McAfee, Harrod.

If there are children along, think about their questions, "Did we ever have a mountain spring?" and at a winding rock fence, "Did the rocks grow that way?" It should be a refreshing change from the usual "Are we almost there?"

And it might not be such a drag to answer their questions, as you realize that you do recall something about this way of life, at least more than you know about the monotonous white ribbon highways.

This summer, trade speed for a historic reawakening. Rural Kentucky awaits.

Like all predators, the wolf serves as a stabilizing factor in an ecological community. Rather than destroying large numbers of game animals, the wolf serves to keep the herds trimmed to size as it pulls down the old, crippled, sick and unfit, leaving healthy stock largely alone.—SPORTS AFIELD

Nunn To Head Mining Compact

Governor Nunn has been named chairman of the Interstate Mining Compact. The announcement was made at a meeting of representatives of 15 states' minerals and reclamation agencies in Raleigh, N. C.

The compact was formalized at the meeting for the purpose of promoting uniformity in mining regulations. Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania have signed the compact, and the other states plan to join as soon as their legislatures approve.

Natural Resources Commissioner James Shropshire represented Kentucky at the North Carolina meeting.

Spanish Americans comprised well over 150,000 of the persons enrolled in training and work-experience programs administered by the Labor Department in fiscal 1970.

I STAND ON MY RECORD

I HAVE SERVED IN THE KENTUCKY STATE SENATE SINCE 1968, REPRESENTING YOU IN THE 1968 AND 1970 GENERAL SESSIONS,

THE FOLLOWING ARE PROGRAMS I SUPPORTED AND VOTED FOR:

In Workman's Compensation and Labor . . .

The "Black Lung" Bill, making this disease a compensable one under the Workman's Compensation program; another to provide more compensation for injuries or disabilities limiting an injured workman's customary job opportunities; to require an employer to pay for medical expenses made necessary by injury or occupational disease and allowing employees to select their own doctor and hospital (this last was Vetoed by the Governor).

In Education . . .

To increase teachers' salaries; allow early retirement for teachers; increase State funds to school districts; increase benefits to retired teachers; set up a Task Force to deal with educating exceptional children; and create a Commission to study comprehensively the quality and quantity of Kentucky's education program and make recommendations on long-term priorities (vetoed).

In Health and Welfare . . .

To exempt medicine and drugs from the sales tax; create a Department of General Practice of Medicine at U. K. and U. of L.; authorize hospital districts to be established in one or more counties; permit old age assistance recipients to live with their children without a reduction in their assistance (vetoed); provide a "public defender" system for needy people (vetoed); create a new Division of TB Control to help locate and treat TB patients; and a bill I sponsored, to establish an office in each county to assist in training and employment of public assistance recipients and let recipients earn some money without having their assistance reduced.

In Protection of Citizens . . .

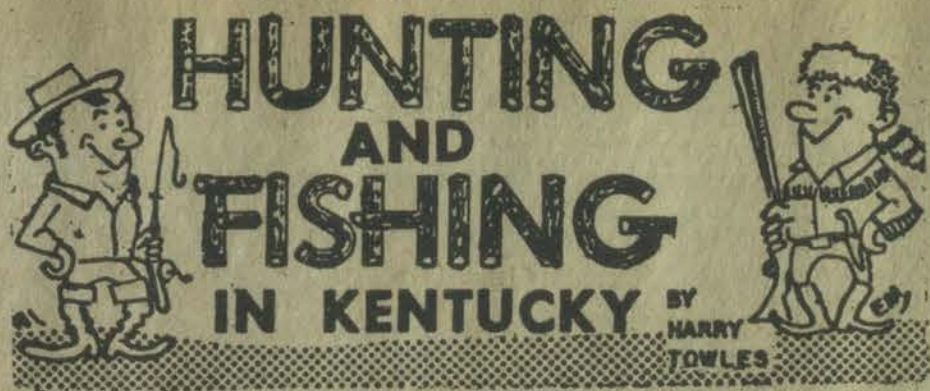

The "Crime Prevention" Package of bills which prohibited rioting and created a Bureau of Criminal Identification and Statistics and a Kentucky Law Enforcement Council; a requirement for full disclosure of all charges on consumer credit; prohibiting the unauthorized manufacture, sale, possession or use of dangerous drugs; and a bill I sponsored to establish a Business and Consumer Protection Act to prohibit fraud, false promises and misrepresentation in the sale or advertising of merchandise and services.

In Natural Resources . . .

I sponsored the "Wild Rivers" Bill to set up a wild river system and prohibit the pollution of its rivers (it died when the House substituted an entirely different bill for this one); I also sponsored a bill to allow counties or cities to acquire land for the protection and conservation of scenic, natural, recreational or historic areas of the state, which passed the Senate but not the House; and voted for half a dozen measures to strengthen air and water pollution controls.

In Better Government . . .

I strongly supported a bill which would have required all members or members-elect of the General Assembly to disclose all of their sources of income and all financial interests; lawyers would have been required to list all the clients for whom they are on a regular retainer.

Surface Lure Season Begins

Frankfort, Ky.—Now comes the period in Kentucky's fishing panorama when the caster really enjoys his art. It's the time when the black bass hit top running lures. To many, this is the epitome of fishing. It's the time when the fisherman must seek his prey, cast his top-water lure alongside a fallen treetop or over stickups in the inlets and bays and watch as the argumentative old bass "busts" through the water to strike at the strange object that has invaded his private domain.

Whether the old fellow is hungry or whether he just doesn't like to be disturbed in his feeding operations by a strange object will never be determined. But the fact is if the lure is presented temptingly he just can't resist giving it a go. This determination presents fishing at its best for the caster.

The surface lure season is just beginning. It'll be good through all of May and, perhaps, into early June. It'll be best in the early morning and late afternoon and, if you dare, at night. On cloudy days the action will be there for the asking throughout the day.

Bass will be feeding at these periods in the shallower waters of the lake itself and also in the inlets and bays. They'll be where the minnows (shad) are and that's the shallow areas of the lake.

The shad will gather around any sort of protection—fallen treetops; stickups; over stumpbeds and places like that, perhaps, to escape the wild forays of the charging bass.

Then, these are the places where a fisherman will have the greatest success in surface casting. If the bass sees an inviting food or bait, he'll charge at it and when he takes it the fisherman must use the utmost care in bringing him in, for it is then that the fish will head for those same obstructions that the shad had counted on for his protection.

The flyrod fisherman, at this period, enjoys his best bass fishing, also. All he needs do is to lay his small lure quietly on the surface, then retrieve it by short jerks on the flyrod, allowing the lure to come to rest after each jerk. Not many casts will be made before the bass will strike and the fight is on.

Casting of streams and farm ponds also produces many fine catches of bass in this manner along with other species of fish.

This farm pond fishing, early and late, offers some of the very best bass fishing via the surface lure method.

By "laying" the lure right up close to the bank, where the fish are apt to be feeding, much action can be encountered. Most usually, at this period of the year, the bass will be found in waters not more than a foot deep and in this shallow area it will create some fancy swirls and runs.

Here, too, on cloudy days bass may be caught throughout the daylight hours, while on a bright day the fisherman may just as well lay aside his tackle when the sun comes out strong.

If you can see the fish, he can see you, too, and he may be spooked.

Just to create interest

5^{3/4}%

ANNUAL YIELD 5.92 PERCENT

5^{1/2}%

ANNUAL YIELD 5.65 PERCENT

ANNUAL YIELD 5.13 PERCENT

Wouldn't you know that the House of Savings would be first to offer two more plans to make savings create more interest than ever? Now, in addition to our 5 percent, 90-day Golden Passbook Plan, we invite you to try our 5 1/2 percent, 1-year Golden Passbook Plan and our 5 3/4 percent, 2-year Golden Passbook Plan. We think you'll find them all very "interesting."

And our famous 5 percent Golden Passbook Plan makes your funds available four times a year—during the first ten days of January, April, July, and October—or anytime 90 days after a written notice is received by the bank. 5 percent Golden Passbook has an effective yield on 5.13 percent per annum.

All three plans offer guaranteed interest rates, and interest is compounded daily and paid or credited quarterly with each. Any of the three may be opened with a $100 minimum deposit, and additional deposits of $100 or more may be made at any time.

How Interest Figured And Payment Dates

Interest compounded quarterly. Interest payment dates: April 1, July 1, Oct. 1 and Jan. 1. Deposits made during first 10 days of month bear interest from first day of that month.

Here's the interesting difference

With our new 5 3/4 percent, 2-year Golden Passbook Plan, your funds remain on deposit for a minimum of two years, with an effective yield of 5.92 percent per annum. Our new 5 1/2 percent, 1-year Golden Passbook Plan has an effective yield of 5.65 percent per annum, and your funds must remain on deposit only one year.

Telephone Calls To Start Survey Of State Hunting

Frankfort, Ky., May 7—The telephone will ring at least once in 3,000 Kentucky households sometime between May 27.

If yours is one of those 3,000 phones, don't hang up when the caller, a woman, asks: "Is there a hunter in your household?"

It won't be a prank and there won't be an idiot on the other end of your receiver, either.

The call will simply be a part of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' annual telephone survey, one phase of an effort to determine how much game was harvested by Kentucky hunters during last year's hunting season.

If there isn't a "hunter in your household" the caller will thank you and hang up.

Should you answer yes, however, she'll ask you to cooperate with the Department by filling out a brief questionnaire about the number of hunting trips, kinds and numbers of game killed.

The questionnaires will be mailed from the Game Management Division and, according to Carl Kays, wildlife biologist in charge of the project, the information gleaned from them will help biologists in recommending lengths of future seasons and bag and possession limits.

Summer Employment Is Scarce For Students, Is Director's View

BY DAVE THOMPSON

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Summer jobs for high school and college students are at a premium this year, according to Ed DeShazer, director of the Employment Service for the Department of Economic Security.

DeShazer said the situation isn't unexpected since summer jobs have steadily decreased in the past four years.

The situation really doesn't appear good, he added. "No one seems to be hiring right now and some companies are laying off workers."

Betty Landrum, who has six years' experience dealing with summer placement programs, said her office is receiving many applications for summer positions but the "position of the labor market at present is prohibiting any big push for 1971."

Mrs. Landrum, representing Louisville's Kentucky State Employment Service, said seasonal positions may be the last resort for employment-seekers. Such jobs include housework (painting, lawn mowing, baby-sitting) and construction work.

The service also is working with the Youth Commission on putting into effect OPERATION: STEEPLE. This plan allows churches to hire students from the congregation as maintenance or odd-job workers.

Mrs. Landrum reports some federal agencies are hiring students ages 16-21 who have disadvantaged criteria. The positions listed would include employment at state post offices, Fort Knox and Naval ordnance.

Mrs. Landrum advised students interested in summer employment to contact employment services in their communities. "It's better for the students to work through one of our offices than to go first to a company."

"Many times the employer will tell the students either the company is not hiring or will refer them to an employment service."

HIGH RISES PROTESTED

TORONTO— Living in high-rise apartments can produce antisocial behavior, Dr. Daniel Cappon of York University claimed, adding: "We mustn't go on blindly building these vertical coffins for the premature death of our civilization."

Gov. Louie B. Nunn has authorized full restoration of last year's $2.59 million budget cut in the Minimum Foundation program for schools and payment of an additional $1.96 million to the program to offset higher than anticipated costs for pupil transportation.

CORNETT

for

State Senator

I wish to announce my candidacy for State Senator, subject to the Democratic primary on May 25th.

I have held office in Floyd, Knott and Martin Counties.

A few years ago I was Commonwealth's Attorney of Floyd county for five years.

I am a brother to DuRan Moore, Mason Moore and Earl Moore, who have been in business for many years in Floyd county.

I have associated with many good people in these counties.

It will be my purpose as your Senator in Frankfort, to help the next Governor put into operation a program that will be of most benefit to the people of Eastern Kentucky.

I have always been interested in the education of our youth. I am chairman of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of Alice Lloyd College. I taught school a few years while I was getting my legal education.

I will support a progressive Educational Program for Kentucky and will work for the improvement of our schools and the status of our teachers in every way possible.

I was a member of the State Legislature one session, and I helped pass the first Teachers Retirement System in Kentucky.

I worked for the Highway and Rural Road Programs.

I am still very much interested in improvement of the Highways and Rural Roads in Eastern Kentucky.

The re-construction and modernizing of Highway 80 from Hazard to Allen will be one of my ambitions.

We need to connect the Kentucky River Valley and the Big Sandy Valley in order to improve the transportation between these two great sections of Kentucky. The better our communication and transportation the better our chances are for new industry and commerce in the district. As we get more industry and commerce, we will have more opportunities for our young people to secure employment and work and stay at home, instead of having to go to other states in order to make a living.

You can depend on me to do everything possible for the improvement and betterment of our counties of Perry, Floyd, Knott and Martin and for the whole of Eastern Kentucky.

Your Friend,
JOHN CHRIS CORNETT

Why the Land Spoilers are afraid of Wendell Ford.

Here's what he said in a speech to the Kentucky Coal Operators Association October 9, 1970:

"My purpose here this morning is to tell you my position concerning strip mining in Kentucky. The position I shall state to you is exactly the same as I have stated to conservation groups and other citizens throughout this state — unweakened and unchanged by even an eyelash.

"This is my position: Strip and surface mining must be prohibited on land which can not afterwards be fully reclaimed. On lands suitable for surface mining, regulations must be strictly enforced and healthful conservation practices must be required.

"Making it even plainer: If land can't be reclaimed, it isn't going to be stripped. If it can be reclaimed, it is going to be properly reclaimed if it is stripped.

"This is my position now. If I am elected governor — and I believe I will be — it will be my position when I go before the Legislature. It will be my position during the four years I administer state government. My administration will not spend four years 'looking the other way'. We will not take a nosedive if any operator tries to ride roughshod over the regulations . . .

"It is time, and past time, for Kentucky to take realistic steps to protect its total environment, and the coal industry must do its part. Kentucky cannot continue the wasteful practices which have already so polluted and silted the rivers and streams that, by conservative estimate, they will be unable within 30 years to supply the minimum needs of the cities of Central Kentucky — Lexington, Versailles, Richmond, Lawrenceburg, Harrodsburg, Frankfort — and for all useful purposes the Kentucky River, as we know it now, will end at Clay's Ferry above Lexington."

Isn't it time we had a governor for all the people of Kentucky? Wendell Ford . . . a strong voice, a clear head.

A FIGHTER FOR PEOPLE.
