

98 Teachers Out of Jobs In Floyd Co.

Surplus Is Typical Of National Picture With Fewer Pupils

The nationwide surplus of teachers is reflected in the Floyd county teaching situation, County Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark said this week.

Ninety-eight persons, he said, have applied for teaching positions in this county, and there is no place to put them.

The over-supply of classroom teachers here and elsewhere is in sharp contrast to the situation a few years ago when many states—Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and others—were recruiting teachers from this and other Kentucky counties.

Floyd county's surplus, Supt. Clark said, results from a loss of pupils. The same may be the story over the country. Last year, 167 was lost in attendance, and this county will be employing five fewer teachers this year.

The "war baby boom" is over, and that accounts for the marked decline in pupil attendance—that and family planning. In the last 10 years Floyd county's pupil total has dropped from between 10-11,000 to 9,600 last year. A steady drop has been recorded, seven years in a row. Ten years ago, for example, Prestonsburg high school had an enrollment of about 1,000. Now it has 775. And Prestonsburg elementary has gained only a few pupils, although 17 rural schools in this end of the county have been closed and are sending their pupils here.

There is one shortage in the schools, Clark said. Capable high school principals are wanted in other counties of Kentucky and in other states. He said he has recently received telephone calls from Pike and Mogan counties and one from Ohio, all wanting principals.

"But our school people aren't accepting such positions—why, I do not know," Clark said.

One teacher may be employed for each 27 in average daily attendance, it was pointed out. For the coming year this attendance will be computed from the records for the (See Story No. 1, Page 2)

6th Highlands Folk Festival Scheduled for September 3-5

The sixth annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival will be staged at the Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre, Sept. 3-5, it was announced this week by Mrs. Edith F. James, program director for the festival.

An event in which singers, dancers, storytellers, poets, musicians and craftsmen get together to share in the lore and demonstrate the arts of the Southern mountains, the festival will be sponsored by the Jenny Wiley Drama Association and produced by Elmer Beckett, Jr., assisted by Bob Rennick, of the National Folk Festival.

The festival has as its aim the preservation of the traditional expressions in music, dance, story and handicraft of the people of the region. The work of regional artists and craftsmen will be displayed, and, where possible, the variety of native skills—weaving, woodcarving, etc.—will be demonstrated.

The closing program of the festival on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 5, will be highlighted by a program of religious music dating from the earliest form of worship to early hymn tunes and modern compositions.

One Arrested In Park Fray; 2 Raids Made

A shooting incident in which one Prestonsburg man was wounded by another resulted in an arrest, early Sunday morning at Jenny Wiley State Park, but authorities later said the wounded man has indicated he may not prosecute.

William (Red) Rowe was wounded in the chest and arm, but was not seriously hurt. Everett E. Bradley was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Orville Nelson on a charge of shooting and wounding with intent to kill. He waived the case to the grand jury and was released Sunday on $1,000 bail.

State Troopers Rose and Williamson staged two liquor raids in widely separated sections of the county last Tuesday, confiscating a sizeable quantity of beer and making two arrests.

In a raid on the premises of Joe Lykins, near Harold, the officers confiscated 1,212 cans and bottles of beer and three pints of wine. On Salt Lick Creek, the same day, they arrested James Jacobs in whose trailer they found 219 cans of beer and two half-pints of whiskey. Both men were booked at the jail here on liquor possession charges.

ALASKA, HO!

If it's any comfort to some of you, I may just move to Alaska. Those people know how to live. Anyway, they handle that complex job as I would, if I had the opportunity or the plain, old derring-do.

I have arrived at this decision after somebody—I don't know who—left on this desk the information that they have a Salmon Derby up there, that the business people close shop for it and everybody has a good time. This sign, we are told, appeared in some of the store windows:

"We believe life is worth fishing, so we have gone to live."

RATHER DAMP

Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it, true. But Johnny Neeley, of Abbott Creek, at least is keeping a record on it. He tells me that he has been measuring the rainfall in a regulation rain gauge, day after day, since April 1. And how much rain think ye has fallen?

As of Tuesday morning, this week—in a period of four months and three days—the rainfall measured exactly 21.2 inches.

If you insist this is Dog Days, go a bit farther and name them for a certain kind of spaniel.

STORY WITHOUT WORDS

J. David Tufts, the veteran Wayland barber who is now retired, brought me this week a painting which now adorns the wall of this office. It is a story without words—a scene in which a boy with a rough pole slung across his shoulder and a can of worms in one hand holds two lunker bass with the other, while a fly fisherman with a whole mess of flies pinned in his hat and only a few blueglints to show for his efforts rather sheepishly offers the boy hard cash for his catch.

Water District Board Is Named

One of three water districts designed to afford water distribution to rural residents in as many communities of the county drew a step nearer functional status with the appointment Monday of commissioners to serve the David Water District.

Named by County Judge Henry Stumbo to carry on negotiations for a federal grant and other affairs of the district were Francis H. Callopy, Richmond Stone and Roald H. Frasure.

The district is planned to serve the entire Left Fork of Middle Creek watershed, including the town of David. It would buy water from the Prestonsburg municipal system which already is extended to the Clark elementary school.

Formation of water districts for the Abbott Creek and Bull Creek sections also is planned.

One water system which serves upper Floyd and northern Pike county is already in operation, the Mud Creek system is almost complete, and work is under way on a third in the county. This last project is the Beaver Elkhorn Water District's system to serve the Right and Left Beaver Creek valleys.

Co. Atty. Sturgill Pays $3,025 Total

County Attorney Barkley J. Sturgill returned recently to County Treasurer W. J. May $3,025 in excess fees for the period, Jan. 1, 1970 to Dec. 31, 1970.

Mr. Sturgill's refund was made at the same time County Judge Henry Stumbo paid the treasurer $4,678 for the same period.

Cost of Travel For Witnesses Given as Reason

The hearing set by the Office of Health Affairs on the proposed termination of the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Services Program will not be held, it was indicated Monday by County Judge Henry Stumbo, chairman of the board of directors of the Big Sandy Community Action Program and vice-chairman of the health services board.

The health board recently requested such a hearing but asked that it be held here because of the difficulty and expense involved in getting witnesses to Washington. Health Affairs granted the hearing but denied the request for it to be held here, setting the date at 10 a.m., Aug. 10, and the place as Washington, D. C.

Tuesday afternoon, Judge Stumbo addressed the following telegram to Dr. Carl A. Smith, acting director of the Office of Health Affairs, sending copies to President Nixon, various members of Congress and federal officials:

"Since you have ignored our request of July 10, 1971, to hold the hearing in Floyd county, we do not plan to attend the Washington hearing scheduled for August 10, 1971.

"Your office has been perfectly willing to hear evidence from outsiders who have given their viewpoints on the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Program. We feel that it is our constitutional right to have the opportunity of letting our consumers, board members, and interested citizens testify and give to you their judgments on the effectiveness of this program. This cannot be done at a Washington hearing, since we cannot provide travel for these individuals. The desires and needs of the great majority of our citizens are being ignored by your (See Story No. 4, Page 2)

2 Damage Suits Seeking $137,000

Damage suits asking a total of $137,000 were filed in circuit court last week against a Prestonsburg firm and a local business man.

In one of the actions Dan Reffitt, administrator of the estate of the late Martha Reffitt, alleges that Mrs. Reffitt was injured in a fall because Thompson's IGA maintained its premises in such a manner as to cause her to fall. The suit claims she died from these injuries. The total sued for includes $25,000 for physical and mental suffering and loss of earning power, $5,000 for medical and hospital bills, $50,000 for loss of life and $2,000 funeral expenses.

The second suit, filed by Altonette Bentley against William Goebel, Jr., claims damages of $50,000, alleging that the defendant so carelessly operated his auto as to cause it to collide with the rear of her car on US 23 here last Aug. 19, resulting in her injury.

'Jenny Wiley' in World Premiere Thursday at Park Amphitheatre

"Jenny Wiley!" a new musical with music by Benjamin Keaton and book and lyrics by Mitch Douglas will have its world premiere Thursday, August 5 here at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre. The musical runs on Thursdays-Sundays through August 22.

Among those expected to attend opening night ceremonies are singer-composer John Jacob Niles; Earl Hobson Smith, author of the outdoor drama, "Trial of the Lonesome Pine," Hazel Vernatter, Jenny Wiley's great-great-granddaughter, and John N. Bennett, and ancestor of Jenny Wiley and author of the book, "Jenny Wiley—Pioneer."

The new musical is based on the life of the legendary frontier woman who was captured and carried into Indian captivity in 1789. Jenny Wiley remained with the Indians for 11 months, protected by an old Shawnee chief who wished to adopt her as his daughter. Jenny made her escape through the forests of the Big Sandy Valley to the new settlement of Harman's Station, near the site of the present state park bearing her name. The 16 musical numbers of the score include "Big Sandy Valley," "Indian Lullaby," and "I Won't Quit Now."

The role of Jenny Wiley is played by Penny Dennis, from the North Carolina School of the Arts. Tom Wiley is played by Stephen Hale, who starred off Broadway as El Gallo in "The Fantasticks."

All performances of "Jenny Wiley!" are at 8:30 p.m. in the amphitheatre in Jenny Wiley State Park.

Not Kentucky's Worst, But . . .

5 Murders Committed in County Last Year

Floyd county had five murders and two manslaughter cases recorded against its record in 1970, and its crime rate was 8.1 per 1,000 population—but that, if it is any consolation, was far from the state's worst mark for the year.

The data for this and other Kentucky counties and for cities of 10,000 or more population is included in the recently released Crime in Kentucky, a compilation of information gained by the state's Uniform Crime Reporting System.

Other Floyd county crime reported: Rape, 2; attempted rape, 2; robbery, 1; armed robbery, 1; assault, 62 (assault cases broken down to 8 with gun, 3 by cutting, 5 by club or other weapon, 29 by hands or feet; breaking and entering, 138; forcible entry, 118; larceny, 184; auto theft, 32.

The city of Bowling Green, a liquor "oasis" in the midst of "dry" territory, had the state's highest murder rate for the year, according to the report. With a population of 36,253—only 364 more than Floyd county—the city had 12 murders and a per 1,000 crime rate of 37.4.

But Crimetown, Ky., apparently is Louisville, which had 72 murders, 45 manslaughter cases and a crime rate of 53.7. Lexington was next with 16 murders and a crime rate of 46.6.

Ashland and Boyd county had not a murder for the year. Ashland's crime rate, however, was 16.3.

The number of murders and the crime rate for other Eastern Kentucky counties follow, as listed by the 1970 Crime Report:

Johnson, no murders, crime rate of 5.8; Knott, 2 murders, 2.8; Pike, 8 murders, 1 manslaughter, 8.8; Magoffin, 1 murder, 4.4; Martin county, 1 and 4.5 Morgan, 1 murder and 2.1 crime rate, the lowest in the region; Perry, 9 murders, 2 manslaughters and the highest crime rate in the area, 14.0 per 1,000 population; Breathitt, 3 murders, 1 manslaughter, rate of 7.6; Letcher, 7 murders, 2 manslaughters, rate of 6.5; Harlan, 8 and 8.5; Bell, 8 and 10.3; Knox, 8 and 7.8; Leslie, 4 and 4.1; Lawrence, and 2.4; Lee, 2 and 16.2.

The report does not include offenses against liquor laws or drunk driving cases by counties for cities.

Poor performances at every level of the law are blamed in part for Kentucky's low rate of convictions in comparison with the number of criminal arrests.

"Some cases of poor investigation, poor prosecution, and, to be truthful, poor adjudication" must share responsibility, Col. W. O. Newman, commissioner of public safety, said this week.

"And not to be forgotten," he added, "is the quality of juries. Too many of the intelligent kind of people you like to see on juries find ways to stay off of them."

The report showed that 21,545 arrests were made involving murder, manslaughter, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, breaking and entering, larceny-theft and auto theft.

At the end of the year: 5,723 persons had been convicted of the offense charged.

1,957 had been convicted of lesser charges.

2,113 had been acquitted.

5,881 had been referred to juvenile courts.

6,882 cases, including many carried over from prior years, had not been tried. Newman said he was especially peeved by the inability of prosecutors to prepare for a trial that had already been thoroughly planned by counsel for the defense.

Too often, he said, the prosecutor knows nothing about the crime until a pre-trial conference with the investigator.

"He doesn't know who his witnesses will be, what they will say, or what questions to ask," Newman said. "He can't organize, he can't call the witnesses in the order they should be called. He must start cold from what the investigator tells him."

If all counties that could would employ commonwealth detectives to "do the leg work and prepare the case," he said, better results should be expected.

Otherwise, Newman continued, the prosecutor might have to rely on the information of an investigator with little skill and hardly any training.

"Some of our own people (state police) with basic training followed by inservice training go out to the field, stay in one or two counties for three or four years, and forget enough to be fully prepared for, say, a murder," he said.

Officers in some counties who investigate crimes lack even basic training. He said.

"A well-trained officer can produce a good case in comparatively short time," he said. "He knows that the time to go to work is when the crime is fresh."

"He also knows that he must stay with it. It's time-consuming. The leg work, checking records, confirming statements and such must be done thoroughly if the investigator is going to be ready to testify in court about his evidence."

Police investigators also are hobbled by an inability to get legal help in their work, Newman said, causing them to gather evidence improperly sometimes and then see it thrown out of court.

Newman's fuss with the judicial system, he said, is concerned mostly with county judges who are not qualified to deal with criminal cases.

"They lack legal training and a knowledge of the law," he said. "Some even lack a formal education. Now, of course, many men with a sixth-grade education are smart, but some are not.

"As a result some cases that should go to the grand jury and circuit court don't get there."

The crime report discloses that charges were brought against persons for a total of 201,606 crimes in all categories in 1970. Of these, 122,316 were convicted as charged, 13,330 were convicted of lesser offense, and 14,120 were acquitted.

The over-all showing was improved by a high rate of convictions in certain crimes where the evidence most times is irrefutable, such as:

A total of 23,843 drunk-driving cases brought 15,093 convictions.

Drunkness charged against 81,297 persons brought 38,246 convictions.

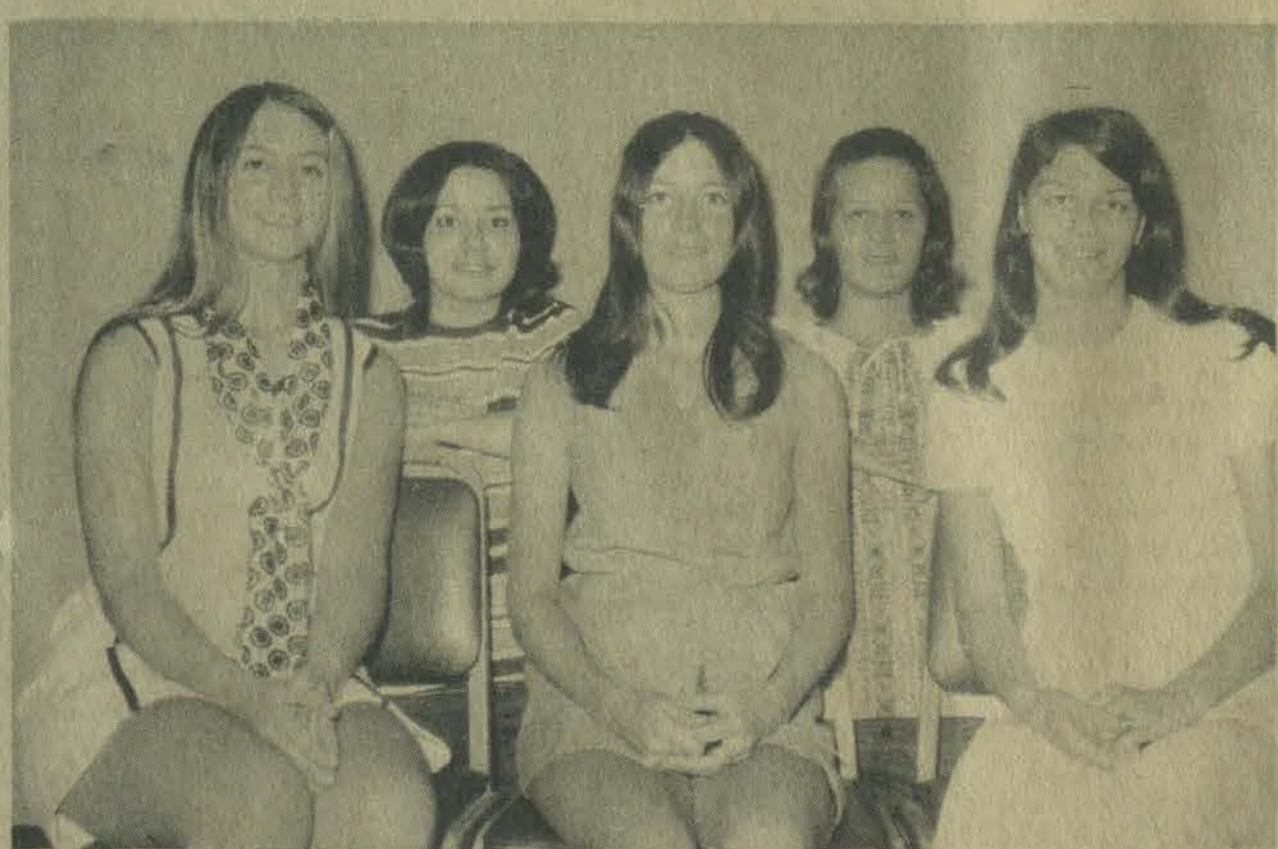

Out of 27,158 persons accused of disorderly conduct, 15,027 were convicted.

Among the major crimes, the outcome was a contrast: Among 391 persons charged with murder, 78 were found guilty as charged, 24 were convicted of lesser offenses, 42 were acquitted or dismissed, 17 were referred to juvenile court, and cases against 280 were pending.

Of 415 charged with forcible rape, 54 were convicted, 40 were convicted of lesser offenses, 90 were acquitted or dismissed, 47 were referred to juvenile court, and cases against 206 were pending.

Prosecutors were more successful with the crime of larceny-theft (stealing more than $50). Convictions were obtained in 3,327 out of 8,485 cases; 514 defendants were convicted of lesser offenses, and 623 were acquitted.

Auto theft was one of the harder crimes to deal with—just 269 convictions, compared with 331 acquittals among the 2,442 cases in which arrests were made.

Scholarship Pageant Contestants

Shown above are five of the eight young ladies who will compete for the title of Miss Floyd County 1972 at the Scholarship Pageant to be held August 28 at the Jenny Wiley amphitheatre. The other three contestants and their sponsors are: Miss Ronda Gale Hall, sponsored by the Floyd County Rescue Squad; Miss Kathy Jean Howard, sponsored by the Maytown Woman's Club; Miss Janie Goodman, sponsored by the Prestonsburg Chamber of Commerce.

The sponsor of the winning contestant will receive an award, and the contestant herself will be the recipient of a $100 scholarship as well as a complete wardrobe, numerous trophies and an expense-paid trip to the Miss Kentucky Pageant at Louisville.

best three months of the 1970-'71 school year.

Eliminate the Title I federal education program, and the over-supply of teachers in this county would be worse than it is, and 107 of those now employed would not have teaching jobs. This county's Title I entitlement will exceed $1 million this year, and that makes teaching posts open for work in certain categories. In this county the main thrust of Title I is on remedial reading.

The schools of this county will open the new year, August 23.

The liquor confiscated was taken to the Pikeville barracks of the state police. Authorities here said all liquors confiscated by state troopers are taken there.

Others arrested within the week:

Randall Perkins, breaking and entering, jailed by State Trooper Gary Rose; Duane Oden, drunk driving, by Trooper Rose, Officers Johnson and Hall; Rafe Lafferty, resisting arrest, by Trooper Rose and Deputy Sheriff Orville Nelson; George Crisp, no operator's license, by Deputy Sheriff Richard Wallen; Eddie Jones, reckless driving and failure to yield to an emergency vehicle, by Deputy Sheriff Nelson; George R. office. These people deserve the right to be heard in this case."

Meanwhile, OEO representatives were in the county early this week, digging for evidence to be submitted at the hearing in Washington and possibly to subpoena some witnesses for the hearing.

Judge Stumbo said he understood OEO has three persons in the county for this purpose. "They could have sent two or three more and had enough for the hearing, right here where everybody involved could have had a chance to testify," he commented.

Stumbo added: "We haven't been treated right. They told us to submit a program for the period after the first of August, and while this was being prepared they decided to terminate the whole program."

The "Decentralized Health Program" proposed for this county by the Eastern Kentucky Welfare Rights Organization has not received any action—largely because, it is explained, an interim board of directors cannot be named for the program and put to work until the present board resigns or their tenure is otherwise terminated.

Dr. Arnold Schechter, former director of the pilot health program in this county, told The Times last week that he planned to attend the Washington hearing. He said he proposes to ask that the program not be terminated but placed, instead, under the control of a new board of directors.

Dr. Schechter emphasized the point that this request would not be an effort to regain the directorship of the program for himself. "I will not be with any OEO program in this county," he said. "I will be in private practise in this county, or, perhaps, elsewhere, where I have tentative proposals."

Schechter added that if the people of the county will urge leaders on the board of directors to turn the program over to OEO, a health program for Floyd county will be possible. About 17 persons remain on the board, several members having resigned.

Copies of Judge Stumbo's telegram were also sent to Donald Rumsfeld, Presidential assistant, Congressman Carl D. Perkins, James O'Hara, Edith Green, Frank Thompson, Gus Hawkins, John Brett, Senators John Sherman Cooper and Marlowe Cook.

THOMPSON WINS NATIONAL IGA AWARD

Chicago Ill. (Spl.)—Paul Thompson, owner and operator of the Prestonsburg IGA Foodliner in Prestonsburg, Ky., was named the National IGA Brands Merchandiser at the recent 45th Anniversary Convention of the Independent Grocers' Alliance.

Mr. Thompson was nominated by his IGA-franchised supply depot, W. T. Sistrunk & Co., Inc., Lexington, Ky. His store in Prestonsburg has slightly more than 8,000 sq. ft. of space. He opened a new store in 1968, and it had to be expanded in less than a year. He has no more room for expansion at the Prestonsburg location new, and so he will open another store in another town within a few months.

Mr. Thompson "has no peer in our realm when it comes to IGA brands," a spokesman for W. T. Sistrunk declared. All IGA products in his store are offered on a guaranteed sales basis. In the grocery department, all IGA products offered by the supply depot are stocked.

Country Breakfast... Pioneer Life

Home-made biscuits... fresh-churned butter... fried corn... smoked apples... home-made apple butter... ham and eggs... gravy—these were the ingredients of the country breakfast enjoyed by the class of '44 of Maytown high school at the Wilson Creek home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Bailey during the recent Maytown homecoming.

Three members of the class—Marcella Rowe Bailey, Mary Jo Smith Halbert, Thelma Hale Wilson and Audrey Cooley Martin—prepared the breakfast on an old-fashioned coal stove.

Of interest to her classmates—and to every visitor—is the up-the-holler house behind the Bailey home. The Pioneer House is a shack with a stovepipe sticking out the rooftop. Inside are shoe-lasts, a gourd dipper, churns, an oldtime kitchen cabinet, iron teakettles. Outside is the old grindstone, a wash pan, chicken coop, chopping block, a corn-planter, washboard and tub. There's even a little, brown shack farther out back that has an "out of order" sign on the door.

V. O. Turner, former superintendent of Floyd schools and Maytown school principal, was sponsor of the 1944 class, and he was among those present. He said he had never seen a more closely knit group than the class of '44 at Maytown. The year the class was graduated was when the country was deep in World War II, and classmates sold War Bonds, gathered scrap-iron and aluminum for the war effort. Today, Mrs. Bailey's home has red, white and blue furniture on its front porch.

The class will meet again in 1972 during the last week-end in July.

Speaker Blasts Mining Division

James Branscome, of Save Our Kentucky, Inc. (SOK), branded the state Division of Strip Mining and Reclamation, as the only industry lobbying group in this state that is "funded and maintained from the taxpayer's pocket" in a speech at Hindman last Friday.

He dismissed the whole concept of reclamation as "a fiction, a grand lie," and called the state division charged with the task of regulating strip-mining with being "a public-relations arm of the strippers."

Larry Greathouse, of Lt. Gov. Wendell H. Ford's staff, was not so vitriolic, however. He reaffirmed Ford's position on the industry, saying strip-mining should be stopped where reclamation cannot be done. Ford's Republican opponent for the governorship, Tom Emberton, who had been invited to the Hindman meeting, was not represented.

Branscome lashed out at Elmore Grim, director of the Division of Reclamation, and added:

"It is a sad day when private citizens must band together as a lobby group to get their government to recognize the imminence of its own destruction."

In 1970 the American Bible Society produced on cassette tapes for the blind the New Testament in Today's English Version and the New Testament and Psalms in the King James Version.

Mrs. John Rainey, of the Goble-Roberts Addition, will visit her sister, Mrs. Don Woody, and friends in Columbus, O., and her brother, Mr. Edgier Fouts, and family in Galion, Ohio this week-end and next week.

People Create Big Problem

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Forestry educators visiting Kentucky July 12-16 identified "people problems" as the biggest challenge to forestry preservation in the next decade.

Deans of forestry from 24 southern colleges and universities visited the commonwealth to investigate new forestry problems arising from conflicting needs in conservation, recreation, mining and natural resource development.

The tour was sponsored by the U. S. Forestry Service. The educators expressed most concern over the millions of picnickers, hikers and tourists who pour into national forests and parks each weekend.

Dr. John Gray, dean of forestry at the University of Florida, noted that Ocala National Forest, near Orlando, now has some 900,000 visitors each year. He said the rate soon may reach more than 6 million annually with the opening of Disney World.

"Some areas of the Daniel Boone National Forest here in Kentucky are facing similar problems," Dr. Gray said. "We are concerned that these forests literally will be trampled into the ground by such a tremendous influx of people."

Other deans on the tour agreed overcrowding of forests also is developing in their respective states.

The annual tour was begun in the late 1950's by the federal Forestry Service to improve communication and cooperation between the service and the nation's forestry schools.

This is the tour's first visit to Kentucky. Dr. Thomas Hansbrough, dean of forestry at the University of Kentucky, noted the people problem is perhaps the most complex ever to face administrators.

"Trees don't give us that much trouble," he said. "Trees don't talk back to you and they don't move around. People get into more trouble and impose more difficult management decisions on forestry personnel."

Hansbrough noted that forestry education must meet this need by focusing training on people-related problems.

"In education we must train our professional foresters to be more cognizant of the people aspects of forest management," he said.

While noting the importance of new problems, Dr. Loyd Blackwell, dean of forestry at Louisiana State University, stressed that more traditional needs also must be met.

"We still must produce enough timber for the nation's tremendous demands," he said. "We must provide adequate wildlife habitats, a base for clean air and water and adequate forage for our domestic animals."

To meet all those demands the deans said strict regulation of people flow into the forests will be necessary, including restricting some areas.

"People and forests can live together," Dr. Blackwell said. "They not only can—they must. This will require an adjustment on both parts—especially the public."

Will It Stop or Explode?

Is the sky the limit?
A nationwide steel strike was averted by an agreement to raise the pay of workers.
A "selective" railway strike ended Monday with the agreement by the railways to pay upwards of 40 per cent more over the next three years to their workers.
A coal strike is just off-stage, and it will end in higher pay for miners.
The certain aftermath of all this is higher prices for the public. Already, steel is taking a jump upward. Transportation costs will be higher; the price of foodstuffs will rise accordingly, and on and on the spiral rises.
So inflation gets a new lease on life at a time when unemployment rises.
And at the same time the unfavorable position the United States already held in its competition for the world market becomes more unfavorable. This year, we are told, the United States will, for the first time in this century, buy from other countries more than it sells to them. We have literally priced ourselves out of the world market.
It appears that if this tide of inflation is to be stopped short of economic collapse, more than manipulation of interest rates and verbal inveighing against inflation must be done. Some segments of labor already have expressed a desire for wage and price controls. The President and much of the business world demur.
But all that has been attempted to date has failed. Why not controls?
Or shall we merely wait for the bubble to burst?

Four Die Sunday In Plane Crash In Lawrence Co.

Four Missourians died Sunday morning in the crash of a private plane near Richardson, Lawrence county.
The victim were identified as Donald Herbert Vinyard, 48, Paul Thomas Dixon, 21, Carolyn Vinyard, and Harriet Vinyard, all of Crystal City, Mo.
The Piper single-engine craft was apparently en route from Missouri when the crash occurred.
Preliminary reports indicated the craft may have struck trees atop a ridge causing it to plunge down a 2,000-foot drop to the floor of a ravine.
Rescue workers who joined the search after the first report of a downed aircraft about 8:15 a.m. Sunday were hampered by the hazardous locale of the wreckage.
The bodies, all badly mangled, were carried up a steep 35-40 foot cliff.
The initial report of the crash came shortly after 8 a.m. when local residents said they saw a plane falling end-over-end.
Reports that the plane had exploded in mid-air prior to the crash were termed "unlikely" by officials at Tri-state Airport, since the plane was "mostly intact."
Kentucky State Police troopers spotted the wreckage about 6 a.m. from a National Guard helicopter which flew them over the area after hours of ground searching proved fruitless.
Pieces of the plane's tail section had been discovered in a field about three miles from Richardson.

Local Gas Company Places Third In National Safe Driving Contest

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company operating personnel, from left: H. D. Neeley, supervisor of safety; Bill Music, chief field agent; Delmas Saunders, supervisor of field accounting; D. L. Chaffin, superintendent of production; E. B. Jenkins, chief geologist; Philip Jenkins, operating manager; J. H. Keenon, superintendent of compressor stations.

National honors for outstanding safe driver performance were won by Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company in the Natural Gas Industry Division of the 40th national safety contest conducted by the National Safety Council, and sponsored by the American Gas Association.

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, operating approximately 100 vehicles in southeastern Kentucky, was awarded third place in the Gas Industry Division of the contest. The award is based on the company's safety performance from January, 1970 through December, 1970. During this period, drivers of the company's vehicles drove 1,664,424 miles and had a frequency rate of 5.38 accidents per 1,000,000 miles of operation.

Spindletop Says Some Small Banks Invest Too Little in Community

A pair of Spindletop Research reports have indicated some of Kentucky's small-town banks may not be effectively meeting their areas' financial needs.

The reports suggested as a possible remedy a change in state law to allow banks to operate across county lines. The two studies, one prepared last year and one in the current year, went to state banking officials.

The more recent report says that Kentucky needs some way to move bank funds around the state, and cites as evidence regional shortages of capital for business loans to spur the state's economy.

The earlier study says many of the small banks have aging management, lack the push of competition and give poorer support for the local community than do larger banks.

Of the 265 state banks in Kentucky in 1969, the report says that 76 per cent had less than $10 million in assets—a level deemed necessary for full efficiency.

Small banks have tended to go to extremes in putting their money into loans or other investments, according to the recent report.

It notes a tendency of many conservative banks to put money into treasury notes instead of making loans to bolster the local economy.

An additional $250 million a year could flow into the state's economy if Kentucky banks were up to the national average in their ratio of loans to assets, the report said.

BRIDE-ELECT HONORED

Miss Debbie Gunnell, bride-elect of Mr. John Henry Blackburn, was honored with a miscellaneous shower July 22 at 7:30 p.m. The shower was given by Miss Betsy Bates, of Columbus, Ohio, and Miss Cheri Dalton, of New Orleans, Louisiana. Miss Dalton was home on vacation. The shower was held at Miss Bates's home. Miss Gunnell is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gunnell, of Prestonsburg. Mr. Blackburn is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Blackburn, of Endicott.

Miss Gunnell was the recipient of many gifts that included appliances, linens and miscellaneous items. The table was covered with a white cloth, decorated with yellow flower carts around the edges. A white wedding bell was the centerpiece, with the gifts surrounding it. Punch and cake were served after games and the opening of gifts.

The best idea to come out of Detroit in years.

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, someone once said.

And never before has our modest car been on the receiving end of so much flattery.

What with the Big 3 auto makers coming out with a little 3.

And one even promising not to change designs for five years.

Of course, it wasn't always like this.

Take 1949, for instance.

The only people who liked the Beetle then were the two who bought it.

But being first with an idea also has its advantages.

Nobody, for example, has the experience we have working on a single small car.

We've had the time to test our idea.

And improve it thousands of times. And refine it thousands of times.

Every step the others take, we've been through before.

In fact, it's kind of funny now.

State Moves To Penalize Strip Reclamation Failure

A plan to weed out "sloppy" strip mine operators who fail to adequately reclaim mining sites has been announced by state Reclamation Director Elmore Grim.

The plan embodies a point system, whereby operators are graded on how well they perform the various functions of restoring the land they disturb to mine coal.

An operator with a high point rating can be banned from mining under certain conditions — or if his record is exceptionally bad, he can be denied a permit under any conditions.

Grim said the rating system can be invoked by his division under the existing law, and thus will require no legislative action. He said the rule will be put into effect following a water-quality study currently being conducted by the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Grading under the plan will allocate points from one (good) to five (bad) on the various phases of reclamation.

"If (an operator) does a good job, he will have no trouble," Grim said. "If he does a bad job he's out of business in Kentucky, and his reputation will follow him if he decides to move on to another state."

He said the good strip miners are generally in favor of the plan because "they know they must share the image caused by bad strip mining and bad reclamation."

One of the most colorful adventure stories of frontier America comes to life as the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre presents a new musical, JENNY WILEY!, Thursdays-Sundays, August 5-22.

Captivity by the Indians was a common occurrence in frontier America and the literature of the times is full of the colorful tales of Indian captives. The story of Jenny Wiley's captivity and escape from Indians has been handed down in the households of the Big Sandy valley for generations. On October 1, 1789, Jenny Wiley's home was attacked by a small Indian band while her husband, Tom, was at a nearby trading post. Jenny's younger brother and four of her children were murdered, and she and her baby were carried into the forest. Eleven months later, Jenny escaped and made her way back to the new settlement of Harman's Station, which was near what is now the Prestonsburg-Paintsville airport. Since those early days the location of Harman's Station has been known as Blockhouse Bottom.

The new musical version of the story opens in Walkers Creek, Virginia, as Tice Harman and his men prepare to leave on a scouting mission to Kentucky. Tom Wiley woos Jenny Sellards. When Tom finally agrees to romance Jenny in the moonlight, they are married and start a family. While exploring Kentucky, Tice kills the son of Cap John, a Cherokee chief. Cap John, seeking revenge, attacks the Wiley cabin.

Although her brother and children are murdered, Jenny is spared by an old Shawnee chief, Black Wolf. Black Wolf wishes to adopt Jenny as his daughter and protects her life. As the Indians flee from the settlers, Jenny marks the trail. In the months that follow, Jenny's plans for escape fail. When Cap John meets Black Wolf in battle and wins Jenny from the old Shawnee, Black Wolf helps Jenny escape. Her journey through the wild forests of Kentucky provides an exciting climax to the musical.

The Play and the Music ... How It Came About

The idea of a musical version of the story of Jenny Wiley originated with the general manager of the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, Mitch Douglas, two years ago. Douglas had come to Prestonsburg in 1968 as an actor after working with the Hunter Hills Music Theatre, the American Choreographers Ballet Company, Centennial Theatre, Guignol Theatre, and Baltimore's Spotlight Theatre. As a writer, Douglas had written promotion for numerous theatres, had authored "The Fine Arts" column for the Lexington Herald-Leader, and had served as associate editor for Accent magazine. He had also authored the plays, "Colonel Taddie," about Abraham Lincoln's son; "Changes" and "The Sin of Sister Maggie."

In preparing the script for JENNY WILEY! Douglas tried to avoid producing a pageant play or outdoor drama. "After all," he said, "we've based our reputation on being a musical theatre. I wanted the songs in JENNY WILEY! to contribute to the action rather than interrupt it." As a result, the musical avoids the folk songs and traditional square dances of outdoor drama. The next problem was to find a composer.

Benjamin Keaton had come to Jenny Wiley last summer as a musical director. Keaton, a member of the music faculty of North Carolina Central University, had composed music for numerous productions, including "The Liberty Tree" and the off-Broadway production, "Amen to a Mantis." He had spent more than 10 years with "The Lost Colony" and had arranged music for Paul Green's "Sing All the Green Willow." He, too, favored an integrated musical.

The resulting score ranges from patter songs to waltzes to ballads to Indian dances. The show opens with the rousing "Hooray and Hallelujah Day," followed by a novelty duet, "No One in Particular," and Tom's ballads, "Always Jenny" and "Let the Passing Years Fall Softly on My Love." Jenny's numbers include the title song,

"Indian Lullaby," and the brassy resolution to her captors, "I Won't Quit Now." There's a torchy blues, "Sitting and Waiting," for the men on the trail and their women back home. Jenny and Tom start a home in a song called "Growing Things" and Jenny and Tice Harman dream of a new settlement in "Big Sandy Valley." In addition to several other songs there are three major dance numbers—an Indian battle, Jenny's escape, and an Indian legend called "The Story of White Fawn."

The Production Staff

The challenging task of recreating the story of Jenny Wiley on stage has fallen to the director, Randolph Umberger, choreographer Shirley Lightbody, set designer Peter Clemens, and costumer Kathryn Stuntz.

Under the guidance of Umberger, a Ph.D. graduate of Tulane University, the quartet has planned a vivid recounting of frontier life. In designing the set, Clemens has used actual logs cut from the forests of the Big Sandy valley, near the site of Jenny's captivity. The circular ramps and cabins with 40-foot beams stretching into the forests back of the theatre create settings from Walker's Creek, Virginia, to the Big Sandy valley to Harman's Station. The Wiley cabin will burn nightly as the Indians ignite it with flaming arrows shot from the hillsides.

Shirley Lightbody spent last summer playing Eleanor Dare in another production concerned with Indians—"The Lost Colony." In addition to choreographing colorful dances for the settlers, Miss Lightbody has also created several Indian dances, including "The Story of White Fawn" in which she dances the role of an Indian princess who is stolen away by the Great Spirit.

Miss Stuntz, in designing costumes for JENNY WILEY!, went back to the history books and to original publications of Jenny Wiley's day. Her Indian costumes are drawn from authentic Cherokee and Shawnee designs.

The Search for Jenny Wiley

The search for an actress for the role of Jenny Wiley began while the script and score were still being written in October. The role of the courageous pioneer woman was a difficult one to fill. Not only does the role require a gifted actress, but a singer and dancer as well. More than 1,000 actresses from all parts of the country were auditioned for the role of Jenny. The choice fell to Penny Dennis, a raven-haired beauty from Mobile, Alabama. Miss Dennis is 18—approximately Jenny's age at the time of her marriage to Tom Wiley. She studies at the North Carolina School of the Arts. She has performed with the Joe Jefferson Players, with the Improvisational Theatre Tour Company and with the Mobile Civic Ballet.

The role of Tom Wiley was assigned to Stephen Hale, who starred off-Broadway as El Gallo in "The Fantasticks." He was seen earlier this year as special guest vocalist for the Miss Kentucky Pageant.

The challenge of creating major roles in a new musical is exciting but demanding for both Miss Dennis and Mr. Hale. Hale has faced the problem of simulating the brogue of Tom's native Ireland. Miss Dennis has found the role of Jenny to be physically as well as vocally demanding. In the course of the musical she is battered and bruised as she is dragged along the Indian trail.

The role of Jenny's protector, the kindly Black Wolf, is played by Jack Wicker. Cap John, the Cherokee murderer of Jenny's children, is taken by Alan Cordial.

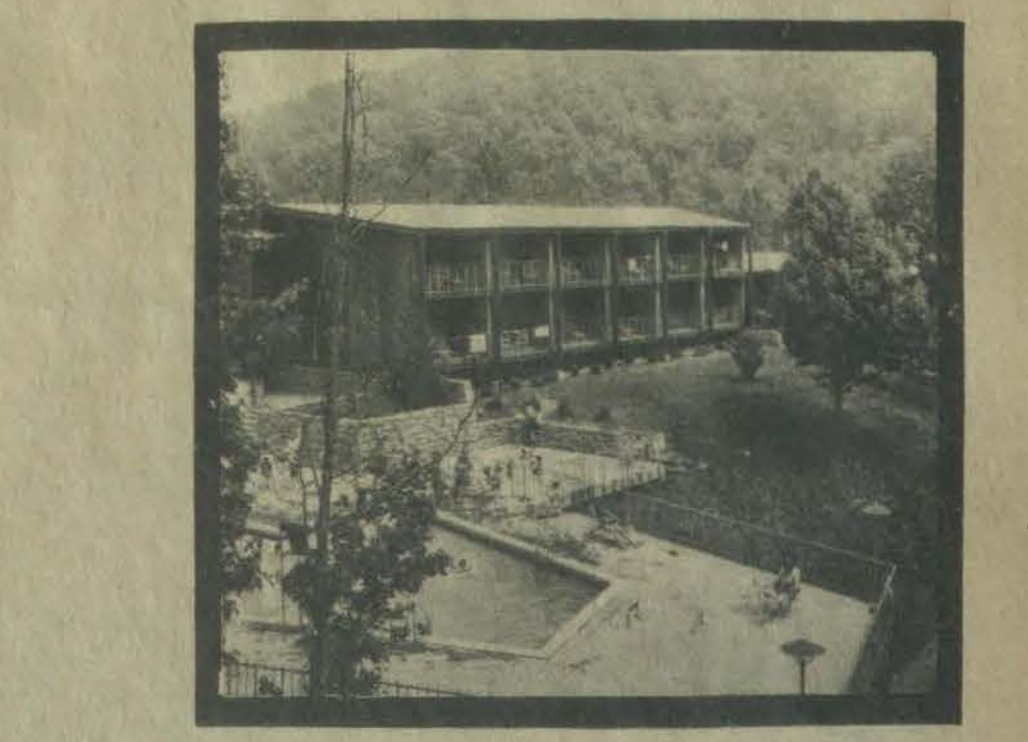

All performances of JENNY WILEY! are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at the Amphitheatre in Jenny Wiley State Park.

'There's No Such Thing As Reclamation'—Harm
 MIDDLESBORO, Ky.—Wildlife artist Ray Harm yesterday called for abolition of strip-mining, saying, "There really is no such thing as reclamation."
 "You've been duped by the coal industry," Harm told a seminar at Union College's Environmental Education Center at Cumberland Gap National Park.
 "You can plant all the trees you want, but you'll still get acid and silt (from strip-mining)," the artist said. "How can you sit here and not be fighting to keep our mountains alive."
 He predicted a problem-solving economic revolution if strip-mining is abolished.
 "The bulldozer is putting hundreds of men out of work," Harm told about 150 persons. "We depend on coal and timber, and it always will be taken out. The only difference is how we're going to take it out."

RETIRED, 90 YEARS OLD, HE GIVES TO FLOYD COUNTY WAR MEMORIAL

A 90-year-old retired miner is among those who have contributed $115 each to the Floyd County War Memorial at Archer Park and will thus accord special honor to a loved one by means of a plaque to appear on flagpoles at the memorial.
 The contributor, T. B. Connors, of Estill, remains in good health, despite his years. He said it makes him feel better to be able "to donate a little" toward the building of the war memorial. Mr. Connors lost a grandson in Vietnam in 1969.

 It is his opinion, he says, that this memorial is the greatest thing he can remember happening in Floyd county.
 (The Times' full-page ad in last week's edition erred in stating that the special plaques for flagpoles are to honor only war dead. These plaques may be dedicated to any person, dead or living, it is pointed out.)

 The winner of the pageant will be presented a $100 scholarship by the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club which also pays for the trip to the Miss Kentucky contest in Louisville. A new wardrobe will be given the winner by Prestonsburg merchants, and she will also be presented trophies in her honor.
 Committee chairmen who will direct various activities in staging the pageant are the following: Mrs. Jack Stumbo, judges; Mrs. Claybourne Stephens and Mrs. Thomas Hereford, III, luncheon; Mrs. Harry H. Ranier, tickets; Mrs. Clarence Rice, awards; Mrs. James McKinney, concessions; Mrs. David Spradlin, entries; Mrs. Ralph Davis, Jr., publicity; Mrs. Danny Hamilton, parade; Mrs. David J. A lace and pearl and rhinestone, held her veil. She carried a bouquet of daisies, lily of valley and ivy. Miss Mary Newsome, cousin of bride, was maid of honor, wearing a mint-green gown with daisies. Mr. Michael Newsome, cousin of the bride, served as best man. Mr. Richard Pritt, cousin of bride, was an usher. The reception was held at the home, with Miss Carolyn Lykens, Mrs. Clyde Lester, Mrs. Arnold Hall, Mrs. Robert Reed and Mrs. Earl Branham assisting in serving. Mrs. Baca is a graduate of Martin high school and Mayo Business College. The couple will temporarily live in Florida, where the groom is stationed with the Air Force.

In Loving Memory Of James B. Click

James B. Click departed this life on Tuesday morning, July 20, at 8 a.m. at his home in Maytown after a very brief illness, at the age of 89 years, 2 months and 28 days, living seven years, 7 months and 28 days longer than any member of his family, his father and brother, John, passing on their 82nd birthdays. The son of the late Samuel and Susan Patton Click, he was born on Henry's Branch at Langley, Ky., April 22, 1882, where he has spent his childhood and entire life, moving to Maytown in the year 1924. Two brothers and four sisters preceded him in death.

He spent his childhood and early youth attending the old log one-room school, striving to complete the eighth grade that would, after passing a test prepared by the County Board, permit him to become a teacher. He also worked with his father on the farm and in a logging business which his father operated. He began his teaching profession in the Fall of 1906 and continued until 1918, being forced to seek other employment because of the low salary, which at that time was about $24 per month. On May 10, 1910, he was married to Lula Prater, daughter of the late Elias and Mary Ousley Prater. Born to this family were one son, Thurmal Click, retired from the Kentucky Hydrocarbon Co., where he had been superintendent for the past six years, Langley, Ky., and two daughters, Mrs. Thekla Reffett, Summerfield, Fla., Mrs. Thurla A. Ramey, Langley, Ky. He also leaves two grandsons, Glennis N. Ramey, who is principal of Dale Elementary School, Highland Heights, Ky., and Stanley V. Ramey, employed by National Headquarters for Disabled American Veterans as senior programmer, data processing dept., Newport, Ky., both living at Alexandria, Ky., and one great-grandson, Timothy Wayne Ramey, one sister, Mrs. Bessie Gibson, Wayland, Ky.

On April 30, 1971 they had celebrated their birthdays and 61st wedding anniversary. After leaving the teaching profession, he began his work as a carpenter at which he spent many years. He was employed by the Ky. and W. Va. Gas Co. for a few years, and was retired in 1947 from the United Fuel Gas Co., where he had been employed since about 1936. On the fourth Sunday in May, 1947, he became a member of the Old Regular Baptist Bethel Church at Langley, of which his father was one of the builders and founders, and was a faithful member until death, attending his last church service at the Salisbury Baptist Church the second Sunday in June, 1971, the next day being confined to the hospital and later his home. He had served as church treasurer for several years, resigning because of ill health after suffering a heart attack six years ago. He had also been ordained as a deacon in recent years. On July 23, 1968, he was crowned as Maytown Homecoming King as one of Floyd county's oldest teachers. Riding in the parade before the crowning with him was Mrs. Sally Webb, queen, also a former teacher. They were also accompanied by his wife. The car was driven by George E. May, Jr., a former student and work associate. After his retirement from the Gas Co., he worked with his wife, Lula, in a small grocery and candy store, dealing and working with school children, and he loved them all, this being one of his greatest joys of his life from which he never wished to retire, but was forced to quit about two months before death. Due to an illness unto death, which he fully realized, he wished to remain at home to await his passing. He is greatly missed by his beloved wife, family and friends, but there's great consolation in knowing he is at rest in Davidson Memorial Gardens, Ivel, Ky., where interment was made about one o'clock p.m. after funeral services were conducted at Bethel Church, under direction of Hall Bros. Funeral Home at 10 a.m., July 23.

We, the family, would like to take this opportunity to thank each of you who contributed any little service in any way during this time of grief. Especially do we want to say to his brothers and sisters of the church how much we appreciated your standing by us at this time; also the ministers who came many times; to those who sent the many beautiful flowers, brought food or made a visit to the home, a special thank you; and to Hall Brothers for their kind and efficient services. There is always the hope of tomorrow To banish the clouds of despair, The love of our heavenly Father To lighten the burdens we bear. There is always our faith to sustain us, The comfort that comes when we pray; There is always the hope of tomorrow And a happy reunion some day. Written by his wife, Mrs. Lula Click, and Children (Adv., It.)

Elder E. Pete Grigsby, Jr. performed the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Betty Hutchinson, Richmond, Ky. pianist, and Miss Tonda Hall, Price, Ky., soloist, provided nuptial music.

The bride wore an empire floor-length gown of peau-de-soie, with a bow ending in a chapel train and a gold locket originally belonging to her maternal grandmother. A lace, seed pearl and rhinestone headpiece held her shoulder-length veil. She carried yellow roses, white daisies and blue baby's breath.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Edith Belcher, Inkster, Mich., sister of the bride, and the bridesmaid, Mrs. Sheila Stanley, Appalachia, Va., cousin of the bride, wore floor-length gowns of peau-de-soie with pillbox headpiece veils. Both carried yellow roses. Kimberly Miller, niece of the bride, and Robin Potter, cousin of the groom, served as flower girls. They wore floor-length gowns of mint and maize peau-de-soie, and carried baskets of yellow roses. The ringbearer was Geoffrey Belcher, nephew of the bride.

A lifelong friend of the groom, Eddie Ratcliff, was best man. Edwin Miller, Taylor, Mich., brother of the bride, was the groomsman. Ushers were Chris Miller, brother of the bride, and Bruce Belcher, brother-in-law of the bride.

Attending the guest book was Brenda Hall, Cliff, Ky. Mrs. Alma Neal, and Mrs. Dorothy Cox were in charge of the reception. Out-of-town guests included the bride's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Cox, Appalachia, Va., the groom's maternal and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hazel Stapleton, Elkhorn City, Ky., and Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Justice, Robinson Creek, Ky.

Livestock at the Floyd Fair
By CHARLES WESSON

It's nearly county fair time again, here in Floyd county. With the fair coming up in a little less than two months—it will be September 22-25 this year—there are still many preparations to be taken care of.

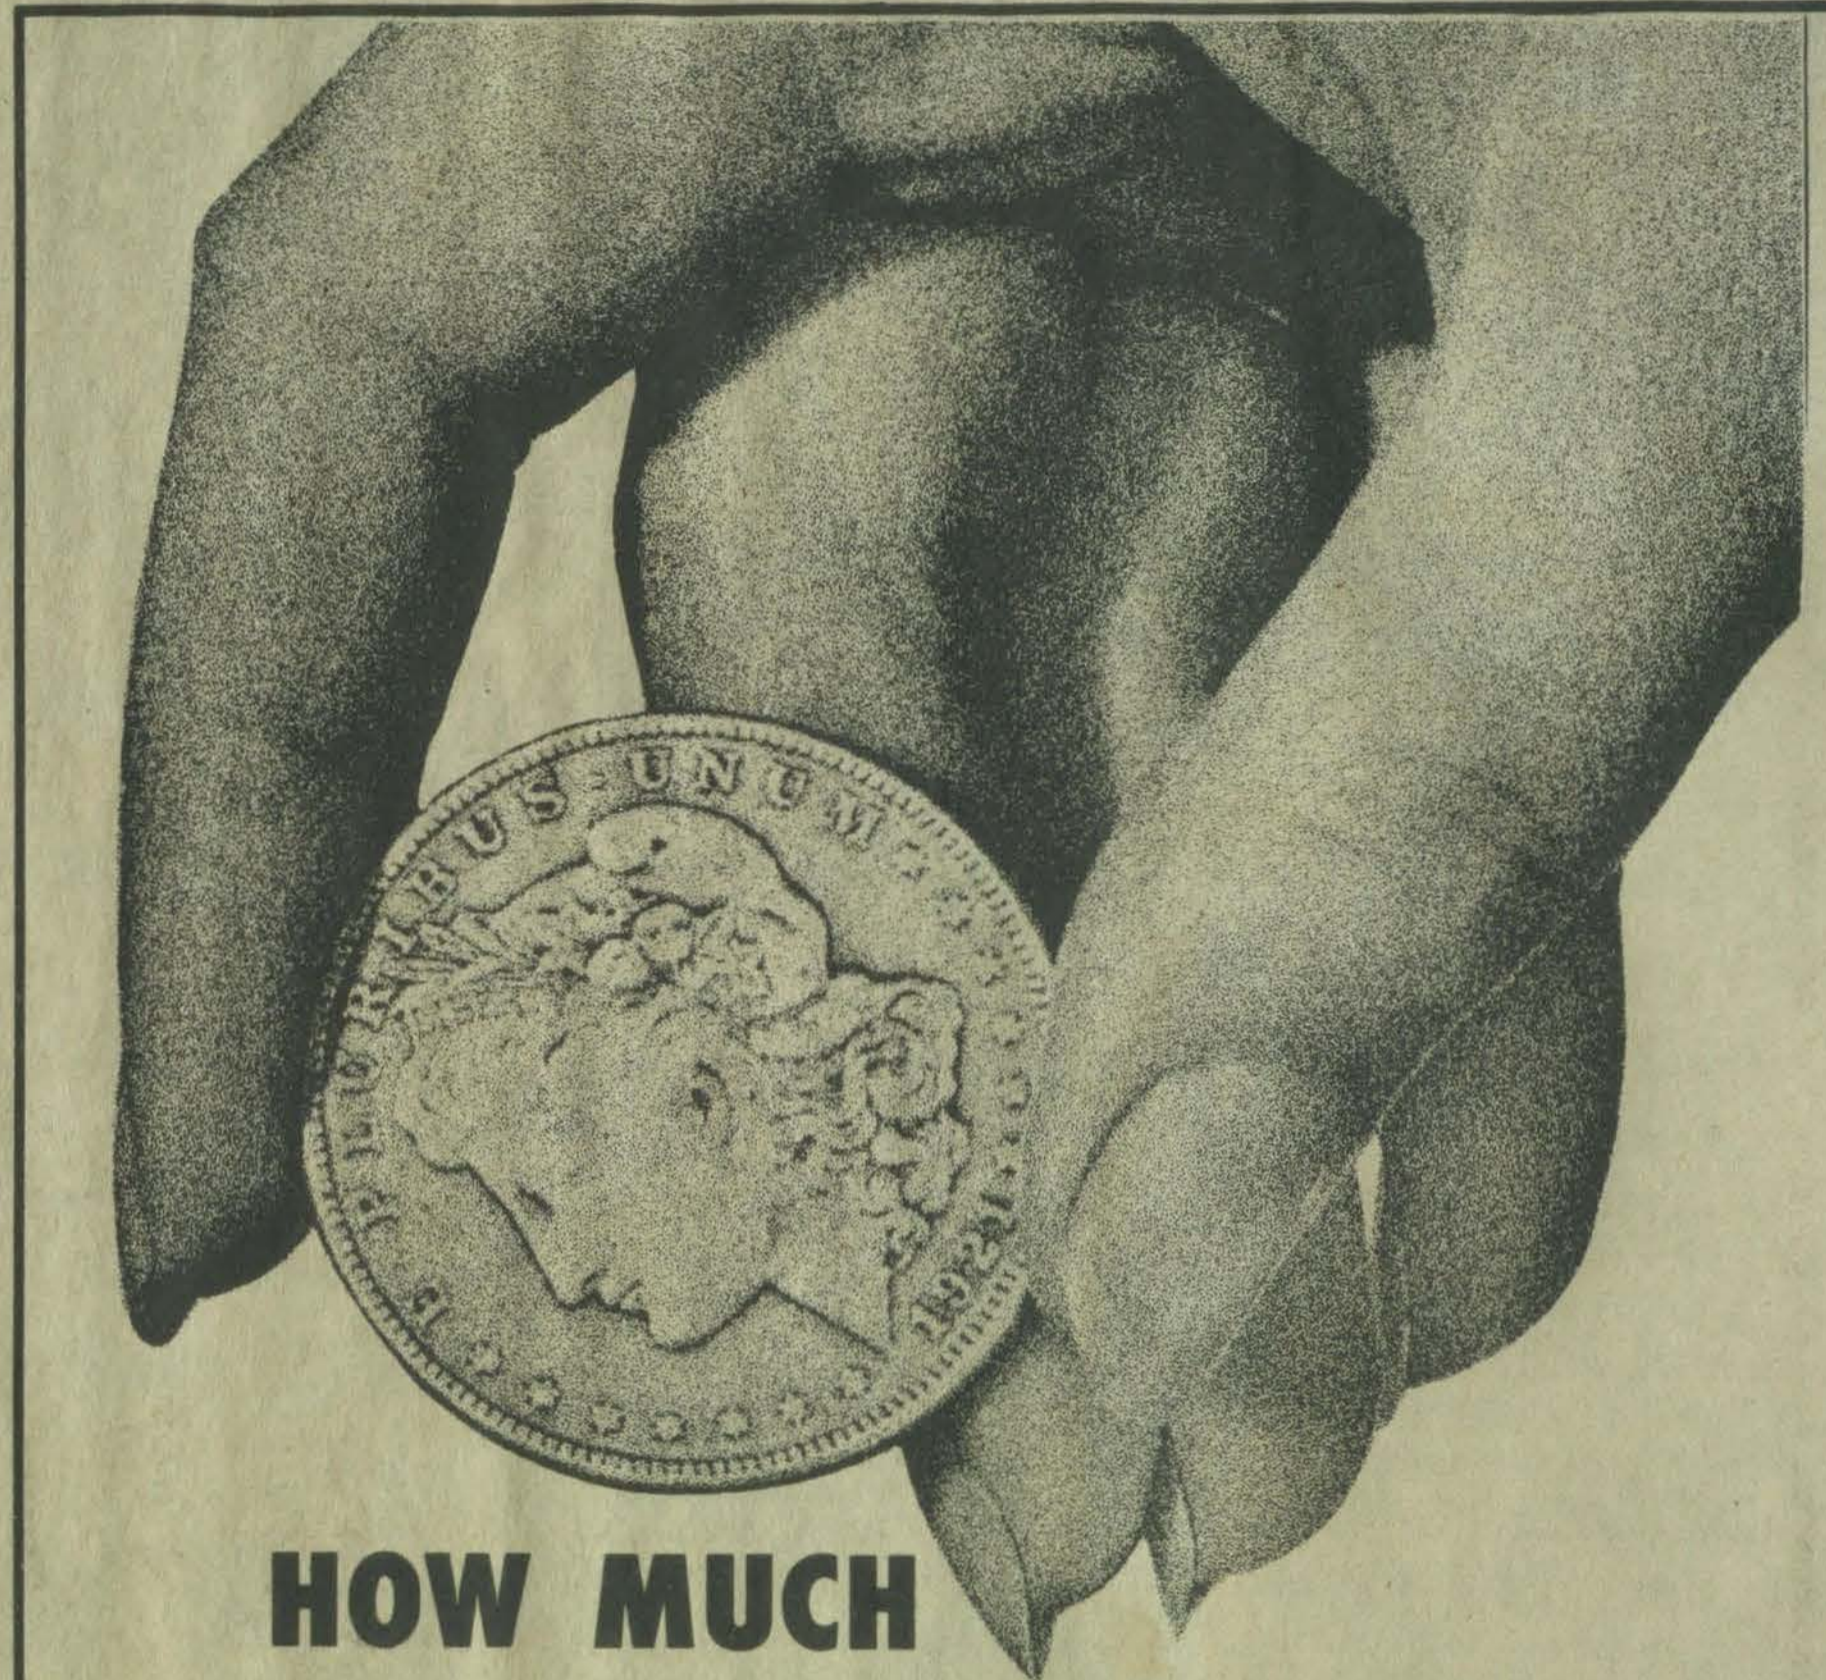

As in the past, there will be exhibits representing the areas of agriculture, education and industry. We are hoping to have a good many exhibitors, so the competition should be keen. Of course a big attraction at any fair is the midway with its rides and food stands, and we are going to have a fine midway again this year.

In the past, there has been some friction when the animal exhibits were brought in concerning health papers. There has always been some question as to the requirements for health papers. In order that the fair can be fun for everyone we are going to try to solve this problem before fair time this year.

The Division of Livestock Sanitation of the State Department of Agriculture requires that all animals shown in Kentucky, except Kentucky horses be accompanied by approved health papers. This includes dogs and cats as well as farm animals.

The requirements vary for each species, and the list of regulations is too long to list here. Therefore, we are going to try to send a copy of the regulations to all past exhibitors. It is possible, however, that your name may not appear on our list, even though you may want to exhibit some livestock. So, if you want to enter an animal in the fair, and you don't receive a copy of the requirements for a health certificate, contact the County Extension office in the Prestonsburg Post Office Building (Phone 886-2668) before August 19 and pick up a copy.

If we all do our part to observe the rules, we can have a good fair and everyone can have a lot of fun. So, let's all work real hard to have the best county fair ever this year.
