

Theatre Run Ends, Future Is Uncertain

Poor Housing Poses Threat; Association Seeks State Help

The curtain fell Saturday night on the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre with the final performance of "Jenny Wiley!" and there were those who now wonder if future productions will be staged there.

The season has been the most successful in the history of the theatre, but unless a solution of the problem of housing players and members of the production staff is reached the future of the theatre may be jeopardized.

Mitch Douglas, director of productions, said the housing problem has been serious for three years but became critical this year. From 12 to 15 boys, for instance, lived in dressing rooms at the amphitheatre, while others used tents. A dozen or more young women occupied a four-room house which had, Douglas said, faulty plumbing, no drinkable water and a septic tank which backed its contents into the bathtub.

To meet the situation the Drama Association has petitioned the state for help, asking the construction of a 40 to 90-foot, two-story, dormitory-type building to house 100 persons. "Huck Francis, association vice-president, said. Construction would be done wholly at state expense or in conjunction with the Drama Association. The structure also might be used after the theatre season as a men's dormitory for Prestonsburg Community College.

A Stratton Branch site has been approved for the proposed dorm, but a final decision on its construction rests with the Department of Parks.

Harold Cooley, drama association president, said attendance increased 30 per cent this year. But it also was pointed out (See Story No. 2, Page 12)

$3,716 Excess Fees Are Paid by Leslie

Sheriff Frank Leslie announced this week that he has returned excess fees to the county treasurer in the amount of $3,716.39 for the past year. His was the fourth payment of such funds reported this year by a county official.

Child, 8, Is Hanged Accidentally While At Play with Swing

Loretta Mullins, eight-year-old daughter of Delbert Denver and Lillie Sammons Mullins, was accidentally hanged Monday near her home at Sidney, Pike county. The tragedy apparently occurred as the child played on a rope swing.

Besides the parents, she is survived by three brothers, Larry, Billy and Mickal Mullins, and a sister, Naomi Mullins, all at home.

Funeral services were conducted Friday at 1 p.m. at the home of Millard Sammons on Arkansas Creek, near Martin, by ministers of the Church of Christ. Burial was made in the Sammons family cemetery under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

LEAR ON BEARDS

I am not feuding with the boys who insist on sporting whiskers, mustaches, flowing locks and the like. I say that to introduce our reader (readers?) to this limerick indited by one Edward Lear in 1846 and published in a volume which he called The Book of Nonsense. It reads:

There was an old man with a beard,
Who said: "It's just as I feared:
Two owls and a hen,
Four larks and a wren
Have all built their nests in my beard."

TROUBLE DOWNRIVER

The latest word on how it all turned out isn't at hand, but the Ashland Board of Education was under attack last week after it had issued rules and regulations about the hair, beards, dresses and so-on that students could or could not wear. Eight hundred students and parents objected. Here's what they were remonstrating against:

The board said hair can be no lower than one finger's width above the eyebrow, cannot cover the ears, must be tapered and not extend below the collar.

Beards and mustaches are outlawed along with sweatshirts and shirts with slogans and emblems. Students must wear

Folk Festival's 'Mr. Versatility'

When the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival gets under way, at the Jenny Wiley amphitheatre Sept. 3-5, almost every art and craft will be represented by talented men and women from a wide section of Appalachia, but it's doubtful if any will match Dennis Slone, of Allen (above) in versatility.

A banjo-picker first, Mr. Slone also plays the guitar, French harp and fiddle. He has performed in two National Folk Festivals, the Florida and West Virginia Folk Festivals and has appeared in the Kentucky Highlands Festival every year since its beginning.

The banjo at Mr. Slone's right was handcrafted from a blasting powder box during Depression days and was recently repaired and put into playing condition by the Allen man. He also repaired and refinished the old fiddle at left.

The list of performers registering with Mrs. Edith F. James, founder of the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival, continues to grow. The complete list of those to appear will be published next week.

Frasure's Creek Pupils May Not Attend Classes

When Floyd county schools opened Wednesday morning some 77 students of the Upper Frasure's Creek section began the new year by playing "hookey," and with their parents' blessings.

The children's absence from school was by their parents' design. In a petition circulated earlier in the week, Frasure's Creek residents announced their intention of keeping their children home from school. The petition, bearing 97 signatures, was aimed at the county highway department, rather than the school system. It stated, in effect, that until the highway department did something to improve the condition of the Frasure's Creek road, parents of that area would refuse to send their children to school. Copies of the petition were sent to Gov. Louie Nunn, Rep. Carl D. Perkins, County Judge Henry Stumbo and Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark.

Mrs. Troy Howell, of Frasure's Creek, said the road was in dire need of improvement, that it had not been graded in more than three years, and that damage to cars traveling the road was a frequent occurrence.

As of Tuesday, a reply from only one of those petitioned, Rep. Perkins, had been received, according to Mrs. Howell. Perkins wrote each of the petitioners, (See Story No. 4, Page 12)

Cato's To Open Here Thursday

Cato's store will become the newest member of the Prestonsburg business community when its doors open at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

The grand opening Thursday is the result of months of research, planning and renovation work by Cato Stores to provide up-to-the-minute shopping service to the people of the Prestonsburg shopping area. The new Cato's is located at North side Court St.

It will feature "in depth" selections of fashions for the modern woman, career girl, teen-ager, and boys, girls and infants.

Cato's decor and interior layout were designed by company architects to provide today's shopper with the ease and convenience found in the most up-to-date fashion centers.

"Instead of the old-time show windows and store interior being separated," W. H. Cato, founder of Cato Stores, pointed out, "the entire store is now the display area, allowing a customer to take in the whole store at a glance."

"Cato's is proud to be taking part in the growth of such a progressive and friendly community as Prestonsburg," Mr. Cato added. "The store will be staffed by local people and managed by Vernie Tackett." Cato Stores was founded by Mr. Cato in 1946. It operates stores in 12 southern states. The company's modern central offices and warehouse is in Charlotte, N. C.

Court Opinion In Floyd Case Being Sought

A Court of Appeals ruling on the legality of the issuance of a temporary restraining order by a circuit clerk in the absence of the circuit judge is being asked by Appalachian Volunteers and other in a continuance of their litigation with Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd schools.

The order in question was issued two years ago to restrain certain Mud Creek residents, AV's and VISTA members from entering on school property following an altercation at the Board of Education building here. The order was issued by Circuit Clerk Frank DeRossett in the absence of Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

The case was appealed to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the U. S. Supreme Court. Both courts returned it to the lower state court for decision. Last June the restraining order was dissolved on motion of W. W. Burchett, attorney for Mr. Clark, who pointed out that absence of AV's and VISTA's from the county made the restraining order no longer necessary.

Plaintiffs in the exparte action asked Judge Conley, however, for an opinion on the constitutionality of the issuance of a restraining order by the circuit clerk, and when he declined to make a ruling turned to the Appellate Court for a decision.

Regatta, Club Event Draw 35,000 to Park

Twin attractions—the National Outboard Association-sponsored regatta and the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club's annual fish fry—outdid threatening weather last week-end to attract to Jenny Wiley State Park one of the biggest park crowds ever.

The U. S. Corps of Engineers estimated the number of visitors for the two days at 36,500. A mammoth traffic jam resulted Sunday when, despite threatening weather, an estimated 3,000 motor vehicles lined the roadside, bumper to bumper, from Stratton Branch a distance of approximately three miles.

Forty-six boats entered the regatta. Entries were recorded from Ohio, Georgia, Louisiana and Illinois, in addition to those from Kentucky. There were 32 first-place winners, with one Eastern Kentuckian, Earl Justice, of Pikeville, in that group.

Barry Storm, recreation director at Jenny Wiley State Park, said a "bigger and better" regatta is in the planning already for next year. He quoted Ernie Threlkeld, of Shelbyville, regional chairman of the Virginia and other states who have been turned down may get benefits after all. The miners are suing U. S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Elliot L. Richardson, in an attempt to eliminate the X-ray as the medical test that determines whether a man has black lung or not. This practice, the miners charge, is in violation of the U. S. Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 and of the U. S. Constitution guarantee of the right to due process.

The plaintiffs, one of whom is Russell Johnson, 43, of Beaver, claim to be totally disabled by black lung. They were denied benefits, either because their X-rays did not show black lung, or, even if it did, a breathing test provided by Social Security failed to prove they were disabled. Several of these men have results from blood gas tests—which experts outside of Social Security feel are far superior to X-rays when it comes to detecting black lung—that show them to be disabled by black lung.

The youngest disabled miner in the group, Ray Hubbard, 39, Manchester Kentucky, charges that Social Security's X-rays and breathing tests are phoney and have nothing to do with whether a miner is disabled by black lung: "I'd start in Baltimore (Social Security's headquarters) and clean it up as I come down. They're paying the ones that they don't have to pay too long...When you're ready to die, you'll get your black lung! It's funny how you can go to see a doctor of your own choice and get a good report, an honest report, and then take a one-shot X-ray or a crackerbox breathing test from some Social Security doctor and get nothing." Typical of many of the plaintiffs, Hubbard, who started mining in his teens was forced to quit several years ago because of his health—yet Social Security turned him down on the basis of one X-ray.

Correction: The Hostilities Aren't Over

The Times was over-optimistic when the board of directors of the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Services Program agreed to resign and permit an interim committee to function while the program was being reorganized along OEO-suggested lines. We hailed the action as perhaps the end of what we termed "hostilities." But the hostilities aren't past. The board made concessions that were not inconsiderable when its members voted to remove themselves from the picture so that program reorganization could be effected and the poor of the county could benefit from this health service. Then the uncompromising spirit of bitterness on the part of some of the consumer group resulted in the filing of a protest with OEO and (or) the Office of Health Affairs.

One man, County Judge Henry Stumbo, appears to be the target of this protest. He must not be a member of the interim committee, it is contended.

If Judge Stumbo is to be barred from the committee, would any other representative of the Floyd fiscal court and county government be acceptable—or would such a person also be suspect in the eyes of the consumer group?

Another question: If Judge Stumbo or other official representative of the county is unacceptable as a committee member, then should the county bear the expense of providing quarters for the program and assume responsibility in any way whatsoever for the whole undertaking?

The Times wants to see this program continued. It enthusiastically received the news of the board's action toward compromise. We aren't interested in any power struggle. Those who truly need these health services aren't, either. They are not over-wrought about who has control, or who gets a job, or who wins the battle—they want medical care and treatment. Just that.

So it is that we have little patience remaining with those who would keep the fight going. If what has been offered is unacceptable, we suggest that we all try to forget the whole thing and go looking for something else to fight about.

Gov. Louie B. Nunn told a Madisonville audience that higher education in the 1960's was characterized by frantic physical growth to keep up with an "astounding" rise in the number of students. He said he hoped the 1970's would revert to a more orderly quest for academic excellence.

ARH To Operate Morgan Hospital

Morgan county's 50-bed hospital, now under construction, will be operated by Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc., a non-profit health care system serving communities in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia, it has been announced.

Signing of an agreement, under which ARH leased the hospital building and equipment for 99 years, was announced by Morgan County Judge Gene Allen in behalf of the county fiscal court.

ARH will take possession upon completion of the $1,480,000 facility, which is expected in September, 1972. Meanwhile, ARH will supervise the installation of equipment and recruit an administrative staff.

Because the hospital is non-profit, all the revenues from operations will be applied to operating expenses and to improvements in buildings, equipment and services.

"I think the people of Morgan county are fortunate in getting Appalachian Regional Hospitals to operate our hospital for us," Judge Allen said. "Our hospital and its patients will benefit from the extensive resources and technical knowledge of the ARH system and its professional personnel."

ARH, founded in 1963, operates nine community hospitals, including one at McDowell in this county, with a total of 1042 beds, and related health care services in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. It also maintains nine home health care agencies and two clinics and is building extended care facilities, doctors' office buildings and emergency care centers, including coronary care units.

Appalachian Regional Hospitals has 2900 employees, and more than 330 physicians and dentists serve on its medical staffs. Last year its hospitals served 42,804 inpatients and 76,148 emergency patients.

T. P. Hipkens, president of ARH, said: "We are grateful for the opportunity to serve the people of Morgan county and neighboring areas. We shall strive to deliver the high quality of health care of which they are deserving."

The hospital, with 25 acute-care beds and 25 extended-care beds, is designed to serve an area with 30,000 residents, all within 30 to 40 minutes' driving time. The area embraces all of Morgan county and parts of Elliott, Johnson, Magoffin, Wolfe, Menifee and Rowan counties.

Fontaine Banks, Jr., special assistant to ARH President Hipkens, said that initially the hospital would employ approximately 89 persons and would have a payroll of at least $250,000 a year.

The $1,480,667 cost of the new hospital was under written by a Hill-Burton grant of $591,667, a grant of $464,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission, and $425,000 in a county bond issue.

The Boy Scouts of America have been awarded a $700,000 Public Service Careers contract to train 200 disadvantaged persons as Scout officials to work with scout troops in economically depressed areas.

YOU AND THE DRAFT

Colonel Taylor L. Davidson

Frankfort, Ky.—Since the "draft lottery" of Aug. 5, local boards and State Headquarters have received numerous telephone calls about "lottery" numbers. Some of the questions asked are of state wide interest and the others pertain to the individual. Quite frankly we do not have the answers to all of the questions. However, "You and the Draft" would like to share three questions and our answers.

Perhaps the question most frequently asked is, "What young men received a 'lottery' number from the Aug. 5 drawing?" The answer to this is all Selective Service registrants born in the year 1952 received their Random Sequence Number (RSN) from this "lottery."

We have received many inquiries from registrants who have received their Random Sequence Number from the first (1969) or second (197) lottery wanting to know if they would get a new "lottery" number. This too is easy to answer.

Once a RSN has been assigned it is never changed, unless there is convincing evidence that the RSN is incorrect. This occurs when a young man gives an incorrect date of birth or the clerk inadvertently records the wrong number. It is human to err—in instances where a registrant has been given an incorrect RSN, they will be promptly corrected.

To reduce the frequency of such errors all local boards in Kentucky will shortly be mailing to their 1952-born registrants a short letter. It will inform them of their RSN as determined by the order their date of birth was drawn in the "lottery." All registrants receiving the letter should check to see if their date of birth is correctly shown. If it is not correct, "You and the Draft" urges you to promptly take your birth certificate to the local board in order that the error can be corrected. If you are in another city, this can be done by mail.

Some callers in the present prime age group (1951) want to know when they will become less vulnerable to the "draft." Any registrant born in 1951 who is in Class I-A at the end of 1971 and whose RSN has not been reached in his local board, will be moved into a reduced priority selection group in 1972. This is the second priority selection group in 1972 will go into a lower grouping (the third priority selection group). Less vulnerability to the "draft" does not apply to any registrant in the prime age group (1951) or in an extended priority status or who is a deferment.

The Senate failed to act on the joint committee recommendation resolving differences in the House and Senate actions to extend the "draft" before their summer recess. What priority they will give to this when they reconvene in September is not known. However, the System has authority to register, classify and deliver registrants to the Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Stations (AFES) for physical examination.

Young men in Kentucky born in 1952 with a low RSN will soon receive an Order to Report for Physical Examination. This will enable us to have a sufficient available manpower pool to fill our monthly call after Jan. 1, 1972, if the authority to induct is passed.

"You and the Draft" repeats its pledge to keep its registrants fully informed so that each young man will be treated with fairness and equity.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

While a group of us were going along a country road to a camping place a few summers ago, the truck in which our equipment was being hauled needed some water. The driver stopped at a wayside spring and returned a few minutes later with a large gourd full of water. At once we followed him back to the spring, and each one, regardless of the germ theory of disease, took a deep draught from the gourd. And then we talked about gourds all the rest of the way, and while we cooked our supper over the open fire, and even after we had put up our tents and lain down for the night. By pooling our memories, we made out enough uses for gourds to justify their being ranked as one of the leading crops in our area. Of course, all the younger generation will wonder why such tender memories could cling to an object so crude and elemental as a gourd, but some others, not so young any longer, will understand.

The gourd used as a dipper will be a good enough place to start. Much as the tin dipper is now used, and much as the health authorities would like to give it up, there was a time when the much-battered and abused tin dipper did not exist. Unless you wished to kneel down and take your drink, you had to dip it up in a gourd grown and cut for that very purpose. The bitter of the gourd gave a tang to the water that we never get now, better than the taste of chloride of lime by far and probably as deadly to germs, if any really existed in those days when we were younger and the constellations were nearer. A gourd dipper just fits a spring or a well but not a tap. If water must be drawn up from a well for a gourd to dip into, let it be drawn in a wooden bucket like the one in Wordworth's famous song. If you can think of incongruities, imagine a sign in a railroad car reading thus: "Common drinking gourd prohibited by law."

Not all gourds have a dipper-like bowl. Gourds grow in all sorts of interesting shapes. There are the dancing gourds beloved of our boyhood. And there are nest-egg gourds, formerly regarded as necessary on the farm. I do not know whether they are stylish in the hen-house now. Probably they have been replaced by these glass contraptions that we used to see displayed by the washtubful in front of every store. And gourds, hard and dry, form excellent containers for all sorts of kitchen things. One such gourd, flat like a pumpkin and holding two gallons or more, used to be the egg-container in a farmhouse that I knew. This old gourd had come all the way from North Carolina in a covered wagon and had served all these years in this useful way. Other gourds were used to dip up home-made soap, and others to hold salt and sugar and garden seeds. "The calabash," says an authority of seventy-five years ago, "is the sine qua non of a South Sea Islander's household equipment." In a very similar way the humble gourd served its time, until routed by germ-theories and a desire for cleanliness. Kitchen cabinets are well enough to hold food, but gourds were necessary when everybody ate victuals and thrived, too.

BURKE-OMEROD VOWS SAID

In an afternoon ceremony at the Community Methodist Church here, August 19, at 2 p.m., Miss Della Lou Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hern Burke, of Prestonsburg, became the bride of Mr. Michael Lane Omerod, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Omerod. The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Alton Brown, of the First Methodist Church, Louisa, before an altar decorated with urns of lavender and daisies with greenery, branched candelabra and an arch of daisies, carnations and lavender entwined with lavender and blue ribbons. A program of organ music was presented by Mr. John Grant Wheatly.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white lace gown which she had designed and made—a high-waisted, A-line dress with bateau neckline and long, gathered sleeves. The bodice and waist were trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones to match her Capulet hat and cathedral length train. She wore a necklace given her grandmother, Mrs. Ballard Herald, by her grandfather before their marriage in 1917. She carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis, baby breath, ivy and purple static. The bride's attendants, Janet Tackett, Sharon Rice, Vickie Burke, Dinah Smiley and Patsy Lafferty wore identical floor-length dresses of lavender and blue dotted swiss with fitted bodice and short puff sleeves. They wore garden hats of white lace and carried baskets of lavender and blue daisies. Beth Ann Moore, the flower girl, a cousin of the bride, wore a long peasant dress of embroidered lavender dotted swiss and carried a matching basket of flowers. The groom was attended by Dean Perry, best man, Randy Burchett, Steve Blair, Joe Tussey and Robert Edwards.

Mrs. Burke, mother of the bride, wore a dress of pink crepe. Her corsage was pink carnations and white daisies, with a headpiece of white organdy petals. Mrs. Omerod was attired in a lime-green dress, with a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church under the direction of Mrs. Joe Burke. The refreshment table, with an overlay of chinese grass linen, was centered with a blue glass epergne of Grecian design holding Vari-colored flowers, blue predominating. Candlesticks of blue glass matching the epergne held lavender candles. Mrs. Joe Buchanan presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Clyde Burchett served the decorated three-tiered cake. Mrs. Jonathan Moore was the guest register. Rice bags were presented by Leslie Kay Burke.

After a wedding trip to Lake Greenbo, Mr. and Mrs. Omerod will make their home at City Mobile Home Park. Mr. Omerod is employed at Radio Station WDOC. Mrs. Omerod will attend Prestonsburg Community College.

Arnold Mitchell Gets Top Fish, Game Post

Arnold Mitchell, for the past 14 years director of Game Management for the Department of Fish and Wildlife and a career fish and wildlife man, has been named commissioner of the Department. The action was taken by the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission after reviewing the 12 applicants for the position left vacant with the resignation of Minor Clark on July 1.

At the same meeting which decided on Mitchell's appointment, Dr. G. L. Allen, of Langley and Martin, and James McGlamery, of Boxter, took the oath of office as members of the commission for four years. Both had been re-appointed by Governor Nunn.

Mitchell, who has been with the department since his graduation from Purdue University with a degree in forestry and game management, is a native of Carlisle county, Kentucky. He served in the U. S. Air Force in the early '40's, later enrolled at Purdue. He became the Department's game biologist after his graduation and has also served as biologist, district wildlife director, manager of the Ballard County Wildlife Management area.

Dr. Robert C. Webb, of Grayson, commission chairman, pointed out that the commission had given intense and conscientious study to the applicants and had come up with what the commission considers a man highly capable of administering the huge fish and game program of the state. He urged sportsmen to join in a sincere effort to assist Mitchell and the commission in making the Kentucky department one of the very best in the nation.

Dr. Webb, who has served the past year as commission chairman, was re-elected to that post. John Botts, Glasgow, was named vice-chairman and Willy Riehemann, Fort Mitchell, was elected secretary.

Democrats Fill Courtroom Here At Ford Rally

Lieut. Gov. Wendell H. Ford found Floyd county Democrats in a more receptive mood last Friday night to his plea for support of his candidacy for the Kentucky governorship than they were in the primary.

The circuit courtroom was filled to capacity when he came here for his first public appearance in the county since the primary battle. He remarked that he didn't do too badly here in August—"I got about one of out of four," he said.

Introduced by Allie Howard, of Allen, Floyd campaign chairman, Mr. Ford promised that if he is elected governor, "Floyd county will no longer be fenced in."

One other definite promise he made. If elected, the portrait of Ex-Governor Bert Combs, which was removed from May Lodge early in the administration of Governor Nunn, will be returned there. "I know where it is," Ford added.

The lieutenant governor said he recognizes the need for the reconstruction of KK 80 from Allen to Hazard via Hindman but made no definite commitment during his speech. Earlier, he was quoted as saying the route will be improved, if he is elected.

At Jackson Saturday night he was joined by his running-mate, Julian Carroll, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and by Congressman Carl D. Perkins and Ex-Governor Combs. The latter spoke briefly, asking Democrats to unite behind the nominees of the Democratic party.

First Kentucky Fair Was Held in 1816

Louisville, Ky.—An integral part of any Kentucky Derby is a thorough discussion of the race's history among all interested parties. In fact, many Kentuckians may remember earlier races easier than more recent ones.

Unfortunately, the Kentucky State Fair doesn't seem to generate such nostalgic conversation. A look at the State Fair's history, however, shows that a number of interesting anecdotes have occurred.

The first state fair in Kentucky was held in 1816. It was set up by and held on the Georgetown Pike farm of Col. Lewis Sanders near Lexington. The event featured Sanders' Merino sheep—his hobby—the state's first showing of Durham cattle, and a political speech by Henry Clay.

Due to fluctuating economic trends, fairs were held somewhat sporadically through the 1800's. It wasn't until 1902 that the state legislature passed a bill making the fair "official." It has since been held annually, except in 1904 when a financial suit prevented allocation of funds.

In the early years of the fair, citizens of Louisville, Lexington and Owensboro fought bitterly over which city would be granted the permanent fair site. In 1907 the Louisvilleans put up $110,000 more than their Lexington rivals and were granted the permanent contract.

The 1947 appointment of J. O. Matlick, the first full-time fair manager, did much to strengthen the fair's wobbly financial legs and restore its former prestige.

Construction was begun in 1950 for new facilities and was completed in 1956 at a total cost of $16 million. Today it is valued at more than $38 million.

Perhaps most memorable are those incidents such as on opening day 1902, when two freight train locomotives were deliberately crashed head on at full speed. Likewise, few old timers will forget the summer of 1913 when a severe drought almost ruined Kentucky crops—and any chance of having the event. It was held nonetheless, but as one might guess, it rained every day of the fair.

Despite the changes and differences between early fairs and those of today, striking similarities remain in both the fairs and our times. In 1919 for instance, we were, as now, watching the progress of peace negotiations in Paris, extending the right to vote through a constitutional amendment, and worrying over an inflationary economy.

Today, although somewhat different in appearance, the fair exists for basically the same reasons that it did then—to provide direct communication between urban and rural cultures, to provide a bridge to future progress and to have a little fun while doing it all.

OBSERVE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Watt Hale, of West Prestonsburg, were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary, Aug. 15, with their children acting as hosts. They were visited during the afternoon by many relatives and friends. They also were remembered with many presents commemorative of their Golden Wedding.

explaining that the matter lay a little out of his jurisdiction, but that his sympathy lay with their cause, and that he had written the Kentucky Department of Highways concerning the matter.

Governor Nunn signed a lease turning the old Lincoln Institute, now the Whitney M. Young, Jr. Residential Manpower Center, over to the Louisville School Board. The action enables the school to reopen its doors by early fall to some 200 boys, ages 16-21, for social and vocational training.

FTC Attorney Plans A Look Into Kentucky Reclamation Ads

Pikeville, Ky.—A government attorney will definitely be in Pike and Letcher counties for a first-hand look into land reclamation advertising by coal surface mine operators, a Federal Trade Commission official in Washington said last week.

The visit is planned in connection with charges by U. S. Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., who told the FTC that advertisements showing beautifully reclaimed strip-mined land may be more

"fancy than fact."

Involved is the Surface Mining and Reclamation Association, headquartered in Pikeville with 50 members, and the Bethlehem Steel Corp's Beth-Elkhorn coal mining division which operates mines in the two counties.

The ad from Pikeville indicates that land pictured in their public relation promotions has been stripped and "restored to use and beauty." The information under the picture, taken at Fishtrap Lake in Pike county, says that "many of our (reclamation) successes go unnoticed. Many people see reclaimed land and don't know it."

The impact of the investigation, to be done in the next few weeks by FTC staff attorney Tom Grady, may not carry a great amount of influence with the two concerns. Their comments appeared not to indicate any concern on their parts.

Robert Bartley, executive secretary of the Pikeville organization, said he felt the news article two weeks ago in which Sen. Hart called for an investigation, was "just another article." Sen. Hart is chairman of the subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly legislation.

"We'll be glad to take them and show the spot at Fishtrap where the pictures were taken," Mr. Bartley said. A spokesman at the steel firm's headquarters in Bethlehem, Pa., said that company welcomed any inquiry.

Mr. Bartley said that to date he had not been contacted by anyone concerning the matter and that the only thing he knew about it was what he had read in the newspapers.

Edward Downs, assistant to the head of the FTC's division of food and drug advertising activities (which includes activities in all national advertising campaigns) said, "We don't want to condemn anyone until we find out the facts." He said Mr. Grady will contact state and local officials in the areas before going out for an on-the-scene look.

Detailed plans and specifications may be had by contacting Gordon Moore, Physical Education Supervisor, Floyd County Board of Education, Prestonsburg, Ky. 886-2354 or 886-3522.

The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

BUSIEST TIME OF YEAR FOR SPORTSMEN

Frankfort, Ky.—There's no dearth of activity for sportsmen during the fall months. If it's out-of-doors, then it occurs in the fall, running right on into the dead of winter.

Most fishermen will wish for the spring days for their fishing exploits. That is because fishing is good during this time but also because there is nothing else to do.

But in the fall weeks he may hunt, he may fish, he may shoot skeet or trap, or he may go on a combination hunting and fishing trip. This variety of great outdoor activity is what makes the fall months the most glorious for the sportsman.

There's the hunting season, which started as of Aug. 21 with the beginning of the squirrel season. This year the hunters of the commonwealth will harvest well over a million of these animals if the population is on a par with the past five years.

A few days later comes the dove hunting season, during which hundreds of thousands of rounds of ammunition will be fired in the direction of this fast-flying and elusive bird. Dove season opens Sept. 1 and continues solidly through October. There's a second season that opens Dec. 1 and continues through Dec. 9.

Dove hunting brings out the very best in a hunter and unless his eye is accurate he is apt to do much shooting with not too much return. However, this fast-firing sport holds a deep fascination for a great number of hunters.

There are two changes that the hunter should note in dove hunting this season. First, the bag limit has been reduced from 18 and 36 of last year to 12 and 24. Secondly, the ending time for shooting this year will be one-half hour before sunset. Last season the closing time was at sunset. The half-day shooting will begin at 12 noon prevailing time in all areas.

If a hunter is not inclined toward either squirrel or doves, he may spend many busy afternoons on the skeet and trap ranges. Early fall sees the ranges running full steam ahead and many gunners sharpen their eyes for the coming seasons in this manner. And there are a great number of shooters who do not participate in hunting, but obtain their satisfaction solely from the ranges.

Even if the outdoorsman does not wish to hunt or shoot the ranges he can still keep busy during autumn. Throughout October the archery season for deer of either sex is open in every county in the state. That'll keep a great number of sportsmen in the out-of-doors.

If none of these pastimes is appealing, then the sportsman may turn back to fishing. There's good fishing to be had in most of the lakes and streams during the fall months. In fact, black bass fishing rivals that of early spring in most impoundments. And the bluegill continue to hit, as do the crappie and the catfish.

If none of these ventures are accepted then the man who likes the out-of-doors can find no better time than fall to wander over the hills and valleys, along creek banks and on the lakes for a picture of nature that is seldom painted for parsons in other states.

Rare Clay Volume Donated

A rare autographed copy of the "Life, Memoirs and Writings" of Cassius M. Clay, whose restored Madison County home, White Hall, will become a state park later this month, has been presented to the state to be displayed in the mansion. The book was a gift of Herndon J. Evans, retired editor of the Lexington Herald. Here Governor Louie B. Nunn accepts the volume on behalf of the state and the park.

The book is one of the original copies, printed in 1886. Cassius Marcellus Clay, American statesman, anti-slavery writer, Bowie Knife wielder, Ambassador to Russia and outstanding Kentuckian, gave the copy to a friend, Mrs. T.J. Million, in August 1898, for her friend, Mrs. Robert Elwood, of Pineville. Mrs. Elwood gave the book to Mr. Evans in 1935.

A note written in the book to Mrs. Million said, "I am always ready to receive my hereditary friends the Millions. I am not very well but will receive our friends in cool evenings from 3 to 6 p.m. when we have shade. Your friend, C.M. Clay."

Libraries Cooperate In Essay Contest

Frankfort, Ky.—Tabloids for the 1971 Conservation Essay Contest have been distributed by the Department of Libraries to public libraries throughout the state.

The tabloids, entitled "Land Use," were designed as supplements for Kentucky students participating in the essay contest.

The annual contest is sponsored by the Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times in cooperation with the Kentucky Assn. of Soil and Water Conservation Districts and the Kentucky Department of Education. The subject of this year's contest is "Land Use—Its Effect On My Land Environment."

The tabloids have also been distributed to all schools throughout Kentucky. Because it was impossible to print sufficient numbers of tabloids so that every student may have one, the copies were distributed to the libraries for reference use.

The idea behind the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

Twenty-three years ago, we had an idea for a small economy car. And it came out looking like a bug. Twenty years ago, we had an idea for a giant station wagon. And it came out looking like a box. Then we had an idea for a sedan that combined all the economy of our bug with a lot of the capacity of our box. So you'd expect it to come out looking half bug, half box. Right? Wrong. Our Squareback Sedan looks like a small station wagon. But by squaring off its back and adding a trunk in front, our little sedan can give you over twice as much carrying space as the biggest domestic sedan. Years ago, we learned the important thing isn't the way a car looks on the outside, but how it works on the inside. And so it's just as true today as it was then: You can't judge a Volkswagen by its cover.

Harold Kelley, chairman of the Public Service Commission, suggested that a state water and sewage district authority be created to help communities set up local water districts. Kelley said about one-half of the state's 162 water districts are operating with a deficit.

How To Square Dance? New Book Will Help

West Liberty, Ky.—All too soon the stars that had shone like gold and silver hatpins stuck in the pincushion of sky were wearing themselves out and soon would become cold and pale in the lavender of morning. A baby or two awakens from the pallet. Instruments are put aside. Shawls and bonnets are brought from a side room and outside young couples pair off for the exciting walk through the woods toward home.

"You'ens come," calls Uncle Josh to his departing guests.

"You'ens come," answer the Jetts and others.

The above is part of a 64-page booklet on the art of square dancing, and while this and other descriptions of old-time customs in the hills of Kentucky and other mountainous regions will not teach anyone how to square dance, other parts of the book will.

Last winter Richard Jett, principal at Wolfe County High School, Campton, asked me to collaborate with him on a book that would be written in such a way that the many different figures in square dancing could be easily mastered. We believe we have put together such a book.

For eight years Richard has been calling week-end square dances on Hoedown Island in Natural Bridge State Resort Park near Slade, Ky., just off Mountain Parkway.

"Join your hands and circle south, get a little sunshine in your mouth," one verse begins.

And if Richard were directing a circle of Friday or Saturday night dancers in the big set, he would then instruct them—if they were beginners—to join hands and move left or clockwise for about eight steps. Then he'd call, "The other way back on the same old track," and dancers would move a few steps in the opposite direction.

In the book, which is called "Square Dancing in the Mountains of Eastern Kentucky," he even has "Do it again, you didn't do it right; hurry up now, don't take all night."

In my researching the history of mountain dancing I discovered that the art was more than 1000 years old. From their beginnings in the Isles across the sea, the dances traveled through parts of the European continent, across the Atlantic to the coastal settlements, then across mountains to dark and remote hollows where they stayed.

In England, mother country of some of the figures, time brought changes to the dances, but in parts of the Kentucky mountains landlocked for many years, square dancing continued as it had been done 1000 years ago.

Relaxed this summer, the book already is being used by recreation directors in schools, parks and churches and is on sale in gift shops in some of Kentucky's state parks including Natural Bridge.

I don't claim to be an authority on square dancing. Back in bobby-socks days when I wore my first pair of long stockings on my first date at my first square dance, my makeshift garters didn't work and I lost both stockings about halfway through the set. I also lost the date.

But I gained respect for the people in the hills who could work all day in their fields or cook long hours in big country kitchens, then go to a neighbor's home or one-room school and dance as if they hadn't turned a hand.

At White Oak in Morgan County the May family used to have "workings" and all the neighbor men for some distance would gather to thresh wheat or cut hay while the women and children worked in the kitchen cooking chicken and dumplings and making peach cobbles. Late in the evening, the hard work done and supper over, everyone enjoyed a square dance and a taffy pull before they made their way home.

The book has instructions for 45 dances, including Kentucky Running Set and Big Set figures, Appalachian Mountain dances, Western Style square dances and some for the "youngens," like the Salty Dog Rag. There are photographs of past dances at Hoedown Island and contest winners.

Sept. 12-19 has been designated National Square Dance Week, but the week-end before—Labor Day week-end—the island at Natural Bridge will be the setting for the Sixth Annual Western-Style Square Dance Festival.

The book will be available then, but for those who might like to order one, the cost of $2.50 covers postage and handling. Mail to Richard Jett, Mountain Dance Enterprises, West Liberty, Ky. 41472.

The book has a number of bonuses including an article by Larry and Alicia Adams, widely known Western style square dance callers, of Indianapolis, who tell about past visits to Hoedown Island.

There is a brief history of the park and the trains of the old L&E, something about ballads, and Richard's first square dance at the home of the Widow Carrie McIntosh near the mouth of Puncheon Creek in Breathitt County. Diagrams and instructions for the many dances are put together in a way that makes square dancing much easier for beginners.

Whatever you do, be sure that "You'ens come" to the big Western-Style Dance Festival at Natural Bridge on Friday night, Saturday afternoon, Saturday night and Sunday night of Labor Day week-end. Special guests will be square-dance teams from many states, old-time fiddler Sanford Kelly of Morgan County, and 10-year-old fiddling virtuoso Mike King and his grandfather from Oxford, Mich., formerly of Primrose, Ky.

Marijuana Crop Seized, Burned By Ky. Troopers

Two alumni and two students of Kent State University lost a summer's work last week when Kentucky state troopers confiscated or burned an estimated $35,000 worth of marijuana which had been grown on an acre of Johnson county land.

Jailed and later released under bonds totaling $40,000 were Gary Michael Summers, 24, of Cincinnati, owner of a farm which he had bought near Stambaugh from Wes Mason; David Kime, 24, of Canton, O.; Georgetta Badescu, 23, of Cincinnati, and Randall Louis Ristow, 23, of Canton, Ohio.

Making arrests, and destroying three separate crops of marijuana were B. J. Music, Kentucky State Police detective from Paintsville; State Police Detective Chester D. Potter, of Prestonsburg; Sgt. Ellis Flora, of Pikeville; Troopers John Brenner, of McDowell; Delmar Ison, Kenneth Debord and Keith Scott, of Paintsville, and Hassel Caudill, U. S. Treasury agent from Pikeville.

Detective Music said the farm had been under surveillance since the preceding Wednesday, with one or more troopers observing it continuously. Music said that the lead source was considered confidential, but that a sample of the unusual crop had been taken to state laboratories for identification several days earlier and promptly tagged as marijuana.

Cats under New Coach Face First Test Here Friday Night

Prestonsburg high school's Black Cats will open a brand-new football season here Friday evening at 8 under the guidance of their new coach, Ed Radjunas, when they resume their annual grid rivalry with the Wheelwright high school Trojans.

Although they lost last week to Whitesburg, 54-12, the Trojans enter the game with the advantage of actual game experience. Prestonsburg is an unknown quantity, but Coach Radjunas is hopeful the team will develop as the season progresses.

Already Radjunas has achieved the unusual. He has succeeded in getting as many as 65 boys in uniform for practise sessions.

The Cats start with an inexperienced interior line after last spring's losses to graduation, but two veterans, Randy Leslie and Phillip Neeley, remain at the end positions. With considerable backfield talent, the team's prospects are bright, if line strength can be developed, it was said.

Next week, the Cats will play Tate's Creek high at Lexington.

Coach Radjunas is being assisted by Charles Collins and John Wayne Shepherd.

To Be Pageant Judge

Jule Huffman (Mr. Cartoon of WSAZ-TV) will be one of the judges at the Miss Floyd County Scholarship Pageant to be presented Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre.

The other two judges for the pageant are Mrs. Donald Flatt, of the Morehead State University Personnel Development Institute, and William Taylor, of Louisville, who is associated with the Development Institute, and William Taylor, of Louisville, with the Miss Kentucky Pageant.

The Miss Floyd County Scholarship Pageant is sponsored by the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club.

Work 6 Murders, 131 Liquor Cases

Among the 546 criminal cases in which State Police personnel from Post 9, Pikeville, were involved during the first six months of this year, six were murder cases and 131 were for liquor law violations.

The report released this week by Capt. Billie Lykins, commander of the post, covered the period from Jan. 1 to June 30. Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties are served by the post.

Intoxicating beverages confiscated in the four counties during the six months ending June 30 included 29,868 cans of beer, 191 pints of whiskey, 1,167 half-pints of whiskey, 65 half-pints of gin, 4 pints of vodka, 133 half-pints of vodka, 136 pints of wine, 6 "fifths" of wine and 6 half-gallons of "moonshine."

Fifteen fatal accidents in which 17 were killed were handled by troopers from the post. A total of 431 traffic injuries were investigated. In all, 820 accidents were reported by the troopers.

Thirty-six stolen vehicles were recovered during the period. Traffic and other violations handled by the post totalled 4,357.

Indiana Authorities Here in Probe Of Blast Death of Mrs. Newsom

Indiana authorities were scheduled to return here Tuesday to resume their investigation of the June 20 explosion-fire at Plymouth, Ind. in which Mrs. Dolly Belle Newsome, 30, wife of Donald Newsome, was fatally burned.

Representatives of the Indiana fire marshal's office and the state Arson Division have been here on three previous occasions and have questioned several persons, including the victim's husband.

Mrs. Newsome was burned over 80 per cent of her body. Officers who sat in on the questioning of witnesses said Donald Newsome told them he and his wife went to the home of her sister, Mrs. Sally Ray, to spend the night and that her sister and husband were not at home. His wife entered the home first, according to this report, and after switching on the light struck a cigarette lighter as he was entering the room. He said he heard the explosion but saw no fire.

A half-filled gasoline can was found in the room. The building was little damaged. The home was insured.

Mrs. Newsome was a daughter of Ollie and Molly Goodman Robinson, of Martin, and her husband formerly resided on Middle Creek.

Motel Robbery Suspect Insane

Robert Wayne Benfield, one of two men wanted in this county for the holdup staged a few months ago at the Jenny Wiley Motel, near Auxier, has been adjudged criminally insane and sentenced to the Colorado State Hospital at Pueblo, Colo., Sheriff Frank Leslie was notified this week. Word of his accomplice is lacking.

Locally, two cases of breaking and entering were reported. In one of these Raymond Gilliam was arrested by State Trooper Gary Rose on a charge of breaking into the home of Mack Rollins. In other, six juveniles were jailed Monday, accused of breaking into a school. Others booked at the county jail within the week included:

Mark Trimble and James E. Shively, both charged with operating trucks without Kentucky usage license, arrested by Transportation Officer Eugene Mullins; Gary Damron, Timmy Kidd and Harold Damron, petty larceny, by Deputy Sheriff Homer Mullins; Leroy Sanford, no operator's license, by Eugene Mullins; Deland Hall, drunk driving, by State Trooper Bevins; Lawn Gibson, a.w.o.l., by State Trooper Williamson; Kenneth Calhoun, drunk driving, by Trooper Williamson; Larry Shortridge, drunk driving, by State Trooper Conley; Betty Blackburn, shoplifting, by Prestonsburg Policeman Thornsberry.

Gov. Louie B. Nunn told a group involved in Kentucky's horse industry that vaccine to immunize horses against the Venezuelan "sleeping sickness" would be available commercially in the state in about six weeks. Earlier, Agriculture Commissioner J. Robert Miller ordered an embargo against horses from Texas and four surrounding states seeking to enter Kentucky.

head for the clear or get out of the line of fire," he said.

Brown said under federal law the blasters must use specified electric methods, which keeps them inside the mine.

The crew is supposed to take cover at safe intersections. Brown said the victims did, but that explosives nearby were set off by the freak accident.

"We believe the coal fragments ricocheted off the timber or coal rib," he said. "It was like shooting a pistol at the wall from an angle."

The state report said that of the 14 miners, 11 were ordered outside by the foreman before the blasting operation.

Brown said the only possible blame accruing on the victims is that two small wagons of electric detonators and permissible sticks of explosives were stored next to each other when state regulations specify there must be at least 15 feet separation.

"It goes back to the human element," he said.

Brown said the mine is operated by Benny Slone, a preacher, and that apparently all equipment was proper and authorized and the workers were instructed correctly on safety procedures.

"The federal inspectors may give him a rough time," Brown said. "... They still think maybe something else is involved, but I don't think they'll find anything."

Citing Pike county records in the past few years, Brown said he believes "more people have been killed and hurt from electric detonation than from caps and fuses" in small mines.

"Fine-Free" Month At Floyd Library

The Floyd County Library announces there will be no charges for books and materials that are overdue at the public library from this date through September 30.

"Regardless of how long the materials have been overdue, they may be returned without charge," Homer L. Hall, regional librarian, said. "Our main concern is having the materials for all of our patrons."

Investigator Blames Safety Act In Pike Mine Deaths of Two

A Kentucky Mines and Minerals Department official said last week the federal Coal Mine Safety Act is partly to blame for the deaths of two men Aug. 16 in a Pike county mine explosion.

Everett Brown, district supervisor at Pikeville for the department, said the men would have been outside the mine at the time of the blast had older methods been used.

He acknowledged that federal investigators would not necessarily agree with him.

Clyde Chapman and Okie Fields, both of Meta, died in an explosion inside a Spring Branch Coal Co. mine. A third man escaped injury.

Although federal inspectors have issued no statement and neither the U. S. nor state investigation is complete, Brown said he has reached a tentative finding. The conclusion says:

"It was generally agreed by the state investigators along with management and employes of the company that an undisclosed amount of explosives was accidentally detonated... by flying coal which struck the explosives with sufficient impact to cause detonation. That was the direct cause of the accident."

"Being forced to use the delay type of electric blasting caps to blast coal as a result of the new federal regulations was a contributing factor."

Brown said workers in small underground mines customarily have used blasting caps and fuses, which enabled them to get outside the mine if they wished. "When they'd light the fuse, they'd just

Reclamation Director Is Accused Of Conspiring With Strip-Miners

Lexington, Ky.—A former director of the Council of Southern Mountains has charged the director of the state Division of Reclamation with being in "active conspiracy" with strip miners in Eastern Kentucky.

In a letter which, he said, was mailed Wednesday to Gov. Louie B. Nunn, Warren Wright called Elmore Grim, division director, "a harried man who yields, under pressure, to the greater stress."

He called upon Nunn for "an investigation, by neutral people" of permits issued for strip and auger mining in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky.

Wright, a board member of Save Our Kentucky (SOK) Inc., said his complaint began when a mining firm moved onto his property in Letcher County.

The miners, he told Nunn, told him they had entered his property by accident, but "there are too many facts belying this. The Division of Reclamation had not issued a permit for them to be anywhere in that watershed."

When he complained to Grim, he said in the five-page letter, he was told "a willful violation would be hard to prove" and later was informed that the division had settled out of court for a $300 fine.

The maximum fine under the strip mine law, Wright said, would have been $5,000.

"Where in the hell does he (Grim) get the authority to interpret the chapter" of state law regarding strip mining and penalties for violation of the law, Wright asked the governor.

Wright said this incident prompted him to have land being stripped and auger mined by the same mining firm surveyed to determine the degree of slope at various points.

Kentucky law forbids strip mining on land of more than 27 degrees slope and auger mining on land of more than 33 degrees.

In affidavits by Bob Willard, of Burdine, and David Grimrod, of Allen, submitted with Wright's letter to Nunn, seven areas were cited where the slopes violated limits.

These readings, Wright said, are as much as 10 degrees more than those "marked down on official Frankfort records" in the Division of Reclamation.

"Someone is lying, and on paper; you have our affidavits and will have many more as time goes by," Wright's letter, dated Aug. 10, but mailed just Wednesday, said.

"Don't you think an investigation by neutral people is warranted?" he asked.

Burieta Gearhart To Head Campaign For Arthritis Funds

The Kentucky Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation has named Miss Burieta Gearhart, Floyd county chairman to head its 1971 campaign for funds to fight arthritis. The drive will be conducted during September, according to Richard M. O'Connell, president of the Chapter.

"We're not mincing words about arthritis," said O'Connell. "Our catchphrase is 'Arthritis is living hell,' because that is precisely what it is for many of its victims."

"You hear a lot about the so-called 'minor aches and pains' of arthritis," he said, "but for many victims it can mean a nightmare of pain and gradual crippling and is very serious indeed."

One in 11 Americans of all ages has arthritis, he pointed out. That means that in Floyd county alone there are 3,160 arthritis victims.

The Arthritis Foundation's 1971 Victory Campaign will seek funds to improve medical care facilities for arthritis in Kentucky and for research seeking the final victory over arthritis—cause and cure.

Way To Cleaner, Greener State

The Department of Natural Resources, Division of Clean-up and Beautification, recently rewarded several Boyd county youths for their participation in the Boyd county clean-up '71.

The recipients, ages 11 to 18, were essay, poster and photography winners of a county-wide contest sponsored throughout Ashland and Boyd County schools.

The "Clean-up Ashland, Boyd County" campaign was a local endeavor, involving the entire community. Some 75 organizations, including industrial leaders, women's clubs and educators, participated in community meetings to devise ways and means of removing solid waste from the heavily industrialized area.

Dr. Wayne Franz, Boyd county health officer, spearheaded the clean-up movement, assisted by Mrs. Herma Jean Wellman, R. N.; County Judge George R. Hall; Ashland city manager intern Walter Howard, a senior at Morehead, and the Ashland area Chamber of Commerce.

For greater organization, Ashland was divided into 14 districts; Boyd county into 7—each district captained by an area leader.

Individuals were encouraged to clean up homes, garages and attics and dispose of bulky or unsightly trash items which were collected free of charge during the entire month of April. George Cooksey, county land-fill operator, donated free land-fill for the month.

Som 40-50 tons of trash was disposed of during the campaign.

CARD OF THANKS

We also wish to thank the Nelson Improvement Program for its kind deed, and to Hall Brothers' Funeral Home, our special thanks go to you for your kind and efficient services.

To Whom It May Concern:

A pair of Spindletop Research reports have suggested a change in state law to allow banks to operate across county lines. The reports cite regional shortages of capital for business loans, and faults poor support by small banks of their local communities.

A "hot-line" wired for consumer protection

By DAVE THOMPSON

Frankfort, Ky.—A major communications link between Kentucky consumers and the Citizens Commission on Consumer Protection was realized last week when the state agency installed a toll-free telephone line.

Consumers across the state can now register complaints with Executive Director Robert L. Caummisar by dialing 1-800-372-2960.

The commission approved the hot line on July 14. Caummisar said the purpose of the line, which is funded solely by the consumer agency, is to provide a quick remedy for persons who feel they have been shortchanged in the marketplace, either in goods or services.

The normal means of communications with the public since the commission's beginning in July 1970, has been by mail. Caummisar added it sometimes takes mail three days to reach his office and another three days before the complainant would receive a reply.

"We hope now to receive a complaint and return an answer in one day," he said.

Consumers are asked to register the complaint first with the local firm or individual responsible for the problem.

"If there is no satisfaction at the lower level, he should go to the parent company," he explained. "If no satisfaction is received there, that is the time to give us a ring."
