

Floyd Asks Work Funds Allotment County Apportioned $161,376 To Effect Unemployment Cut

The application required for Floyd county to benefit from $161,376 of federal funds available under the Emergency Unemployment Act was being prepared here this week after an earlier application asking $302,000 required revision.

The funds to provide employment are under two sections—Title V, which expires next Aug. 31, and Title VI which is designed to provide continuing employment.

This new employment program is in addition to existing poverty programs. The first Title V funds became available only last Friday when Governor Nunn apportioned to the state's 120 counties $3.9 million—exactly half the total allowed the state.

The application, prepared with the assistance of Joseph L. McCauley, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development Office, points out that the unemployment rate in this county is 12.1 per cent, that the per capita income is about $1364 a year and that 62.2 per cent of the county's population is under the poverty guidelines for family income.

One-third of those to be employed under the new program must be veterans. Applicants for employment will register with the State Employment Office here, which will screen applicants as to need and qualification.

Mr. McCauley and his staff have the task of working with officials of five counties in the area in the preparation of their applications for funds made available under the Emergency Unemployment Act.

Knott county, which has a high unemployment rate, will receive only $25,000 of these funds—largely because, it is explained, the unemployed there have failed to register with their unemployment office.

Bond of $15,000 Asked of Each Of 3 Arraigned

Three men arrested recently after spurious checks had been cashed here were held to $15,000 bond each last Saturday after a preliminary hearing held by County Judge Henry Stumbo. They entered pleas of not guilty.

Although the three—Earnest Hamm, Jr., Max Hylton and Carl Edward Stephens—were held only on the charge of knowingly receiving stolen property, federal charges are expected as a result of an investigation being made by the FBI. Checks cashed here were among 70 stolen from an Ohio firm.

Ervin Marsillet, who was held here on the federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, was returned to Florida last Wednesday. It was said he will face a theft charge there.

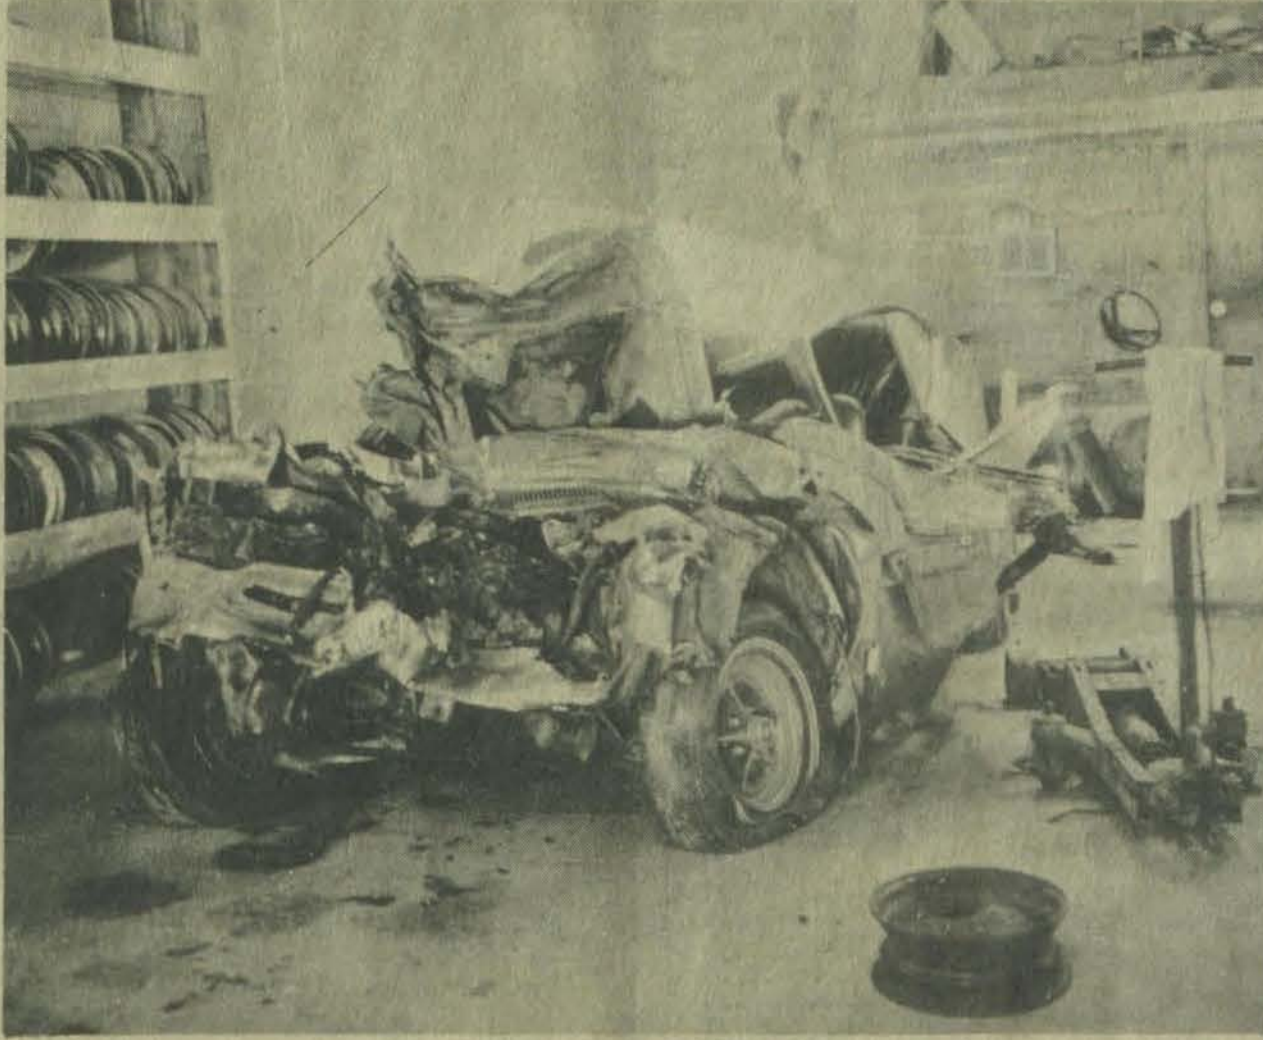

The attempt of Larry Howard, of Lynn, Ky., to gain his liberty via habeas corpus proceeding failed in circuit court here Friday. Howard, who was convicted on three counts of involuntary manslaughter in the auto collision deaths of Mrs. Elder Wright and her two daughters, has served one year of his jail term.

Basing his plea on the omission of the word, "Consecutively," in the Sept., 1968 order sentencing him to the jail term and to pay a fine of $1,000 in each of the deaths, Howard contended that he had served one year and was entitled to liberty.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley ruled, however, that, although the word was omitted from his order, it was the intention of the court that Howard's terms, run consecutively, or a total of three years, and not concurrently.

BLACK CAT BOOSTERS TO MEET THURSDAY

The Prestonsburg Black Cat Boosters Club will meet at the high school cafeteria at 7:30 this Thursday evening. All interested parents and sports fans are invited to attend.

The Driver Survived This Wreck

Although the '69 Buick here shown was described by Frank Adams, who deals much with wrecks and wrecked cars, as "the worst turn-up car I've ever seen," its driver, James Stanley, Aurora, Ill., survived the wreck which reduced it to this state on the Mountain Parkway, near here, early last Wednesday morning. Believed fatally injured and suffering multiple fractures, Stanley was taken to the UK Medical Center, Lexington, where his condition was described Tuesday as "satisfactory." The Illinois man, apparently asleep, plowed his car into a Cedar Hills Dairy truck driven by Wendell Wallen, of Water Gap. The bed of the truck was torn away. Wallen escaped with minor hurts.

Shriners, Vets Among Groups Set For 'Salute to America' Parade

The time for Floyd county's "Salute to America" parade has been advanced from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 30, in order to afford Shriners an opportunity to have a part in the event, it was announced this week by Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Eastern, director of the Veterans Day Patriotic Parade Association.

Oleika Temple units will represent the Shrine in the parade.

Veterans, including those of World War I, will be a part of the parade, as will be high school bands, the Jockey Patrol (on mini-bikes), a motor patrol, dune-buggies, a boy carrying the open Bible, floats depicting the Statue of Liberty and Uncle Sam.

Disabled American Veterans (DAV's) will conduct the opening services at the Prestonsburg high school fieldhouse, and a feature of the program will be the crowning of a "Miss Red, White and Blue" and a junior miss of the same title. A group of Maytown pupils of the first three grades will represent Indians, with their teachers appearing as squaws. The title of their representation will be, "First Americans for America First."

Reveille will be at 5:30 p.m., with ceremonial lowering of the flag.

Curtis Clark, Prestonsburg city manager, will act as parade marshal. The October 30 observance will be the second of its kind in the county. The first, held last year, attracted to Prestonsburg, one of the largest crowds to gather here.

'Ky. Fried Chicken' Outlet Is Planned For Prestonsburg

Cecil E. Fannin, of Ashland, announced here last week the opening, possibly by year's end, of Kentucky Fried Chicken in Prestonsburg.

The new outlet will be at the corner of Patton street and U. S. 23, adjacent to the new Bank Josephine branch bank. Mr. Fannin said the former Harvey Patton building on the lot will be razed and that he will construct a 30x50-foot brick-and-block structure to house the business and afford seating for 40 persons. Work is scheduled to begin about Nov. 1.

A carry-out service and catering service for groups of any size will be provided, Fannin said. The menu will include, in addition to the fried chicken made famous by Col. Harland Sanders, a variety of sandwiches and salads.

Floyd Men Join Move To Combat Migration

This Town . . . That World

The old adage runs to this effect: "You're never too old to learn." We merely missed one word last week. But what one little word can do!

THIMBLE, THIMBLE

Things, somehow, get misplaced around here. Never lost, just temporarily missing. Our searches for thimble, thimble are usually directed by yours truly, whose instructions run like this:

"If it isn't on the desk, try the wastebasket. If it isn't there, as a last resort look in the files."

WHO KNOWS?

We're in the process of gathering into the national bosom (does a figure such as Uncle Sam have a bosom?) Red China, and none of us knows much more about what we're about to embrace than the woman who was asked by a sidewalk interviewer what was her opinion of Red China.

"It's O.K. with me," she glibly replied, "as long as it doesn't clash with the tablecloth."

Moore Gets Out But Comes Back On Same Charge

Jake Moore, of East McDowell, got out of jail here last week but his stay at home was short. He was jailed Oct. 3 after his arrest on a charge of possessing alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale. He executed bond the same day. Last Friday night, he was back in jail on the same charge.

Moore's second arrest was made by Deputy Sheriffs Arvel Nelson, Claude Flanery and Otto Fannin. On the first charge he was booked in Magistrate Bill Wells' court, and when he entered a guilty plea last Saturday he was fined $22.50 and costs. The second count is still pending in Magistrate Eddie Caudill's court.

The second raid on Moore netted 68 cans of beer. It was one of three made during the week-end.

Deputy Sheriffs Arvel Nelson and Tom Blackburn and Constable Gillis Conn reported they confiscated four and a half cases of beer and five "fifths" of wine in a raid on Harry Vernon Horn, near West Prestonsburg, Saturday afternoon. When Horn came to the door of his home and saw the officers, he asked if he could finish eating his supper. When he was granted permission, he didn't return and later could not be found. He showed up later after the officers had towed his car to the courthouse. They said the beer and wine were found in the car. He was booked to Magistrate Wells.

A search warrant was issued for the residence of Clarence Martin at Drift, and the search Saturday by State Troopers Rose and Bevins netted 103 cans of beer and 17 half-pints of whiskey. Johnny Martin was

Population Loss Of 637,000 Cited As Group Forms

Two Floyd county men are among the 14 civic and industrial leaders who last week formed the corporation, "Our Common Heritage," in an effort to combat the migration of the people of 32 Eastern Kentucky counties to urban centers and to other states.

The two from this county who are among the incorporators are Dr. George P. Archer, mayor of Prestonsburg, and B. F. Reed, of Drift, a leader in the coal mining industry. The group of 14 leaders includes men of such diverse interests as Harry Caudill, Whitesburg lawyer and conservation leader, and William B. Sturgill, of Hazard, major figure in surface mining. Lowell Reese, a native of Pike county, is the corporation's executive director.

A major purpose of the corporation will be to provide a computerized list of skills of the people who have moved out of Eastern Kentucky but would come back if they could find work there. Industry then would be provided with that list as an encouragement to invest in the area.

Another purpose will be to identify and locate all former East Kentuckians who now hold influential positions in industry or government and invite them to serve on a 200-member board of trustees. That board will determine the organization's policies and priorities.

About one-third of the 637,000 persons

P'burg Center On Alcoholism In Pilot Group

The Prestonsburg alcoholism treatment center will be one of 11 such centers which next year will begin participation in a pilot program to provide more effective medical and rehabilitative care for alcoholics. The program will be based at Stanford Research Institute, Menlo Park, Calif., it was announced this week.

Sponsored by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, the program is designed to develop a user-oriented management information system, for monitoring the operations of the 11 treatment centers. One of its most important goals will be to procure basic data on the number and the characteristics of alcoholics being served by the centers, this information to be used in evaluating the progress of the centers.

The pilot project is scheduled for completion by next March. Its monitoring system is to be developed to provide ready answers to questions, based on data in the system, that were not anticipated in periodic reports or statistical analyses. Stanford Research Institute will develop and test the forms and procedures for automated processing and data output. The program will feed back information to the individual centers as well as to the National Institute.

There are an estimated 86,000 alcohol-related deaths in this country each year and about nine million alcoholics. Impressive barriers presently exist for the provision of adequate care, treatment and rehabilitation of them.

One task in the study is to consider defining common benchmarks to measure progress of therapy. Another is to set operational standards of diagnosis and prognosis.

The other centers are in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Bangor, Maine, Paducah, Ky., Orlando, Fla., Spencer, Iowa, El Dorado, Ark., Pine Bluff, Ark., Idaho Falls, Idaho, and Las Cruces, N. M.

Work by County On Frazier's Cr. Seen by Stumbo

County Judge Henry Stumbo said this week that approximately 2.4 miles of the Frazier's Creek road, near McDowell, which has been a source of contention this year, will be improved by the county, with assistance by the state.

He said state aid is expected to amount to approximately $10,000. The work proposed is widening and straightening of the road and the replacing of some bridges with culverts.

Judge Stumbo expressed surprise at the report given The Times last week by a resident of the area that Magistrate Caudill had afforded the only encouraging action at the county level on the road needs there by seeking to acquire rights-of-way for possible reconstruction of the route.

"County Attorney Barkley Sturgill and I spent all day Thursday, Sept. 30, getting right-of-way there, and I spent the next Thursday there, also. I doubt if they could have failed to see me," he remarked.

Stumbo said most landowners along the route are giving rights-of-way for the road improvement.

Children's Clinic Scheduled Oct. 19

A crippled children's clinic conducted by the Commission for Handicapped Children will be held here Tuesday, October 19, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., at the First Presbyterian Church.

The clinic is for persons under 21 years of age, from Floyd, Martin and Johnson counties, who may have some crippling defect. A doctor's referral is not necessary for a child to be examined in this clinic. Dr. William Roland, who treats patients for the commission in this area, will conduct the examinations.

The clinic is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, members of which assist the commission with this clinic in conjunction with the staff of the Floyd County Health Department.

Suzy Martin, a 19-year-old brunette from Garrett, is Morehead State University's 1971 Homecoming Queen. Her selection from among 11 finalists was announced at a pep rally on the MSU campus last Thursday night. A junior sociology major, Miss Martin is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority and the Student National Education Association. Her hobbies are writing, swimming, horseback riding and painting. She plans to be an airline stewardess and, later, a social worker. A graduate of Garrett high school, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Martin, of Garrett.

Probe Conducted In Goble Death

State and federal mine inspectors, Sheriff Frank Leslie and Coroner James J. Carter were scheduled to make an on-site investigation 600 feet underground Tuesday morning of circumstances surrounding the death of Lawrence Oliver Goble, 29, in a Sugar Loaf coal mine.

Authorities are convinced, however, that Goble died by accidental electrocution.

He was last seen between 4:30 and 5 p.m. Saturday. When he failed to return to his home at the mouth of Sugar Loaf, approximately four miles south of here, his wife requested that a search be made. The body was found by Woodrow Jarrell, owner of the mine, and Duke Fraley, the victim's brother-in-law, around 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Goble's watch had stopped at 10:35, and that is the hour at which it is believed death occurred.

Scene of the death is the mine of the Carry Back Coal Company. Mr. Jarrell, the mine-owner, said he had no knowledge that Goble, who was employed at the mine, had entered the working. Goble apparently had partially loaded a truck with coal and had taken a mine motor into the mine to get more coal, possibly for some other person, it was theorized.

The victim was a son of Oliver and Jessie Endicott Goble, of Ivel, who survive. Other survivors include his widow, Mrs. Angeline Fraley Goble, two sons and one daughter, Gary Allen, Stevie and Lisa Ann Goble, all at home; two brothers and three sisters, Burns and Adrian Goble, both of Ivel, Mrs. Clara Ellen Bolden, Pikeville, Mrs. Edith Faye Click, of Ivel, and Mrs. Jean Click, of Betsy Layne.

Funeral rites were conducted at 1 p.m. Wednesday from the Tom's Creek Free Will Baptist Church, the Revs. James Harmon and Henry Crider officiating. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Folk-Rock Group To Appear Here

Seals and Crofts, Texas born exponents of a new kind of folk-rock music, will appear at the Prestonsburg high school gymnasium at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening, October 19.

The second performance of the six scheduled for this season's East Kentucky Concert Series promises to be the kind of music both the "now" generation and their over-30 parents can enjoy together. Seals and Crofts play a wide range of songs, many original, which vary from folk to jazz, from rock to rollicking hillbilly hoedown.

"Finally a new folk group that is different. . . have developed a unique style that probably is best called jazz-folk. . . an extraordinary duet really. . ." was the critical comment by Mike Jahn in the New York Times after the duo's appearance at the Gaslight in New York last December.

According to another critic, Nancy Erlich, again in the Times, Seals and Crofts, "excellent as they may sound on (recordings) are at their absolute best on stage. The concert turned into a warm and glowing celebration, just because a couple of musicians and a roomful of people were so completely happy to be together. . . It was not too surprising that the audience at the Gaslight went a little wild."

Dash Crofts and Jimmy Seals have met with similar reviews when they have played such geographically diverse locations as Los Angeles, Toronto, Canada, Chicago and Honolulu.

School Leaders Move for Study Of Area Needs

Governor Nunn announced in Ashland last Tuesday that the 32 school superintendents in the 20-county Eastern Kentucky area have entered into contract with the governor's office for the massive work of identifying the educational needs of the region and of coming up with some type of educational services agency which might meet those needs.

He announced a $97,000 planning grant to the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation for this purpose.

In announcing the grant through the Appalachian Regional Commission—which covers a 10-month period through May 31, 1972—Gov. Nunn indicated an operational grant of between $500,000 and $1 million will likely follow to implement the findings of the study and planning project.

"Today, we are announcing another first for Eastern Kentucky... and it, too, will serve as a model for the rest of Appalachia and the other states throughout the country," Nunn said.

EKEDC officials pointed out that within the ultimate potential of the service agency is the possibility of facilities designed to serve broad areas of a region.

These will include mobile facilities which may include fleets of learning laboratories, diagnostic laboratories and professional training laboratories, centralized collections of materials for purposes of demonstration, examination and shared utilization, common services which may be constructional, supportive, administrative or informative, teams of personnel for leadership, supervision, personnel training, on-the-job training and specialized assistance.

Have two doors kept you out of a Volkswagen?

Don't answer yet. The car in the picture is a Volkswagen. And, as you can see, it has four doors. It's our new 411 4-Door sedan.

Like most 4-door sedans, our 411 gives the people in the back almost as much room as the people in the front.

Unlike most 4-door sedans, though, there's also room for luggage in the front as well as in back.

Like most 4-door sedans, our 411 has an engine.

Unlike most 4-door sedans, our engine gets about 22 miles to the gallon.

Like most 4-door sedans, our 411 offers a lot of options. Automatic transmission, radial tires, rear-window defogger, to name a few.

Unlike most 4-door sedans, those options are included in the price of the car.

Her 101-Year-Old Heart Yet Warm

Mrs. Catherine May, 101, has her pulse checked by nurse, Mrs. Bessie McCall, during her stay at General Hospital, major hospital of the University of Cincinnati Medical Center.

Floyd county native, Mrs. Catherine May, 315 Lillenthal Avenue, Cincinnati, O., was recently a patient at General Hospital at the University of Cincinnati Medical Center for treatment of a heart condition. Mrs. May created quite a stir because she and her heart are 101 years old!

According to her physicians, Mrs. May is in remarkable condition for her age. One of her doctors said, "Mrs. May brought such joy to the ward, we hated to send her home."

Mrs. May is a resident of Wesley Hall a nursing home operated by the United Methodist Church. She was born August 1, 1870, in Floyd county, and is the widow of David May, a lumberman.

The Mays raised 10 children in the village of Maytown, which was named for Mr. May's ancestors who settled there after the Revolutionary War. Five of their children are still living.

The Lummi Indians of northwestern Washington have turned to aquaculture as a source of jobs and steady income. Their plan calls for mass production of oysters, salmon and trout and for the building of a trout hatchery. The Department of Labor's Manpower Administration and the Department of Health Education and Welfare have appropriated under the Manpower Development and Training Act a total of $565,000 to training 82 Indians in commercial fishing.

A son, Kendall May, Sr., 79, who lives at 4414 Hillside Avenue, Cincinnati, is able to trace the May family back to the time three May brothers came to America from England in the 1700's. Two of the three served in Gen. Washington's Continental Army.

Both doctors and nurses at General Hospital credit Mrs. May for the help she gave to her 19-year-old deaf roommate.

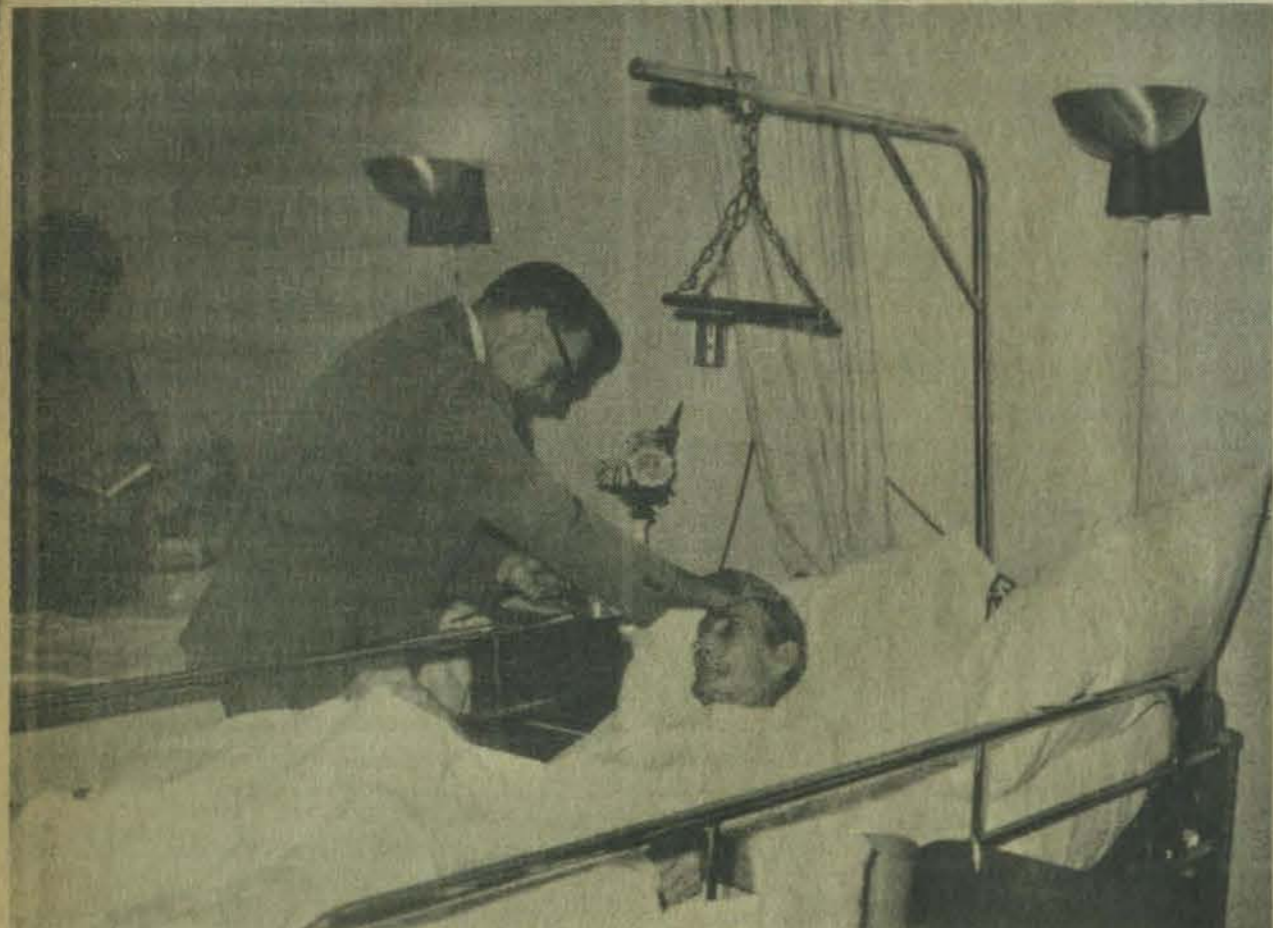

"Mrs. May was able to communicate with the young girl much better than we were," one of her physicians said. "Mrs. May helped her adjust to hospital routine and to overcome her shyness with the staff."

When asked what she thought of General Hospital, Mrs. May replied, "I love it here; everyone is very good to me."

Mrs. May is still able to read with the aid of glasses, and she still enjoys smoking her pipe.

Earl Pennington, pastor of Community Methodist Church here. Condition of Mr. Johnson, who has been very ill, is improved. His was the first baptism to be performed at the nursing home.

BOONE CHAIR

The Waveland Kentucky Life Museum on the Higbee Mill Road just outside Lexington, Ky., houses a remarkable variety of relics, utensils, tools, furniture from early pioneer pieces to exquisite antiques, Kentucky silver and other items. All of them have had significance in the history of Kentucky. The Boone chair, shown here by hostess Betty Laudeman, is a delightful relic. Strapped to the side of a packhorse, it carried two-year-old Rebecca Boone Grant (Daniel's niece) from North Carolina to Kentucky in 1779. Sixteen years later Rebecca received the chair as a wedding gift and it served her until she died at 79. Actually the chair had belonged to Squire and Sarah Boone for 50 years before Rebecca rode it into Kentucky. The Boones took it with them when they moved from Pennsylvania to North Carolina. —It's still sound and sturdy enough to seat a full grown man. (Photo by Clyde Burke)

Black Cats, Trojans Keep Winning In Games With Belfry, Napier

The Prestonsburg Black Cats downed their old grid nemesis, the pirates of Belfry high school, here last Friday night, 23-8, and Wheelwright swamped M. C. Napier, 38-0, in their meeting on the Virgie football field.

Despite early fumbles and penalties, the Cats clearly outclassed Belfry. In the first period the Black Cats' Greg Campbell raced 45 yards for the first marker of the game, and Rickey Reynolds hit the line for two extra points. Belfry tied it up in the second quarter when Frazier connected with Blackburn on a 20-yard pass. Viperman ran for the extra two points.

After the halftime intermission the Black Cats came back to add two touchdowns while holding the visitors scoreless. Danny Wells, fullback, scored in the third quarter on a three-yard run and Jeff Hall added two points. In the fourth quarter it was Wells again with a touchdown from the Belfry 4. Ronny Burke kicked the extra point.

Prestonsburg will meet the yellow Jackets of Whitesburg high school Friday night at Whitesburg.

Wheelwright's running sensation, Kenny Armour, took over the Kentucky high school scoring lead Friday night as he scored three touchdowns and two extra points in his team's conquest of M. C. Napier. After a scoreless first quarter, Armour got busy in the second to annex a marker on a four-yard run. In the third he went over from three yards out, and in the fourth he scored again and ran for a two-point conversion. Dowell Branham, big Wheelwright fullback, was one of the game's big ground-gainers, and he scored one of his team's five touchdowns. Lowell Parker's 82-yard run after a pass interception in the last 18 seconds of the contest was the most sensational scoring effort of the game.

Wheelwright's conversion attempts were all for two points and two of these were by John Parker, with Armour and Branham adding the others.

The Trojans will be back at Virgie Saturday night for their game with Mullins high school.

The Making of a Governor, 1971

As pieces of a jigsaw puzzle are combined to form a picture, so experience and ability must be combined in a man qualified for the governorship.

Wendell Ford has this experience and ability. He has been an important State Senator and a working Lieutenant Governor. Wendell Ford has been national president of the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. He was described in a magazine article along with the late President John F. Kennedy as an "Outstanding Young Man of America."

Wendell Ford's leadership has brought many improvements to Kentuckians: his efforts removed the harsh tax on prescription medicines, and got the oppressive sales tax off farm equipment. He has supported tough consumer protection and anti-pollution legislation. Wendell Ford says the only reason for the existence of government, at any level, is to serve people.

Isn't it time the people had a Governor?

Mousie Food Store Held Stamp Violator

ATLANTA, GA.—A Mousie, Ky. food store has been disqualified from the federal food stamp program for 60 days for violations, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service reports.

Johnson's Grocery, owned by Mrs. Ogie Johnson, was charged with selling ineligible items for USDA food coupons, including cigarettes, brooms, a handkerchief, laundry detergents, bleach and toothpaste.

The 60-day disqualification started September 17.

An FNS regional official here explained that food coupons, by law, can be used only to buy food, excluding certain imported foods.

Resolutions of Respect Upon The Death of Joe P. Tackett

On behalf of the Floyd County Bar Association we wish to express how we think and feel about our departed comrade at the bar, Joe P. Tackett, whom Almighty God in His infinite wisdom has taken from our midst.

For almost half a century he was active in politics and law in this area; held office both at the county and state levels, and his voice was often heard on the side of the poor, the humble, the suffering and downtrodden. With his passing came the end of an era of political and legal oratory. He was the last of the great orators in Floyd county political and legal battles.

He was a good and decent man, who loved and adored his family and was faithful to his church. He was a strong and diligent advocate for the rights of his clients, and in his practice and great compassion for the "slain" and the "surviving".

He was everlastingly full of good humor and able to create an atmosphere of good fellowship at any place and upon any occasion. Kindly, friendly and good was the philosophy of this man.

His life was fraught with many obstacles from an humble beginning on the Long Fork of Shelby, through bullet wounds on foreign battle fields in World War I, through the many facets of living the life of a lawyer in a country town—some of which would have defeated most men—but he overcame them with a miraculous show of strength, credited by him to have been sustained by his Lord. He accepted his path on the road of destiny, never dismayed by the circumstances that confronted him, never losing his temper or offending his friend or his adversary—he never lost heart.

He lived a full and useful life. His memory will forever live in the minds and hearts of those who knew and associated with him.

Man is mortal, but he who abides with God lives forever. The Christian, with one foot on earth and the other in heaven, is uncowed by the threat of death.

Be it therefore resolved by the Floyd County Bar Association this expression of sympathy be spread upon the Orders of this Court, a copy delivered to the family and one published in the Floyd County Times.

This 24th day of September, 1971.

Respectfully Submitted,

who have moved away from Eastern Kentucky over the years have gone to the Lexington, Louisville and Covington areas in Kentucky, according to Lowell Reese, the corporation's first executive director and a former member of the Kentucky Program Development Office here.

He said another third has gone to Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois.

One of the early goals of the new group will be to set up Heritage Clubs in each of the 32 Eastern Kentucky counties from where that outmigration came, said Reese, himself an East Kentucky native (Pike County).

At the same time, he added, similar groups will be started in Lexington, Louisville, Covington, Detroit, Chicago, Indianapolis and four Ohio cities—Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus and Troy.

Membership in the clubs will be restricted to persons who have either been born in Eastern Kentucky, attended four years of elementary or secondary school there or lived there for 10 years.

Information for the computerized list of potential job skills will come from the membership of those clubs. Members also will specify if they would be interested in returning to Eastern Kentucky immediately or at some future time.

Reese said he hoped to have 100,000 members on that list within a short time.

Reese noted that 55 per cent of the residents of East Kentucky today have immediate relatives in Ohio, Michigan, Illinois or Indiana. And one out of three persons around a gravesite at nearly all funerals in East Kentucky have returned from one of those four states, he added.

Other incorporators of "Our Common Heritage" are former Highway Commissioner Eugene Goss; Pikeville Mayo William Hambley; Middlesboro Mayo Chester Wolfe; bank officials from Ashland, Paintsville, Hazard and Beatyville, and Stanley DeZarn of Hamilton, Ohio, the founder of O'Tucks (Ohioans for Kentucky), an organization of former Kentuckians now living in Ohio.

Reese said the group will temporarily have its headquarters in Frankfort but eventually would move to some city in Eastern Kentucky.

THE "INNOCENT" BYSTANDER

It's the year 1990, and Gramps has a more or less captive audience in his grandson who has the mumps and has been ordered to bed.

"Man and boy," croaks the oldtimer, "that was a battle, my boy—a bat-tel. The smoke would choke a-body. Fumes that 'peared to come right out of h—you know, the hot place, hit you in the face, every time you poked your head out. Trees were uprooted, hillsides looked like a dozen bottles had been fought over them. My boy, I'm here to tell you I've seen the creeks run red as blood.

"But, Grandpaw—what—"

"Never mind what, my lad. You think you're having it hard—hah!"

"Did they give you a medal, Gramps?"

"Uh—eh—no. No medal."

"But why? You was in this battle—were you hit?"

"No, no, not a scratch."

"But, Grandpaw, how did you escape?"

The old boy rubbed his chin, braced himself and finally decided to level with the youngster.

"Sonny," he said, his eyes dodging the boy's inquiring look, "I wasn't in that battle. All I did was look and keep my mouth shut."

"What was the fight all about, gramps?" the disappointed youngster whispered.

"It," the old man muttered, "was the fight to preserve the environment, and I let others do my fighting for me."

A public hearing on the application, previously set for September 30, 1971, will be held before the Kentucky Public Service Commission on October 27, 1971, at 9 o'clock A. M. Eastern Daylight Time, in the Commission's offices at Frankfort, Kentucky. 10-5-3t.

Crime Commission Approves Package

The Kentucky Crime Commission has approved a 12-bill legislative package for submission to the 1972 General Assembly.

Heading the list of proposed legislation is a revision of Kentucky's criminal laws to update present laws which the commission calls "confusing, vague, out-of-date and unrelated to modern patterns of criminal behavior."

The revision would:

- Group similar crimes into general related classes.
- Assign penalties by felony and misdemeanor classifications instead of having separate ones for each crime.
- Other commission proposals would: Allow prisoners to leave prisons or jails to work at outside employment or go to school and return to the institution at night.
- Provide probation and parole for persons convicted of misdemeanors in addition to felonies, as is now the case.

Symposium Marks Building Dedication

The new three-story science facility at Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, which was dedicated recently.

Pippa Passes, Ky.—"The leaders who will begin to make an impact in society in 10 years are being educated right now. We need an approach that will educate people for the future."

The opening speaker at Alice Lloyd College's recent week-end symposium of Science for the Future, Richard W. Sames, dean of Benedictine College in Atchison, Kansas, summarized an increasingly important goal in higher education at Pippa Passes and across the nation. "It's a trite phrase to say that we must teach people how to learn," Sames added, "but this is exactly the goal."

The symposium was held in the new three-story science facility at Alice Lloyd which was dedicated on Sunday.

In line with these questions, V. Lawrence Parsegian of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., said that "man is the first species that can look ahead to watch his own doom. . . Cultural misdirection is the thing we need to fear most at this time."

Moving to an ecological theme, he asserted that "the generations to come will have every reason to curse us for our burning of fossil fuels—coal and oil—which will never come again. There will never be any more after what we have used up."

Floyd county native, Townsell G. Marshall, an Alice Lloyd College alumnus now an assistant vice-president with Armco Steel Corporation, Middletown, Ohio, stated that the college is no longer isolated: "The problems of the outside world are now Appalachia's problems."

In her time, Alice Lloyd recognized that all was not right with the world, Marshall recalled. "The problems of Appalachia were not too small, nor were they too large to do something about them. . . She offered people three things: work, learning and a chance to lead." Marshall said that his time here taught him qualities that were useful years later and for which there is widespread need today: "To be willing to stand up and say what we believe in, and then be willing to listen to others criticize what we believe in." As in the past, he said, the college must continue "to train leaders who can interact with people everywhere."

Dr. Claude P. Frady, formerly of Wayland, an Alice Lloyd alumnus and assistant professor at Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, insisted that "an understanding of science technology will make us more humane. . . Every high school and college student should be a science literate." Frady urged educators to prevent hostility toward science and technology from increasing.

This approach to learning was highly lauded by Jack L. Carter, professor of biology at Colorado College in Colorado Springs, Col., who gave the keynote address at the dedication of the new science building on Sunday morning. "What you are trying to do isn't easy," he told the assembled students, faculty, and friends of the college. "The question is, Can you pull it off? Five years from now we'll come back and look for these self-directed learners who can cross the boundaries in the sciences and humanities."

Other speakers were David N. Hess, vice-president for student services at Mankato State College, Mankato, Miss.; E. Roy Reynolds, chairman of the Alice Lloyd science department, and Dr. Alton Ochsier, senior consultant at the Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, La.

100 Years of Love, Care and Prayer

WEST LIBERTY, KY.—He was seven years old and already had seen enough of life to make him twice his age. He knew about an alcoholic father and an irresponsible mother, but it had been his life style and he accepted it without question.

The life-style imprinted on his young body would have inked bold headlines around eyes already too knowing, a heart daily saddened and columns of tragedy too heavy for one small back.

When his life changed with drastic suddenness and he sat on a rough step aware that something bad had happened to his parents he still was a green sapling of a boy. As he sat it out in the doorway of the only home he knew, his neighbors found him, fed him and cared for him. Arrangements later were made for him to be brought up in the Methodist children's home at Versailles.

Today he's a successful Northeastern Kentucky businessman—not wealthy, but endowed richly with love for his fellow man, his children and family closeness. Frequently called on to lecture, he never closes a speech until he has mentioned his years in the children's home at Versailles and the change those years brought to his life.

"No, don't mention my name," he cautioned "for there would be more requests than I could handle."

As it is he's a Johnny Appleseed of love, going about planting seeds of concern and care for children.

"Some day I'm going to organize a group called 'The Fifth Sunday People,'" he laughed when discussing a centennial celebration his church is planning the last of October to commemorate 100 years of love, care and prayer for homeless children. "What a difference those Fifth Sunday offerings make in many lives."

He was referring to a practice in Kentucky's United Methodist churches where offerings from the fifth Sunday in each month (with five Sundays) goes to the Methodist Home of Kentucky, Inc., Versailles.

"Our aim would be to work for support of the children's home and those in need," he explained. "And we can make a contribution apart from a financial donation also."

"For one thing, we can set aside a certain afternoon for visiting children's homes and provide a sounding board for children's questions. For another thing, we can make sure that we are friends of children. Sometimes that is enough—just let a boy or girl know that you care."

At 10:30 a.m. Oct. 16, a special program at the home at Versailles with Bishop Roy H. Short as speaker will commemorate the 100th birthday of the home. The public is invited to attend and later enjoy a lunch to be served on the grounds of the home. In event of rain, the program will be moved to the auditorium of Woodford County junior high school, Versailles.

MANY THANKS — The people of Lawrence County and their cross-river West Virginia neighbors were indeed thankful when Gove, Louie B. Nunn and Arch Moore jointly removed the toll from the Louisa-Fort Gay bridge recently, and announced plans to construct a new bridge in the near future. Here Mrs. Jack Hammond and sons Jerry and Mark, of Louisa, make known their gratitude to the two kneeling chief executives shortly after the last toll was paid. (Steve Mitchell Photo)

Frankfort, Ky.—There comes a time in the fall of the year when hunters have little to do but sharpen their shooting eyes on trap and muskrat ranges. That time is from Nov. 1 through Nov. 17 when only two types of game are legal and they for only short periods of time.

With the exception of the five-day gun deer season (Nov. 13-17) and the first three days of the goose season (Nov. 15-17) no other game, protected or unprotected, may be the target of the hunter.

This is another instance of culprits heaping hardship upon righteous hunters.

This quiet period was designed especially by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources to cut down pre-season hunting for rabbits and quail. Before the rule, conviction of an illegal rabbit or quail hunter was most difficult unless the individual actually had game in his possession. If no game was found the illegal hunter could unflinchingly declare that he was hunting crows or groundhogs and the conservation officer had not a leg to stand on. Usually the judge upheld the claim of the hunter and he was set free.

Not so any more. With the closed season on all game except that mentioned above, the pre-season hunter has no business in the field. If he is caught in the act of hunting, the arresting officer and the judge have a clear-cut case and most often the offender is punished.

Of course a farmer or landowner has a right to protect his holdings and if an animal or bird is damaging his property or his crops, he is permitted to kill that offending animal or bird. But he must notify his conservation officer of his action and the animal or bird so killed must be turned over to the CO for disposition as he sees fit. By denying the farmer or landowner the use of the animal or bird killed, the danger of "manufactured crop damage" can pretty much be eliminated and only bona fide cases of damage are likely to be reported.

Another regulation designed to keep down illegal hunting states that the farmer or landowner whose property is being damaged is the only person who is permitted to kill the offending animal. In other words, a group hunt cannot be staged by invited guests to rout out the accused bird or animal.

Persons often may wonder about the wisdom of laws that are placed on the statute books. They may think they are hard and suppressive and in some instances not needed. But in dealing with game law violators the Department has learned that they will take every advantage of the law—will skirt it in every conceivable manner. Therefore, laws must be strict and without loopholes. If there are loopholes, the game law violator is pretty apt to discover them right away.

Every such law placed on the books is put there for the protection and preservation of game and fish. That is their only purpose, and if sometimes these laws seem a bit sharp, just remember they were created because violations have occurred that must be stopped for the betterment of various species of game.

Festival '74 Plans Cover 3 Years

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentucky 1974-76 will be the scene of many happenings—festivals, exhibitions, gala celebrations.

The reason for these events—1974 marks the 200th anniversary of the founding of Fort Harrod, Kentucky's first permanent settlement and the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby, the nation's oldest continuous horse race.

Plans recently were disclosed by the Kentucky Historical Events Celebration Commission for a $17.6 million celebration focusing around these anniversaries and climaxing with Kentucky's participation in 1976 United States Bicentennial.

The commission, created by the 1970 legislature, has been charged with designing the plan for the state's celebration of these historic events. The plan, including budget proposals, must be presented to the governor by Nov. 1 for submission to the 1972 legislature.

The commission's plans, however, are designed for more than a one-time celebration. Commission proposals include the development, renovation and upgrading of the state's attractions, to produce long-range effects on the tourist industry in local communities and the state as a whole.

"We plan to make the celebration an ongoing thing, not just designed for 1974," said James Barnett, executive director of the commission. Barnett was the director of South Carolina's Tri-Centennial Celebration.

"The commission has designed continuous events running through 1976 to attract a majority of the thousands of tourists who will be visiting the east coast and 13 original colonies for the nation's bicentennial," he added.

"Spending the proposed $17.6 million on Kentucky's celebration would reap continuing benefits to the state for centuries to come."

Special emphasis is being placed by the commission on the development of "both the physical resources and human environment in every Kentucky community."

Barnett, who has been traveling throughout the state since June, stressed the importance of communities further developing their tourist attractions.

In Owingsville, for example, he discovered a bank which was designed by James Hoban, considered the nation's first great architect and the architect who designed the nation's capitol.

Barnett also noted other communities, such as Covington and tiny Washington, recognized by the commission as having built-in tourist attractions.

The well-preserved historic town of Washington in Mason county, for example, houses many firsts—the first house of worship in northern Kentucky, the first library in the entire area and the first public water works, all constructed at the end of the 18th century.

Commission proposals include the development of sites such as Washington and Owingsville which have been neglected, and the reconstructing, renovating and upgrading of existing historic sites.

Other plans call for: The re-establishing, in cooperation with the federal government, of Wilderness Road, the path followed by Daniel Boone and pioneers into the state.

Special dedication ceremonies for a completely reworked Fort Harrod State Park, June 16, 1974, to which the President would be invited.

Opening the first elements of Fort Boonesborough's reconstruction.

Establishing local festivals, folk and craft centers and recreational opportunities in both private and public sectors across the state.

A summer-long festival of the lakes in Western Kentucky.

A folk festival of national importance in Eastern Kentucky.

A salute to horse-racing.

A summer-long Festival of Arts at a new outdoor facility, featuring groups and individual artists of international renown, as well as Kentucky musical and dramatic groups—"giving the state a completely new place in the national cultural picture."

A small exposition of "the highest quality" in downtown Louisville, "which would furnish a new experience for fairgoers in this country and set a new standard for the national celebrations in 1976.

Plans also propose a special emphasis to be placed on Kentucky history in schools at all levels and the commissioning of new state and county histories.

The $17.6 million budget proposed by the Historical Events Commission would include up to $9 million for local use on a matching basis.

Confessions of a Pipe-Smoker

By HENRY P. SCALF

My long adventure in frustration and affection for a pipe began several years ago when the Surgeon-General of the United States warned the smoking public that prolonged addiction to cigarettes could cause lung cancer. I took the matter under advisement until Dr. J. H. Allen, while pulling me through a bout with Asian flu, added to the warning when I was recovering.

I bought a pipe, a fancy wood and metal one that I thought would give a little distinction to my perambulations around town. Banner Meade took a jaundiced look at it, said if I would throw that one away he would buy me a nice one. He did, too, an expensive vehicle for nicotine satisfaction that lasted a long time.

About this time Norman Allen got scared, too, threw his cigarettes in the waste basket, bought himself a pipe. You could tell we were both amateurs by the way we drew and puffed, but in a few days we developed a sangroid handling. We had troubles, though, in ash disposal. We simply dumped the residue from the pipes on the floor or in the waste baskets. This continued until I set two waste baskets on fire. After that we gave consideration to buying an old-fashioned iron kettle. No mere ash tray would do us both. What became of the idea, I don't know, unless both of us were to reluctant to lay out the purchase price. We needed that kettle, though.

Days and weeks went by and we never improved on our methods of ash disposal but there was an occasion when I wish I had. Senator Truston B. Morton came to visit, and, the day being cold, he backed up against the gas heater to warm the senatorial back. While thus occupied, he let his eyes rove over the floor. I, to say the least, was a little embarrassed. Then I thought of Stinky, who at that time served as janitor.

"Senator, I know what you are thinking but it's the best we can do. You know this institution has a clean-up man who doesn't see too well."

Being a diplomatic man, Morton never commented. Come to think of it what could he have said? Anyway, our, or at least my, carelessness in ash disposal continued until one day Mrs. Allen made a visit to The Times office. Her appropriate remarks were received without comment, but we improved on untidy habits.

One of my most frustrating love affairs with a pipe was with Jumbo. Now Jumbo was a great, huge briar that Worth Music, my grocer, won as a prize somewhere. He tried out Jumbo, found he had too much difficulty in clenching it safely between his teeth. In frustration he gave it to me. I fell in love with Jumbo, despite all the inconveniences it inflicted upon me. It was so huge and thick that there was never a hot puff from it. That pipe became the object of several smart remarks from my friends, all of which I ignored. I used Jumbo until the late Chief of Police Epp Lafferty remarked, without even a smile, that I needed a chin prop. Finding that Jumbo was becoming an undesirable hallmark of my visage, I gave the monstrosity back to Music. He tried it again, for a few days, then gave it back. I have it now, on a pipe rack in my den, a nostalgic memento of my addiction to nicotine.

I have tried all kinds of pipes and tobacco. Simple, little pipes, mostly cheap ones. Expensive pipes, some loud like a striped shirt, others nonobtrusive to suit my Milquetoast personality. I finally settled down to the pre-smoked article that let my tongue heal and a nationally advertised brand of weed that I could purchase anywhere. Ever try to purchase a rare blend of tobacco in a small country store? No success, and you settle for what most others use.

Addicts like me keep two pipes, one to smoke, one to cool. However, there comes a time when you have to temporarily dispose of a pipe, like the time I spoke to the Men's Fellowship of the Community Methodist Church at Prestonsburg. I went into the church, shook off the snow, hastily put my heated pipe in the overcoat pocket. A member of the Ladies Auxiliary put overcoat and pipe on a rack. While I was discussing early Methodist history with the men, a gray billow of smoke erupted from that overcoat. Only the watchful attendance of the ladies prevented the necessity of calling the fire department. That overcoat was ruined. The club president and Pastor Saunders were solicitous of my coat's condition. My wife's reaction was not complimentary when I got home.

One of my best-loved pipes came in a batch of 13 from friends at Christmas. I think they decided that, since I was such a pipe consuming man, they would just fix me up for a year. There were all kinds of pipes in my packages but one was a beautiful briar that I took to my heart, or rather mouth, at once. I kept it puffing until one time when I went to Arkansas and Missouri on vacation. I had the hazardous habit of rolling the car window down, putting the pipe on it, rolling the window up and let the rushing air cool it. Suddenly, without thought of the precarious position of my pipe, I rolled the window down. That pipe beat a tattoo on the concrete, bounced off between whizzing cars. My first reaction was to stop, retrieve the pipe but I didn't. You don't stop in the middle of a freeway to search for a pipe. There are safer and more sensible errands. I nearly lost another pipe, too, the same way. I was coming into Prestonsburg, my pipe cooling in the car window. Being preoccupied, probably with past due bills or obligations, I rolled the window down. Out went the pipe, skeetering along the highway, finally into the weeds. V. O. Turner, seeing me parting weeds at the pavement edge, stopped, thinking I was looking for something more valuable than a pipe. V. O. is a good Samaritan. He found the pipe.

Well, pipes come, pipes go. I have owned scores, perhaps many more. You buy tobacco in lots, disregarding the cash outlay. I did until one day my wife decided to put a quarter away everytime I bought a pouch of tobacco. The jar filled up to the brim and she took it to the bank. Bill Arnold Spradlin poured the quarters into the counter and while the machine was clicking, was prompted to ask my wife where or how had she ever accumulated so many quarters.

"Those quarters are dividends on my husband's smoking," she told Spradlin.

I had my most recent adventure with a pipe when my son and I decided to go out and purchase a bull for the farm herd. It was late in the afternoon when we left. The road construction held us up and by the time we got to Bennie Sellards' place on Buffalo Creek it was getting dark. We parked on the side of the road, negotiated a walkway over a hole of water and, not finding a bull, we returned. It was now getting dark. I felt for my tobacco, failed to find it, remembered I had left it in the car. I put the pipe in my shirt pocket. In teetering along those rocks that served as a bridge I slipped, whirled around like a dervish, plunged on my face into that waterhole. When I emerged from the waterhole, I felt for my pipe. It was gone, floating away in the dark. Next, after admitting that my pipe was lost, I felt over my wet body for bruises or lacerations. There were none. The only casualty of the watery escape was a lost pipe.

It is said President Woodrow Wilson, who chewed tobacco occasionally remarked once that chewing the weed was one of life's most philosophical habits. I disagree. He should have tried a pipe.

College Founders Day Program Honors Governor, Whisman

Pikeville, Ky.—The conferring of honorary degrees on two distinguished Kentuckians after a parade marked Pikeville College's Founders Day Program, Oct. 7.

The college conferred a doctor of laws degree on Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn, who is nearing the end of his term, and a doctor of humanities degree on John D. Whisman, states regional representative for the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Whisman, with offices in Washington, D. C., and representing governors of 13 states in the ARC, delivered the Founders Day address at the college gymnasium after the parade.

Dr. Robert S. Cope, president of Pikeville College, and Dr. Rediford Damron, academic dean of the college, awarded the degrees.

Whisman, in recognition of Pikeville College's Founders Day Program, said it was appropriate to note that the Appalachian Regional Development Program and its concept also were founded in the Eastern Kentucky Appalachian area.

He said the organization of the college and the ARC program have many mutual and parallel characteristics. The purpose of the ARC, established in 1965 and recently extended by Congress, is to assist areas lagging behind others in economic development, highways, education and health.

The 13 states represented by Whisman are New York, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

Dr. Cope, in speaking of Kentucky's chief executive, called him a man "without pretense" and one "who has served Kentuckians every day since he became governor." He added that "service to Kentuckians has been his goal and his achievement."

Whisman, whose address is Lexington, Ky., attended Eastern Kentucky University from 1940 to 1943 and after World War II service received an A. B. degree from the University of Kentucky in 1950.

He was administrator of the Kentucky Area Development Office at Frankfort from 1961-66. He became states regional representative for the ARC in 1966. Dr. Cope referred to him as "the architect and implementing force of the ARC." He added that "the 13 states Whisman represents have made more progress during his tenure than in any comparable period of time. He is a true citizen of each of these states."

The college president said Governor Nunn's award was made for his service to Kentucky, and that Whisman's was presented for service to the 13-state area he represents with the ARC.

"The Appalachian idea is not so much a solution to any particular problem as it is a way to organize better solutions to a variety of problems," Whisman said in his address.

"Fundamental precepts of the Appalachian concept include the conviction that we should not create new or parallel institutions of government to deal with problems where existing agencies can do the job," he declared.

State Sets Acid, Sediment Limits For Mine Runoff

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Louie B. Nunn has signed into effect Kentucky's first law setting limits on sediment and acidity in surface mine runoff water.

Mann Cleared Of Murder Count

Salysville, Ky.—A Morgan County jury late Friday found John Wesley Mann, 19, not guilty of murder in connection with the shooting of his father, the late Magoffin County Attorney Arnett Mann.

About 150 Morgan Countians were summoned before the panel was completed Thursday.

Mann, a University of Kentucky freshman, admitted the shooting and told the jury he saw his father choking his mother and got his gun with the intention of scaring him and not shooting him. He said he did not know the gun was loaded, but members of the family had been using the weapon and left it loaded without his knowledge.

The shooting occurred in the Mann home at Salysville in March, 1969, when he was 17.

Mrs. Jean Mann, the widow, was cleared of a similar charge by a Johnson county jury at the June term of Magoffin circuit court.

The regular judge, Circuit Judge Ben Mann, vacated the bench in both cases since he is a brother of the late county attorney and a brother of the present Morgan County Attorney Marcus Mann, who aided in the prosecution.

Social Workers Have Made State No. 1, Governor Says

By JUDILED FORD

Gov. Louie B. Nunn heaped praise on a group whose members are more accustomed to constant criticism—Kentucky Welfare Association members at their 59th annual conference held last week in Lexington.

The governor said the social worker's efforts in innovation, cooperation and prevention have become a legacy.

"Your foresight, your fresh ideas and your willingness to change the status quo... have contributed to the innovation which has now come to be synonymous with Kentucky's human services programs," he said.

He told the group Kentucky is recognized as first in the delivery of mental health services, a leader in rehabilitation of the handicapped and first with a higher education program which has already helped 140 public assistance clients receive college degrees.

The increase in the number of persons on welfare rolls has been slowed, he noted, and the state's Medicaid program was the only one in the nation to operate within its allotted funds last year and thousands of Kentuckians have received aid in finding jobs.

"Coordination has paid off—in more funds to provide better services for more clients," he said. "It has meant expanded programs in child care, family planning and protective services."

The governor complimented the group on their work with Kentucky families—in keeping them together and helping them solve some of their problems. "We must help them nurture within themselves and their children the self-worth and personal dignity which strengthens the ties that bind—and produces stronger individuals," he said.

He pointed especially to the work which led to the establishment of the Department of Mental Health's comprehensive care centers, where professional drug coordinators help guide local citizens' drug education committees; the Child Welfare Department's Community Resources Development Unit, with its emphasis on co-opting services and available local funds through churches, local public and private agencies; and the Department of Economic Security's new CREATE Program, where the community is asked to get involved and help find employment and employment training for public assistance clients.

Since CREATE began, he said, 783 public assistance clients have been added to industry payrolls and many cases have been discontinued because of employment through the program.
