

Youth Held Not Guilty Of Slaying Collins Case, First Of 4 Murder Trials Slated During Term

Lynn Collins, 18-year-old Justell youth, was cleared of a charge of murder in the first of four murder trials scheduled for hearing at the current court term.

Young Collins was accused of the slaying of Virgil Tackett last June at Justell. The trial was marked by a maze of testimony, some of which was conflicting, and Commonwealth's Attorney later admitted it was "a weak case."

Commonwealth testimony claimed that Tackett had told young Collins, who was engaged to Tackett's 15-year-old stepdaughter, Helen Muncey, not to come to his home and that on the night of the shooting Tackett came home to find Collins there. Collins had a pistol stuck under his belt, and Tackett remarked, "You're trying to be smart, with that pistol," and himself drew a knife and struck at Collins. At that point Collins drew the pistol.

Collins testified he struck Tackett on his head with the pistol and that the weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet, he said, entered the wall. Tackett was shot in the top of his head. Collins claimed Mary Lou Muncey, younger sister of his fiancée, snatched the weapon and accidentally shot her step-father.

Both Mary Lou and Helen Muncey testified Tackett was shot while he and Collins were wrestling on the floor. They and Collins claimed Tackett was drunk. This was the version of the shooting given by Mary Lou Muncey when they were quizzed, the night of the shooting. At the examining trial of Collins, however, she testified she snatched Collins' gun and fired the shot which killed her step-father. Her sister said on the night of the shooting that Mary Lou fired the fatal shot.

Mrs. Tackett testified Collins fired a shot at her husband as Tackett advanced on him with a knife. She said she then ran outside the house and did not see what happened later.

The next murder trial, that of D. C. Jones accused of the slaying at Estill of Guerness Hall, is scheduled for Dec. 1.

The Collins trial was interrupted at its outset when Don Meade, of Minnie, a member of the trial jury, was stricken ill. An ambulance was called and he was taken to Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin. He suffered a heart attack, it was said. A 13th juror had been qualified, however, and this prevented a delay of the trial.

To Conduct Revival At Lancer Chapel

A revival meeting will begin at the Lancer Baptist Chapel, November 29 and continue through December 5.

The Rev. Lee Edward Caudill, pastor of the chapel, will be the evangelist. The song leader will be Rev. Robert Blake, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Rising Sun, Indiana. The chapel extends a cordial welcome for everyone to attend. Anyone is welcome to bring special music. Services will be held nightly at 7:00.

The Rev. Caudill only recently moved back to Floyd county after being away for 16 years. He was formerly of Maytown, where he attended grade and high school. He is a graduate of Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, Texas and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville. He also is a Reserve Navy chaplain for a Seabee unit in Lexington. He is presently employed by the Kentucky Baptist Convention as pastor of both the Lancer Baptist Chapel and Fitzpatrick Baptist Mission and assists the Rev. W. D. Jagers, of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, as missions pastor for Benedict Chapel and Home Branch missions.

Some of the 1200 high school students at Prestonsburg Community College for Career Day.

1200 Attend Career Day Here

Approximately 1,200 students representing 16 high schools from Floyd, Pike, Magoffin and Johnson counties were on the campus of Prestonsburg Community College last Thursday, participating in the first Big Sandy valley area Career-College Day.

The high schools were Betsy Layne, Garrett, Martin, McDowell, Maytown, Prestonsburg, Wayland, Wheelwright, Johnson Central, Paintsville Independent, Salyersville, Johns Creek, Mullins, Elkhorn City, Millard and Pikeville City.

The purpose of the day was to give high school seniors the opportunity to meet with career and college representatives who would assist each student in making future educational and vocational plans. The students were able to select from the following careers and colleges:

The variety of careers offered for students' consideration ranged from agriculture through mining, nursing, teaching and on into the most sophisticated scientific occupations—more than 30 of them. The advantages offered by more than 20 colleges and universities also were pointed out to the students.

Most Kentucky educational institutions and many industries had representatives on the campus to confer with students.

Local professional people assisted in the program meeting with students interested in their particular career. Local people utilized were: Marvin Crider, architecture; Frank Heinze, coal industry; Frank Collopy, engineering; Kenneth Robinson, radio and television broadcasting; Thurston Taylor, mental health; Ronald Wright and Frank Salyers, social work; Harold Cooley, pharmacy; Dr. Lawson, of Pikeville, veterinary medicine.

A similar event will be held in the spring for high school juniors. The program was planned and coordinated by the counselors of the participating high schools and the staff of Prestonsburg Community College.

Hall Suit Filed, Attacks Clause In Idle Pay Law

The 10-week penalty clause in Kentucky's unemployment compensation law was attacked last week in a suit filed in Franklin circuit court by Elmer Lee Hall, unemployed Wayland miner.

He filed the class action on behalf of all who have claimed unemployment benefits and have been penalized under the statute. The suit named as defendants Economic Security Commissioner Merritt S. Deitz and two members of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Hall complained that he has been out of work since Aug. 12 when he was discharged by the Beaver Creek Consolidated Coal Corp. for alleged "industrial misconduct." He said he has no source of income other than food stamps to feed, clothe and shelter himself and his family.

He made application for unemployment benefits in September, but the company protested his application on the ground he had refused to work. The Unemployment Insurance Commission upheld the company's claim and informed Hall he was disqualified from receiving benefits for 10 weeks after his discharge.

Hall's suit contends he and other workers refused to work in a 28-inch seam with equipment 27.5 inches high. The suit says the machinery cut into the sandstone roof and caused hot rocks and chips of sandstone to be thrown into the miners' faces and filled the air with silica and coal dust, making breathing difficult.

According to the suit, Hall and others asked to have the floor lowered and refused to work in the shallow seam until remedial action was taken. This led to their dismissal.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission report showed that a field worker for the United Mine Workers of America had inspected the working area and found it safe. The union supported the company in the dismissal of the workers.

Feeding 9,371 Pupils Runs to Big Business

Feeding Floyd county's 9,371 school children daily meals is one of the largest business ventures in this county, according to Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark.

"Although the total school population is not at school every day, we prepare for them in the event they wish to eat a hot meal and our daily average is above 7,500, plus 650 to 685 in our breakfast program," he said.

During the 1970-'71 school year, a total of 1,164,118 school lunches were served. Of this total, 477,674 were paid lunches. Lunches reduced 10 cents were 50,718, and free lunches numbered 635,726.

Students pay 25 cents for a hot lunch and those who can't afford the 25 cents eat free. Teachers and other school personnel pay 35 cents.

Expenditures for food average around $75,000 monthly and this is supplemented by approximately $60,000 worth of food supplies monthly from the U. S. Department of Agriculture through its commodity distribution program.

Floyd county serves as a central distributing point for virtually all federal foods, both frozen and perishable, which arrive by rail at various intervals. Blanche Dingus, county lunchroom supervisor, oversees the distribution of these foods to a dozen school systems—those of Floyd, Pike, Knott, Johnson, Martin, Wolfe, Magoffin, Lawrence, Perry, Morgan, Harlan and Breathitt counties.

A typical shipment may consist of turkeys, chicken, ground beef, pork or various canned meats. Floyd county's proportionate share is transported by truck to the school system's frozen food locker at the Garth Vocational School.

Each Tuesday thereafter, Miss Dingus allots each Floyd county school its share for its respective lunchroom program.

"Five of our elementary schools—Allen, Drift, Harold, Stumbo and Prestonsburg—are now participating in the breakfast program which provides a high protein meal for one nickel", Mr. Clark said.

A sample menu might read: Juice, cereal, bacon and eggs, toast and milk.

Seventy full-time cooks are employed in the system's lunchrooms and 102 students earn $1.60 an hour under the National Youth Corps act to assist the cooks in preparation and serving meals.

A recent fire completely destroyed the Betsy Layne lunchroom, yet only two schools do not serve a hot lunch. Little Mud elementary is in the planning stage for a program for next semester, and Prater Creek elementary served 131 students hot lunches for the first time, Monday of last week.

Family Leaves Home As Threat to Health

Why would a family abandon a $60-70,000 residence for life in a mobile home?

Lawton R. Allen, Prestonsburg accountant, and his family have done just that, and he tells why. The reasons for making the change, he said this week, will be the subject of a damage suit in excess of a million dollars.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen and their two children left their almost new, four-bedroom home in exclusive Oaklawn Estates, near the Combs Airport, on orders of the family doctor. The house stands empty, its contents in disarray as if its occupants had fled the place.

"We did just about that," Mr. Allen explains. "When the doctor asked us to leave, I suggested the following Friday. He said, 'Now!' And we went, taking nothing with us and not waiting to put the place in order."

The cause of all this has not been determined. The suit which Allen says he will file, perhaps this week, will get at the cause. Mrs. Allen, who is 30, has lost one baby, has been near death—all, her husband contends, because of defective materials, or defects in the installation, of the heating system. She has had a lung biopsy and the report following this said it "looked like chemical burns to the lung." She has been repeatedly in hospitals or under the care of physicians.

A respirable dust survey was made in August, this year, of two rooms of the spacious, woods-surrounded home. One room showed 3.3 milligrams per cubic meter of air sampled; the second showed 6.6 mg.

The report accompanying these figures said: "The maximum amount of respirable material allowed in underground coal mines is established by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to be not more than 3.0."

The doctor who ordered the family out of the home was quoted as saying that if a coal

Title I Losses To Floyd County Set at $100,000

Although the Floyd county school system is losing, roughly, $100,000 in federal funds for the conduct of its Title I program this year, there will be no curtailment of services during the present term because the possibility of such a loss was anticipated in the budget approved for this county.

Ray Brackett, Title I coordinator for the county, said the budget stands at $889,817 and that figure, roughly 10 per cent below the budget of the preceding year, was set when it appeared that a cut in funds might lie ahead.

Factors which entered into Title I fund losses in this and other Kentucky counties and in other states include loss of population and improvement in the economic status of residents. The Title I allotment was originally computed on the basis of the 1960 census, and there has since that time been a population loss in the areas affected and a corresponding loss in the number of poverty-level families.

Although the cut does not affect current operations, Mr. Brackett and Superin-

Hazard-to-Allen Road Work Seen With Aid of ARC

Governor-elect Wendell H. Ford repeated Monday a campaign promise to Eastern Kentucky and gave details of what he proposes to do.

He announced in Frankfort that one of three major highway projects which he plans to undertake will be the reconstruction of KY 80 from Hazard to Allen in this county where it would connect with the new four-lane US-23 now under construction.

This construction, which would link with the Daniel Boone Parkway at Hazard, would provide a freeway through the use of 70-30 matching funds available through the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Ford also announced two toll roads in his plans: From Brandenburg to Elizabethtown, and from Bowling Green to connect with new I-24.

Back from a post-election vacation, Ford said, "We want to build more people roads, too."

"People roads," he explained are new or improved highways for connecting towns with larger roads those that have been bypassed by expressways.

Ford, according to The Courier-Journal, seemed reluctant to talk about financing the ambitious undertaking, but he dropped a reminder that his campaign promises did not preclude possible new taxes in the state's road fund.

"I will keep all my promises relating to the general fund," he said. "The sales tax on food will be removed. We will try to enact a fair severance tax on coal."

He added, however, that "nobody asked me about taxes having to do with the road fund."

He said he would let his highway commissioner, whom he declined to identify, take a hard look at the tax needs in Kentucky's expanding road-building program and would be guided by his advice.

The implication was that Kentucky motorists, as well as those crossing the state from other areas, might be asked to pay more—by higher gasoline taxes or some other way—to finance "one of the best highway networks in the land."

ONE MORE BONE NEEDED

The Homespun News of Finleyville, Pa., in conclusion of a piece complimenting hard-working members of organizations which get things done thereabouts, wrote recently:

"There is an anatomy of every organization which includes four kinds of bones:

"Wishbones—those who wish others to do all the work.

"Jawbones—those who talk a lot and do little else.

"Knuckle bones—those who knock what every one else tries to do.

"Backbones—those who get behind the wheel and do the work."

We have an idea every organization needs one more bone. A shinbone—for all the others to kick.

WORTH SEEING

"Born Free"—one of the few full-length movies I've seen in years that are worth sitting through. Human love for an animal and its response so far surpasses these modern-day attempts at realism and love expressed in its most tawdry forms that you'd think somebody in the movie-making business would get wise and try being decent, for a change.

Plaque Honoring Ex-Gov. Combs Unveiled at Campton Plaza

Two highway markers, located at the Campton toll facility on the Mountain Parkway and the Shepherdsville exit on the Kentucky Turnpike, were unveiled last week.

The plaques honored former Governors Bert T. Combs (1959-63) and Lawrence Wetherby (1951-55).

Governor Louie B. Nunn in unveiling the markers said, "The efforts of these two former governors to modernize and expand Kentucky's highway system are rewarded each time an appreciative motorist safely passed the way."

At the Campton ceremony last Tuesday, Arbor Jones, of Prestonsburg, recalled a meeting two decades ago when Governor Combs, then practicing law in Prestonsburg, stressed the need for a modern highway to link the hills of Eastern Kentucky with the Bluegrass section of the state.

"The interstate system," said Governor Combs, "was running north and south. What we needed was a road running leghthwise across the state."

Willie Dawahare, former mayor of Hazard, and others began a fund-raising campaign nine years ago to recognize Governor Combs for his effort. "The drive culminates today," said Dawahare, "with the unveiling by Governor Nunn."

In addition to Ex-Governor Combs and Governor Nunn, the unveiling ceremony was attended by Ex-Governor Lawrence W. Wetherby and Governor-Elect Wendell H. Ford. The invocation was said by the Rev. W. D. Jagers, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist church, of which Ex-Governor Combs became a member during his residence in Prestonsburg.

VOWS EXCHANGED

Miss Elaine Kaye Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Hall, of Prestonsburg, was united in marriage Nov. 5 to Dallas Justice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Justice, of the Auxier road.

The Rev. W. D. Jagers performed the double-ring ceremony in the Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church. Music was rendered by Miss Pam Spradlin, pianist.

The bride wore a silk taffeta gown with lace trim, styled on empire lines with bishop sleeves and high neckline. Her chapel-length veil was affixed to a taffeta bow headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Janice Hall, sister of the bride, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a light avocado green sheer gown over taffeta, styled on empire lines with short sleeves. Her matching lace headpiece held a nosegay veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations.

Walter Banks, brother-in-law of the groom was best man. Dick and Bill Hall, brothers of the bride, served as ushers. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Alley and Mike, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Zemo, and daughter, Ronda, Mrs. Leva Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Wells and son, Britton, of Paintsville. The centerpiece was a decorated birthday cake which was served before the opening of his gifts presented by the guests.

VENTERS-FRALEY VOWS SAID

Miss Peggy Joyce Venters, daughter of Mrs. Lettie Venters, of Round Lake, Ill., and Mr. Fred Venters, of South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, became the bride of Mr. Al Fraley, son of Mrs. Savannah Fraley, of the Abbott road, in a garden ceremony, July 24, 2:30 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Curtis Risner, the bride's sister, at David.

The Rev. Alonza Watts, of Carr Creek, Ky., performed the double-ring ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an imitation empire gown of white satin featuring a victorian neckline edged with lace, full bishop sleeves, and self-covered buttons from the neckline to the waist. The skirt was gathered softly and enhanced by a satin ribbon that was caught into a bow in the back and dropped to the hemline. Her elbow-length veil was held by a satin bow. She carried a bouquet of white glammillians.

Maid-of-honor was Miss Suzanne Cornett, of Hindman, Ky. Her dress was of blue, accented at the neckline by a white scallop which in turn held a row of blue covered buttons. She carried a colonial bouquet of blue carnations and baby's-breath.

Mr. Thomas A. Poe, of the Middle Creek road, was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. Assisting were Mrs. Curtis Risner, Mrs. William Thomas Goble and Miss Mary Lee Patton. Mrs. Risner also presided at the guest book.

After a short wedding trip to Mammoth Cave, they are now residing on Davis Street, Prestonsburg.

TO VISIT OVER HOLIDAYS

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, Mrs. Earle A. Stumbo, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Frazier and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Wilborn will spend the Thanksgiving holidays with Dr. and Mrs. John Wm. Sutherland in Richmond, Virginia.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

MAYTOWN NEWS

Maytown Native To Head Schools

James G. Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seltan Gibson, of Langley, and a graduate of Maytown high school, has been named by the Clermont county (Ohio) Board of Education as superintendent of schools to succeed Harry Moore who is retiring at the end of the year. Moore's salary was $20,000 a year.

Gibson, a former member of the old Mt. Orab (Ohio) Board of Education, has been a supervisor and assistant Clermont superintendent since 1967.

He has bachelor's and master's degrees in education administration from Morehead State University and has done work beyond his master's degree at Marshall, Xavier and Miami Universities.

His professional experience began in the Rowan county (Ky.) schools where he was an elementary teacher in 1958-'59. He served as principal of Mt. Orab high school from 1959 to 1961 and was principal of Coles Junior high, Ashland from 1961 to 1963.

Gibson returned as principal of Mt. Orab high school in 1963 and remained there until 1966 when he became dean of students at Morehead State University for a year. Beginning in 1968, he became a part time instructor in psychology at the University of Cincinnati's Tri-County Academic Center at Macon.

Gibson was in the U. S. Air Force from 1948 to 1954. He is married to the former Noreta Blackburn, of Louisa, and has two sons. His wife is an elementary teacher in the Western Brown school system.

He is president-elect of the Southwestern Ohio School Supervisors Association and belongs to the American Association of School Administrators, Buckeye Association of School Administrators and the Ohio School Supervisors Association.

Mrs. Ben Baker, of Kihei, Hawaii, arrived here last Friday for a visit with relatives, then went to Liberty, Ky. to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Watkins, and other relatives. Mr. Baker who is in Hiltonhead, S. C. on business, will return here for a few days visit before joining Mrs. Baker at Liberty and they will attend the Watkins family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Powers on Thanksgiving Day at Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ramey, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. James Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Champ Gibson and Mrs. Bill Martin attended a dinner at May Lodge, Friday evening, sponsored by the Woodmen of the World.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Taylor Allen, of Lexington, were overnight guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Allen, before going on the Charlottesville, Va. to visit his sister, Mrs. Sue Pollard, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurmal Click and Mrs. Earl Webb were shopping in Norton and Wise, Va., last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mander Moore and Mr. and Mrs. James Earl Moore were injured in an automobile accident Friday evening and were taken to Our Lady of the Way hospital where they were treated and released. They are recuperating at their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Frasure and children moved Saturday into their new home here. Mr. and Mrs. Thurmal Click were in Ashland, Huntington, Ironton and Chesapeake, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Edward Webb spent last week-end in Lexington and attended a dinner given by the DuPont Company while there. Mrs. Thelma Osborne and Miss Wanda Shepherd spent the week-end with the Webb children while their parents were away.

Miss Linda Castle, bride-elect of Mr. Larry Hicks, was honored with a miscellaneous shower Thursday evening, Nov. 18, at the home of Mrs. Bill Caudill. Miss Castle received gifts of linens, kitchenwares, small appliances and miscellaneous items. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Judith Barnett, Miss Lorena Hall, Mrs. Nancy Lois Belvins, Mrs. Sally Osborne, Mrs. Peggy Gibson, Mrs. Anna Crum, Mrs. Henrietta Hicks, Mrs. Carol Sue Sammons, Mrs. Delores Chafins, Mrs. Audrey Caudill and Mrs. Mary Fraley.

Miss Castle and Mr. Hicks will be married, Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Carl Stewart, of Miami, Fla., accompanied her grandmother, Mrs. Barker, to Louisville by plane Saturday. Mrs. Stewart was met there by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stewart and came here to join her husband who had driven here from Miami, and they spent the week-end visiting relatives before going on to Washington D. C. to visit their daughter, Carol, and her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Rood, of New Port, Minnesota, visited Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Robinson and James, Thursday, while en route home from Oklahoma. They were entertained to dinner at May Lodge before departing for home. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Rood served together for several years with the U. S. Army in Europe.

November 30 - a Date To Remember

An important, little-publicized meeting is scheduled for November 30 at the State Health Department offices in Frankfort. It could be one of these meetings at which the people say their piece or are required forever thereafter to hold their peace.

This is the meeting at which final classification of Kentucky waters is made. One of the important matters for public concern is what the lasting effect will be on streams labeled unfit for human contact—swimming, skiing and the like.

The Big Sandy River is one of the state streams which the Water Pollution Control Commission has zoned as "industrial." Thanks to the insistence of the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources, that classification of the stream has been broadened to include agricultural and aquatic life. But there apparently will be no provision to control bacterial pollution from human and animal waste except in the immediate area of water intake points for municipal water systems.

Present pollution levels are on the way to being accepted. If that continues to be the thinking of the Water Pollution Control Commission and whatever other commissions and departments that are a part of the involved system of alleged controls this state has devised, this river of ours may for all time flow as a moving cesspool, unfit to play a part in any future the region may have as a tourist and recreation area.

The Big Sandy needs purification. It should not be locked into a "dirty" category and left, an eyesore to fester.

If no strong effort is made to improve the quality of Kentucky waters, they inevitably will get worse, not better. That is the nature of things—do nothing, and matters grow worse.

There are a lot of questions to be asked at that Nov. 30 meeting. A lot of interested people, including ordinary citizens, should be there to ask them.

U.S. Jury Assails Enforcement (Or Its Lack) in Wolfe County

London, Ky.—A federal grand jury has charged that there has been a breakdown of law enforcement in Wolfe county and says conditions will become worse unless the residents "become more vocal and politically active."

The report, issued at the conclusion of a two-day special session Tuesday, said there is evidence that residents interested in cooperating with state police "are greatly outnumbered by the disinterested and other elements...opposed to strict law enforcement."

The criticism apparently stemmed from an investigation of alleged attempts by some Wolfe county residents to keep a state trooper from testifying in a moonshine case.

"There is some evidence indicating that pressure was brought to bear upon the Kentucky state police trooper from political figures in the community and upon his family," the jury stated. "There is some evidence indicating that actions were taken by the accused Wolfe county resident to injure the Kentucky State Police trooper's character and reputation, such actions being encouraged or condoned by local law enforcement officials."

The jury said the resident was arrested for public drunkenness on or about Aug. 22 and the trooper seized a quantity of moonshine whisky at the time.

The jury said several witnesses later appeared before it to give testimony about attempts to keep the trooper from testifying and to make a deal with him.

The report went on to say there has been little cooperation by local Wolfe county law enforcement officials and the state police "with the result being that effective use of state police in Wolfe county is not feasible at this time."

The report said this will not change "until the local law enforcement officials indicate a willingness to assist instead of hindering efforts of Kentucky state police."

The jury said it was unable to return any indictments at this time but requested that additional investigations be made.

Aaron Moore

Aaron Moore, 69, of Connersville Ind., died in Fayette Memorial hospital where he had been taken a short time before by the emergency unit. He had been in failing health 10 years.

Born August 11, 1902, in Floyd county, to Lindsey and Susie Moore, he moved to Connersville in 1939 from Price, where he had been a miner. He retired from Philco-Ford in 1964.

Mr. Moore was a member of the Old Regular Baptist Church, near Laurel.

Survivors include his wife, formerly Addie Friend, whom he married December 18, 1929; four daughters, Mrs. Jerry Gruver, of New Haven, Ind., Mrs. Loren Griner, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Mrs. John Buze-dahl, of R. R. 6, Connersville, and Mrs. Evan Osborne, of R. R. 7, Connersville; two sons, Earl A. Moore, of Wilmington, Calif., and Lindsey Moore, of R. R. 7; three sisters, Mrs. Russell Moore, of Rochester, N. Y., Mrs. Lincoln Quensenberry, of Warren, Mich., and Mrs. Henry Hobson, of Connersville; three brothers, Matthew, of Melvin, Jack, of Hi Hat, and Simon, of Bronson, Mich.; 16 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Old Regular Baptist Church, R. R. 1, Laurel, with Elders Caudill and Brock officiating. Burial was in Columbia cemetery.

TOO COSTLY TO KEEP

Johannesburg, South Africa—Methwell Mafune won a $3,360 automobile in a quiz competition but the 26-year-old parking lot attendant said he would have to give up the car because he couldn't afford to buy gasoline.

Union Thanksgiving Service Scheduled

The annual Community Thanksgiving Service will be held Wednesday evening (Nov. 24) at 7:30 at the Arnold Avenue Church of Christ here. It has been suggested that residents arrive as early as possible, due to a parking difficulty (a basketball tournament will be in progress at the nearby high school).

Ministers of the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association will be in charge of the program. The Rev. William Pope, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, will bring the evening message, "The Dangers of Prosperity." Special music will be presented by Mrs. Garnett Fairchild.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Food Stamp Use Grows in County As 8,470 Get Aid

During October, 8,470 low-income persons in Floyd county received food stamps valued at $209,830, Commissioner of the Department of Economic Security Merritt S. Deitz, Jr., announced Monday.

This record compares to 6,904 low-income persons who received food stamps worth $169,562 during October, 1970.

During September of this year, 7,870 persons in the county received food stamps at a cost of $195,032.

In Kentucky, the Food Stamp Program is administered jointly by the Department of Economic Security's Bureau of Public Assistance and the Food and Nutrition Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

POPULATION FACTS

Tel Aviv—The non-Jewish population of Israel at the end of 1970 was 440,000, a government report said. The total included residents of occupied East Jerusalem and was made up of 330,000 Moslems, 75,000 Christians and 35,000 Druse. The Jewish population is three million.

NOT THIS TIME

Booneville, Ky.—For the fifth time, Owsley County voters have rejected a bond issue intended to rebuild their courthouse, which burned in 1966.

The vote on the $200,000 bond issue Tuesday was 166 in favor and 449 against. Courthouse bond issue also was rejected in previous elections.

Final Tab Gives Ford 58,067 Lead Over Emberton

It's official now—Wendell H. Ford, Democrat, defeated Republican Tom Emberton for Governor at the Nov. 2 balloting by 58,067 votes.

The official figures, certified by the secretary of state, give Ford a total of 470,720 votes to 412,653 for Emberton. Ex-Governor A. B. Chandler ran as an independent and received 33,229 votes. The fourth man in the race, William E. Smith, American Party candidate, polled only 7,924 votes.

Of more local interest was the election of Robert (Bob) Dameron, Ivel Democrat, over Ronald B. Halleck, Ashland Republican, 132,002 votes to 114,992, for Third district railroad commissioner. Hubert Whitley, American Party candidate from Ashland, received 4,450 votes. Though hopelessly beaten, Whitley polled in one railroad district more than half the total received by the American Party candidate for governor in all the state.

In the governor's race, Ford carried the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 6th and 7th congressional districts. Emberton carried the 4th district by 2,259 votes. The 4th district includes part of Jefferson county, which gave him a 10,723-vote lead over Ford.

Emberton carried the heavily Republican 5th district by 25,328 votes.

The official vote in the lieutenant governor's race was:

Julian Carroll, 480,525; Jim Host of Lexington, Republican, 375,508; Robert Blair, of Greenup, American Party, 7,236.

Democrat Thelma Stovall, of Louisville, defeated Republican Ken Harper, of Fort Mitchell, for secretary of state by a vote of 460,126 to 345,675. The American Party's candidate, William E. Embry of Hopkinsville, received 8,440 votes for secretary of state.

In the race for attorney general, Democrat Ed W. Hancock, of Monticello, defeated his Republican opponent, Jefferson county Commonwealth's Atty. Edwin A. Schroering by a vote of 429,932 to 347,674.

Official returns in other statewide races: State treasurer: Drexell Davis, Democrat, Frankfort, 428,908; Dick Vermillion, Republican, Corbin, 343,130; Helen Breeden, Louisville, American Party, 8,861.

State auditor: Incumbent Mary Louise Foust, Democrat, Shelbyville, 453,853; J. Robert Miller, Republican, Tompkinsville, 332,933; Alvin L. Martin, Fern Creek, American Party, 6,736.

Superintendent of public instruction: Lyman V. Ginger, Democrat, Lexington, 446,751; Jewel B. Hamilton, Republican, Bardstown, 336,416; Thomas H. Golden, American Party candidate from Louisville, 8,331.

Commissioner of agriculture: Wendell P. Butler, Frankfort Democrat and now superintendent of public instruction, 437,143; Ben Allen Burns, Owensboro Republican, 340,599; Glenn Sunderland, Salem, American Party, 7,400.

(A public service announcement, Kentucky State Police)

REMEMBER, YOU'RE A LONG TIME DEAD!

How long since you were in school?

For those of us who are old enough to have children in school, it's a little difficult to realize how demanding and complex a teacher's job has become.

Things have changed since we were under the teacher's eye. Subjects are tougher, wider ranging. Today's student is getting into the ideas behind the facts at an age when we merely were learning facts.

Now the classroom is a place for education through thought instead of education by rote. And the teachers who meet the challenge day after difficult day are rather special people.

Dedicated? The word probably embarrasses them. Even so, it is dedication to duty that's most common to all the men and women who become — and remain — modern teachers.

How else can you describe whatever it is that makes a good teacher keep working, keep studying ahead, after the last bell of the day, the last bell of the semester, has rung?

This they do. And it's enough to know, with or without fancy words that pinpoint their motives. Enough to earn our respect, our appreciation and all the help we can give them.

The Bank Josephine is assisting Floyd County area youngsters obtain a college or trade school education. We're the only financial institution in Floyd County participating in the Federal Insured Student Loan Program. We are actively lending to students right now. But we'd like to do more. You see, we're out to make more loans to more students, but we need your help to do it. We'll earmark your money for our "Educations Unlimited" loan fund. The "Educations Unlimited" Savings Certificates we'll issue you in return will pay off magnificently — in excellent bank interest for you, and in better educations for our own boys and girls.

Floyd County has always been blessed with more than its fair share of citizens who willingly give more than they have to give — of their time, their energy, their cooperation — to keep our county out front in all the things that matter. While outstanding teachers are seeing to it that our youngsters get the best education possible, countless other people are working every day to meet the county's growing cultural and social needs.

Union University, Jackson, Tenn., is pinning a lot of its hopes for a successful basketball season on Rickie Vanover (shown at right in photo), formerly of Wheelwright. Vanover, a guard, was voted most improved player on the squad, last season. Son of Roscoe Vanover, of Wheelwright, he was graduated from Wheelwright high school. He is 19 years old and stands at 6-2. Others in photo are Jim Martin, at left, and Chip Spiller, center.

Work Starts Here On Office Building For Terry-Elkhorn

Construction by C. E. Hovatter, president of the Terry-Elkhorn Mining Company, of a two-story office building on North Lake Drive here has begun. Foundation work has been completed by Akers & Akers, contractors.

Total cost involved is estimated at $300,000. The 45x80-foot building will provide 7,200 square feet of floor space. First floor offices will be occupied by the Terry-Elkhorn Mining Company, and the Hill Engineering Company will have its offices on the second floor.

Construction will consist of a steel frame and curtain-wall of aluminum or steel. Exterior walls will be of attractive colors. Site of the new building is across Lake Drive (US 23) from the Bank Josephine branch bank.

Mine Safety Instruction Offered at Pikeville

Classes to prepare industry personnel as training instructors in requirements of the new federal coal mine Health and Safety Act will be conducted at Pikeville, Monday through Thursday, at the U. S. Army Reserve Center on Cline Street.

Instruction will be given in methane and oxygen testing devices, rood and rib control, ventilation, first aid, and the principles of mine rescue. Classes will begin at 8:30 each morning and continue until 3:30 in the afternoon.

Anyone interested in attending these classes should get in touch with the U. S. Bureau of Mines office at Pikeville.

Seeks Dismissal Of Suit Naming 30 Coal Firms

Attorneys for 30 coal companies asked Monday that the Kentucky Reclamation Commission dismiss the petition filed recently in Franklin Circuit court by the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund here on behalf of residents of this section who seek revocation of the stripmining permits issued to the coal firms.

The commission took the request for dismissal under advisement, and gave the coal-company attorneys 20 days to file the request in a written motion. The defense-fund attorneys then will have 20 days to prepare a rebuttal.

The attack on the defense fund's brief was made by Richard Cooper, Hazard attorney. Speaking for the 30 companies named in the brief, Cooper attack the petition on several points:

He said nowhere are the petitioners shown to be residents of the state of Kentucky—"These people have not shown that they are proper parties to support this action."

He claimed none of the companies cited in the brief have been served with any legal process—they have not received the legal challenge in any official way, through service of any legal documents to which they might reply, or on the basis of which they might take action.

He contended no relief has been asked in the brief.

He said the petition has not been verified or supported by the inclusion of affidavits—"This is a naked petition."

He contended there is nothing in the petition to show that the Division of Strip Mining and Reclamation has willfully or maliciously avoided enforcing the law.

He argued the petition does not allege any abuse of the division's discretion to regulate strip mining under the terms of the 1966 law—"as a matter of act, the document is full of citations which show that the division is rigidly enforcing the law."

David Murrell, a former assistant attorney general and now a lawyer in the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, noted that the brief begins by specifying that the petitioners are residents of Eastern Kentucky. He argued that the petitioners are caught between a rock and a legal hard place, since Kentucky has no administrative practices law. Since this is true, he said, there is no mechanism through which the defense fund could have served the 30 coal companies with an official complaint.

He also noted that in admitting the division had issued the noncompliance citations, Cooper had admitted the truth of his clients' complaints.

Murrell said the petition asked very specific relief, such as revocation of the permits granted to the named companies, and any other companies with the same officers, ownership of or operators.

Cats Drop First, Then Score Victory Over Sandy Hook

The Prestonsburg Blackcats suffered their first loss of the season at the hands of the Warfield Red Devils, November, 16, 67-55. They fell behind at the end of the first quarter and never got the lead again.

Prestonsburg was led in scoring by Lloyd Marcum with 16 points. Larry Senters had 15 points, Jeff Hall, 10, and Kippy McNally and Billy Risner, 7 points each.

The Blackcats slipped past previously unbeaten Sandy Hook, 60-57, in a seesaw-battle here November 19. The Blackcats, still unbeaten at home, have an overall record of three wins and one loss.

The Cats' balanced scoring attack pulled them past Sandy Hook as both teams shot poorly from the charity stripe. Big guns for the Cats were Larry Senters, 15 points, and Lloyd Marcum, 14. Other scores for the Cats were: Jeff Hall, 9 points; Kippy McNally, 7 points; Billy Risner, 6 points; Ricky Reynolds, 5 points; Jimmy Blackburn, 4 points.

Prestonsburg opens the Jenny Wiley Invitational, November 24, against Martin's Purple Flash.

Cranberries—Gift from the Indians

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
UK College of Agriculture

Without cranberries the traditional feast of Thanksgiving would be incomplete. For this reason, it would be pleasant indeed to say definitely that the Pilgrims ate this wonderful berry with their turkey and bear meat at the first Thanksgiving dinner ever held in America. But unfortunately, there is no sure evidence that they did.

The record of that historic meal, contained in a letter believed to have been written by Gov. Edward Winslow, reveals that in preparation for the event four hunters went out and, in one day, killed enough fowl to last the company a week.

Chief Massasoit and several members of his tribe joined the Pilgrims for three days and contributed three bears. Cranberries would have blended admirably with this menu, the Indians were familiar with them, and at that season of the year they should have been plentiful. Beyond that the evidence does not go.

Whether or not cranberries were served at the first Thanksgiving, the Pilgrims found this delicious fruit growing in profusion in semi-swampy areas around Plymouth Rock when they came to the New World.

At first, they found the brilliant red berries unfamiliar and bitter to their palates. Later they learned that the Indians valued the berries highly, both as a food (probably pounded with meat into a paste called "pemmican") and as a poultice for blood poisoning. The Indian name for them was I-bimi, "Bitter berry." The Pilgrims, observing that the berries were a favorite food of cranes, called them crane-berries which eventually became cranberries.

The cranberry is native to eastern North America—from Nova Scotia to North Carolina and westward to Wisconsin. It grows on a thornless vine, mainly in swampy sites that flood in winter and drain in summer. The coast of Massachusetts, particularly Cape Cod, was a rich center of native cranberries in colonial days; it still leads in production today.

For nearly 200 years after the Pilgrims first acquired a taste for cranberries, colonists were content to gather them from the wild. Then on his farm near Dennis, Mass., Henry Hall, a veteran of the Revolution, made an attempt to cultivate them. His efforts were apparently successful because, in 1832, the local paper printed a story stating that Hall's land yielded about 70 bushels of cranberries per acre.

Soon other farmers in Massachusetts were cultivating cranberries. A little later culture was started in New Jersey. Then it spread to Wisconsin, Washington, and Oregon. These five states produce most of the cranberries used today.

Despite the lack of documented proof that cranberries were eaten at the first Thanksgiving, tradition holds that they were and this same tradition, until recent years, held the industry back. People had a tendency to serve this fruit only during this wonderful holiday season.

Then growers and canners, producing far more berries than consumers could possibly eat at Thanksgiving, began publicity campaigns to persuade housewives that cranberries were as good in July as in November. They succeeded well because the cranberry industry is now a $100,000,000-a-year business.

One undeniable fact about the cranberry is that it is a healthful, tasty, zesty fruit at any season and can be served up in any number of delightful forms. It is distinctly American and to serve it on the table is to have a part in the romance of America.

UK Study Says Users of Coal Should Pay Cost

A University of Kentucky study says road-crushing overweight coal trucks force state residents to subsidize coal users elsewhere.

It contends frequent violations and road damage impose costs on society at large. . . as a consequence the price at which Eastern Kentucky coal is sold reflects only the costs of the private resources used."

The study, requested by Atty. Gen. John B. Breckinridge, says a crackdown, forcing the use of smaller trucks, won't have any adverse economic effect on Kentucky's coal industry.

It said enforcement of weight regulations would shift to coal buyers in the form of higher prices the social costs now borne by Kentuckians.

A prime conclusion of the report is that coal demand in the Kentucky mountains is inelastic and remains constant regardless of prices.

The report said there simply is no evidence that hauling coal in smaller trucks would lead to the demise of the industry.

"It would be equitable and in the interest of the citizens of the state to endorse measures which would compel the buyers of Kentucky coal to bear the full resource costs which their purchases generate," the study said.

Clark Promoted In Army Ceremony

Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.—At an informal ceremony held here, Michael C. Clark, son of Floyd County Schools Superintendent and Mrs. Charles F. Clark of Garrett, Ky., was officially promoted from the rank of specialist fourth class to that of specialist five in the U. S. Army.

Specialist Clark, 25, came to the Sixth Army public affairs office here after completing advanced individual training at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., as an information specialist. Although lacking time in grade and service, he was placed in the position of acting sergeant in the Public Information Division because of his responsible manner and outstanding ability. He entered the Army in 1970 and completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

A 1964 graduate of Garrett high school, Clark attended Prestonsburg Kentucky Community College and the University of Kentucky in Lexington. At the University of Kentucky television center, Clark was chief photographer and assistant producer-director prior to his entry into the Army.

Cargo of Beer, Johnson Taken At Wheelwright

Randall Johnson was jailed here Friday after 75 cases of beer had been confiscated in a search of a truck he was driving in Wheelwright.

A state trooper said Johnson was within minutes of his destination when captured. He was arrested by State Trooper Gary Rose and Wheelwright Policemen Hall and Johnson.

In a raid last Wednesday on the premises of Banner Burchett at Knotley Hollow Troopers Rose and Williamson confiscated only a half-pint of whiskey. Burchett was booked at the jail here on charges of possessing intoxicating beverages and disorderly conduct.

Tackett Lee Newsome and Prince Walters were arrested Friday at Paintsville by State Trooper Music and jailed here on a charge of breaking and entering a Mud Creek store.

Most of the other arrests made over the week-end were for traffic offenses. One of those arrested was Ronald Eugene Wills, who was booked by Prestonsburg Policemen Thornsby and Vaughan on a charge of driving without an operator's license, then released to Meade county to answer to cold check charges. Wills will be returned here for trial later. Others booked, charges against them and names of arresting officers follow:

Ronald Dean Jones, drunk driving, by Policemen Thornsby, Conley and Campbell, fined $157; William Skaggs, drunk driving, by Policemen Conley and Campbell; Johnnie Mullins, drunk driving, by Conley and Campbell; Solomon J. Bingham, drunk driving, by Conley; Lewis Hicks, no operator's license, by State Trooper E. B. Allen; T. J. Boyd, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Troopers Williamson and Bevins; Homer Hall and Lee Kidd, Jr., both charged with drunk driving, arrested by Trooper Rose; Don Risner, drunk driving, by State Trooper Allen and Deputy Sheriff J. W. Allen; Jack Akers, reckless use of a deadly weapon, by Deputy Sheriffs Nelson and Conn.

FHA Aid Available On Garbage Systems

Samuel Johnson, director of the State Department of Health's Division of Solid Waste, announced this week that federal funds for rural garbage collection and disposal systems are available to Kentucky towns of 5,500 population or under through the Farmer's Home Administration (FHA).

According to Johnson, the FHA can provide up to 50 per cent in grants and 50 per cent in loans, making 100 per cent financing possible for the establishment of rural systems, even including house-to-house garbage and refuse collection.

Application forms and further information may be procured from Mr. Williams, Farmer's Home Administration, 1409 Forbes Road, Lexington 40505.

Hi-Mom Program Offers Free Call

Local No. 10317, Communications Workers of America, announced this week that one Floyd county service man or woman stationed overseas will get a free telephone call during the holidays this year, thanks to the union's 15th annual Hi-Mom Program.

The winner will be selected in a contest to be conducted in this area, as well as in other parts of the country. George Layne, president of the local here, said parents, brothers, sisters, husbands and wives of U. S. military personnel overseas are eligible to enter.

TO PARTICIPATE, ALL THE CONTESTANT NEEDS TO DO IS TO SEND A POSTAL CARD TO CWA Local 10317, P. O. Box 562, Prestonsburg, giving his or her name, address and telephone number.

Name of the winner will be announced Dec. 11 by the Rev. W. D. Jagers, of Prestonsburg.

FELICO-CONN

The marriage of Miss Maria Magdalena Felico, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leandro Felico, Garden City, Mich., to Mr. Larry Conn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Conn, also of Garden City, Michigan, formerly of Betsy Layne, Ky., was solemnized at 6:00 p.m. July 31 at the Community Free Will Baptist Church, Westland, Michigan, by the Rev. Bobby Porter, formerly of Dwayne, Ky.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin, with sleeves and neckline of venise lace, and seed pearls, and matching detachable chapel train. A petal lace flower headpiece secured her veil of satin. The bride carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids and white stephanotis, with streamers of orchid satin ribbon.

Gladys Felico, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a orchid formal gown of satapeau trimmed at the neckline, cuffs, and empire-waist with venise lace. Her veil was attached to a covered camelot cap. The bridesmaids were Angie and Lucy Felico and Vicki Sylvester.

The best man, twin brother of the bridegroom, was Mr. Harry Conn. The ringbearer was Garry Conn, also a brother of the bridegroom. The flower girl was Miss Sheryle Sylvester.

The bridegroom is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Stratton, of Betsy Layne.

A reception was held, immediately following the ceremony, at the Roma Hall, Livonia, Michigan. The bride and groom are graduates of West Senior high, Garden City, Mich. The bridegroom is now serving in the U. S. Army, and is now stationed at Homestead Air Force Base, Homestead, Florida.

correctly reported the jail terms last week as 10 days. The sentences run concurrently.)

Randolph Jacobs, who entered a plea of guilty to two liquor possession charges last week drew fines of $30 on each count and two 30-day jail terms. The jail terms run concurrently.

The one-year term of Roy Lewis for grand larceny was probated for a period of one year.

The appeal of Olin Shepherd, who was given a 21-year pen term on his conviction at an earlier court session for the slaying of his wife, was dismissed Nov. 16 by the Court of Appeals on the ground that notice of appeal "was not timely filed."

Appeals of Robert Hardee, Arvie Burchett and Ronnie Conn from drunk driving convictions were dismissed when they failed to appear in court. The appeal of Charles W. Hall, who was convicted of fishing without license, was dismissed for the same reason.

Cases dismissed included those of John Martin, reckless use of a deadly weapon; Grover Martin, assault and battery, and Douglas DeRossett, resisting arrest.

Prosecutor's Action Taken To Sell Van For Rum Transport

Commonwealth's attorney Harold J. Stumbo last week filed a petition in circuit court, seeking the sale of a 1964 model van which had been used in transporting alcoholic beverages in this county for the purpose of sale. It was said to be the first attempt to effect such a sale in this county.

The vehicle was registered in the name of Lowell Maggard, of Isom, Ky., but its operator was Silas Woodrow Elkins, who entered a plea of guilty at the September circuit court term to the transporting charge.

Sale of the vehicle was asked by Stumbo under KRS 242.360. Sale at public auction was asked.

With my reputation for bad luck on fishing trips growing no better by the hour, it has been suggested that I make my next trip under an assumed name.

When I asked at a courthouse office if there was a Floyd County Times "sitting around here" somebody challenged the word, "sitting," and I explained that I was trying to protect The Times by refusing to say it was lying.

ABSENCE EXPLAINED

The preacher had missed one of his flock on a certain Sunday and next time he ran across the straying sheep he asked, "Did you go to the ball game last Sunday?"

"No," said the other, "and I've got the fish to prove it!"

(I am assuming that it would be superfluous, redundant, prolix, verbose and plumb unnecessary for me to note here that I was not the one who made a statement of that sort.)

THE PUNCH LINE

Lenna Moore's lengthy complaint that when Roby Marcum this past summer and fall went about the neighborhood, spreading largesse, right and left, in the form of crappie which he had caught at Dewey Lake, drew a smile when he remarked that it was not till he was down to the smaller ones that he got around to Lenna. Then when Moore told of a big one Marcum brought him, moved to spread his hands to indicate its length, then suddenly stopped and said, "Shucks, I don't want to tell a lie!"—then was when he really got a laugh.

tendent of Schools Charles Clark said they had hoped for a restoration of funds to the 1970-'71 level.

Title I funds finance the program which is directed at special education services for educationally and (or) financially disadvantaged children. The program also includes special education services for retarded pupils.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, chairman of the House Education and Labor committee, immediately protested the cuts, terming them "startling...when it is considered that Congress actually appropriated more funds for school aid this year than last."

Kentucky will receive $33,755,352—a cut of $3.4 million. Fourteen other states, most of which are in the South, also lose. Harlan and Pike counties are two of the counties in this section which also are losing about $100,000 each.

The cuts come this year because for the first time a guarantee that no state would get less than it received the previous year was eliminated from the appropriations bill.

As a result, the law's distribution formula has come fully into play, according to Office of Education officials, and states that have relatively high per-pupil expenditures (one element in the formula) are being rewarded with Title I increases.

One official said this means that states like California and New York will be getting more funds, while Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and other Southern and border states will lose money.

THANK YOU

Among the many things for which we are daily thankful are the many good people here and that many of them do business with us. We appreciate your business and your friendship as we do the other blessings we enjoy in this country. Again, thanks...

The Eastern Kentucky toll road became a reality on Jan. 14, 1963.

"What we memorialize here on the Mountain Parkway is not only the man who built it," Nunn said, "but the personal qualities which make him a man to remember in Kentucky history."

The governor noted there are several reasons that give a man the foresight and courage and determination to plan and complete projects such as the Mountain Parkway. "But none applies better for this particular project and for this particular man than to say that the Mountain Parkway was born out of Bert Combs' deep appreciation for the people of his native Eastern Kentucky."

The inscription on the plaque, which included a sculpture done by Don Lanham, read:

"A man of the mountains, knowing his neighbors needs, dreamed of a splendid, modern highway linking the Eastern mountains and the Bluegrass. As Governor, Bert Combs made the dream a reality."

Governor Wetherby, who made the Kentucky Turnpike a reality, is called the pioneer of Kentucky's modern-day highway system.

"Governor Wetherby has honored his obligation to our state by leaving to show for his years of dedicated service a legacy of enduring projects that have contributed substantially to the progress of Kentucky," Governor Nunn said.

The Department of Economic Security, in cooperation with the Department of Health, has launched a three-year program to rehabilitate recipients of public assistance. The program will seek to rehabilitate money recipients only and food stamp recipients or medical only cases will not be considered.

The Kentucky County Judges Assn. announced it will ask the 1972 General Assembly to give judges wider discretion in assessing drunk driving penalties. The proposal would lower the present six-month license revocation period for drunk driving to 30 days and require convicted drivers to attend a driver improvement clinic.

Whatever Things

Some years ago, I ran across a saying which made quite a bit of sense to me. It went something like this: "More and more people are borrowing more and more money they don't have to buy more and more things they can't afford to impress more and more people they don't like." If you think about it for a minute, you can see that there is about as much wisdom as there is humor in the statement.

Life for countless numbers is a rat race in which we live our lives, trying to impress other folks. A friend of ours once made some very unkind remarks toward her husband. He had a job offered to him which paid more salary, but for some reason he turned it down. She was very angry with him because she wanted him to "get ahead" in life, whatever that is.

Many people have dreams of a big house on the hill, and all the fringe benefits which go with it. And their whole life is a continual pursuit of the big house on the hill. Nothing else is important. They are so busy trying to make a living that they haven't got time to live a life. As a result, the joy of living soon disappears.

Recently I read an article about a mother who took her little girl shopping in one of the best department stores in town. In the beautifully stocked store, the mother remarked to the little girl: "Look at all the things we can do without and never miss because we never had them." It's an attitude with which millions would be better equipped to face life.

The Shepherd of men once remarked that a person's life doesn't consist in the abundance of possessions. He was right about that, you know. The richest people aren't those who have an abundance of possessions. The richest people are those who have learned to enjoy and use their possessions. The richest people are those who have time for the simple things, who make time for the sacred things.

Most of us don't have an equal amount of possessions. But each of us does have an equal amount of time. Every person has twenty-four hours a day and seven days a week. The difference between those who make a living and those who live a life comes in how they use that time. Perhaps, just perhaps, time is more valuable than possessions.

"What does it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" was the question posed by the Shepherd. It is still a valid question, especially in this hurry, hurry, hurry world in which we live.

I can't answer for the other person, but, personally I'm going to take time to do a little living with this life I have. It's the only one I will ever get, you know. And how I use it will be up to me. I may not ever "get ahead" in this life, but one thing is certain—I'll enjoy being behind!

What I'm saying is that in this life we should take a little time to do a lot of living.

Final regulations governing state plans for developing and enforcing state occupational safety and health standards have been announced by the Labor Department.

Students Elected At Traffic Parley

One of five high school students elected by their fellow students at the Governor's Regional High School Traffic Safety Conference at Jenny Wiley State Park will be appointed as the new eastern Kentucky high school representative on the Kentucky Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee (KTSCC). The five students are pictured here with Mrs. Mary Richmond, Paintsville (KTSCC member), front row right. The students selected were, front row, from left—Patti Jones, of Breckinridge high school at Morehead, and Barbara Spears, Betsy Layne high school; back row, Douglas Little, of Fairview high school, near Ashland, Mike Lewis, of Betsy Layne high school, and Frank Waddell, of Hindman high school. The student representative on the KTSCC will be appointed shortly after the series of regional conferences is completed.

The new students will be appointed to the Committee shortly after the series of regional conferences is over.

In other activities at the conference at Jenny Wiley, the students discussed the issue of probationary driving licenses for persons aged 16-20 and formulated plans for traffic safety projects and programs to carry back to their schools and communities.

RUPP . . . on Basketball

By ADOLPH RUPP, Head Basketball Coach, University of Kentucky

During the "Old Days," we didn't put much emphasis on the assistant coaching job here at the University of Kentucky. I don't exactly remember my early assistants in chronological order, but there were such guys as Elmer (Baldy) Gilb, then Len Miller, then "Spinner" Campbell, then Bernie Shively, and just about anybody who wanted to help.

Recruiting was virtually unknown and scouting didn't come to the forefront until years after we started it here at the University.

The situation is different now and you need to have a "recruiter" on the road almost all the time to contact prospects and keep up with the competition.

This year, we lost T. L. Plain, a very wonderful recruiter with a fine personality and a coach so highly regarded that Utah State hired him as their head coach to replace LaDell Anderson, who got a job coaching the professional Utah team.

We hated to lose Plain, but we had to recommend him for that job because we thought a lot of him and because he merited attention. He was getting up there in the early forties and if he was ever to get a coaching job he had to get it soon. When the one came along that he wanted, we went all out for him, although it put us in a situation of going out and trying to get someone to replace him.

Some 75 persons, including four or five head coaches, applied for the job left vacant by the departure of Plain. This gave us a great option to select a man. We knew of such a person at the University of Kansas, my alma mater, by the name of Gale Catlett, who played with Jerry West when West Virginia was in our Christmas tournament here.

I knew a lot about this boy. He became captain, with Rod Thorn, of the West Virginia team and he was an assistant coach at Richmond and at Davidson before joining the Kansas staff. During four years at Kansas, his freshman teams had a record of 35 victories, four losses and a tie, the latter called because of a time limitation.

Catlett has a tremendous personality; he is just an outstanding young man and he made a fine impression when he came here. He also made a sacrifice in salary to join our staff. His wife teaches in Kansas and will be here Dec. 1. We're looking forward to welcoming her into the University family.

Another new member of the staff is Walt McCombs, our new head trainer, who replaces Dr. Claude Vaughan. Dr. Vaughan is an economics professor at the University and is devoting all his time to that following. He still visits us in the office and at practice sessions. McCombs was a student trainer four years at The Citadel and is a fine young man. He will travel with the team and perform all duties of a head trainer.

Other members of the staff are the same. Joe Hall, back for his sixth year, has been used chiefly as a recruiter and last year was freshman coach and head assistant coach, if you want to make anyone a head assistant. We consider Joe one of our boys, although he did not letter at the University. He was a substitute guard during the "Fabulous Five" days and then went to Sewanee, where he lettered.

Dickie Parsons is truly one of our own. He was captain of our team here in 1961, when he was also captain of the baseball team. Dickie prides himself as being the smallest man ever to play at the University and I think he is in a vicious verbal battle with Ronnie Lyons (5-10 sophomore) as to which of them will wind up with that title at the end of Ronnie's career.

Dickie actually is full-time baseball coach at the University. He helps us from Oct. 15 until about March 1, and in a pinch thereafter.

As you can see, our scouting and recruiting are in fairly good hands at this stage. We seem to have a fine freshman team coming up, but the big job now is rebuilding the varsity.

(Next: Discussion of players).
Regulations barring government contractors from using tests or other selection methods that discriminate against minorities or women have been issued by the U. S. Department of Labor.

Invitation To Bid

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

"Folk Prejudices"

The spectacle of anti-Semitic propaganda in Germany is rather hard for us to understand until we recall our own racial hatreds. How long it has taken the English and Irish to learn how to live together! How hard it is for Germanic and Latin races to agree for any length of time! To us on the other side of the Atlantic it seems foolish for two such near neighbors as the French and Germans to be hostile to each other. What we forget is that the racial prejudices of these two peoples in all probability are based on intangible things that are older than history. The very force that in far-away times caused the two language groups represented now by the French and the Germans to separate may be the basis for the modern inability of the two to understand each other. The French in Canada have known no other ruler but the King of England since 1763, but we witnessed the strange spectacle during World War I of riots on the part of French Canadians to resist conscription, even though France itself was the ally of the still-hated Great Britain.

Though we parade a little too obviously our American tolerance of every race and sect, racial prejudices are by no means dead. People with a mixed ancestry often find it difficult to know when to take sides. The bitterness of our own Civil War was engendered ages before a single slave was sold in Virginia; something of the passions set in motion by the Reformation had survived and still survives, even in the breasts of those who would like to forget. Kentuckians are especially puzzled in their prejudices. With relatives on both sides, with the state still in the Union and yet to all intents and purposes out of it, with first one army and then the other surging across our borders and making it hard for anybody with normal feelings to be neutral or even mildly partisan, our immediate ancestors must have suffered in a way that people farther north or farther south could not understand. Even today the Civil War flames up in my classes, a spectacle that makes one wonder how long we must live to be able to forget.

Our later immigrants, though untouched by our Civil War prejudices, have a contempt, often, for those who have arrived in America still later than they. One of my students, with an unpronounceable name, spoke very slightly of the newcomers in Chicago, even though his own Czech grandfather, who is still living, had come over as a common immigrant only fifty years ago. Somehow we hand on our own prejudices to those who have come to share America with us. Alexander Wilson, the Scotch weaver who came to America in 1794, and later became our greatest ornithologist, had become so Americanized, even in prospect, that he identified himself on the sailing vessel that brought him to Philadelphia with a wild-eyed advocate of democracy and wrote proudly back to Scotland as an American of long standing. One is reminded of the Irishman who landed in America the second of July, got on the New York police force the next day, met his brother at Ellis Island the next, and when asked the reason for the fireworks, replied proudly: "This is the day we whipped youse." Prejudices, whether native or acquired, are inexplicable; we do not know enough about the early history of the race to explain them.

Reynolds Speaker At Nov. 13 Meeting Of Retired Teachers

The Floyd County Retired Teachers met Nov. 13 at 2 p.m. in the Regional Library here. Mrs. May K. Roberts presided.

The devotional was given by Bill Gilliland, pastor of the Arnold Avenue Church of Christ. Jesse Elliott rendered musical selections on the autoharp.

The guest-speaker, Representative W. J. Reynolds, was presented by Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland. Mr. Reynolds spoke on "The Kentucky Teacher Retirement System" and then conducted a round-table discussion on the subject.

Those present were Mesdames Norma Stepp, Grace Conley, Lucy Regan, Josephine S. Hill, Beatrice Collins, May K. Roberts, Alice Hornsby, Polly Harmon, and Minnie Grace Sutherland, Misses Josephine Spradlin and Alice Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Elliott and Mr. Wade Slone.

The next meeting was scheduled for Feb. 12 when a representative from the Internal Revenue Department will speak at 2 p.m. in the Regional Library here.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE STUDENT OFFICERS—Community college student government presidents meeting recently on the University of Kentucky campus at Lexington included (from left) Bobby Branhan, Prestonsburg; Tom Scholl, Lexington Technical Institute, and David Sloan, Somerset. They are members of the Inter-Community College Advisory Council, which advises educators on opportunities and problems relating to the community college student.

Early Birds May Be Tougher To Get

Frankfort, Ky.—Most small game hunters are bent on getting into the field on the very first day of the season. Their fever is running high after a year's layoff and they figure to get into the rabbits, quail and grouse, as well as squirrels, before the other hunters "get them all."

Of course, their fears are unfounded. Actually the best hunting usually occurs after two or three weeks of the season have passed and sometimes even into the new year. During the early part of the season the hunter is disorganized. First he is likely out of condition physically, and so are his dogs. Also, he has an itchy trigger finger and his shooting suffers.

The cover is so thick during this period that a hunter is less apt to sight his quarry as the game finds denser places in which to hide. If the weather is hot, the dog is apt to "run down" after a few hours, and his master is in about the same shape.

And, in the early days every person who has any idea of hunting tries to get into the fields, causing a crowded condition. The same field may be hunted a half dozen times a day by different groups of hunters.

True, a great deal will be garnered the first day. With so many hunters in the field, the game is at a distinct disadvantage and the hunter has the edge. For instance, a once jumped rabbit that has eluded a hunter may be ousted more easily from his temporary hiding place by a second or third group. The same is true of coveys or birds. After having been shot into and scattered they may not have time to reassemble into a covey before another band of hunters and dogs invades their individual sanctuary.

So it's not all that important to get into the fields in the early days of a season. There will be plenty of game left, as the early hunters, will not hurt the population a great deal.

A few years ago a testing group in another state released a given number of rabbits in a fenced-in area in which there was sufficient food and cover and water. This was prior to the hunting season. It was determined that the rabbits could not escape through the fence.

When the season rolled around a controlled hunt was held in this given area. Hunters scoured the plot thoroughly, they thought, and after a day of intensive hunting they had sighted less than the number of rabbits that had been released. In a few days the area was tested again, and again rabbits were found. This continued for some time.

The experiment proved that at least half of a rabbit population can successfully hide from the hunter even in a fenced-in area. If a man hunted a field as intensively as he could, there would be rabbits (and the same applies to quail) left undetected in that field.

So, if a hunter can't make it the first two or three weeks of the season, he may well consider himself lucky. In later days he'll find thinner cover for the animals and birds as snows will mash down tall weeds, etc. He'll find his dogs as well as himself in better hunting condition. The game will be larger and fatter, perhaps, and hunted areas will be less crowded. In short, the enjoyment in the cool, brisk days of December and January will be greater.

Native Trees of Medicinal Value

WILD CHERRY. The inner bark of the wild cherry is aromatic, with a rich, almond flavor. It has long been used as a remedy for coughs, and most cough drops are flavored with wild cherry bark. It is also widely used in cough mixtures and as a bitter tonic for the stomach. The purplish-black berries, which ripen in autumn, have long been used in making cherry wine. They are also an excellent bird food and are relished by cardinals, mourning doves and other birds. The Indians used the root of wild cherry to make their medicines, which they used for various ailments. The bark also has astringent properties and is useful in treating diarrhea. Cherry gum dissolved in wine is used in many lands for the relief of coughs.

Wild cherry is sometimes called the "rum cherry," as the bark was used to flavor rum. Aside from being a valuable medicinal tree, wild cherry ranks next to the black walnut as being one of the most valuable trees of the forest. So all who have wild cherries on the farm should protect them well and give them a chance to mature into marketable trees. The wood is reddish-brown, with yellow sap wood; it neither warps nor splits and is used for making fine furniture, as it takes on a shiny luster when polished. The wood is also used for interior finish and veneer. In the forest, the tree grows tall, without much taper to the trunk. The tree grows best on the mountains and is often found in coves and on spurs of ridges. The bark on younger trees is smooth and has a bright reddish-brown color; it is marked by numerous white cross-lines, giving it an artistic touch. The blooms are white and are formed in long, drooping clusters, which appear in April or early May and give the appearance of a lady with her hair all decked out with round curlers. Nothing is more beautiful than a wild cherry covered with the drooping clusters of white flowers. The blooms produce purplish-black berries, which ripen in autumn.

Wild cherry seedlings about three or four feet tall are easily transplanted and do well in rich, well-drained soils. Caution: Do not prune a wild cherry and put the branches out in an open place, where cattle might browse on them. The leaves contain prussic acid and when they wilt this seems to cause the poison to increase. I know a man who pruned his wild cherries and threw out the lopped-off green branches in his field; his cattle ate them and four fine steers died.

THE SLIPPERY ELM. This tree is also known as Red Elm, so botanists call it Ulmus Rubra (red). The wood is reddish-brown, heavy and strong. The inner bark is soft and aromatic and becomes mucilaginous when pounded. It has been used since pioneer times to make poultices for bruises and carbuncles. Slippery elm has played a great role in Folk Medicine all down through the ages. Its bark is sold in drug stores as lozenges for sore throat and cough. It is soft and sweet and can be eaten much like candy; the tree is also called the "sweet elm." The bark is used as a remedy for diarrhea and throat troubles. It also absorbs noxious gases and overcomes stomach acidity. The bark is powdered and mixed with milk to make a nourishing diet for babies; it is said to be a good safeguard against "summer complaints" in children. As a remedy for dysentery, the older generations mixed an ounce of the powdered bark of slippery elm with a pint of water.

As the bark of slippery elm is always in strong demand on the herb markets, one of these trees presents a temptation to the bark thieves, who slip into the woods, cut down the tree and peel the trunk from top to bottom. Many trees have been completely wiped out by the persistent thieves; so if one has valuable slippery elms on the farm, it is wise to keep an eye on them lest they fall prey to the persistent bark peddlers.

The outer bark of slippery elm is light brown, smoother than that of the American elm. The leaves are doubly toothed and grow about six inches long; they feel like sandpaper to the touch. The flowers appear in March and are like thin wafers, each with a single seed.

THE SASSAFRAS. This tree belongs to the Laurel Family; oldtimers always called it the "sassafras tree." The entire tree is pleasantly aromatic and if you chew the twigs they soon form a mucilage in the mouth. The roots are the most fragrant of all and have been used from time immemorial to brew the famous "sassafras tea," mostly used in the spring for a tonic and blood cleanser. I knew many oldtimers who used the tea in lieu of coffee and made every member of the family drink several cups. We got the name of "sassafras" from the Indians, who called the tree the "smelling stick." The red roots of the older trees growing in the woods make the best tea; they may be gathered and boiled a number of times to make the reddish-orange drink. The tea is a warm, aromatic stimulant and has a beneficial effect on the kidneys. The tree also yields oil of sassafras widely used in flavoring root beer.

Bethlehem Firms Win Safety Awards

Twenty-five Bethlehem Steel Corp. operations posted perfect safety records to win awards in the annual nationwide contests sponsored by the Metals, Mining, and Coal Mining Sections of the National Safety Council. Among the award-winning operations were Mines 22 and 27 of the Beth-Elkhorh Corp., Jenkins, Ky., subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel.

The Kentucky mines won second and third places in group 1, underground bituminous mining. The attorney general's office handed down opinions challenging the rights of public and newspaper reporters to examine public records. Atty. Gen. John B. Breckinridge said reporters should not have access to court records when disclosure is not in the public interest.

Poster Contest Winners Announced

Winners of the Children's Book Week poster contest were announced Friday by the Education Committee of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club. Clark winners, grades 1-4: First, Bobby Hamilton and Ronnie Johnson; second, Gina Perry; third, Alicia Collopy; Grades 5-8—first, Helen Perry; second, Wanda Ousley, Susan Clark, Virginia Pitts; third, Brenda Wright. Prestonsburg winners, grades 1-4: First, Deborah Ranier; second, Mike Walls; third, Beverly Stevens, Opal Peters; grades 5-8—Jeane Chaffin, first; Jeffrey Cross, second; Robert Bond, third. Honorable mention: Charles Neeley, Scott Moore. Judges for the contest who found many outstanding works were Mrs. Anna Sue Stumbo, Russell May, and Peter Farris.

Assisting club members were Sally Stumbo, Toddy Johnson, Barbara Robinson and Nell Lawson. The winning posters from Clark are on display at the Francis Store. The Prestonsburg elementary winning posters are in the Fountain Korner. All other entries are displayed at the Regional Library. LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS AMENDMENTS
A legislative subcommittee has recommended amendments to the state constitution to provide for easier revision of the 80-year-old document. The amendment would require a proposal for a constitutional convention be approved by only one session of the legislature instead of the two consecutive sessions currently required.

Thanksgiving, Full Table Go Together

West Liberty, Ky.—Thanksgiving can be many things, each part and parcel a cooperative of the whole, but to most people the day set aside as a day of thanksgiving is a day of good things to eat, plus visits of relatives and friends.

For the woman who spends endless days in a kitchen making a genuine effort to feed her family nutritious meals three times a day she might appreciate more than anything spending Thanksgiving day at one of Kentucky's state resort parks. There additional foods will grace long buffet tables, with going back for seconds a part of the sumptuous park fare.

Thanksgiving in a resort park has become traditional with many Kentuckians. There is a feeling of friendly neighborliness even among strangers, and in addition to good food eaten in leisure there is the great outdoors for viewing, hiking and pleasure.

If activity is not your bent and you want to use the day for relaxation and rest, there are comfortable lounges with TV and a multitude of spots perfect for reading that best seller. . . the park lounge TV might be where the man of the house wants to be, watching his favorite footballers scoring their Thanksgiving touchdowns.

If you can't make it to one of the commonwealth's resort parks for Thanksgiving day and a call from Aunt Jessie in West Virginia says her family will be with you in Kentucky for the holiday, then plan to serve turkey, yes, but possibly something different, too.

Mrs. Sarah R. Seitz used to serve "Way Down South," a casserole meal when the occasion demanded an extra food. Ingredients are:

- 2 medium sized onions sliced thin
- 4 medium sized potatoes sliced thin
- 2 cups creamy corn
- 1 pound pork sausage
- 1 cup canned tomato sauce (hers was home canned)
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- dash paprika

After greasing casserole, place ingredients in order given. Make sausage into balls, then pour tomato sauce over all and bake in moderate oven 30 minutes. Remove casserole cover and bake until potatoes are nicely browned.

"This dish is a meal within itself," said Mrs. Seitz, whose family has a postoffice in Magoffin county named for them.

For salad, you could try the late Mrs. J. Henry Cole's 24-hour salad. Mrs. Cole for many years was in charge of foods at the old Cole Hotel in West Liberty which became famous for its country cuisine.

Since this salad must be made at least 24 hours ahead of time, there will be no last minute rush to get a salad prepared for the Thanksgiving table. Ingredients are yolks of six eggs, beaten with a pinch of salt; two tablespoons sugar; 1 pint cream (not whipping cream). Cook until thick, then cool. Pour this mixture over two large cans of pineapple cut in small pieces, two bottles cherries and one-half pound pecans. Mix with one pint whipped cream and let set in refrigerator 24 hours.

Mrs. W. W. Welch of Huntington, W. Va., has a favorite magic spice cake recipe that you could use for Thanksgiving dessert.

- 2½ cups cake flour
- 1 cup white sugar
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3-4 teaspoon salt
- 3-4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 3-4 teaspoon soda
- 3-4 cup brown sugar
- 3-4 cup shortening
- 1 cup buttermilk

Mix ingredients in electric mixer at low speed. Beat two minutes and add three whole eggs, then beat two minutes longer. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes. Top with caramel icing.

If you are beginning to feel guilty at serving such toothsome foods at little labor, you could go to the trouble to make a loaf of old fashioned bread. Made with the recipe (now famous) of Mrs. Earl Price of Morgan County, thick slices of this bread spread with butter or margarine almost make a meal.

- 1 package active dry yeast
- ½ cup warm water
- 1½ cups milk
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 6 tablespoons soft shortening
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 6 to 6½ cups sifted flour

Add dry yeast to the warm water. Let stand. Scald the milk or use warm water and add the sugar. Pour into a large bowl and cool to lukewarm. Stir yeast mixture well and pour into bowl. Mix in shortening along with half the flour. Add salt. Beat until smooth, then add flour a little at a time until dough is stiff and cleans the side of bowl.

Turn onto a lightly floured board. Knead a few minutes until smooth and elastic. Place in a lightly greased bowl turning once. Cover with a damp cloth and let rise in a warm place about an hour, or until a dent remains when finger is pressed deep into side of dough. Punch down the dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board. Divide into half and shape into loaves. Place in lightly greased loaf pans.

Cover with a damp cloth and let rise in a warm place about 45 minutes or until a dent remains when dough is pressed. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until well browned in preheated moderately hot oven (400 degrees). Remove from pans and cool on racks. (Bread is baked through if it has a hollow sound when side or bottom is tapped with fingers.)

If your family get-together is late, then plan to use these recipes for a dinner the Sunday following Thanksgiving or any other day. Thanksgiving dinner can be any day. It can be and is more than food, but such a holiday dinner is a gracious way of enjoying earth's bounteous blessings.

CHRISTMAS PAST—Frontier Christmas as it looked in Kentucky in 1790, will be the theme of a celebration in Washington, Ky., Dec. 4 and 5. Six historic buildings will be open to the public, and Kentucky Burgoon, country ham sandwiches and transparent puddings will be served. Washington is on U.S. 68, four miles south of Maysville.

Greg Crum Receives Graduate Certificate

Greg Crum, of the Prestonsburg General hospital, has received the graduate certificate of the Committee on Injuries of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons for completing the advanced practical course in emergency care of the sick and injured, sponsored by the committee, November 11-13, at the National Guard Armory, Johnson City, Tennessee.

The advanced training is given to improve the skills and knowledge of persons involved in the emergency handling of sick and injured persons and was the second annual Academy sponsored course held in Johnson City.

Order of Arrow Election Held

Lonesome pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, Order of the Arrow lodge held its annual election Nov. 14 at Camp Shawnee for the upcoming 1972 program year. Elected as chief was Joe Owens, of Troop 24, Maytown. Kent Flanery, also from Troop 24, was elected first vice chief. Second vice chief went to Carl Begley, of Troop 129, Hazard. Curt Robertson, of Troop 12, Pikeville, was elected secretary, and Doug Goff, also of Troop 12, was elected treasurer.

Besides the election of officers for the Tomahaken Lodge, a general business meeting was held, and plans for the coming year were discussed, along with a discussion of procedures. The lodge began work on its own council ring at Camp Shawnee with development to proceed through the next year. Many of the discussions were participated in by boys from all over the council, and the lodge lay adviser, Jim Bailey, of Pikeville, said that the Order of the Arrow lodge is off to a good start and will be beginning to rebuild this year.

Also present at the business meeting were Council Scout Executive F. Marvin Barber, Pikeville, and District Scout Executives George Chidester, Water Gap, and Tom Smith, Pikeville. Cliff Myers, Pikeville, camping chairman for the Council, assisted.

Campaign for Toys Begun This Week

A Toys for Tots campaign sponsored by Mrs. Bessie Stumbo, Miss Sue Bentley, Mrs. Tammy Hensley and Mrs. Faye Johnson, employees of Prestonsburg Shoe Co., got under way this week with contributions being given by employees there. Toys and donations of money are solicited and all collections will go directly to the Dora Lee Orphanage at Salyersville. Persons interested should call 285-3617 during the day and 285-3064 after 5 p.m.

An appeal has been made to have toys or donations in by Dec. 15 so that the children there may have added food, clothing and gifts by Christmas time.

Regulations barring government contractors from using tests or other selection methods that discriminate against minorities or women have been issued by the U. S. Department of Labor.

Man Finds $25,000 In Cash Inside Old Wooden Trunk

(From The Salyersville Independent)

Don't ever throw away those old trunks...without first looking inside them. You just never know what might be found. If you don't believe it, ask Lony Keaton.

Last Friday afternoon he was rummaging through an old chest given to him by his aunt while she was cleaning out an attic of a log cabin destined to be torn down. As a result Mr. Keaton and his aunt, Rosetta Roseberry, are some $35,000 richer.

Keaton told the Independent Tuesday afternoon by telephone the money was found in a paper box inside the trunk, which had been a family heirloom for nearly seventy-five years.

According to the young man, the trunk had been passed down through his grandfather's family for several generations and it is believed that it was his grandfather who stored the cash in the trunk. His grandfather, the late Hiram Keaton, succumbed in 1953.

Actually, the small fortune consisted of nearly $25,000 in bills of one to twenty dollars. The remainder of the find was a 1943 copper penny, which has been valued at nearly $10,000 by several coin collectors who have contacted Keaton.

The discovery was made at Crockett in Morgan county. Keaton is a former resident of Salyersville.

In reacting to the discovery, he said, "I still couldn't believe it, even after we spread all the money on a table and counted it." He further added that he and his family spent the remainder of the week-end celebrating.

Seven Pharmacists Attend Seminar Here

Seven pharmacists attended a regional seminar at Prestonsburg Community College last Tuesday. The seminar was sponsored by the college and the UK College of Pharmacy.

The program on "Diabetes: Clinical Significance and Therapy" was presented by Dr. Irving Kanner and Dr. Robert Rapp. This is one of an eight-part seminar program designed to assist the 1,700 pharmacists and other health professionals across the state in continuing their education.

Attending the seminar were Ronald Johnson and Harold Cooley, of Prestonsburg; Ed Clark, of Martin; Tom Frazier, of Salyersville; James I. Thomas, Phil Clark and Larry Singelton, of McDowell.

Since December 1969, about 20,000 U. S. workers have been certified as eligible for assistance under the Trade Expansion Act of 1962. These are people who have lost their jobs due to increased imports.

Minorities are making steady progress in the apprenticeable trades. Nearly 12 percent of all new apprentices registered in 1970 were minority group members, compared with 10 percent in 1969. The number of registered apprentices in all trades was at a record 280,000 last year.

'Expanded' Strip Mine Law Gains Approval

An interim legislative committee approved in principle last Thursday bills to set up a separate department for controlling pollution and to expand Kentucky's strip-mining law.

The interim Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources asked that bills on both matters be drafted along lines recommended by two of its subcommittees. If committee members do not object within 10 days after they are sent drafts of the bills, they are to be prefiled for introduction at the opening of the 1972 legislative session.

The proposed bill on stripmining would:

1. Redefine surface mining to conform with the definition in the Interstate Mining Compact, which would extend the law's coverage to include clay, fluorspar and limestone and the like as well as coal.
2. That also would expand the state's authority to include preparation, cleaning or other treatment of the mineral surface-mined.
3. Make the director of reclamation the executive secretary of the Reclamation Commission instead of a member of it, with his place on the commission taken by the commissioner of health or environmental protection if such a news position is created. The commission hears appeals from decisions by the reclamation division in addition to adopting regulations and guiding the division.
4. Extend the strip-mining law to include regulation of the logging industry and also to regulate blasting in Western Kentucky.
5. Raise permit fees for surface-mining operations from $50 to $75 and acreage fees from $25 to $35.
6. Increase the maximum bond required for surfacemining operations from $500 to $1,000.

The proposed reorganization to create a Department for Environmental Protection would handle air and water pollution, solid waste disposal, septic tank cleaning and noise. All of those except noise now are functions of the State Health Department.

In addition, the new agency would develop programs for managing air, land and water resources "to assure their protection and balanced utilization."

A 13-member Environmental Protection Board would adopt regulations and environmental quality plans, programs or policies and hear appeals from rulings by the commissioner of the new department.

The board would in effect replace the present separate 13-man commissions on air and water pollution control.

No one could serve on the board who was an employe or agent or who owned more than 7.5 per cent of the voting stock of an organization regulated by the department, meaning no member would represent industry. State officials also would not serve on the board by virtue of their positions, as at least six do now.

Five of the members would be appointed by the governor, four by the lieutenant governor and four by the speaker of the House of Representatives. All now are appointed by the governor.

Any appeal from a decision of the board would be taken to circuit court in the county where the matter arises.

The bill also would create a Physical Resources Coordinating Commission, made up of the heads of several state agencies, as Gov. Louis B. Nunn has done by executive order. The purpose of the commission would be to help coordinate efforts against pollution.

Rep. Billy Paxton, D-Central City, chairman of the subcommittee making his recommendations, said his panel felt Kentucky's present strip-mining law was a good one.

Paxton also agreed with Rep. Tom Harris, D-Worthville, chairman of the full committee, that "if the present law is enforced as it should be, it would solve most of the problems" in the field.

LEGAL EFFECTS STUDIED

The legal staff of the state Revenue Department is studying the effects of the homestead constitutional amendment approved by Kentucky voters Nov. 2. The amendment exempts from property tax on the first $6500 of value, property owned by persons 65 years or older.

Dr. Mosley Joins Ohio Development Center at Wooster

Dr. Alvin R. Mosley, son of Mrs. Johnny Caudill, Jr., of McDowell, has joined the research faculty of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster, Ohio. He will conduct studies on the culture and physiology of fresh market vegetables.

Dr. Mosley, 29, graduated from McDowell high school in 1961. He attended the University of Kentucky, earning a B. A. degree in education in 1965 and the M. S. degree in horticulture in 1968. He completed requirements for the Ph. D. degree at Oregon State University and joined the Ohio research faculty, October 15, this year.

An assistant professor in the OARDC Department of Horticulture, Dr. Mosley also holds an appointment with the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service and will devote at least 25 percent of his time in extension work with Ohio vegetable growers. He is a member of a number of professional and scientific organizations including the American Society for Horticultural Science, Sigma Xi, and Gamma Sigma Delta.

The Research Center at Wooster is the agricultural experiment station for the state of Ohio. The research faculty now includes 240 scientists supported by more than 500 technicians and civil service employees in 15 scientific departments.

Dr. Mosley and his wife, Sharon, and 13-month-old son, Daniel Alan, live at 861 Ashwood in Wooster.

A University of Kentucky study noted Kentuckians now pay the social costs of coal mining, such as for repair of roads damaged by overweight trucks, instead of coal buyers elsewhere. It called this a form of subsidizing coal users and urged stricter enforcement of truck weight regulations.
