Deep Mines Of County Lost in '71 Surface Mine Gain Noted During Year; Total Tonnage Off

The ascendancy of surface mining in Floyd county was marked in 1971, although it was a year which saw the county lose almost a million tons in coal production from the total produced during the preceding year.

Mines of all types produced in this county last year 4,504,366 tons—a marked drop from the 1970 production of 5,482,543 tons. "We like to think," a spokesman of the Kentucky Bureau of Mines district office at Martin said, "that the loss in production last year was a result of the mine strike." Localized work-stoppages also cut into production, but such breaks in production were not peculiar to 1971.

The growth of surface mining—auger-strip, auger and strip-mining—in 1971 was reflected in these figures released by the Bureau of Mines office:

In 1970, 18 operations produced 1,129,919 tons while employing 191 men. Last year, 33 such operations employing 345 had a total production of 2,002,137 tons.

In marked contrast to the booming surface-mine business was the production drop in underground mines. In 1970 the 212 underground mines in the county loaded 4,352,624 tons. Last year, 242 such mines produced only 2,502,229 tons. There also was slight drop in deep-mine employment, despite the gain in the number of operations. The underground mines in 1970 employed 1,799 men, as compared with 1,737 on mine payrolls in 1971.

Most surface-mine production in this county is produced by the combination auger-strip method. Last year, 27 of these operations produced 1,857,646 tons of coal. Auger mines loaded 44,491 tons, and the two operations devoted wholly to strip-mining had a production of 100,000 tons.

County Loses at Either End In Senate, House Reshuffle

Both the North and the South (of Floyd county) lost in the legislative battle at Frankfort on redistricting.

The southern section of the county lost to Pike county six voting precincts which were lopped off the 95th legislative district (House) so that the district, all of which lies in this county, will conform with the court-ordered one-man, one-vote standard.

The northern end of the county lost two precincts to the 25th Senatorial district (Johnson, Boyd and Lawrence counties) to bring that district up to the required population total.

Harold, Branham's Creek, Toler, Antioch, Tickey and Head of Mud precincts were removed from Rep. W. J. Reynolds' 95th House district and shifted into the 94th district which is represented by Marris Allen May, of Pikeville.

Auxier and Abbott Creek precincts were moved from Senator John Chris Cornett's 29th district to Senator Roy R. Ross' 25th district.

Representative Reynolds fought the shift of precincts from this county. He won House approval of his amendment to the Senate redistricting bill, which would have left Floyd county unchanged in the Senatorial redistricting and would have added, instead, Tomahawk and Grassy

This Town... That World

About this time, every week, I wonder: How many things have I forgotten to do? Some weeks I think of the things I wish I could forget.

ON REMEMBERING AND FORGETTING

On the whole, though, one's memories mount up to a paen rather than a dirge. Unless we're inclined to brood, we shun thinking of those occasions when we wore the dunce cap and hang tightly onto those happier times when our star was in the ascendancy. Perhaps the latter live on because they are such oft-told tales.

There are memories that bless, and some, you know, which aren't unalloyed. They might be called bitter-sweet. Like the time the boy won the marbles game but the loser snatched the marbles.

One of these days I'll get rid of a load of sentimentality on this subject by printing here a little poem which I have clipped and kept hidden for some time against the eyes of youngsters who might not appreciate it.

THE ANSWER

Almost every advertising man has heard this reply to his sales pitch:

"Everybody knows I have been in this same location for years, so there's no need to advertise."

An item in The Kentucky Press Association's Bulletin has the answer to that one:

There are 25 mountains in Colorado which are higher than Pike's Peak. How many people do you think can name one of them?

MECHANICALLY DISINCLINED

I am not divulging any family secrets when I confess that a hammer or a saw in my hands is considered a deadly weapon at our house. Usually, I do the damage to myself, but that may be because I'm the only one who remains in range. Since the day, some years ago, when I seized a screwdriver and proceeded to repair an air rifle, and yet have to get it back together, I have, somehow, escaped the role of handyman around the place.

But an Act of Congress may complicate matters. Since they've approved this equality business between women and men, the wife has been threatening to let me help her with a painting job.

Layne, Winner In Trial Here Of Meter Case

Frank H. Layne, Prestonsburg insurance man, last Friday won in Prestonsburg police court his legal battle with the City of Prestonsburg over the collection of two parking meter fines.

The hearing was a retrial of the case in which the city had earlier convicted Layne in absentia. He claimed he had appeared for trial but that hearing of the case was postponed and that he was not notified of the later trial date. The City claimed notice of trial was given.

The case began with the issuance of two tickets for overtime parking. The defendant said he deposited in a fine meter two separate envelopes, each containing 50 cents, the amount of the separate meter fines. The city clerk contended no such envelopes reached her.

Later, a warrant was issued for Layne. After his trial in absentia capias were issued for him. He still refused to pay the fine and costs and was taken to jail. He filed for a writ of habeas corpus, and the new trial resulted.

At Friday's hearing the defendant introduced his sister, Mrs. E. R. Burke, and his niece, Mrs. Joe Buchanan, who testified that they witnessed the deposit of the envelopes containing the meter fines in a fine box near their residence on Arnold avenue. They initialed the stubs which Layne retained.

The only evidence produced by the city was to the effect that the envelopes con-

Sanctuary Dedication Scheduled

Dedication of the new sanctuary and educational building of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church will be made at the 11 a.m. worship service, Easter Sunday, it was announced this week by the pastor, the Rev. W. D. Jagers.

The contemporary-style church structure being completed by Akers and Akers, Dana contractors, will seat approximately 400. It has been under construction more than a year. Connected to the sanctuary is the educational building, which is designed to house facilities for Sunday School classes, nursery age through Grade 9, and church offices.

Open house will be held at the new church from 3 to 5 Sunday afternoon.

Landowners Win $225,000 Total In Three Cases

Juries of the Floyd circuit court last week awarded landowners a total of $225,000 for US 23 right-of-way over three tracts of land.

For approximately 30 acres of land condemned as right-of-way in the vicinity of Ivel, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr. and Mrs. Sally Gatewood Clarke were awarded $150,000. The cases of Wendell Stratton for coal rights and Columbia Gas for natural gas on the tract were settled out of court. County appraisers had valued the property at $176,500.

The other two suits involved right-of-way over two Bull Creek tracts. May B. Martin was given a $35,000 verdict on one of the tracts which had been county-appraised for $30,000, and James Scutchfield, et al were awarded $40,000, which was the amount at which county commissioners appraised the land.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley said the civil docket is still loaded with between 75 and 100 land cases developing from highway construction. Two of these cases are booked for hearing this week, and a new jury will perhaps hear three or four others next week.

Subdivision Planned For Abbott Creek

One of the county's newest—and, its owners say, one of its best—subdivisions will be located on the former Scott Hill farm, on Abbott Creek, near here.

The 75-acre tract was purchased this month by John T. Hill and Ronald Frasure, who will develop the property as the Frasure-Hill Subdivision.

The new owners plan the subdivision as a community of attractive homes, with a playground area for children and bridle paths for horseback riding.

One of the "added attractions" offered by the developers is free pasturing for ponies which future residents may keep for the enjoyment of their youngsters.

Mr. Hill is owner of the Hill Engineering Company. Mr. Frasure is owner of the Montgomery Ward Catalog Agency and Frasure's Furniture Company here.

Three Arrested On Rum Charges; Juveniles Jailed

Two Middle Creek men were arrested Sunday and jailed here on a charge of transporting alcoholic beverages for the purpose of sale, and a raid on Toler Creek the preceding day resulted in the arrest of one man who was charged with second offense possession.

Donald Spears was jailed when Deputy Sheriffs Dester Hamilton and Ralph Howell found a case of beer on his Toler Creek premises. In the arrest of Gordon Lee and Billy Darrell Porter on KY 114, six miles from here, State Troopers Williamson and Bevins confiscated six cases of beer and a half-case of whiskey.

Seven juveniles were jailed Saturday by Policemen Thornsbury and Campbell on charges of shoplifting at Maloney's, and two others were booked last week, charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency. (Kentucky law forbids the publication of names of juveniles charged with an offense.)

Hiram Johnson, fifth man accused of the rape of a Prater Creek woman, was jailed here last Thursday by State Trooper A. C. Cantrell and County Detective Sam Hale.

Two men arrested within the week and arraigned in Prestonsburg police court were fined $125 each—George Meade, charged with driving without a license, and Charles Johnson, who was booked on a drunk driving count. Meade, who was arrested by State Trooper Williamson, also was sentenced to 10 days in jail. Johnson was booked by Policemen Thornsbury and Campbell and County Detective Hale.

Others arrested within the week, charges against each and names of arresting officers follow:

Travis Ray, reckless driving and no operator's license, by Transportation Officer Eugene Mullins; Randall Owens, possessing explosives (held for federal authorities), by Deputy Sheriffs Claude Flanery and Otto Fannin; George K. Symon, drunk driving, by State Trooper Williamson; Henry D. Gibson, drunk driving, by Deputy Sheriffs Hamilton and Howell; Carl E. Allen, Fred Owens and

Off-Struck Mine Ends Operation, Idling over 200

The Island Creek Coal Company was reported Tuesday as moving toward closing out operation of its Spurlock mining operation at Printer, on Left Beaver Creek.

Repeated attempts by The Times to contact company officials at Wheelwright, Price and Holden, W. Va. failed, but it was reported on good authority that the last work-shift at the mine would end at Tuesday midnight.

The mine last year employed 211 men. Closing of the operation means the loss of an annual payroll approximating $3 million.

One report received here said Island Creek has lost money at Spurlock over a period of three years and that this was one of the factors leading to the decision to close out the work there.

The mine has been hit frequently by strikes, and only last week a restraining order against a work-stoppage there was issued by U. S. District Judge B. T. Moynihan, of Lexington. Work at the mine was resumed last Friday.

Another discouraging factor, it was said here, is the increased cost of workmen's compensation resulting from legislation enacted at the recent General Assembly session.

No Island Creek official was available, however, to comment on any of the factors mentioned.

The decision to leave Spurlock does not affect the Wheelwright-Price operations of the company, it was said.

The Spurlock operation was initiated by the Evans Elkhorn Coal Company and was acquired in 1966 by Island Creek, soon after the latter firm had purchased the properties of the Inland Steel Company at Wheelwright and Price.

Judge Hill Says He Will Not Run For Bench Again

Appellate Judge Edward P. Hill, formerly of Prestonsburg, last week announced his decision not to seek re-election to the Court of Appeals bench, and already three candidates have filed for the Democratic nomination for the post he will vacate.

Candidates who have filed are: Judge James B. Stephenson, of Pikeville; Judge Edward G. Hill, Baxter, Ky., and Judge Don A. Ward, of Hazard. Ward and Hill have cross-filed as candidates also for the Republican nomination.

Announcing his intention to retire from politics after 34 years in office,—first, as Floyd county judge, then as circuit judge of the 31st judicial district and as appellate judge,—Judge Hill said:

"The eight-year term for which I was elected judge of the Court of Appeals for the Seventh Appellate District ends this year. I have decided not to run for another term. I would like very much to remain on the court a couple of years, but I hesitate to ask my constituents for another eight-year term, knowing I would likely resign after about two years into the term.

"I have enjoyed my years on the court and the association with the other judges and commissioners of the court. I have kept close observation of our Court of Appeals for about 45 years, and I can sincerely say that, in my judgement, we have the most able men on our Court of Appeals that we have had in my memory. I get a feeling of sadness at the thought of leaving the bench,

Low Rental Rate Paid County On Road Work Draws Protest

There is a possibility that Floyd county will end its equipment rental cooperative program with the state in the maintenance of county-aid roads, and the consequence would be that maintenance of these roads would become the obligation of the Rural Highway Department.

This possibility was discussed Tuesday morning by County Judge Henry Stumbo when he pointed out that the low rental payments paid by the state, with the cost of operating and keeping in repair this machinery mounting, "is breaking us up."

He said that in a meeting early last month with Rural Highway Commissioner Ingram he and members of the fiscal court appealed for an increase in rental pay but that no commitment has resulted.

Floyd, Johnson, Letcher and Lawrence are the only four counties in the 12th highway district which participate in the cooperative program.

Judge Stumbo pointed out that the cost of parts for road machinery has tripled and that all other expenses have increased. Lost-time on equipment in need of repair costs the road program, but the rate of rental pay is so low that acquisition of new equipment is difficult. One bulldozer yet in operation, he said, is 12 years old.

A 'dozer costs the county in the neighborhood of $32,000. But the state pays for its operation only $8 an hour. The county must supply all repair parts, the operator, fuel and any other expense involved in its operation.

"That leaves little to go toward payment for the machine," Judge Stumbo commented.

For a grader costing $30,000 or more, the state pays rental of $6 an hour. The same operating and other costs apply.

The rental for an end-loader is $5.50 an hour; for a truck, $3.50 per hour. (The truck driver's pay is about $2.60 an hour.)

The county has two 'dozers, two graders, one end-loader and five trucks.

Right To Read Plans Studied

The unit task force of the Right to Read Program at Clark elementary school held its second two-day planning session, March 24 and 25. Mrs. Dixie Fried, Division of Education and Research of the St. Louis public schools, who is assigned by the U. S. Office of Education to provide technical assistance, has been working with the local group. To date, the group has been gathering and summarizing information about the school's achievement patterns, the organizational patterns, instructional procedures and attitudes of pupils toward school in general and reading specifically.

From this information, the unit hopes, plans can be made whereby each pupil's deficiency can be identified and corrected through an individually planned program which would involve activities at school as well as at home. One of the identified weaknesses of the present school program is the problem of informing parents of what their children are doing in school and in reading. The committee feels that this is one phase that should receive top priority.

One of the goals of the Right to Read Program is that by 1980, 99 per cent of the people under 16 years of age and 90 per cent of people over 16 years will be functionally literate.

The unit task force at Clark school is composed of the following members: Woodrow Allen, director of instruction of Floyd county schools; John K. Pitts, principal of the Clark school; Mildred Whitaker, Pauline Hicks, and Nadine Hicks, teachers at Clark; and Juanita Ousley and Bernice Shuff, parents of children at the school.

To Give Tammy Nelson Benefit

The Stamps, Nashville (Tenn.) Gospel singers and recording artists, will appear at the Prestonsburg high school gymnasium this evening (Thursday) in a performance for the benefit of Tammy Nelson, 10-year-old Town Branch girl who was critically burned a few weeks ago. The performance was originally scheduled by the Sheriff's department to raise funds for the purchase of fingerprinting equipment, but Sheriff Frank Leslie changed it to the benefit of the child when her need became known. She is now at Kosair Hospital, Cincinnati, receiving skin grafts. The child's body was so extensively burned that grafting was possible only through use of skin given by her father. The Stamps' performance will be from 8 to 10:30 p.m.

Capt. Graham Burchett and other members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad took to the disaster area on Buffalo Creek, W. Va., March 18, money and supplies for the relief of those who survived. They delivered to the Rev. Wallace York, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Man, W. Va., who is chairman of the Buffalo Creek Disaster Relief Fund, $540 in checks and cash. New clothing, towels and quilts—the latter, made by Methodist women here—for distribution to families there.

The money received will be used, it was said, to buy small household articles needed by families whose homes were destroyed.

"The need there is cash," Burchett said. "They have two carloads of clothing on hand."

At the time squad members visited the scene 117 bodies had been recovered and 31 were yet missing. Five hundred seven residences and 44 mobile homes were destroyed, 273 homes suffered major damage and 663 homes had lesser damage. In addition to those dead and missing, 1,119 persons were listed as injured.

The Manpower Administration has increased the annual income level for defining poverty. The 1972 poverty-level guidelines set in the continental U. S. range from $2,000 for a nonfarm family of one to $5,900 for a nonfarm family of seven. This represents an average increase of about $215 per family over the previous guidelines.

Gov. Wendell H. Ford ordered the removal of two coal slag dams in Eastern Kentucky and labeled two others "potentially dangerous" after an inspection by the state Department of Natural Resources. A similar mine waste dam collapsed recently in West Virginia, taking at least 115 lives. The dams slated for removal are located in Knott and Letcher counties.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

April can be the month for fishermen across most of Bassland, U. S. A. But don't be an April fool.

"I've annually fished the last week in April," Homer Circle, Angling Editor of Sports Afield reports, "and although I've found those seven days to be about the most dependable week of the year—weatherwise—I've also faced some adverse conditions then."

Homer is a member of the April Piscatorial Endeavor Society, a group of 12 avid bass fishermen. Membership ranges from a tobacco farmer to a retired pathologist, and the members hail from what might loosely be described on a U. S. map as the middle vertical third of the country. Home towns vary from Traverse City, Michigan, to El Dorado, Arkansas.

Since 1950 the APES has spent its annual late-April fishing week at such top bass lakes as Center Hill, Tennessee; Lake Jackson, Florida, and most recently, Lay Lake, Alabama.

During the last seven days in April the bass are in one of three phases: 1) making love and disinterested in feeding; 2) just before making love and hard to find; and 3) finished making love and scattered all over Hale's half acre. So apparently there is no way to predict the ideal week for any given lake. Any lake chosen months in advance—even weeks, sometimes days—is a calculated risk.

A norther (a frigid front from the North) can stop cold the hottest fishing spree you've ever enjoyed.

The APES seek a pattern that will buck the adverse conditions in each location. One year at Center Hill, Tennessee, for instance, the rains had made the water so high and dingy that visibility was so poor that a white lure disappeared from sight about six inches below the surface. Then someone discovered that those bass wanted an all-black lure dropped within inches of the shore cover and retrieved about twice as fast as normally. A foot or more from that shore was too far and got no action. Nor did a slower retrieve. The bass were that selective.

Another year on Center Hill the water was high but unusually clear for April. The first day and a half brought few bass. "Then my partner and I found fast action wherever the sedge grass met the water," Homer reports. "We passed the word and the pattern held true."

Editor Circle, writing in the March Sports Afield, gives numerous other examples of where the APES worked out unbeatable patterns at the various lakes they have visited in the years since 1950.

Borders Victim Of Truck Wreck

Everett Borders, 24, of Ulysses, Lawrence county, died Tuesday morning, shortly after arrival at the Prestonsburg General Hospital, of injuries suffered when the Williams Grocery Company truck which he was driving left KY 80, near Allen.

Borders was pinned beneath the truck after it left the highway near the foot-bridge across Beaver Creek at the Allen golf course. The truck was loaded with groceries out of the company's Paintsville warehouse.

Persons who arrived at the scene, shortly after the wreck, said the truckdriver apparently attempted to swerve to the left, past another vehicle which had stopped in front of him, that his truck perhaps grazed the bumper of the other vehicle and that Borders lost control when he cut back into his lane of traffic.

The body was taken to the Carter Funeral Home, and later to the Jones and Preston Funeral Home, Paintsville.

How long since you were in school?

For those of us who are old enough to have children in school, it's a little difficult to realize how demanding and complex a teacher's job has become.

Things have changed since we were under the teacher's eye. Subjects are tougher, wider ranging. Today's student is getting into the ideas behind the facts at an age when we merely were learning facts.

Now the classroom is a place for education through thought instead of education by rote. And the teachers who meet the challenge day after difficult day are rather special people.

Dedicated? The word probably embarrasses them. Even so, it is dedication to duty that's most common to all the men and women who become — and remain — modern teachers.

How else can you describe whatever it is that makes a good teacher keep working, keep studying ahead, after the last bell of the day, the last bell of the semester, has rung?

This they do. And it's enough to know, with or without fancy words that pinpoint their motives. Enough to earn our respect, our appreciation and all the help we can give them.

The Bank Josephine is assisting Floyd County area youngsters obtain a college or trade school education. We're the only financial institution in Floyd County participating in the Federal Insured Student Loan Program. We are actively lending to students right now. But we'd like to do more. You see, we're out to make more loans to more students, but we need your help to do it. We'll earmark your money for our "Educations Unlimited" loan fund. The "Educations Unlimited" Savings Certificates we'll issue you in return will pay off magnificently — in excellent bank interest for you, and in better educations for our own boys and girls.

Floyd County has always been blessed with more than its fair share of citizens who willingly give more than they have to give — of their time, their energy, their cooperation — to keep our county out front in all the things that matter. While outstanding teachers are seeing to it that our youngsters get the best education possible, countless other people are working every day to meet the county's growing cultural and social needs.

May Says Governor Ford Helped Him Curb Anti-Strip Legislation But Will Maintain a Tight Rein

State Representative Marrs Allen May, of Pikeville, formerly of Prestonsburg, told Pike county coal operators last week that only through the support of Governor Wendell H. Ford was he able to keep a raft of anti-stripmine bills bottled up in the House Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee during the recent General Assembly session.

May was later quoted as having said in a telephone interview with The Courier-Journal that Governor Ford "has indicated that the industry (stripmining) is on trial for the next two years and it's up to them what the verdict will be."

Appearing at the Pike county meeting with May, State Senator Kelsey Friend spoke of the possibility of stripminers facing legislation nearer home than Frankfort. He referred to the county home-rule legislation enacted at the recent session under which a county fiscal court may have the right to prohibit or limit surface mining.

Friend was quoted by the Louisville newspaper as saying, "Unless the surface miners comply with the law, they will be in trouble. The irresponsible operators ought to be put out of business."

At the meeting in Pikeville May and Friend reviewed new legislation, including the administration-sponsored coal severance tax. This tax was described as "a tremendous blow" to the coal industry, but May said the governor has assured him that if the tax produces a disastrous effect on coal the industry will get relief. What this will be was not defined. Ford's press secretary, Tommy Preston, said "relief" does not necessarily mean removal of the severance tax.

Preston maintained that Ford will prove to be "a very strict environmentalist" and will demand "very strict enforcement" of reclamation laws.

During a temporary "moratorium" on issuing new strip-mine permits, announced March 1, the administration has set a policy that "an on-site inspection be held on land involved in each new application for a strip-mine permit, and some permits are being denied "at least until it is assured that all laws are complied with," Preston said.

Rep. John Swinford, D-Cynthiana, the House majority leader, said: "The pressure is mounting to curtail strip mines (and) we held off this time to give Ford an (enforcement) opportunity."

During a tour of strip-mine areas about a year ago, Swinford said, he was "impressed that some operators are doing a good job on reclamation, but a lot of them go in there and get all they can out of it then leave."

If the strip-miners fail to take advantage "of the new life" given them by the last legislature, "the people are not going to stand for it," Swinford asserted.

If this last chance at reclamation fails, Swinford said, "There is bound to be a curtailment of strip-mining in the next several years."

Friend, chairman of the Senate Industry and Labor Committee, introduced an amendment to the Workmen's-Compensation bill that lowered from 75 to 25 per cent the amount of direct black-lung payments to disabled miners the underground coal operators must pay in the future. Now the underground operators pay only about 10 per cent of the blacklung benefits with the rest paid through workmen's-compensation insurance premiums charged to all other employers in Kentucky, who will continue to pay about 75 per cent of the black-lung claims.

Friend said in his speech to the coal operators' group that "plenty of people are trying to put us out of business." He added: "If you can survive until adjoining states catch up with us you're okay. That could be within a year, because West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee and Ohio need money too from a severance tax."

Telephone Company Catches Up With Fraudulent Phone User

A landmark ruling in South Central Bell's continuing fight against fraudulent long-distance calls was recently reached with the conviction of a Kentucky woman for knowingly receiving fraudulent calls.

"This is the first case of its kind in South Central Bell territory," commented Mr. Scott, local telephone company manager, "and we think it may be the first like it in any Bell System company."

Investigation of the case began in April, 1971, when numerous unbillable toll calls were being placed from some point in Lawrenceburg to one number in Lexington.

South Central Bell assigned Paul LaBarbera, state security supervisor, to investigate the case. LaBarbera contacted the Lexington party to whom all the fraudulent calls were placed, but a signed statement was issued swearing that while they had received these calls they did not know who the caller was, and they would testify to this fact in court.

Almost like a detective story, LaBarbera received a tip that a resident in the household receiving the calls had relatives in Lawrenceburg. Acting on this new information, LaBarbera placed a pen register on the suspected Lawrenceburg number.

A pen register is simply a device that records on paper tape all numbers dialed from a specific telephone. The register provides no other information.

In three days, more than 60 long-distance calls were placed from the Lawrenceburg number to the Lexington party. A check of South Central Bell's Accounting Department records showed that each of the calls had been billed to a fraudulent or fictitious number.

Approached with this evidence, the Lawrenceburg party admitted to making the calls to the party in Lexington who had denied in a sworn statement that the caller was personally known to them. Actually, the two implicated parties were half-sisters.

Warrants were issued in Anderson county listing the two parties as co-conspirators in committing fraud against the telephone company.

The defendants pleaded guilty, were fined and given stern warnings by the judge against any further such activity.

"Our security people spent over six months working on this case," noted Mr. Scott. "It's just another indication of the Bell System's crackdown on those who try to avoid paying for services for which we have a right to charge. This case involved more than 1,400 fraudulent calls and bills of roughly $1000. That is not to mention all the time and money used to pursue this case to its end."

"I hope everyone realizes the telephone company's stand on this sort of thing," continued Mr. Scott. "We simply cannot afford to let people get away with cheating us. We are no different than any other business."

Scott added: "As in the case in Lexington, some very few of our customers in Paintsville, Prestonsburg, and surrounding areas believe that all they have to do in placing a long distance call is to give the operator an incorrect, or another person's telephone number and that all to keep from paying for that particular long distance call."

"They are familiar with the fact that when they call our business office, they are told to subtract the long distance call, or calls, with very few questions asked. This is leading these people to believe the long distance calls are removed from the telephone bill and forgotten," Scott explained.

"Nothing could be farther from the truth," Scott added. "We have a complete department set up for the investigation of each long distance call that has been denied. Their purpose is to find out where the long distance call belongs and bill it to that person. Where evidence of fraud is present, then our Security Department enters the case."

In placing long distance calls, Scott suggested the following steps:

When placing a long distance call, be sure to give the operator the number you are calling from; be observant while dialing, but if you reach an incorrect number, call the operator back immediately so you will not be billed for the call; if a long distance call appears on your telephone bill that you know nothing about—first, check with the members of your family to see if they know about the call, if they do not, call the South Central Bell business office and they will deduct the amount from your bill.

Tax Shift Measures Highlight '72 Assembly

By JIM WARREN

Frankfort, Ky.—The 1972 Kentucky General Assembly worked right down to the final wire—and beyond—and turned out an impressive list of measures.

When official closing time (midnight, March 17) arrived, with more work left to do, both houses stopped their chamber clocks and carried on. They actually adjourned at 6:16 a.m., but for the record all bills were passed before midnight.

The session may be remembered most for removing the sales tax on take-home groceries and placing a severance tax on coal.

These, and other tax measures, are expected to save the average Kentucky family about $65 per year over the next biennium.

Lawmakers also gave Kentucky its first comprehensive consumer fraud legislation, prohibiting "false, deceptive or misleading" practices in trade or commerce. Under the new law, the state, for the first time, will be able to prosecute violators and citizens will be able to sue to recover damages.

In addition a Consumer Protection Division will be established in the Department of Law along with a Consumer Advisory Committee to advise the governor on consumer matters.

Another measure will establish a Bureau of Education for Exceptional Children within the state Education Department.

The bureau will administer a program of education for Kentucky's thousands of exceptional children, a category which includes both the retarded and the very bright.

In the crucial environmental area, a "wild rivers" bill was passed to preserve special natural areas along the Red, Cumberland, Rockcastle and Green rivers where all development would be prohibited.

Kentucky will no longer contribute to the extinction of endangered species of animals under a bill that will prohibit sale of clothing in the commonwealth made from the skins of such animals. It also will place a fine as an additional cost for such clothing ordered from other countries.

Efforts soon will begin to remove ecological eyesores under a measure that will allow the purchase and reclamation of orphan land—areas stripmined before current reclamation laws were enacted.

The law will establish a revolving fund to purchase the lands and resell them after reclamation.

Landmark decisions also were reached, allowing several proposed constitutional amendments to be "clustered" and offered to the voters for approval.

The cluster proposal includes abolishment of the Kentucky Railroad Commission, permission for sheriffs to succeed themselves and a requirement for election of the state Board of Education.

The second amendment would allow annual legislative sessions of 45 days that could be spread over a four-month period.

East Floyd Kiwanis Club Is Organized With 31 Members

The East Floyd Kiwanis Club was formally recognized by Kiwanis International at its meeting at Harold last Thursday evening, and it becomes the newest club of its kind in Eastern Kentucky.

The new club was sponsored by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, and its recognition as a part of the international organization was marked by the attendance at the meeting of four members of the Prestonsburg club, Marvin Music, Jr., Roy Ramey, Otis Cooley and Clyde George.

Officers of the new club, which will represent the area from Allen to the Floyd-Pike line, are:

Cecil M. Sturgill, president; Ervin Akers, vice-president; Charles Massie, secretary; Billy A. Williams, treasurer. Directors are Joe Jacobs, James Brooks, Ed Blankenship, Virgil Hamilton, Dale Tomlinson, Otis Blackburn, Ellis Osborne, Lowell Sammons and Ray Campbell.

The new club has 31 members. Meetings are at 7:30 p.m., each Thursday, at the Harold school lunchroom.

ENGINEERS EXPECT NO PROBLEMS IN SLAG DAM DISMANTLING

State engineers say they expect no major problems in dismantling two Eastern Kentucky coal slag dams which Governor Ford ordered removed last week. They say only one of the dams is impounding any water and drainage will present no pollution problems.

The state Highway Department says it will begin minor repairs this summer on some 38 bridges along a stretch of I-65 between Elizabethtown and the Ohio River. Repairs will begin in May and traffic will be maintained at all times during the work. Such repairs are done routinely about every five years.

Governor Ford has praised the "responsibility shown by the legislature" in passing his two-cents-per-gallon gasoline tax increase. The governor said "all alternatives" were considered but "there was no other choice for responsible leadership to take."

WOODMEN RANGERS MEET

Woodmen boys' units from Allen, Paintsville, Ezel and Knott county met March 18 at the Paintsville school gymnasium where a basketball tournament was held between the 75 boys attending.

All-tournament teams were selected: B Team—Allen Ratliff, Exel; Scott Collins, Ezel; Jimmy D. VanHoose, Paintsville; Ronnie Sturdivant, Vest; Brian Turner, McDowell.

A Team—James Hayes, Allen; R. J. Williams, Paintsville; Mike Frary, Paintsville; Barry Ritchie, Vest; Kevin Ratliff, Ezel. A "hot dog" supper was served.

The Marvels of Bird Migration

The season of the great northward migration of the birds is here again and those beautiful songs we have missed all through the dreary winter will soon be heard again.

The period of migration begins in March and lasts to late May. About one-third of all birds are migratory, and during this period the night sky will be filled with multiplied millions of birds, all flying back to their home territory to nest and rear the young. There are mysteries to bird migration which even the most learned ornithologists can't unravel. Some persons when speaking of others with contempt often remark, "He has a bird brain." This is truly a compliment instead of derision. A bird's brain may be small but it is the most marvelous and most intelligent of all brains of its size.

A bird has a computerized brain; it also has a built-in time clock, which tells it the precise time to start on migration. A bird's brain is also an expert navigator and knows how to chart a course by the sun and stars or the moon; it is an accurate brain, far more accurate than man's most delicate instruments. A bird's brain also has a strong homing instinct implanted in it, which leads it back to the home where it was reared with unerring accuracy. This instinct is also strong in animals such as cats and dogs. Take a dog away out from home, turn him loose and he will eventually find his way back, unless he is too old or diseased. A cat can do the same.

Now take birds that fly south in the fall, thousands of miles to their winter homes. These same birds will return to the same locality in which they nested and sang, the previous year. Three tiny hummingbirds were once banded before they had left their nest to fly. By fall, when the flowers were dying out, they were grown and well able to migrate. They flew south to the tropics, crossing over the Gulf of Mexico. The next year, those same hummingbirds returned to the locality in which they had been reared and proceeded to build a nest not more than 30 feet away from the tree in which they had first seen the light of day. How did they do it? Perhaps a hummingbird's brain is the smallest one of all the birds, but it has a high degree of intelligence for survival.

Consider the barn swallows, which go to Brazil to spend the winter. They fly back several thousand miles to the same barn in which they had been reared. A record was kept which showed the same family of barn swallows returned to the same barn and built their nests on the same beam in the barn for three successive years.

How do they do it? By instinct, you might say. If so, it is one of the most marvelous powers in the animal kingdom. The wood thrush has been known to come back for several successive springs to the same elm tree in which the nest had been built. Wood thrushes reared in Ohio invariably return to Ohio; those reared in West Virginia know it as their home state and return there each spring.

It seems that birds are gifted with superior intelligence when it comes to migration. Most of them fly by night and if you were standing on a high hilltop some moonlit night in the height of migration you could see great flocks of birds winging overhead. Some fast-flying birds average 120 miles per day; most of them fly on the average of about 90 miles per day; but they keep going and eventually reach the place to nest and rear the young. There are many hazards to bird migration, and it seems that some of these could be eliminated. While flying at night, birds seem to be attracted to bright light and many dash into lighthouse towers and are killed. They fly so fast on migration they probably do not have time to dodge a high T. V. tower; often hundreds are killed by collision with high towers and sometimes with the Washington monument, where many small warblers are seen lying dead at its base each spring. It has been suggested that red lights should be used on towers during migration, as birds avoid these and are not killed by collision.

It has been fairly well established that birds migrate by charting their course by heavenly bodies and by large rivers. One of their great flyways is the Mississippi River, which they follow for thousands of miles when flying back toward Canada. Some birds also chart their course by shorelines, and follow the coastline for thousands of miles. Yet some seem to have no physical object to guide them; these fly across the ocean and never get lost. A bird is its own best navigator.

Some birds such as swallows and martins migrate in the daytime and often stop off to rest and get some food to sustain them. The martins are wise in their ways of migrating north, and before they come in great flocks they send their scouts ahead to "spy out the land," to locate good places to live and to test the weather. The "scouts" usually come about two weeks in advance of the main flocks. The swallows usually arrive with uncanny accuracy on a certain day, as witness the swallows which always arrive at Capistrano on a certain day in March. Ducks and geese fly, both day and night, and apparently chart their course by the terrain below them—rivers and mountains. The only time the wild geese get badly confused, often lost for a time, is when a dense fog hides the physical features of the earth. This causes them to get bewildered and they have to come down and wait for the fog to clear up.

We seldom see high-flying migrators like wild swans and cranes. These fly far above the clouds, well out of sight of human eye. Migrating birds saved the day for Christopher Columbus and no doubt paved the way for the discovery of the New World. Just when the crews of his small vessels were about to mutiny and toss Columbus overboard, a flock of warblers settled on the masts of the ships and began singing. The men went wild with joy because they knew land was not far away. These birds were on their fall migration and were no doubt tired and welcomed the sight of the vessels which could afford them a brief rest spell.

LETTERS To the Editor

'Why Wait for Obituary?'

Although I have not made my home in Floyd county for over 30 years, I read each edition with sincere interest. I pay particular interest to the obituary section. I do this not out of any morbid fascination with death but to pay my own form of respect to the old folks who have passed on. I think it is remarkable how many Floyd county residents have lived to reach such an old age. They are indeed special.

In your edition of March, 9, 1972 I got a special feeling of satisfaction. The story of Mrs. Maude Sturgill Roberts was particularly noteworthy in these days when we are literally swamped with depressing news. I strongly urge you to do similar stories on other Floyd county residents. Why wait for the obituary?

Revival To Begin At Wayland Church

Revival services will be held at the Wayland United Methodist church from April 3 through April 9. The Toler Brothers, evangelists, and singers from the Church of the Nazarene in Winchester will conduct services beginning at 7:30 each evening. Rev. Floyd Tackett, pastor, invites the public to attend all services.

Exemption Law Cost to County Is Under Study

Floyd county will lose approximately $9 million of its real estate assessment total as a result of the $6,500 exemption allowed property-owners 65 years of age or older, it was indicated here this week.

Tax Commissioner Harry Gordon Allen said about 1400 taxpayers have filed for the exemption.

Some of the loss will be recovered through assessment of new property or of property heretofore missed in the annual assessment. But most of the slack in tax revenues will, in all probability, be taken up by an adjustment of the tax rate.

County Judge Henry Stumbo said he has not yet received specific figures as to the assessment loss and that the fiscal court will await these before making any possible rate change.

He added that the county cannot afford a loss in tax revenues.

The state Board of Education has approved a comprehensive plan to upgrade and expand vocational education programs in Northern Kentucky. Allocation of federal funds was approved for construction of two new vocational education extension centers in Kenton and Campbell counties.

Whatsoever Things

Is there something you wish to accomplish? Is there some great goal, some high ambition, that looms out before you calling you to it? Well, you can do it. You can accomplish whatever it is that you wish to accomplish.

Nothing you wish to accomplish, if it is in keeping with God's will, is impossible. With Him all things are possible. And many people are surprised to learn that He wants us to accomplish our highest ambitions.

If you wish to accomplish something, make sure it is in keeping with God's will. Then, turn yourself over to Him and become the instrument through which He can accomplish whatever it is that the two of you wish to accomplish.

But, you must not only believe in God. You must also believe in yourself. If you don't believe you can accomplish it, then the chances of your accomplishing it are mighty small.

What a man accomplishes in life depends on what he believes he can accomplish. A little Jewish tent-maker once said: "I can do all things through Him who infuses strength into me."

But let us remember that there is a vast difference between cocky egotism and humble self-confidence. Egotism is when God is left out. Humble self-confidence is when God is your partner.

If we wish to accomplish anything, then one thing we must learn to do and do often—work! There is no substitute for hard, diligent work. Genius is 90 per cent hard work and 10 per cent natural ability.

God wants us to accomplish much in life. With His help, we can.

Democrats Set Delegate Quota

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A formula, which follows national committee guidelines, has been devised by the State Democratic Party to determine how many county delegates will attend the State Democratic Congressional District Convention June 2.

The formula included: state population; individual county population; county and state Democratic votes cast in the 1968 Presidential election; and a base of 2,000 delegates to this year's state Democratic convention.

For any given county the typical selection procedure was: Divide the state population into the individual county population and multiply by 2,000.

Everett Brown, supervisor of the Pikeville district, Bureau of Mines and Minerals, said last year's 45-day strike accounted for the loss of 1,500,000 tons and that remainder of the loss, 1,432,820 tons, resulted from certain provisions of the federal Mine Health and Safety Act which caused many mines to quit business.

Brown said there are 186 underground truck mines, 15 rail mines and 60 strip and auger mines operating in the county as of March 20, 1972.

The number is the smallest operating in Pike county since the end of World War II. Brown reported that Pike's total tonnage in 1971 for 19,197,045 tons was compared to 22,129,866 tons in 1970, the peak tonnage year.

Production underground rail mines accounted for 6,998,954 tons of the 1971 figure. The underground truck tonnage was 8,438,906 tons, and the 1971 strip and auger mine production, also truck operations, was 3,759,184 tons.

Brown said total mine employment in Pike county in 1971, a year in which 516 mines were licensed, was 6,427 persons. Brown said the 279 mines licensed this year list employment figures of 4,794.

Ford Includes Big Sandy River In Recreational Classification

Gov. Wendell Ford is recommending recreational classification for all of Kentucky's interstate streams, removing the final roadblock in gaining federal approval of the state water-quality program. Governor Ford, state Health Commissioner Dr. William McElwain and other officials recently met with Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator Jack Ravan to establish a timetable for drawing up new stream classifications.

In its original plan, the state Water Pollution Control Commission proposed recreational classification for only about one-third of the Ohio River along its northern boundary.

However, EPA, which approves such plans, favored recreational classification, the most stringent in regard to chemical pollution, for all of the Ohio as well as the Big Sandy and Tug Fork in Eastern Kentucky.

The contention has slowed federal approval of Kentucky's water plan but Governor Ford's recommendation should remove federal opposition.

"Our intent is to move quickly as a new administration in meeting those requirements which will give Kentucky full approval by EPA in this vital area," the governor said. "I am directing members of my staff, the state Water Pollution Control Commission staff and others to formulate acceptable plans in order that we can get in the process of cleaning up our streams."

SPINNING REELS

Most open-faced spinning reels have a bail which automatically picks up the line at the end of each cast when the reel handle is turned. A manual roller has no bail. Consequently, the line must be picked up with the forefinger after cast.—SPORTS AFIELD

Mine Training Class To Begin, April 3rd At City Park Here

The Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Mines, the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals and coal operators of the area, will sponsor a mine training class which will have its first session at Archer Park, April 3, it was announced last week.

A mine training class of 15 to 20 trainees in safety and first-aid will be formed. The course will include principles of mine rescue, mine gases and detection devices, use and care of flame safety lamps, the coal mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, roof and rib control, principles of accident prevention and the safe use and handling of explosives.

Classroom instruction will be conducted by Martin Nairn, Clabe Mosley and Cecil Sherman. A tour of a mine operated by the Velocity Coal Company will be provided trainees.

Coal operators desiring training of men whom they plan to employ should contact the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, Prestonsburg, for additional information.

Child Cancer Signs Listed; Crusade for Funds Near

Cancer in children is rare, but it is a parent's duty to be informed so that early symptoms aren't ignored. During April the Floyd County unit of the American Cancer Society, Kentucky Division, Inc., will conduct its annual fund-raising and educational crusade.

As part of the educational effort, James J. Carter II, Local Crusade chairman, gave the Times those facts about childhood cancer:

Cancer strikes about one of every 7,000 American children. Nonetheless, with the great advances in the treatment of other childhood diseases, cancer deaths among school children exceed those from any other disease.

Practically everyone knows about the threat leukemia presents to the young. Today, thanks to great laboratory advances, the lives of young leukemia patients are greatly extended although a cure has not yet been achieved.

But leukemia is not the only cancer threat to the young. Bone cancer, cancer of the nervous system, lymph nodes, eye and kidney are diagnosed each year. For many of these cancers there are excellent forms of treatment.

Cancer in childhood is a difficult to detect as cancer in adults because the symptoms are so often vague. Should a parent be afraid of bothering a busy pediatrician or be afraid of being labelled a "cancer hysteric?" Absolutely not.

As one specialist in childhood cancer said, "Regular examinations and prompt investigation by a doctor of any suspicious conditions—these constitute the cornerstone of detecting and treating cancer in children."

Here is a list of conditions that require a prompt call on the doctor:

Swellings, lumps or masses in any part of the body; pains or the persistent crying of a baby or child, for which no reason can be found; any change in the size or appearance of outward growths, such as moles or birthmarks; nausea and vomiting, for which there is no apparent cause; a marked change in bowel or bladder habits; bloody discharge of any sort; blood in

HIGH-QUALITY ANGLING

High-quality angling, as defined by the National Park Service, is the "opportunity to fish for and catch rare native fish or wild trout in natural waters under conditions where angling removals do not exceed natural-replenishment rates or materially lower fish numbers or sizes. It does require, however, that we distinguish between catching and killing fish."—SPORTS AFIELD

Assembly Votes Pay Increases

After some early problems, the House passed a bill giving members of the General Assembly a $100-per-month raise in expense allowances and corrected a mistake it made earlier.

As originally passed, House Bill 401 only granted raises for appellate and circuit judges, but the Senate added an amendment raising legislators' expense allowances also and sent the measure back to the House for approval.

The House passed the measure 46 to 30, although at the time no one realized the bill required 51 votes since the Constitution requires that number to pass appropriations bills.

The measure was then brought up for reconsideration and, this time, passed 57-28, giving it the required number of votes.

The bill increased the legislators' monthly allowance from $300 to $400, increased the annual salary of Court of Appeals judges from $26,000 to $29,000 and upped circuit judges' salaries from $17,500 to $23,500. Appeals Court commissioners salaries were also increased, from $22,500 to $25,000 per year.

POVERTY LEVEL DEFINED

The Manpower Administration has increased the annual income level for defining poverty. The 1972 poverty-level guidelines set in the continental U. S. range from $2,000 for a nonfarm family of one to $5,900 for a nonfarm family of seven. This represents an average increase of about $215 per family over the previous guidelines.

Governor Calls Gasoline Tax Responsible Act

Gov. Wendell Ford praised the "responsibility shown by the legislature" in passing his two-cents-per-gallon gasoline tax increase.

He made the comment in an address before the Kentucky Highway Conference which includes state and private industry personnel involved in all phases of road-building.

Governor Ford said the legislators "considered all the alternatives" before backing his recommendation for the increase and added that "there was no other choice for responsible leadership to take."

"I do not believe Kentuckians favor postponement of the day of financial reckoning by going for another bond issue and thereby adding to the debt retirement burden that already is heavy," he said. "I think our citizens want to pay as they go whenever possible."

Governor Ford originally proposed the tax as an alternative to the sale of general obligation bonds for financing highway construction.

He called for proper maintenance of existing roads as well as continued highway construction.

"We must continue to whittle down the debt we have incurred to build what we have," the governor said. "It is a big order, but we can and will meet it."

Buds, and Blooms— Sure Signs of Spring

West Liberty, Ky.—Easter lilies are six inches tall, and gold and purple crocus blooms have been around for at least two weeks. Pussy Willows have tiny velvet balls about the size of a new kitten's paw and japonica bushes are sprouting pink buds. Even the casual observer can notice nature's way of announcing spring in signs and tokens, though snow could spit in the air and nights remain clear and cold.

It is a time to get outside, take a drive through the country on a Sunday afternoon or spend a day in one of Kentucky's state parks. Even better would be to camp in a state park area some weekend soon and forget the cold of winter, slush of snow, glitter of ice.

Such a weekend would allow you to unwind like a ball of yarn, the kinks working their way out until finally you are as relaxed as a cloud of fruit tree blossoms resting lightly on the waters of Greenbo or Dewey Lake.

It is a time to fish, a time to boat, a time to hike. It also is a time to walk a crooked path up a hollow and marvel at the surety of spring, of warmth, wildflowers and a country turned green.

If the mind has been dormant too long as a fortress against the dark and grayness of winter, tantalize it with words like cypripedium acaule and kalmia latifolia. The subject isn't exactly art, medicine or science, but merely names for Kentucky wildflowers, jack-in-the-pulpit and mountain laurel, that soon will be blooming along every trail in parks maintained by the commonwealth.

Some of Kentucky's wildflowers, such as the pink and yellow lady's slipper are on the endangered list as are squirrel corn, twayblade, grass-of-parnassia, bluebells, cinquefoil and some trilliums.

Commissioner of Parks Ewart Johnson is emphasizing camping and new campsites this year in Kentucky's parks, which means that more and more people will get to enjoy the scenery of the Bluegrass state.

Every Kentuckian who alone or with his family or nature group becomes a part of the population that enjoys a park or any part of the outdoors this year should also learn to identify the area's wildflowers. This self-education does not end with a diploma neatly signed on the last day of school, but is a never-ending process that makes ambassadors of Kentuckians for Kentucky.

It is not enough to know that old-timers gathered under the shade of a beech tree to hear Sunday sermons—it is better to be able to identify a beech tree or poplar or the various pines that grow to such tremendous heights in rugged regions of Eastern Kentucky.

Before another month has come there will be 100 or more wildflowers making their appearance within boundaries of Kentucky parks. The following are to be especially protected longhorn and shorthorn wild ginger, wild geranium, trailing arbutus, iris, wood lily, trilliums, blue phlox, wild strawberry, lady's slipper, American dog violet, cut-leaf violet, wild orchids, bellwort, showy orchids and puccoon.

It is a time to enjoy spring. Enjoy it in front and back yards, along parkways and country sideroads. Enjoy it in a state park. But take time this year to become a real diplomat for Kentucky.

Be pleasant and courteous, and if a trail companion wants to know the difference between white and pink trillium, say it's just a matter of age.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

Looking for some helpful bass bonus tips? One suggestion from Homer Circle, Angling Editor of Sports Afield, is "Use what the natives use."

One of the pitfalls of becoming a good bass fisherman is that you become expert at the use of one or two good lures. This might be okay if you fish the same lakes all the time. But take a vacation to a strange area and you can get your eye wiped badly.

You might be the king of the hill in Alabama, using a nine-inch purple worm and catching bass nearly every trip. But if you should journey to Oklahoma a native with a big spinner lure may give you the bow seat and still beat you and your nine-inch purple worm to a pulp. And vice versa.

Why this is, only the bass know. So, it's wise to take all your pet lures with you on a trip, but the first stop you should make is not at a lake or a stream, but at a busy fishing-tackle store.

Take time to scrutinize the lure displays and note the ones that take up the most space. These are the local favorites. Inquire about them, the best sizes and colors, where they're doing the most good and who might be a good fisherman you could phone for advice.

However, remember this. Try your pet lures. Every few moons a visitor comes into an area with his oddball lure or method and shows the local boys a new twist. It works both ways. This is one of the reasons bass fishing is both baffling and fascinating.

Do you enjoy eating bass? Probably sounds like a silly question. But I hear some fishermen say: "Oh, I enjoy catching bass, but I never eat them. Don't care for the taste." This is not surprising when I see how some fishermen neglect their bass between the moments of catching and eating.

The common methods of keeping bass are: 1) on a stringer; 2) in a live well or tub; and 3) on ice. Each has its merits, and limitations.

STRINGER: During winter or early spring when surface waters are cold, fish kept on a stringer will stay alive and retain flavor. When surface waters are warm, a stringer will lead to flavor deterioration.

LIVE WELL: Fish kept in a live-well built into your boat, or a tub of water, will do fairly well so long as the water is kept fresh and cool.

A chunk of ice will do the job in hot weather. Also an electric generator will help to keep up the oxygen supply and assist the bass to live longer.

ON ICE: "This is my choice," says Homer, "in hot weather. I prefer ice cubes to a chunk of ice. And rather than just toss bass into the chest, I prefer to gill and gut them, put each one in a plastic bag, and bury them in the ice cubes."

Ky. Music Contest Slated April 19-25

Pikeville, Ky.—The Kentucky State Music Contest (Pikeville division) will be held April 19-25 on the Pikeville College campus.

Bill McCloud, associate professor of music at Pikeville College and acting chairman of the college's music department, will be manager of the contest, which will draw entrants from 26 high schools in nine Eastern Kentucky counties.

About 3,000 high school students from Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Lawrence, Letcher, Perry, Breathitt, and Knott counties are expected to participate.

Judge for the contest will be Michael Swaffer, professor of music at Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky.; Robert Welch and Dr. Alex LeSeur, both professors of music at Western Carolina University, Cullowhee, N. C., and Dr. Bruce Hoagland, professor of music at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond.

EDUCATION COUNCIL MEETS

Kentucky's new Cooperative Council on Education, holding its first meeting in Frankfort, was generally in favor of the Education Department's plan to regionalize education services across the state. Under the plan, counties would be combined into education regions with state personnel permanently assigned to give help and advice. State School Supt. Dr. Lyman V. Ginger recently launched the council to advise him on public needs and desires in education.

You could be the winner in this area.

We're having a contest. If you win we'll give you Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Luxembourg, and France.

We'll give you twenty-two days, with deluxe and first class accommodations, and breakfasts and dinners on us.

We'll give you a Volkswagen Super Beetle for sightseeing. And afterward we'll bring it home as your souvenir.

One, come in and test drive a new '72 Volkswagen. You'll discover it's ahead of its time.

And two, come up with the winning entry in the contest to name our new computer plug.

That's the plug that will connect every new Volkswagen to our VW Computer Self-Analysis System. It's the service system of the future.

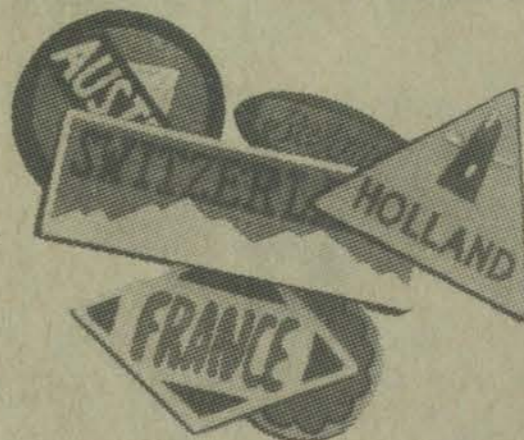

Every '72 Volkswagen is already equipped for it, and the first computers will begin operation soon.

Come in and let us tell you about it. And about the contest.

Where we say our school, not the school

Big city schools have little school spirit. Little sense of belonging. Little pride.

School is a job at a very early age.

Out schools are important. We take a special interest in our children, their friends and their teachers.

We keep track of our graduates. We like to share in their successes and like to have them feel they always have a home community. Our community is proud of them. Because they belong to us.

Good school spirit is an important part of good community spirit. It makes everything more worthwhile.

Carl Perkins Files For Congress Post

Seventh District Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced last week that he has filed for the Democratic nomination for the office.

Making his bid for reelection, the Congressman said:

"In seeking re-election to the Congress, I wish to continue to represent the people of the 27 counties of the 7th Congressional District, working diligently and tirelessly to secure for these communities programs to provide modern community facilities, employment opportunities, high quality education, the economic development of our rural areas, the improvement of our natural resources, the strengthening of our tobacco program to preserve this vital income source to our farm families and to our state, and to secure fair and equitable treatment to the people in communities of Kentucky in the administration of federal laws and programs."

Perkins, dean of the Kentucky delegation in the Congress, was elected to the chairmanship of the House Education and Labor Committee, January 23, 1967. He was the author and sponsor of the Vocational Education Act of 1963, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, among other major legislative enactments in the field of education, and was one of the authors of the Area Redevelopment Act, the Manpower Development and Training Act, the Public Works Acceleration Act and has been an ardent advocate of recreational and water resources development in Kentucky.

Perkins also was the author of the black lung benefits provisions of the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act.

HOME ON VACATION

Among the students home on spring vacation were Randy Burchett, Joe Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Frazier, Miss Mary Nunnery, "Butch" Bradley.

Their Visits More Than Just Fun

By SHANNA COLUMBUS

Frankfort, Ky.—Five days every week 71-year-old Mrs. Crevelle Newton and Mrs. Fannie Brown, 81, both of Shelbyville, drive to Louisville so they can visit their "grandchildren."

On these visits, however, the women do more than have fun. They spend four hours feeding their grandchildren and teaching them to communicate and learn other self-help activities, even though all are in their teens.

The children are patients at Louisville's Hazelwood Hospital, the recently converted state facility for the severely mentally retarded.

And Mrs. Newton and Mrs. Brown are their "foster-grandparents"—concerned, elderly people who are trying to develop with each of their children a special one-to-one relationship.

These Shelbyville women are typical of 69 other elderly citizens across the commonwealth, who are participating in the Department of Mental Health's Foster-Grandparent Program.

Begun in 1967, the federally funded program was initially set up to benefit the nation's older persons, said program director Mrs. Gerald Bandy.

"The idea was conceived," she explained, "to give the elderly something useful they could do in addition to giving them means of obtaining extra money for their work."

To be eligible, a person must be 60 years of age or older and in a low income bracket, not exceeding $2000 for a single or widowed person or $2600 if married.

In return for their services, foster-grandparents receive $1.60 per work hour, travel allowances, a meal at the facility and a yearly physical exam.

"Once they get started in the program, however," Mrs. Bandy continued, "the grandparents become so involved with their children that they would keep coming even if they didn't receive compensation."

Mrs. Bandy pointed to Mrs. Newton and her relationship with one of her foster-grandchildren, 16-year-old Debbie, as an example.

After working as a grandparent with Debbie for four years at Frankfort State Hospital and School, where the program was begun, Mrs. Newton said she wanted to move to Hazelwood with the youngster when the new facility opened.

"She wanted to be able to stay with her child," Mrs. Bandy said. "And this meant a lot to all of us, for Debbie can't speak and she could have easily gotten lost in the shuffle of a move that involved so many."

On becoming a foster-grandparent, Mrs. Bandy explained, the person is assigned two children at either Hazelwood, Frankfort State or Outwood Hospital at Dawson Springs.

The grandparent then goes through an orientation period where he learns about the national program and becomes more informed about mentally retarded children.

After meeting his foster-grandchildren, he is shown the abilities the children have along with things important for them to learn.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our appreciation to all of our friends, neighbors and relatives who in any way expressed their sympathy upon the passing of our beloved husband and father, Johnnie Goble. Thanks to the ministers, Rev. Clifford Austin, Rev. W. D. Jagers, for their words of comfort that meant so much to us in the time of our sorrow and a special thanks to the doctors and nurses of the Prestonsburg General Hospital for their kind and efficient care, the Floyd Funeral Home for its courteous and efficient service. The lovely flowers, food and all expressions of sympathy are truly appreciated.

THE FAMILY

"We don't try to give our grandparents technical things to do with the children," Mrs. Bandy stressed. "We like them to work with the children in self-help activities like teaching them to comb their hair, wash their hands and enjoy recreational activities."

Mrs. Brown, for instance, who has been serving as a grandparent since August, spends one hour and 10 minutes each day feeding her 19-year-old grandson, Donnie. Donnie is chronically ill, spastic and a controlled epileptic.

"Until she came along, he showed no response at all," said Dr. Chris Jackson, Hazelwood's assistant medical director. "The foster-grandparents provide a service we can't give—love."

As a result, Donnie, also speechless, does try to respond to his attentive grandmother, and although he has no movement in his joints, he has been learning with Mrs. Brown's help to kick his feet at her request. Mrs. Newton, who has 26 grandchildren of her own, said the best part of the program for her is "helping to create something."

"You see your foster-grandchildren do something new everyday," she continued. "For instance, with Debbie. . . she has become so alert. If her eyes could just speak, she could tell you everything that happens. And she doesn't smile if I'm not here."

Mrs. Brown, agreed "You feel like you've really helped someone after coming here."

Don Wallen's Basketball Team Wins Florida State Tournament

Eastern Kentucky basketball fell far short of producing a Kentucky titleholder this year but this same section produced the coach of Florida's championship team. Don Wallen, who was coach of the Wheelwright high school Maroons for three years, led his Martin County (Fla.) team to the Class AAA championship at Jacksonville, defeating Ocala Forest, 78 to 58.

Wallen has been coaching at Martin County six years. His team posted only a so-so 12-10 record his first year. But he laid the groundwork for winning teams in the future with basketball clinics at elementary and junior high schools of the county. In his second year his team had a 20-4 record, winning the western division title in the Suncoast Conference. The next year, Martin County was 26-1, and the next they were 25-4. Last year, they were 28 and 3, losing in the state finals to Pensacola Catholic. The team took a 28-3 record into the state tournament which they won this year.

In nine years at Wheelwright high Wallen-coached teams won 218 games while losing only 37, but he never reached the winner's circle in a Kentucky state tournament. In 1961 his team lost in the state finals to Ashland, 91 to 80.

Himself a graduate of Wheelwright high, the 36-year-old Wallen was graduated in 1957 from Georgia Southern where in his senior year he was captain and high scorer of the basketball team. He stresses a program of developing players, beginning with them in elementary school and continuing on through junior high.

Another Floyd countian, Paul Hager, is coaching basketball in Florida. Mr. Hager, formerly of Prestonsburg, is coach at Pahokee high school. (It was Mr. Hager who transmitted to The Times the news of Wallen's success.)

Fewer Mine Deaths In 5-Month Trend

A five-month downward trend in Kentucky coal mine fatalities has been called "encouraging" by U. S. Bureau of Mines Director Elburt F. Osborne.

The drop in fatalities began last October and only four deaths have been reported during the last two months compared with 13 in the same period in 1971.

"We're not in a position to say this is a trend," Osborne said recently, "but our reports from the field are that the operators are sincerely working toward greater safety in their mines and are emphasizing greater training of the workers."

In addition to the reduction in fatalities, the number of deaths per million manhours also dropped. Officials considered this a more reliable indicator of mine safety conditions.

This year, during January and February, the rate was 0.57 fatalities per million manhours worked. Last year for the same two months the rate was 1.65—almost three times higher.

University of Kentucky scientists say farmers are getting too much of the blame for environmental damage caused by pesticides. Urban and suburban homeowners, highway departments and other non-farm users contribute heavily to the pesticide problem, they said.

Whittler's Art Recreates Old Fort

Robert H. Hicks whiled away the winter and retirement days at his Wayland home by devoting his whittlin' talents to this carving of old Fort Boonesborough. In addition to the fort itself, details of the carving include oxbows, armed guards, the well which supplied water for the settlers, with its old bucket and the covered wagon. Early 18th Century dancing dolls also are a part of the scene. "I don't think I've spent such a bad winter, after all," Mr. Hicks said in a discussion of his work. "Maybe, next winter, I'll do some more whittling, perhaps the old country school where the sumacs grew and the boys carved their initials on the seats."

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE

By GORDON WILSON, Ph.D.

Recently I had an afternoon visit with a drug salesman who is, at the same time, a history-folklore buff. Besides knowing his line of drugs and keeping up with the tremendous changes year by year in the types of drugs now used, he has taken up a hobby that greatly appeals to me: a study of older drugs, especially the ones that used to be advertised so grandly by the patent-medicine makers. He has made a collection, not only of the grandiloquent blurbs that appeared in newspapers, on billboards, and on the actual bottles of the time, but he has now a huge collection of the actual stuff so loudly acclaimed as the best possible cure for whatever ails you. To accompany his collection, which he has arranged in his home in Owensboro in a room like an old-fashioned drugstore, he has some priceless scrapbooks of the advertisements that sold the drugs everywhere. Not only has he found patent medicines that were still on the shelves of every drugstore at the turn of the century and until the coming of the Pure Food and Drugs Act; he also has found, among piles of papers and trash in hosts of places, faded blurbs that were even more eloquent than the ones I read in the patent-medicine almanacs that came into Fidelity. It has taken several years to assemble both blurb and actual stuff, the remedy now being in a bottle that is in itself a collector's item. He has also collected hundreds of drugstore labels, some of which run back a hundred years or more. Some of his blurbs are old and faded. Like some of the items in the scrapbooks that I made at the turn of the century; my items and his had often been saved back, growing yellow and often crumbly with age. With my lifelong interest in the folkish side of medicine, I regard this collection as a sort of wonder; it took a lot of knowledge of the whole field to begin with, above average diplomacy to get some of the items, and a persistence worthy of a detective to follow up the leads that ultimately brought in some of his best items.

Though only a little more than half my age, he has so lived with his collecting and his collections that he can expound on the merits of nostrums that had already lost their power upwards of a century ago. And this knowledge has given him a great look-in on folk attitudes toward medicine in general. He has been surprised to find that, in many a modern home, here in Western Kentucky, the most modern drug stands in its place in the medicine cabinet with its close neighbors being some of the highly-vaunted cure-alls of time past. And, he says, there is still a large sale of asafetida in some of our western counties, for people still trust in its power as a talisman; he even told me of encountering plenty of asafetida odors in stores, ancient or modern, in which he has a regular time to visit and sell some of his company's wares. He knew perfectly well what I have meant by mentioning the odors that would arise around the stove in the country store or the country schoolhouse.

Right here I must make a confession: I have wanted to be allowed to check some medicine chests of people whom I know, not to make fun of what I would find but to know, actually, what is still there. That seems a bit too much like snooping to me, and I do not want to lose the hosts of friends I have made because of my interest in folklore. When people I have interviewed have indicated that this or that used to be common as a remedy, but that everybody knows now that it is worthless, I have asked that we stick to what we actually know about what medicines were taken and for what human ailment; we would leave the merits of the medicine, homemade or bought at the store, to some highly-trained scholar. In this way I have collected hundreds of beliefs without suggesting any changes; who am I to run counter to Grandpap and dear old neighborhood Granny? Do you know very many people who could put you and me right on the whole subject of medicines? Here we are, between two worlds in medical practice, not altogether at ease in either. Meanwhile tie a wad of asafetida around your neck and hope for the best.

Table Tennis Meet Winners Announced

The table tennis tournament Sunday at Jenny Wiley State Park, while not followed as avidly as last year's ping-pong trek to China, did produce some lively play.

In the doubles, Joe Bowsler, of Lexington, and Jim Stewart, of Maytown, took home winners' trophies, and runners-up trophies went to Bowen Caldwell and Mike Tackett, of Ivel.

The tournament was under direction of Barry Storm, park recreation director, and Leroy Jones, recreation director under the Emergency Employment program.

Chapter Observes FHA Week

Prestonsburg FHA chapter officers above are Paula Stewart, president; Sharon Goble, secretary, Joy Butcher, treasurer, Teray Ford, parliamentarian, Pam Burchett, song leader, Teresa Hall, recreation leader, Polly Willis, reporter. Absent from picture are Cindy McNally, vice president, and Peggy Risner, Historian.

March 19 to 25 has been designated National FHA Week by the national organization of Future Homemakers of America. A self-supporting, non-profit, national organization of over 550,000 home economics students in junior and senior high schools, FHA members are youth who are concerned with personal growth, family unity, community service and career decisions.

The local chapter of FHA, in its first year of reorganization, has a membership of 92 high school girls who have been active in several personal, school and community projects this year. Members worked in the American Cancer Society's booth at the Floyd County Fair and also helped this organization with a fund-raising project. For the national project of "To Dare Is To Care," in November the chapter conducted a canned food drive for an orphanage in Magoffin county. In December, they conducted a toy drive for the orphanage, and a more recent project was to alter the Blackcat basketball team's uniforms. Another of the chapters "caring" projects was to make bibs for children in various Veterans hospitals. The Prestonsburg FHAers have also sold cook books to raise money for the chapter.

Stumbo-Garrett Clubs Win 4-H Talent Show

Other clubs participating were Betsy Layne, 6th grade; Maytown, Osborne, 6th grades; Garrett high and Betsy Layne 7th grade.

U. S. Bureau of Mines Director Elbert F. Osborne says he is "encouraged" by a five-month downward trend in Kentucky coal mine fatalities. In addition, the number of deaths per million man-hours worked also dropped. Officials consider the latter figure the most accurate indicator of mine safety conditions.

Island campers get new 'toy'

Campers at Trooper Island Boys' Camp at Dale Hollow Lake will have something new to play with this summer—a 10-ton Korean War jet fighter plane. An F-84-F fighter, recently phased out of service, has been obtained for the island by the Kentucky Division of Civil Defense. The plane, its wings removed for shipping, was trucked to the lake, then taken to its new home by barge. It will be used as an educational attraction this summer.
