Two-County Undertaking Seen in '72 Garbage Collection,

Disposal This Year, Hoped by McElwain

The two-county (Pike and Floyd) garbage collection and disposal system apparently is some months away from the point at which refuse will actually be picked up and buried, but a Spindletop Research representative said Monday he "will be most disappointed" if it isn't working this year.

Alan McElwain, who has been assigned by Spindletop to the Floyd county project, said he is now in the process of narrowing to two or three the several potential dumping sites under consideration in the county. These will be operated as landfills, and public hearings may be held before a final decision is reached.

Also under study is the method of collection—by private collectors operating under franchise and going to individual homes, or by collection of refuse from central locations to which waste would be taken by homeowners and placed in containers. Mr. McElwain said he favors the former method. It is believed that after June 16, when Home Rule legislation enacted this year becomes effective, fiscal courts will have the authority to issue franchises to such private collectors.

If collection franchises are awarded prescribed areas would be allocated to each collector, and maximum collection charges would be set.

Pike county already has 15 applications frm individuals interested in undertaking this work, he said. In Floyd only five have and seven cases of whiskey were found in

Robinson Reports 10th Return of Fees To Floyd Treasurer

County Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson announced Monday that he has made his 10th return of excess fees to the county treasurer since first being elected in 1962. The excess money goes directly to the county and not to the state.

County Clerk Robinson returned $7,096.89 Monday to the treasurer. This, he said, brings the total amount that he has returned to the county to almost $90,000.

Robinson also reported $5,136.49 for occupational license, $1,323.49 for delinquent taxes, and $1,725.00 tax collected for recording deeds.

He also returned to the Floyd County Board of Education $5,136.49.

Aftter meeting here Monday morning, County Judge Henry Stumbo and the county's four magistrates announced plans for what is hoped to be a countywide cleanup effort through the remainder of

They planned the itineraries of county trucks each day to pick up waste materials gathered at homes, and announced that the pickup service will start in Magisterial District 1 next Monday and continue till May 30, by which time every corner of the county is scheduled to be reached.

Homeowners are to collect their refuse, place it in containers and leave at the roadside, immediately prior to the dates set for the trucks to arrive in their communities. It is important, Judge Stumbo said, for these waste materials to be compactly packaged or sacked, because operators of trucks will not have time to do the collection of wastes.

Judge Stumbo spoke of the great need of a cleanup and of the need to put a halt to the scattering of garbage and other refuse. "In the future, if those who dump this stuff at roadsides and into streams are brought into court, I expect to do my part to see that they pay the penalty for such a violation of the law." he said.

The truck pickup schedule follows:

HAY-FRANCIS VOWS SAID HERE

Miss Carolyn Sue Hay, of Prestonsburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hay, of 824 Mechanic Street, Princeton, Ky. became the bride of John Paul Francis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Francis, of Francis Court, Prestonsburg, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday, April 29, on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence May, of Florence, Prestonsburg Community College, Prestonsburg, Ky. The Rev. Roy Roberson, of Morehead, Ky., performed the doublering ceremony.

Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, of Prestonsburg. pianist, presented a program of nuptial music. Selections were "It's Only Just Begun," "One Hand, One Heart", Trumpet tune in D, and "Psalm XIX." Miss Yvonne Dodge, of Princeton, sang "Love Story", "Twelfth of Never" and "More".

The ceremony was performed under a gazebo backed with wrought iron panels covered with white sweetheart roses.

The bride was escorted down a path marked with hurricane lamps by Dr. Donald Caroon, of Huntington, W. Va., friend of the family, who gave her in marriage. She was attired in a formal gown of embossed brocade trimed with satin. The fitted bodice was graced with a neckline of matching brocade lace. The gown was designed and made by the bride. The bride's headpiece was of miniature swedish pearls with crystal teardrops. The floorlength veil was of imported silk illusion. She carried a single red rose.

Gypsy Moth Poses Strong Threat To Woodland of the Nation

Kinfolk of a few immigrant gypsy moths, and clean-up operations in the area to keep set free 100 years ago in a New England windstorm that broke open their cages, last season stripped the leaves from trees in two the federal and state governments million acres of the Northeast. They left dead and dying forests in their wake.

A UK Extension entomologist says it detection and control campaign recently launched by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Rudy Scheibner explains that detection of the pest in new locations.

Since the 1869 escape of those gypsy moths imported from Europe for experimental purposes, their descendents have traveled south and west in egg clusters on automobiles, plants and railroad cars. Caterpillars have crawled, moths have flown and hitchhiked on the the gypsy moth's natural enemies. wind. Through the years, there have been outbreaks of extensive damage in New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan, England woodlands.

Egg clusters have been found in Virginia and West Virginia. Entomologists are on the lookout for them now in bordering Eastern Kentucky. The next few weeks and months are critical ones for detection and Caterpillars will be hatching out this month, according to Scheibner. By midsummer, they'll be about 2 inches long, eating through the night hours of June and July. They have strong, biting jaws, and a sickening taste that keeps them from being gobbled up by most other birds and animals. In August or September, fat and drowsy, they'll snuggle up in loose cocoons, lightly spun on trunks and tree limbs. Their beauty sleep over, they'll emerge as moths in 17 or 18 days. Sluggish and ill-equipped for flight, the females will stay in the vicinity, laying eggs that will overwinter and hatch out in the spring.

Gypsy moth caterpillars feed on shade, forest and fruit trees. Two successive infestations can kill deciduous trees. Just one year of complete defoliation can bring death to an evergreen.

It can take years of continuous scouting gypsy moths under control. In the past, allout eradication programs undertaken by frequently bogged down, due to lack of continued funds, failure to extend control measures to prevent re-infestation, and could happen here without a gypsy-moth build-up of public sentiment against the widespread sparying necessary.

Federal quarantine regulations enacted in 1906 still hold, according to Scheibner. the USDA program depends on quick These provide for inspection and certification of all products to which egg clusters might adhere before shipment out of an infested area. DDT was once the main control insecticide used. In addition, several different kinds of parasites and predators have been imported and established in several areas to do battle as

A gypsy moth looks much like some of our other moths, but it's not around this time of year, says Scheibner. Egg clusters in addition to the destruction of New are large, oval-shaped, and covered with tan hairs. The tiny caterpillars that hatch How far south have the fugitives come? out are soon brown and hairy, have five pairs of blue and six pairs of red little bumps along their back, and grow up to be 2 inches long.

If you think you've found a gypsy-moth egg cluster or caterpillar, take it to your county Extension agent for identification. Or tuck it into a little box so it won't get squashed, write down where you found it, and send it to Dr. Scheibner at the UK Experiment Station Building, Lexington, Kentucky, 40506.

its own life story which the observant eye may see and read. In the annual rings of growth, the tree records its own obituary and if you should find the stump of a tree recently sawed down, you could spend many profitable hours studying the rings. These tell the story of the tree's struggles to grow each year and add new cells to the cambium layer. These rings are a true weather chart of the tree's past life—the wide rings tell of the tree's lush growth during a fine season of plenty of sunlight and rain. The narrow rings tell of the tree's futile efforts to grow and add new cells during a drouth, or during some season of extremely cool, cloudy weather when the leaves could make no food for a lack of sunenergy to run the food factory.

The rings begin at the center of the tree and go out in concentric circles toward the outer layer of cambium. They are smaller at the center, indicating the relative size of the tree when it was a mere sapling. A new and some keep this outer garment tidy and ring was added just outside the last one, clean; others let it become untidy; there is and so on until the tree's life is ended, either an outer bark and an inner bark and when by being cut down by men or dying of old the bark is broken or cut through to the usually form a perfect circle. But they do often determine the age of a large tree by use of an increment borer, which bores out a small pencil of wood from the bark to woods with an axe should be taught never to

Trees also reveal their many shocks and bruises through life; they often show the damage done by different kinds of viruses and microbes and the scars left by men who sometimes bruise or cut a tree thoughtlessly. The bark of the tree also reveals the many events that may have happened to deface it or to leave marks on its trunk. The bark of some trees holds marks much longer than others; one of these is the beech. Once I found a beech with three long gashes made in the bark, which were still showing plainly after a lapse of about 175 years. These marks had apparently been made by a hunting-knife by one of the men in the crew of surveyors of the Rev. James Madison, (not President Madison), who made many extensive surveys in Eastern Kentucky of virgin lands for the purpose of establishing religious colonies for his church. The bark of a black gum tree will also hold knife marks for over 100 years. This tree and the beech were the two favorites for marking by the pioneer land surveyors.

A tree will often show the evidence of being lashed by violent storms, or of being bruised and warped when it was small. "AS THE TWIG IS BENT, SO IS THE TREE INCLINED—" there is no truer saying. Once I found a large red maple standing on the bank of a creek and its trunk had a corkscrew shape from bottom to top. The wood and bark were twisted in such a twisted shape. When it was a sapling, it had been twisted and warped by flood waters, which had left it in an auger shape, and that is the way it had grown.

Trees often show many kinds of knots, or swelling of trunk or limbs. Oldtimers called these knotty places "cat faces" in the tree, as some of these do often resemble a grinning cat. Others grow to immense size; I have seen oaks with a growth on the trunk as large as a sixty-gallon barrel. So it seem that trees are afflicted with malignant tumors the same as humans are. These over-size tumors start from a virus infection of the bark, which may invade to the cambium layer. The tree puts up a strong defense against the attack by starting a quick, phenomenal growth, which encloses the "cancerous cells", fences them in and contains them so that they cannot destroy the tree. If the human body could learn how to fence in cancer cells and stop their spread, the life could be saved.

These large growths on the tree are called "knots" by the oldtimers. They were highly prized for making knot mauls to split rails. The wood of the huge knots was tough and fine-grained, so closely tied and knit together, it couldn't be split nor bent nor broke, as Holmes said of the wood of the "one-hoss shay."

To make a knot maul, the old pioneer had to first saw off the large knot, then painstakingly round it with a keen axe. A hole was bored in the center for insertion of the handle. Such a maul would last for years; it was the kind of maul Abe Lincoln used to split rail in his boyhood days.

Nature had a wise purpose in making the knot holes in the trunks of trees. These are the "doorways" for wild life to go in and out. Squirrels go in hollow trees to sleep

In various and sundry ways a tree writes during cold winter days; many birds also seek them out for shelter on cold nights. Gray squirrels wisely mark all the trees in the woods which have knot holes and dens for hiding. They gnaw off the bark near the ground as a sign that the tree is a safe place of refuge from enemies.

A tree tells its name by its bark, which is the best identifying feature. The outer bark of the black oak is dark, often jet black; the bark of the white oak is a light ashen gray; the bark of the beech presents a smooth, clean appearance, with no furrows or indentations. Its bark gives it a prim, almost chaste appearance, so it is often call "quaker lady." The bark of the ash is ashy gray and the bark of the river birch falls away in loosely hanging pieces, giving the tree an untidy look. The shagbark hickory is so called from the "shaggy look" caused by the long, loose strips of bark clinging to the trunk long after they have slipped off.

The bark is called the tree's "overcoat," age. The rings are often wavy and do not inner bark, it makes a bad wound on the tree. It lays the wound open for the enreveal the true age of the tree. Foresters trance of microbes and many kinds of insects, which will eventually destroy the tree. Boys who are allowed to go into the the center; this small length of wood re- chop through the bark of a tree. . . unless of veals the age of the tree by the rings show- course they might need it for firewood or some other good use. -

Frankfort, Ky.—The action by the 1972 fering substandard educational programs. General Assembly strengthening the state Council on Public Higher Education has whether this attempt to regulate "mailbeen described by the council's executive order diplomas" will actually increase the director, Ted Gilbert, as "close to being in scope of the council. keeping with the ideal."

The council, which was formed by the with the membership of the governing legislature in 1934 and is the oldest higher boards of the individual colleges and education coordinating agency in the nation, has steadily gained powers and duties through the years. This year was no exception. The General Assembly passed a regents on which he now serves (he is number of bills directly affecting both the council and individual state-supported removes the governor and commissioner of institutions. Basically, those measures agriculture from the University of Kenstrengthened the role of the council as a coordinating body while retaining the boards and grants voting powers to student autonomy of the individual colleges.

Two measures in particular, Senate Bills 54 and 315, "considerably increase" the powers and duties of the council, Gilbert

SB 54 contains a number of provisions ranging from fund allocation to changes in the council's membership.

For the first time it requires council approval for all instructional capital construction projects in excess of $100,000, a measure "essential to efficiency, coordination and long-range planning," Gilbert said, and in order to prevent duplication, it requires council approval of all graduatedegree and professional-school programs.

Prior to this legislation, the General Assembly allocated "growth" funds, or funds designed to cover increases in enrollment, to individual institutions based on their projected enrollment figures. Now these funds will in effect be channeled through the council and allocated on the basis of actual enrollment figures.

SB 54 also alters the membership of the council by increasing the lay voting membership from nine to ten and adding the superintendent of public instruction as a voting member. The eight presidents of senior colleges will remain on the council as ex-officio members, but the governor is required to appoint by July 1 the 10 lay members, any of whom could be drawn from the present membership.

SB 315, the other measure pointed to by Gilbert, requires the State Board of Education to license all colleges and universities, public and private, and adopt standards for licensing upon the recommendation of the council. This was to protect the state's fully accredited colleges, readers of this column how ignorant the people of Fidelity actually were. Why, there was not a high-school diploma in the whole area, and not even an eighth-grade almost any sort of needed household one, but a good many people could have qualified for the latter if an examination had been available. Needless to say, nobody had ever seen a college diploma certifying that four full years beyond high school has been attained. And, to make matters worse, we had lots of people who did not know A from B, or B from bull's assignment to shoe a dozen horses in the foot, either. My, weren't we ignorant!

But, before you jump to too many conclusions, let me tell you some more about the education of my contemporaries. We were no worse than thousands of country areas. Literacy is not always a fair test to apply to any generation, especially pioneer or semi-pioneer communities. In books and formal learning, we certainly had little to brag about. But still there were things that even the very ignorant ones knew, things that most of us now would find difficult to do. Why, dozens of the men and boys could have carried a corner at a barn or house

Now, I am quite aware that shouting is a thing of the past; and I feel one of the reasons is that the women folks don't come I hope you don't mind, but I am going to to church dressed for it. Let me give you a few illustrations as to what I mean so that take it for granted that all of you know what just in case the Holy Spirit would move shouting is. If you have never seen it done, some woman to shout and she began to fall the chances are that you never will; but to apart right before your eyes, then you have

Why Most Women Folks Don't Shout

By REV. JACK E. ROOPER

those of you who have gone to church in past years and have seen a saint of God shout the victory, here is my estimation as are nothing near what they were of yesteryear. You see, the lady folks then came to church dressed to serve the Lord.

They wore their dresses long enough that they would not be exposed when they raised their hands in rejoicing. Usually, their dress or apron had a big pocket so that they could carry a handkerchief to wipe the tears of joy. Their hair was usually done up in a big bun or tied back with a ribbon so that it wouldn't get into their faces when they ran the aisles of the church shouting praises to their Savior. Their shoes were made sturdily with wide heels for better balance. Yes, it's true that lady folks used to come to church to shout the praises. You to why this practice has ceased.

been forewarned. Now, here we go! About the first thing that would fall victim to her rejoicing would be her head; I The women folks in our churches today really mean wig; it would fall off. Can't you just see it? There's a big gob of hair lying in the aisle; what a shame. Next thing that might give way under all that jumping is her false eye lashes. Some look like an awning over a window. Lying on the floor, they look like a black widow spider. Now things begin to really get interesting. Her dress is about six inches above her knees when she is at parade rest; but when both arms are extended over her head in rejoicing, she could cause about half of the men folks in the church to backslide. She probably will fall two or three times due to those long, spindly heels on her shoes. Some women can harly walk on them, let alone take a shout with them on. Things begin to see, they felt they had something to shout really get scary now for tears are streaming down her face for joy, and that pink stuff she has smeared on her face that makes her look like a corpse and that blue stuff she has smeared around her eyes begin to run together. Her face now looks like an Apache Indian on the warpath. Don't worry, folks, she can't hold out long for she has a girdle pulled so tightly around her stomach that after about three jumps, she's gasping for breath. Well, anyway, don't worry too much about all this happening for the possibility of the Holy Spirit moving upon a woman diked out like Jezebel is pretty remote. I, for the life of me, can't figure out where all the Christian women got it that they had to be good looking to go to Heaven. I guess they think Jesus is like most men here on earth and that he will only let all the sexy, good-looking ones in. Sorry to disappoint you, ladies; but according to the Bible, the more modest and reserved you look, the more chance you have of making it to Heaven. You see, Jesus said that he desires that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array; but (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works. Your tight sweaters, short skirts, painted faces, teased hair, and sweet smelling pew might make an impression on the men folks; but don't try to impress Jesus Christ with that kind of garb.

Ladies, let me be really serious with you for a minute. Quit trying to be pretty, but try to be Godly. Quit trying to look twenty years younger than what you really are. Try to dress so that you will be pleasing to the Lord; be more concerned about what He thinks of you than what someone else's husband thinks. Do you really think God is pleased with you when you spend more of your time standing in front of a mirror than on your knees in prayer: Is He pleased with you when you spend more time sitting in the beauty parlor or under a hair dryer than in studying His Word? Is He pleased when you spend your money on wigs, girdles, false eye lashes, powder, lipstick, rouge, perfume, etc., when the church can hardly make ends meet? Be honest about this thing. If you really want to live right, then prove it. If all you are out for is to seduce someone's husband, then please stay away from church, for the men folks have a hard enough time trying to keep their minds clear as it is.

National Steel's $30,000 Grant For ALC Center

National Steel Corporation, the third largest steel company in the U.S., through its subsidiary, Beaver Creek Consolidated Coal Company, has made a grant of $30,000 to Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes.

National Steel and Beaver Creek are developing the Stinson mines on Caney Creek, near the College, and presently employ about 450 workers. In the fall, when the mines are in full production, employment is expected to rise to about 600 workers. Alice Lloyd College's new Community Recreation-Health-Physical Education Center, for which the grant was made, will service many of the workers and their families.

The grant, which will provide $30,000 over the next three years, was obtained through the cooperation of George E. Evans, president of Evans Industries, Lexington, and ALC trustee, and George Angevine, vice-president of industrial relations for National Steel.

Championship Regatta Planned At Jenny Wiley State Park By HELEN PRICE STACY There is an excitement about the soft, green hills in Eastern Kentucky at this time of year. There also is a feeling of depth and of peace that hill people experience with the rehabilitation of mountains in spring.

The mountain-born can arise on a cool morning, walk into their yards and look out over land that has changed in a week from sparse and stark to lush and green. They look up to hilltop and sky, they look down at their feet to see dandelions as bright as

At Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, this excitement of spring is coupled with that of an event in June when the blue-green water of Dewey Lake will be alive with boats and boatment and the banks teeming with those who love water sports, especially a regatta.

On June 24-25, participants in the second annual Dewey Lake Regatta featuring the Northern Championship boat races, will create white water all the way from Arrowhead Point to Stratton Branch, past coves and glens, pine woods and glades.

It was estimated by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers that 36,500 people attended last August's regatta. Park Manager John Combs believes that a crowd of 100,000 will be on hand this year.

Park employes already are deep into work plans to provide more campsites for the many families who will come to enjoy mountain scenery and hill hospitality, along with the events of the regatta. More parking areas are being established at various points along the regatta course and May Lodge and other buildings on the park grounds are undergoing a renovation that will make rooms and cottages ultrabeautiful, as well as relaxing and comfortable.

For those who like the thrill of boat racing and the precision driving of skilled sportsmen, the shore of Dewey Lake will be a long, natural "50-yard line" all the way from the point down the straightaway to Stratton Branch.

Almost $4000 in prize money and trophies awaits winners in the regatta. A number of participants are big names in boating and big names in the entertainment circuit. Just as an example, W. S. Holland, of Johnny Cash's "Tennessee Three," will be in the regatta with his boat K-34.

Federal Judge Voids Election Of Tony Boyle

A U. S. district judge Monday overturned the 1969 election of United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle.

Judge William Bryan agreed with the government's contention that the union used union money and facilities to conduct an irregularity-studded election weighted in Boyle's favor.

Bryant instructed the Justice Depart- Archer here last Wednesday. ment to submit on May 8 an order detailing how a new election should be conducted under the supervision of the secretary of month trial, Bryant wrote that in order to find for the union, "the court would be G. Salisbury. forced to swim upstream against the tide of evidence too strong to resist."

"The walls of justice are closing in on Tony Boyle," said Attorney Joseph Rauh one of the parties in the complex legal union officials.

While the judge's decision may be appealed, the effect of the District Court action cannot be halted by a stay.

His doctors at the Medical Center say that, had his brush with death occurred a few years ago, even only three or four years ago, only a miracle could have saved him. They credit advances with respirators with driving from Paintsville toward West Liberty last Feb. 25 when their truck left the highway and overturned in a waterfilled ditch. Anchored by his seat-belt, upside down, Spradlin lay helpless, his head under water. Wells, slightly injured, fought to keep Spradlin's head above water. How long the Bonanza man's head was submerged, Wells cannot say. Anyway, and helped extricate Spradlin, he was considered dead.

At the Paintsville hospital, however, it was found that his heart was still beating, and doctors there worked over him for two or three hours, finally deciding they had done all they could do and that his chance of survival lay in being transported to the Medical Center. It was en route to the Lexington hospital that the man was again

18 Lobbyists Fail To File Expenses

The attorney general's office reported all but about 18 registered lobbyists made the April 18 deadline for filing statements of their expenses during the 1972 General

State law requires lobbyists and their employers to file expense statements with the attorney general within 30 days after adjournment of the legislature.

Lobbyists and their employers also are required to register with the attorney

Atty. Gen. Ed Hancock said an extra day was added to the filing period because his office was closed one day during recent flooding in Frankfort.

He added that, under a regulation of his agency, he must report the names of those who did not file statements to Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs and Franklin Commonwealth's Attorney William Brooks within 40 days after the session closed.

Hancock said he has no authority to prosecute late filers. Lobbyists' expenses include rooms, meals, transportation, postage, entertainment, refreshments and-in a few cases-laundry.

Pine Council for many years. A. R. Barber, manager of the Kentucky Power Company, Hazard, recognized unit leaders and den mothers. He pointed out that if there is any rank in Scouting it belongs to the dedicated leaders who meet with the boys, week in and week out. Boys George C. Wells, Pikeville automobile receive the benefit of Scout training only when unit leaders are willing to sacrifice time each week to meet with the boys and make certain that they have an opportunity to participate in Scouting. Walter P. Walters, Pikeville, was in charge of the Silver Fawn and Silver council presented the Cub Scout training Beaver Court of Honor. Mr. Walters explained that each year Lonesome Pine Council is entitled to recognize one woman personnel manager for the Kentucky Scout leader with the Silver Fawn Award and one male leader with the Silver Beaver Award. These are the highest awards the Lonesome Pine Council can present to volunteer leaders. Mr. Walters introduced Arthur Bradbury, of Prestonsburg, who Mr. Hammond also presented a Scouter's presented the Silver Fawn Award to Mrs. award to Emory Reaser, Jr., Cub Master, Caroline Leach, of Prestonsburg. Butler Urges Federal Action To Save Nation's Small Farmer

Urgent action is needed at the federal level to save the nation's small farmers, business unless he gets help from some Butler says.

During a recent interview, Butler said shrinking farm incomes, while being survived by large corporation farms, are operating costs and shirinking net incomes. choking small landowners.

are tied to rising costs, migration of people from rural to urban areas, and the lack of rural development.

"The small farmer is going out of state Agriculture Commissioner Wendell source," Butler said. "I believe that help must come from the federal level."

He noted small, family farms are caught "in a cost-price squeeze" between rising

'The farmer, unlike other businessmen, Butler said the small farmer's problems is not in a position to pass these costs on to the buyer of his products in the form of higher prices," Butler said. "Inflation has hit the farmer harder than just about any segment of our country."

He called for stronger farm bargaining power, more liberal farm credit and more rural development to save small farmers.

Democratic Women Slate Scholarship Dinner Here

The Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club is sponsoring a fund-rising dinner for scholarship, Friday, at 6:30 p.m. at May

The principal speaker will be State Senator Walter "Dee" Huddleston, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate. Mrs. Tom Dingus, club president, said other Democratic candidates for the senate seat were invited, but that none have indicated they will appear.

Also invited are Democratic candidates for Judge of the Court of Appeals in the 6th Judicial District. Mrs. Dingus said James B. Stephenson, of Pikeville; Don Ward, of Hazard; and Edward G. Hill, of Harlan, have indicated they would come.

Proceeds from the dinner will go to the scholarship fund of the Democratic Woman's Club which will provide a scholarship to a Kentucky college next year to a Floyd County youth who has worked for the Democratic party. Details may be obtained from Mrs. H. D. Fitzpatrick, scholarship chairman.

Tickets to the dinner are $5.00 per person and may be obtained from Mrs. Dingus or any member of the Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club.

HOMEMAKERS CLUB MEETS

The Grethel Homemakers Club held its regular monthly meeting April 24 at the John M. Stumbo school. The president, Cosetta Newsome, presided.

The club elected its new officers for the year. They are: President, Cosetta Newsome; vice-president, Rozella Newsome; secretary, Patricia Ann Newsome; treasurer, Oma Frasure. Aretta Hall was elected to give a devotion at each meeting, and Golda Mae DeRossett was named game leader. Oval Martin and Joyce Hall were appointed to the telephone committee to inform each member of every meeting held each month.

The monthly lesson on "Swiss Straw" was given by Maise Anspaugh and Eileen Martin. They presented several ideas which could be useful in decorating and demonstrated to the club how this was done. Each member participated in the project. Refreshments were served to 23 members by Charlotte Frasure and Joyce Hall.

INSPECTION PERIOD FOR THE PROPERTY TAX ASSESSMENT ROLL

The Floyd County property tax roll will be opened for inspection from May 1 through May 5, 1972. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of his deputies, any property owner may inspect the tax roll to check the assessment of his property and compare it with the assessment of comparable property to determine whether it is equitably assessed. The tax roll may not be inspected for any other purpose.

This is the January 1, 1972 assessment on which state, county, and school taxes for 1972 will be due on September 15, 1972.

The tax roll is in the office of the property valuation administrator in the county courthouse and may be inspected between the hours 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

A "Litter Bit" of Beauty

Melissa, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Jeffer, of Hull, Ga., on a recent trip to Kentucky had a "barrel" of fun emptying the litter from the family car. As a result of service station litter barrels, Melissa is learning a "litter bit" faster how to keep her country cleaner. In Kentucky, wherever there is a service station, there is a place to dump all the litter that accumulates while you're driving.

Prestonsburg shoeworkers must now wait a full year for another opportunity to vote for their own union. MEANWHILE, the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union is ready to help you whenever you want help. This union is a union of shoeworkers...it wants to prove to those who, for their own reasons, voted against membership that it is a good union ... of good people ... of good shoeworkers.

Imports had closed a Norway, Maine, shoe factory. Workers there were thrown out of jobs and denied the paid vacation time they had earned. The company said it wouldn't pay them. But this union brought action to collect and won an agreement with resulting payment of vacation money to those workers entitled to it. Without their union to carry their fight there'd have been no payment.

We thank those who voted to join us. And for all of you shoeworkers in Prestonsburg, we are bringing unfair labor practice charges against the company. It is our sincere belief that its anti-labor campaign was irresponsible, untruthful, and by its very nature deprived you of a fair vote.

THEIR MARRIAGE REAFFIRMED

Clayton and Violet Ferguson were honored on their 25th wedding anniversary with an unusual wedding ceremony, performed by the Rev. John Justice on February 12 at the First Baptist Church at Wheelwright. The ceremony was very appropriate, since it was a rededication of their wedding. The bride's son, Sonny Mullins, gave her away. The bridesmaids were her daughter, Mrs. Brenda Hall, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Donna Mullins. The best man was her son-in-law, James T. Hall. Ushers were Geoffrey Coburn and

Rex. David Wilson. Music was furnished by Dunbar Scott. After the ceremony a reception was held in the church. The family and many friends attended anf honored the Fergusons with gifts. The cake was three-tiered, with the 25th anniversary decoration on top, and was baked by Mrs. Sylvia Hall. Hostesses were: Mrs. Mary Ellen Wilson, Mrs. Eula Mae Ferguson, Mrs. Lora McKnight, Mrs. Hazel Ferguson, Mrs. Lola Coburn, and Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson.

Keep America Beautiful Day Marked by Litter Cleanup

More than 15,000 young people and 100 adults participated in "Keep America Beautiful Day" in Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, according to F. Marvin Barber, Scout executive.

The group collected more than 100 tons of litter, Barber said. They cleaned 14 miles of streams and shoreline, 25 acres of park lands and empty lots, and more than 400 miles of highway. Some of the area cleaned up included the Jenny Wiley gravesite, Dewey Lake, Fishtrap Lake, roadways in Martin county, and parks, streams, and highways in many other areas of the Lonesome Pine Council

Other groups assisting in "Keep America Beautiful Day" were the Girl Scouts, 4-H Club, Royal Ambassadors, Junior Chamber of Commerce, school children and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Assembly of God Church To Hold Revival Services

Revival services will begin at the Assembly of God Church in West Prestonsburg, at 7 p.m., Sunday. Rev. Melvin Blanton, evangelist of Oil Springs, will conduct the services each evening through Sunday, May 14. The pastor of the church, Rev. Ambrose Davis, said that the public is invited to attend and join in the revival.

Officials Attend East Point Meet

Approximately 50 interested citizens attended the second meeting of the East Point Area Development Club which was held Monday evening at the Masonic Temple at East Point.

Among those present at the meeting were Floyd County Judge Henry Stumbo, County Attorney James Allen, Dist. 1 Magistrate Bill Wells, James B. Goble, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department and Johnson County Agent Claude Christian. Several of these guests spoke briefly and pledged to the club their support in any way possible. Mr. Goble informed the club of laws governing disposal of solid

Plans were made for participation in the major clean-up campaign in the area, the first section of the area being in Floyd county from the top of Abbott mountain to the Johnson county line. Following clean-up in this area, the group will move to other sections of the area.

Groundwork was begun for other projects, such as formation of a Boy Scout Troop, beautification of the area, improvement of mail boxes, construction of road markings, and, possibly, the procurement of a playground in the area.

Jigging Pays Off at Dewey

While most fishermen (?) were bemoaning the muddiness of Dewey Lake, these were catching fish there. The seven bass shown in photo (top) were caught Monday by Vencil, Norman and Delmadge Fannin and Lon Castle, all of Van Lear, by the jigging method. Raymond Fannin, of Stratton Branch, is shown (left) with four bass which he caught April 22, jigging a yellow doll fly.
