In Memoriam

In memory of Hillard Tackett who passed away Oct. 8, 1970.

A precious one from us is gone, A voice we love is still, A place is vacant in our home Which never can be filled. My loving wife don't grieve for me, Neither lament nor mourn, For I shall with Jesus be When you are left alone.

Written by a broken-hearted wife who loves him so dear.

MRS. MAXIE TACKETT Melvin, Ky. 1t-pd.

"I have no personal interest in the school board race in Floyd County. This race must be decided by the people of Floyd County and I will take no part in any efforts by any group to convince people they should vote for a particular slate of candidates.

"My only interest in Floyd County, as in the rest of the seventh Congressional District, is to save our coal mining industry, to industrialize the Big Sandy Valley, to prepare a place for our young people to work here instead of in Ohio or Michigan, and to remove fear of economic reprisal from the hearts of our people who have been forced to go on welfare . . . unless they vote a certain way."

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY?

Meetings were held at W. D. Osborne Elementary School on September 21 and McDowell High School on October 5 with school employees. In attendance at the latter meeting were the principal, some politicians, Superintendent of Schools Clark, and Mr. Manis Crawford, candidate for school board member.

We would like for Dr. Mary Hall, candidate for school board member, to have an opportunity to meet with the employees of these and other schools in District 4, along with parents and other interested people, to discuss her views and our concerns in this election.

And again the question is raised: What are politics doing in the school board race?

Relics Tell of Indian Civilizations in Kentucky

By HELEN PRICE STACY West Liberty, Ky.—The redman's heritage in Kentucky is more than just Indian summer, with its golden, shimmering bonus of balmy weather when fields are bright with yellow flowers, bins are filled with grain and barns are bulging with golden burley. New research indicates the Indian mounds in Ashland's Central Park, once believed to be the work of Cherokees 200-300 years ago, are at least 2000 years old and built by an ancient race of redmen. In Johnson county, where the past is locked securely with Indian history, there have been discoveries of endless fascination, enough for many lifetimes of research and study. Caves and recesses in Elliott and Morgan counties are yielding artifacts and relics in an area virtually untapped by archeologists other than university professors, class field trips and hobbyists. Mrs. Lily Ridgeway, of Elliott county, owns what she believes to be an Indian deed. She has an Indian tomahawk which she believes to be inscribed with a contract for land in sign language. Signs of a strange Indian custom can be found along Paint Creek in Morgan and Johnson counties. Lost for the most part in an unfathomable past, the history of the Paint Creek Indians includes legends of ancient tribal ceremonies and rites. Here, for some unknown reason, the Indians peeled great sections of bark from trees along the creek, and used red and black pigment to paint pictures on the bark and tree trunks. In Johnson county's Barn Rock section, a West Virginia native who researches Indian lore as a hobby has reported the remains of a sizable Indian village. Barn Rock itself, located on the Lonzo Skaggs farm, is 63 feet long and 37 feet wide. Skaggs once used the space beneath the rock for a millhouse and black smith shop. At one time or another, the rock shelter has served as a school house, church, pig lot and as a place for curing tobacco. Scientists have long puzzled over the origin of the mysterious mounds which dot the Eastern United States. Now, archeologists believe Ashland's Central Park mounds are the remains of the Mound Builders' civilization. Similar earthen structures once dotted the Ashland area, lending credence to the belief that here once was a large settlement or Indian city. The mounds are approximately 15 feet in diameter and four feet high. The psychic Edgar Cayce once said the Mound Builders were natives of Atlantis who left that ill-fated continent during its last days and came to America by way of Yucatan. The state is now listing and researching these features of Kentucky's Indian heritage. State Corrections Commissioner Charles J. Holmes says some prisoners involved in a recent racial disturbance at La Grange State Reformatory may be transferred to the penitentiary at Eddyville.

Sleeping and Breathing

Sleeping can be a hazardous activity. Especially for certain patients with severe lung disease who take sleeping pills. The chief function of our lungs is to deliver oxygen and remove carbon dioxide from the blood. When we sleep, though, our breathing changes. The oxygen level in our blood drops. Carbon dioxide increases. This tilt in the balance of gases in the blood happens to everyone during sleep. But people with severe respiratory disease already have this imbalance of blood gases even when they are awake. Does sleeping cause an even greater tilt? Until recently, no one had explored this question. But Dr. Benjamin Interiano of the University of Rochester Medical Center conducted experiments with patients with severe lung disease as well as those with heart disease and others with obesity problems. The comparisons during sleep were surprising. Dr. Interiano found that during sleep obese patients had drastic drops in oxygen levels, almost four times greater than that of normal subjects. Drops for patients with congestive heart failure were almost as great. Both could profit from oxygen therapy at night. But among patients with severe respiratory disease, changes in blood gas levels during sleep were not much different from normal subjects. Nobody knows why, but Dr. Interiano speculates that an unknown protective mechanism prevents further imbalance of blood gases in respiratory patients while they are asleep. Curiously enough, the protective mechanism can be blocked by taking sleeping pills. Some effect from the pills causes a precipitous drop in oxygen levels and a rise in carbon dioxide. With such patients, taking the pills may cause serious complications. To find out more about the lungs and how they work contact your state tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.

"An Apple a Day Keeps the Doctor Away"

This is another old saying that inspired a wonderful spiritual commentary for me: "A Bible a Day, Keeps the Devil Away."

How perfectly true this is if we live what we tell. I guess by now everyone who knows me knows I don't go for the modern-day gods.

Women, how are you going to walk in holiness, and walk in pants or shorts, for they are both an abomination unto the Lord? (Deuteronomy 22-5).

Yes, "A Bible a day, Will sure Keep the Devil Away." And if there was ever a time we needed the whole armour of God, it's now (Ephesians 6), for Job said, from trouble to trouble, and Jesus said, worse and worse, and we know that's Law and Gospel, and Jesus didn't come to destroy the law.

me. Why shouldn't I love Him and exalt Him? He is the only one, that did, or would do, that for me. When everything and everybody has failed, there always will be God, and He saves everywhere and at all times.

Yes, "A Bible a day will Keep the Devil Away," for every Bible living home, will sure produce a Bible living church, which will grow unto the Lord, and if we who profess godliness love God before self and things, we can win for the winner, for He has already won for us.

My house is poor, my home is rich, and some of my clothes need to be stitched, But it's the most beautiful place in all the world, I welcome God's little boys and girls, I feed the Bread, God's Bread of Life, I teach the fountain that can't run dry.

He can and will do the same for you, if you will let Him. It is written in Jesus name for others, By MRS. LOUCILLE MONTGOMERY God's private secretary, and Christian Home, Evangelist 22 E. Burchett St. Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653

I don't know about "the apple a day" but I am absolutely certain of "the Bible a day" keeping the devil away. The Bible is sure, sharper than a sword, it really cuts deep and wide. It will clean you up, clean you out and keep you that way; it will teach you to live and prepare you to die, so you can live again.

Annual Statewide Essay Contest On Conservation Under Way

Trees—the subject of Joyce Kilmer's most famous poem—is the topic this year as Kentucky elementary and high school students compete for $3,825 in U. S. Savings Bonds in the 1972 Conservation Essay Contest.

The subject for this year's essay is "Trees—Their Effect on Me and My Local Environment." This is the first time the subject has been used in the contest.

Last year's winner was Nancy Stout, of Carrollton. Miss Stout's essay was picked best from among 86,057 essays written on the subject "Land Use—Its Effect on My Local Environment."

Again this year, the writer of the top essay in the state will receive a $500 bond. The second place winner will receive a $200 bond, and third place will earn a $100 bond.

The three top winners, their parents and teachers will be guests of honor at the newspapers' annual Farm Awards Luncheon in Louisville next February. Prizes will be awarded at the luncheon.

Each winner in the state's 121 Soil and Water Conservation Districts will receive a $25 bond and a wooden plaque.

Certificates will be awarded to the runner-up in each district. Certificates will also be sent to the writer of the best essay in each school in the state.

The deadline for schools to submit their winning essays to their local school superintendents is December 1, 1972.

LOUIE NUNN!!! WHAT LEADING REPUBLICANS REALLY SAY ABOUT HIM!

Because we're in a Presidential Election year a great deal of pressure will be brought upon Republican party office holders and officials alike to support the entire ticket. A sense of loyalty to the President will cause many Republicans to go along for the good of the party. What is important, however, is what these people really think about Louie Nunn and what they say about him when the pressure of Presidential politics is off.

Senator JOHN SHERMAN COOPER: "Whatever the immediate advantage might be, such a practice is contrary to our free system of government for all its citizens and damages the good name and honor of the Republican Party, the Commonwealth of Kentucky and its great people."

Senator MARLOW COOK: "After spending an entire campaign attacking me, Jefferson County, and our entire Republican Organization, Louie Nunn now finds it necessary to attack our Senior Senator the Honorable John Sherman Cooper. The idea that he would accuse Senator Cooper of conspiring to enter into a deal is so revolting that an answer would on its face be ridiculous."

Congressman TIM LEE CARTER: "The ugly ideas of racism, religious bigotry and mud slinging are being exploited throughout the 5th Congressional District and the State of Kentucky. I have seen Mr. Nunn attempt to exploit these issues and I saw him lose all minority groups as a result." Congressman Carter also said he suspected the Nunn forces of "disseminating hate literature."

Lt. Gubernatorial Candidate THOMAS RATLIFF: "I publicly apologize to the people of Kentucky for running on the same ticket with Louie B. Nunn." G.O.P. Candidate for Graves County ED ROGERS: "Nunn's program has reversed the legend of Robin Hood to rob the poor and subsidize the rich."

Regional Education Office Nearing Opening Stage Here

Decentralization of all educational processes in the Eastern Kentucky counties which comprise Region 11 is scheduled to begin next Monday, Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd county schools, and chairman of the Region 11 board of directors, said this week.

The region is one of 17 established in conformance with a plan by Supt. of Public Instruction Lyman Ginger to form the Regional Organization for providing Educational Services (ROPES) in Appalachian counties with the help of Appalachian Regional Commission funds.

Dr. Ginger has envisioned ROPES and its regional offices as a means of facilitating the operation of all facets of public education under local offices, bringing education closer to the people it is intended to serve. Supt. Clark described the effort as "moving the educational mountain to the public Mahomet."

Superintendents of the 11 counties initially form the board of control but later laymen, representatives of community colleges and vocational schools will be added. Each of the 17 regions will have an educational generalist as director and a vocational specialist as assistant director. A meeting of county superintendents of Region 11 was held at Supt. Clark's office here Tuesday, and State Department of Education and vocational education representatives will attend to offer assistance in planning action. It was held possible that a regional director will be named at the meeting.

The Floyd County Board of Education by two resolutions adopted at Saturday's meeting here formally entered into the organization.

Seven Convictions In District Court Cited by Attorney

Eugene E. Siler, Jr., U. S. attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, disclosed last week the following convictions in federal court at Pikeville during the week:

Richard Ruey Adkins, Rockhouse, charged with operating an illegal moonshine distillery, two years; Vickie Jo Napier, Huntington, W. Va., transporting stolen car in interstate commerce, one year and one day (suspended), three years probation; Wade Shepherd, Magoffin county, operating illegal moonshine distillery, one year and one day, (suspended), three years probation; Jesse Pittman, Booneville, possession of firearm by convicted felon, two years to begin at expiration of state sentence; Ike Webb, Neon, illegal possession of explosives, one year (suspended), two years probation; Chester Honeycutt, Neon, illegal possession of explosives, one year (suspended), two years probation; Ira Lester, Little Beaver Coal Co., Feds Creek, Ky., illegal storing of explosives, $250 fine, plus court costs.

The U. S. court for the Eastern District of Kentucky, Pikeville Division, ordinarily has jurisdiction over cases arising in Floyd, Pike, Letcher, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin and Knott counties.

A federal jury at Pikeville last Friday returned a verdict of guilty against two men charged with trafficking in stolen explosives. The two, Charles Ott Stafford, also known as Harold French Stamper, and Thomas Shepard, allegedly were dealing in large quantities of explosives stolen from powder magazines at various mines in the Kentucky and West Virginia area.

Both men were also convicted of transporting explosives in interstate commerce after having been convicted of a felony. Shepard had previously been convicted of interstate theft and Stafford had been convicted of transporting a stolen automobile across state lines.

A third defendant is still at large. These convictions grew out of a stolen explosives ring involving $150,000 worth of stolen goods. Stafford and Shepard face prison terms of up to 50 years each.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital Observes 25th Anniversary

Shown cutting the three-tiered cake honoring the Employee of the Year, the Sister Angelo Award winner and the hospital's 25th anniversary are Mrs. Patty May, winner of the 1972 Employee of the Year Award; Dr. Lowell Martin, chief of staff; Miss Leeda Conley, RN, winner of the Sister Angelo Award; Sister Mary Catherine Hunt, president of the governing board of the hospital; Sister Angelo, who has served the hospital and its patients during its entire 25-year history, and who is now retired; and Paul Stark, administrator.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital, of Martin, celebrated its 25th anniversary Sept. 28 with a reception in honor of its governing board and staff.

Members of the governing board who were able to be present for the occasion are Sister Mary Catherine Hunt, Sister M. Rosina Fuhrer, Sister Agnes Marie Schulte, Sister Ann Charles O'Dowd, Sister Louise Marie Balmut and Sister Loretta Anne Hummeldorf. During the reception, Sister Mary Catherine, president of the board, told the staff briefly of how the Sisters of Divine Providence decided to open the hospital in 1947 in order to offer assistance to the people of Eastern Kentucky. She told of the Sisters' interest in dedicating themselves to Christian service to those in need of it and thanked members of the staff for their mutual dedication in helping to make this service possible.

During the reception, Mrs. Patty May, of Allen, who is an assistant in the hospital pharmacy, was honored as Our Lady of the Way's Employee of the Year and Miss Leeda Conley, RN, of Garrett, was presented with the annual Sister Angelo Award. These awards are given each year to employees chosen by the hospital's staff. After the presentation of these awards, the governing board each employee a cash bonus in commemoration of the Silver Anniversary. Employees with two or more years of service also received a lapel pin personalized with the appropriate number of years.

The actual date on which Our Lady of the Way began its 25 years of service to the people of Floyd and Knott counties was September 15, 1947. The Sisters of Divine Providence purchased the hospital at that time in response to the request of the Bishop of the Diocese of which this area is a part. His request was that the Sisters take charge of the hospital in order to help combat the many epidemics and illnesses being suffered by the people of the area at that time. The Sisters purchased the hospital from Dr. Orris Gearheart, and under the new ownership, Sister Mary Edgar assumed the duties of administrator, along with her Sister Angelo and Sister Mary Helen comprised the first group of Sisters to work at the hospital. They immediately renamed it Our Lady of the Way in honor of the Virgin Mary and in

In Memory of my loving son: James Keely Prater, who passed away, Oct. 22, 1965:

Kelly, dear, you seem so near
I can almost hear your voice.
God called you away from us, I know not why
But you must have been his choice.
He must have had a place for you that no one else could fill;
It left us with an emptiness and a new mound on a hill,
A place we decorate with flowers with tender loving care.
We would give this world if it was ours to give if you were only here.

Terms Teacher Unemployment 'A Serious National Problem'

The National Education Association (NEA) released a report last week labeling the unemployment of a record 111,000 schoolteachers "a serious national problem." And in Kentucky the state's director of teacher education and certification revealed that the number of unemployed teachers has almost doubled from last year.

Dr. Sidney Simandle said in Frankfort that more than 1000 Kentucky teachers, including recent college graduates as well as teachers who have moved into the state, have reported they are still seeking employment.

At the same time Simandle noted that "we still have great shortages in such areas as elementary education, special education, mathematics, science, and industrial arts-but these unemployed teachers are not trained to teach in these areas."

Commenting on the problem, Dr. J. M. Dodson, Kentucky Education Association (KEA) executive secretary, said Kentucky's number of unemployed teachers would not be as large as it is this year if the 1972 General Assembly had funded a KEA-backed law that would allow teachers to retire without financial penalty after 30 years of teaching.

"Many teachers were looking forward to the funding of the 30-year retirement law so they could retire early," Dodson said. "This would have opened up a number of teaching positions throughout the state."

The 30-year retirement law was passed but not funded by the 1970 General Assembly. Governor Wendell Ford's 1972 budget bill delayed funding of the law until the 1974 session of the legislature.

In Washington, D. C., NEA president Catharine Barrett announced she has written President Nixon, Democratic presidential nominee Senator George McGovern, and members of Congress to use their influence "to help transform a serious national problem—the unemployment of a record 111,000 school teachers—into an unprecedented opportunity for the nation's nearly 50 million public school students."

Mrs. Barrett said the large supply of qualified teachers, many of whom now "must mark time while education deteriorates, can and should be utilized in bolstering and improving education."

She added she is confident she speaks for NEA's 1.2 million members "in deploring the waste of talent in a field closely tied to the well-being of our nation's children and to the welfare of all America."

"While qualified persons search unsuccessfully for teaching jobs," she wrote, "the birthright of children—a good education—remains in serious jeopardy. Many teaching and support positions have been eliminated. Subjects like art, music, and physical education, frequently the keys to academic or occupational success, have been casualties of 'economy measures.' In some schools the sizes of reading, mathematics, English, and other classes, including elementary school classes, are unmanageable."

There would be no teacher surplus, Mrs. Barrett asserted, if all schools were brought up to even minimum acceptable standards of staffing and programs. In fact, she said, there would be a shortage this year of 660,000 teachers, a recent NEA survey indicated.

Only with a much greater financial contribution by the federal government can there be substantial improvement of all the schools, she told federal leaders. NEA has proposed that the federal contribution be increased from the present 7 percent to one-third of the education dollar by 1976.

In Kentucky, said the State Department of Education's Dr. Sidney Simandle, there are some practical considerations that tend to qualify the seriousness of the problem and the possible solutions.

For many years, he explained, Kentucky colleges and universities graduated more individuals trained to teach than were needed to fill available vacancies. However we ended up with a shortage each year because so many of these graduates went to some other state to teach, or into business and industry, because of the higher salaries available."

Now, many out-of-state teaching jobs and business-industry opportunities have been eliminated because of the recent economic downturn, Simandle said, "and these people are being placed in the Kentucky teaching job market."

The problem is compounded, he said, because so many of these graduates with primary career goals in business and industry have college majors in such areas as psychology, sociology, and economics (where there is practically no demand) or in history, social studies, or English (where there is a great oversupply).

The NEA research report listed these assignments as most frequently mentioned as having an oversupply of applicants, in this order: social studies, English language arts, men teachers of health and physical education, elementary school teachers, foreign languages, women teachers of health and physical education, home economics, business education, and art.

There is still a general low supply of applicants for some assignments, the report disclosed. These include special education; trade, industrial, vocational, and technical education; industrial arts; special assignments in remedial reading, speech correction, and the like; special assignments for the educationally disadvantaged; libraries, and mathematics.

The NEA report also pointed out that fewer new positions than in the past are being added and that there is a lower turnover of experienced teachers. This has resulted, in many instances, in the employment of beginning teachers with more than the minimum requirements for a position.

Dr. Allen To Speak

Dr. Ralph Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, of Eastern, will conduct the service of the Easter-Maytown Baptist Chapel, Sunday, October 15 at 9:30 a.m. in the grade school building at Maytown. Dr. Allen, an alumnus of Maytown high school, is well known as a Baptist layman and is much in demand as a speaker. As a surgeon, he had been on the staff of the Pikeville Methodist Hospital for years. The public is invited to hear him.

During its September 13 session, the Kentucky Board of Education approved the budgeting of $1.35 million in federal money to build three vocational schools in Northern Kentucky.

Three Mines Listed For Daily Inspection

The district office of the U. S. Bureau of Mines at Pikeville, announced last week that it has initiated its Winter Alert Program which will extend from October 1 through March 31 next year.

This program was developed by Donald P. Schlick, deputy director, to have maximum presence of inspection personnel at the mines. An all-out effort will be made toward the prevention of disaster-type accidents which traditionally have occurred more frequently during the winter months.

In line with the Winter Alert Program, three mines in District 6 will be inspected on a daily basis. These mines are:

Eastern Coal Corporation No. 4 Mine, Stone, Pike county; Kimberlee Collieries Federal No. 1 Mine, Elkhorn City; Wolf Creek Collieries No. 3 Mine, Lovely, Martin county.

U.S. 23 Prestonsburg

Can you take for granted what you have always taken for granted?

Flip a switch. The lights come on. The range heats up. The factories hum. That's the way it's always been around here. But last summer, some other parts of the country had power reductions (brown-outs) because of electric power shortages.

DO WE HAVE AN ELECTRIC POWER SHORTAGE IN THIS AREA? No, we don't... and there's no good reason why we ever should. After all, we believe we have the country's strongest electric utility system. We have entirely adequate generating capacity, including ample reserves, with more capacity under construction. We have the nation's highest voltage, highest capacity transmission system. We have access to virtually unlimited supplies of coal needed to make electricity.

WILL THERE BE A POWER SHORTAGE IN THIS AREA? There needn't be, but there could be and if there is a shortage it will be totally unnecessary. Any power shortage here would be because certain new extreme and impractical governmental regulations would make it impossible by 1975 for us to burn the coal available to make electricity to meet your demands.

New regulations say that when we burn coal to generate power we put too much of the sulfur oxides into the air, and that this is harmful. The fact is that only high concentrations of sulfur oxides at ground level—not in the upper atmosphere—can be harmful. Sulfur oxides included in gases exhausted from plant stacks high into the atmosphere are quickly diffused and, in part, chemically changed so that ground-level concentrations meet strict governmental regulations.

We are protecting and will continue to protect against harmful ground-level concentrations of sulfur oxides, but there's no commercially successful way right now to remove sulfur oxides from stack gases on a continuous basis, and in the amounts specified by existing governmental regulations. Millions are being spent on research to find a way, and we are playing a significant part in that research. We have no doubt a way will be found, but more time is needed. When science finds a way, we will promptly adopt it.

IN THE MEANTIME—You, our customers, will continue to demand electricity for everyday living as well as an improved environment.

We believe the need for electricity and the need for environmental improvement go hand in hand. Anything less would be disastrous. The proper balancing of power need and environmental improvement—should—and in the final analysis, will—be made by the public, not by us. Understanding of the possible and the impossible is the first step toward changing unrealistic regulations controlling the burning of coal in power plants.

The simple fact is that there is enough coal in the United States to provide us with needed fuel for power for the next 600 years—and if we have informed and balanced judgment, there'll be enough electric power for our every need.

On the other hand, in the words of a distinguished public servant, the Honorable James R. Smith, Assistant Secretary, Water and Power Resources, U.S. Department of the Interior, "If fossil fuels are not used in whatever needed quantities between this year and approximately 1990, a power catastrophe will occur. Without extensive utilization of fossil fuels, there is no way this nation will be able to avert a major energy shortage."

We know you're counting on us to bring you dependable electric power... both now and in the years to come. We will be able to do it with your support and realistic governmental regulations.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear wife Ruth, who passed away Oct. 15th 1971.

I mourn for her in silence,
No eyes can see me weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.
I often sit and think of her
When I am alone.
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Sadly missed by George. 1t.
