

County, City Study New Fund Uses Court and Council Meetings This Week To Settle Budgets

The Floyd fiscal court will meet this afternoon (Wednesday) to budget the spending of approximately $195,000 in revenue-sharing funds received for 1972 from the federal government.

At Thursday night's meeting of the City Council Prestonsburg's revenue-sharing funds totalling $86,653 will also be budgeted.

The fiscal court has considered spending federal funds received to date on repair of the roof of the courthouse and on the county's solid waste disposal project, and it is expected that these two items will get priority when the court meets. "In any event," County Judge Henry Stumbo said, "we do not want to scatter this federal money around on several small projects which would not show any real results."

The Prestonsburg City Council last Thursday night prepared a revenue-sharing budget for consideration at this week's regular Council meeting. At that time it proposed to allocate $20,000 to the purchase next year of a new fire truck, the same amount for a future municipal building, $19,000 for payment of swimming pool bonds, and varied amounts for the purchase of a street truck, a police cruiser and a backhoe for the street department.

Prestonsburg's first check in the new revenue-sharing program was for $44,220; its second, $42,433. The cities of Pikeville and Hazard did not fare so well with their second checks from this source because they were allocated too much in the initial payments. Pikeville's share was reduced about $29,000 and Hazard's by $30,000.

The initial payment to Floyd county was $99,398. The second was $95,382.

It was said 1973 payments will be made to the counties and cities on a quarterly basis.

The City Council here is also expected to adopt its general budget for 1973 at Thursday's meeting. Last year's budget called for the expenditure of $363,448, and little change in the total is foreseen for 1973.

Troopers Arrest Smith at Trailer For Second Time

Jerry Lee Smith, who was freed from jail under bond here Jan. 5 after he had been arrested on a charge of possessing intoxicants for sale at a trailer on Salt Lick Creek, near Hueysville, was back in jail, exactly a week later on the same charge.

A second raid last Friday on the trailer resulted in his quick return here. In the latest raid State Troopers Williamson, Rose, Estep and Cantrell found two half-pints of whiskey, 73 cans of beer and 18 pints of wine in the trailer, which is located on KY 7, on Raccoon Fork of Salt Lick.

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo indicated last week that a move initiated several months ago to sell the trailer as a nuisance will be carried out.

Harrison Reed, of Hueysville, was returned to the county jail here last Tuesday from Eddyville prison under a mandate of the Court of Appeals. He was brought here for a hearing to be held to determine if he is being confined according to law. Reed was charged with detaining a woman against her will and of escaping custody.

Snowy Afternoon

Alpine village? No, it was Court street, Prestonsburg, during last week's snow. This slope between Highland and Third is a favorite for sledding but was deserted at the time the picture was snapped.

Grand Jury's Report Sees No Improvement

Floyd county law enforcement has made no improvement since the September grand jury hit at the crime situation and, if anything, has since that time become worse, the January grand jury reported to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley at its adjournment last Tuesday afternoon.

The grand jury report, signed by Ronald Lee Hager, foreman, expressed the feeling that one of the most effective deterrents to crime is the presence of State Police personnel "patrolling all sections of the county, especially during night-time hours." The jury asked the State Police to assign more officers to this county.

"We strongly urge the people of Floyd county to demand good law enforcement from all agencies, and press for prosecution in all cases where violations and crimes have occurred," the jury report said.

The report added that the grand jury was agreed that parking on the courthouse lawn by the Sheriff "was not only destructive, but of great disrespect for public property."

(Sheriff Frank Leslie later pointed out that he had parked two wheels of his car on the lawn, near the driveway curb at the downriver side of the courthouse, when he found no space for parking where the "Sheriff's Car" sign had been placed, that he did so when the ground was frozen, causing little or no damage to the grass, and that the deep damage to the lawn was done by a maintenance or repair truck during rainy weather when the ground was soft. "More nit-picking," he added.)

The jury reported that the Jailor had appeared before it and had promised that action will be forthcoming concerning the parking situation at the courthouse. It added that the official and the jury were in complete agreement on all repair and sanitation needs of the courthouse.

No new evidence was uncovered on the two Right Beaver Creek murder mysteries, nor was evidence produced sufficient to gain indictments on the breaks at the Prestons-burg and Allen Central high schools and the Clark elementary school. The jury report said grand jurors were told that Kentucky State Police are still investigating the two murder cases.

The jury reported that 48 had been indicted during its session.

Water District Work on Mains Near-Complete

Construction of Beaver Elkhorn Water District water mains from Allen to Wayland on Right Beaver Creek and to Clear Creek on Left Beaver should be completed within the next 45 days, and connection to customers' homes is planned soon thereafter, J. C. Wells, chairman of the district's board of commissioners, said here Monday.

Completion of the entire $2,790,000 project, one of the most extensive undertaken in Kentucky, is expected by July 1.

The water plant, one of the state's most modern, has been completed at Allen and is ready for operation at any time, Mr. Wells said.

"The work on water mains could, of course, be delayed by bad weather and other unforeseen circumstances," Mr. Wells said, "but without any such delays we expect them to be ready for testing in 30 to 45 days." Testing of the mains will be done before any lines are connected with consumers' residences or businesses.

The sprawling system will not only take water to hundreds of homes and business places but will also provide improved firefighting facilities.

Engineering work preparatory to applying for federal aid on construction of a sewer system for the area served by the water district has been completed.

This Town . . . That World

When an acquaintance made the sage observation that these days are getting longer, an oldtimer pulled him up short with one of his own:

"But, son, the time's getting shorter."

ON ENCYCLOPEDIAS

A. J. Akers, a Floyd county expatriate now residing in Anderson, Ind., helps keep us kicking with a renewal and at the same time favors this column with the following:

Your reference in This Town—That World...to steering clear of encyclopedias reminds me of an experience some twenty years ago. As a beginning encyclopedia representative I called on the county superintendent of schools in a very rural county in Joe Creason country. The superintendent listened with great interest to my presentation. When I had finished he looked out of the courthouse window for what seemed like five minutes, then he looked at me and said: "young man, (they don't say that any more) in this county if it ain't in the Bible, the Farmers Almanac or the Sears-Roebuck catalogue it's not worth knowing."

A former editor delighted in telling the story of a customer who returned his encyclopedia with the explanation: "I found that I have no need for the encyclopedia. My wife knows everything."

SORDID PEANUTS, NO LESS

And Harry E. Jennings, of Coral Gables, Fla., goes back 50 years to dredge up fond recollections:

Trivia - there's no accounting for brain-stored trivia, is there?

Fifty years ago (that long? surely not!), it was my infrequent pleasure to ride the C. & O. up Sandy—Louisa, Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Pikeville. The train was filthy. Cinders by the shovelful spewed through opened windows into eyes, hair, and down one's neck. But it was worth it. The scenery (B. S. M. - before strip mining) was beautiful and I enjoyed every grinding, groaning, protesting mile of it.

But that "news butch"! I doubt that I have ever encountered a harder-working, more persistent young man trying to make a living. His wares, like the train, were grimy—how could they be otherwise? His high-profit item certainly must have been the peanuts: he hawked them incessantly. So far as I know, no one ever bought them. They appeared to be no more palatable than were the cinders on which I was snacking. And I can still hear his raspy call (and this is the trivia)— "Sordid peanuts...sordid peanuts - five cents."

Any of you Floyd countians remember? (See Story 5, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Spouse of Chef At Jenny Wiley Is Burns Victim

Mrs. Virginia M. Henderson, 48, wife of Chris Henderson, chef at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, died at 2:20 a.m. Monday of burns suffered at the Hendersons' cottage in the park, early Sunday night.

It is believed that Mrs. Henderson's nylon nightgown caught fire from one of two electric wall heaters in operation at the time in the sun parlor of the cottage. Mr. Henderson said he had lain down on a couch around 7 p.m. He heard his wife scream and rose to see her running, enveloped in flame. He said he contrived to get her head under the sink faucet and fought the flames with towels, a rug, anything he could reach.

Mrs. Henderson was burned over her entire body. Her husband suffered severe burns on his hands, forearms and right leg. Both were taken by McCormick's ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital, Lexington.

Recording Listed By Grand Jury As New Witness

Among the 48 indictments reported by the Floyd grand jury at its adjournment Jan. 9 were an amended bill of three charges against Sheriff Frank Leslie, a new indictment against him and two amended indictments against Roy Branham.

The amended indictment charged that Sheriff Leslie failed to enforce the local option laws, that he accepted a bribe to neglect his official duty and to ignore the local option laws. The new bill against him accused him of failure to comply with the so-called Roadhouse Law as provided in KRS 70.160.

The amended charges against Branham accused him (1) of employing Percy Johnson several times during last year to transport and deliver alcoholic beverages in local option territory, and (2) of unlawfully promising, offering or tendering money to Sheriff Leslie to ignore the local option laws.

Branham was given trial late last year on one charge lodged against him by the September grand jury, and the trial jury failed to render a verdict.

In the bribery attempt count against Branham and the amended indictment against Sheriff Leslie a tape recording was listed among the witnesses. Both Circuit Judge Hollie Conley and Commonwealth's Attorney Stumbo also were listed as witnesses, since the recording was reportedly delivered to and held by them. Grace Branham, wife of Roy Branham, also was listed to testify in the sheriff's trial.

Sheriff Leslie repeated his denial of guilt, as he did when the first grand jury action was taken against him. At that time he asked the public to await the full hearing of the case before passing judgment on him. At that time he insisted politics was involved in the action against him. "I've been ridden hard ever since I've been in here," he said.

The indictment against the sheriff for failure to comply with the roadhouse law was, apparently, based on the claim that he

'Toy' Pistol Mishap Wounds Prosecutor

Commonwealth's Attorney Harold J. Stumbo lost the end of the index finger on his right hand in an odd accident at his home last Saturday night.

The wound was sustained when a "pencil pistol," which had been given him some time earlier, exploded. A fragment of the weapon struck his finger. The bullet itself struck the ceiling of the room.

Mr. Stumbo remained at the Prestonsburg General Hospital early this week, and cases set in circuit court for trial Monday were postponed. Court also recessed Tuesday, and resumption of its work this week will depend upon Mr. Stumbo's ability to be in court.

Second Action Brings Claims Over $1 Million

A damage suit filed this week brought to $1,259,018.60 the total damages asked in the auto wreck deaths near here last September of two Middle Creek residents.

The latest court action is that in which Greeley Dotson, administrator of the estate of his son, Ronnie Dean Dotson, one of the victims, asks $246,018.60 of Kentucky Road Oiling, Inc. and Avinell Ousley, administratrix of the estate of Roger Dale Ousley, the second victim and driver of the car in which young Dotson was a passenger.

In the first suit filed after the tragedy Mrs. Ousley sued Kentucky Road Oiling for $1,079,000 damages in the death of Roger Dale Ousley.

The Dotson complaint alleges that a dangerous condition of KY 114 was created where the fatal wreck occurred by the company's hauling of dirt across the highway and permitting earth to fall onto the road. A rain which began the night of Sept. 8 contributed to the hazardous condition of the road where the wreck occurred, near the mouth of Katy Friend, where new road construction was under way. The plaintiff claims the company failed to remove the mud from KY 114 and also failed to post adequate warning to motorists.

The auto driven by Ousley slipped from the highway and crashed into a Kentucky Road Oiling truck. The complaint adds that Ousley carelessly and recklessly operated the auto, losing control.

In another suit filed last week in connection with the same wreck Avinell Ousley as administratrix sued the Ohio Casualty Insurance Company for $4,000 damages to the auto involved in the wreck.

Shrine Club Entertains Three Who Have Respite from Hospital

Three little girls who are being treated at the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children at Lexington were entertained recently by the Floyd County Shrine Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burga, near West Prestonsburg.

The children are Tammy Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Nelson; Zeldia F. Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Nelson, and Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Craft, all of Prestonsburg and vicinity. The Nelson children were seriously burned and Linda Craft is receiving treatment for a birth defect.

The Nelson girls were for a time on the critical list at Shriners Burns Hospital, Cincinnati, Ohio, one of three such burns institutions in the United States especially equipped and solely supported by the Shriners to treat such cases. The shriners support 19 crippled childrens hospitals and three burns hospitals in the United States and Canada. The doctors' care and hospital treatment were provided without cost as in all cases in Shriners' hospitals.

At the Burga home the girls were presented gifts and fruit baskets donated by the Floyd County Shrine Club.

Anyone having knowledge of an underprivileged, crippled child needing medical attention is asked to contact the Floyd County Shrine Club or any known Shriner.

His Craft, Art Deal with Music

Judging from the music they are exposed to, either through radio or television, most Eastern Kentuckians would have sufficient reason to believe that old-time mountain music, including square dance tunes and ballads accompanied by instruments such as the five-string banjo, guitar, mandolin or fiddle, have all but died out in the hills. But spend a little time with a man like Dave Sizemore and it soon becomes apparent that this is not the case at all.

Walk into his "music room" on Hager Street here and you think you're in an Appalachian musical museum with banjos, guitars, mandolins and fiddles lining the walls, all with the exception of the fiddles (and he's building one of those now), hand-crafted and constructed by Dave.

Sizemore, a Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Company employee, built his first instrument, a mandolin, about 12 years ago, and presently has two five-string banjos, two mandolins, and a "jumbo" flat-top guitar, all hand-built, at his home. Aside from building his own instruments, however, his spare time is mostly taken in repairing and remodeling other musicians' instruments. The fact that he has repaired an estimated 50 fiddles in the past year is some indication of the number of people around who have chosen to stick to playing in the traditional styles of the mountains.

In constructing these superb instruments, Sizemore uses such woods as northern spruce, curly maple, rosewood and walnut and obtains these materials from a variety of sources. One of his guitars, for example is built from 100-year-old northern spruce wood he took from an old piano. His procedure consists of, first, making the form, or tracing the desired shape of the instrument on wood. After cutting this out, he is faced with the vital process of bending the wood into arches and curves. Instead of steaming the wood, as many instrument manufacturers are able to do, he employs wood clamps and sets the pieces in the bathroom where the air is moist, achieving the same effect as the factories. He then fashions the neck of his instrument, inserting an adjustable steel truss rod which insures against bowing or warping of the neck.

Sizemore plays a homemade banjo. Others, also handcrafted, surround him.

AN APPEAL

I am asking for contributions and pledges for building a church on Little Mud Creek. I am making this plea in honor of my father, Tivis Yates, who is a Church of Christ minister. I wish Floyd countians to know that, although the original Church of Christ on Little Mud has been the place of worship for him and his family for the past 20 years or more, he can no longer worship there for this reason:

On election day (Nov. 7, '72) he exercised his constitutional right by casting his vote for the candidate of his choice in the School Board Race. It seems that the eldership of this church didn't quite agree with his choice of candidate and therefore have disqualified and dishonored his freedom of worship and freedom of speech.

I am asking you, the citizens of Floyd County—Should a minister give up his right to vote his choice, in order to worship God?

Plans To Raise Cave Run Level Still in Doubt

West Liberty, Ky.—Plans to raise the summer pool level of Cave Run Reservoir were discussed in a public meeting held here Friday, and what will be done, if anything, remains in doubt.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins, representatives of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U. S. Forest Service discussed with about 75 interested citizens the steps necessary for change in the water level of the reservoir.

Dr. Alec Spencer, of West Liberty, one of the first proponents of the reservoir project, was spokesman for those interested in a 15 to 20-foot raising in order to create an additional five or six feet of water in West Liberty during the summer pool stage.

Col. Charles Fiala, of the Louisville Army Corps district, told the group the matter was something he was still looking into. "The Corps hasn't closed the door on anything," he said.

Congressman Perkins advised citizens to form a strong committee that could hold a series of meetings with the Corps, the Kentucky Department of Highways, environmentalists and the forestry service to decide on alternatives.

One citizen cited West Liberty's need for a source of water supply. He said the town was not asking for an increase of depth for a boat ramp.

The question of an adequate water supply for the city brought the comment that the water could be piped from down-river cheaper than increasing the lake level. Dick Bonata, district ranger at Morehead said the forestry service was satisfied with the level as is but should a decision be made to raise the level, this could be done even after the dam, which is being built near Farmers, Ky., is completed.

According to Corps and forestry representatives, any increase in water level would mean additional acquisition of land.

Bill Ligon, chief planner, also represented the Corps, and John Corb, deputy forest supervisor of Winchester, attended the session.

Present at the meeting were Mrs. Nellie Meadows and Dwight Pendleton, of Clay City, officers in the Red River Development Association. They talked with Perkins about the Red River dam and the congressman assured them the dam will be built. "As long as I live, the Red River dam will not die," he said.

Jobs for Veterans

(A contributed editorial)

America cannot afford a generation of forgotten men—the unemployed veterans who have done a job for their country, but whose country cannot find jobs for them. Their number has grown as the war in Vietnam has wound down. Although much progress has been made in assisting them, over 300,000 Vietnam veterans, aged 20-29, remain jobless. And their unemployment rate has been higher than that for their counterparts who did not serve.

The returning veterans represent, as in all wars, a cross section of America, but chiefly they are highly employable and eager to catch up with their careers. They are better educated and better trained than veterans of earlier wars—and like them, eager to capitalize on their military experiences as they enter the civilian labor market.

Unfortunately, far too many of them have had disproportionate difficulty in finding jobs so that they can apply their abilities and energies, and make use of their training and qualifications.

Finding jobs for veterans should be the first order of business. It is not something that can be left entirely to government—which has provided special assistance to veterans, has expended massive funds for schooling and training, and has created thousands of new city and state jobs for veterans through the Emergency Employment Act.

Jobs are basically a local affair—local, because that's where the jobs are, not only in our big companies, but in the medium-size businesses and small organizations.

Every employer should develop a veteran priority program within his company. Personnel directors should be instructed to look first to our pool of unemployed veterans whenever an opening occurs and to strive to create new jobs which veterans can fill. Listing job openings with the United States Employment Service, where veterans have referral priority, and finding out more about Veterans Administration programs are good first steps.

Let us all make the finding of jobs for our veterans, especially the deserving disabled veterans who have special needs, a community and a personal matter.

The City Council here last Friday voted final steps for the purchase of the First National Bank building here and financing of the $40,000 purchase price. Representatives of this area attending a meeting called in Ashland Saturday by the Kentucky Agricultural and Industrial Development Board took preliminary steps toward getting things done in a hurry for this section of Kentucky, hoping eventually to attract new industries to this region of declining coal business. At the Prestonsburg Board of Education meeting Monday night, there was mounting sentiment for merger of the Prestonsburg independent school district with the county system. Exactly 773 petitions to the U. S. Corps of Engineers asking deepening of Dewey Lake by five feet had been returned to the Floyd County Times office by Wednesday afternoon. Senators Clements and Cooper are, in a non-partisan effort to aid Big Sandy Valley and the Green River watershed, co-sponsoring legislation in the Senate that will provide funds for the development of the rivers. Prestonsburg's City Council last week named the Rev. M. Robert Regan collector of delinquent taxes. Married: Miss Dorothy Greene, of West Prestonsburg, and Mr. Clifford Kinder, Dayton, Ohio, at Dayton; Miss Sue Miller, of Lancer, and the Rev. Vernon C. Wright, West Prestonsburg, December 23, at the First Assembly of God Church; Miss Anna Mae Christian, and Mr. Norman Christopher Sengel, November 28, in the First Lutheran Church, Louisville. Born: to Dr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Salisbury, of Prestonsburg, a son, Herbert G. Salisbury, III, January 13, at the Prestonsburg General hospital; to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, of Allen, a daughter, Diana Mae, at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin. There died: Ganville Hyden, January 9 at home at West Prestonsburg; William A. Vance, 77, of Ligon, January 10, at the home of George Tackett, Melvin; Mary Alice Bush, 71, of Hi Hat, at home, January 11; Liza Prater, 70, of Huesville, January 13, at her home on Salt Lick; Tresha Ann Hamilton, three-months-old, January 8, at home at Teaberry.

'Meals on Wheels' Set To Begin Service in County, February 5

Through the efforts of a newly-formed, non-profit organization, low-cost and nutritious meals will soon be delivered five days a week to many of the county's home-bound, elderly, handicapped or convalescing or people of any age who for a variety of reasons are unable to prepare adequate meals for themselves.

Called "Meals on Wheels," the ambitious project is scheduled to begin February 5. In preparation for this first day of meal delivery, a training session for volunteers is slated for January 29, at 7:30 p.m., at the First Presbyterian Church here.

Modelled after similar programs in other areas, Meals On Wheels, supported through donations from various groups and individuals, and a nominal sum collected weekly from meal recipients, will distribute a hot dinner and cold supper meal to "shut-in" individuals who would otherwise not receive an adequate diet. These meals will be planned by a dietician. Later, special diets such as those required for diabetics are to be included in the program.

For those people who because of age or inability to work cannot pay the small fee, a sponsorship fund has been established to help in meeting the meal cost.

Planning for the project began in the fall and things began to take shape the week of December 17-22 when a cook was hired, the first donation received, and the first client interviewed. Observation of a Meals On Wheels-type program in Lexington also proved of great value to the group in the initial planning and organization of the project.

Mrs. Nancy Thomas, of Prestonsburg, coordinator for the project, said that after investigating the possibility of buying meals from the nursing home and the hospital, it was decided that "Meals" would have to prepare its own hot dishes.

Implementation of the program is almost totally dependent on volunteer help and at present there are only enough volunteers to serve the northern section of the county. It is hoped that additional volunteers will allow distribution to all sections of Floyd county and eventually to surrounding areas, Mrs. Thomas said.

Mrs. Thomas summed up the purpose and goals of the project in this way:

"Meals On Wheels is a unique, humanitarian program inspired by an attempt to assist our older people and the handicapped who are housebound. Many could live independently in their own homes years longer with just a little outside help, and that's where Meals on Wheels comes in...into the home with nourishing food daily. The impossibility of shopping, cooking and cleaning is no longer a problem. Convalescents are also served, regardless of age, enabling them to return to their own homes sooner, following a hospital stay."

The project asks that anyone knowing of a person who needs this service or who themselves can donate service of one to three hours a week, call 886-2214.

Mine Operators To Hear Harris At Pike Meeting

Thomas O. Harris, commissioner of Kentucky's new Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, will speak to Pike county's small coal operators at a meeting in Pikeville, Jan. 19.

Making the announcement for Coal Operators & Associates, Inc., James E. Hunt, executive director, said: "We have to know what to expect from this new agency, because it will have direct contact with and close control over all phases of coal mining, both surface and underground."

Hunt pointed out that high production costs have forced many of Pike county's small operators out of their underground mines and that "more and more of our fellows will apply for surface and auger mining permits this year."

"That's the only way we've got to go," Hunt said, "and that's when this new agency takes over the entire operation, except for selling the coal."

"Our members want to cooperate with the new department," he added, "and we want to meet the requirements of the laws and regulations. Contrary to what so many people erroneously think, we do feel a responsibility to our environment and to future generations of Kentuckians."

WINS 'MISS MIAMI BEACH' TITLE

Miss Miami Beach for 1973 is Sara Frances Fraley, a former Floyd county girl. Miss Fraley won the Miami Beach title Dec. 18, and thus qualified for a place in the Miss Florida contest next June. Miss Florida will compete in the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City, N. J. As the new Miss Miami Beach Miss Fraley was awarded a scholarship and various expense-paid trips. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ray Fraley, of Pikeville, formerly of Wayland, and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fraley, of Wayland, and Mr. and Mrs. Tramble Turner, of Allen. She is a student at the International Fine Arts College of Fashion in Miami.

Of course no one at the bank today can remember what conditions really were eighty-two years ago when The Bank Josephine came into being. No doubt many conditions were the equal of conditions we recognize today. Floyd County people needed a dependable, safe place to maintain their savings. Others needed the expertise of INTERESTED, informed bankers to assist them in arriving at decisions concerning their financial well-being. Many needed the wide and varied loaning ability that only a local bank eighty-two years ago could advance . . . and only a bank like The Bank Josephine even today can offer. But, assuredly, Floyd Countians wanted a bank they could call "My bank".

We trust that we have fulfilled this obligation for the past eighty-two years and look forward to the next eighty-two years as further serving you with the finest banking service we know how to offer.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

In my many years of conducting nature study classes for teenagers I have found that they naturally love animals and have a strong desire to protect all wildlife. A live animal in fields or woods is ten times more interesting to young people than a dead one. Our Science textbooks require the students to bring live animals to the classroom or laboratory to dissect them and study their vital organs. So our children are taught to worship the god of Science instead of the God of Mercy and Love. Dissection of animals in schools thwarts the natural protective instincts of children to protect all life; it sows the seeds of cruelty that may warp the personality in later life. I know of the case of a young woman who had a number of sessions of dissecting animals—cats, frogs, toads, crayfish, mice and others. Later in life, she developed a strong compulsion to cut and carve on almost any animal she came in contact with. Picking up a pet kitten of a friend one day, she looked at it a moment, then quipped to her friend, "All that interests me about your kitty is its insides—the liver, lungs and guts!"

Such a compulsion can easily develop into an obsession to kill and destroy life. A high school student I knew about won his admission to the National Science Fair by injecting the killer venom of black widow spiders into mice and recording their convulsive symptoms as they died. Such a cruel experiment done so callously could hardly contribute love and kindness to that youth's future.

Coronet Magazine recently said: "Give every Tom, Dick and Harry a kitchen knife and the cloak of scientific research and there's no limit to the cruelties they can inflict on defenseless animals."

Another boy I read about used a number of mice in a hobby show, and they performed so well he was granted a prize for their excellent work. After the show, he was asked what he intended to do with the mice. "Sell 'em," he said, with callous indifference, "that is, if I can. If not, I'll just let 'em starve and die."

Would you not say that this boy had developed a callous disregard for life?

Dorothy Thompson recently wrote: "I'm deeply concerned about the effect of cruel experiments on animals, upon the young student's emotional development. Children are more emotional than grownups and take things far more seriously. That which encourages cruelty in any form is decidedly evil."

In a certain university, a million dollars was granted for the study of the mother love of monkeys. The scientists took the baby monkeys from their mothers and put them in solitary confinement. These men stood by without any show of pity for the hungry and terrified creatures. What value, one might ask, was such a cruel experiment! What did it contribute to the betterment of the human race?

These scientists then conducted another experiment with a number of monkeys. They strapped them in chairs and gave them electric shocks every 20 seconds for a period of some three weeks. One of the helpless creatures died and the others developed ulcers and nervous breakdowns.

C. Richard Calore, widely known lecturer and the editor of the magazine, "Voice of the Voiceless," wrote: "To permit children to mutilate and torture helpless animals in biology classes just to study their reactions or their organs is a gross outrage. I hold the educators guilty of legalized crime for permitting this ghastly form of learning. The moral corruption of our young students is deadening to the moral feelings of conscience."

Which is of more value to students to go out in the field and study a live toad, learn how it lives, how it captures its food, how it evades its enemies, why it shuts its eyes when swallowing, how many bugs it can eat in a single day, how toads mate and lay their eggs in masses of gelatin, and how the tadpoles live in stagnant water and what they find to eat there, and so on—that, or to torture or kill it? The ways of a live animal, its life habits, the outside of it, are far more appealing to children than its viscera and lungs and liver.

Aida Flemming, of Canada, president and founder of the Kindness Clubs, says: "The kindly person practices kindness as a true way of life. He abhors cruelty, for much cruelty stems from indifference and thoughtlessness as to an animal's feelings." W. G. Duncan, Louisville conservationist, says: "Kindness is finding a frog and not taking it home with you to conduct cruel experiments."

The great poet, James Whitcomb Riley, had a heart full of love for both children and animals. His poem, "Little Orphan Annie," is one of the great classics of children's literature. And his poem, "Mr. Hoptoad," shows his deep love for the lower creatures. On finding the first toad out in the spring, he rejoiced and wrote:

"Howdy, Mr. Hoptoad, glad to see you're out. Been a month of Sundays since I saw you hereabout; You old bloated-eyed, roisterin' rowdy, Won't you shake hands with me and tell me howdy?"

It is hard to conceive of a man of such great love for life dissecting a toad to see "what makes it tick inside." Riley already knew and didn't need to look at the toad's insides.

Feed-Grain Signups To Begin Feb. 5th

Sign-up for the 1973 Seed-Grain program, which is scheduled February 5 through March 16 at the Floyd County ASCS Office here.

With sign-up due to open in less than three weeks, Floyd county producers have many decisions to make. Harry T. Hill, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) county committee chairman, said:

In these coming weeks, each producer with a feed grain base must make his individual decisions on whether to participate in the programs, and, if so, what plans to choose among those offered. "Before the participant signs up, he will want to have his alternatives discussed with him by county office personnel.

Substitution is continued in the 1973 farm programs, the ASC committee chairman pointed out. He explained that substitution means a producer may choose among the following crops—corn, grain sorghum, barley, wheat, soybeans—and still preserve his farm's base or allotment record, earn program payments, and be eligible for loans so long as he stays within other program requirements.

Details concerning federal farm programs are available at the ASCS county office.

HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY

Hunter, Ky.—A surprise New Year's eve party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Osborne, of Hunter, honoring them on their 27th wedding anniversary. Many relatives and friends attended, showering them with gifts. Mrs. Osborne is the former Hazel Skeans. The highlight of the event was the cutting of the anniversary cake, baked by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ralph Osborne, of Hite.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hayes, Jr., of 4917 Williams Ave., Ashland, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Susan, to Stephen L. Christian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton B. Christian, 517 Hunt St., Ashland.

Miss Hayes was graduated in 1971 from Paul Blazer high school, where she was a member of Gamma Sorority, choir and the National Honor Society. She is now a senior at the King's Daughters' Hospital School of Nursing.

An employee of Armco Steel Corp., Mr. Christian was graduated from Paul Blazer high school in 1969 and the Ashland Area Vocational School in January, 1971. He entered the U. S. Army in May, 1971 and is currently stationed at Fort Hood, Texas, having recently completed a tour of duty in Korea.

A fall wedding is being planned. Susan is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hagans, of Warco, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Marion (Bud) Hayes, Sr., of Langley.

Spring Is Tree Planting Time

Frankfort, Ky.—If you're thinking about planting trees this spring, now's the time to order seedlings. Just about any kind of tree can be obtained from one of the state Division of Forestry's tree nurseries.
Forestry Director Harry Nadler advises that nursery personnel will begin lifting seedlings to fill orders around mid-February. Those who have mailed orders by that time will receive seedlings around the first of March—ideal planting time, according to Nadler.
The spring tree planting season generally runs from the last week in February through the first week of April.

"For many reasons the woodlands of our state must continually be developed," said Nadler. "They serve as a source of recreation and beauty, as a home for wildlife and as a source of timber. If Kentucky's landowners are going to meet the demands for woodland created by the needs of an ever-increasing population, they need to be planting seedlings now on all the land which they have available for the purpose."
Any landowner who desires the advice of a professional forester in regard to tree planting should contact the Division of Forestry office in his area. At the landowner's request a forester will make an examination of the proposed planting site and recommend the type and number of trees that could most profitably be planted on the land. Advice on proper planting methods any other technical assistance desired by the landowner will also be given.
Seedlings available from the division's nurseries this spring are: Loblolly, short-lead, white, Virginia and Scotch pine, black locust and black walnut, yellow poplar, cottonwood, sycamore, white and cherrybark oak, and Chinese chestnut. Superior cottonwood and hybrid poplar cuttings also are available.
Because the purpose of the state nurseries is to provide seedlings for reforestation, the minimum order which can be filled is 500 seedlings. It takes approximately 500 seedlings to plant a half-acre.
The cost of the seedlings is $10 per-thousand except for Black walnut and Scotch pine which sell for $15 per-thousand. The superior Cottonwood and hybrid Poplar cuttings cost $20 per-thousand.
Anyone wishing to purchase tree seedlings can obtain an order blank from any of the division's local offices, County Extension, Soil Conservation Service or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices.

Pikeville College Plans Spiritual Emphasis Week

Pikeville College's annual Spiritual Emphasis Week is being tied into the international 1973 religious theme, "Reaching the Continent for Christ," from January 22 to 26.

Alma Culton, professor of religion and coordinator of the week, said religious convocations will feature Tag Kilgore, a Knoxville, Tennessee minister and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kilgore, of Pikeville College, and the nation's youngest gospel singing group, the Abraham Brothers.

House Gets Strip Mine Bills In First Two Days of Session

Two bills affecting strip mining of coal were introduced this week in the House during the first two days of the 93rd Congress. Rep. Wayne Hays (D-Ohio) reintroduced the bill that the House passed last year, and Rep. Ken Hechler (D-W. Va.) came in with another bill to abolish strip mining.

The Hays bill would impose strict controls on strip mining, including a ban on all such mining on slopes greater than 20 degrees unless the coal operators can prove in advance that the land can be sufficiently reclaimed.

Rep. Hays said he thought the House Interior Committee would get his bill out promptly but added that it may be amended. "No legislation is perfect," he said. He also said that he had no desire to stop strip mining "because I realize the need for coal."

The Hays bill was co-sponsored by Reps. Thomas Morgan (D-Pa.) and John Melcher (D-Mont.).

Rep. Hechler, who sought a total abolition of strip mining within six months in the last Congress, introduced a new bill that would ban strip mining within six months in mountainous areas where contour mining is practiced but allow 18 months for phasing out strip mining in flatter terrain where the area method is used. He said he did not believe that complete restoration of strip-mined lands was possible "except at a prohibitively high economic cost."

The Hechler bill, which was joined by 16 Democratic and eight Republican members, includes a provision advanced last year by Rep. John Seiberling (D-Ohio) for cash payments to miners displaced by the strip mining ban, and also gives ousted miners job priority in reclamation work.

In 1944, the Railway Labor Act, authorizing a labor union chosen by a majority to represent a craft, was held to require union protection to the minority in that class. Discrimination against certain members on the ground of race was held enjoinable.

Whatsoever Things BY DONALD E. WILSON

A FATHER'S LOVE

Alexander Ducat, 67, offered his life in exchange for the freedom of his son. Ducat, from Maryland, told authorities that he was willing to teach in North Vietnam in exchange for the release of his war-prisoner son.

Ducat, smiled, despite the fact that tears were in his eyes when he told reporters of his offer. He said he offered to organize technical and vocational schools in Hanoi if the North Vietnamese government would free his son Bruce, age 29.

"I have completed a satisfying career and my life is approaching its twilight," Ducat, a former vocational educator, said. "Bruce has been a prisoner for four years. He has not seen his small daughter since she was an infant. The greatest happiness I could have, in the declining years of my life, would be to see him reunited with his wife and child."

This is not the first story of a father making a supreme sacrifice for his children. Many have been the parents who gave their life that their children might live, even as Mr. Ducat was willing to give his life for his son. Beyond a shadow of doubt, the greatest sacrifice was made some two thousand years ago. A Father found His children enslaved, hopelessly enslaved. He thought of some way to give them freedom. Then He saw that the only way to set His children free was for Him to give Himself as ransom for their freedom. And this He did.

You see, His children were captives of sin. And in order to free them from their sinfulness, the Father came down in the form of a Son. He dwelt with those living in sin, and He loved them so much and wished that they could be free from their sin so much, that He gave His life as a ransom for their freedom from sin.

The children did not deserve the gift from the Father. They had not earned it, in fact they actually had done many things to keep them from ever acquiring it. But while the children were unworthy of the Father's gift—while they were yet sinners—He died for them because He loved them.

And now the children of the Father can have freedom—real freedom—by simply accepting the Father's gift! But because freedom brings responsibilities, many of the children have elected to remain imprisoned. So despite the life giving gift of the Father, many of His children are still not free because they refuse the gift. You see, the Father will not force His children to accept His gift of freedom. He will offer, but not force.

Mr. Ducat loved his son, more than he loved his own life. Mr. Ducat also knew what freedom is, and for that reason he was willing to give up his life for his son's freedom.

Maybe one day Bruce Ducat will come home to be with his wife and child. And perhaps one day those of us who are children of the Father will accept the Father's gift—and be free indeed!

With Centre Group In Study Program

Danville, Ky., Jan. 8—Miss Patricia Ann Reynolds, of Allen, is in a group of 40 Centre College students who are spending Centre's winter term until February 14 in a study program in the British Isles.

Supervised by Centre professors, Dr. Mary Sweeney and Dr. Larry Matheny, the students are attending seminars and carrying out their own individual research projects in Britain in the areas of literature, fine arts, politics and social change. The program provides regular college credit.

Miss Reynolds, the daughter of State Representative and Mrs. William J. Reynolds, Jr., graduated in 1969 from Martin high school where she was treasurer of the senior class, and received the English Award. At Centre she has been honored for high academic average by being named to the Dean's List.

Hatchery To Improve Fishing in Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky.—Game fishing in Kentucky should be more fruitful in the not too distant future as fish from the Minor E. Clark Hatchery are stocked in lakes and streams.

Muskie, walleye, rockfish (striped bass) and largemouth bass will be produced at the mile-long complex which covers over 300 acres.

Full use of the complex will depend upon completion of nearby Cave Run Reservoir which will provide 13 million gallons of water per day for the hatchery operation. But, in order to avoid delay in bringing new joy to Kentucky fishermen, the state Department of Fish and Wildlife is pumping water from the Licking River to operate the hatchery at half strength through 1973.

The current hatchery population consists of 620 two-year-old rockfish, 1000 brood largemouth bass, 2000 year-old walleye and 55 brood muskie.

It will be two years before eggs can be taken from the rockfish. In the meantime, rockfish fry (recently-hatched fish) will be secured from North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia for rearing to the two-inch size for stocking.

The Largemouth brood bass are ready to spawn this year.

Walleye stock will grow to brood fish size in three years, but the federal government has agreed to supply 4 million walleye fry for Kentucky stocking in 1973.

Now ranging from six to 18 pounds, the 55 muskie will be capable of spawning next year, but facilities will not be adequate at that time to take eggs artificially.

"With eventual production of the muskie, we hope to cut in half the present 120 hours of fishing needed to bag one of these beauties, but it will still remain a trophy fish," said Charles C. Bowers, Jr. director of the Division of Fisheries.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife has been putting some striped bass in Kentucky waters since 1958, but production has not been sufficient to keep it going.

Largemouth bass will continue to be used as farm pond stocking fish and to supply new lakes that don't presently have Largemouth.

There are 13 streams in Kentucky which have been found as native habitats of the muskie. These will receive first priority when stock is available. Another 13 have been discovered with the same characteristics, but with no signs of habitation by the muskie. These will have second priority stocking. Should the hatchery production prove adequate, a few selected lakes will also receive some of the Muskie, Bowers said.

First priority on the walleye production will be to return the population to Lake Cumberland, which at one time was nationally known for its walleye "run" in late winter.

Rockfish will be stocked at Lake Cumberland, Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley, with Barren River Reservoir to receive some of the later stock.

The Minor E. Clark Hatchery will replace Gatliff Hatchery at Williamsburg, which is to be sold in January.

Floyd Federal Savings and Loan Association...Plf.

VS. NOTICE OF SALE

Charles R. Hall and Linda H. Hall... Defts.

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court, rendered at the November 20 term, 1972 in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 5th day of February, 1973 at 10 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd circuit court, upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land lying and being on the waters of Jacks Creek in Floyd County, Kentucky, and being the same land conveyed from Bobby Hall, et al, to Charles R. Hall and wife, by deed dated August 14, 1971 and recorded in Deed Book 206, page 187, Floyd County Court Clerk's office, and being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at the mouth of Jacks Creek going up the point to Seton Crisp line; thence down the hill to the C & O Railroad; thence down the railroad track to the Whistle Post; thence down the middle of creek to the starting point; excluding the parcel of land starting at the railroad crossing; thence up the hill 100 feet to a planted stone; thence around the hill up the creek 100 feet to the C & O Railroad right of way; thence down the creek 100 feet with said right of way to the beginning, so as to include all land in said boundary.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $2,564.60 with interest thereon at 8 percent annually from the 20th day of November, 1972 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 12th day of January, 1973.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON
 Master Commissioner
 Floyd Circuit Court
 (Cost of Adv. $42.00) 1-17-73.

Sports and the Churches

Which is the better to attend?

I suppose it all depends on your spiritual strength and your outlook on life as to how this question would or will be answered. I guess there's nothing wrong with good, clean sports, as long as you don't make them an idol, or put sports in front of your spiritual or religious thinking, but if you let the Devil get in the game, or the Devil has you by the nose or ear leading you around, then I say you are on losing ground.

I guess I am not much for sports myself, and I wonder if I would pass the grade religiously, I kinda doubt it, as it takes one of mighty high calibre to pass the test of getting through the Golden Gate. I will say I certainly would like to make it, as life on earth is not sufficient for the value that man is, nor does it pay sufficient dividends for the short stay that man has here, compared to the eternal stay beyond the grave. If our dividends here are paid by the devil, we will collect them in hell. If they are paid by living an acceptable religious life here, our reward will be in eternal happiness.

When a ball game is announced or planned, you can see people coming in droves from every direction, some of them paying their last dollar or even borrowing one to see it.

The church doors are always open and entering is free, but few there be that go therein. Even when there are special announcements, you seldom see them crowded.

Now, one thing I think would be real good for the sports arenas or sports leagues to do, would be to contribute the proceeds of one game to each church in your city or community. For example: if there are ten churches, contribute ten games per year, one to each church, I don't see as it would hurt the teams, as they sometimes play as many as 40 to 50 games per year. Supporting and having good churches in our towns and communities are a great moral support, I think they are a light to our towns and communities and they are open doors to a much better life to those who want to accept it. I would hate to live in a town that doesn't have a church. It sure would be a bleak place. I have been thinking about this for a long time, but have just now taken the time to write about it.

So, come on sports fans and sports leagues, and give some of your receipts or proceeds to a great cause; help support your churches.

If you do, I think you will have a better feeling, whether you win or lose. You will know your efforts have gone for a better cause. And I am sure the people of your city, town or community will appreciate you even more.

LETTERS To the Editor

CRITICAL OF HOSPITALS

Being native Johnson countians, our family spent our Christmas vacation there. During that time our oldest daughter was bitten on the upper lip by a dog.

We took her to the Paintsville Hospital. There we saw several people waiting for emergency treatment and the doctor and nurse on duty dividing the emergency fee from the previous patients.

We got so disgusted that we went to the Medical Center between Paintsville and Prestonsburg, only to find it closed. So we went on to Prestonsburg General where there was no attendant at all on duty for emergency purposes.

My husband had to go to the second floor and wait for a licensed practical nurse to make up her mind that there was an emergency.

Our daughter was given a tetanus shot and an ice pack.

After our daughter was treated, I placed a call to Lexington to consult our pediatrician. His instructions were entirely different from what we had been told.

We were also told that the Prestonsburg General would be moving to the Medical Center. If the conditions aren't changed by the staff here, I am afraid many people may not have proper treatment or may die from the lack of treatment.

I sincerely hope the residents of Johnson and surrounding counties will wake up to what medical facilities they have and demand better.

A KENTUCKIAN WRITES HOME

Editor, The Times:

I, a Water Gap-born male, related by blood to Uncle Johnny Nelson, late of Dwale, Bill McGuire, the late Denver Nelson, of Dwale, and a first cousin of Maggie Ackerman at the Prestonsburg hospital, follow your wonderful paper with great interest.

I have heard my mother, the late Laura McGuire Nelson, speak of your publishing activities over the course of (my memory) 40 years. We have all enjoyed and are grateful for your efforts. They are appreciated. The paper is my link with home; I know you sense what I mean.

Though I have been removed from the Prestonsburg area about 30 years, I do return every year in the spring when the dogwoods are in bloom. I look upon Kentucky as my "Mother Earth." To an exile (economic), just crossing the Ohio River at Cincinnati brings a deeply felt sense of belonging and of being home. This is a feeling I am unable to experience anywhere else in the world.

I enjoy the political campaigns which are so prominent in your paper...The Nature Trails, Kentucky Folklore, Kentucky Afeld and the historical articles I follow with avid interest. Of course, we, I suppose, are all afflicted with nostalgia for the old days in these fast-changing times. We look upon those old days as a time of social stability and security, a time of dedication to God and country... I do notice that your paper has remained religiously and patriotically dedicated, which presents to me an island of calm in a sea of social turmoil...

Sincerely, and best wishes to you and those at the paper. My regards, also, to all those who appear in your "This Town—That World."

Maloney's Customers Add $3,604 to Fund For Morgan Co. Tot

Customers of Maloney's Discount Department Stores in Eastern Kentucky and Southern Ohio contributed during the 1972 Christmas season $3,604.57 to the Rhonda McKenzie Fund.

Three-year-old Rhonda, who was born with multiple birth defects, is a resident of West Liberty. This is the third year that Maloney customers have used the holiday season to show their concern for the child.

Rhonda has had eight operations to correct several of her problems, and the fund has helped her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don McKenzie, with hospital expenses.

did not inspect roadhouses and report his findings to the court. Sheriff Leslie claims he had never been asked by an official to make such inspections and that he had on three or more occasions closed places which were not properly operated. He cited the action against him without warning as typical of the continued attack on him as an official.

Deputy Sheriffs Dexter Hamilton and Willie Hall were named in an indictment charging them with accepting a bribe to release a prisoner, Allen Hess, of Greenville, O. (Hess originally claimed that Hamilton gave him $30 and forced him to sign a bill of sale to his car, but James R. Slone, turnkey on duty at the jail when Hess and his companions, Lloyd Roberts and James Shelton, also of Greenville, were brought to the jail, said Hamilton gave Hess the money only after the Ohio man had begged the officer to buy his car. Slone said Hess voluntarily signed the bill of sale, in his presence.)

Barbara Newsome, of Mud Creek, was named in a murder bill for the slaying last week of her husband, Paul Newsome. After an investigation of the slaying of Otis Akers on Prater Creek by Capt. Billy Lykins, of the Kentucky State Police, the jury held that the slaying was a justifiable homicide.

Other indictments follow:

Jackie Conley, false pretense, accused of pretending to erect a monument for the husband of Susie Mnith and this obtaining from Mrs. Smith $1260; Rilda George, forgery, endorsement of the name of Ellis Gibson, Jr. to a $72.62 check; Old Republic Pest Control, Bailey Termite & Pest Control and W. B. Pack, obtaining money under false pretense, accused of obtaining $400 from Ruby Moore by pretending they would supply termite protection; David Johnson Crider, illegal possession of drugs; Charles Homer Taylor, of Hueysville, passing counterfeit money at Hunter's Grocery, McDowell; Hillard Branham, $146.54 cold check to Homer Blankenship; John K. Hyden, $507.50 cold check to Jack Hyden; Ernal Tackett, $100 cold check to Pearl Roberts; William Ward, removing mortgaged property from the state; Charles Jenkins and Verdin Fitch, theft of auto from Elisha Chaffins.

Curtis Fitch and Charles Jenkins, breaking and entering the home of Charles Clark; Michael Perkins, breaking and entering Clark's Laundry and Wheelwright, damaging laundry property and setting fire to it; Michael Perkins, arson; Billy Ray Jarrell, Glada Jarrell and Oma Jarrell, arson, accused of burning a house owned by Bradis Goble; Margaret and Ray Isaacs, knowingly receiving stolen property, merchandise taken from Allen Taylor, valued at $200; Sonny Rister, grand larceny, theft of auto tires and wheels owned by Big Y Auto Sales; Charles Phillip Keathley, breaking and entering the store of Joe Ross Keathley; Willie Hall, grand larceny, accused of taking guns from Kenny Joe Moore, Leroy Hamilton, Tony Salisbury, Bill Little, Jr. and Joe Chester Moore; Palmer Newsome, robbery of Delmar Evans of a billfold containing $190 in cash and $40 in food stamps.

Dwayne Williams, robbery of James A. Daniels of billfold containing money and papers worth more than $100; Virgil Conn and Bert Porter, striking and wounding Irvin Shepherd with intent to kill; Bill Hinton, reckless use of a deadly weapon, resisting arrest and tearing up warrant of arrest; Jack and Thurman Conley striking and wounding Hamer Lovely with intent to kill; Timothy Gray, cutting and wounding Mack Stewart; High Higgs, cutting and wounding Willis Conley; Johnny Johnson, cutting and wounding Arlit Little; Johnny Watson, assault on Estill Yates with a deadly weapon; and for child desertion, James Buel Griffith, Charles Clark, of Lancer, and Julius Little, Ypsilanti, Michigan.

The victim was a native of Lawrence county and was the daughter of Del Martin, Huntington, W. Va., and Mrs. Lexie M. Boyles, of Ashland. She was a member of the Christian Church. Other survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Virginia Lee McKinney, of Ashland, and four grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted today (Wednesday) from the Miller Funeral Home, Ashland, and burial was made in Ashland cemetery.

Junior Woman's Club Has Officer Change

Mrs. C. R. Rice recently became the new president of the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club, an office vacancy created when former president, Mrs. Clay Stephens, moved to Louisville. Prior to becoming president, Mrs. Rice served as first vice president of the club.

Also moving from the office of second vice-president to first vice-president was Mrs. James R. Allen and from third vice-president to second vice-president was Mrs. Richard Stai. Mrs. Gordon Johnson was chosen by the executive board to fill the vacancy of third vice-president of the organization.

Old Christmas Is 'Kept' Here

Mr. and Mrs. Tom James "kept" their annual "Old Christmas" party at their home here Sunday afternoon, Jan. 7. The observance began at 4 p.m. and continued into the night, as was the old custom.

After young Jane and David Pitts had played Christmas carols, Mrs. Claude Stephens read excerpts from "The Cattle Low at Midnight," written by Henry P. Scaf and adapted to the Christmas program, presented by the Jenny Wiley Chantresses with the singing of ancient songs.

All gathered around the wassail bowl made from the recipe of Winnie F. Johns, with oranges studded with cloves and put into hot apple cider, which was served with ginger bread and cookies. The group joined in the singing old carols, hymns and ballads to the accompaniment of Dennie Slone with his banjo, Dave Sizemore and his fiddle, and Marcus Owens and Zella W. Wells with their guitars played mountain tunes as all sang.

The guest list included, Marcus Owens, Dennie Slone, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rennick, Lolita Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Pitts and Jane and David, Zella W. Wells, Ethel Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sizemore, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fitzpatrick, Daisy Miller, Bess Leete Stephens, Sam Nelson.

WHEN THE GEARS SHIFT

Some houses give answer to a whipping by the wind, and whine and howl in the storm. Ours is one which doesn't take a beating in silence. I like to listen when the wind cuts a certain corner.

As I may have remarked here, some columns ago, I never feel the glow of security and well-being so much as when the wind whips up this cacophony at night while I am inside, in kindly the aura of a reading lamp and the warmth of home walls, shut away from the darkness and turmoil outside.

It was such a night not long ago, and I was almost purring when a perverse thought invaded my mental Eden. For no apparent reason I was suddenly thinking of a summer evening, of the stillness before a rain, a dark cloud hanging low over the distant hilltop, momentary flicks of lightning on the horizon—and then a sudden, cooling stir of breeze.

All of which, I suppose, is a part of the human fallacy that distant pastures are greener and that months-away seasons are best. Maybe that's how it was intended to be. Thus it is that we are kept going, looking always across the way to the greener grass, the season of greater delights—and, finally, to the place that is better than all this.

WHEN OLD SIGNS FAIL

After owning a barometer for some years I have finally learned how the contraction works, and as a consequence the weather forecasts have been issued as regularly and solemnly as hospital bulletins on the condition of a crowned head. With this barometer I called the shot on unsettled weather the other night and the following day at a time when the Weather Bureau was speaking of fair skies and warmer temperatures.

But when I left my study of the "glass" and depended upon one of our old sayings I ran aground. As the snow continued to lie on north hillsides and other slopes for days, I did a bit of harking backward and came up with the confident prediction that this snow is waiting on another and that more was headed in this direction before the first was gone.

Well, you can't be perfect. Still, it may just happen that I'll go out of the weather predictin' business, after all.

Dec. Tax Collection At $394,881 Total, Sheriff Leslie Says

Sheriff Frank Leslie reported Saturday that he collected and paid to various agencies and departments of government a total of $394,881.89 in tax monies during the month of December alone.

The taxes collected were apportioned to seven funds, according to the tax rate, with the Floyd County Board of Education the biggest beneficiary. The school board received $260,507.59. Amounts paid to other funds follow:

State, $16,573.79; county, $88,270.09; forestry, $309.79; extension, $5,447.62; library, $8,419.43; health fund, $15,353.58.

Most of Mr. Sizemore's creations are embellished with pearl inlay, on the finger board and on the instrument's tuning head. On one banjo, pearl buttons were inlaid along the neck as fret indicators. Sizemore said these are larger than the factory markers and are seen more easily.

In addition to being a fine craftsman of musical instruments, Dave Sizemore is also an accomplished "picker" (as opposed to "player") of several of these. Having played square dances since the age of 12, he is most comfortable with a fiddle, although he can readily switch to five-string banjo or guitar. Dave frequently plays with Policeman "Hack" Thornberry and his group at square dances and has appeared several times in the Jenny Wiley Folk Festival held here, as well as at the annual fest held at Carter Caves State Park. He also enjoys occasional get-togethers with "a bunch of the fellers" at the courthouse here, after hours.

Dave Sizemore and scores of others are living evidence of the vitality of old-time mountain music, and at 64 he looks forward to next year when retirement will allow him to devote all his time to his woodworking and music.

Others jailed here, charges lodged against them and names of arresting officers follow:

Carmel Davis, drunk driving and attempting to elude police, by State Trooper Williamson; Estele Lee Fannin, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Allen; Harvey R. Gunnell and Donald Ray Huston, each charged with drunk driving, by State Trooper Allen; Earnest Owens, drunk driving, by Policeman Lawson; Tommy P. and Tilden J. Hurley, jailed by Policemen Potter and Thornberry and held for the Pike county sheriff's department.

Computer Cards To Replace Permits

The large certificate-type forms that hotels and restaurants display as legal evidence of permission to operate will soon become collector's items, says Dennis Gibson, Floyd County Health Department sanitarian.

"The current type of permits are being replaced by a simpler, smaller computer card permit to operate," he says. "And all hotel, motel and food service establishment operators in the state who have not applied for such a permit to operate were required by the Kentucky Hotel and Food Service Establishment Act of 1972 to do so before the new year."

Operators of new establishments or those which have changed ownership must now meet all sanitary requirements, submit an approved application with the required $10 fee and obtain a permit prior to opening for business, Mr. Gibson says.

During December, local health department officials contacted all known hotel, motel and food service establishment operators in Floyd County to supply them with applications for a permit. If facilities were in good repair and were capable of being maintained in a safe and sanitary manner, the applications were approved and mailed to the State Department of Health with the required fee.

By law, public, private and parochial schools with food service facilities through the twelfth grade are exempt from paying the fee. All food service facilities operated by the Departments of Mental Health, Health and Corrections and those operated or licensed by the Department of Child Welfare are also exempt from fee payment. "However, state or local health authorities are notifying operators of these facilities that they must comply with the requirement to get a permit to operate," according to Gibson.

Boarding house and rooming house operators don't need permits. "These facilities are more like apartments," Mr. Gibson says. "And apartment operators aren't required to get permits to operate from the State Department of Health."

Nixon May Place Emphasis On Important Role of Coal

President Nixon's forthcoming energy message will probably place new emphasis on coal as a substitute for scarce oil and gas supplies, a high-ranking energy official said Monday in Washington.

Elmer Bennett, an assistant director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) said, "I assume coal will play some important role."

But Bennett said it would be a "gross oversimplification" to conclude that power plants could generally convert from petroleum to coal in disregard of environmental limitations.

Bennett said he did not think the administration would seek legislation to alter the nation's "primary standards" against air pollution, designed to protect human health.

But he suggested that states which have hurried to apply the more stringent "secondary standards"—to protect plants, animals and property—might be asked to slow down so that coal, a relatively "dirty" fuel, can take on more of the nation's energy burden.

An OEP study released to newsmen upon request, concluded that "selective and temporary relaxation" of secondary standards could allow almost as much substitution of coal for petroleum as if there were no antipollution standards at all.

OEP director George A. Lincoln said in the study that the agency was not making "specific recommendations" but was only offering information that might be useful in developing national energy policies.

Under the Nixon administration, the OEP has been a key agency in development of energy policy, with the specific assignment of handling policy on oil import quotas.

Names of two survivors of Mrs. Aggie H. Estep were erroneously listed by The Times last week. These two are Clyde Ousley (not Cloyd) and John B. Ousley (not Estepp), both of David. Mrs. Estep also was married three times, it was said—first to Charlie Ousley; after his death to John Compton, and, after the death of Mr. Compton, to James Harrison Estepp, who survives.

Findings at Heart Clinic Here Resulted in Life-Saving Operation

Before Jefferey Cox was two weeks old, his mother, Mrs. Willie Cox, of Mousie, knew there was something wrong with him. "He wasn't growing at all, he was a funny gray color and he perspired when he took his bottle," she said. Even though Mrs. Cox knew that her newborn son was not healthy, she had no way of knowing that, within less than three months, Jefferey would be the object of history-making surgery.

While Jefferey was not scheduled for his first check-up for over a month, Mrs. Cox was sufficiently worried to take him back to the doctor that delivered him. After a brief examination, the physician noticed a murmur in the infant's heart. On the basis of that observation, the doctor advised Mrs. Cox to take the child to the regional pediatric heart clinic, in Prestonsburg for further examinations.

Operated by the University of Kentucky College of Medicine with support from the Kentucky chapter of the American Heart Association, the traveling clinic circulates through Eastern Kentucky, providing consultative and diagnostic services for children with heart problems.

Despite the fact that the doctors at the clinic saw more than 80 patients the day that Mrs. Cox came here, they immediately noticed that Jefferey had a serious problem and advised his mother to take him to UK's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center for further tests.

According to the physician who first saw Jefferey at the clinic here, and who later supervised his care at the University Hospital, "Our tests showed that Jeff had severe pulmonary hypertension (high blood pressure in the lungs and pulmonary artery) and that he was likely to suffer congestive heart failure."

Further tests revealed that Jefferey Cox had a rare defect known as an 'aorto-pulmonary window.' This 'window' is a lesion or hole between the two main arteries that come out of the heart. The defect causes extremely high blood pressure in both arteries and leads to failure of both the heart and lungs.

According to Jefferey's pediatrician, children born with this defect seldom live beyond the age of one year. A UK College of Medicine surgeon describes the problem this way: "The only way to cure this type of defect is with open heart surgery. The standard procedure, however, has always been to wait until the child is at least two years old. The problem is, of course, that most of the infants with heart defects seldom live beyond the age of one year."

A new surgical technique, known as hypothermia, has become popular

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cox of Mousie, Knott county, take a few minutes to play with their infant son, Jefferey, at the University of Kentucky's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center, University Hospital, Lexington. Born with a rare heart defect, Jefferey helped make history by being the youngest child ever to undergo the particular type of surgery and treatment that he received.

throughout the country for the treatment of severe heart defects. Hypothermia had never, however, been attempted with a patient as young as Jefferey.

Due to the poor prospects of Jefferey's survival, surgeons at the Medical Center decided to schedule Jefferey for surgery with hypothermia and circulatory arrest on December 21. Improved Medical Center facilities for post-operative recovery helped to swing the decision. Jefferey Cox would be the youngest patient ever to undergo this type of surgery.

The surgeon who performed the operation described the procedure: "In this type of surgery, it is absolutely necessary to stop blood flow in the heart. The patient, therefore, was placed on a heart lung machine, a device that duplicates the operation of both the heart and lungs. His blood was then cooled in the machine so that we could bring his body temperature down to about half of its normal value. This was done so that there would be no damage to the brain while circulation was stopped."

"When his body was cool enough, all of Jefferey's blood was placed in the heart lung machine. At that point, neither Jefferey's heart nor his lungs were operating. When the blood was removed, the heart was opened and the defect was sewn together, which took about 15 minutes. Then the heart was closed, circulation through the patient's body was reinstated and the body was warmed back to a normal temperature."

"Immediately following the surgery," the surgeon said, "Jefferey was placed on a respirator so that he would not develop lung problems. Three weeks after the surgery, he is doing fine, and we expect him to recover completely. In fact, he is back at home now."

While the surgery itself has allowed Jefferey Cox the opportunity for a normal healthy life, the surgeon is the first to emphasize the role of traveling heart clinic. "I have no doubt in my mind that if it had not been for the clinic, this child would have died."

According to the pediatrician who first saw Jefferey at the Prestonsburg clinic, it was a matter of luck and coincidence that got the child such prompt medical attention. "First of all, we have to give credit to Mrs. Cox for noticing her son's abnormalities and taking him back to her doctor before he was due for a checkup. Secondly, the clinic only visits Prestonsburg twice a year and if the family doctor had not referred the child immediately, it would probably have been four months before he was examined. That could very well have been too late."

The parents of Jefferey Cox were more than a little awed at the turn of events. Mrs. Cox, whose husband Willie is a Knott county construction worker, has another child, Norita, aged two, who is perfectly normal.

According to Mrs. Cox, "I knew something was wrong with my baby, but I didn't know it was so complicated. They (the UK doctors who treated Jefferey) took care of everything."

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank our relatives and friends who visited us and shared their sympathy, sent flowers and cards, prepared and sent food or helped in any way upon the passing of our beloved mother and wife. We would like to thank Dr. Mary Hall, of McDowell Hospital, and the doctors and nursing staff of the Central Baptist Hospital for the care of our loved one. We especially would like to thank the ministers of the Regular Baptist Church for their consoling words in our hour of grief, and the Carter Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

$614,417 Funds
1973 CEP Work

The Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (CEP), sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Economic Security, Frankfort, has been funded to operate through 1973. The U. S. Department of Labor's Regional Manpower Administrator William U. Norwood, Atlanta, said federal funds in the amount of $614,417 have been allocated to serve 136 individuals who have long histories of unemployment in the rural areas of the state.

CEP seeks to bring together in one unified effort the various manpower programs administered by the U. S. Department of Labor to help the hard-core disadvantaged in the heaviest areas of unemployment prepare for, find, and hold permanent jobs.

Operating through a single local sponsor, CEP seeks out the hard-core unemployed in the areas of concentrated unemployment. The program makes available to such persons manpower and related supportive services, including orientation, basic education, counseling, physical examinations, medical treatment, day care for their children, work experience, job training, job development, and job placement.

The Kentucky State Employment Service determines the need for workers in the occupations in which training is to be provided; and offers other supportive services. The State Department of Education's Vocational Division will provide academic services during the period of vocational training.

SAYS EDUCATION NOT KEY

An eight-man research team at Harvard University has said the quality of a school has little effect on what a child learns or on his earnings later as an adult. Christopher Jencks, director of the study, said such factors as luck and personality determine the earning power of an individual rather than the skills he develops in school. Jencks said there is a relationship between the variation in incomes and differences in schools, cognitive skills, genes, home background and IQ, but that the relationship is much weaker than has been commonly thought.

Kentucky Afield
By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Frankfort, Ky.—For many outdoor enthusiasts, January and February are two uneventful months. Kentucky's weather is too cold and dreary then for many to enjoy getting outside.

However, during the last week of this month and the first part of February there will be two sport and vacation shows in Louisville and Cincinnati and sportsmen might find them a pleasant and useful diversion.

Those attending a sport and vacation show for the first time, as well as those who seek out these opportunities annually, will find many things of great interest.

In many cases the entire family will go along and be entertained by the many new lines of sporting equipment and usually good stage shows presented.

These events will include displays of various sport and fishing boats, as well as a great assortment of outboard and inboard motors. Factory representatives will be on hand to explain many of the new additions to their lines.

Also many leading fishing tackle companies will display what is new in 1973 as far as lures, rods, reels and electric trolling motors are concerned. Experts will be on hand to answer questions about how to use various types of fishing tackle and equipment.

The stage shows vary from exhibitions by trained seals to trick-casting, thus offering something for everyone in the family to enjoy.

When walking around, one will be able to visit the many booths and talk to the operators about new vacation spots. Various state agencies will be well represented.

It might be a good idea at this time to make a list of things you will want to learn while visiting the shows and think about the sporting equipment you especially want to see.

The state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will be at both the Cincinnati and Louisville shows and department personnel will be happy to discuss rules and regulations on game and fish laws, as well as farm-pond stocking and other aspects of the department's activities.

So, if you are tired of staying inside and want to get some of the latest information on fishing, boating, new vacation spots, campers and trailers, be sure to take in a sport and vacation show.

Deaths Emphasize Inspections Import

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The recent deaths of two youths in Shelby county both apparent victims of carbon monoxide poisoning, has prompted one state highway safety official to describe the incident as "tragic and needless."

The bodies were discovered in a car parked on the Harrington Mill road, near Shelbyville.

John J. Luby, director of Kentucky's Motor Vehicle Inspection Division said "Kentuckians need no more concrete proof of the important contribution which a properly run motor vehicle inspection program can make to the safety of the motorist."

Under Kentucky's mandatory inspection program, the exhaust system is one point which must satisfactorily pass the annual safety inspection.

Luby said that the car in which the youths died was registered in Michigan and thus not subject to Kentucky's inspection law. Contrary to the law enforced in Kentucky, Michigan has only an "at-random" inspection check program.

According to a state police report, a check of the vehicle revealed that it had no muffler, and the tail pipe was broken off at the axle, which, Luby said, probably permitted exhaust fumes to seep directly into the car through the floor.

The car was owned by a Franklin county auto dealer and had been loaned to one of the two youths while his own car was in the garage for repairs.

Four Floyd Students In UKAG College

Four students from Floyd county were enrolled this semester as undergraduates in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, according to Dr. Charles E. Barnhart, Dean of the College.

These students, their classifications and majors are: Robert R. Beverley, junior, forestry; Deborah S. Stumbo, junior, horticulture; Danny L. Thornsberry, junior, horticulture; Ginny Lou Johnson, freshman, animal science.

Undergraduate enrollment in the UK College of Agriculture was up 81 percent this fall over the fall of 1971, Dr. Barnhart said. Total undergraduate enrollment this semester was 957, as compared to 812 last fall. In addition, 190 students were enrolled in the College of Agriculture graduate programs.

TRAVEL IN SPACE.

INTRODUCING THE 1973 VOLKSWAGEN WAGONS.

Most people think of Volkswagens as tiny, bug-like cars.

Most people couldn't be more wrong. Take our Station Wagon. (And 9 people could.)

It's got almost twice as much space as most wagons. 176 cubic feet to be exact.

Too big? The VW 412 wagon seats 4 people plus its 2 trunks add up to 38.1 cubic feet of space. And there's an additional 24 cu. ft. when the back seats are down.

Still too big? Try our Squareback. It has about 50% more carrying space than the largest sedan.

And you get an extra 17.7 cubic feet by lowering the back seats.

So if you're looking for roominess, look into a Volkswagen.

You won't find a larger selection of space vehicles.

Or more down-to-earth prices. Few things in life work as well as a Volkswagen.

Floyd County Basketball

By MARK LAFFERTY

The Rebels of Allen Central raised their record to 16-4 last week with two victories and one loss. Their only loss came at the hands of Lexington Lafayette, 70-60. The Rebels' victories were at the expense of Prestonsburg, 72-63, and Betsy Layne, 68-59.

The Rebels played in spurts against Lafayette. They collected only 13 points in the first quarter, but trailed by only two at the half. But Lafayette kept up the consistent pace to out-distance Allen Central for the victory. In the Rebels' second meeting with Prestonsburg they escaped with a 72-63 victory. Allen Central led, most of the way, but was leading by only one with less than a minute and a half to play. But Allen Central refused to fold and held on for their fifteenth victory. Allen Central scored its second victory over the Betsy Layne Bobcats, 68-59. The Rebels dominated play with a fine defensive job which limited 6-9, Dan Hall to only 15 points.

Betsy Layne added to its win string, Friday night, by crushing Wheelwright, 94-78. The Bobcats jumped on top early with a 14-point halftime lead and coasted on to victory.

McDowell's fortunes remained unchanged this week as they dropped a, 62-60 decision to Salyersville in the Paintsville Invitational tournament. After gathering a seven-point first-quarter lead, McDowell fell behind at the end of the half by one and at the end of the third quarter by two. The last McDowell gasp for victory came with 12 seconds left when Neil Turner stole the ball and went the length of the court and made a 10-foot jumper that tied the game at 62. He was also fouled on the play, but a three-second violation cancelled the basket and McDowell's hope for victory. This week, Betsy Layne travels to Mullins on Friday night and hosts McDowell on Saturday. Prestonsburg plays host to Elkhorn City, Friday. Wheelwright visits Virgie, Friday, and Jenkins on Saturday. Allen Central travels to Johnson Central Tuesday, McDowell Friday, and Morgan County, Saturday.

Church at Martin Schedules Three Special Services

Three nights of special church service at the First Assembly of God church at Martin, Ky.—Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Jan. 17-19 at 7 p.m. Speaker will be Evangelist H. C. Golden, of Louisville, Ky. Evangelist Golden and his wife are gifted musicians who convey the gospel in both sermon and music.

Evangelist Golden has evangelized for several years and has done pastoral work for nearly 20 years. He is known as a Camp meeting speaker in the Southern and Eastern States.

You won't want to miss these three nights of meeting. Come, believing God for a mighty outpouring of the spirit, as God has promised in the last days "to pour out of His Spirit upon all flesh."

The pastor, Lorie Vannucci, invites everyone to these three nights of special services. (Adv.)

Island Creek Gift Creates Scholarship

Island Creek Coal Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, has announced an engineering technology scholarship for Pikeville College for an associate's or bachelor's degree in engineering technology.

Dr. Robert S. Cope, president of the college, said he received a $1,000 gift from the Cleveland offices of Island Creek, $750 of which will be used for a one-year scholarship to a student, based on academic qualifications and financial need. The scholarship may be extended to a single recipient for a period of four years.

The remaining $250 was awarded to the Pikeville College Department of Engineering Technology to be used at the discretion of the college to recruit and encourage students to seek engineering technology degrees.

In 1952, Martin P. Durkin, president of the Plumbers and Pipe Fitters Union, was designated by President-elect Eisenhower to be Secretary of Labor in the new Cabinet.

Japanese May Be Trailblazers In Whipping Coal Sulfur Problem

Donald C. Cook, president of the American Electric Power Co., was quoted recently as having said sulfur pollution is the major complaint about coal and there is no proved commercial technology for removing sulfur from coal or stack gases.

But COAL NEWS reports that the Japanese already are well on the way to whipping the problem. This report said:

A federal interagency team which visited Japan last August to evaluate the technology being used to control sulfur oxide emissions reported that the plants are well within the emission standards set by the Japanese.

The technical committee consisted of representatives of the White House Office of Science and Technology, the Environmental Protection Agency and TVA.

In describing a Chemicolime scrubbing process at the coal-burning Miike station of Mitsui Aluminum Co., Ltd., the report said: "After a 10-month construction period, the unit was started up on March 29, 1972, and has been operating with close to 100 per cent availability since then... The...control system has exhibited reliable, essentially trouble-free operation since startup."

"It should be noted that the reliable performance of this system to date is of real significance to the U. S. air pollution control program, since the design ground rules for the Japanese unit are quite similar to many of our power utilities requiring desulfurization systems," the report said.

A Song On The Wing Adds To the Beauty of State Parks

By HELEN PRICE STACY

The sights and sounds of winter birds are one of the simplest and most beautiful attractions in Kentucky's state parks at this time of year.

To get the most out of a bird-watching-and-listening week-end at one of the parks, take along a book on birds. Or purchase one in the park gift shop. With such a book you can identify every bird and acquire a knowledgeable background on these noisy little creatures.

You can learn much about birds from a table in the park dining room. Sit beside one of the big windows and you can see all the action around the bird-feeders.

If snow is on the ground or in the air, a frequent visitor to the feeders is the junco. Dark gray with white breasts, juncos sometimes are called snowbirds because they love the white stuff and often look as if they've waded through a deep snow.

Juncos seem to know the particular beauty of Kentucky in winter and time their visits to the commonwealth accordingly. When warm weather brings crowds to the parks, the juncos head for their summer homes in the north.

From your seat you also may note a more familiar bird. The Carolina chickadee likes Kentucky's state parks so much he stays all year. Known to scientists as Parus carolinensis, this small bird has black "hourglass" markings extending from his crown to his throat.

Keeping company with the chickadee might be the tufted titmouse or white-breasted nuthatch. Imagine a concert with these tiny, full-throated voices.

The chickadee has a voice of four or five notes on a high octave, the titmouse a two to four-note voice and the nuthatch eight to 15 quick notes on a low key.

While enjoying your meal in the dining room, you surely will see other visitors outside. The woodpeckers—hairy, downy or red-bellied—don't sing, exactly, but they do make toe-tapping music on nearby tree trunks.

Usually there will be a blue jay, big and handsome in his full-dress suit. He will add his clear song to the concert or, if the harmony needs a dissonant note, give out with a screech.

At any moment this singing ensemble might be joined by wrens, waxwings, sparrows, robins, larks, flickers, bluebirds, doves, bob whites, creepers, grackles, kinglets, cowbirds, warblers and finches. (And the Kentucky Cardinal, Helen!-Ed.)

If you're bird watching in the Land Between the Lakes, you might see both golden and bald eagles.

After your meal, take some leftover crackers to your room and start a private concert. Crumble the crackers along the balcony rail and wait. The birds will soon visit and begin to entertain.

Remember, when there's snow on the ground, feed the birds. Theirs might be the only song you'll hear all week.

Aliens Must Report Present Addresses

All aliens in the United States must report their present addresses this month. Cards for this purpose may be obtained from any post office. After they are filled out they are to be returned to the post office.

All post offices throughout the United States, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands participate in this program to assist aliens in reporting addresses to the Attorney General as required by section 265 of the Immigration and Naturalization Act.

Any alien not turning in this card to the post office by January 31 may mail his report to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, with a letter explaining why his report was not made on time. Postmasters may be contacted for more information.

Keep Child Resistant Containers—Child Resistant

The purpose of dispensing medicines in what are called "child resistant" containers is to substantially cut down and try to prevent the ever increasing number of accidents involving children and drugs. But, this purpose is defeated when a child is given an empty medicine container with which to play.

It does not take a child too long a time of experimentation to figure out how to get an empty container open. The next time it could be one that is full. Give your children a break and buy that extra time a child-proof container gives you when they haven't had a chance to find out how it works.

Kegley Transfer to North Carolina Results in Scout Staff Changes

Staff assignments for the professional staff of the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America were announced last week by F. Marvin Barber, Scout executive. Several adjustments of the staff assignments were made because of the recent transfer of James D. Kegley, of Lonesome Pine Council, to Raleigh, North Carolina. George P. Chidester will serve as district scout executive for the Pine Mountain district, will provide field service to Floyd county, serve as director of the Cub Scout Pow Wow, which will be held at Jenkins, serve as director of the Troop Leadership training camp, and will develop plans for district Cub Scout jamborees.

Mr. Chidester is currently serving as district scout executive for Jenny Wiley district. He will move to the Pine Mountain district as soon as suitable housing can be procured. He replaces James Kegley, who recently transferred to North Carolina.

Tom H. Smith will serve as district scout executive for the Breaks and Pike districts. He will serve as staff adviser of the Order of the Arrow, director of Camp Shawnee, and director of the Explorer Olympics.

John C. Campbell, Jr. will serve as district Scout executive for the Kentucky River district, will provide field service to Magoffin and Johnson counties, act as program director at Camp Shawnee and develop plans for the district Camporees and Cub Scout workshops.

Scout Executive Barber will be responsible for council administration, and serve as staff adviser to the finance, planning, public relations, camping and activities, Cub scouting, Boy scouting, Exploring committees and the council commissioner. He will serve as staff director, office manager, editor of "The Trail Blazer," the Council bulletin, and will provide field service to Martin county.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has announced a $369,000 grant to study the problems of the placement and labeling of children.

Honored on 87th Birthday

Mrs. Hulda Boyd, of Banner, observed her 87th birthday on December 31. She was presented gifts by her family and friends. Her family includes Ada Wilson, of Martin, Rosa Owens, Hindman, Nancy Boyd, Detroit, Mich., Hazel Boyd, Mousie Boyd, Birdie Jarrell, Earnest Boyd and Virginia B. Jarrell, all of Dana. She also has 36 grandchildren, 76 great-grandchildren and 17 great-great-grandchildren. She has been a member of the Old Regular Baptist Church 56 years.

Lincoln's Home Town To Begin Special Celebration This Year

By MARIANNE STYLES KOHLER
When Abraham Lincoln ran for President, he received only three votes from the Kentucky county that was his birthplace. Today, the entire community, under the leadership of the Chamber of Commerce and local service clubs, is rallying around the memory of their native son for an all-out "first annual" Lincoln Day celebration, February 10 in Hodgenville.

Lincoln Square will be the site for all festivities except a luncheon, held at the county high school, and a show at the Lincoln Jamboree building that evening.

A large statue of Lincoln stands in the downtown square formed by office buildings and business houses; the square remains exactly the same now as it was when it was built from plans laid out in 1818. All streets leading into the business district intersect at the center of town, where the statue was placed in 1909 through the efforts of the Ladies' Lincoln League.

Visitors planning to attend the celebration are invited to enter beard contests in three categories: natural (covering the entire beard area), full (long) and traditional (trimmed in Lincoln style). One contest division will be for Larue counties only, another for entrants from other counties. A men's and boys' costume contest will permit artificial beards and all males from 12 to 100 may enter.

For the ladies, there will be costume contests for the most authentic costume, best ballroom style or best informal dress. Prizes will be awarded to three entrants in each category for handmade, bought or rented costumes.

Children under 12 will have their own contest in the same categories; and family groups of three or more persons will be considered as an entry. Costume contests are open to people from all counties.

It is expected that one of the most popular spots on the square will be the Country Store, where homemakers from nine counties will sell arts and crafts such as cornshuck and rag dolls, handpainted china, candy, antiques, and recipes for baked goods on display.

Senator Marlow Cook will be the main speaker at the luncheon and main program at the Larue County High school at noon. Advance tickets are on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office on Lincoln Square, or may be reserved by telephoning (502) 358-3411.

MAYTOWN NEWS

Helen Hunt, of Ashland, and Margaret Cantrill, of Red Bush, visited Nora Hayes at her home here, Dec. 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Risner and son, of Paintsville, visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Arnett and Mrs. Katherine Patton, Sunday afternoon.

James E. Robinson left Jan. 10 for Ft. Knox, Ky. for basic training in the Army. After his basic training is completed, he is scheduled to be assigned to the Honor Guard in Washington, D. C.

Clarence Robinson, Sr. is now at home after spending two weeks in the McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude J. Webb and Mecca were in Dayton, Ohio last week-end on business. They also visited relatives in Springfield, Ohio. Their brother-in-law, Tauby Tussey, of Springfield, underwent major surgery Tuesday and is recuperating nicely.

Mrs. Rebecca Salisbury, of Stockdale, Ohio has been here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stewart and other relatives. She was accompanied here by her sister, Mrs. Eva Horner, of New Lexington, Ohio, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Spencer, and Mr. Spencer.

Julia Bentley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pershing Bentley, is recuperating at her home after undergoing a tonsillectomy.

Jim Stewart spent several days last week in Washington, D. C., visiting his cousins, Bob, Mike and Pat Tallent.

TEACHERS MAY RECEIVE COMPENSATION BENEFITS

The Attorney General has handed down an opinion that a school teacher in Kentucky may receive both full sick leave and workmen's compensation benefits at the same time. Assistant Attorney General Carl Miller said the benefits are "not only not of the same breed, but are of entirely different species—there is no relationship between the two."

Building bridges, not fences, between people

Our clergymen are more likely to be seen with their sleeves rolled up to work, than with their eyes rolled up to heaven.

Our local clergy know that good works count more than good words. So they practice a lot more than they preach.

And they work long and hard doing the kinds of things that help bring us all a little closer to each other. We hope to be their neighbors in the next life, too.

(Pol. Adv., 1-17-4t.)

Announces for Magistrate
After being urged by many of my friends, and carefully considering our needs in our district, I hereby announce for the nomination for Magistrate on the Democratic ticket in the May primary in District No. 4.
Having been born and reared in this district, I am well aware of our many needs and shortcomings. I pledge to the people of our district that my interest will be for all our welfare, and not serve a select few. I feel that my first duty will be to strive for better roads and bridges throughout our district, and thank you in advance for your vote and support. To promote your own interest, VOTE FOR ME!
Yours to serve you,
TEX MITCHELL
