

Expect 1000 Collegians At Festival Ninth Annual Event To Draw Students From 14 Colleges

The Prestonsburg-Floyd county area is bracing again this year for the influx of junior college students expected here for the ninth annual Mountain Dew Festival which is hosted by Prestonsburg Community College.

Billed as "Eastern Kentucky's biggest sporting event," the festival is expected to draw more than 1,000 students. Fifteen sporting events are scheduled, with basketball preliminaries to be held April 12, the first day.

To kick off the festival, nationally-known singer Adrienne Doucette will sing in an 8 p.m. program scheduled April 11 at Prestonsburg Community College.

Remainder of the three-day event will be conducted the following Friday and Saturday to include two dances, on Thursday and Saturday evenings, and a Talent-Queen contest at the Prestonsburg elementary school auditorium. Each event carries a point award. The college with the highest point score wins the "Brown Jug Award," which is presently held by Ashland Community College.

Participants in this year's festival in addition to the host college, are Elizabethtown, Southeast, Hopkinsville, Ashland, Jefferson, Hazard, Somerset and Maysville Community Colleges, Lexington Technical Institute, Alice Lloyd College, Sue Bennett College, Miami-Hamilton University, Southern West Virginia Community College and Lees Junior College.

Social Security Office To Open Here, April 10

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced Friday that the Social Security office which will open here April 10 will serve Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties, as well as Floyd.

Temporary space has been leased in the old States Motel on Lake Drive, and this will be in use by the office staff until a new office building is built. The Pikeville district office said last week that the staff of the office here will be held to only three instead of the 15 originally planned.

Congressmen Perkins also released rates to be charged by the U. S. Corps of Engineers for camping facilities. The charge at the German area of Dewey Lake is $1 a day, and no charge is for access to the water.

"Personally, I would have preferred no charge at all, since I believe that facilities built with public money should

Attorney Withdraws In Child-Death Case

Feeling has run so high at Lorain, O. against Timothy Papp, 21, who is accused of the rape-slaying of nine-year-old Roxie Ann Keathley, formerly of this county, that his attorney, Albert Balunek, has withdrawn from the case and a court-appointed attorney has taken his place.

The giant suspect remains in jail in default of $250,000 bond. A hearing has been scheduled for April 17. Papp pleaded innocent last Friday to the first degree murder charge. His court appearance had been set for the afternoon but was moved up, apparently in an effort to avoid the crowd which appeared outside the courthouse when he was taken there on an earlier occasion.

The child's naked body was found in a woodland, just inside the Lorain city limits, March 24 after a 12-day search. She had been sexually attacked, the coroner said.

Papp had supplied information which led to finding the child's body, Lorain authorities said.

Asking Municipal Judge John S. Kolena for permission to withdraw from the case, Balunek said, "There have been circumstances and incidents involving my wife that force me to make the decision." He did not elaborate saying later, "The less said about his case, the better."

The lawyer said his wife is in the last month of pregnancy "and has become emotionally and physically upset and frightened about this matter." He added that he was withdrawing out of concern for his wife's welfare.

A crowd of about 75 persons gathered outside the courthouse when Papp was taken into court.

Future Looses In Federal Aid Seen by Supt.

Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark said this week in a discussion of the current status of federal assistance to education that the Floyd school system may lose $150,000 in the 1974-'75 fiscal year and that for the current year it has already lost $140,000 in Title I funds.

On March 19, HEW Secretary Caspar Wineberger introduced to the House General Education Subcommittee the "Better Schools Act of 1973," which has become known as special educational revenue sharing. The main provision this act would be to scrap 30 present federally assisted programs and to consolidate them into five broad categories of Disadvantaged, Impact Aid, Handicapped, Vocational and Support Services. The act does carry a "hold harmless" proviso that would provide that no state or local district would receive less funds in fiscal year 1974 than it had for 1973.

But, Supt. Clark added, "This hold-harmless" clause will protect a school district for one year, but this provision would be lifted after the first year and would result in a $6,130,000, or 17.6 percent, loss to the state of Kentucky in Title I alone, with no indication of the loss to a local school district."

A fair estimate of the loss to the Floyd county schools for the school year 1974-'75, he said, will be $150,000, or 17.6 percent of the funds received for school year 1973-'74.

Estimates from Ray Brackett, Floyd Title I director, are that the $140,000 loss incurred this year will not be restored for the coming fiscal year.

Supt. Clark commented that there is a discussion at the highest level of the HEW Education Division to replace programs that are wiped out with a discretionary type of program that would be intended to inspire reform in education without committing the federal government to a long-term obligation. These funds may be matching-type grants.

Prestonsburg's Newest Church

St James Episcopal Church, now nearing completion, will have its first worship service on Palm Sunday in its new sanctuary in the Porter Addition here. Construction costing approximately $30,000 has included a sanctuary and parish hall, each 40 by 30 feet and a narthex, 10 by 10 feet. The parish hall will be named in honor of Susan P. Elliott, who donated the site to the church. St. James has a congregation of 18, and its pastor is the Rev. George P. Donehoo. The bishop of the Lexington diocese will conduct the Easter service at the new church.

Coal, Sand and Mud Pose Water Problem

Condition of the water in the Big Sandy here has deteriorated to the extent that it became necessary twice in a four-day period last week to clean the intake valve at the Prestonsburg water plant.

Normally, this is a chore to be performed every three or four months, W. O. Goebel, Sr., chairman of the Municipal Water & Gas Commission, said.

Coal up to "egg" size, mud and sand clogged the intake. The first difficulty developed last month. A cleaning lasted 16 days, then only four.

A silt-laden Dewey Lake is causing trouble at another point, it was reported here Monday. The Corps of Engineers has at Dewey Dam its own water filtering system and a storage reservoir, and so is able to use water from the lake in government-owned buildings in the vicinity of the dam. But the plant apparently wasn't able to clean the water sufficiently Monday. Water was being hauled from another source to the buildings.

Mr. Goebel said a day is required for the cleaning of the intake at the water plant here and that water cannot be pumped while the work is being done. The valve is 10 feet below the low-water mark, and the cleaning process requires water, coal and other river contents to be brought up by bucket.

The heavy load of gravel and silt may be traced to upriver road construction, it was said. The source of the coal was not traced. The Big Sandy ran "coal black" last Thursday.

Court To Study Waste Problem At Meet Here

A meeting of the Floyd fiscal court tomorrow (Thursday) is expected to move a bit nearer implementation of the solid waste disposal program planned for the county.

One landfill site near Martin has been tentatively selected. The court wants three more.

Spindletop Research, Lexington, is developing the waste disposal plan for the court, with the assistance of the Big Sandy Area Development District, the Floyd County Health Department and the U. S. Soil Conservation Service which is working through the Floyd County Conservation District.

Collection of wastes at homes and businesses and transportation to central landfills will be done by private contractors. The work at the landfills will be done by county-owned machinery.

Half the cost of the machinery will be borne by the Resource, Conservation and Development agency.

Waste disposal has been planned as a multi-county effort, with Floyd, Pike, Johnson and possibly another county involved. Pike county has had a collection and disposal system working since January.

Floyd, Pike Judges On Manpower Council

Two Eastern Kentucky county judges—Henry Stumbo, of Floyd county, and Wayne M. Rutherford, of Pike—were named Friday by Governor Ford to the Kentucky Manpower Council.

The Manpower Council has the task of streamlining a proliferation of federal manpower programs into what Gov. Ford described as a better, simpler plan of "matching people with jobs." The new plan which the Manpower Council is charged with developing must be ready by July 1 next year, and council members were told it must be done with millions of dollars less than has been received in the past.

Judges Stumbo and Rutherford are business, labor and local government members of the council. Mrs. Mildred Rowland, of Harlan, is also a representative of the same group, and Miss Janet Whitt, of Hazard, is a member as a client representative.

The makeup of the council holds the key to the hoped-for success of the program, the governor said. The group will be composed of the heads of 11 state agencies involved in manpower programs as ex officio members, six representatives of "clients" who receive the services, and seven representatives of business, labor and local government groups.

Charles C. Furr, executive secretary of the council, said that a "grass roots" approach to meeting job needs will be possible for the first time. Furr also noted that each of the 11 state agencies involved now can contribute to a unified program rather than working piecemeal and sometimes overlapping.

Furr said that the basic approach to manpower programs will not change next fiscal year except that under federal revenue sharing 15 per cent less money will be available for programs outside Jefferson county.

Involved are programs under the Manpower Development and Training Act and the Economic Opportunity (War

Probe To Include Pollution, Drugs

This Town... That World

IN CASE OF EMERGENCY

If a newspaper item sent me has the teeniest bit of truth about it, a teacher of a fourth-grade room in Edmonds, Wash. has a whole passel of potential medical savants on her hands. She listed these answers given by her pupils to a first-aid quiz:

For head colds: "Use an agonizer to spray the nose until it drops in the throat."

For nose bleed: "Put the nose lower than the body."

For snakebite: "Bleed the wound and rape the victim in a blanket for shock."

For fractures: "To see if the limb is broken, wiggle it gently back and forth."

For fainting: "Rub the person's chest, or if it is a lady, rub her arm above the hand."

For asphyxiation: "Apply artificial respiration until the victim's dead."

WHY?

I can threaten to go on a fishing trip of a few miles, and the weather threatens and will make good on its threat if I defy it. But Frank Harmon can go all the way to Toledo Bend, over next to Texas, and they can have tornadoes in South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia, and he encounters only great weather... Why the difference?

WELCOME TO THE CLUB!

Having no hard-luck stories to tell from my own experiences—I haven't been fishing yet—I record here the results of a recent safari made by Joy Messer and Dr. Frances Sherman, of Martin, to Dewey Lake. Dr. Sherman summed it all up in one terse sentence: "Bet we were the only ones who took our catch home in a Dixie cup."

Grand Jurors Told Streams, Roads Littered

The grand jury of the Floyd circuit court began its April session Monday morning with one murder case to investigate and with a charge from Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to probe the drug situation and violations of the ecology. "I hope this drug situation isn't as serious as some think, but whether it is serious or represents only isolated cases, it needs to be investigated," Judge Conley told the jury.

The judge listed the dumping of garbage along highways and into streams and violations of strip-mining laws as threats to the ecology. "If you know of people who are dumping waste along roads and into the streams, indict them," he told the jury.

Of strip-mining he said: "We have laws to control this. If you know of places where the job is not being done right, get them before you. Our laws are such that, if they are enforced, there would be no great problem."

The petit jury will hear only civil cases this week while both the commonwealth's and county attorneys are involved with the grand jury's work. Criminal trials are scheduled to begin next Monday.

Bill Osborne, returned Prestonsburg postal worker, was named form of the grand jury.

Prior to the empanelling of petit juries, Judge Conley discussed the importance of weighing of evidence and detailed some of the operations of the court.

The case of Johnny Watson, charged with the slaying of his brother, Dennis, on Mud Creek, will go to the grand jury first, at the judge's suggestion, who said that Watson should be given a speedy trial, since he has been in jail since the killing unable to post bond.

Vets' Participation In Annual Parade Asked; Meet Slated

Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, called this week on all citizens, and especially veterans, to join her in the meeting at City Hall here at 7 p.m., next Monday, to plan for the annual Red, White and Blue Day here, next Oct. 20. Monday's meeting will be second planning session held.

Mrs. Bailey referred to the participation in last year's parade by veterans' groups, and added that all veterans are being asked to have a part this year.

"Those who aren't able to march, we'll have you on a float," she said.

Survives Wreck, Is Fined

From this battered wreck the driver emerged only slightly injured here Saturday night. Police said the car was travelling at 90 miles per hour when it capsized.

Gary Lee Hobson, of Van Lear, was jailed here Saturday night after he had emerged only slightly injured from the high-speed wreck of his auto on US 23, near here, while allegedly fleeing arrest. He was booked in Prestonsburg police court on charges of drunk driving, improper passing, failure to stop for an emergency vehicle and driving at 90 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone.

Hobson was arrested by Policeman Lawson. His car reportedly turned turtle on the highway, near the William Riley Wells, Jr. home; skidded on its top from the road and down the bank toward the river, meanwhile shearing off a telephone pole and causing damage to Wells' auto which has been estimated at $1000. He was brought to jail here after examination at the Highlands Medical Center. His fines totalled $216. The week-end was one of the quietest experienced at the county jail, with only six persons booked from Friday till Monday morning.

Johnnie Kazee and a juvenile were jailed earlier last week after a freezer-truck owned by Pelphrey's Store here had been broken into and meat taken. They were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Don Nelson.

Tavis Akers was jailed last Friday on a shoplifting charge by Policemen Thornsburg and Lafferty. Others jailed within the week:

Charles Homer Taylor, passing counterfeit money, arrested by State Trooper A. C. Cantrell; Doug Amick, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Estep; Oakie Hall, drunk driving, by State Trooper E. B. Allen; Fred Johnson, drunk driving and no operator's license, by Policemen Thornsburg and Potter.

Wheelwright's Don Wallen Is Florida's Coach of Year

In native Eastern Kentuckian Don Wallen, Martin County high school, Stuart, Fla., has a basketball coach who most citizens of the town wouldn't trade for John Wooden and Adolph Rupp combined.

His team recently defeated St. Petersburg to defend the Class AAA title won last year.

Wallen's record at Martin County includes these accomplishments:

- A six-year record of 163 wins against 16 defeats.
- Four consecutive trips to the Florida state playoffs.
- Six Suncoast Conference titles in a row.
- A six-year playoff record of 26-5.
- Suncoast Conference "Coach of the Year" six consecutive years, beginning in 1967-'68.
- District 10 Coach of the Year four consecutive years.

District 13 Coach of the Year two consecutive years.

Named AAA coach of the Year the last two years by the Florida High School Coaches Association.

Winning coach in the 1971 North-South all-star game.

This year named by the Florida High School Coaches Ass'n as Florida Coach of the Year and Florida's nominee for National High School Coach of the Year.

Coach Wallen played his high school basketball at Wheelwright and after his graduation from Georgia Southern University returned to Wheelwright to coach. In 1961 his Wheelwright team represented the 15th region in the state tournament, losing in the quarter-finals to Ashland high school which went on to win the state championship.

Mr. Wallen's mother, Mrs. Maggie Wallen, resides at Wheelwright.

VOLUNTEER WORKERS from over the county met at a "kick-off" dinner held recently at Martin for the 1973 American Cancer Society's annual fund-raising and educational drive which is now under way.

Cancer Crusade Gets Under Way After Kickoff Dinner at Martin

The 1973 Cancer Crusade in Floyd county got underway last Tuesday evening with a kick-off dinner held at Martin. Volunteers who will canvass their neighborhoods were given materials for the drive which is to be concentrated during April 1 through the 10, but may be conducted later in the month in some areas.

Jim Carter, of Prestonsburg, assisted by his wife, is Chairman of the Floyd County Chapter, American Cancer Society's fund-raising and educational drive. Mr. Carter also acted in this capacity last year.

cancer tests; then, our volunteers will ask people to fight cancer with whatever they can afford, so that the American Cancer Society's vital programs of research, education and service to the cancer patient, can continue and expand.

People in this county will be receiving copies of the Society's 1973 leaflet, "Annual Checkup—It's a Lifesaver," as the Crusade gets underway. This pocket-sized item includes a handy checklist to remind people of the ingredients of a checkup—and an appointment memo blank to remind people to have that checkup.

Anyone who is not personally contacted by a volunteer may send contributions to Jim Carter, Crusade Chairman, Prestonsburg.

This April the American Cancer Society's annual educational and fund-raising Crusade is expressed in a great wish—"We Want to Wipe Out Cancer in Your Lifetime."

"We'll try to make that wish come true in two ways," Carter explained. "First we'll be asking everyone to have annual health checkups including important

PROVIDE TREATMENT
Among many other rehabilitation services, Easter Seal societies nationwide provided diagnostic treatment and services for speech, hearing and related disorders for some 60,000 persons last year. This was made possible largely through contributions to the Easter Seal Campaign which, in 1973, begins on March 1 and continues through April 22.

OFFER VARIED PROGRAM
Most Easter Seal Societies have an Information, Referral and Follow-Up Program which provides advice and guidance to assist parents, employers and other persons in understanding and accepting the handicapped and in finding needed treatment for them. Call your local Society and give to the Easter Seal Campaign, March 1—April 22.

Switch to Smaller Trucks Not Expected To Go Far

Frankfort, Ky.—A few firms on the fringe of the Eastern Kentucky coal field are switching to smaller trucks to haul coal but an industry spokesman doubts the move will go far.

Gov. Wendell Ford and some of his aides have talked of the switch to smaller trucks as an indication they might finally be "getting a handle on" a permanent solution to the overweight coal-truck problem.

But Fred Luigart, Jr., president of the Kentucky Coal Association, said he knew of no such switch by members of his association, which produce the bulk of the coal mined in Kentucky. He indicated he felt such a switch by those producers was unlikely because of the higher costs that would result.

The only companies which apparently already have begun buying smaller trucks are in Pulaski, McCreary and Whitley counties, none of which is a major coal-producer.

Those same three counties also happen to be served by circuit judges who have dealt firmly of late with coal interests in such cases. Those judges are Lawrence Hail in Pulaski county and Pleas Jones in McCreary and Whitley counties.

Firms switching to smaller trucks in those counties apparently were prompted by a renewed state campaign to force the coal-haulers to comply with weight limits. That effort was led by Atty. Gen. Ed Hancock and joined by the old Highway and Motor Transportation departments, now merged into the new state department of transportation.

One company that has completed the switch to smaller vehicles is the Ryan Creek Coal Co., of Oneida, Tenn., which has operations in McCreary and Whitley counties in Kentucky.

Roger West of that company acknowledged frankly in a telephone interview from Oneida that the switch was made "to try to avoid a conflict with (Kentucky) state officials." He said the company started moving to get smaller trucks "nine to 10 months or a year ago."

West said his company has had the huge 73,000-pound trucks off the roads in McCreary and Whitley counties for six months. It now has a fleet of 25 trucks that weigh in at 44,000 pounds loaded, he said, which he described as being "right on the nose" in meeting the weight limit of that amount on roads they use.

Ryan's Creek Coal Co. still has a special permit from the state Highway Department to operate trucks weighing up to 73,000 pounds for those operations but West said the permit was not needed now. The one-year permit, which is the form they usually take, was obtained last June.

Ekard and Bandy Co. and Catawba Equipment Co., two trucking firms in Pulaski county that are owned by the same individuals, are just starting to make a similar switch to smaller vehicles.

Bobby Ikard, secretary-treasurer of both companies, said only one trucker has been traded in for a lighter vehicle so far but he anticipated all would be within a few months. The companies now have 18 trucks.

That one truck already obtained, however, still weighs 62,000 pounds when loaded, which is 27,000 pounds over the maximum limit of 35,000 pounds assigned to the roads it uses. The companies also have the special permits from the Highway Department to exceed the weight limits.

To get the permits, the coal-hauling companies have to post bond to cover damage caused to the roads involved.

Ikard said his two companies were the only firms hauling coal in Pulaski County now, with several others quitting after Hancock's office obtained an injunction in Pulaski circuit court.

Joe Glenn, enforcement officer in the state Transportation Department, said Wednesday "several other" companies have come into his agency talking about switching to smaller trucks. He said he could not remember their names, however, nor where they were operating. Luigart said it would be costly to switch from large to smaller trucks because that would mean hiring more drivers and making more runs a day.

The basic issue, he said, was "how much more cost the coal companies can take." The recent additional costs he cited were the state severance tax, expenses under the federal Coal Mine Safety Act and higher workmen's compensation rates to cover black-lung claims.

He also said he did "not necessarily concur" in the belief that smaller trucks would mean less damage to the roads. Any gains from lighter loads, he said, might be offset by the greater number of trucks on the road and more runs made by them.

"In fact," he said, "the effect might end up being worse."

What To Do In April

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD
(UK College of Agriculture)

April is more than a month of "sun and showers and pretty wildwood flowers." It is also the month when gardening fever reaches epidemic proportions and there is a great hustle and bustle to get the plowing done and seed in the ground.

On this last point there is some need for caution. In the haste to get the land prepared, don't plow or dig it up too wet. Working the ground when it is too wet often puddles the soil and destroys its crumb structure, leaving clods that will hinder cultivation later on.

Also, frosts can still come in April. So in an effort to have the first fresh vegetables in your neighborhood, don't get too hasty about setting out certain plants, especially tomatoes and sweet peppers. Delay setting out these plants until about May 5; this is the recommendation of Extension garden specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Another bit of caution to exercise in April is this: Don't let the gardening fever get the best of you. At the onset of this "disease" there is usually a great outburst of energy and enthusiasm, symptoms that unless treated with large doses of planning and determination, will last only until one planting of each vegetable is made. Then as time flows on and spring and summer temperatures increase, this energy and enthusiasm diminishes in direct proportion. If this is permitted to happen, there will be no second and third plantings and, of course, no continuous supply of fresh vegetables from early spring until late autumn.

While it may be best to go a bit slow with the planting of tomatoes and peppers, there are some summer vegetables that can be planted in April with a good deal of safety.

These are beans, beets, carrots, and sweet corn. The UK garden specialists recommend April 20 as a good bean planting date. They also recommend bean plantings at two-week intervals from April 20 until August 1.

In the old garden tradition, Good Friday was regarded as one of the best bean planting days of the year. Many old time gardeners observed this custom religiously in the firm belief that on Good Friday the Devil had no power for evil over the soil.

Beets and carrots can be planted in early April, but wait until about April 15 to plant sweet corn. To assure a continuous supply of roasting ears all summer and later into the fall, the specialists suggest planting early, mid-season and late varieties, so all the corn will not mature at the same time, and then planting more sweet corn seed at about two-week intervals until about July 25.

And if any gardener failed to get his strawberry patch set out during March, there is still time in April to do this job.

Some garden flowers that can be sown outdoors in April are snapdragons, asters, alyssum, calendula, mignonette, dianthus, poppy, cosmos, nasturtium, annual phlox, verbena and ageratum. Marigolds can be planted late in the month and sowing of sweet alyssum can be made twice a month until July. However, most gardeners probably will have more success with these flowers if they buy bedding plants from their horticultural supply store instead of sowing the seeds themselves.

While working the garden in April, keep on the lookout for big earthworms. Save a few of these in a can filled with soil. Then when the opportunity arises during the month, grab a hook, line, pole, and the can of worms and hie away to the pond or river. Don't neglect the garden but remember the words of Old Izaak Walton, the patron saint of anglers: "Allah does not detract from the allotted span of man those hours he spends at fishing."

Ratliff Forms Band Bass Fishermen Tackle Pollution

Donnie Ratliff, of Cincinnati, formerly of Dwale, has formed his own rock band, "The Rainbow's End," and the group has met with considerable success in the Cincinnati area. Besides 24-year-old Ratliff, who plays electric bass guitar, the group consists of Marty Burns, lead singer; Tim Nixon, drums; John Laswell, organ and piano, and John Andrews, lead guitar. The band is presently playing at Cincinnati's popular Annette's Lounge and recording plans are in the making.

Donnie is the son of Mrs. Raymond Goble, of Dwale, and is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School.

There are about 2,500 known species of snakes.

At least 10,000 Kentuckians are hooked on bass fishing. About that many avid anglers gathered recently at the second annual fishing seminar at the Frankfort Convention and Sports Center.

Five well-known professional fishermen—Ray Scott, Bill Dance, Tom Mann, Yank Dean, and B. J. Woods—took turns topping each other's fish stories. They also shared their knowledge of the latest bass-catching equipment and techniques.

The fishermen watched several films on their sport. One film, with excellent underwater photography, showed a six-pound bass shaking loose from the hook after a three-minute fight.

The seminar was sponsored by the Bluegrass Bass Club of Lexington. The proceeds, about $2,500, will be donated to the Kentucky Bass Federation for use in preventing water pollution in the state's lakes and streams.

About a third of the audience sported jackets bearing emblems of various Kentucky bass clubs. Clubs heavily represented at the seminar included the Frankfort Bassmasters, Capital City Bass Club of Frankfort, Thoroughbred Bass Club of Lexington, Central Kentucky Bass Club of Lexington, Dixie Bass Club of Lexington, Hillbilly Bassmasters of Ashland, Shelby County Bassmasters of Shelbyville and the Woodford County Bassmasters of Versailles.

The new state Environmental Quality Commission has endorsed a plan to upgrade Kentucky's streams to meet the state's highest water-quality standards. The plan will eventually provide better recreation on all Kentucky streams, including fishing and swimming.

Gov. Wendell Ford has suggested phasing of ambulance licensing regulations to prevent undue hardship on Kentucky citizens. The Governor has asked Laurel True, secretary of human resources, to meet with the licensur board in April to explore possibilities.

McDOWELL HIGH STUDENTS WORK TO RAISE MONEY

Students at McDowell high school are working to raise money for cheerleader supplies—and a unique program sponsored by the Colgate-Palmolive Company is helping to pay the bill.

Called the Colgate School Action Plan, it is a simple program involving junior and senior high schools in a 13-state area-including Kentucky. It enables any school to obtain cash for worthwhile new projects or school improvements, in exchange for Colgate boxtops and labels. These are valued from 3-cents for a regular size bar of soap to 30-cents for a family-size box of laundry detergent.

Apr. 1-7 Designated National FHA Week

April 1-7 has been designated National F. H. A. Week.

The Future Homemakers of America organization plays an effective role in the educational system by keeping members involved in activities that benefit them not only as individuals but as family and community members. It serves as a bridge between the classroom, the home and the community and is the key for developing the potential of each individual member for a productive life.

The 105 members of the Prestonsburg high school F. H. A. Chapter have been involved in a number of worthwhile activities this year.

The year opened with a display at the Floyd County Fair, followed by a school-spirit project in which some of the girls made posters to boost the ball teams, and displayed them throughout the high school. In November, the members were busy collecting enough food for the Dora Lee Children's Home Thanksgiving dinner. Again in December the girls worked for this home at Salyersville by collecting a used T. V. set, toys and clothing which were mended and cleaned.

Recently the girls made 90 bibs for the Veterans Hospital as a joint effort with the Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club which furnished the materials used. In the planning stage is an Easter project for the children's home.

Officers of the Prestonsburg Chapter are:

President, Terry Ford; first vice-president, Minnie Branham; second vice-president, Frieda Vaughn; secretary, Martha Shepherd; treasurer, Nadine Johnson; historian, Wilma Foley; parliamentarian, LaQuilla Hunt; reporter, Carolyn Carr; recreation leader, Josephine Hackworth; song leader, Patricia Clark.

Mrs. Janet Rowe serves as faculty adviser.

TO REPAIR BOAT DOCK

Parks Commissioner Ewart Johnson has promised immediate action to repair the heavily damaged boat dock at Kentucky Lake in time for the spring fishing season. Johnson visited the lake after winds which had battered the facility did damage estimated in excess of $1 million. There was also extensive damage to private boats docked at the park's facility.

New Division Considers Effect Of Roads on the Environment

By BONNI BROCKMAN

Frankfort, Ky.—Thomas Scott shut the window firmly, blocking out the sounds of the traffic below.

"That's the problem around here," he said, grinning. "I'm concerned with both noise and air, but when I block the noise out, I don't have any air either."

Considering the effects of new roads on current noise and air pollution problems are two of Scott's concerns as director of Environmental Systems, a division under the Office of Transportation Planning in the newly-created Kentucky Department of Transportation. The division's aim is to soften the environmental impact of new highways.

"We will examine the side effects of new highway construction and make an effort to keep the bad side effects to a minimum," said Scott, former associate assistant state highway engineer in the Department of Highways, now part of the Department of Transportation.

The division was established to conform to a 1970 federal requirement that each state's highway agency establish an action plan which states how it will consider the social, economic and environmental effects of new federally financed highway projects.

"For example, we have to consider the existing noise level before the department builds a new highway," Scott explained. "In some cases a new highway decreases the noise level. The construction of Interstate Highway 64 reduced the level of traffic noise in St. Matthews."

Another goal of the division is to "recapture the art of the past, when roads blended in with the environment," Scott continued. "However, natural systems of the earth have to be disturbed when a road is being built. The same thing is true no matter what you build. There's no other way to do it."

Environmental Systems will be working with the Planning Division to identify the social, economic and environmental factors of each of the planners' proposals for a new highway.

"When a new road is constructed, there are both advantages and disadvantages," Scott said. "We will try to accentuate the positive effects."

A primary benefit of a new road is helping workers get to their jobs easier.

Environmental Systems consists of the public coordination, socio-economic and ecological sections. Seven employees are in the divisions now, although several more may be added, Scott said.

One of the division's aims is to look at highways from the public's point of view, he continued.

"We will try to provide viewpoints that simulate what the public might have to say," Scott explained. "We'd like to have the public's opinions on the way we are developing highway projects. We can be objective—we're in the Department of Transportation, but our job is to protect the public's interests."

Scott, a registered professional engineer, received a B. S. in civil engineering from the University of Kentucky in 1956. Employed with the state highway department since 1949, Scott has been a district highway engineer in Paducah.

determined cuts can be expected in other manpower financing programs. Louisville and Jefferson county, however, will get a greater share of the reduced funds under the former manpower training and war on poverty programs. The revenue sharing in these areas for the city and county will increase from nearly $1.9 million this fiscal year to $2.1 million next fiscal year, he said.

A major goal of the state Manpower Council will be to improve on a rather poor record of job placements for tens of thousands of Kentuckians who have special social, economic and educational barriers to employment, he said.

It is expected that 287,154 such persons (outside Jefferson county) will apply to state agencies for aid next year with only three out of 14 of these expected to be helped to jobs, Furr said.

Furr said that the federal manpower programs have proliferated in the last decade until now there are 11 pieces of federal legislation calling for 23 major programs that involve five federal agencies and 11 state agencies.

In Kentucky there now are four different agencies administering adult education programs, for example, he said.

The state council's goal would be to let each of the 11 agencies handle the programs in which it is best.

Meanwhile, it is hoped that a system can be found that will permit a person in need to go to a central place where he will either be given a job, referred directly to the proper training program or given the needed supportive service such as transportation, health care or child care to free him to work, Furr said.

The members of the council serve without pay.

Laurel W. True, secretary of the Human Resources Cabinet, will serve as chairman of the council and will provide a staff to carry out the work of the council, Ford's executive order said.

Other members of the council are: As client representative members: Michael Horn, Louisville; Arthur Walter, Louisville; Raymond Smith, Louisville; Mrs. John M. Evans, Lexington, and Roy McDonald, Cadiz.

As business, labor and local-government members: Don Doty, Glasgow; William Neal, Owensboro; John Koon, Louisville; Clifford Farwell, Walton.

State officials as ex-officio members: Commerce Commissioner Damon Harrison; Corrections Commissioner Charles Holmes; Child Welfare Commissioner Evans Tracy; Economic Security Commissioner Gail Huecker; Dr. John Ragland, associate dean for extension at the University of Kentucky; state Supt. of Public Instruction Lyman Ginger; Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Commissioner Thomas Harris; Health Commissioner William McElwain; Labor Commissioner James Yocom; Mental Health Commissioner Dale Farabee and Personnel Commissioner Cattie Lou Miller.

OOPS!

Under deadline pressure newspapers often are great examples of sloppy writing. But few of us harried scriveners can hold a light to this one which is reported to have come from a church bulletin:

"Tuesday at 4 p.m. there will be an ice cream social. All ladies giving milk, please come early."

IN COMPLETE AGREEMENT

Back around the turn of the century the famous Sledge revival swept Prestonsburg, and from it the present Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church originated.

The large number of converts included some of the best-known residents of Prestonsburg and vicinity, but none was as famous (or infamous) as the old feudist, Clabe Jones. Then in his declining years, Clabe was baptized in the Big Sandy river, one of many immersed by the Rev. Sledge.

In the years prior to his conversion this Mr. Jones was everything but Christian. He and "Bad" Talt Hall had a long-standing misunderstanding which brought on a series of ambushes and shootings. His pistol, "Phoebe," pinfire Forty-Four which Newt May, of Prestonsburg, now has, bore 12 notches. It was this Mr. Jones who, with the help of other feuding spirits, caused Troublesome Creek in Knott county to be known, back then, as Bloody Troublesome.

George Brown, of Prestonsburg, throws a little added light on the uneven tenor of Clabe Jones' ways. Those feud days coincided, in part, with the first great rape of Eastern Kentucky's mountains when the finest hardwood forest in the world was despoiled and floated by raft down the Big Sandy and Kentucky rivers.

That was in the heyday of old Front Street and its Saloon Row in Catlettsburg. Most timbermen from the Big Sandy section stayed, at the conclusion of their downriver trip by raft, at a certain hotel there, and Clabe Jones wound up at this old hostelry, one night. He registered at the desk but didn't pay his bill in advance.

Next morning when the guest came downstairs and walked past the desk to leave, the clerk inquired, "Haven't you forgot something?"

Clabe reckoned he hadn't, but the clerk insisted that he had. So the old feudist turned on him and began taking inventory.

He patted his hip. "Got my gun." He felt in a pocket. "Got my knife. Got my knucks." Then felt his inside coat pocket. "Got my liquor . . . No, reckon I ain't forgot nothin'."

"Reckon you're right," the hotel clerk agreed.

To Appear in Concert Here

Adrienne Doucette will appear in concert at Prestonsburg Community College, April 11 at 8 p.m. in Pike Auditorium. During her performance she will sing from Broadway musicals, folk and rock songs, and selections from plays which will be presented at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre this summer.

Miss Doucette has appeared at Carnegie Hall, in the movie, "Me, Natalie", and on stage through the United States. She has performed at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre and will open as "Miss Kitty" at Operlyland, Nashville, next month.

3-Day Song Fest. Pancake Day Set

Two events are scheduled this week at the Martin United Methodist Church. Pancake Day, sponsored by the Youth Group, will be held in the church basement from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and a three-day song festival will be held at the church, beginning Friday and concluding Sunday. Song sessions will begin each day at 7:30 p.m.

said selection of waste disposal sites remains to be made. To date, the county has been using the city dump at Pikeville. The Pike system has in the last three months added 1,500 customers.

Rutherford said the franchise contract calls for a minimum pick-up of once a week, and a maximum monthly charge of $3. He said the service provided has already been extended to several areas throughout Pike County, and will be county-wide as soon as possible.

Caudill Fined $50 After Beer Confiscated

Democratic Women Plan Benefit Dinner

The Floyd County Democratic Woman's Club will sponsor a fund-raising dinner at the Plantation Restaurant Sunday, April 15, from noon till 7 p.m.

The proceeds will go to the state Democratic Party, to help pay off campaign debts and assist in the building of a new state headquarters, and to the local clubs' scholarship program.

Mrs. Dee Burchett, president of the club, said State Committee-woman Martha Layne Collins, of Versailles, will be present during the day to welcome guests.

All local Democratic candidates for office are also invited to attend, she said. Tickets may be bought at the door, or from any club members.

The club initiated the scholarship program last fall and plans to give a grant each year to a Floyd county young person who has actively worked for the Democratic Party to attend Prestonsburg Community College. The local winner would also be eligible for participation in the state Democratic Women's Club scholarship program, which each year gives a scholarship to any state college or university.

IN APPRECIATION We thank all our friends and neighbors for the food, flowers, cards, help and sympathy shown us upon the passing of our loved one, Elijan (Tena) Hall. We especially thank the Merion Funeral Chapel for its efficient service and kindness. We extend a special thank-you to the Providence Regular Baptist Church and the Regular Baptist ministers, members and friends who were present at the home services for our loved one during his illness and upon his death. By ED W. HANCOCK
Attorney General of Kentucky

If you've ever asked, "Why doesn't the government do something about the hazardous products sold to consumers?" your voice has been heard. As of December 26, 1972, the Consumer Product Safety Commission has been established.

The new agency, established by the Consumer Product Safety Act, has the authority to set safety standards for products and to ban those products presenting a real hazard to consumers.

The new agency is headed by a five-member commission appointed by the President and confirmed by the U. S. Senate for seven-year terms. The commission is advised by a fifteen-member Product Safety Advisory Council made up of five members from Government, five members from industry and five members from consumer and community organizations.

The commission, under this structure, has the general responsibility for the safety of most consumer products. However, it does not have the responsibility for food, drugs, cosmetics, automobiles and toxic substances, including insecticides. These products already come under the authority of other Federal agencies.

According to the new law, the agency is responsible for protecting consumers from hazardous products. To do this, Congress has given the agency authority to:

—Develop and issue mandatory safety standards for consumer products;

—Ban a consumer product if it is determined that no safety standard can adequately protect the public from the hazards involved in using the product;

—Use court action to seize an imminently hazardous product from the warehouses or stores or to stop the product from being sold;

—Require manufacturers to certify that their products meet safety standards and require product labeling that indicates the date and place of manufacture and the manufacturer's name;

—Require manufacturers, once a safety standard has been issued, to give public notice of existing hazards in their products, which may still be in stores or already in the hands of consumers;

—Prohibit extra stockpiling of a non-complying product before a safety standard becomes effective.

Along with regulating consumer products, the agency has two other functions: (1) to collect information relating to the causes and prevention of injuries due to consumer products; and (2) to conduct studies, investigations and tests of consumer products.

Under certain provisions of the new law, you, as a consumer, can participate in enforcing product safety. The law gives you the right to petition the commission to issue, change or revoke a safety standard. You may also seek court action to enforce a safety standard and sue the manufacturer for damages if injury results from violation of a consumer product safety standard.

Violations of safety standards established by the agency can result in civil penalties of $2,000 for each offense and a maximum fine of $50,000 for multiple offenses. Criminal penalties of $50,000, a year in jail, or both can result if a manufacturer or distributor knowingly violates a safety standard by either making or trying to sell a hazardous product.

If you have a consumer complaint or problem, you are invited to call the Consumer Hotline, toll-free, at 1-800-372-2960.

Governor Ford Proclaims Clean-Up, Beautification Month

Gov. Wendell H. Ford has proclaimed April Kentucky Clean-Up and Beautification Month, urging all Kentuckians to exert effort and care to keep the state clean and beautiful.

Governor Ford called Kentucky the most beautiful of the fifty states and said that "A cleaner and more beautiful Kentucky proves our appreciation of God-given natural beauty and develops respect for beauty in our youth."

"A more beautiful Kentucky will attract new industry and tourists, and will benefit every citizen through clean, beautiful highways, parks, towns, and cities," Ford said.

The annual Clean-Up and Beautification Month, sponsored by the beautification program in the Division of Special Programs, Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, emphasizes local projects to clean up communities.

Many projects planned for April are being coordinated by members of a statewide citizen advisory committee on beautification—Make Kentucky a Cleaner, Greener Land Committee, Inc., in cooperation with the state's environmental agency.

Thomas O. Harris, commissioner of the environmental agency said, "The results deriving from this group's efforts are indicative of the accomplishments that can be realized when there is cooperation between government and civic organizations."

"We in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection," said Harris, "are extremely pleased with the group. They really do live up to their name. They do make Kentucky a cleaner, greener land."

Harris recalled a national award for beautification won by a Kentucky county last year. The Hardin County Environmental Council won the 1972 Keep America Beautiful County Award, for a 44-point program they carried out.

This year the state's beautification program is concentrating on expanding the citizen advisory committee. There is a member in almost every county in the state and about 70 members on the executive council.

Additional information on beautification may be procured from the Beautification, Division of Special Programs, Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, Capitol Plaza Tower, Frankfort.

April 28 also marks National Keep America Beautiful Day when Boy and Girl Scouts traditionally conduct clean-up campaigns.

Unionization is generally lower in areas with less than 250,000 population than in metropolitan areas where earnings of union members are higher than those of nonunion workers in all except white collar occupations.

Environmentally Speaking

by THOMAS O. HARRIS COMMISSIONER Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection

WATER RESOURCES

The water resources program in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection has to keep up with a lot of water, since Kentucky has more miles of streams than any other state except Alaska, as well as many lakes and a humid climate.

I'm proud of the strides we have made in finding out how much water we have in the Commonwealth of Kentucky, where it is, and who's using it for what. We've also made progress in making sure people living along our waterways are relatively safe from floods.

Our water resources program works closely with the federal government to promote flood control work through both structural and non-structural methods. The staff is presently working with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in the development of dams - a structural flood control method. Non-structural methods include encouraging communities to zone their land so building is not done in a floodplain.

Our water resources staff also works with the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in the Flood Insurance Program. Communities which pass ordinances controlling building certain structures in a floodplain are eligible for the flood insurance.

I am also proud of the water resources permit systems and inspection system. Through the water withdrawal permit system, we determine the water supply requirements in Kentucky. Anyone wishing to commercially withdraw, divert or transfer water from any stream, lake or ground water source must obtain a permit.

Through the construction permit system and investigations, the water resources staff insures that structures built on Kentucky rivers and lakes are safe. About 140 permits were approved last year and we have become more active in inspecting dams. We plan to inspect the over 300 dams in Kentucky this year to affirm their safety.

We also review federal proposals and work with the Army Corps of Engineers in their development programs, as we are now doing on the Cave Run Dam and Eagle Creek Lake projects.

I feel we have made considerable progress in our water resources program and that we will continue to do so. I believe the results of our water resources studies will allow Kentuckians to make the best use of their land.

Second Area Code Slated for Virginia

Phill Scott, local South Central Bell manager, announced last week that the telephone company will establish an additional area code in Virginia, beginning June 24.

"Virginia now has only one area code, 703," Mr. Scott said, "but growth in the state and an increasing need for telephone service necessitates dividing the state in two area codes."

The new area code is 804, and it covers the southeastern portion of Virginia, including Richmond, Newport News, Charlottesville, Danville and Lynchburg. The northeastern portion of the state will retain the 703 area code. The boundary line between the 804 and 703 areas will extend from a point adjacent to Fredericksburg through the Blue Ridge Mountains to the area adjacent to Martinsville.

UK Physicist Says East Ky. Nation's Best Place To Live

"Kentucky, as far as I'm concerned, is the best place to live in the United States. Especially eastern Kentucky, a region unequalled for beauty in the country."

Dr. Fletcher Gabbard, recently named chairman of the Department of Physics and Astronomy at the University of Kentucky, added, "And the people, too, are unique, possessing a basic honesty, openness, congeniality, consideration for others, and loyalty."

A native of Sand Gap, Jackson county, Dr. Gabbard earned his BS from UK and both MA and Ph. D. degrees from Rice University. He has written more than 20 articles for technical journals, including "Nuclear Physics."

His trip from Sand Gap elementary school to chairmanship of the state university's physics department was made possible, he said, by fine teachers in Jackson county who encouraged his interest in intellectual things and by strong friends in college.

To Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Shuster and Mrs. Hays, of McKee high school, go his thanks for early help. Dr. Gabbard is the first member of his family to finish high school. To friends at Eastern Kentucky University—James Fothergill and Fred Miller of Carrollton, John M. Brabant of Elkton and George M. Black of Richmond—to more thanks for intellectual companionship during college years at Eastern.

Gabbard transferred to UK in 1950 and graduated two years later.

"J. G. Black influenced my life very much, by arousing my interest in physics. He had a nice way of presenting the subject," Dr. Gabbard said. Dr. Black is a retired physics professor at Eastern. At UK, where he finished requirements for his BS, it was Drs. Cochran, Kopius and Webb who encouraged him.

Dr. Lewis Cochran, of UK, then a physics professor and now vice president for academic affairs, advised Gabbard to go to graduate school.

After Rice University gave him a scholarship, Gabbard was drafted, but "I enjoyed the Army," because "in my group there were different kinds of people. And the Army does a good job of assigning people to jobs where they have experience."

Dr. Gabbard owns land on Hooron's Branch, near McKee, in Jackson county, the same land deeded to a pioneer Gabbard as a land grant. The property is surrounded on three sides by the Daniel Boone National Forest.

Gabbard's great grandfather, John Wesley Gabbard, settled on Indian Creek in Owsley county, later moved to Jackson county.

"Anytime you meet a Gabbard," said the physics professor, "he'll be from Owsley or Jackson county."

He plans to take his family, which includes two young sons, to camp on the Gabbard land this spring and summer. His parents, Delta Cook and Moss Gabbard, still live in Jackson county, where his father still does some farming.

He has been secretary and president of the Kentucky Association of Physics Teachers. He belongs to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Sigma Xi, and the American Physical Society.

He currently is serving as president of Scientists and Engineers for Appalachia, which is "interested in general improvement of the quality of life in the Appalachian region, partly through efficient utilization of resources, partly through encouragement of economic development."

If God Be For Us?

(Romans, chapter 8)

Thanks to God and a neighbor, Mr. Arvie Burchett, I have another American flag to display with my Christian flag, and they are both back up on the porch. I don't have to have those flags to be a Christian American. I have them because I am a Christian American.

God's eye is ever on us, no matter who we are or where we are, for God never sleeps. And your reward can be Jesus and Heaven. I am praying for the one who took the flag, for the tower of power is prayer, and God is the tower. He has all power and he answers prayer, and there is no energy crisis there.

Daily I tour the unholy land, pleading for the soul of man, for Jesus Christ, the perfect winner who loved and died for all lost sinners. (John 3).

Remember Sodom and Gomorrah! God says the just shall live by faith—that's why I live by faith and not sight; because, when I thought I was living I was merely existing, and through it all I have learned it really is human to stand for the world but truly divine to stand for Jesus.

It is written in Jesus' name for others by Mrs. Loucille Montgomery, a friend to Jesus, 22 E. Burchett St., Prestonsburg, Ky.

Keep Child Resistant Containers—Child Resistant

The purpose of dispensing medicines in what are called "child resistant" containers is to substantially cut down and try to prevent the ever increasing number of accidents involving children and drugs. But, this purpose is defeated when a child is given an empty medicine container with which to play.

It does not take a child too long a time of experimentation to figure out how to get an empty container open. The next time it could be one that is full. Give your children a break and buy that extra time a child-proof container gives you when they haven't had a chance to find out how it works.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Your Vote and Support Will Be Greatly Appreciated.
LINZIE HUNT, Chairman
4-4-2t-pd.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE
I am a candidate for the nomination on the Democratic ticket for the office of State Representative in the 94th district.
I was reared on Pond Creek at Huddy, Kentucky and worked for Eastern Coal Corporation and Republic Steel as a miner for ten years. The last twenty-six years I have operated "Faith's Dairy Bar" in Pikeville, Kentucky. I am a sober man and have worked hard all my life.
If I am elected, I will devote my full time to this office for the next two years. I would like to be your contact or go-between with the Legislature so that individuals or organizations could bring your problems to me. I will take no other job that will interfere with my duties as Representative. I have nothing personal I want from this office and have no relatives on the state payroll.
Thousands of you people in District 94 know me. If you don't know me, inquire about me and then decide.
TO THE VOTERS OF HAROLD AND MUD CREEK IN FLOYD COUNTY: After talking with many people in your area, I have found that you are dissatisfied with being joined with Pike County to make a legislative district. If elected, I promise to try to join you with the rest of Floyd County. The court has now ruled this can be done.
Thank you,
JOHN M. PHILLIPS

Coming: Wildflower Time
By HELEN PRICE STACY
Whatever the weather above ground, nature is already deep into spring with a multitude of roots that are ready to push through the soil. April can be expected to cover Kentucky mountainsides and valleys like a bolt of calico printed with blue phlox, firepinks, wild ginger and bluets.

of Betsy Layne, candidate for
MAGISTRATE, DIST. 4
Democratic Primary
I ask your vote and support of my candidacy for Magistrate. Formerly of Mud Creek, I now reside at Betsy Layne. I do heavy and highway construction work and am now working on new U. S. 23 in Floyd county. I have been vice-president of the Local Union of all heavy and highway construction in Eastern Kentucky. I am the working man's friend.
I will go to the Fiscal Court of Floyd county and work to get your county roads and bridges built and repaired—this I promise to do immediately, if elected. I need your vote, and you need me to represent you for the next four years. Your vote will be appreciated. Thank you.

in the Whitesburg office of her lawyer-author husband, Harry M. Caudill, spring seemed miles away to the south. Pine Mountain was swathed in a foggy mist and tree trunks without leaves looked gaunt and ghostly.
But Mrs. Caudill is used to spring in the mountains and knows that by April 20 Pine Mountain will be blooming with violets, showy orchids, trillium, trout lily, bloodroot, hepatica, spring beauty and anemones.
Mrs. Caudill said that April 20 will be the beginning of a "Wildflower Week-end" at what was formerly called the Pine Mountain Settlement School. "The school is now known as the Pine Mountain Environmental Education Center," she said.
The rustic stone and log buildings, and the 800 acres of mountain forest land, are no longer a part of the public school system due to consolidation. The structures and grounds are now a center of nature study and community activities.

"Many families and groups use the area for camping and special classes and programs," said Mrs. Caudill. "Though individuals are welcome, especially for the wildflower week-end, the facility is ideal for groups."
She gives much credit for development of the environmental center to Burton Rogers, long-time director of the school, and his wife, Mary.
"They can tell you about every tree and flower in the area. Both take an active lead in education programs which study the flora, fauna, geology and natural history of the Cumberland Mountains."
Registration for the Easter Sunday week-end begins at 4 p.m. Friday, April 20, and continues through the evening.
After registration and dinner opening day, a slide program will be presented. Saturday's events start with an "early bird" walk, followed by morning and afternoon field trips. The Saturday evening program will be directed by Dr. Mary Wharton of Georgetown College and Dr. Roger Barbour of the University of Kentucky, co-authors of the book, "Wildflowers and Ferns of Kentucky."
In addition to a hike on Easter morning, a special sunrise service will be held in the center's beautiful stone chapel.
The center is located on Ky-221 north-east of Pineville. For reservations and other information write Peter Westover, Pine Mountain Environmental Education Center, Pine Mountain, Ky. 40864.

Damron's Grouper In Miami Tourney Wins Recognition

He was fishing out of Marathon, with Capt. Richard W. Grathwohl as guide. He will be awarded a citation for his catch at the close of the tournament.

You KNOW it!

"Look at it! You'd think a power plant like that would cost a fortune. But we're getting it for only 125 million."

When somebody says a new electric generating station costs 125 million dollars, we almost have to have some kind of reaction. We might try crying. That's a ton of money. Or, of course, we can laugh. That's the "after all, it's only money" approach.

But most of us are impressed with 125 million of anything, certainly 125 million dollars. It reads like a lot in words. And in figures, it looks like this: $125,000,000.00. Compare that number to our salaries and most of us find it rather long.

But why fool ourselves. What choice do we have?

Not many of us would be willing to return to kerosene lamps, outhouses, hand pumps, washtubs and iceboxes. We've gotten used to our radio, TV, newspapers and magazines. Also our toasters and milking machines, vacuum cleaners, fans or air conditioning.

And that is the choice: Back to the second class citizen days of having less than our city brothers or paying what it takes for electricity.

Luckily, when we spread the payments over enough of us for enough years, the cost of electricity — even with its increases — is still a good deal. But gone are the days when we can talk about getting electricity for practically nothing. It costs a bundle to generate it and deliver it.

Good management of our cooperatives will keep the cost as low as possible, but it's time to talk about the "reasonable" cost of electricity instead of its "low" cost.

Meat Boycott Effect Slight Here, Claimed

The meat boycott, initiated nationally in protest against high prices, has touched Prestonsburg but its effect is negligible.

Managers of three of the largest food markets here concurred in saying the boycott thus far has cut into beef and pork sales little if any at all.

One of the store managers interviewed said the effect of the boycott was very light, and wryly added, "We sold a lot of meat, the last two weeks." He pointed out that prices were down last Friday morning but that they rose to their former level that afternoon after the President had ordered a price ceiling. Hogs at the market were $7 per 100 pounds last Thursday. Monday, they were back up to $9. He predicted that canned meats will be the next target.

At another store Sunday sales were normal, then on Monday were "a shade off," but the overall effect was reported as almost nil. Only one or two customers there had boycotted meat purchases.

At the third store questioned the manager said, "It hasn't hurt our sales." The picture, nationally, was spotty—sales off heavily in some cities, only slightly in others.

The stores interviewed locally are Kroger's, Piggly Wiggly and Thompson's IGA.

Luxury accommodations on some of China's trains include thermos containers kept filled with hot tea.

Safety, Sanitation Is Object of Rules

New regulations the State Board of Health has adopted under the Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicle Park Act of 1972 were developed to improve safety and sanitation at both new and old parks, says Denis Gibson, sanitarian at the Floyd County Health Department.

The Act itself, passed by the 1972 General Assembly, requires park owners to obtain a permit to operate from the State Department of Health in Frankfort. It also requires anyone planning construction or enlargement of such a park to submit plans and obtain a permit to build before construction begins. An application and the required $25 fee that helps cover the cost of process and review must accompany the plans. After the plans have been approved and the construction permit issued, the park must be built according to the approved plans. Then a permit to operate can be granted.

The new regulations for mobile home parks, which became effective January 12, 1973, specify what should be included in a mobile home park before a permit is issued. Some of the changes apply only to new parks, Gibson says. For example, a new requirement that each mobile home lot shall contain a minimum of 4,000 square feet applies just to new parks or alterations to existing parks. However, regulations requiring that all mobile home lots be identified by number and that the numbers be displayed in some systematic order will apply to both new and old parks.

Other changes to improve safety and sanitation at the parks include specifications for adequate lighting, wider streets in new parks and a requirement that homes in new parks be placed on adequate foundation stands. A new regulation specifies that connections between the meter box and mobile home must be suspended or buried in a nonhazardous way.

"We have copies of the new regulations and permit application forms at the Floyd County Health Department," Gibson says. "And if you need more advice and assistance, you can contact the Environmental Sanitation Program at the State Department of Health in Frankfort."

Spring Is Time For Wild Greens

By HELEN PRICE STACY
The picking of greens in spring is as old as Boonesborough, where frontier women supplemented a diet of corn, wild game and pork with the same greens the cows chewed.

Poke sallet is a term familiar to Harlan countians and others who eat this mountain soul food in spring and preserve great amounts for a Poke Sallet Festival later in the year. Green, transparent and tender shoots of poke grow throughout the highlands. At about the same time tiny tree buds begin to appear, poke is pushing through the ground to become a seasonal delicacy for the table.

Highlanders have practiced for generations what modernists have come to call organic farming. In most instances, greens are easy to farm, most of them reproduce without help from man.

"My favorite green was always creasies," remarked a Morgan countian. "You can find them only on new ground and new ground is hard to come by these days."

There was a time when a farm woman walking along a country lane with a basket over her arm and a knife in her hand was a common sight. Often with a child or two at her side, she was intent on picking enough wild greens to feed her family. While cooking them, she put in a piece of bacon or salt pork for seasoning the dish. Sometimes, when the greens were bitter, she drained off the first liquid. When forked from the bowl, a cruet of vinegar was at hand to lace the dish.

A newlywed in Johnson county wanted to "make" her first garden this year, make soap, dye cloth with walnut hulls and tree bark. She also wanted to gather greens—but she did not know which plants were non-poisonous.

She was advised to visit the oldest people in her neighborhood and ask them what greens to gather and what to leave alone.

Hill women throughout Appalachia and the Cumberlands know that dandelion, plantain, cress, wild mustard and poke are excellent greens, not only tasteful for those who have a liking for down-to-earth eating, but nutritious food.

One woman explained that her husband always picked greens in early spring. "He put in his basket or paper sack a leaf or two of everything including mullein, tender blackberry briar leaves, white daisy leaves and a few blades of common grass." She laughed, "We always had plenty of yard grass for his eyes weren't too good."

Among other edible wild greens are pusley, lambsquarters, wild lettuce, evening primrose, dock, buttercup and shepherds purse.

One thing pointed out by oldtimers is a necessity to get to know wild plants.

A Kentucky spring is rediscovering what's green and beautiful; what blossoms are pink, what white; what are wildflowers for viewing and what are green plants for eating. With a minimum of effort today's generation can discover what yesterday's knew all along, that health giving foods are growing along hill paths, in fields and in furrows from last year's plowing.

The BANK JOSEPHINE
PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY Member F.D.I.C.

Dr. Lyman Ginger, superintendent of public instruction, has announced plans to increase emphasis on vocational education at all levels in Kentucky. The plan outlined by the superintendent includes expansion of vocational schools as well as an increase in vocational education at the lower levels.

Governor To Shun 'Hard' Regulations For Ambulances

Frankfort, Ky.—Feeling the deep concern of every Kentuckian for emergency health services and particularly ambulance regulations, Gov. Wendell Ford has expressed his personal concern that action not be taken to place undue hardship on current providers of ambulance services.

At the same time, Ford expressed his conviction that regulations are needed. "State government is deeply committed to the solution of this problem and is currently involved in three major areas," Governor Ford said. These areas are training and technical assistance, purchases of services and equipment, and licensure and regulation.

More than 400 emergency medical technicians were trained during 1972 in a cooperative program involving the State Health Department, Department of Public Safety, colleges, universities, vocational schools and health resources throughout the state.

"Our goal is to train over 400 additional technicians this year, with 24 courses offered at 16 locations throughout Kentucky," the Governor said.

Utilizing various federal grant programs, Kentucky has secured funds and assisted local governments and other groups in the purchase of 42 modern, fully equipped ambulances to serve 26 counties. Approximately 15 additional ambulances will be purchased this year.

The state has utilized numerous federal funding sources to develop area-wide communication systems that are in place in 16 counties, with an additional 22 counties to be completed in late summer, the Governor reported.

With regard to licensure and regulation, the Governor said, "I will not debate whether or not the regulations adopted by the board are appropriate, but I will defend state government's responsibility to assure to the citizens of the Commonwealth that ambulance services meet the necessary minimum standards to assure an acceptable quality of care."

The Governor terms the regulations established by the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board "realistic goals—representing the quality of emergency medical transportation service that every Kentuckian deserves to have available."

"It would be unwise and inappropriate, however, if in pursuit of this goal, we disrupted existing services to the people or caused undue hardships on current providers that have rendered invaluable services for many years and under most circumstances at no charge to the patient," the Governor said.

Ford has instructed the secretary of human resources to meet with the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board at its regular meeting in early April to study the feasibility of developing a phased plan that provides for levels of services.

800 Attend Career Day Program

Eighth grade students listen to Dr. Alfred Patrick, of Eastern Kentucky University, discuss career opportunities in the business field.

Prestonsburg Community College recently hosted a Career Day program for approximately 800 Floyd county eighth graders. The program, which was coordinated by Mrs. Carolyn H. Francis, admissions and financial aid officer at the college, and the guidance counselors at the various schools, was designed to stimulate the students' interest in the various careers and, hopefully, reduce the dropout rate of students.

Each student attended four sessions concerning occupational outlooks, vocational careers, careers in the areas of business and mental and allied health.

Next year, the program will be expanded to include eighth graders of surrounding counties.

UK Year For Action Gets $73,000 Grant

University Year for Action—a year-long program which allows University of Kentucky undergraduates the opportunity to work outside the Lexington campus and earn 30 hours of academic credit—is now a year older, and wiser. It functioned last year in Floyd and 28 other counties.

A $73,000 grant from ACTION, the citizens volunteer service corps, was announced recently. It will provide financial assistance to the program for the coming year.

"The University Year for Action program provided multiple benefits for the University, our students and the Commonwealth in its first year," UK President Otis A. Singletary said. "And we look forward to an even better program."

A five-member evaluation committee which recently submitted its final report on the University's youngest and newest attempt at interdepartmental and intercollegiate programming concluded that, "the University has much to gain in the development of a philosophy and an orientation to sound implementation of programs in experiential learning."

Sixty UK students were enrolled in the program last year. These included five students in agriculture, 10 in architecture, 12 in arts and sciences, 12 in education, eight in law, 13 in social professions, and one in medicine, a special assignment of short duration.

UYA students helped serve—both directly and indirectly—approximately 50,000 low-income people in Kentucky. As a consequence, more than 35 agencies and communities in Kentucky have requested students to work in their respective programs.

The University UYA office estimated some 300 UK students would be needed to fill the current requests.

Student assignments last year included work in the following Kentucky counties: Anderson, Bourbon, Boyle, Casey, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Cumberland, Estill, Floyd, Franklin, Garrard, Harlan, Harrison, Jessamine, Knox, Leslie, Letcher, Lincoln, Madison, Mercer, Nicholas, Perry, Powell, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Scott, Wayne, and Woodford.

In addition, some 20 students worked with agencies in Lexington and 12 were in Louisville.

Assignments in agencies this year include the following Lexington agencies: Lexington Community Design Center, Hunter Foundation, Kentucky Child Advocacy Council Tenant Services, Public Assistance for Higher Education, Re-education Center, and Blackburn Correctional Institute.

Students working with the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund work both in Fayette and Floyd counties.

Louisville agencies include the Louisville School System, Louisville Community Design Center, Legal Aid Society of Louisville, and HUD.

Other Kentucky agencies are Kentucky Department of Law, Franklin county; Farmer's Home Administration, Knox county; Mountain People's Rights, Knox and Harlan counties, and Appalachian Film Workshop, Letcher county.

During the first year, the University program dealt mainly with short-term projects in which tangible results might be measured at the end of the student's assignment.

In this way, UYA sought to "counteract the assumption that this was merely a way for the University to use communities as learning labs," and "to increase awareness of the means by which university resources might be used in the process of solving community problems."

$2.4 Billion Water Resource Development Plan Is Stalled

Huntington, W. Va.—A three-year-old report recommending $2.4 billion for water resource development in Appalachia's 13 states sits in some Washington office; the victim of apparent bureaucratic infighting.

The 25-volume study, compiled by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers in conjunction with numerous federal and state agencies, was submitted to the Appalachian Regional Commission in 1970. There it languishes, due to what one ARC spokesman called "one hell of a big hassle."

The report's fate is an involved tale: —It and a supplementary report by Secretary of Army Stanley Resor was published in early 1970, as authorized by a 1965 Appalachian Act.

—The ARC has since refused to send it to Congress, demanding that environmental impact statements be supplied by the Corps.

(The Corps of Engineers answers by charging certain states and key federal agencies with not supplying initial letters of comment to a 1972 draft of environmental impact findings, making a final statement impossible.)

—The 92nd Congress last year grew impatient and passed authorizing legislation for 11 specific water development projects contained in Resor's report—without providing funding legislation for the necessary $500 million.

—President Nixon pocket vetoed the legislation.

—This year, the 93rd Congress again is considering passage of its Rivers and Harbors Act. The measure, similar to the bill vetoed last year, has already been passed by the Senate and is expected to clear the House easily.

The report is cited by the Corps as unique, in that it delves into sociological, historical and economical aspects of the 195,000 square miles of New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi called Appalachia.

"We normally don't get this involved in regional development," said Charles McIntyre of the Corps Huntington District planning division. "But the legislative act was interpreted to mean we must come up with something to boost Appalachia."

In a cover letter to his supplemental report, Resor wrote, "in my report, I have highlighted these issues, recognizing that the Appalachian Regional Commission is in a unique position to compare water resource programs with other alternatives for improving the Appalachian region."

He classified the two reports as efforts "to take action to alleviate the deep rooted problems of the Appalachian people."

Viewing economic growth as the principal objective of water resource development, the report also deals extensively with natural resource conservation.

It takes into consideration more than 100 major projects and 500 upstream watershed programs.

In setting its priorities for "early action" measures, to be realized within 10 years of authorization, the report lists:

—Water quality improvements, especially pollution abatement from mine drainage (chiefly in Pennsylvania and West Virginia).

—Improved flood control where it will encourage early economic development and relief of chronic suffering in areas of persistent hazard.

—Development of facilities for water-based recreation and for fish and wildlife.

The exhaustive study, five years in preparation, met with little publicity when published.
