

US Aid Ban May Affect Water Plan 3 Water Districts Could Lose Supply, Is View Held Here

If the federal government persists in its policy of refusing help to municipal water systems, three proposed rural systems in the Prestonsburg vicinity may have to find a water supplier other than Prestonsburg.

That situation was indicated as a possibility last week by William O. Goebel, Sr., chairman of the Prestonsburg Municipal Water & Gas Commission.

Mr. Goebel pointed out that the Prestonsburg plant already is operating at 75 per cent capacity, is committed to supplying water to approximately 50 new customers of the Parkway Water System on Middle Creek when and if it is activated, and that operation above 75 per cent of the plant's full capacity is approaching the "danger point."

Since the non-participation policy as to federal aid is in effect and expansion of the Prestonsburg plant to twice its present million-gallon capacity would cost more than $800,000, the expansion would inevitably result in higher water rates for Prestonsburg consumers, Goebel said.

"And that," he added, "we (the commission) consider unfair to the people of Prestonsburg."

Water systems to serve Bull Creek, David and Abbott Creek have been proposed, and if the situation is unchanged all three might be forced to look elsewhere for a water supply.

But Goebel said some hope lies in a new-type filter that has been suggested to the commission. The manufacturer claims the filter will handle twice the volume of water processed by the filters now in use. If this is true, he said, use of these filters and addition of a pump might increase the water plant volume to 1,500,000 gallons a day at a cost of around $150,000 instead of the $800,000-plus that has been estimated for doubling the plant capacity with filters such as those now in use.

"All this is problematical," the commission chairman explained. "We are going to have to see this filter, know all we can about it and contact plants where it is being used to see how effective it is before we make any changes."

Youth, Near Death from Shock, Hurls No-Hitter 10 Days Later

Two weeks ago, young Gene Calhoun was seconds from death by electrocution in a whirlpool bath at Prestonsburg high school. He was unconscious when rescued from the water which was charged with 220 volts of electricity after a motor had shorted out. Fourteen stitches were required to close a gash in his jaw; two more for a cut in his neck.

The 6-3 senior was in delirium as he was loaded into an ambulance, but not entirely so. Still struggling for air, the youngster said, "I've got to pitch a ball game today."

That was on May 17. That afternoon, his face bandaged, he was back in school, still determined to pitch the game scheduled against Allen Central high for the district championship.

Rain mercifully intervened that afternoon, and the next day Calhoun—"all charged up," he jokingly remarked—was on the mound for his team. Prestonsburg won, 7-3, and Calhoun pitched a five-hitter, striking out 12.

Then, last Saturday, 10 days after his brush with death, Gene achieved the dream of every pitcher. He hurled a 3-0 no-hitter against Virgie in the regional tournament at Johnson Central high school, Paintsville.

His fast ball is hummin', and that's something his coach, Fred Setser, would never have believed possible during those frantic moments when the youngster lay helpless in the grip of electric voltage.

The coach was knocked across the room when he touched the boy in his first attempt to pull him from the tub, but he fortunately stopped within arm's reach of the switch. After that, Ed Radjumas, who also was an onlooker, administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

It's not only Gene Calhoun's ability to throw a baseball that has his coach high on him as a brilliant prospect for professional ball. His dedication and determination are overriding factors.

Says Setser:
"I don't think I've ever seen anybody with such courage. I can't describe what he's got, but I do know I wish I had a dozen athletes who have whatever it is."

Holiday Campers Create New Village

While Prestonsburg parking lots were almost deserted on Memorial Day this was the scene at the camping area maintained by the U. S. Corps of Engineers at German, on Dewey Lake. Cars, campers, tents, with their occupants from several states, made of the camping area a sizeable community during the holiday week-end.

Patton Jailed On Rum Charge; Prisoner Flees

Kenneth Patton, of Hueysville, was charged Friday in Magistrate Bill Wells' court with illegal possession of intoxicating beverages after State Trooper Phillip Tucker had found 55 cans of beer and 15 pints of wine in a search of his premises.

Jimmy Douglas Fairchild, of Sugar Loaf, was sought during the week-end after he fled custody of the jailer Saturday night as he was being committed to jail on a drunkenness charge. It was said that Fairchild ran down the stairway from the third floor of the courthouse and eluded pursuit.

This Town . . . That World

FROM "LUNCH" TO "TENTERHOOKS"

Although I have never known exactly what "lurch" means when they say somebody has been left in it, I have been left in the middle thereof by this Monday holiday thing.

If you doubt the truth of that statement, just try your hand at getting a newspaper together, with the courthouse closed, every known news-source neither at office or home, the Monday blabs working overtime to clog up the old nose for news, and more of same promised for the next day.

I have an idea, this Monday afternoon, that there's a lot going on over this county, on the eve of a primary election, but it will elude print. You can't set down in a news column the anxieties of a candidate for office as he faces "de day." You'll be lucky if you get into type the little dramas unfolding out there is a score or more of voting precincts where money is being proffered to the weak in mind, backbone and resources as candy is offered to a child; or where dark stratagems unfold and disappointments mount.

Maybe I'm trying to fill this space with mental vagaries. But I think not. I am disgusted with the holiday-makers who have moved everything up till Monday on the pretext of affording everybody a long week-end. Mainly because what they have done to me. I forgave FDR for Franksgiving. I let them get by with what they did to Armistice Day, and to Washington and Lincoln and Jeff Davis. But this year, with Kentucky changing its primary election date to Tuesday, the long, long week-end of Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday has me on tenterhooks—whatever tenterhooks are.

Superintendents To Compile List For ROPES Help

Superintendents of schools in the 11th region of ROPES—the Regional Organization for Providing Educational Services—have been asked to prepare and file with the ROPES office here by Friday of this week a list of priorities for educational programs desired for their districts.

In this way, it is explained, the ROPES leadership will be provided information as to individual district educational needs in the order of their importance. Reo Johns, Region 11 director, said ROPES will then work with each district to get these objectives of each district into action.

During the meeting last Thursday at Porter elementary school, Johnson county, the ROPES directors were told by Dr. Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction, that two priorities—special education programs and elementary guidance counseling—are being observed at the state level.

Mr. Johns requested each superintendent in the region to submit a list to the ROPES office of any teachers who will not be re-employed for the 1973-74 school year. He explained the lists will be disseminated to other superintendents who might be seeking teachers.

Johns announced that ROPES is (See Story 6, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Two-County Office Change Advantages Cited by Robinson

Change of the location of the Division of Forestry's Floyd-Magoffin Ranger Unit headquarters from Allen to the old Girl Scout camp in Jenny Wiley State Park will mean cooperation with park rangers and closer proximity to county officials in Prestonsburg, Douglas Robinson, unit ranger, said last week.

Mr. Robinson also announced that the two county forest guards, Wess Campbell and Tilton Johnson, will be doing house-to-house contact work over the county to discuss with citizens forestry laws and the importance of forest fire prevention. Reforestation also will be emphasized.

Although the spring season has been marked by frequent rains, holding clearing and burning to a minimum, 547 acres of woodland had been burned over in the county as of last week. The guards said citizens have been very helpful by calling and reporting fires, thus enabling them to get to fires quickly and prevent their spread.

Club Schedules Fishing Tourney At Dewey Lake

The Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club has rescheduled its first annual fishing derby for next Sunday (June 3) after high and muddy waters had aborted the original derby May 6 date.

Gerald Jones, club president, said the derby will be conducted on a team basis—two men to a boat, and their combined catch counting for them as a team. The only individual prize to be awarded will go to the fisherman who catches the largest bass of the day.

Fishing will begin at 6 a.m. Sunday, and all participants must be at the Jenny Wiley boat dock, headquarters for the derby, ready for the weigh-in, by 7:30 p.m. No bass under 12 inches will be accepted in determining winners. All bass must be caught by rod and reel.

Two Garcia 5000C reels will go to the two-man team winning first prize, and two tackle boxes will be awarded to the runnerup team. A stainless steel thermos jug will be awarded the fisherman who produces the largest bass caught during the official fishing period.

Only members of the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club are eligible to enter the derby. The entrance fee per team will be $5. Fishermen may enter the derby by contacting Gerald Jones, William Dingus or Irvin Harris, or they may register Saturday at the boat dock from noon to 3 p.m.

'Gas' Shortage In Eastern Ky. Held Possible

In some parts of the country Memorial Day travelers were warned they might have to shop around for enough gasoline for the drive home, but not so in this county.

Gas rationing remains for this section something to read about, but there are those who predict that it's nearer, even here, than many think.

All distributors are already operating on gasoline and diesel fuel allocations, in most cases these allocations being set at the same volume sold during the same month last year, or during the preceding year.

In any event, there's no prospect of more gasoline being available this year than last—and there are more cars on the road, and the new cars with their anti-pollution devices and air-conditioning are using more gas than ever.

Marvin Music, Gulf distributor here, said some of his dealers were closed Sunday and Memorial Day. He added that the allocation program is set up for the next eight months to include next December. "If we get extra gas, it will be distributed, percentagewise, to our customers."

James Pelphey, Paintsville, Standard Oil distributor, said he doesn't expect any particular problems to materialize before August, which is the peak driving month. He is on allocation and is not adding any new customers.

Vote Tab Shows Lewis, Reynolds Among Winners

Official returns of Tuesday's election, except for the less than 100 absentee ballots cast, gave the following results:

W. J. Reynolds, incumbent, leading James "Jitter" Allen for Representative by 122 votes; Joe Wheeler Lewis over his nearest opponent for Sheriff, Henry C. Hale, by 2,512 votes; Constable Kenneth Roberts for Magistrate, Dist. 2, over Magistrate Zeb Ounsley by 85 votes; Bill Wells, incumbent, for Magistrate in Dist. 1 by 511 votes over his nearest opponent, Mrs. Barbara Slone; Dewey Roberts for Magistrate in Dist. 4 by 270 votes over Tex Mitchell, his nearest opponent.

Level Hall won by a wide margin for Tax Commissioner over the present commissioner, Harry Gordon Allen. Jailer Lawrence Hale easily won the Democratic nomination for the same office, and so did Coroner James J. Carter, candidate for re-election.

Official results in other races were not available at The Times' deadline.

Floyd county was spared its daily threat of rain till 3 p.m., election day, but the bright weather failed to bring the voters out to the polling places in great numbers.

At that time only 170 persons had cast their ballots at No. 2 precinct here. A (See Story 5, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Suspect Posts $5,000 Cash Bail On 'Dope' Count

The circuit court term now in session pertains to civil cases, but two cases from the criminal docket have been handled during the month—and one of the two involves the grand jury's recent probe of the drug situation here.

James Boggs, who was indicted on a charge of possession and sale of narcotics, came here May 14, accompanied by his father, and posted $5,000 cash bond for his trial appearance. Court attaches said the Federal Bureau of Investigation had joined the search for Boggs, who disappeared from his Prestonsburg residence shortly before police raided the premises and prior to the grand jury action.

Lawrence Amburgy entered a plea of guilty to a charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon, and was fined $50.

Headed for hearing at a later civil court term is a $122,745 damage suit filed last Wednesday by three persons against Marvin Akers, alleging that it was his careless and negligent operation of his automobile which caused a collision with their car and resulted in serious injuries. The wreck took place on Branham's Creek, April 25.

Larry Leonard Kidd seeks $25,000 for loss of earning power and $30,000 for suffering. Kidd also sues as next friend and father of one-year-old Larry Douglas Kidd, for whom $10,000 damages are asked. The third plaintiff, Lois Kidd, seeks to recover $5,000. Medical bills and damages to the Kidd auto are included in the total asked.

All Was Quiet at This Precinct

It was a very, very quiet election at Prestonsburg Precinct No. 2, Tuesday morning, as a boy dozed in the sun outside the voting-place and supporters of various candidates waited to hand voters campaign literature.

Letters to the Editor

Dancing for the Parade Later

The patriotic dance held at Garrett high school gymnasium May 19 was an outstanding and colorful event.

Miss Janie Bailey sang the National Anthem. Mrs. Marcella Bailey, founder of the idea, read the D.A.V. chapter news honoring both the Disabled American Veterans and the Ladies Auxiliary. The members gathered on the floor while Mrs. Bailey gave a brief rundown on all the good things the chapter was doing and how its membership has grown to a total of 425 members. The Ladies' auxiliary has contributed greatly to the growth of DAV Chapter 128. They have worked hard at lunch stands numerous times to make money to use for a worthy cause.

Both DAV and auxiliary visited veterans' hospitals with gifts and services to veterans.

One of the latest contributions of chapter 128 and the Auxiliary was the presentation of four portable televisions to Veterans Hospital, of Huntington, W. Va. during Christmas of 1972. It is a worthwhile organization and meets every two weeks at the Garrett high school, and anyone who wishes to join, they will meet again Friday, June 1 at 7 p.m.

As one of their contributions the auxiliary helped sponsor the patriotic dance and the DAV's are helping with the Red, White and Blue Parade coming up Oct. 20.

The patriotic dance was a great success. Everyone just had a good, old-fashioned time; a night of good, clean entertainment. One bit of happiness was to see the mother dancing, holding her baby in her arms, then her husband would take turns holding it while they danced. They both got to dance and enjoy the evening and knew their little one was being cared for also. This is my idea of a great America; what we need more of today. Candidates and their wives were there forgetting politics while square dancing, and one of the candidates was calling the set. My niece, who is 12 years old, said, "Marcella, we enjoyed watching all the older people dancing which we don't see to often." Music would start; what wasn't square dancing, others would be doing their "own thing," hoe down, Charleston, or what have you. They just danced and everyone was so happy. No trouble at all. State police commented that this was a nice community and he was very proud.

We crowned "Little Miss Patriotic" Tammy Lynn Brown, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Lee Brown, of Martin. She will be riding for America in our parade this fall. People donated red, white and blue cupcakes and a beautiful cake, baked as a flag, was donated and auctioned off.

There is one veteran I want to recognize for all his hard work. He's a local boy who has made good, he lives away but loves to come back home and help out. He gave so freely of himself helping with the little Ruth Ann Moore benefit show. He said to me, "I've read in the Floyd County Times about the parade, and I want to know more about it." He was interested and I told him I needed financial help, so he helped me get everything set up for our dance. He really has worked hard, free of charge, and is looking forward to coming home and riding on a float in the parade. His name is Tennyson Turner—a fine, young man, one who loves his country. I want to thank all the other musicians who showed their true colors by performing—Gheard Martin and the Beaver Valley Boys and board members and their families from Bowling Green, John Conley, Don Jones and the Comancheros.

Louisa Hospital, Medicaid Loser, Quits Operation

One Louisa hospital closed last Friday because Medicare benefits have been terminated, and the closing of the other hospital there may be imminent for the same reason.

The closing comes 11 months before the expected opening of the Louisa Community Hospital, now under construction.

The closing of the 40-bed Riverview hospital was announced by Dr. Paul T. Brinzentine, administrator. The 41-bed Louisa General Hospital faces closing for the same reason, but Dr. Phillip Carter, one of its owners, said it has adopted a wait-and-see position. He said it may close or may elect to remain open on a private basis, accepting only cash-paying or insured patients.

Dr. Brinzentine said the patients at Riverview may be transferred to the Highlands Regional Medical Center here, or to Ashland and Huntington hospitals. Huntington hospitals, it was said, already have a waiting period of up to three weeks for patients not on an emergency basis, and the use of facilities there may also be further curtailed by the fact that a Huntington doctor would have to accept the patient before he could be admitted. Medicare's cancellation with the two Louisa hospitals resulted, primarily, because of inadequate fire protection, it was said. Medicaid is expected to follow suit.

Professional and non-professional medical personnel thrown out of work by the Riverview closing numbers about 70. If both hospitals close, Louisa will lose a $500,000-a-year payroll.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH

Perkins Begins NYC Fund Drive

Rep. Carl Perkins has kicked off an all-out effort to fund the Neighborhood Youth Corps, saying that "youngsters who want to work, and need a summer job so they can go back to school September ought to be helped."

The Congressman said that if the Administration has its way, "a lot of youngsters in Kentucky—and all over the rest of the country—are going to be walking the streets with nothing to do, and we can't let that happen."

Perkins cited reports from Kentucky counties showing that in some cases approximately 25 percent of the youngsters who would have returned to school to finish their educations next September will not be able to, unless Neighborhood Youth Corps funds are forthcoming.

"The sorriest thing about this—besides what it is doing to young people—is the way the Administration is going about it," Perkins said.

"They're taking about $711,000 coming from the Labor Department this summer, but they aren't saying that $711,000 is just a drop in the bucket compared to what we need in Kentucky."

"We got $6,328,000 in Neighborhood Youth Corps money last year, and that put more than 15,000 young people to work. The $711,000 would put 2,500 youngsters to work, and that's a far cry from over 15,000," Perkins said.

"And the Administration is talking about taking $300 million out of another program called the Emergency Employment Act for young people, but that's just playing tricks with government funds," Perkins said.

"We passed the Emergency Employment Act to get older people and Vietnam veterans into temporary employment which would lead to a regular full-time job," he said.

"Now the Administration comes along and wants to take this money away from fathers and mothers and older brothers who fought in Vietnam—and give it to the school children. What that would do to the families should not be happening in America," Perkins added.

"The answer to this problem is for the Administration to go ahead and allocate the money for the Neighborhood Youth Corps that the Congress has already authorized and appropriated," Perkins claims. The President signed the bill with the money in it, but now he wants to rescind those funds—and we can't let him do that, because these youngsters should not be treated that way, Perkins said.

Speaking on the House floor, Perkins called for $476,800,000 as the figure needed nationally for Neighborhood Youth Corps, and told the House that at the very least $318,250,000 should be appropriated. That was the amount of last year's Neighborhood Youth Corps appropriation.

KEA Researcher Says Kentucky Lagging Further on Education

Louisville, Ky.—If Kentuckians put the same percent of their personal income into public schools as the percent average spent by people in all states, that effort would raise $119,130,000 more for elementary and secondary education in Kentucky.

Data published in the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) Research Unit's new annual edition of "How Kentucky Ranks" show 4.1 percent of 1971 personal income of Kentuckians went into local and state revenue for public schools. The national average was 5.2 percent.

KEA public relations and research director Charles Whaley said the statistics show Kentucky is falling behind in the already lagging effort it makes to support schools.

Last year, he explained, Kentucky schools would have gained an additional $79,208,000 if citizens had matched the national effort. This year the effort gap has widened to the point that Kentucky schools are failing to realize an additional $119,130,000—or $39,922,000 more than the previous year.

Although the effort gap has widened, Kentucky continues to hold its low rank of 46th among the states in the category labeled "local and state revenue receipts for public schools as percent of personal income."

At the same time, however, Kentuckians have moved up one notch—from 43rd to 42nd place—in per capita personal income. Kentucky's 1971 figure was $3306. This is 79.5 percent of the national average of $4156. For the previous year Kentuckians had a $3073 per capita personal income.

Whaley also pointed out that Kentucky ranks 12th in the percent of increase in per capita personal income between 1961 and 1971. The Kentucky increase was 96.4 percent compared with a national increase of 83.5 percent.

How Kentucky Ranks, 1973" draws on data from the National Education Association (NEA) research report entitled "Rankings of the States, 1973." It shows Kentucky's relative standing in 129 categories.

In per capita spending Kentucky ranks 46th for elementary and secondary schools, 17th for highways, 28th for public welfare, and 33rd for higher education.

The per capita expenditures are by state and local governments for the 1970-71 school year, the latest year for which complete information is available for all states.

Per capita spending for Kentucky public schools is $151.45 compared with a national average of $202.49. For highways Kentuckians spend $110.10 per capita compared with the nation's $87.73.

For welfare, Kentucky's per capita spending is $62.28 compared with $88.36 for the nation. For higher education Kentucky spends $67.25 compared with the nation's $71.68.

Per pupil spending in Kentucky is estimated at $693 for 1972-73, ranking the state in 47th place—down one notch from the previous year. The national average is $1034.

Kentucky also ranks 47th—the same as last year—in its estimated 1972-73 salary average of $7825 for classroom teachers. Last year's average was $7362.

Whaley said the salary average is misleading, however, because an estimated 58.5 percent of Kentucky's teachers are paid below $7500.

He also noted that all seven states bordering Kentucky pay higher teacher salaries. The average teacher salary for the seven bordering states is $9359, which is $1534 more than Kentucky's $7825.

The percent of Kentucky teachers who are men has grown from last year's 26.6 percent to 28 percent, according to the KEA research bulletin prepared by Mrs. Floye Perkins, assistant director of public relations and research.

The bulletin also records Kentucky's worst-in-the-nation standing in median years of schooling completed by the population 25 years and older, based on the 1970 U.S. Census.

In that category Kentucky ranks 50th, with 9.9 median years. The national median is 12.1 years. (Median means half are above the line and half are below.)

As for its dropout rate, Kentucky is making a better showing. Of its fall, 1968, ninth graders 70 percent were graduated in 1971-72, ranking the state 42nd in the nation. Nationally, the figure was 78 percent.

Kentucky's previous year rank was 47th, when 68.7 percent of its ninth grade entrants were graduated.

The KEA research bulletin groups its 129 tables under 10 major headings—population, enrollment and attendance, teachers educational attainment, general financial resources, governmental revenue, school revenue, governmental expenditures and debt, school expenditures, and miscellaneous.

Rediscover Kentucky History

This year, instead of driving hundreds of miles to some faraway resort, why not see Kentucky by way of the historical highway marker route?

For Kentucky residents such a tour would save many gallons of gasoline and provide a mini-course in history; for out-of-staters, the markers can be a guide to the background of the people, places and things that make-up the proud heritage of the Commonwealth.

For those who plan to tour the state via the markers, the Kentucky Historical Society's "Guide to Kentucky Historical Highway Markers" is an invaluable aid. The book can be found in most Kentucky State Park gift shops.

Here's a quick preview of the interesting facts the markers can relate:

In McLean county a marker honoring James and Edward Rumsey states that the first steamboat on the Green River, the "Lucy Wing," was built at Rumsey in 1846 by the Jones Brothers.

A marker in Russellville, in Logan county, attests that seven residents of the county became governors; John Breathitt, James T. Morehead, John J. Crittenden and Charles S. Morehead, all Kentucky governors; Richard Call, governor of Florida; Ninian Edwards, governor of Illinois, and Fletcher Stockdale, governor of Texas.

Muhlenberg county, according to a historical marker, is the birthplace of Jonathan E. Spilman, who wrote the music for Robert Burns' "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton" while a student at Transylvania Law School. In the 1800's Spilman's tune was also adapted for the popular "Away in a Manger."

Do many people know that a Campbell county native who graduated from West Point in 1882 was inventor of the "Tommygun"? Brig. Gen. John T. Thompson is credited with inventing the famous Thompson sub-machine gun. Honored for his inventive skill, Thompson died lamenting the use of his gun as a gangster weapon, according to a marker located in Newport.

Red Bird Mission, a church-oriented institution in Southeastern Kentucky, is named for Chief Red Bird, a Cherokee who befriended early settlers. Chief Red Bird is memorialized by a marker in Clay county.

How many students of history know that David R. Atchison was a U. S. President? Born in 1807 at Frogtown, Fayette county, Atchison was president for one day, from the end of Polk's term until the inauguration of Taylor.

In Owingsville, a marker discloses that the Owings House was built by Benjamin Latrobe, who redesigned the interior of the Capitol in Washington after it was Henry Clay attended a grand ball in the Owings House, built for Col. Thomas Deye Owings in 1811-14. In 1814 Prince Louis Philippe (or "someone posing as the Prince") was a guest in the house.

Prince Louis, exiled from France, and Aaron Burr were among celebrated guests in the Love House on Wapping and Wilkinson streets, in Frankfort. The Love House no longer stands but a marker on its site says it was the site of the first meeting of the Kentucky Legislature in 1793.

In Daviess county a marker pays honor to Bill Smothers (William Smeathers), who made the first permanent settlement at Yellow Banks, now Owensboro, in 1797-98.

Other facts brought out by markers indicate that Linkumpinch was a famous dueling ground in Simpson county, that Gen. George Custer's forces were in Hardin county in 1871-73 to suppress the Ku Klux Klan and carpetbaggers and that "Honest Bill from Olvie Hill" was Governor William Jason Fields of Carter county.

Visiting the sites of Kentucky's historical highway markers could be a sort of traveling history lesson; and it just might turn out to be one of your best vacations ever.

Opinion Is Asked on Raising Of Homestead Exemption

FRANKFORT, KY.—A Louisville House member said he has asked the attorney general's office for an opinion on whether the $6,500 homestead exemption for older persons may be increased to offset inflationary factors.

Kentucky voters in 1971 approved a constitutional amendment exemption from property taxes the first $6,500 of the assessed value of owner-occupied residential property for those 65 and older.

amount or is it subject to modification and adjustment in the light of inflation? Quickert noted the Court of Appeals has ruled in favor of such adjustments for compensation of public officials.

If the dollar amount exempted is variable, is the change automatic or must it come by legislative enactment? In either event, Quickert said, he wants to know what standards can be used to determine the exempted portion.

Rep. Frank Quickert, a Democrat, asked for the advice, saying that Jefferson County recently has undergone a complete reassessment "which has served to significantly decrease the net economic benefit of the homestead exemption."

Quickert said all other counties are expected to face the same question of whether reassessment will erode the benefits to elderly homeowners.

Non-Tenure Cuts May Not Consider Seniority Rights

Seniority considerations do not apply to non-tenure teachers when a school district is forced to reduce its teaching staff because of a shortage of funds, the Attorney General's office has told the Kentucky Education Association (KEA), recently.

KEA general counsel John J. Slattery, Jr., has asked for the opinion because of the prospective loss of federal-aid programs for Kentucky's public schools under the Nixon Administration's proposed budget.

The opinion, written by Assistant Attorney General Carl Miller, said that "when a shortage of funds necessitates the reduction of teaching personnel the only statutory preference granted is to teachers with a continuing contract (tenure)."

"The school board upon the recommendation of the superintendent may re-employ or not re-employ such teachers as have a limited (one-year) contract provided those not to be re-employed are notified by May 15," Miller added.

Miller said that if a school district's program is so reduced that there are not enough positions open to employ all teachers who are on tenure, "then continuing contracts must be suspended for some teachers and the seniority of the teachers shall determine a preference."

Drift Club Installs Officers

Drift, Ky.—The Drift Woman's Club held its annual installation dinner in the clubhouse, May 21. Mrs. William Hoffman was in charge of the dinner and Mrs. Belford Reitz served as hostess. Mrs. Glenna Mae Stumbo used the poem, "God Lives in Kentucky," as an evening devotion. Following the dinner Mrs. Ruby Akers gave highlights of the club's activities during the two years she served as president. Mrs. William Hoffman, delegate to the Kentucky Federation of Women's Club convention, presented Miss Akers with a 100 percent Achievement Certificate and a citation from the Heart Association for 21 years' participation in the Heart Fund drives.

Mrs. Harry Martin, chairman of the Club Woman of the Year committee, spoke of the difficulty involved in determining the recipient of the award because all members had participated in some project during the year. Mrs. Lloyd Stumbo related the activities undertaken by the Health and Welfare committee and the Clubwoman of the Year award went to Mrs. McKinley Little, chairman for her outstanding work in coordination the many facets of this committee and her untiring efforts in carrying them through. Mrs. Little was presented an engraved silver serving dish.

Miss Akers presented the guest-speaker, Mrs. Oscar C. Sowards, past president of the Kentucky Federation. Mrs. Sowards challenged the club to keep up its excellent work. She urged all clubwomen to attend the Southeastern Council conference to be held September 24-26 at the Galt House in Louisville.

Mrs. Sowards installed these officers for 1973:

President, Mrs. Bill Ward; first vice-president, Mrs. Sophia Cahill; second vice-president, Miss Ruby Akers; recording secretary, Mrs. McKinley Little; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Larry Stumbo; treasurer Mrs. William Hoffman.

Miss Akers presented Mrs. Ward her club President's Pin and a gift to Mrs. Sowards. Mrs. Ward presented Miss Akers an engraved silver tray for her service to the club during the 1971-1973 club years.

The following attended the meeting:

Mrs. Oscar C. Sowards and Mrs. John Faulkner, of Pikeville, Miss Ruby Akers, Mrs. Isabel Reed, Mrs. Glen Ward, Mrs. Sophia Cahill, Mrs. Demoris Martin, Mrs. Bill Ward, Mrs. McKinley Little, Mrs. Lloyd Stumbo, Mrs. B. F. Reed, Mrs. Glenna Mae Stumbo, Mrs. Nick Cooley, Mrs. Clyde Moore, Mrs. Belford Reitz, Mrs. Harry Martin, Miss Marcella Shelton, Mrs. William Hoffman.

Plan Would Fine Coal Operators For Damage To Roads

A new state plan that would make coal operators responsible for damage done to roads by independent coal trucks was unveiled Friday night at a meeting of Coal Operators & Associates at Pikeville.

The proposal would allow operators to post their own bonds in the amount of $4,000 for trucks with two rear axles and $2,000 for trucks with three rear axles. Their liability for road damage would be limited accordingly, and they would be assessed for repairs periodically.

Secretary of Transportation Elijah Hogg sent a special representative to the meeting to explain the plan and to report back to Frankfort the reaction of the operators.

The lesser bond for three rear axles is being ordered to encourage use of more than two axles, thus distributing the weight load and causing less road damage. Assets of each company will serve as surety on the bonds.

Bob Holcomb, president of Coal Operators & Associates, said he had invited all Eastern Kentucky coal operators and truckers to the meeting. Permits for overweight hauling and bonds will be available at highway district offices, June 10.

Holcomb said, "After this date I caution all operators not to hire or use trucks that are not licensed under the new plan."

Deep-Mine Operators Warned Of July 1 Black Lung Deadline

Kentucky launched a four-step program in an effort to resolve the current problems in the black lung benefit program.

Gov. Wendell Ford said in announcing the actions that recent publicity requires "that we now separate fact from rumor," as he released the state's plans.

Meetings are being held with Kentucky's underground coal mine operators to emphasize the importance of having black lung claims filed with the federal government prior to July 1. Until that deadline, claims awarded by the federal government will be paid from the general treasury. After July 1, awards will be charged back directly to the mine operator.

Governor Ford said conferences are being arranged with the states of Pennsylvania and West Virginia "for the purpose of identifying common interests in a problem which is before these three largest coal mining states."

Ford said the state is negotiating with the federal government on a variety of interrelated functions and responsibilities regarding black lung. These meetings will deal with (1) dust level standards for control of black lung and the need to have those standards accepted as a defense in black lung claims,

(2) a more thorough data exchange system on claimants to avoid administrative duplication, and (3) the federal standards for states' re-assumption of full responsibility in this area.

Governor Ford said he also instructed Commissioner of Labor James R. Yocom to create a task force for coordinating all of Kentucky's black lung benefit activities.

"The problem here does not lend itself to simplistic solutions," said Ford. "We are not the only people who face it, nor are we the only ones who have studied it. In the surrounding states and in Washington much effort has been spent on understanding and resolving the enormous social and economic impact of black lung."

With regard to the Legislative Research Commission proposal that black lung recipients be transferred to Social Security Disability Benefits, the Governor said it "is not likely to be the magic cure which some may think."

This changeover in benefits is possible only if the claimant meets the stringent disability standards of the Social Security Administration, the Governor explained. "And very few do," he said.

Under the black lung disability test a miner is judged disabled if he is unable "to compete to obtain the kind of work he is customarily able to do, in the area where he lives, taking into consideration his age, occupation, education, and the effect upon his general health of continuing in the kind of work he is customarily able to do..."

Under Social Security the test is whether or not a man is unable to work at all, without regard to geographic inconvenience or even a shortage of employment opportunities.

"Therefore, the typical black lung beneficiary will not be eligible for Social Security disability. Some will, and in those cases, we will take full advantage of that opportunity. But, by no means will this 'discovery' eliminate the problem," the Governor said.

Ford said, "Coal is vital to Kentucky. It means jobs, taxes and a sound economy. It is not just the province or the responsibility of a privileged few. And that view will guide our actions in the coming months."

Bell Engineers, Lexington, is completing plans for the secondary sewage treatment here which the state is requiring as a stream anti-pollution measure. This work, which may involve the addition of filters and pumps and the possible enlargement of the sewage plant building itself, will cost an estimated $680,000.

But a 70 per cent grant will lighten the financial load on this improvement.

LIKE CHANEL 5

Onions have gone, as they say, sky-high, but there's recompense even in that. Friend of mine says they're so high now that he eats some, just before going out on the town. His theory is that onions on the breath has become a status symbol.

You may or may not like Ralph Nader. Never mind. I like this quip credited to him:

"General Motors could buy the state of Delaware if the DuPonts would agree to sell it."

There's gold in them thar hills. Ginseng, according to my latest market report, is $70 a pound.

LOSER'S CONFESSION

My last political ambition vanished some months back when an attempt to get me into the office of National Poke Warden failed so miserably that my sponsor in the nation's capital, J. D. Bond, moved to Florida. But there is a destiny we mortals cannot understand. The country was mercifully spared when its poke-lovers ditched me. I became aware of that cold fact this spring when poke was served at our house. I don't even like the stuff.

Hardin Short, of the Short Oil Co. here, has allocations which restrict him to the same volume for a month of this year that was used in the same month of 1972. But, he added, he received 6,800 gallons more for May than for the same month a year ago.

No statement was available from the Ashland Oil Company distributor, but a local Ashland service station owner said he expects no shortage or rationing. He explained his optimism by explaining that the company had told him it will suspend sales to other companies and concentrate on supplying its own stations.

normal vote at this precinct is around 250. If the trend at this and other Prestonsburg precincts continued over the county, the lightest vote recorded in a county primary could be the result.

Voting in half a dozen precincts in the southern end of the county was halted temporarily when electric power was cut off from that section, beginning at Ivel and extending through Betsy Layne, Harold and Mud Creek. A car or truck collided with a power pole in the vicinity of Ivel, causing the blackout. Members of the election board here instructed precinct officers in the manual operation of the voting machines so that the balloting could continue.

Generally speaking, the voting was orderly, although State Police and sheriff's deputies were called to Antioch precinct on Mud Creek after an interruption of the voting had been reported. Election board members had not confirmed the report at mid-afternoon.

Main interest in the election lay in the Democratic primary races for sheriff, representative and magistrate. The vote drive for the sheriff's office became particularly spirited.

Yet the voters apparently lacked the interest to vote.

Pikeville Reaches Methodist Hospital Goal of $400,000

Pikeville—The Pikeville community has reached a $400,000 goal in a local fund drive for the Methodist Hospital here, W. E. Elliott, Sr., chairman of the hospital board, and Lee D. Keene, administrator of the hospital, have announced.

The $400,000 is the community share of the $7,500,000 cost of the new Methodist Hospital. The local fund drive began in July, 1969.

The remainder of the funds came from federal and state grants, the Kentucky Conference of the United Methodist Church and a 40-year federal loan amounting to $3 million.

Elliott and Keene said the drive's success reflected the community's gratitude for services performed by the hospital in meeting the health needs of the area, which it has served for almost half a century.

Other goals of the hospital include construction of a radiation unit, which will cost an estimated $250,000, and an expanded education program for health personnel.

The radiation unit will provide a valuable and necessary health service for Eastern Kentucky, and the education program will see the addition of space an estimated cost of $275,000, for the training of personnel critically needed in the nursing and related fields such as technicians, said Keene.

The administrator, in giving an example of the extreme shortage of health personnel in this area, said it is demonstrated by the fact that the Big Sandy valley has only 77 registered nurses per 100,000 population and that, in contrast, the Lexington area has 371 registered nurses for the same population.

25th Birthday Party For State Police

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky State Police will celebrate its 25th anniversary on July 1.

An event like that deserves a party and the state police is throwing a lulu. It's a dinner to be held July twenty-ninth at Frankfort's convention center for the benefit of Trooper Island boy's camp.

A former Miss Kentucky, (Robbie Lynn Holcomb), the Lakeside singers (a group that tours Kentucky parks during the summer), and several unannounced celebrities will provide the entertainment. The principal speakers will be Governor Wendell Ford and former Governor Earle C. Clements, under whose leadership the state police was formed.

Exhibits will include an early patrol car (1946 Ford) and one of the brand new state police cruisers.

Another bit of nostalgia will be a mannequin dressed in an old Highway Patrol uniform alongside one wearing the current state police attire. There will also be a display of all state police equipment, each piece tagged with its price.

Among the dignitaries receiving special invitations are all Kentucky governors who have held office since the founding of the state police, all former state police directors, state police commissioners and public safety commissioners.

The state police was a separate department with its own commissioner until 1956, when Governor A. B. Chandler re-organized it under the Department of Public Safety. Since that time the state police has been responsible to the commissioner of Public Safety.

A very special set of guests will be members of the Indiana State Police who came here in 1948 to help Kentucky put together its police organization.

It seems Indiana had undergone a re-organization in the mid-thirties similar to that visualized by Governor Clements in 1948. The Governor and Guthrie F. Crowe, first head of the state police, decided that Indiana had the best set-up in the nation and asked them for help with Kentucky's fledgling force.

Indiana's response was more than generous. For example, Major Robert O'Neal, executive officer for the Hoosier force remained in Frankfort for 30 days helping to "shape up" the Kentucky State Police. Other officers offered invaluable aid in setting up a training program.

Technical help from the Indiana State Police in the form of records keeping and engineering advice was essential in the smoothing over of many bumps for the young organization.

In the mean-time Kentucky troopers were visiting Indiana to observe operations at state police headquarters as well as the 10 posts throughout the state.

This spirit of neighborliness and co-operation has been carried on throughout the years in criminal investigations of all types as well as exchanges of technical information and advice.

VIOLENCE ON INCREASE

Teacher worries of violence in big-city classrooms are increasing across the nation. In New York, two schools are planning to arm instructors with pen-size electronic signaling devices. If attacked, the teacher can silently summon aid from a central office. Similar devices have been put into schools in other systems in the past couple of years. Since 1964, assaults on teachers have increased 7,000 per cent, according to the U. S. Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency.

Soil Stewardship Week Proclaimed

Gov. Wendell H. Ford has proclaimed May 27-June 3, "Soil Stewardship Week in Kentucky" in conjunction with nationwide observances. During Soil Stewardship Week, held throughout the nation every year since 1955, ministers are urged to devote at least one sermon to the wise use of soil and water resources.

Thomas O. Harris, commissioner of the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, recently presented the proclamation to W. Robert Ellis, President of the Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts, on the Governor's behalf.

Mr. Ellis is also a member of the Soil Stewardship Advisory Committee of the National Association of Conservation Districts, national sponsors of Soil Stewardship Week.

In the proclamation, Governor Ford urged "all citizens of this Commonwealth to work toward fertile fields and a bountiful harvest and to increase their efforts for soil and water conservation." Kentuckians must become aware of the necessity to preserve and to protect their state's boundless soil and water resources, Ford said.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Acie Gene Shepherd wish to announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Patsy Jean Shepherd, of Martin, to Mr. James Gregory Ratliff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ratliff, of Langley. They will be married June 2 at the Faith Bible Church at Martin. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

National Drive To Cut Down On Gasoline Use Is Planned

By PAUL HOWARD

Frankfort, Ky.—A nationwide drive to cut down on gasoline consumption will soon get under way, curriculum for environmental education is being developed for use in Kentucky's secondary schools, and a Conservation Congress for Land Use Planning is being scheduled.

Those three developments were outlined for Kentucky's Environmental Quality Commission at its May meeting.

Thomas O. Harris, commissioner of the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, said the gas consumption cut-down campaign will be a strictly voluntary one "in which citizens will be encouraged to use less gasoline in order to alleviate current shortages."

It will consist in part of advice to drivers on ways to conserve gasoline by such methods as reducing speed, Harris said. For example, cutting normal driving speed from 60 mph to 50 mph could result in 11 percent gasoline savings. Reducing normal driving speed from 70 mph to 50 mph could result in 24 percent savings.

Lynn Hodges, state consultant for environmental education in the Department of Education, told the commission that a state plan for environmental education has been developed through cooperation between his department, citizens groups and agencies of local and state government.

"One aspect of the state plan," said Hodges, "is the development of outdoor environmental laboratories. We are helping schools to set up outdoor classrooms on their grounds so they can directly observe natural processes on a day-to-day basis."

Hodges added that in the area of material and curriculum development the state plan provides a general form for teachers to build on and use as a point of departure, rather than specific material. Teachers are being encouraged to work environmental education logically into their existing courses of instruction.

The Conservation Congress for Land Use Planning is to be held at Stouffer's Inn, Louisville, on November 14-15, William C. Gayle, director of the state Division of Conservation told the EQA. It is to be sponsored by the Natural Resources Development Committee, which includes representatives of civic, conservation, business and governmental organizations in the state.

"Federal guidelines will give us some direction on how to set up our state land use planning legislation. But, we also want to get input from the people of this state and that is, in part, the reason for this congress," Gayle said.

"We hope that by increasing awareness and stimulating discussion among local government officials and the general public about land use planning, we will be able to get a good feedback of ideas and the citizens of the state will have a significant voice in the state's land use planning proposals."

On a similar note, Environmental Quality Commission Chairman, Mrs. Richard Swigart, closed the meeting with a reminder that the seven-member EQC is a public body acting as a public forum and encouraged citizen participation.

Those wishing to make opinions known to the EQC may write: Environmental Quality Commission, 5th floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The public is invited to the next meeting Wednesday, June 20th, 9:30 a.m., at the Capital Plaza Tower in Frankfort.

End of School Boards Seen Within 20 Years

The Dean of the New York University School of Education, Daniel E. Griffiths, predicts the growing unionization of teachers will mean an end to school boards and other nonprofessional bodies, which now govern American educational systems, within the next 20 years. He predicts the unionization movement will change the distribution of power in the control of American education, and that we will be moving toward the English concept of the professional educator controlling education. He said the slogan "teacher power" means just that, and much of the emphasis in collective bargaining on the part of teacher associations will be toward the erosion of the decision-making authority of the local board of education.

Economic Security Department Changes Med Assist Program

Frankfort, Ky.—Economic Security Commissioner Gail S. Huecker recently announced an administrative policy change in the department's Medical Assistance Program.
Currently, the department is carrying over 25,000 "excess income" medical assistance cases—about 3.2 percent of these cases are actually eligible for medical assistance.
The term "excess income" is used by DES staff to categorize all persons and families who are technically eligible for medical assistance by virtue of being elderly, disabled, unemployed or receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children, but whose income exceeds an established monthly income limitation by family size (i.e., one-person family—$125 per month; four-person family—$250 per month).

Excess income determination is set up on a three month-quarterly basis. For example, if a four-person family has a continuous income of $300 per month, that family is considered to have a total of $150 excess income for the three-month period to use for medical expenses. The family is not eligible for medical assistance.
However, if that family spends $150 on medical services, they are immediately eligible for medical assistance for the remainder of the three-month period and will be issued medical ID cards authorized by their local public assistance office.
Since December 1969, excess income cases have been treated as active cases even though more than 96 percent of the current total of 25,000 cases never become eligible for medical assistance. All of these cases have to be dealt with individually and, as a result, have required a tremendous amount of time and effort from both local and central office staff.
Effective immediately, all excess income cases will be denied with provisions to immediately re-open any case which provides documentation of expenditure or obligation of the excess income for medical expenses during the established three month period.
According to Commissioner Huecker, "the policy change was initiated to streamline operations and more efficiently utilize staff time and resources."
Under the old method of establishing quarters of medical assistance coverage, the quarter began the first day of the month of application and continued for three consecutive months. Any recognized medical expenses could be counted only during the established quarter.
"This policy," said Commissioner Huecker, "has resulted in a disservice to many new applicants because many times the applicant has spent his excess income during the month prior to making application and subsequently was not eligible for benefits when needed most desperately."
The new policy will allow DES staff to establish the applicant's three month coverage period based on recognized medical expenses accrued during the month prior to his application.
"The change in procedures will result in a considerable advantage to the new medical assistance applicants," said the Commissioner, "and at the same time will make additional staff time available to provide faster and better service to all public assistance applicants and recipients."

USDA Announces Guidelines For School Lunch Program

Atlanta, Ga.—The U. S. department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced income poverty guidelines for determining children's eligibility for free or reduced-price lunches and breakfasts in the 1973-74 school year. Officials of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service said the new guidelines are being issued now to give school boards and administrators as much lead time as possible to plan and budget for the coming school year.

Use of the guidelines is mandatory for all schools in the National School Lunch Program, in the School Breakfast Program, or receiving federally-donated foods, starting July 1, 1973. These guidelines establish the minimum level for free meals, FNS officials said. All children from families at or below such levels shall be served a free meal.

FNS officials said that in addition to the national guidelines, all state educational agencies are to set income guidelines, for both free and reduced-price meals by family size, for use by schools in their states. The state guidelines may not be lower than those set by USDA, and may not exceed the USDA guidelines by more than 25 per cent for free meals, or 50 per cent for reduced-price meals.

The new guidelines are up some 3-1/2 per cent from those for the 1972-'73 school year, FNS officials added. The income eligibility minimum for a family of four, for example, goes from $4,110 to $4,250, based on the year-to-year change in the Consumer Price Index.

This adjustment procedure is consistent with the procedure used by the Bureau of the Census in updating its statistics on poverty levels. Levels for Alaska and Hawaii vary from the guidelines for the 48 states and reflect an increase proportional to the cost of living in those areas.

In applying guidelines, school food service authorities may consider both the income of the family during the past 12 months and the family's current rate of income to determine which is the better indicator of the need for free and reduced-price meals, FNS officials said. "Income" means income before deductions for income taxes, insurance premiums, bonds, etc.

In determining eligibility of children for free or reduced-price school meals, FNS officials said local administrators are also authorized to consider specified family hardship situations. In determining a family's income level, consideration is given to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of total income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses.

USDA has also published a final amendment to its income poverty guidelines for fiscal year 1973. This amendment will cover special hardship conditions in the current school year.

Jackson No Longer Is 'Mr. Anonymous'

EVERETT, Wash.—No longer is Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson, D-Wash., called "Mr. Anonymous."

For the past 15 years the chairman of the Senate Interior Committee has maintained a fund to help college students from his hometown with whatever they need, from shoes to medical care to tuition.

But letters of thanks were addressed to "Mr. Anonymous" because only an Everett banker knew the identity of the donor.

Because the 1971 Federal Election Campaign Act required disclosure of contributions and expenditures beginning in April 1972, it was revealed that Jackson put all his income from writing and speaking engagements into the Gertrude Jackson Memorial Fund—named for the senator's sister, a third-grade teacher for 42 years at Everett. It is administered by a committee of past and present school officials.

Since 1958 the fund had paid out $31,000 to assist graduates from Everett's two high schools. Stan Mitchell, a friend of the senator since high school, said the fund now totals $48,000 and that Jackson hopes to increase it to $100,000 in about a year.

During the past 15 years Jackson also has offered scholarships administered by the financial aid office at the University of Washington, his alma mater. The program provides a year of full tuition for three to six students at a time.

"I remember how it was," Jackson said. "I washed dishes and waited on tables at the university. So I like to help."

WORKMAN COMPENSATION LAWS

The legislatures of 43 states and Puerto Rico in 1972 enacted more than 100 amendments to their workmen's compensation laws. A national commission recommended federal action if the states failed to act.

Caldwell Receives Service Award

J. R. McClung, (right), vice-president and general manager of Eastern Kentucky Mack, Inc., Prestonsburg, announces the presentation of a five-year Service Award pin to Bill Caldwell, assistant parts manager (center). Presenting the award is Phil Nelson, parts manager, left.

These pins are given by Mack branches and distributors to employees upon their completion of five years of continuous service.

BEAUTIFICATION REVITALIZED

We're out to beautify the Commonwealth through a massive new campaign. The Beautification Program in the Division of Special Programs of our department has recently launched an effort to put new life in Kentucky's beautification program.

As a beginning, our staff has been traveling around the state to meet leaders in grassroots clean-up campaigns and to enlist these persons as members of Kentuckians for a Cleaner, Greener Land, Inc. The group is an advisory organization which helps us develop effective programs across the state.

Through this citizen's advisory organization, leaders in beautification are able to exchange ideas and expertise, as well as help each other, by presenting a unified and coordinated approach to clean-up and beautification in Kentucky.

Almost every county in the state has a member on the advisory committee. We hope that we will have members from the remaining counties soon. We also plan to expand and strengthen the organization's executive committee.

In many counties, extensive clean-up and beautification campaigns have already started. Clark, Christian, Pike and Campbell counties have already launched their drives. Fayette county has a kick-off campaign in the works, including an ecological meeting at the University of Kentucky and a black tie dinner for a thousand people.

I urge every Kentuckian to join in these campaigns and to encourage your neighbors to join the fight.

I also urge you to continue the clean-up effort after the major campaign ends. We all must realize that clean-up and beautification is a year-round activity, not something that we can devote a day, a week, or a month to, and then forget until next year.

Gov. Wendell Ford and Adj. Gen. Richard L. Frymire were among state officials attending Kentucky Day at Fort Campbell. A special review honoring the Governor and the Commonwealth opened festivities which included special demonstrations and an open house tour of the facilities.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our father, Hurley Sizemore, Oct. 20, 1912—Oct. 18, 1941.

Precious Daddy, Oh, how we still miss you!
 Though God took you from us over 31 years ago
 Our loving mother kept your sweet memory with us;
 Love for you in our hearts still glows.

When we followed you to the graveyard And saw them lay your body down
 Our hearts were so heavy-burdened,
 For we children had lost the only Dad we'd ever had.

We were so young at the time, we didn't understand
 God had his reason, when he took you away.
 Our hope is, He took you to a better land
 To dwell with Him among the angels, where
 By His side you'd forever stand.

Daddy, life is short at the longest,
 For we have no promise, from day till day;
 We could meet you in the morning, or Any hour of the night—our prayer is to Join you in that new home in the sky.

Daddy, you're thought of so very often,
 Not just on Memorial Day. For you see, we love you, Dear Daddy, That love
 Is in our hearts to stay.

By daughter,
 JOSEPHINE S. OWSLEY

Reading Council Honors Martin

The first honorary membership award made by the Jenny Wiley Reading Council was presented recently by Bertha Ratliff, Council president, to Clem Martin, retired Floyd educator. Mrs. Ratliff and Mr. Martin are shown in photo at the presentation of membership card and Award Certificate.

In the last meeting of the 1972-'73 school year members of the Jenny Wiley Council of the International Reading Association enjoyed an informal covered-dish dinner at the Martin school lunchroom. President Bertha Ratliff introduced the following guests: Philip Dingus, Clem Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ratliff, Mrs. Alberta Turner, Mrs. Ray Brackett, Mrs. Leo Watts, Mrs. Gwen Williams and Mrs. Audrey Hall.

Presentation of the first honorary membership in the Jenny Wiley Council was made to Clem Martin, retired supervisor of instruction, Floyd school system. Describing Martin's contributions to education in Floyd county, Title I Director Ray Brackett told council members that Clem Martin had served his county more than 30 years, and instrumental in the development of modern teaching techniques in the Floyd schools, emphasizing particularly the need for meeting individual differences in the classroom. The council presented him with both an award certificate and Honorary Membership card.

Following the membership presentation, Mrs. Audrey Gunnell displayed the council's 1972-'73 scrapbook of activities which was also dedicated to the educator.

Miss Ratliff distributed awards even to local council members by Dr. Curtis Englebright, president of KSC-IRA, at the annual meeting in April. Eleven KSC President awards were given to members in the various councils in Kentucky, council members were told. "And I was extremely proud to bring two of these home to Floyd county," President Ratliff said. The recipients were reading teachers Nadine Hicks and Pamela Wohlford, who received the awards for outstanding contributions to the attainment of the goals set by the Kentucky State Council of IRA.

John K. Pitts told council members of his trip to the National IRA Convention in May. A delegate from Kentucky, the Clark school principal also represented the Jenny Wiley Council in the week-long conference in Denver in which he briefly summarized the Right to Read projects in Kentucky.

Following various committee reports the following officers were installed for the 1973-74 year: Marie Stumbo, incoming president; Delphia Hicks, president-elect; Sarah Laven, treasurer; Virginia Skeans, secretary.

Environmentally Speaking

by THOMAS O. HARRIS
COMMISSIONER
Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection

We in the Commonwealth of Kentucky are extremely aware of our waterways, with more miles of streams than any other state except Alaska. I believe these waters must be protected from pollution so we and future generations will have good clean water for recreation, for drinking and, in short, for all uses.

The Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection intends to bring Kentucky's waters up to a quality suitable for all uses, and then we intend to maintain that quality.

I believe clean water, along with clean air and wisely used land, is the greatest heritage we can leave for the future. I urge you to join me in attaining that goal.

On June 4, we will present a proposal to classify our waters for all uses at a public hearing in Frankfort. By "our" waters, I mean all the waters shown on the 1973 "Streams of Kentucky" map prepared by the Kentucky Department of Commerce. That includes about 14,000 miles of streams. We do, however, have to make exceptions for water specially designated by law—such as wild rivers which must be preserved in their free-flowing condition.

I believe this is a good plan and urge all concerned citizens to come to the hearing and to support the proposal. In this way you can help insure top quality water in the Commonwealth.

Once all procedural requirements are met, our proposal will be sent to the Kentucky Legislative Research Commission to become an enforceable regulation. A copy will be sent to the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency for its approval.

Hog's Nerves May Result in Death

Lexington, Ky.—You are sorting your hogs, picking out a group to send to market. One of the meatiest, most heavily muscled hogs seems to be very nervous and agitated. When you get to the market and unload the other animals, you find the hog dead.

Such an occurrence is becoming common for many hog producers, according to M. D. Whiteker, Extension swine specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. The cause of the problem is likely to be a condition called Porcine Stress Syndrome (PSS). It seems to be the same as or related to the Pale, Soft, Exudative (PSE) condition found in pork carcasses and cuts.

Whiteker says PSS condition causes hogs to die because of circulatory failure related to stress. The stress is brought about by a complex genetic disorder in the nervous and/or hormonal system of the animals.

The PSS condition is a major concern for pork producers. Most deaths which take place on the way to market can be related to this condition. Whiteker estimates that three to five percent of hogs on the way to slaughter die because of PSS. Based on total farm sales of hogs, this loss could be as high as $135 to $225 million per year.

Whiteker points out that a recent survey showed that 36 percent of all pork producers have experienced PSS in their herds. Reports indicate that a similar percentage holds true for Kentucky herds.

PSS-PSE seems to be a hereditary problem, according to the UK specialist. He says some animals are genetically predisposed to be susceptible to stress. However, hog producers can take steps to avoid the stress problem and avoid the death losses which it brings.

Whiteker says the best way to avoid the stress problem is to select breeding stock within breeds from strains which appear to be stress resistant. Do not purchase boars and gilts which are extremely nervous and show signs of constant tail twitching, trembling ears and constant movement. Avoid white hogs which show reddish skin blotches and black hogs which show purplish skin blotches when excited.

Some producers feel that confinement rearing of pigs contributes to the stress condition. However, Whiteker says there is little research evidence to support this theory. Having pigs confined may simply make the problem more noticeable to the producers.

Whiteker has these suggestions to help reduce losses from PSS:
Handle pigs carefully during movement and loading; prevent fighting and mixing of hogs as much as possible; provide proper winter and summer ventilation; avoid heat stress; avoid overcrowding and provide ample feeder and water space; avoid hauling pigs during hot weather; prevent pigs from becoming excited.

BILL PARSON City Clerk 5-30-21 IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of My Husband, Jerry Lee Owsley:

Dad, I can't put in words what's in my heart—
Oh, I miss you so very much!
Since God took you away
Part of me went with you
The moment we had to part.

No one can fill the emptiness
Or give me comfort as you did,
Except the Blessed Lord above;
So my trust, I put in Him.

May we meet some day in heaven
Where we shall never part again.
Up there will be no more pain or suffering.
And all our troubles will be at an end.

I prayed many a prayer
In the wee hours of the night,
That if it be God's blessed will
He'd give me the strength and courage
To care for you the rest of your life.

You loved your home so dearly
And wanted your children near.
They all did what they could for you,
Dad, while you were here.

May the home you've gone to, Dad,
Have streets that are paved with gold.
May you see the face of our dear saviour
And dwell with Him forevermore.
