

Three Sue, Seek Spot on Ballot

Goble Says Suit Is An Aftermath Of May Primary

Three Floyd countians, members of the Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative, filed suit in Johnson circuit court last week, alleging that the nominating committee refused to place their names on the ballot for the July 19 board of directors election.

The three—Ronald Frasure, Billy Reffett and Russell Blackburn—sought a temporary injunction to require Alen Turner, of Garrett, chairman of the nominating committee, and other members of the board to add their names to the ballot.

The suit contends that each of the plaintiffs filed on June 15 for the office as required by RECC by-laws. Their petitions, signed by more than the required 50 members, was filed with Turner, they say, but they allege that the nominating committee changed its meeting time from 7 p.m. to 5 p.m., and did so "for the purpose of preventing the names of the plaintiffs being considered as candidates."

Thus, they say, only the names of incumbent board members are on the ballot. These are Bradis Goble, of District 5, John Ed Shepherd, of District 6, and Hauley Scott, of District 7—all in this county. Blackburn would oppose Goble, Frasure would run against Shepherd, and Reffett against Scott.

Ky. APPALRED To Get $327,000 For Next Year

The Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) has announced that the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund (APPALRED) will soon receive for its Kentucky operations headquartered in Prestonsburg a $327,000 check to carry on its work for the coming year.

But the Kentucky operations will be separated from those in West Virginia, it was said. West Virginia's check will be for $300,000.

Although West Virginia's director of the program, Paul Kauffman, said the separation of the funds for the two states is not to his liking, it was said here that such a division is not expected to affect operations. The program affords free legal representation to poor persons and their groups in matters affecting the region.

Kauffman's objections to separation of funding and operation were voiced in this statement:

"If we are restricted by state lines, then we are at a greater disadvantage than those two-state corporations that make life miserable for the people we represent. This divided funding is unfortunate in our situation because the people we serve have the same kinds of problems in Eastern Kentucky... as in Southern West Virginia and throughout the coal region."

West Virginia reportedly will also receive about $750,000 to establish a Judicare program, which is related to Medicare and which would enable poor people to seek legal assistance from any lawyer in the state.

Griffith Said Seriously Shot; Martin Is Jailed

Robert Griffith, owner of Griffith's Shopper's Fair at Estill, was reported Tuesday morning as in serious condition at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville, as the result of two bullet wounds suffered last Monday afternoon.

State Troopers Leeman Bevins and Paul Estep jailed Glenn Martin, about 30, of the Estill vicinity, later Monday on a charge of shooting and wounding with intent to kill.

Trooper Bevins' affidavit, made to procure the warrant for Martin from Magistrate Zeb Ousley, said Martin shot Griffith two times with a pistol in the lower chest "while fighting at the Glo state dump."

Other particulars of the shooting were not available. The slate dump scene of the shooting is in the vicinity of the place of business formerly operated by the late Cluett Messer at Estill.

The wounded man operates a furniture business and auto and boat agency at Estill.

This Town... That World

Somehow, I have a feeling that Dog Days will come a little early this year.

IMPROVEMENT PLANNED

For some years now this has served on occasion as a fishing column—devoted, mainly, to the trials, tribulations and disappointments of one so-called fisherman—but there is a strong possibility that I'll soon turn this matter of fishing, and maybe hunting, over to my two sons. If they will tell the truth, their failures in all departments should equal mine. And that should fill a column.

HOW AWFUL!

We expect strip mining to be stopped, any day now, since that UK chemist has warned that the water is being so contaminated that Kentucky bourbon will lose its place in the market. If this runoff from strip mines will do that to spirits, what won't it do to bodies?

FROM A MUSTARD LOVER

This by mail from W. J. Hall, Ft. Campbell Ky., formerly of Ponceon: "This is to express my deep compassion for you over your defeat last spring for Poke Warden. I used to live on Right Beaver and I sure do know the great value of poke. But you have company, I'm in every bit as bad a predicament, my wife's mad at me and it goes to show that one can't buy friendship. "She hoed in the garden about all day and had to quit on account of darkness, and there was still one row to hoe, and to help out I got up before the sun rose and hoed it. Now she says I dug up the mustard and that I did it on purpose because nobody could have helped seeing it."

"I tried to patch things up. I agreed with her and said, 'You are right. No one could help seeing the mustard, and I did see it but thought it had grown up itself because I couldn't imagine anyone with little enough sense to sow it where hoeing had to be done.'"

"This didn't help a bit. If anything, it made matters worse."

U. S. Prisoners Are Jailed Here

Eight U. S. prisoners, five of whom are under prison sentence, were brought to the Floyd county jail for safekeeping last Friday by U. S. Deputy Marshal James New.

One of the eight, William Eugene Thompson, faces trial under the Firearms Act. The others and terms of each are:

Donnie Mosley, six years; Glenn Baker, five years; Robert Hinckle, three years; David Miller, one year; Paul Huff, Richard Adams and Mitchell Slone, 60 days each.

Frank Clark, Jr., of Garrett, who was reported last week to have shot and wounded his wife, was jailed here last Wednesday on a sanity charge but was later released under bond. Mrs. Clark was not seriously hurt. Her husband, an amputee, is confined to a wheelchair.

Mrs. Ocie Young was jailed Monday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Henry Younce after he had reportedly confiscated four cases of beer and half a case of whiskey in a search of her auto at Bevinville. She was charged in Magistrate Eddie Caudill's court with transporting alcoholic beverages.

Also released under bond was William D. Martin, who was arrested Friday on a fugitive warrant. Others booked at the

Floyd Road Surfacing Cost, Over $550,000

Contract for bituminous concrete surfacing of the Dewey Dam-Van Lear road, a distance of 5.029 miles, has been awarded by the Kentucky Department of Highways to the Allen Co., Winchester, on its bid of $71,296.55.

The lake road work and two other Floyd county contracts awarded last Thursday involve the expenditure of a total of $550,008.42.

The Allen Company also was the successful bidder on bituminous concrete surfacing of various other roads in the county totalling 36 miles. Its low bid on this work, which was divided into two projects, totalled $482,681.87.

Among the roads to be surfaced are Right Fork of Bull, Martin-Buck's Branch-Spurlock, May's Branch, Simpson Branch, Upper Bull Creek, Salyers Branch, Doty Branch, Melvin-Weeksbury, Martin-Blue River, Emma-Endicott-Thomas, Lucy Hall Cemetery road and Glo.

The contract also includes street surfacing in New Allen, Dwale and Auxier.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins (right, facing camera) and others listen intently as George Foster, of Boyd county, testified at last Saturday's "black lung" hearing at Allen Central high school. The "witness," partially obscured, told of working 52 years in the coal mines and of still hoping his application for compensation will be approved.

Seminar Here Outlines Newest State Drug Law

In a seminar conducted Friday at Prestonsburg Community College, concerned area leaders were told that Kentucky's newest drug and alcohol abuse law will emphasize treatment and rehabilitation rather than punishment and prohibition.

Sponsored by Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, (MCCC), a branch of the Kentucky Department of Mental Health, the three-hour session was attended by leaders in the legal, judicial, law enforcement, medical, educational, business and civic communities in the counties served by MCCC—Floyd, Pike, Martin, Johnson and Magoffin. The various officials were briefed on the details of the new statute enacted by the last General Assembly and effective July 1.

The new legislation is said to reflect a new attitude in the state toward drug and alcohol abuse and Dr. Donald Ralph, District IV director of the state Department of Mental Health, said, "The statute indicated the philosophy of the Commonwealth is moving toward handling alcoholism as a social and medical problem rather than a criminal justice problem."

Although the state legislature has told the Department of Mental Health to establish and conduct a program, related to the statute, in alcoholic rehabilitation, Dr. Ralph stressed that any such program could not be implemented by July 1. He said, however, that through next year, all the state districts would be working toward providing all services outlined by the law.

These services, he said, would include emergency medical services on a 24-hour basis, alcoholic treatment programs offered by licensed hospitals, outpatient

Booked But Not Jailed, 17 Hit by Raid Say

Although booked by state troopers at the county jail, the 17 men arrested in the Doty Creek cock-fight raid June 16 were not jailed, one of those arrested said last week.

In connection with the same case, Ralph Blankenship, of Wayland, wants it known that he is not the man of the same name who was one of those arrested.

Clark Explains Black Teacher Loss in County

Floyd county has lost the last three black teachers employed in its school program, and there's a good reason, Supt. of Schools Charles Clark last wrote in response to a communication indicating that the Office for Civil Rights, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, may be wanting to review the school system's recruitment and employment policies.

"It should be apparent," Mr. Clark wrote Peter E. Holmes, director of the Office for Civil Rights, "that our school population is being reduced each year with the migration from Appalachia, and while we were losing our last three black teachers we were losing more than 80 white teachers."

The possibility of a check into reasons for the loss of all black teachers arose after HEW had been convinced that the Floyd system was satisfactorily integrated, pupil-wise. Wrote Supt. Clark to Mr. Holmes:

"It might be a revelation to you and your department to know that our student membership (both black and white) at the end of the school year 1962-1963 was 11,800, giving us an entitlement of 452 teachers at the end of that school year. At the end of the 1970-71 school year, our student population had declined to 9,411 which gave us an entitlement of 362 teaching units. Our percentage of student loss was greater among the blacks than it was among the whites.

"Each year for the last 10 years, we have been faced with the possibility of laying off some of the teachers who taught the year before, so your implication that possibly our recruitment policy should be reviewed is out of step with the actual facts. I repeat again, that the Floyd county school system is and has been totally integrated and has been since the close of Palmer Dunbar School in 1965. However, we would most cer-

High Court Upholds Floyd County Cases

The Court of Appeals has upheld several awards to Floyd county residents whose property was condemned for the relocation of U. S. 23 from Prestonsburg to Pikeville, saying there was no reason to overrule the jury findings in the cases.

The awards were $125,000 to Cecil Hall, $42,500 to Ann Scott, $29,000 to Ray Campbell, $17,500 to Mr. and Mrs. Chester Layne.

Perkins Hearing Elicits Stories Of Long Delays

Congressmen Carl D. Perkins, a glutton for the punishment of long hours and hard work, held a day-long hearing Saturday at Allen Central high school, Eastern, to get into the record the experiences of black lung sufferers with the Social Security Administration's handling of their appeals for compensation.

With him were Congressmen Romano L. Mazzoli, D-Louisville, and Earl Landgrebe, R-Indiana. Landgrebe left after an hour and a half of the hearing had elapsed.

A steady stream of "witnesses" was heard. Three hundred or more packed the hearing room, and the crowd that gathered numbered upwards of 1,000.

The hearing elicited these statements, among the 50 or more made during the day:

Banner Mann, of Hueysville, a minister of the Regular Baptist Church, said he had worked in the mines for 37 years before being forced to retire 12 years ago when doctors told him he suffered from black lung. He said he still has not collected benefits.

Forrest McCowan, of Wheelwright, who is collecting benefits, said he knew of men who had worked only three weeks before becoming eligible for benefits while others were turned down after as many as 40 years underground.

"I can't afford to quit working," said Van Patton, of Estill, who testified that he remains an active miner despite his black lung affliction because benefits now paid are not enough to support his family.

Eddie Burchett, of this county, a veteran of 40 years in the mines, criticized the Social Security Administration for requiring an additional X-ray a week before the hearing, after he had filed for the program more than two years ago. He said it was the 10th X-ray submitted at the agency's request without having been officially accepted or rejected for benefits.

Says Shooting 'Tragic Mistake'

The fatal shooting of Ronald Pigman, 22, at a Patalaska, O. carryout grocery store, May 10, was described last week as a "tragic mistake," and not the result of a "strong-arm robbery attempt" as stated in The Times and other newspapers.

An aunt of young Pigman said he was shot by the storeowner as he was entering the place of business after he had had a car wreck in the vicinity. She said that her nephew was unarmed and that the woman-owner of the store later said she fired on Pigman, thinking he was a Negro who was attempting to rob her. A Harold Ferguson reportedly fled the scene.

Nothing was taken from the store. Mrs. Stewart will not be charged in the death of Pigman.

The victim, a Vietnam veteran, was a native of Dema.

Traffic Death Toll For 5-County Area Now Stands at 12. As of last week, 12 persons had died in traffic accidents this year in the five-county area served by Kentucky State Police Post 9 at Pikeville, and Floyd county had contributed three to this toll. Meanwhile, 419 had been injured. (Two other fatalities have been recorded in this county since the report was compiled.) Pike county as of the end of last month had recorded five fatalities, Johnson and Martin one each. Only Magoffin had escaped such tragedy during the first five months of the year. Floyd county had 51 accidents investigated by state troopers during May. Pike had 71, Magoffin 13, Johnson 28 and Martin 9. The Post 9 report for May shows that state police officers made 21 criminal arrests in this county, with Pike having 40, Johnson 3, Magoffin 5 and Martin 8. One stolen vehicle was recovered in each of three of the counties, Floyd, Pike and Martin. Eighty-one were arrested in the five counties during May on drunk driving charges. One provision of the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962 requires the Federal Government to determine manpower requirements and resources and to deal with the problems of unemployment resulting from automation and technological changes and other types of persistent unemployment.

Judge Ward and the Coal Trucks

The Times has an idea that when Circuit Judge Ward of the Perry circuit court cracked down recently on operators of overloaded coal trucks he performed a duty that gave him no particular pleasure.

We think so, because Judge Ward doubtless knew many, if not most, of these men personally and had enjoyed a friendly relationship with them. We think, too, that the duty performed was made more onerous for him by his recognition of the fact that he was penalizing coal, an industry of vital importance to the economy of his county.

Which, to our thinking, makes his courageous action all the more admirable.

Judge Ward apparently decided that a Kentucky statute is the law, that it was created by men elected for that very purpose, and that he was sworn to uphold this and all laws, not to close his eyes or look the other way when the law happened to hit friends or a friendly industry.

It may be that the judge also reached a decision which other jurists might well adopt as their own policy—that it is not his duty to shield through inaction legislators from the full responsibility for the laws which they have enacted. As long as laws are not enforced legislators can with complete immunity pander to any influential individual or group by enacting any sort of law they may want, knowing it will never be enforced, anyhow.

This country has had too much legislation by judicial fiat already, and refusal by jurists to bring to trial cases alleging the violation of the law is, after a fashion, that sort of legislation. Kentucky and every other state—and county—needs trial judges who serve quite simply to bring to trial those who violate the law as it stands on the statute books.

Then, if the statute in question is a good law it will stand. If it is a bad one, let the job of nullifying it be that of those who enacted it in the first place, not that of the judge.

Most of Kentucky's laws are good laws. They are laws which are designed to protect its people, their roads, their rights to property and "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." One great need exists, and that is for those charged with the duty of administering the law to put an end to this senseless business of relieving legislators of the responsibility for what they have written into law.

'1776'— a Review

By JACK WICKER

'Smoothest, Most Professional' Production at Amphitheatre

"1776," now playing at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre, is possibly the smoothest running and most professional production of the Jenny Wiley Drama Association to date. This is due in part to the fine troupe of actors that General Manager Gary Buttrey has assembled for the summer, and also a large part is due to improvement in the theatre facility itself.

Barbara Moore, director, has kept a tight rein on her cast, establishing just the right pacing, maintaining a high degree of characterization, and keeping vocal levels and diction at just the right pitch. The end result is an endless menage of Revolutionary characters who are not only historically accurate but also fun to watch.

Gary Marchacek, as John Adams, is just "pure dynamite." He is a human ball of energy with flawless diction as well as a superb voice. His scenes are enhanced by the appearances of Michael Edwards as Ben Franklin and Pete Franklin as Thomas Jefferson.

Kevin Dearing, as Edward Rutledge, stops the show with his rendition of "Molasses and Rum," and Richard Bryant gives the increasingly popular "Mama, Look Sharp" just the right touch.

One of their performance highlights is Jerry Winsett as Samuel Chase, of Maryland. Mr. Winsett lends such credibility to the pompous, old delegate, that at times Mr. Chase seems to have been transported from the 18th century.

Last, but not least, is the enlarged orchestra (complete with strings) under the direction of Michael Cerveris. Mr. Cerveris is apparently one of those rare musicians who is able to communicate with his vocalists and instrumentalists simultaneously, and the result is worth the price of admission alone.

"1776" is a family show. The story is familiar to us all. For a delightfully entertaining evening with a bit of education thrown in to boot, don't miss it.

Says Water Pollution Laws Abused in County

I have lived in Floyd county nearly 50 years, and this is the first time I have seen our laws on water pollution so abused. I live on Left Beaver Creek, and most every day we can see coal black water running down our streams all the way to Big Sandy River. Our good, old fishing hole is not there any more. It's a shame to pay $5 for a fishing license and no place to fish without going some place out of the county to a pay lake and pay $2 to fish and not get a bite because the fish are fed and won't bite.

Where are all the men who have stood for law and order all these years? Why can't we get some help from some one who has authority?

Hills and Hollow Yield Crop Worth Up to $7 Million a Year

Appalachia, for all its troubles, has a near-monopoly on one item of trade with China, and it brings a cash return to the region each year of around $7 million.

This cash crop is harvested in the shaded hillsides and hollows of the Appalachians, ranging from Pennsylvania southward as far as Georgia. The harvesting equipment consists of a "sengin' hoe."

The product, ginseng, is to the Chinese an herb of magical qualities—contributing, in their eyes, to longevity, potency and fertility. (Some in the western world are these days taking a second look at ginseng, since the "backward" Chinese have introduced to the field of medicine acupuncture, which has won many converts in this and other countries.)

All ginseng is highly valued by the Chinese people, but those roots which are pronged to represent the human torso and its legs claim premium prices. These inflation days, the price per pound ranges from around $40 to $70.

The bullish market exists this year because, ginseng did not sprout in many places last year. For some unknown reason the plant does not grow every year.

George D. Brown, of Prestonsburg, who buys ginseng and other roots at the Brown Produce Company which he founded here, and who continues to buy "just to have something to do" and as "an accommodation to those who dig the herbs, said last week that the ginseng crop is normal this year and that the present high prices may tumble before fall.

Mr. Brown also said some "shyster buyers" have got into the act because more money is involved in ginseng, these days.

Some "mail-order" buyers, he said, have offered exorbitant prices, but sellers haven't got value received. In some instances, those who dig ginseng say, they have lost four to six ounces on weight and from $16 to $18 in needed cash. "While there are many reliable dealers buying by mail, there are some whose honesty can be questioned," he pointed out.

Asked why ginseng isn't grown more as a commercial crop, the Prestonsburg man said that it is but that "tame" seng brings on the market only half the price of the wild. The Chinese and others who know their 'seng, he said, can spot the difference at several paces. Wild ginseng has a bud marking for every year it sprouts (a root with 10 buds may be 20 years old because of its failure to sprout every year), and the tame ginseng does not have the unmistakable rings that belong to the firmer—and, presumably, more potent—wild variety.

Maytown Baptist Chapel Honors Missions Pastor

The Maytown Baptist Chapel surprised Rev. and Mrs. Glenn Nore, of Mousie, Sunday, June 17, with a fellowship hour. The Noes came, expecting to help observe the first anniversary of the chapel, but found they were being honored because each had a birthday, plus a wedding anniversary in June. Chapel Director Howard Ramey presided. Gloria Jones, choir director, led the music. Miles Gibson presented Rev. Noe a Thompson Bible; Dee Burchett handed Mrs. Noe a silver tray; Gloria Allen presented her a corsage and gave little Melissa Noe a check—all from chapel friends.

Rev. Earl Waugh, pastor of First Baptist Church, Allen, which sponsors the chapel, paid tribute to Rev. Noe, who is missions pastor, and also pastor of the Mousie Baptist Church. Dr. Ralph Allen, formerly of Maytown, now of Pikeville, spoke briefly. Refreshments were served in the social room, where Henrietta Reffitt and Jeanette Harris, Terrie Harris, Mary Webb, Sandy Bradley, and others served from a table arranged with a taffeta cloth in rainbow colors, and bearing wedding bell cakes done by Mrs. Brent Allen and a cake by Marie Stephens, featuring an open Bible with one of Rev. Noe's favorite passages inscribed thereon. Floral arrangements were by Dee Burchett and Gloria Mae Allen.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this means of thanking everyone who helped us during the passing of our father and husband, Willie T. Smith. We especially wish to thank those who sent flowers, food, or did anything to help; and a special thanks to the ministers of the Regular Baptist Church and the Hall Bros. Funeral Home for its fine service.

Two Arrested In Bank Holdup

(Delayed from Last Week)

Two men have been arrested in the June 12 robbery of the Virgie branch of the Pikeville National Bank and Trust Co.

Taken into custody early last Wednesday by Kentucky State Police Sgt. Ellis Ross and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was Douglas Michael King, 21, of Ashcamp.

In Dayton, O., Thursday night, law enforcement officers arrested Harold Bartley, about 21, also of Ashcamp, in connection with the $6,200 robbery by a lone bandit flourishing a pistol.

According to Thomas W. Kitchens, special agent in charge of the Louisville FBI office, King was taken into custody at the residence of a friend at Ashcamp. He surrendered without a struggle.

King is in the Pike county jail, and Bartley is expected to be returned to Pikeville. Both are to be charged with the federal bank robbery statute, police said.

Police made no comment as to the circumstances leading to the arrest of Bartley.

No weapon has been recovered. Although police are not commenting as to the disposition of the loot, bank authorities reported most of it has been recovered.

It was the third robbery of the Virgie bank in the last 12 months.

Presents Award to Goble

Jim McKinney, left, service manager of Eastern Kentucky Mack, Inc., Prestonsburg, presents a five-year Service Award pin to Bill Goble, road service man.

These awards are presented to employees of Mack branches and distributors upon their completion of five years of continuous service.

Cave Run Recreation Planners Begin Work

More than the broad expanse of Cave Run Lake is planned to lure the tourist and his dollars as completion of the reservoir which will back up the Licking River in five Eastern Kentucky counties nears.

The development of recreation facilities will be undertaken mainly by private interests operating under concession agreements.

The U. S. Forest Service recently awarded a bid for the concessions to Recreating Enterprises, Inc., of Owingsville, Ky., Whittaker Community Development Corp., of Knoxville, Tenn., and Management One, of Louisville.

A resort hotel, three marinas and related facilities will be financed, constructed, and operated as a joint venture, according to Calvin S. Schneider, general manager of Recreating Enterprises, Inc., Owingsville. The concessioner facilities will be located on government-administered land, and they will be operated under a special-use permit to be issued and administered by the Forest Service.

A planning permit will be issued shortly according to John E. Alcock, Daniel Boone National Forest supervisor. Following the successful completion of the planning and design stages and Forest Service approval Alcock said he will issue a term special-use permit for a period of 30 years. This will authorize the concessioner to construct and operate the recreation facilities.

According to General Manager Schneider, concessioner facilities to be constructed include:

A 120-unit lodge with restaurant and swimming pool, a full service marina, and a harbor complex at the Twin Knobs site in Rowan County;

Satellite marinas at the Twenty-six site in Morgan County and the Longbow site in Menifee County;

Preliminary work on the underwater portion of a harbor-marina complex at the Caney site in Bath County;

A camp store and laundromat to be operated by the concessioner in the Forest Service campground being constructed at the Twin Knobs site; and

Preliminary cost estimates made by the permittee for construction of these facilities amounts to $6.9 million—$1.7 million for marinas and facilities and $5.2 million for the resort lodge and related facilities. Funds for construction will come from Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and Appalachian Regional Commission grants, local revenue bonds, and private investment.

According to Alcock, future construction of concession facilities on Cave Run Lake will be planned as public demand for them increases.

About 2 million visitors are expected in the area next year, the first year for the 8,270 acre (seasonal pool) lake to be open to the public. Forecasters estimate 8 million visitors yearly by 1978.

Under the Cave Run joint venture, Recreating Enterprises will function as the lead party in guiding overall development of the concession facilities and will assume overall management responsibilities for the venture.

Recreating Enterprises, Inc., was established as a public authority to develop large tourism and recreation complexes in Bath, Fleming, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan and Rowan counties.

Whittaker Community Development Corp., a private Knoxville-based firm, will function as lead party during construction design and during construction of some facilities.

Management One, will be under contract to Recreating Enterprises to manage the concessioner facilities.

U. S. Forest Service facilities to be constructed initially include 12 boat ramps, 2 swimming beaches, 200 camping units, 166 picnic units, a sewage treatment plant, a trail and fishing piers.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Kelly Wicker was honored with a surprise birthday dinner hosted by Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Wicker and Miss Claudia Wicker, June 17 in the private dining room of May Lodge, Jenny Wiley Resort Park.

The centerpiece of the dinner table was a chocolate fudge frosted, two-layer birthday cake ornamented with yellow roses, bittersweet and forget-me-nots. It was designed, baked and decorated by Mrs. B. J. Wicker. The cake had travelled more than 500 miles for this special event.

Mrs. Wicker was presented a corsage of white carnations by Mrs. Worlington Wicker. She was presented with a "Mothers Pin" by the Bill Wicker family and showered with birthday presents and remembrances.

Mrs. Wicker was surrounded by members of her immediate family, her children and grandchildren. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Worlington Wicker, Miss Sheila Wicker, Miss Melissa Wicker, of Mousie; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wicker, of Prestonsburg; Mrs. Anne Jones and Miss Regina Jones, of Topmost; Mr. and Mrs. Bill B. Wicker, Miss Pamela Wicker and Keith Wicker, of Dayton, Ohio, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Wicker and Miss Claudia Wicker, of Chicago, Illinois.

The above figures—along with the fact that more than $90 billion will be spent by educational institutions this year—make education the largest enterprise in the nation.

Region Needing Music Teachers, Chairman Says

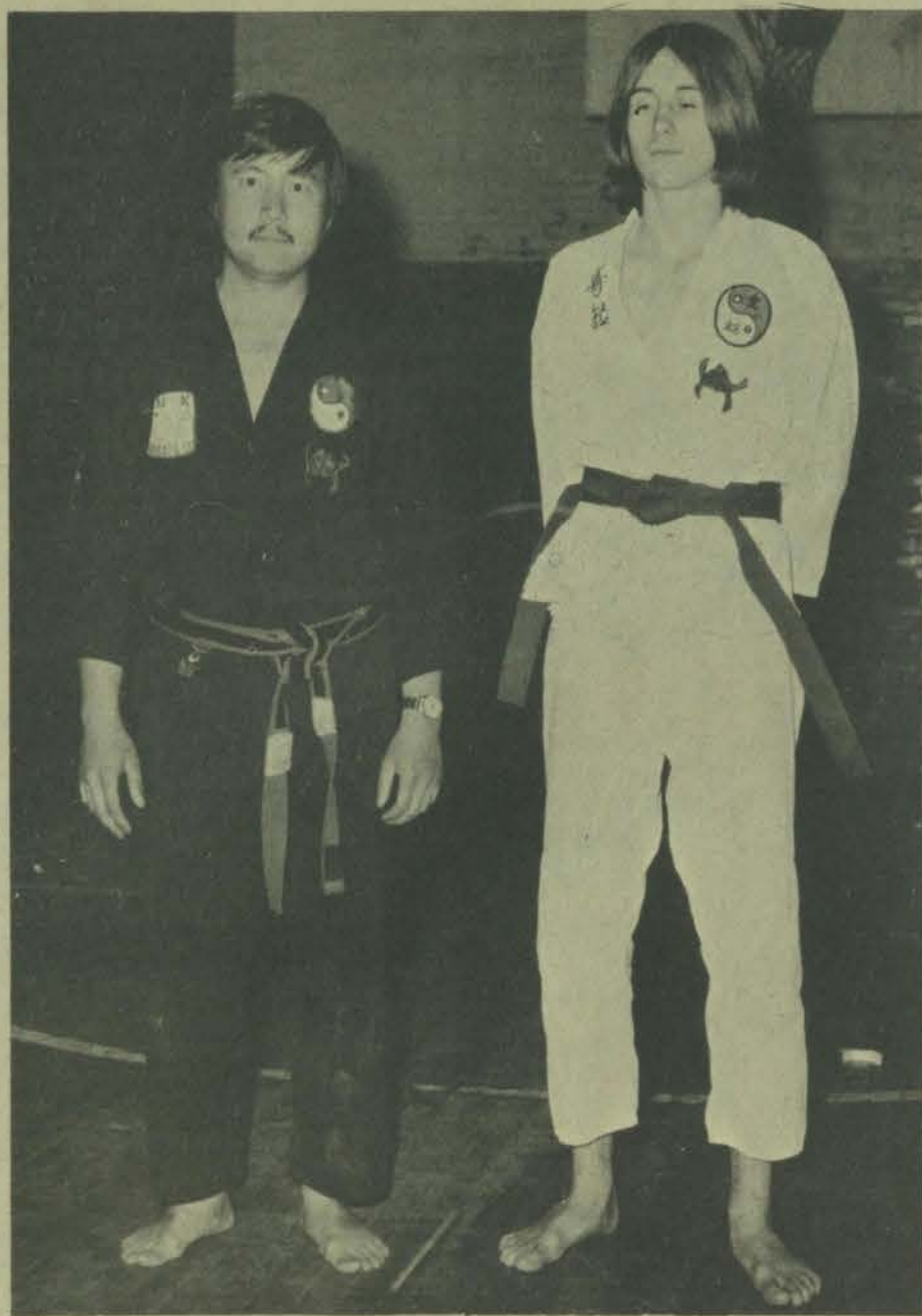

Members of the ROPES Region 11 staff met last Wednesday with Harry Eastburn, executive director of the Big Sandy Community Action Program, and members of the Region 11 Music Educators Association to discuss possible programs for cultural enrichment for students in the region's schools through music.

In discussing the needs of the music program in the region, Mrs. Helen Colley, chairman of the Music Educators Association, pointed out that Region 11 has 2,700 students per music teacher in the elementary schools and has no supervisor to work with music educators. She said that it is the feeling of the music educators that the lack of elementary music teachers creates difficulties for students who want to enter high school music programs and also prevents many talented youngsters from realizing the potential that they have in the field of music.

Mr. Eastburn gave the group a copy of guidelines to be used in applying for funding for enrichment programs from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and volunteered his assistance in preparing programs to apply for funding.

The Region 11 Music Educators Association, which was organized in March, 1973, with the approval and assistance of the superintendents of the seven school districts in the region and other members of the board of directors, was organized for the purpose of applying for funds from federal, state and private sources. Mrs. Colley said that superintendents of the local school districts in the region support the music program to the extent of their financial ability, but more funds are needed.

Says New Conversion Methods Will Provide Clean Energy

A U. S. government official said last week that coal conversion technology will provide cleaner uses for the nation's most abundant fossil fuel to help bridge the energy gap and meet environmental demands for pollution control.

Dr. George R. Hill, director of the Office of Coal Research (OCR), Department of the Interior, said the United States can also reduce its dependence on fuel imports with improved processes for converting high-sulfur coal to pipeline quality gas, low-sulfur liquid fuels, and more efficient electrical systems.

Addressing the 56th anniversary convention of the National Coal Association at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Washington, D. C., Dr. Hill called for cooperation and a mutual exchange of information among coal producers, Government officials, and environmentalists to avoid misunderstanding in working toward the twin objectives of energy production and environmental protection. "Notwithstanding our shortcomings of the past," he said, "we can strike a balance with nature and, thus, preserve the environment and surmount our energy problems by utilizing advanced technology to produce clean fuel from domestic coal."

Exotic forms of energy from solar, nuclear fusion, underground thermal and oceanic tidal sources probably won't have much impact prior to the year 2000, Dr. Hill said, adding:

"Fossil fuels, on the other hand, including the synthetic byproducts from coal, should be more than adequate to offset demands until the exotic sources can be developed through research and development efforts.

"If we are willing to pay the price, we can construct the capacity by the early 1980's to produce gas and oil from domestic coal and oil shale in amounts sufficient to substantially reduce our projected dependence upon Mid-East petroleum. An aggressive R&D program will give this country a choice between domestic energy resources and imports. Otherwise, we could find ourselves in an untenable position from political manipulation of oil imports and balance of payments."

The Office of Coal Research (OCR) has awarded a $586,406 contract to study and seek solutions to environmental problems involved in the locating of coal-based industrial complexes, Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton announced.

The recipient of the 30-month award, Hittman Associates, Inc., Columbia, Maryland, will define the best end uses of land, water, and other resources to achieve balanced industrial, economic, and social development at potential locations for large coal complexes.

The regions to be considered include Appalachia, Indiana, Illinois, western Kentucky, the Great Plains, and coal areas of the Southwestern United States.

Dr. George R. Hill, Director of OCR, said the coal-based industrial complexes will include a coal refinery capable of processing about 75,000 tons of coal per day. The refineries will produce solvent-refined coal, pipeline gas, LPG, and light refinery liquids having low-pollutant contents. In addition, they will consist of large power plants which will produce electrical power for the operation of the refinery and for transmission to domestic and industrial centers in surrounding regions.

$130 Million Plan For Rural Electric Financing Approved

Frankfort, Ky.—The Public Service Commission has authorized a second financing plan submitted by East Kentucky, Charleston Bottoms, Mason County and the 19 related rural electric agencies for $130 million in financing.

Under the new plan, $78 million will be raised through issuance of bonds to the public. The $52 million remaining needs will be secured through subordinate notes to Rural Electrification Association and CFC (The REA bank). These bonds will be covered on a first mortgage on East Kentucky and a second mortgage on the member cooperatives.

East Kentucky is a fossil-fueled steam electric generating station on the Ohio River in Mason county, near Maysville. It will serve as the generating station to supply power to Big Sandy, Blue Grass, Clark, Cumberland Valley, Farmers, Fleming-Mason, Fox Creek, Grayson, Harrison County, Inter-County, Jackson County, Licking Valley, Nolin, Owen County, Shelby and South Kentucky rural electric cooperatives.

The $130 million will be used to construct the generating station and related transmission lines in Mason, Bracken, Pendleton, Kenton, Boone, Robertson and Harrison counties.

After a long controversy between state and local property evaluators, the Franklin County Board of Education has finally been able to approve a school tax rate for the 1972-73 school year.

Vets' Home Loans At Peak This Year

The number of G. I. home loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration in the current fiscal year will likely register the heaviest volume of activity in 16 years, Donald E. Johnson, administrator of Veterans Affairs, reported this week.

The VA Administrator noted that 303,000 loans with a face value of $7 billion were guaranteed in the first 10 months of this fiscal year, up four percent over the 291,500 loans approved in a comparable period of fiscal year 1972.

The total of 359,000 loans guaranteed in all of the last fiscal year, in turn, marked the most active year since 1957.

Veteran loans for mobile homes increased 40 percent in the first 10 months of this fiscal year, jumping to 4,900 from 3,500 in a comparable period last year. Johnson said the upward trend in VA loan volume began in 1971, and he attributed much of the gain to the general availability of mortgage money for home building and buying, and a law signed by the President on October 23, 1970, which restored eligibility for loans to veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict, eliminated the one-half percent loan funding fee previously required of post-Korean veterans, and made other changes providing greater flexibility on the loan program.

Nearly 70 percent of the VA home loans are now being made for veterans 35 years of age or less. The median age of veteran-borrowers is now 31.

Picketing Ends at Three Social Security Area Offices

Picketing at Social Security offices in Pikeville, Beckley, and Logan by members of the Black Lung Association who are protesting handling of black lung benefits and proposed tougher regulations ended last Wednesday.

It was said pickets were called off because a meeting was being arranged with the managers of all local Social Security offices located in the coal fields of Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia. Protest lines were planned after representatives of the black lung groups and the United Mine Workers walked out of a Charleston, W. Va., meeting June 13 after presenting Social Security officials with a list of 17 demands.

Demands by the lung association included immediate stoppage of the processing of black lung claims until a backlog is completed; consideration of self-employed miners and sub-contractors as employees; a check on how attorney's fees are being computed, and monthly updating in each state with a breakdown on claims paid, denied, pending and new claims.

Many miners are afraid that rules and regulations will become tougher when the U. S. Labor Department takes over the processing of black lung claims from the Social Security Administration on July 1.

According to a spokesman for the mine workers, breathing tests and X-rays will have stiffer requirements for miners seeking black lung benefits. The spokesman said Congress approved more lenient requirements in obtaining black lung benefits when it amended the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969.

The more lenient regulations were concerned with the section of the law dealing with the X-ray and breathing tests and the law became more lenient to try and speed up a backlog of up to 200,000 cases not processed.

Claims Research Could Solve Problems

With the increasing concern on the part of federal officials, senators and representatives toward adverse impacts upon our environment, state government and industry officials must be prepared to implement new procedures to comply with the standards set forth on any new environmental laws and regulations.

Several federal bills covering the surface mining of minerals are now under consideration in Washington. Some bills pending in the Congress will drastically curtail mining of coal in Eastern Kentucky. However, we feel that research we are doing in new mining methods and revegetation will accomplish our ecological goals and still enable the operator to provide energy for our nation.

Our Division of Reclamation and our Office of Planning and Research are researching a solution to this question. That research is embodied in a project called "On-Site Control of Surface Mine Sedimentation."

We have submitted a pre-feasibility study and grant application for this project to the Federal Environmental Protection Agency and are awaiting their approval. This is one of many projects we hope to undertake in an effort to protect our environment while maintaining a good economic climate within the coal industry.

treatment, half-way houses or like temporary living arrangements for sober alcoholics; 30-day rehabilitation in-patient programs, "sobering up stations," and in-patient psychiatric services.

James A. Klein, regional alcoholism and drug abuse coordinator for MCCC, said that several programs called for in the statute already exist in the region. He noted that MCCC currently oversees outpatient and emergency care programs for both alcoholics and drug abusers as well as offering Help-Line services, a 24-hour telephone call-in service for those needing aid in almost any area.

The new law, according to Klein, encourages more local treatment. In Johnson county, he said, there already exists a group education program which serves as a "forum for public education on alcohol and drug abuse."

Each center is to establish a citizens group within the community interested in helping implement the alcohol or drug abuse programs at a local level, it was said.

Named as defendants, along with Turner, Goble, Shepherd and Scott, and Kermit Wallen, Thomas Witten, Chester Auxier, Russell Goble, Johnny Crider, Hershell Owens, Henry Stapleton, Clell Smith, Lee Davis and Bob May, all of whom are members of the present board.

A hearing of the suit has been set at 1 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at Louisa. Bradis Goble, who is secretary-treasurer of the board of directors, said the court action is an attempt "to destroy and degrade our co-op." He indicated that it may be founded in a personal grudge growing out of the May primary election in which Bill Wells, magistrate in Dist. 1 of this county, defeated five other candidates for the Democratic nomination for that office.

"They're trying to get a new director in there from Floyd county and they may have it in for our manager in Floyd county," he said recently.

Goble said the cooperative has been plagued with political problems in the past, but "not for the past three or four years." The trouble, he contends "is not with the cooperative, because they're in accord in every way, but they are using the cooperative to cause trouble over something outside the cooperative."

"What we've done is final. If they get on the ballot, it'll have to be done by the courts," Goble added.

He said the meeting time change was established at a regularly-scheduled board meeting the month before "because of the heavy load to be discussed."

He added those attending—about 20 people—stayed after 7 p.m. "and some until 9:30 p.m. We held the meeting according to the by-laws...they had the opportunity to appear, but no one saw those three."

ON DIETING

I have been pondering the matter of a diet, but Arbor Jones has been far from encouraging. When I discussed this matter with Mr. Jones, who knows whereof he speaks, and asked him what he was permitted to eat, these days, he said it all in one snort: "Anything I hate!"

THE ALIBI

Lenna Moore had planned to buy space in this week's paper and use it to clear his fair name. But inasmuch as I hinted, some weeks back, when he had not been seen around, that he had been called to Washington about the Watergate matter, I am atoning for that rumor and stating here that he is not the Moore who was mentioned time and again in Monday's televised Senate hearing of the case. At the time he was busy cleaning bluegill which his daughter and son-in-law had caught. And if that isn't alibi enough, I have another which I hesitate to use.

NO SPATTING

The story is told of the two oldtimers who engaged in a heated political argument and indulged in a spitting contest. They would up in court, and one was represented by a lawyer who had a way with words that failed to please.

When the barrister addressed the jury and explained that his client's adversary spat first, the old boy mullered over that word, "spat," and finally rose to his feet. "It," he quavered indignantly, "was no sech thing as a spat. He plain spit. If we'd 'a' spat, we'd 'a' fit, and he wouldn't be here to tell about it."

tainly welcome a visit from the regional officials from the Atlanta office at anytime to confirm what I have known all along but which it has been impossible to convey over the distance between Floyd county, Kentucky and Washington, D. C. or Atlanta, Georgia."

Federal Court Fines Pike Men

Four Pike county men were fined $50 each in U. S. district court at Pikeville last Thursday when they entered pleas of guilty to the charge of a noise level disturbance in the German camping area of Dewey Lake. The fine is the maximum.

The four were listed as Charles Leedy, Fred Williams, James West and Bruce Hurley. Citations against the four were issued by Ramond Copley, reservoir ranger for the U. S. Corps of Engineers.

Reservoir Manager Dean Murray said this week that enforcement of the noise level disturbance was in compliance with orders governing the reservoir handed down to him by the district engineer's office and that he will enforce these directives, including the no-camping order and others applying to the lake, to the best of his ability.

James Hamilton, 79, of Pikeville, told the committee he had worked 47 years in the mines and has great difficulty breathing but has repeatedly been denied benefits.

Hamilton, president of the Pike county chapter of the Kentucky Black Lung Association, criticized the Social Security Administration for approving applicants with only a few years of experience over older miners with more years' experience over older miners with more years' experience.

"If I'd turned in a false statement that I never worked in the mines," Hamilton told the committee facetiously, "I might have got it."

Dr. Lowell Martin, of Martin, said some Social Security personnel apparently are continuing to use the old guidelines (before the 1972 amendments) which required strict breathing performance tests and a positive X-ray before confirmation of the disease.

Martin said it is difficult to determine the exact cause of respiratory problems the 15-year presumption is the "fairest" among older miners but he added that test of them all.

The test, Martin said, should depend on the miners' years of underground experience and whether or not he has a breathing problem.

"The guy that has no (medial) findings of black lung may be the sickest man," he said.

Many of the witnesses had to be helped to the witness chair and some walked with the aid of crutches. One testified from a wheelchair and another, apparently blind, was led stumbling in and out of the crowded, often-noisy proceedings.

More than 200,000 persons are now receiving black lung benefits throughout the nation, totaling more than $43 million monthly. But another 150,000 claims remain pending in Social Security files.

While neighboring West Virginia has about 42,000 miners and widows drawing benefits, only 11,000 Kentuckians are currently on Social Security rolls.

After June 30, the Department of Labor will assume responsibility for new claims.

At one point in the meeting, Perkins asked for those miners and widows of miners who had worked for more than 30 years without benefits to list their names. More than 200 reportedly signed.

"I may well have the ammunition I need to give these people a new lease on life," Perkins commented.

Consumer Comments

In this day of increased living costs, many consumers are asking "How can I get the most for my money?"

It would be virtually impossible for anyone to develop a set of rules which would serve as a complete and comprehensive guide for buying every item a consumer wishes to purchase. However, there are some guidelines which are applicable to almost every buying situation. By following these, you will have the best opportunity of getting your money's worth.

First, get at least three prices or estimates before you commit yourself to buying any product or service. If you want to buy a stove, go to three stores and price stoves. If you want to have your roof repaired, get estimates from three roofers. If you want to buy vacation land, visit three developments before making a decision.

Don't be taken in by the salesman who tells you his price for the item is the lowest in the area. Don't be rushed into buying land from the developer who tells you that if you don't buy today, you can't buy tomorrow. Don't be pressured by the door-to-door salesman who says that the item he is selling is not available in retail stores. Check these claims by shopping around.

Second, don't commit yourself to a large purchase until you have considered it carefully in the privacy of your home. Consumers are frequently intimidated into making a purchase by the mere presence of a salesman. Consider, during a self-imposed 24-hour waiting period, whether you really need the product. Consider the reliability of the product and the merchant selling it. Consider the financial obligations involved.

Invitation to Bid

The Floyd County Board of Education will offer to the lowest and or best sealed bidder, until Noon, July 7, 1973, the following:

ITEM I. School maintenance and building supplies. For detailed list, contact George E. Allen, Maintenance Supervisor, Floyd County Board of Education, Allen, Kentucky.

ITEM III. Transportation supplies, grease, oil, tires, tubes, anti-freeze, etc. For detailed list contact Freddie Turner, Bus Maintenance Foreman, Floyd County Board of Education, Allen, Kentucky.

ITEM III. A. General Supplies, brooms, mops, tissue, paper towels, etc.; B. Custodial Supplies - soaps, (hand and scrub), disinfectant, wax, wax stripper, etc.; C. Lighting - fluorescent and incandescent.

The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Kentucky Masters of An Art

Frankfort, Ky.—You might see them anywhere—under a tree, in an old, worn-out rocking chair, or in a make-shift workroom. They're craftsmen at work—and some of Kentucky's finest will be representing their state this summer as it is featured at the American Folklife Festival in Washington, D. C., July 4-8.

The festival is sponsored by the Smithsonian, the National Park Service, and the Kentucky 1973 Festival of American Folklife Inc.

With skill and patience, one craftsman can turn a simple shuck of corn into a tiny, smiling doll, another, a clock of wood into a beautiful carving.

They're unassuming folks from throughout the Commonwealth who are going to Washington to share their art with others—to answer questions and maybe even spin some yarns.

For some, like 78-year-old Percy Beason, this will be their first trip outside their native state. Beason is a broom maker from Bowling Green and says his father taught him the art as a child.

"I remember as a kid my daddy selling brooms for a quarter a piece. When my farm was recently auctioned, one of my brooms went for $5.50."

Crafts began as a hobby for many—something to keep them busy.

"I'd go crazy if I didn't have something to do," said Hazel Miracle, mother of the Middlesboro family that will be going to the festival.

She began making cornshuck dolls six years ago "just to keep busy." They were so popular, the whole family got involved with crafts full-time and now they own and operate Miracle's Mountain Crafts five miles north of Middlesboro.

In addition to the cornshuck dolls, which are still a popular attraction, they make wood carved items, stuffed toys, quilts, apple dolls, acorn dolls and "anything else we can think about making."

Sometimes a skill is realized by accident.

"I had nothing else to do, so I whittled," said 68-year-old Edgar Tolson of Campton. Tolson, like many mountain craftsmen, has become famous from his hobby. A small sample of his work will sell for upwards of $100. "Ideas just come to me," said Tolson. "Sometimes I get an idea at midnight and whittle half the night."

Mrs. Clifford Lowe of Huff, Ky., was forced into quilting. "We needed the quilts at the time," she said. "Now it's a hobby I enjoy."

Washington will have a treat in store for curious visitors eager to catch a glimpse of a master at work. To ponder over what it is that keeps them going day after day, hour after hour—finding just the right patch for the quilt, soaking the shuck just the right length of time.

As the potter turns his wheel, or the quilter sews her squares of cloth, one captures a sense of timelessness—a characteristic patience that marks every true craftsman.

They work, and create, putting a part of themselves into everything they produce. When it is completed, there's a sense of pride and satisfaction in seeing people appreciate their crafts.

As Hazel Miracle puts it, "Getting thank-you letters from people who are satisfied with the crafts is just like getting an 'A' in school."

Police Vehicles Reduce Speeds

In a move aimed at easing an expected gasoline shortage, the Kentucky State Police have begun operating their vehicles at reduced speeds on the highway.

State Public Safety Commissioner Ron L. Johnson, who issued the order, said that all state police vehicles will henceforth be driven at speeds of 10 miles-an-hour below the posted speed limits on limited access and regular highways while on patrol or being used for normal transportation.

The order does not apply to emergency situations or where the lower speed might impede a normal traffic flow, he said.

In addition to the impending gasoline shortage, Johnson also cited an anticipated rise in fuel costs as the reason for issuing the order.

KENTUCKY AFIELD

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Commissioner Arnold Mitchell of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in a recent meeting stressed that conservation officers are the backbone of this agency.

This field force of some 120 dedicated law enforcement officers averages more than 2,500 license checks of hunters and fishermen in the field each year and each officer averages 65 arrests annually.

Commissioner Mitchell pointed out that during 1972 there were better than 312,000 licenses checked by the conservation officers and during the same period more than 8,200 arrests were made for game and fish violations.

Law enforcement is just one phase of the work of these specialized fish and wildlife-oriented staff members.

In each county the conservation officer is the representative of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. He assists in farm pond stocking and gives further assistance with the ponds when problems arise with weeds, moss and other elements that keep these waters from being prime producers of good bass and bluegill.

In many areas conservation officers are required to do extensive studies not only for the fisheries division, but also for game management, public relations, conservation education and even engineering.

Game management duties include wildlife stocking recommendations and assistance in wildlife habitat development for interested farmers and sportsmen clubs.

Public relations is a very important factor with the officers. They furnish information to the local news media in their area and are responsible for vital information fed into the Frankfort office for use on the statewide radio, TV and newspaper outlets "Kentucky Afield."

They also provide information to the central office for other news media.

The statewide fishing report is compiled twice weekly and updated daily with information from the officers who are assigned to duties on the major lakes.

Conservation education today is reaching some 100,000 boys and girls in the fifth and sixth grades. Conservation officers help with this annual program.

In areas where the department's engineering section is involved in a project, the local officer is on hand to assist with the work.

In pollution cases, the conservatiofficer is responsible for taking samples and then getting violators to court.

Commissioner Mitchell also emphasized the following points. The conservation officer is not only the backbone of this department but is a true friend of the sportsmen, conservationists and everyone in the community. "Get to know him so that he may serve everyone better," Mitchell advises.

If these officers are to serve their area and the state better, it is necessary that everyone give them all the support and assistance possible.

Watergating

By WILMAY

A recent Times editorial discussed this topic which brings into focus much that is wrong in the U. S. Long before Watergate, Chappaquiddick, or the 1922 Teapot Dome, the pot and kettle called each other black.

We can do little except pray about the Washington situation but we can do a lot elsewhere, because watergating begins in society, at home, in the community, its civic, business, and social circles, in churches, schools, and colleges; moreover, it exists everywhere in myriad forms. It may start with the parent who says, "Don't lie," but does it himself, or with the undisciplined youngster who will have his way or "bust," regardless of others, who may reach adulthood unchanged, miserable unless everything is for him and his. The goddesses of Jealousy and Covetousness wreck the lives of all who will rule or ruin. Love of power has sent many to prison.

Watergating can originate with the teacher or professor who shows partiality, alters grades, winks at cheating and playing hooky; or with the witness who lies; the vote seller and buyer; the employee who swipes little items to keep; the treasurer who "knocks down;" those who pay or accept bribes in any way, who give or receive campaign "slush" funds. Its inception may rest with the club officer or member who does not want some individual admitted to membership; with the citizen "in the know" via the grape vine, who buys up land to sell it to the state or Uncle Sam for exorbitant sums, for roads, parks, or other public use; with the dame who forges checks; the politician who claims to oppose nepotism but says to another, "Give your best position to my sister, and I'll employ your niece or see that John Doe does." The list includes officers who take credit for all relief to the poor, expecting their support in return; the overly sensitive person with a chip on his shoulder, ever ready to think some act or remark is directed against him; anyone who makes mountains of molehills, double talks, assassinates someone's character, stabs another in the back. Add the guy who thinks his children are saints and some others are hellions, plus all of us who claim we are righteously indignant if we feel annoyed but that opponents lose their tempers.

Include those who fail to defend the innocent, check gossip, lest they lose the friendship of the bearer. Throw in those who seek to please men rather than God (Gal. 1:10). Remember the adult who takes the mate of another, the parent who deserts a mate and (or) offspring; some public officials who promise pie in the sky, but deliver little, and charge it to the grandchildren of their constituents. Add all of us who refuse to stand up and be counted, all who "forget" who said what when controversies arise; who refuse to get involved for the sake of popularity, who value it more than truth; the ones who maliciously broadcast tales—true or false—and, if cornered, sometimes claim their listeners said what only they themselves told.

What occurs when one of us fails to keep a promise, or breaks a confidence, when one stretches the cost of something, for sake of status, or sales prices are not as claimed, when individuals cater to moguls in politics or elsewhere, from selfish motives, or get others to do their dirty work?

Yes, watergating is, in a sense, the epitome of countless evils that can be boiled into one three-letter word. Who of us requires a mirror to find ourselves among its facets in this day of lowered standards and increasing permissiveness? Isn't it time every person take an uncompromising inventory of Self? Nations are made of men and women whose character is molded from cradle to grave. Who can deny that one cause of conditions now prevalent in our great land is the fact that a majority seek to please men instead of trying to please God? W. E. Hocking said, "Only religion can create the unpurchasable man. And it is only the unpurchasable man who can create a sound society."

Japanese Beetle Arrives in Floyd

The Japanese beetle has arrived in Floyd county.

The destructive visitor is about half an inch long, and in color is a shiny, metallic green with coppery-brown wing covers.

The beetle spends about 10 months of the year in the ground in the form of a white grub. In Kentucky, the adult beetle comes out of the ground in June. They fly only in daytime and are most active on warm, sunny days. They remain active from four to six weeks.

The adult feeds on more than 275 different plants. Some of the plants they like best are cannas, chestnuts, kerria, roses, plum, quince, marigolds, hollyhocks, and rose of Sharon.

Sprays can be applied to kill the beetle. Sevin, malathion, and methoxychlor are quite effective in their control.

FEWER SCHOOL SYSTEMS

The number of local public school systems in the United States has been cut more than one-half in the past ten years, according to the National Center for Educational Statistics. At the beginning of the 1971-72 school year, there were 17,200 school systems in the nation. This may be compared with 35,700 systems in the 1961-62 school year. Through the process of consolidation, many of the smaller systems have been eliminated.

Former Floyd Woman, Held Dead, Asks Court To 'Resurrect' Her

Can a person who has been declared legally dead be "resurrected"?

A native Floyd county woman appeared in court here last Friday, seeking an answer to that question.

Hazel Patrick, Hueysville native, who is now Mrs. Michael Maltempo, of Tarpon Springs, Fla., was declared legally dead at a hearing held before Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, May 10, 1971, after she had been missing since 1944. Her share in the Licking River estate of her grandfather, Sam Howard, was conveyed to members of her family. It was stated at the hearing that her clothing had been returned to her father, the late Buck Patrick, from Kansas City, Mo., not long after she left this county, and that she was last heard from when she was in Virginia. After that, it was testified, all attempts to learn her whereabouts had failed. Social Security records were checked, Congressman Carl D. Perkins' assistance was enlisted, but she was not found.

Soon after the court had declared her legally dead, however, Mrs. Maltempo decided to enroll in a school for realtors in Florida, and she was required to give as references the schools formerly attended. These were Garrett high school and Caney Junior College. At Garrett a guidance counselor spotted the name, Hazel Patrick, which he had seen in a Times story. Relatives were informed, and soon they were in contact with Mrs. Maltempo at her home.

Mrs. Maltempo's attorney, Dan Rowland, in his motion to set aside the "death" judgment, points out that she secretly left home because she had become estranged from or had divorced her first husband and, to avoid complications with him, told no one of her whereabouts except her father. She claims her father, who died in 1964, knew her whereabouts during all her long absence.

She says she knew nothing of the court order declaring her legally dead until October or November last year. She took no immediate action, she added, to reverse her "dead" status because her relatives had already taken steps to reconvey the property in question to her. The motion also says she and her husband were "so impressed by the mountains" that they decided to build a summer home here. But, the motion adds, during a visit to her relatives two days, early last month, the relationship between them cooled and her relatives declined to discuss the property matter any further.

Mrs. Maltempo's attorney argues that, since the judgment is analogous to a default judgment, any time limit imposed on his client should begin only on the date, October or November, 1972, when she was informed of the judgment. Jarvis Allen, attorney for others involved in the court action, contends the action of the court cannot be rescinded.

After last Friday's court appearance counsel on both sides of the case were given 10 days in which to submit memoranda. The case is not expected to elicit any volume of testimony, since it hinges primarily on a question of law.

Wife of 72 Years Gives Advice to June Brides

By HELEN PRICE STACY

"I'll say this much. Any two people who live together as long as we did stay together forever in spirit."

Mrs. Gordon Henry of Morgan county was 90 on May 20. Her husband of 72 years, Joseph Gordon Henry, died last July 14 at the age of 99.

His death ended a love story that began more than 75 years ago. "I'll say I miss him, Lord have mercy on me, I miss him. Still, he seems close to me," says Mrs. Henry, the former Miss Frances Yocum.

The Henrys were married March 6, 1900, but Mrs. Henry, a tiny doll-like woman, says it doesn't matter when a couple marries: "It's who they marry, whether it's in June or December."

Speaking with authority, the woman who was blessed to celebrate a 72nd wedding anniversary, advises young people today to make sure what they feel is "real" and not just "fancy."

"If you love one another, you'll live a happy life; if you don't, then it's sure as death you won't be happy together," she says.

"Once in a while you won't agree," she continues. "You just don't agree on everything all the time, but the disagreements will be about your children and family, things important to both of you. Me and Gordon had little arguments occasionally. He'd be a little bit hard on bringing up the boys and I'd sort of take up for them, but it was for good all the way around."

She recalls meeting her husband in a small country church at Spaws Creek in Morgan county. Her father, the Rev. W. B. (Preacher Bill) Yocum was conducting a revival and during the sermon she glanced across the aisle at a handsome stranger. "His hair was black as coal and those brass buttons on that blue uniform. Was he good looking!" She was 15.

Her future husband had returned from Fort D. A. Russell near Cheyenne, Wyo. where he had been in infantry military training at about the time the Spanish American War began.

In an interview with Mr. Henry prior to their last wedding anniversary together, he, too, recalled the first meeting. Back in his native Morgan county, as an army veteran attending the revival meeting with a friend, he looked across the aisle and saw Frances Yocum. "I turned to my buddy and told him that some day that girl would be my wife. Her hair was black as a crow's wing. I've loved her ever since," Henry said.

As a result of a newspaper article about their 72nd anniversary, congratulations came from far and near. "A truck driver who said he lived all by himself sent us $5 just because we'd been happily married 72 years," Mrs. Henry said. "A man out in Texas saw the story and our picture in a newspaper and Painted a picture of us and sent it to us. We got more than 300 cards and letters and I'm still getting cards. We got them from county judges all over Kentucky and from people who lived overseas. We had a letter from Governor Ford and one from the President."

Since her husband's death, she especially enjoys frequent visits from her children, Jim Henry in Michigan, Clay Wade Henry in Indiana, Mrs. Lennie Thornberry and White Henry, both of Morgan county. A son, Winfred Henry, makes his home with his mother and helps care for her as he did his father.

Summing up her advice to newlyweds, Mrs. Henry says: "Don't ever let jealousy come between you. Divorce was never named between us. He never got mad and left home and neither did I. I thought too much of him to do that. Sometimes you will have disagreements, but it won't matter if you love one another."
