

E. Kentucky Plant Hopes Held Bright Perkins Says Area In Better Position To Get Pilot Plant

Eastern Kentucky is now in a better position than it has ever been before to get a demonstration plant for converting coal to other fuels, Congressman Carl D. Perkins said last week.

The Congressman made the statement after an exchange of correspondence with the Interior Department. Rep. Perkins had written to Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton requesting that any new research facility on using coal to make gasoline and other fuels be located in the Eastern Kentucky coal area.

His letter said, in part, that: "... full and careful consideration be given to locating facilities, such as demonstration plants, in the Eastern Kentucky coal area, with Hazard, Whitesburg, Pikeville, and Prestonsburg as potential sites. Locating facilities in this area would be logically and fiscally wise, because it would be putting them where the coal is. It would also provide jobs for the people there, and they have a history of being highly efficient workers who ask only the opportunity to hold down a job."

The Interior Department response said, in part: "Eastern Kentucky would, indeed, be one of the prime candidates for siting a pilot or demonstration plant because of its vast resources of high-sulfur bituminous coals and its large, available, high-quality labor force."

The Interior Department response also said: "It was most unfortunate that the coal conversion programs you cited, initiated two decades ago, were abruptly discontinued."

This was a reference to a point in the letter from Rep. Perkins, which emphasized the fact that the Interior Department had been operating several demonstration plants in Missouri during the late 1940's and early 1950's, but the Administration then in office declined to budget funds to continue operation of the plants.

RECC Employee Electrocuted, Three Injured

One Big Sandy Rural Electric Cooperative employee was killed by electrocution, and three others, one of whom is a Floyd countian, were slightly burned last Friday morning while replacing a power pole on the Upper Twin Branch of Jenny's Creek.

Jack Slone, 29, of Sitka, who was operating a hydraulic boom truck while a new pole was being set to replace an old one, died instantly when the pole and ground wire came in contact with a power line which had been thought "dead," Bill Wells, RECC manager, said.

Other workmen who suffered burns but who have been dismissed after treatment at the Highlands Medical Center are Harold Green, of West Prestonsburg, Epa McCarty, of Oil Springs, and Robert Webb, of Johnson county.

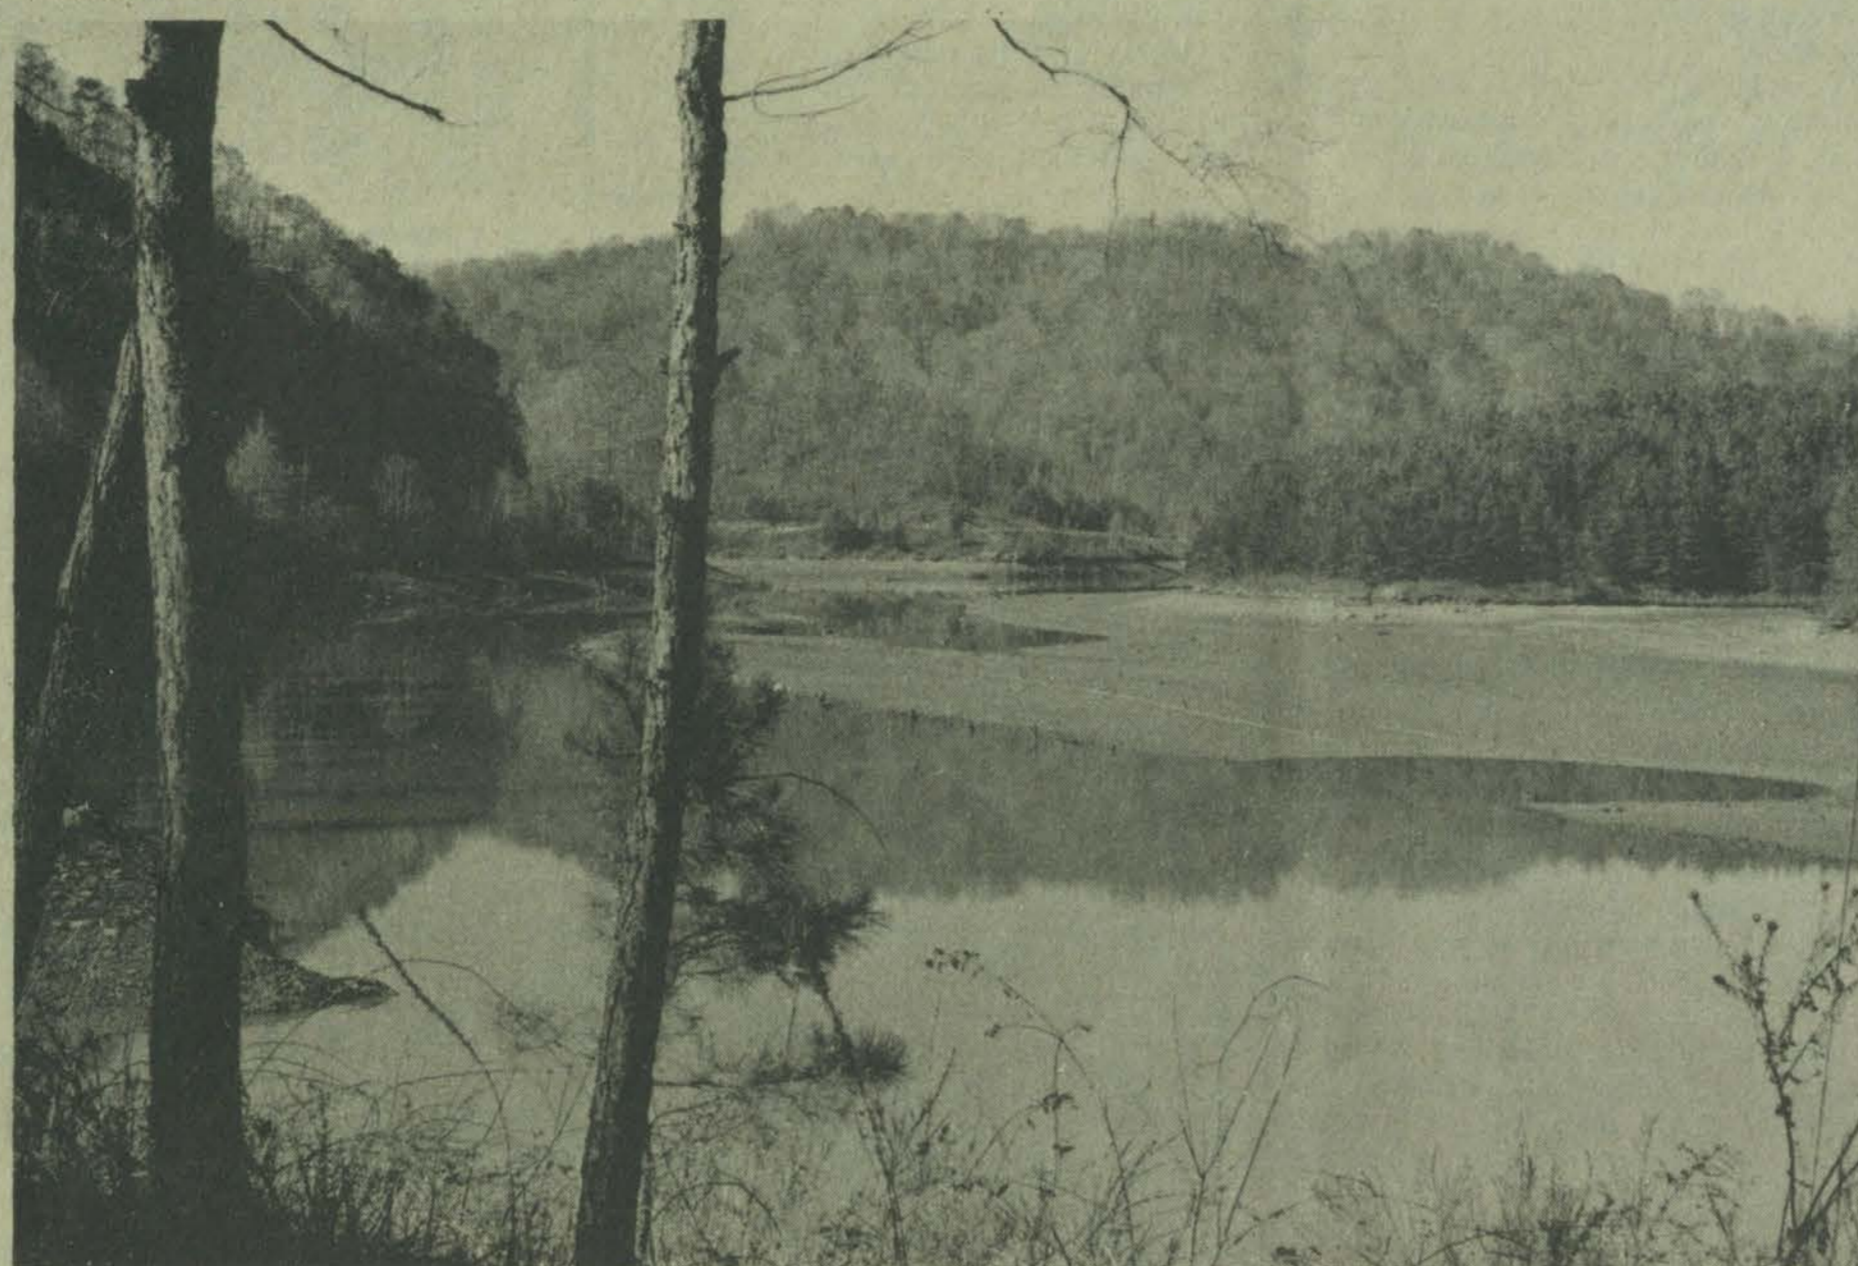

Funeral rites for Slone were conducted Monday and burial was made near Sitka. He is survived by his widow and three children.

P'burg To Cut Back On Fuel Consumption

At Thursday night's meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council, the effect of the current fuel shortage on the operation of city government took top priority among topics discussed.

There was unanimous agreement among council members on the immediate need to begin a city program of fuel conservation, and City Manager Curtis Clark said, "Every department is going to have to cut back." Clark suggested, as a possible goal, a 20-25 percent reduction in fuel consumption.

Mayor pro-tem Burl Wells Spurlock explained the city's situation. "Since our supplier cut us back from our normal 2,300 gallons per month to 1,700 (based on November 1972 consumption figures), we're having difficulty performing our normal city duties at acceptable levels," he said. Diesel fuel has been on order for more than a month, Spurlock said, with little hope for delivery soon.

Drug Use in Schools, Teachers Are Talked

The first of a series of monthly meetings between student representatives of the county's five high schools and Superintendent of Schools Charles Clark was held here last Wednesday as a move to gain student insight into school problems.

"We are attempting to break the generation gap and find ways of improving the overall school program by inviting these young people in to share their ideas with us," the superintendent said.

And they shared ideas, Mr. Clark added. "They were brutally frank... it was amazing how intelligent it was," he said of the Wednesday conference.

The initial session dealt mainly with the drug situation in the schools and also explored teacher-pupil relationships. The latter was blamed by some students for most of the school problems.

The need for meetings with student leaders, principals of the five schools and supervisors was emphasized by Supt. Clark. "We need to know," he said,

Yule Lights Here To Burn Briefly To Save Energy

Prestonsburg's Christmas lights are up, but they'll be dark 21 of the 24 hours a day as city officials attempt a sharp cutback in energy consumption.

City Manager Curtis Clark said the street decorations will burn only from 6 to 9 p.m., and that this will amount to a 60 percent reduction in electric power used.

Clark said Monday that he is receiving several queries about the use of home decorations and that some householders have indicated they will use their lights sparingly—probably during the same hours the street decorations are lighted.

Says Traffic Lights Slated at Allen

State Representative W. J. Reynolds told The Times Monday that a traffic light will be installed at the intersection of KY 80, old US 23 and the new four-lane US 23 at Allen.

Mr. Reynolds said Gail Mullins, district engineer, Department of Highways, had confirmed the state's decision to install regulation "Stop" and "Go" lights at the intersection where upwards of 20 wrecks have taken place since the new road was opened.

He added that it was indicated the work will be done shortly.

Judge Stumbo To Retire after 38 Years

County Judge Henry Stumbo, who has announced that he will end his career as a public official with the end of his next four years in office, is Eastern Kentucky's most remarkable political figure.

Here's why:
1. At the end of the term to which he was elected at the November election he will have held office, without interruption, for a few months longer than 38 years.

2. He has never been defeated in an election, and will retire undefeated.

Judge Stumbo will pass the usual retirement age before his next term of office ends, and he says he almost decided not to seek re-election this year. "If I had listened to my wife, I would have retired at the end of this year," he said. "But there are a few more roads and bridges that I want to build, and I want to see the county's solid-waste and comprehensive health programs working before I quit," he added.

Judge Stumbo was first elected in 1939 when he ran for the short term as Magistrate in what is now District 3. A magisterial election there had resulted in a contest between Willie Hall and Martin L. Johnson, and both lost right to the office. Governor A. B. Chandler appointed Omery Hall, son of the Democratic candidate, till the office could be filled by popular vote.

Stumbo then was elected to two full four-year terms as Magistrate before entering the race for County Judge in 1949.

He has held the judge's office ever since, and in no election has his victory margin been considered narrow.

This Town . . . That World

If you can't find any blessings to count, this Thanksgiving, there's a pretty good chance you'll really be in a fix by the next.

This is not recorded here to discourage President Nixon, but to date there has been one report received to the effect that at least one person was disgruntled because the Nixon press conference last Saturday night preempted Sterling Akers on the Hazard TV station. Oh, boy!

CHALLENGES THE FIGURES

It was a tiny filler item in a newspaper that attracted attention around this office, the other day. It stated with considerable authority that the fastest flying insect is the horsefly, adding that this pest has been clocked at 31½ m.p.h. One of our group of fishermen who has almost been driven out of the boat on more than one occasion in the Dick's Creek section of Dewey Lake by a horsefly of unusual proportions and bloodthirstiness vows that the speed is faster than that. He claims to have clocked this particular specimen at 35. And, at that, he adds, the fly was still in second.

HIS VERSION

I haven't kept my reader (s?) fully informed about our continuing newspaper famine, having got sidetracked somewhere back there by a flock of other shortages, but my partner in misery, "Bud" Perry, tells the story quite well in his "Coffee Break" column (Paintsville Herald, Nov. 14):

Four Convicted Get Pen Terms In Trials Here

Four men convicted in circuit court last week were sentenced to pen terms.

Heaviest penalty was that of Mark Smith, who was convicted of a charge of shooting and wounding with intent to kill Bobby Dale Kenney at Weeksbury. His term was set at three years.

Others panned are Charles Taulbee, Robert Lee White and Ralph Garrett Harrison, each of whom received a one-year term after pleading guilty to breaking and entering Thompson's IGA Store here. The bond of Jerry Dale Harrison, fourth man charged in the break, was forfeited when he failed to appear for trial.

Gary B. Sexton was convicted of assault and battery with an auto in the injury of a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reed, Jr., and the jury set his fine at $800.

Clarence Martin entered pleas of guilty to two charges of possessing intoxicating beverages for the purpose of sale and was fined $100 and given a 30-day jail term in each case. The guilty plea of Walker Newsome to a possession charge resulted in a 30-day jail term and a fine of $100. The jury failed to agree in the trial of William Riley Wells, Jr. on the same charge.

Survey To Show If Life of Lake Reduced by Silt

Dewey Lake was designed for an "economic life" of 50 years. Twenty of those years have already passed, and the remaining years may be fewer than originally expected.

The U. S. Corps of Engineers last week began a sedimentation survey of the entire reservoir which may give an indication of how many of the days of the lake have been shortened, if any.

This work, it was pointed out by H. K. Crisp, of the Corps' Huntington district office Friday in a telephone conversation with The Times, is a major job, and the findings are not expected to be known before next April.

Permanent markers, or monuments, were placed on either side of Johns Creek before its impounding 20 years ago, and now, with the lake level reduced by 15 feet from its normal conservation level, engineers are surveying between these monuments to determine how much sedimentation has actually occurred.

It was conceded, earlier this year, that strip-mine and logging operations in the

64 Guns Taken In Heavy Haul At Store Here

The robbery early Sunday morning of the Western Auto Store here netted thieves an estimated $10,000 worth of merchandise, and as of Monday afternoon no clue to the identity of the thieves had yet been uncovered.

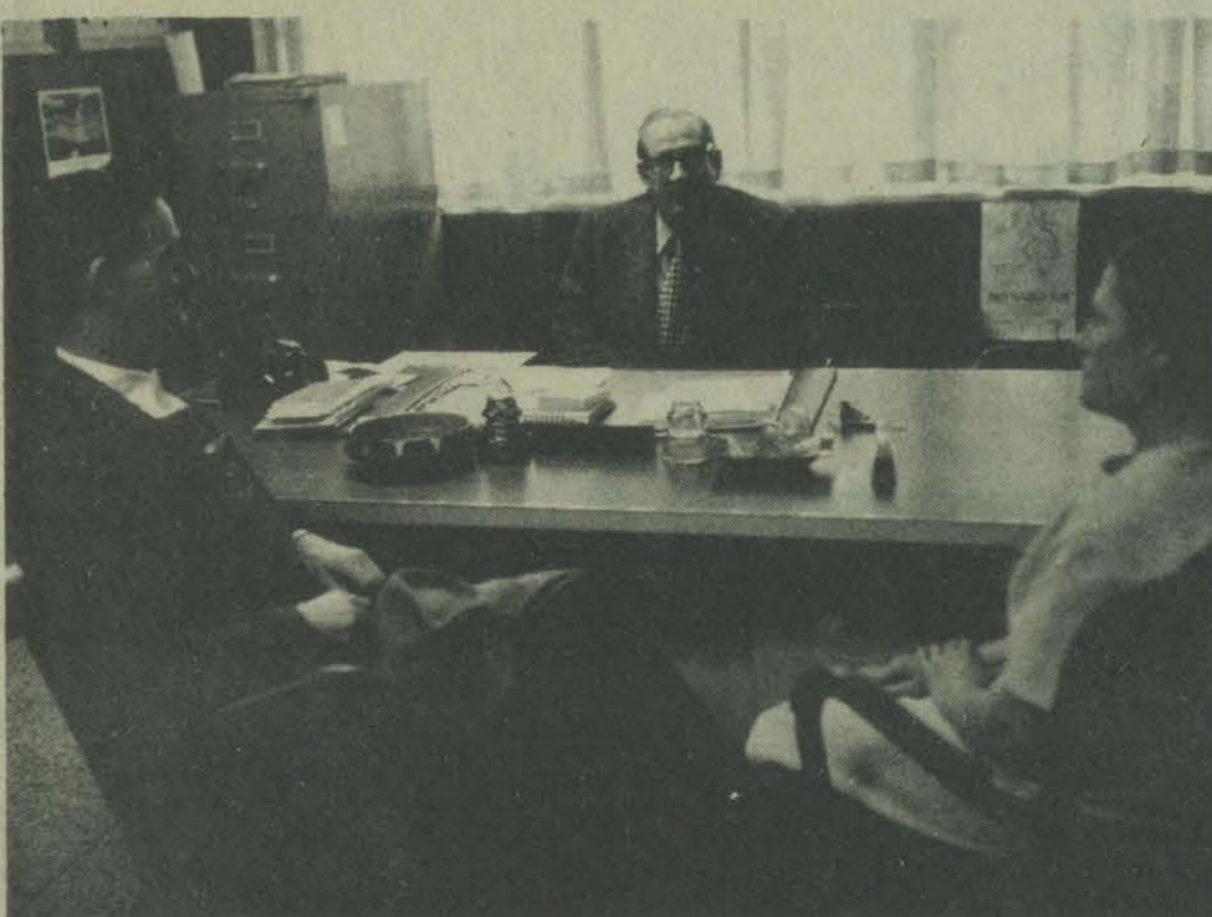

Store owner Carl Castle was informed of the break late Sunday afternoon after passersby had noticed that the store's front door had been forced open.

Stolen were 64 guns, including rifles, shotguns and pistols, three television sets, two sewing machines, 8 to 10 auto tape players and an undetermined number of eight-track tapes.

Investigation of the robbery is being conducted by Prestonsburg police and County Detective Sam Hale.

Those booked at the county jail within the week, their alleged offenses, and arresting officers follow:

Walter C. Arnett, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper E. B. Allen; Fred Marshall, drunk driving, by State Trooper Newsome; Bert Stollings, drunk driving, by State Trooper Cantrell; Gary Howes, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Cantrell; Ralphie DeBoard, drunk driving and no operator's license, by State Trooper Cantrell; Willie Lewis Baldrige, drunk driving, by Policemen Kelley and Trusty.

stop and third base and, as he grew older, moved back to the plate.

In fact, he played baseball until the July before his election as judge. "I decided I'd better see somebody other than baseball crowds if I was going to win," he recalls.

Besides the strength found in his sports friends, Stumbo started off with a strong voting base in his own family. His father, Greenville Stumbo, was twice married and there were 25 in the two "sets" of his children. Only eight of these now survive.

Judge Stumbo was asked how he had held over the years such a strong place in the esteem of the voters. He ranks service first, but he also points out: "If anybody fought me or voted against me, I have never been mad with them or treated them as an enemy. That's a freedom we all have. I tried to treat them right, and I figured that, maybe, next time they might be for me."

"I've enjoyed most of my time as county judge," he said recently. "There have been times of awful tragedy, such as the 1957 flood, the school bus wreck and some of the murders that have been committed, but, on the whole, I've enjoyed it."

Some of the enjoyable recollections are the roads built. When he became magistrate, he says, there were only the Mayo Trail (US 23), KY 80 from Allen up Beaver Creek, only a portion of the Left Beaver Creek road—and no connecting road, except the Cow Creek road that was WPA-built and the road out the head of Left Beaver into Pike county. Since then, dozens of roads linking creeks and

Consumer Comments

By ED W. HANCOCK
(Attorney General of Kentucky)

Because of a traditional financial policy called "holder in due course doctrine," a consumer can suffer unnecessary financial tragedy.

Most consumers assume that if they agree to an installment contract they can also refuse to make payments for defective merchandise or unsatisfactory service.

However, the merchant often sells the contract to a bank or finance company to obtain his money immediately rather than waiting for the consumer to make small, monthly payments.

The majority of buyers are unaware that these documents often contain a "waiver of defense" clause—a legality which provides that the consumer cannot raise any defenses against the financial institution which purchased the contract.

The contract purchaser becomes the "holder in due course."
According to existing legislation, if the financial institution sues, it is futile to tell the court that the product is defective, for you have "waived your defenses."

This doctrine has enabled many irreputable companies to operate in Kentucky because a financial institution did not have to investigate alleged fraudulent practices such as the selling of defective merchandise or the merchant "skipping town."

The Consumers Advisory Council has proposed a bill to eliminate the "waiver of defense" clause. Thus, lending institutions holding contracts would be liable for defective merchandise.

The General Assembly will consider this issue during the next session of the legislature.

If you are unemployed, just out of high school, or dissatisfied with your present position, you need to be especially certain to know all the facts about businesses which promise opportunities for employment or advancement, but which require you to pay money for these opportunities.

Some so-called "training schools" are actually only salesmen for actual schools which conduct the courses. Such companies often sell an unsuspecting consumer a course for several hundred dollars which could be purchased directly from a school for many times less than that amount.

Consumers should be cautious when promised that employment is guaranteed or that the school will try to find jobs for its graduates. Call businesses which hire people with the type training involved and ask about the school.

There are several other places to check up on a school or training course. All schools must be licensed with the state under one of several licensing boards. Before signing up with any school, and before paying any money, call the State Department of Education in Frankfort to determine which board licenses the school and whether the school is properly bonded to do business in Kentucky.

If you are a Kentucky resident and have a question on a consumer problem, you may call the Consumer Protection hotline, toll-free, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., (EST) Monday through Friday, at 1-800-372-2960, or write the Attorney General, 309 Shelby Street, Room 110, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

TENTATIVE SETTLEMENT REACHED

A tentative settlement of the Detroit teacher strike has come after the school board voted 7-5 not to press the Detroit Federation of Teachers for about $2.5 million in damages to pay for administrative and custodial costs during the strike. Several days earlier, 60 percent of the teachers had approved a compromise agreement, but union head Mary Riordan said teachers would not return to work until the board dropped its damage claim, which had already been upheld by a circuit court judge.

Spare Us the Sacrificial Role

It is altogether possible that the developing energy crisis will bring to the region called Appalachia more woes than other areas of the nation will suffer.

This part of America will feel the scarcity of fuels and all the attendant shortages that other sections of the country will suffer. Then, as the "anything goes" policy develops, with leaders grown panicky in the face of a situation that may indeed be critical, Appalachia (including Eastern Kentucky) will have even less protection than the present gossamer shield from despoilation of its mountains and streams in the mad rush for coal.

The Times recognizes the fact that coal is a necessity. We know that the nation must have this fuel. We hope that this coal can be mined and put to work for the good of the country through deep mining and through conversion of that coal to oil or gas, or both. The Times hopes Eastern Kentucky, where the coal is, will be the site of a coal-conversion plant and that all the possibilities of this resource of ours are, after unconscionable delay, fully realized.

But this newspaper is not willing to join those who would offer Appalachia as a sacrifice.

Only three per cent of the billions of tons of coal which, we are told, will supply the United States coal for the next 500 years is recoverable through surface mining. Then why concentrate on this small part of the national reserve and in the meantime neglect, even penalize through surface mine competition and federal regulations, the mining of those deeper deposits through the conventional methods which put men, not machines, to work?

The "quick buck" is not the answer. Government must be protective as well as productive. It should afford the deep miner those supports which will justify heavy financial investment for production over the long-haul.

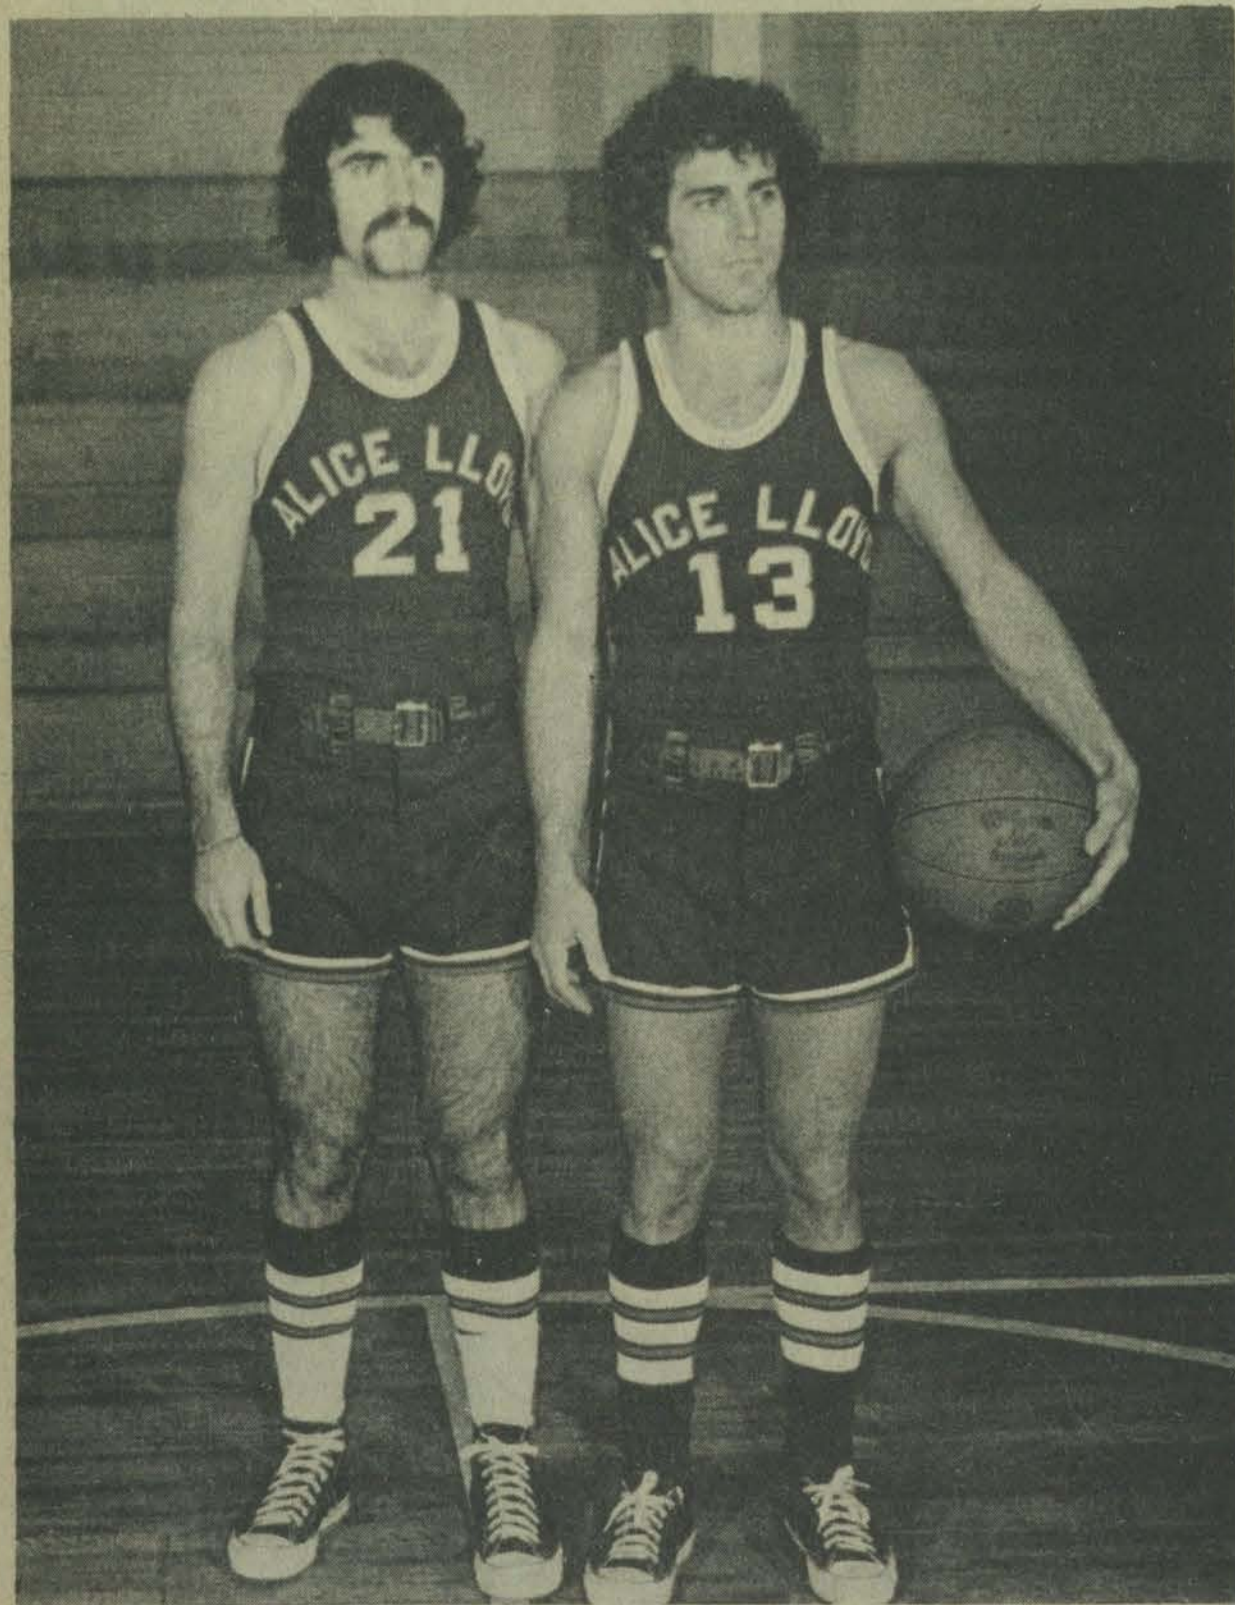

If it can ever be proved that coal can be surface-mined without destruction or serious damage to the land and the water and all those elements on which human life must depend after the last hillside and hilltop have been mined, then we would be less than fair to oppose this method of recovering coal. But such proof must be more concrete than mere assurances from Governor Ford, Environmental Commissioner Tom Harris, or even President Nixon.

The Kentucky Legislature is expected to have an opportunity at its coming session to indicate its interest, or lack thereof, in this matter. A bill designed to curtail the cruel force of the so-called "Long Form" deed is being prepared for introduction. This will give Kentucky's lawmakers the opportunity to do what the Court of Appeals has refused to do for those who have been victimized by this ancient document. The proposed legislation would at least prevent strip-mining on any landholder's property unless he first gives his written consent.

Thus the landowner would be placed in a position that would be more favorable than his present plight which simply is that of having the right to use the surface until it is needed for mining—plus the responsibility of paying taxes on that surface which, under provisions of this old deed, isn't really his.

We are as aware as most that Eastern Kentucky's economy is pegged to coal. We wish for coal a solid, secure future as its vital importance is recognized. Yet we do not accept for our people and our region the role of sacrificial lamb.

Club Airborne with New Plane But Fears Grounding by Shortage

Two months old, 27 members strong and owners of their own plane, the Sandy Valley Flying Club here has a good thing going, but the flying enthusiasts are now wondering if they will be grounded by the fuel crisis.

It all began with the ground school initiated this fall by the Community Services office of Prestonsburg Community College. Hubert Puckett, a Prestonsburg native who is licensed for multi-engine commercial airplane and instrument instruction and a veteran with more than 2,000 hours' flying time, was employed as instructor. More than 40 persons enrolled for the 10-week, non-credit night course, but Puckett insisted that you can't really learn to fly without a plane.

So several of the students formed a corporation, bought the plane, a Cessna 150 commuter, have approximately half its $10,395 cost already paid and—if the fuel situation doesn't become too discouraging—may buy a second plane next spring. To buy the plane they now have, members paid a $100 initiation fee to raise the down payment. Monthly payments are financed with $12 monthly dues and a $10-per-hour fee charged for use of the plane.

The plane is booked three weeks in advance and during the first six weeks after its purchase logged more than 120 hours' flying time.

The flying club is composed mainly of business and professional people from Prestonsburg, Paintsville and other towns in the area. The membership includes five doctors and two lawyers. Three members are women. Three others were already licensed pilots. Two student-fliers have soloed, and others are nearing that point in their training.

Coming up Nov. 29 is the stiff FAA written examination for a private pilot license, and clubmembers are busy preparing for that.

John Herald, coordinator of student affairs at Prestonsburg Community College, said last week a second ground school class is slated to begin in January.

Castle Named Kiwanian of Year

Carl Castle, Prestonsburg businessman, was named last week by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club as the "Outstanding Kiwanian of the Year" for the year 1972-'73.

This is an award, it was explained, that is given only when the club feels that there is one individual in the club who goes above and beyond what is expected of a Kiwanian to help his club in its aims of community development. In the last 10 years there have been only four Kiwanian of the Year awards given.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my husband, David Lykins, who passed away November 19, 1972.

Did I hear your footsteps at the door— Did I hear you call my name? No, that was in days of yore; I'd had a stroll down memory lane.

I reach for a hand to clasp, To find it is not there, I feel you must be waiting, dear Near a Home beyond compare— In that great land of Paradise, Where tears no more will fill the eyes, Where sickness cannot overtake; Where minds won't fear and hearts won't ache.

Opinions From Office Of Attorney General

Among opinions released last week from the office of Atty. Gen. Ed W. Hancock were the following:

William S. Howard, Lexington attorney, asked if a county surveyor is required to be licensed as a land surveyor. Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas R. Emerson said that the office of county surveyor is a constitutionally created office, and licensing requirements applicable to other land surveyors are not applicable to the county surveyor, since there is no constitutional provision to that effect.

Phillip R. Dillion, coordinator of the Casey County Vocational Educational Center, asked if students can be submitted to a test, such as a blood or urinalysis test, without their consent in order to make a positive determination as to their use of drugs. Asst. Atty. Gen. Carl Miller replied that if the drug problem in a school district is severe enough to require drastic action, the school board should enact a reasonable regulation upon which school authorities may act and which may be applied in a fair and equal manner. If such a test is to be made, it must be made pursuant to a regulation which applies to all students.

Albin L. Lee, assistant superintendent for psychological services and special education of the Jefferson county public schools, asked if local school personnel could keep a child's medication in a safe place and administer the medication at the correct time, provided there are file letters from the parents and physicians giving directions and requesting help. Asst. Atty. Gen. Miller pointed out that the teaching profession is the nurturing of the young, which requires a friendly concern for each pupil and the rendering of various practical services beyond the mere offering of instruction. Therefore, upon the parents request, the teacher may keep and administer medication.

Chester Foster, of the Executive Department for Finance and Administration, asked if the mayor of a city can legally appoint a non-resident of the city to the city's recreation commission. Asst. Atty. Gen. Walter C. Herdman replied that the office of recreation commission member is not a constitutional office, and, therefore, the mayor could appoint a non-resident.

Mental Health May Get Calvert School

The Mountain Mental Health Association of Pike county and the Pike County Council for Retarded Children approved a joint resolution last Tuesday, calling for suitable reimbursement from the city of Pikeville and Pike county for the acquisition of the building and property where the Mary Calvert School for Retarded Children now stands near Pikeville.

The school, built and operated through donations from the public for more than a decade, stands at the mouth of Poor Farm Hollow in Pike county where the mammoth cut is planned to divert the Big Sandy River. The land was deeded to the school by the Pike fiscal court several years ago. Recently, however, the Hollow, including the school property, was sold by the county to the city.

In conferences with representatives of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, which now operates the school for retarded children, officials of both city and county have disavowed responsibility and referred the problem of payment for the school property to the other.

The resolution, passed unanimously by members of both organizations, calls for a committee to meet with Pike County Judge Wayne Rutherford and Pikeville Mayor William Hambley to determine what steps either jurisdiction is prepared to take to assure the continued operation of the school. Mrs. Tom Raney, president of the Mountain Mental Health Association, and Carl Thacker, president of the Pike County Council for Retarded Children, will lead the delegation in seeking appointments with the two officials.

Kentucky's Doctor-Governor

By PAULA ALEXANDER
State News Bureau

Many of Kentucky's past governors have been military heroes, prominent lawyers or distinguished businessmen. Only one set broken bones, delivered babies and imposed quarantines when yellow fever struck.

Luke P. Blackburn (1816-1887), took the Hippocratic oath long before he was sworn in as Kentucky's 28th governor. Blackburn's reputation as a medical practitioner spread soon after he graduated from Lexington's Transylvania College in 1834.

Cholera was annihilating many of the nearby residents of Versailles. The town's doctors had either fled or succumbed to the epidemic. Young Dr. Blackburn remained undaunted and soon eradicated the raging disease almost single-handedly.

The grateful citizens promptly elected Blackburn to the state legislature. Medicine, however, remained Blackburn's major interest, so he and his wife, Ella Boswell, relocated in Natchez, Miss., where he served as the city's health officer. There Blackburn organized the first marine hospital for impoverished and sick rivermen.

When yellow fever became widespread in Natchez Blackburn insisted on a quarantine—a then relatively unknown method. He often encountered criticism because of his daring new medical procedures.

The city later presented the staunch doctor with two beautifully orate silver pitchers with trays inscribed in "gratitude for rigid and successful enforcement of the quarantine in 1854."

While studying in Europe two years later he met Julia Churchill. They married after returning to America, making New Orleans their home.

Blackburn was one of the first men to favor secession as Civil War threatened and he served as a surgeon on the staff of Gen. Sterling Price during those chaotic years.

At the request of the governor general of Canada, Blackburn went to Bermuda in 1864 to help yellow fever victims.

The Blackburns returned to an Arkansas plantation soon after the war's termination and remained there until 1873 when they moved to Kentucky.

Yet another yellow fever epidemic occurred that same year—this time in Memphis, Tenn. Once again the courageous doctor rushed to the area to offer assistance. He was repaid with a silver tray.

As Blackburn once again settled in his native state, he began to participate in politics and then decided to run as the Democratic candidate for governor in 1878.

He was in the midst of a campaign tour when yellow fever struck the little town of Hickman. Remembering the Hippocratic oath, Blackburn immediately rushed to the stricken area. Two gold medals were his reward.

His bravery won him the governorship by a margin of almost 44,000 votes over Republican Walter Evans.

Since a promise of prison reform also played a large part in Blackburn's election, he immediately insisted on a replacement of the penitentiary in Frankfort where 969 inmates were crowded into 780 small cells. Scurvy and tuberculosis were common at the institution.

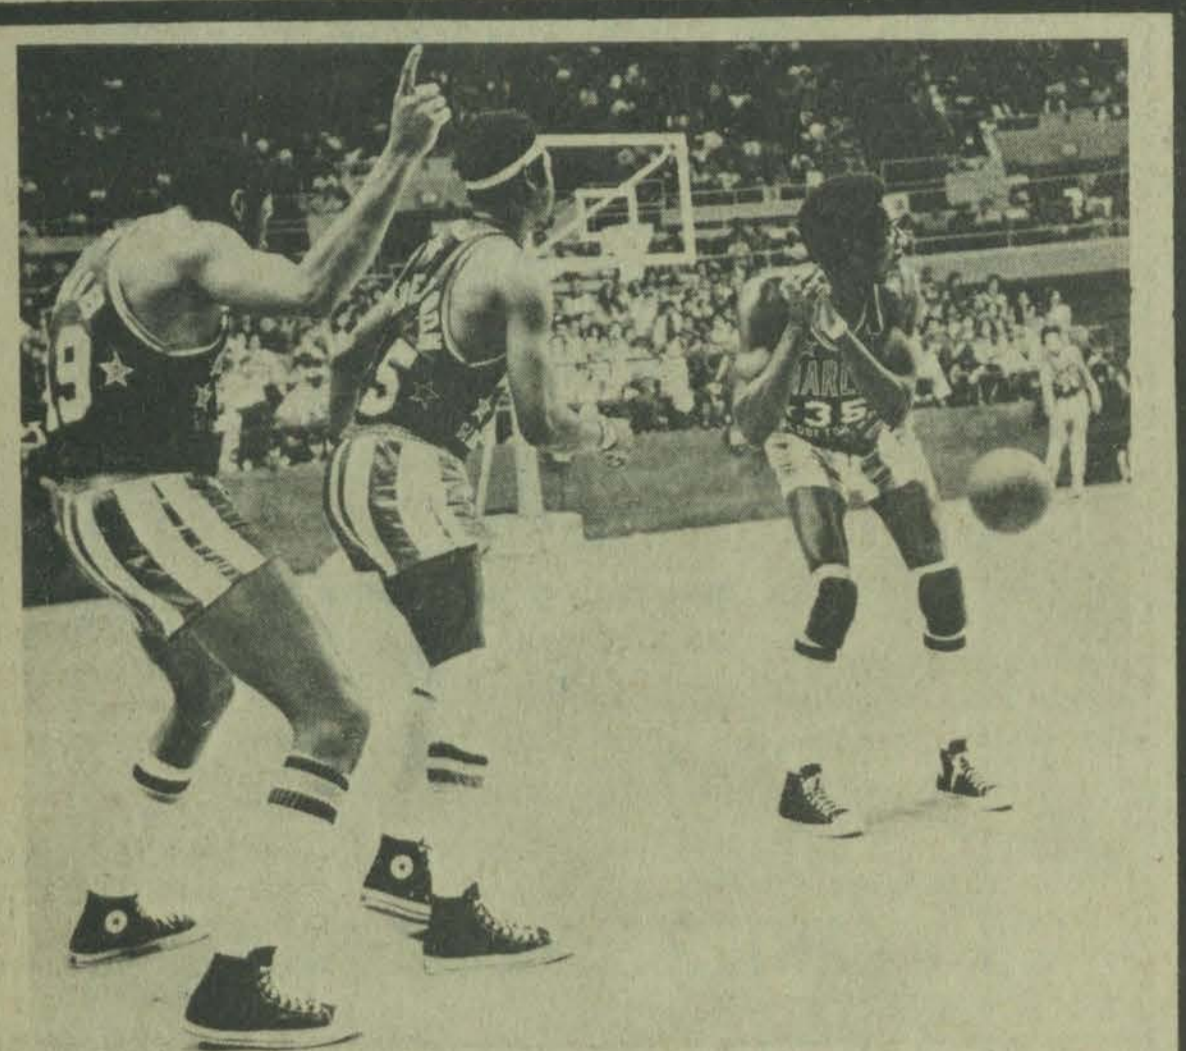

However, the legislators were hesitant to appropriate additional funds until the new governor began to pardon the prisoners—starting with the seriously ill.

At one time 14 of the pardoned men were carried past the Governor's Mansion in cots. The dramatic incident was the deciding point for legislators and construction was then authorized for a new facility at Eddyville.

Blackburn's support for educational and job skill training also attests to his foresight. Julia aided in her husband's reforms by conducting the first Sunday School at the Frankfort prison.

Blackburn's term expired in 1883 and he died four years later.

John Shell: Oldest Kentuckian

By HELEN PRICE STACY

If Gov. Wendell Ford's present search for the oldest Kentuckian had been conducted in 1921-'22, the state's senior citizens would plead "no contest" to a Leslie County man named John Shell.

Darrell Terry, a former student at Lees Junior College in Jackson, claimed in a research paper that Shell lived to be 134. At the time of Shell's death he had a son 99-years old and another who was only seven.

Shell was actually a Tennessee native. His parents migrated from Pennsylvania and finally settled in Kentucky's southern mountains—in a four-household community now known as Harlan.

Shell and his first wife, Elizabeth Nance, had eight children. To keep his large family well-fed, he often hunted deer and bear. The fact that he was not always successful in bringing home the meat resulted in the naming of Greasy Creek.

He had taken his long rifle to the mountain when he came upon a bear. His shot merely wounded the animal and caused it to run and fall into a deep water hole.

As time passed, the bear fat created a greasy scum on the water, making it known from then on as Greasy Creek.

Kentucky's pioneers had to be versatile if they were to survive, and Shell was no exception. He was a gunsmith, blacksmith, beekeeper and carpenter. He made wagons, operated a flour and grist mill and carved spinning wheels and looms with his handmade knife.

A man who lived 134 years is certain to have had many memories. Shell saw early scouts and explorers, including Daniel Boone and even helped defend the Harlan settlement against an Indian attack.

He felt the great 1811 earthquake that changed the structure of the Mississippi basin as well as sections of the state.

Shell's first wife eventually died, and he later married Elizabeth Chappel. Their son, Albert James Shell, of Leslie county, is now 57.

The secret of Shell's longevity is unknown, although heredity is thought to be a factor. Shell's love for pure honey and his lifetime in mountains, spent walking daily along narrow valleys and climbing steep hills, possibly contributed to his attainment of age 134.

Blackcats Place Four Players on Team

The Sandy Valley Conference had its first post-season meeting Monday night at the Holiday Inn in South Point, Ohio and a 22-man all-conference team was named. The Prestonsburg Blackcats, under Coach Ed Radjunas, placed four players on the team—two offensively and two defensively. The Blackcats named on offense were quarterback Jim Blackburn and split end Dennis Walker. The defensive players were tackle Donnie Chaffin and back Danny Layne. Walker, Chaffins and Layne are juniors. Blackburn is the lone senior of the four. Coach Tom Scott, of Boyd County, was named conference Coach of the Year. The school representatives also talked about increasing the conference membership to eight teams, with Johnson Central and East Carter showing interest. The next meeting is scheduled for the week after the state basketball tournament. The basketball coaches discussed the Sandy Valley Conference basketball tournament which has been scheduled for Dec. 6-8 at Greenup County High School. Other members of the All-Sandy Valley team included: OFFENSE: Mike Jones and Dwight Bailey, Russell; Robin Chaney, Terry Keelin and Guff Riffe, Boyd county; Greg Crawford and Perry Hogsten, Greenup County; Terry Cochran and James Ramey, Belfrey. DEFENSE: Bret Bradley and John Looney, Russell; Richard Smith, Jeff Nichols and Mike Delivigis, Boyd County; Jim Horn and Darin Alexander, Greenup County; Gary Deskins and Robert Lequire, Belfry.

(Continued from Page One) communities with main highways have been built, till now, industries using them say, Floyd county has the best system of highways in Eastern Kentucky. Spurlock, Mink Branch, Sizemore, Tinker Fork, roads connecting the Beavers, roads connecting the county with Knott, Pike, Magoffin, Martin, Johnson—the list is long, if not amazing. The veteran official credits the County Road Aid Program initiated by Governor Combs as the big break the county needed. "We got in, naturally, before any other county, we have been able to lease machinery and pay for it by working it on roads and receiving pay from the state. We haven't done all we would like to do, but we've got roads to show for our work," he said. The judge also considers the improved financial condition of the county with considerable pleasure. "When I first became a member of the fiscal court the county had a bond indebtedness of a million dollars and when I became county judge the debt was $600,000. We paid all that off, and now the only bond debt we have is on the new courthouse, and that debt of $300,000 is being reduced every year without any extra cost to the taxpayers." "Sure, I've made mistakes," Stumbo says. "But they weren't mistakes deliberately made." Then he spoke of what he termed his "feeling for the poor." He ascribes this to the fact that he knows what it is to be poor, that he has never accumulated any fortune—instead, still owes on the home which he and his wife, Rati, live in here. And there are many here who will tell of having seen the judge, caught short of cash when asked for help by a poor person, go to a friend and borrow money to help the one in need. Judge and Mrs. Stumbo live a quiet life outside his official duties. She takes little part in politics—though, he adds, "she gets a little excited as election-time gets nearer." If being county judge were his only work, life could be a bit more serene, but he is involved in numerous groups working within government. He is a member, for instance, of the Big Sandy Community Action Program, the Big Sandy Area Planning Council, the Senior Citizens' Board, the Big Sandy Human Resources Council, the Manpower Council, the Floyd County Comprehensive Health Care, the Floyd County Board of Health (for the longest period of any member) and the 22-county Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program (EKCEP). And these make demands on his time. The job of being county judge has become tougher, much tougher, than when Judge Stumbo took office in January, 1950. "Then," he recalls, "there were few good roads, few automobiles and there were not many telephones. It wasn't easy then to call on the judge. Now, folks can drive in from any part of the county, or call me to ask that things be done. But I'm not complaining—I don't blame them for making their needs known, although I have a steady stream of callers, in person or by phone." As he spoke, the phone of his desk rang. He spoke briefly, and you could gather that the conversation was about a road. "See what I mean?" he smiled. "That call was from Caleb Fork, a good 40 miles from here."

(Continued from Page One) lake watershed have created conditions which threaten the impoundment and that some evidences of marked sediment deposits are apparent, particularly so in the German area. The sediment load is so heavy that the upper section of the lake is murky to muddy, most of the year, and the muddy condition of the water has been such for the last three or four years that white bass, once plentiful in the lake, will not spawn and the species is now extinct there. The last sedimentation survey made by the Corps of Engineers—Mr. Crisp was not certain of its date but said it was made before surface mining had been developed in the watershed—failed to show any appreciable sedimentation. "We know we are now getting more (sedimentation) than we should have," Mr. Crisp told The Times. Told of a rumor heard locally that the 50-foot depth of the lake at the dam has been reduced by sedimentation to 35 feet, Crisp denied knowledge of any such situation. In the first place, he pointed out, the depth there is not 50 feet but nearer 40. Whatever the siltation situation at the lake, the Corps of Engineers responsibility in it, since, as Crisp said, before Frankfort issues any surface mining permit a Corps representative accompanies a state inspector in a review of what the operator will do in the way of silt dam construction and in taking other control measures. Periodic checks are made of the water quality, the Corps spokesman said, and these have failed to disclose any major acidity problems. It was explained that acidity results in many places when sandstone is uncovered by mining and rainfall on the stone becomes acidic. But, Crisp said, the sandstone in Eastern Kentucky is of the non-acidic type.

(Continued from Page One) In the trial of Mark Smith on the shooting charge the defendant contended he was not aware of what he was doing when he shot Kenney in the back with a shotgun charge, that the shot was fired after he had been knocked out by a blow from Kenney, who swump a gun. Kenney claimed he was walking down the road when he was shot and that he did not strike the other. Bob Blanton had a bit of good fortune in court last Wednesday when the auto theft charge against him was dismissed because it was shown that David Blackburn had given him permission to use the car in question. But his luck ran out when he allegedly showed up drunk in court and was sentenced by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to 36 hours in jail for contempt of court. The knowingly receiving stolen property charge against Bobby Watson was reduced to petty larceny, and when he pleaded guilty to the lesser offense he was fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail. The jail term later was probated. Harlie Conn was fined $25 on his plea of guilty of charges of resisting arrest and interfering with an officer. Bonds forfeited when defendants failed to report for trial were those of Junior Jones, accused of selling mortgaged property; Kenneth Prater, seduction, and Bill "Red" Howell, destroying private property. The auto theft count against Carlos and Harbit Hall was dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness. The court term will continue till December 8, with a vacation period extending from that date till the convening of the January criminal session.

(Continued from Page One) As of last Friday, we were out of newsprint again. As of Monday, the truck rolled in with a three-week supply. If this keeps up, even Color-Back won't save me. Alfred Hitchcock can't hold a candle to the suspense the paper mills are putting us in, week after week. It's harder to get newsprint now than it is to find a Spiro Agnew T-shirt . . . and that's a scarce item.

(Continued from Page One) "At that time they were only about two cents a gallon away from a process that would convert coal to gas as cheaply as making gas out of crude oil," Rep. Perkins said. "But because of short-sightedness those plants were closed down, and now we see why—at least in part—we have an energy crisis." Rep. Perkins also pointed out that coal technology and training for thousands of additional workers, technicians, and engineers would have to be funded, if the nation's needs are going to be satisfied. The Interior Department response endorsed this position, saying: "I was particularly interested in your comment about the need for skilled professional and non-professional manpower. In many of the projections that are being made relative to tremendous efforts in energy programs there seems to be insufficient emphasis on this point—which could very well be the rate-determination for the development of our energy resources." Perkins said he would continue the effort to secure a demonstration plant in the Eastern Kentucky area.

(Continued from Page One) Senior class presidents and vice-presidents who attended the meeting were Kenny Mitchell and Cecil Halbert, of McDowell; Timmy Crawford and Mike Armour, Wheelwright; Janie Beverly and Dell Jagers, Prestonsburg; Larry Woods and Ginetta Mitchell, Betsy Layne; Connie Branham and Joe Blevins, Allen Central. Jeri Samons, Allen Central sophomore class president, also attended the meeting. Mack Bulldogs Roll Over Little Round Men

Paced by the 36 points of Kenny Conley and the outstanding defensive play of Barry Hall, who blocked 15 shots, the East Kentucky Mack Bulldogs coasted to an easy 110-67 victory over the Little Round Men to bring their season record in the Paintsville Industrial Basketball League to 2-0. The game was never close as the Bulldogs grabbed an early lead and closed the first half leading by 40-23. In the second half the Bulldogs continued to build their lead to a 43-point margin by scoring 70 points. Other leading scorers for the Bulldogs were Barry Hall with 22, Johnny Ray Turner with 17, and Larry Shepherd and Jimmy Joe Reynolds with 14 each. The Bulldogs take on the highly touted Watts Mobile Home team November 25 at 4 p.m. at the Johnson Central High School gymnasium.

Paper Recycling Efforts Increase

By SUF ANNE SALMON
A tree's existence may now be prolonged—even after the wood has been processed into paper pulp—thanks to the many Kentuckians who are active in recycling projects.

Paper recycling has become a growing concern in Kentucky. Seventeen trees are processed to produce one ton of paper, and State Forestry Director Harry Nadler predicts the demand for wood may soon exceed the supply.

Even though more trees are now being grown than cut, Nadler says, recycling is vital to maintain an adequate paper supply.

Since May, 1972, a monthly pickup of old newspapers from homes throughout Lexington has netted nearly 3,000 tons of paper. The Volunteers of America (VOA) employs several workers full-time to bale the paper for recycling.

As two dollars per ton is paid for dumping paper, recycling has saved the city $5,678 in landfill fees, VOA Capt. William Dunlap notes. And at the rate of 17 trees per ton of paper, 48,263 trees have been recycled by Lexington and nearby towns.

In Louisville, VOA collects, shreds and bales up to 600,000 pounds of old newspapers, 150 tons of cardboard and 60,000 pounds of IBM punch cards per month.

VOA in Louisville employs 60 to 80 people to recycle paper and other materials like metals and glass.

The VOA sells its bales of paper to salvage companies which pay from $14 per ton for newsprint to $180 per ton for IBM punch cards. The companies then clean and sell the paper to mills.

Dick Fisher of the Alton Boxboard Co., a Louisville salvage company, says his firm processes 4,000 tons of used paper per month. Recycled pulp is more economical to use than virgin tree fiber, he adds.

Demand exceeds supply, Fisher says, noting that his company needs a monthly increase of 14,000 tons of corrugated cardboard before June.

The suppliers of the paper are widespread. Fifty-eight Louisville schools help supply Alton Boxboard with paper, and one city elementary school collected 50,000 pounds in one month, Fisher says, which earned $300 for the PTA.

The University of Kentucky is also active in recycling. Here various student organizations, the Computer Center and the Registrar and Admissions Office save and collect refuse paper to be recycled.

The recycling efforts of the American Greetings Corporation in Corbin are saving dollars as well as trees.

Dumping 175,000 pounds of paper refuse per month costs about six dollars per truck load, says Louis Reeves of American Greetings. But, he says, they break even on disposal of the refuse by baling and selling the bundles to a paper mill in Dayton. And, he notes, this creates another supply of raw materials for the company.

Deskins Murder Defendants Get Federal Terms

(From The Pike County News)
Another chapter unfolded in federal court at Pikeville last week in the murder of Mrs. Gladys Deskins, 59, found slain at her home at Meta on July 12, 1971.

Two of three defendants awaiting trial for her murder in Pike circuit court received heavy sentences in federal court on weapons charges growing out of the death of Mrs. Deskins.

Boone Deskins, 69, of Zebulon, husband of the slain woman is serving a life sentence after conviction of murder in Pike circuit court last March as the result of his wife's death.

Deskins was accused of paying three Pikeville men $7,000 to kill his estranged wife, Mrs. Deskins.

The three, awaiting Pike circuit court trial for Mrs. Deskins, murder, are Robert Sykes, 39; William Eugene Thompson, 23, and Willard (Woody) Christian. Christian at the murder trial of Boone Deskins admitted taking part in the slaying and was a prosecution witness.

Christian again was a witness for the prosecution at the federal court hearing of Sykes and Thompson.

Sykes, Thompson and Christian were indicted in federal court on weapons charges resulting from their being connected with a sawed-off shotgun allegedly used in Mrs. Deskins' slaying.

The federal charges involving the weapon against Christian have been dropped.

The weapons charge indictment contained two counts: possessing an unregistered weapon and receiving a firearm in interstate commerce with intent to commit a felony.

Sykes received a total of 12 years and Thompson received a total of 17 years. Sykes was sentenced to two years on the first count and 10 years on the second. Thompson was sentenced to seven years on the first count and 10 years on the second. The sentences are to be served consecutively.

The trial lasted three days and the jury deliberated about 15 minutes before returning the guilty verdict.

Frank Eddy, resident agent for the Bureau of ATF, U. S. Treasury Department, conducted the federal investigation of the murder and weapons charges.

Detective Chester Potter, of the Pikeville Detachment of the State Police, located the shotgun involved and conducted the state police investigation of the murder and weapons charges.

BARS STUDENT CANDIDATE

A three-judge federal panel has ruled that a 16-year-old girl is not eligible to run for the school board in Ann Arbor, Michigan, thereby "guarding the maturity of the school board." The court ruled that school board members should have full adult rights and that the state need not show a "compelling interest in denying a candidacy."

Ban on Broad-Form Deed Approved for Pre-Filing

A bill to ban the controversial broad-form deed in coal mining was authorized last week for pre-filing for the 1974 General Assembly, which convenes Jan. 8. Sponsored by Rep. Raymond Overstreet, R-Liberty, the bill would require applications for strip-mining permits to be accompanied by a notarized statement of consent by "each holder of a freehold interest in such land." Under the bill, no permit to strip-mine could be issued by the state unless owners of surface land give the necessary consent. Broad-form deeds give owners of subsurface minerals the right to use the surface "in all and any manner that may be deemed necessary and convenient" in mining. Most of the deeds were signed around the turn of the century, before surface mining was widespread. As recently as 1968, the state Court of Appeals upheld the validity of the broad-form deed and the right of coal companies to strip mine, regardless of whether the current surface owner was a party to the sale of mineral rights. Overstreet, who was elected to a second term Nov. 6, sponsored similar legislation during the 1972 session, saying that "the people should decide whether they want their land stripped, not some governmental agency and not some conservation group." Overstreet waged almost a one-man battle to get his bill through the House in the 1972 session, even accusing his colleagues of cowardice in refusing to permit the broad-form deed question to be brought before the full House for discussion.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Gov. Wendell H. Ford has termed a joint seminar held by the executive branch of state government and the General Assembly as "representative of a new spirit of cooperation between both branches." Ford, speaking recently at a legislative seminar on the state budget in Louisville, also urged the legislators to examine realities such as the energy crisis, the way federal funds are released and the uses to which surplus and revenue-sharing funds are put. Stating that the energy crisis will be serious throughout the budget period—July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1976—Ford said reduction in gas consumption could curtail road funds. "The energy crisis could also create unemployment which could cause a decrease in the general fund," said Ford. Unemployment in Kentucky is now at 3 percent but some predict it may rise to 10 percent because of the energy crisis, he added. The Governor also urged the legislators to take a long, hard look at the federal flow of funds. In the future, he said, those funds will be released only at 30-day intervals, not in a lump sum as in the past. The legislators were reminded that the budget request would be presented in a new format which could not be compared to past budgets. "We have been involved in reorganization," he continued. "Historical costs for neither the programs nor new agencies are available." In explaining the new budget format, Ford said that in the past state agencies were primarily concerned with what they were buying, how much they were buying and what it would cost to buy goods and employ people for two years. "The new program budget tells what is being done, who is being served and how good the service is. We know the need and what portion of that need will be met within funds provided," Ford said.

The decision to use program formats instead of traditional budget formats, Ford said, as based on the General Assembly's request for 15 agencies to use the new format and his own belief that a change in emphasis was needed. "Implementation of program budgeting in all state agencies will provide the process an information whereby we will look at our public needs, our public services and our alternatives to provide the services," Ford said.

Division of Forestry Stresses Fire Prevention

Kentucky is now in its fall fire season which runs from Oct. 1 to Dec. 15. During this period a number of forest fires can be expected. Most of these can be prevented with your help. Last year 99 percent of all forest fires in the state were the result of carelessness and could have been prevented. I urge all Kentuckians to exercise extreme caution this fall. During fire season it is illegal to set fire to inflammable material within 150 feet of any woodland or brushland, except between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and midnight. The Division of Forestry in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection prepared for the fire season by conducting a special training session for each forest district in the state. Particular emphasis was placed on initial attack on a fire and proper control line location and construction. All fire fighting equipment and fire crews were made ready before the fire season began. The Division of Forestry is now manning its fire towers and, in the central and western portions of the state, airplanes are being used to check on smoke and locate fires. I hope all Kentuckians will take a tip from Smokey and remember that only you can prevent forest fires.

This coating gives your Wildcat a subtle whitish cast to match the white of the U. of K. colors. And the "Big Blue" is boldly represented by the genuine, faceted, blue sapphire eyes. A Signed & Numbered Edition. Only 1000 Wildcat rings and pendants will ever be made. Each will be signed and numbered by the artist, R. W. Reynierson, making your Wildcat both a unique collector's item and a valuable investment. The molds used for casting will be held by the Bank of Commerce & Trust Company until the hand finishing of the 1000 items is completed. At that time the molds will be destroyed under the supervision of bank officials. A certificate guaranteeing the destruction of the molds will be issued by the bank to each owner of a ring or pendant. The Artist. Bob Reynierson, an avid U. of K. football fan, was born and raised in Lexington. A graduate of the Department of Fine Arts at Kentucky, Bob is an expert on 19th century American art. In fact, he is a descendant of two famous 19th century Kentuckians—the sculptor, Joel Tanner Hart, and the Civil War general, John Hunt Morgan. In addition to gold and silver smithing, Bob is active in the fields of painting, sculpting, and restoring historical paintings. The recipient of many awards, Bob says the most enjoyable aspect of his work is that many of his creations can be worn as well as displayed. He is therefore quite happy to offer these fine Wildcat replicas to all U. of K. football fans. Ordering Your Sterling Silver Wildcat. Since only 1000 of these items will be made, orders will be processed on a first come, first served basis. This will be established by the time and date of postmark on letters received. The earlier the postmark, the lower the number in the series of 1000; earliest will receive number 1 of 1000, etc. Orders received after the last Wildcat has been sold will have the money refunded. Postage on all orders is prepaid. Sales tax is included in price. To receive your Wildcat ring or pendant, fill out and clip the coupon and send to Bank of Commerce & Trust Company, 318 E. Main, Lexington, Kentucky 40507. Allow 4 to 5 weeks for delivery.

At State Reading Council

Some of the 200 participants in the annual fall conference of the Kentucky State Council of the International Reading Association at Eastern Kentucky University talk over the program. They are Delphia Hicks, Marie Stumbo, Pauline Hicks, and Nadine Hicks, all from Floyd county schools.

When shopping for a house, check out the insulation. A fully insulated house costs one-third to one-half less to heat than an uninsulated house.

CONSUMER COMMENTS

Senior citizens planning to purchase health insurance should consider first what kind of coverage is needed and for how long.

For persons not covered by Medicaid or Medicare, a full-coverage policy may be necessary.

Senior citizens covered by Medicaid or Medicare may only need a supplemental plan to cover those periods when one or both of the two health plans do not provide coverage.

Many health insurance policies with riders carry a disclaimer. A disclaimer says the policy holder has been ill during a period of time prior to the signing of the contract.

If the policy holder has been ill, then the policy will not give coverage until the policy holder is illness-free for a stated period of time. The length of time prior to the purchase may vary from policy to policy and company to company.

Make sure the salesman clearly identifies himself, his company and the type of coverage he is selling. Don't be pressured into purchasing insurance because it is only pennies a week or because of some grand new program that is a once-in-a-lifetime offer.

Fully investigate all policies. Discuss new health coverage with a well-known community insurance representative or call the Department of Insurance to find out if a company is reliable.

Health protection is worth more than the fast talk of a slick salesman who is here today and gone tomorrow.

For answers and suggestions to aid in consumer problems, Kentucky residents may call the Division of Consumer Protection on the toll-free consumer hotline, at 1-800-372-2960, or write the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, 309 Shelby Street, Room 110, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

HI HAT NEWS

HI HAT HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Hi Hat Homemakers met at the home of Ann Stephens at Price, November 12. The newly elected president, Melvie Newman, presided. The lesson for the evening was a display of Christmas crafts gathered by Mrs. Frances Pitts from various clubs in the county. Members present were Ann Stephens, Sylvia Newman, Zeda Snyder, Gertrude Lawson, Melvie Newman, Chattie Hall, Delores Newman. Refreshments were served by Zeda Snyder and Ann Stephens.

Since there will be no regular meeting in December, the members voted to have the annual Christmas party again this year. It will be held at the Hi Hat school, Sunday, December 16, at 2 p.m.

Beginning in January, meetings will be held at the school at Hi Hat. The lesson in January will be on "Sewing".

We would like to thank the people of our community for their help in making our bake sale on Election Day a success.

REGISTRATION STILL REQUIRED

Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone has stated that even though there is no draft, young men are still required to register with the Selective Service at the time of their 18th birthday. THE FAMILY

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Luther Reedy, who passed away Nov. 25, 1967:

Though you are gone you are not forgotten.
Life without you is not all,
All in vain;
I've picked up the light you left me.
And am trying to live again.

God has blessed and given me courage,
Though you seem so far away,
Yet there are times when you are near me—
That is when I kneel and pray.

Many times I have heard your voice
And to me it was so true,
Saying, Please Dear, stay your warring,
God's with me, He will be with you."

Then my heart, it grew much stronger,
And to God we must be true.
Then God whispered very softly,
"Stop and think, there is work to do."

Now I know your load is heavy
And the cross is hard to bear.
Look to God, and He will lighten,
Then there is nothing else to fear.

Now I will try to help those poor souls
Who can hardly lift their load;
I will offer them my service,
Then we will walk the lighted road.

Up the path to God we will travel,
Working hard to earn our way,
Helping others on their journey—
Walk the straight and narrow way.

God will help the broken-hearted,
Those who weep when friends are gone;
He says, "Stand up, be ye counted,"
Be as cedars of Lebanon.

MRS. LUTHER REEDY

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carleton
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

With the archery deer season opening within a few weeks, many of our modern day Robin Hoods are getting ready to hunt the elusive whitetail. While some are scouting out the best area to take a stand, others are practicing how to hit their mark once the opportunity presents itself.

With newcomers to this wonderful sport each season, there are some rules and regulations that each and every archer should know.

Bow hunters may take either sex deer in all counties except Jackson and Owsley, (which are closed to all deer hunting), from Oct. 1 through Oct. 31 and from Dec. 1 through Dec. 31. The limit is one deer per season, whether by gun or bow. A hunter who has already taken his deer may assist others provided he has his hunting license and deer permit and carries neither gun nor bow.

The deer permit, which entitles the hunter to use either gun or bow, is required in addition to a valid hunting license. After a deer is taken, the metal tag on the permit must be attached to the deer in such a way that it cannot be removed without mutilating the carcass and must remain attached to the deer until it is processed. If the hide is removed from the deer, it must also be tagged (the hide tag is also a part of the deer permit.) Hides may not be bought or sold.

All hunters must have a license and deer permit except resident landowners and their dependent children hunting on their land, tenants and their dependent children residing upon said land, residents over 65, and servicemen on four or more days furlough hunting in their home county. These exempted hunters must still notify the Department of Fish and Wildlife of any deer taken, and if the deer is to be transported they must attach a free identification tag (obtained from the local conservation officer) to the deer.

Archers must use barbless arrows with broadhead points at least ¾ inch wide. The same requirement applies to arrows shot from crossbows, (minimum 80 pound pull) which are permitted only on the Pioneer Weapons Wildlife Management Area.

Bow hunters are not permitted to carry any type of firearm while hunting, nor are they allowed to use any type of chemically treated arrows or attachments containing chemicals. The use of boats, vehicles, or any type of domestic animals (including dogs) is also prohibited.

These are some of the most important regulations for deer hunters to remember. For a pamphlet with the complete regulations for gun and bow hunting, as well as seasons and special regulations which apply to certain management areas, write to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

CARD OF THANKS

We acknowledge our deep gratitude to all who were so kind and helpful to us upon the passing of our loved one, Ed Moore; to those who sent flowers, those who by personal visits and services showed their sympathy; the ministers for their comforting words, and all others who remembered him and us.

GOSSIP

When the gossip starts to travel
And the people move about,
A little tiny whisper
Becomes an ugly shout;
A little word of kindness
Is twisted into scorn,
And a little friendly meeting
Is of all its purpose, shown.
What makes the idle talker
So anxious to be heard?
Why must he be untruthful
In his thoughtless spoken word?
He causes so much heartache,
He causes many tear;
He adds discord to harmony,
And turns content to fears.
The world would be much better
If only age and youth
Wouth turn their backs on gossip
And strive to tell the truth.

DIXON SCHOOL OFFERS OPEN EDUCATION

The Dixon elementary school is involved in a new educational concept which requires the custodian to wear a white shirt and tie, allows students and teachers alike to eat lunch at their desk, and features classrooms without walls or doors. Not only are there physical differences, but Dixon's curriculum may differ from other schools in that it is totally individualized and grades are given only to seventh and eighth graders. All this and discipline is reported to be better.

"TEACHER OF THE YEAR"

An elementary school teacher from Paducah has been named Kentucky's Teacher of the Year for 1973-'74. Miss Jane McBride, a science specialist at Andrew Jackson elementary school, was selected by the Kentucky Department of Education from several nominees whose names were submitted by local superintendents. A teacher for 19 years, Miss McBride teaches science and environmental education to students in grades 1-8.

Election Winner

Eastern Kentuckians traditionally do well in politics outside their own bailiwicks, and Garrett's Dan Martin is no exception.

Mr. Martin was elected to the City Council of Mansfield, O., a city of 60,000 population, at the Nov. 8 election. He will begin his term of office with the eight-member council, Jan. 2.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie J. Martin, of Garrett, he also is now serving his second three-year term as vice-president of a local union at Mansfield, has served five years as a member of the Board on Retardation there, and is in his second two-year term as a member of the executive committee of the Richland County Trades Council.

A labor and industry legislative subcommittee has recommended nine consumer protection proposals formulated by the Consumer Advisory Council. Included is legislation making a dealer liable for defective car sales if the malfunction was known at the time of purchase. Certain telephone and charity solicitations would also be restricted if the proposals are passed by the 1974 General Assembly. The subcommittee also recommended that restrictions be placed on pyramid sales organizations which often "get rich quick" and then flee the state before prosecution.

Crosthwaite Reviews Proposed Legislation To Retired Teachers

The Floyd County Retired Teachers Association held its fall meeting Saturday afternoon, Nov. 10, in the Regional Library here with Mrs. May K. Roberts, president, presiding. The devotional was given by Miss Myrtle Pugsley, local missionary.

After a brief business session, Mike Auxier, who has recently joined the personnel of the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System, spoke briefly on the status of the system. He then introduced the guest-speaker, Ted Crosthwaite, of Frankfort, executive secretary of the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System, who outlined the proposed education bill, as it affects retirees, which is now being completed for presentation to the General Assembly in January. He stressed the importance of increased membership in local and state associations and urged each member to continue his own membership and strive to obtain new members. A question-and-answer session followed.

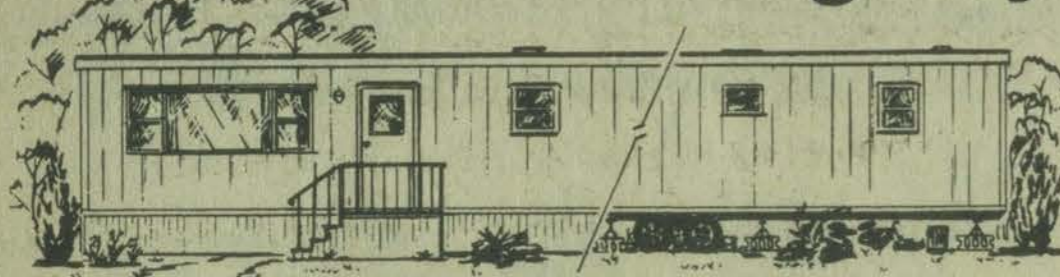

Donations were made to the N. O. Kimbler Memorial Scholarship Fund which, when activated, will provide financial assistance to needy pupils preparing for the teaching profession. The late Mr. Kimbler was one of the founders of the Kentucky Teachers Retirement System.

A social hour followed with Miss Josephine Spradin and Mrs. Josephine S. Hill as hostesses, serving refreshments to the following members and guests: Misses Alice Harris, Anna Laura May, Lexie Allen, Myrtle Pugsley and Josephine Spradin; Messdames Grace Sutherland, May K. Crosthwaite, Mike Auxier, Clem Martin, Wayne Ratliff, Carmel Akers, Lewis Campbell and E. D. Roberts.

Arson Suspected In One of Fires In Floyd Woods

The work of a suspected arsonist was listed as the cause of at least one of six fires in this county which in one day last week destroyed some 275 acres of forest land.

Jim Winter, district forester for the six-county area of Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Magoffin, Martin and Lawrence, said last Thursday's woodland losses in Floyd county totalled more than in any of the other five counties, although he said Pike and Floyd are "running practically neck and neck" in total losses for this fall's fire season which began October 1.

Winter said two of the fires were believed to have occurred as the result of the carelessness of hunters; one, by a construction project, and another, of incendiary origin, which refers to any fire begun as a malicious act.

Dry and windy conditions contributed to the fires which occurred at Bull Creek, Spurlock, Dwale, Abner Mountain and Buckingham, according to Winter. The worst single fire in the county was a blaze at Bull Creek which claimed 125 acres.

Mr. Winter said until the past week forest fire activity had been relatively light in the county and district as a whole but added that if the weather becomes dry again "the worst period is yet to come." According to Winter, heavy rains earlier this fall have actually added to the fire threat by knocking leaves off the trees. Because of this he said, the shade afforded by the foliage is lost and the fallen leaves add to the flammable material.

At present, the Maytown and Mud Creek fire towers are manned and the Brandy Keg tower on Corn Fork will soon be in use, Winter said.

Winter stressed that during fire season—October 1 to December 15—it is illegal to burn anything within 150 feet of a woodland or brushland, except between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and 12 midnight.

Coal Companies Given Extension On Waste Dams

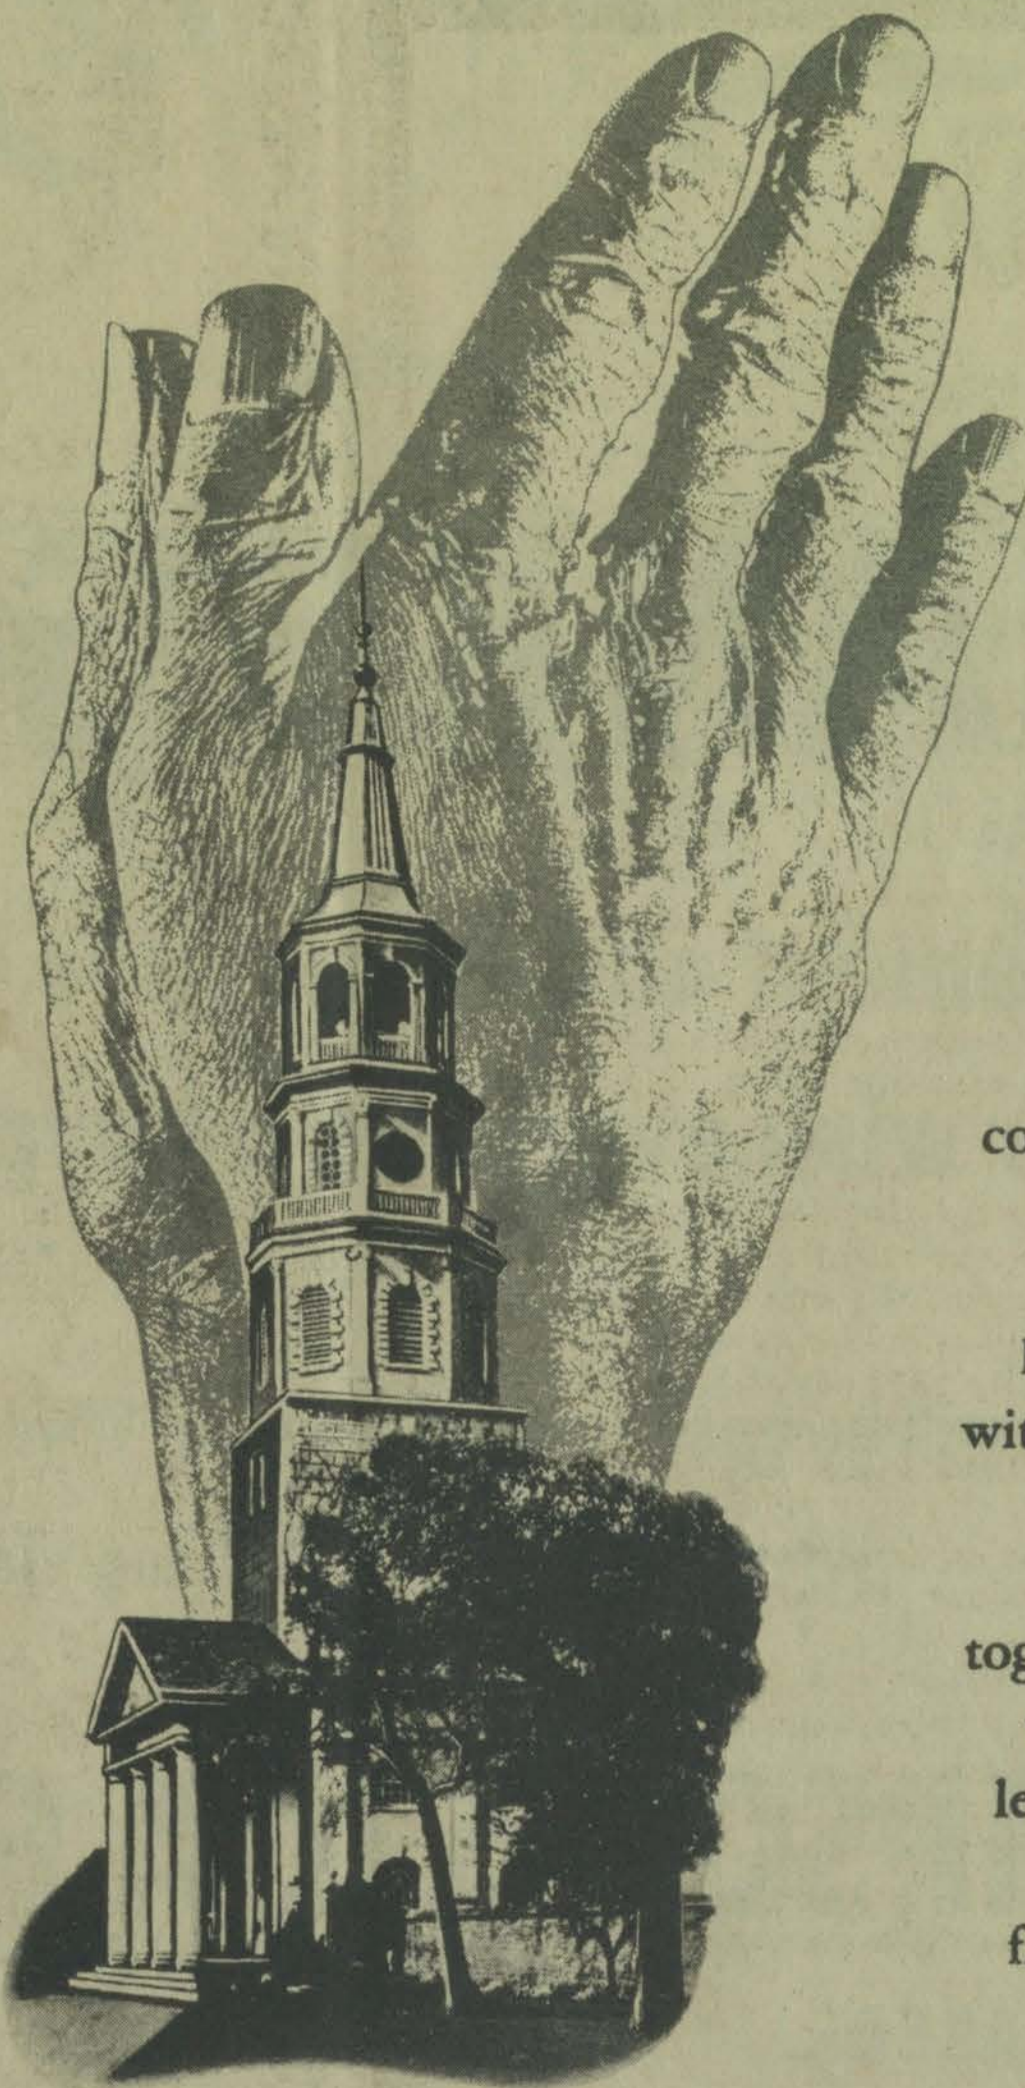

Monday was the official date set by the federal Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA) for the correction of "inadequate structural traits" in a coal waste dam owned by Island Creek Coal Corporation in this county, but a second extension moved the deadline up to Nov. 30.

The dam, located on Spewing Camp, near McDowell, was one of 14 considered "severe hazards" in a report compiled by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Three other Eastern Kentucky coal companies, including the Republic Steel Co. on Road Creek in Pike county, the Eastern Coal Co. at Stone, Pike county, and the Kentland-Elkhorn Coal Co., on Big Creek, also in Pike county, were issued safety violation notices after MESA inspectors found similar silt dams structurally unsound last September. At that time MESA gave the companies one month to comply but in each instance the period was extended an additional 30 days because, according to a MESA spokesman, the firms had given indications of a willingness to bring themselves into compliance.

Efforts by The Times to contact Island Creek officials in the county and at Holden, W. Va. to gain information on the company's position failed. One report said between 20 and 25 families live below the Spewing Camp dam.

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company

$5,000 REWARD

($50,000 Maximum)

FOR INFORMATION LEADING TO ARREST AND CONVICTION

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company has suffered certain malicious acts of sabotage against its property and equipment, beginning November 1, 1973. Law enforcement officers, including federal, state and local have been notified.

The company offers to reward any person or persons furnishing to the company or to any law enforcement agency of the State of Kentucky, or the federal government, or to the sheriff of any county, or to the police of any municipality, information directly leading to the arrest and conviction of any person wilfully or maliciously interfering with the flow of gas, injuring or destroying any of the company's operating equipment or facilities, for aiding or procuring any person to do such an act.

The maximum of reward payable in each instance of interference with the flow of gas, injury, or destruction of property is $5,000 and the total amount of the rewards payable for all such instances shall not exceed $50,000. The company reserves the right to determine the person or persons entitled to the reward and the proportionate amount to which each is entitled. This offer shall terminate January 1, 1974, subject to extension by the company. This offer of reward cancels and supersedes long standing previous reward offers of $500 each.

The increased number of such acts of sabotage endangers the public which is dependent on gas for safety, health, and comfort. Any such acts affecting any of the company's facilities will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law as part of Kentucky West Virginia's obligation to provide safe and dependable gas service to its customers.

This offer of reward does not pertain to the interruption of gas service to the Hazard Gas Company on November 1, 1973 or to the attempted interruptions to gas service to the City of Prestonsburg, the City of Paintsville, Johnson County Gas Company, Ohio-Kentucky Utilities, or Mountain Utilities on November 3, 1973, for which separate rewards have previously been offered and are still available.
